GIVING rise to a great deal of controversy is the bill on the floor of the State Assembly making it mandatory to salute the American flag in all California schools.

Long a subject of heated discussion this bill will no doubt be vigorously opposed by many liberal minded citizens, especially those of certain religions which forbid such a procedure. Perhaps it would be better to educate the school children as to why they should wish to salute the flag than to make them salute it without giving a reason. Of course to a certain extent this is done, but there should be some way of explaining things to those students who have religious scruples against such a tribute.

Sartorial Modes

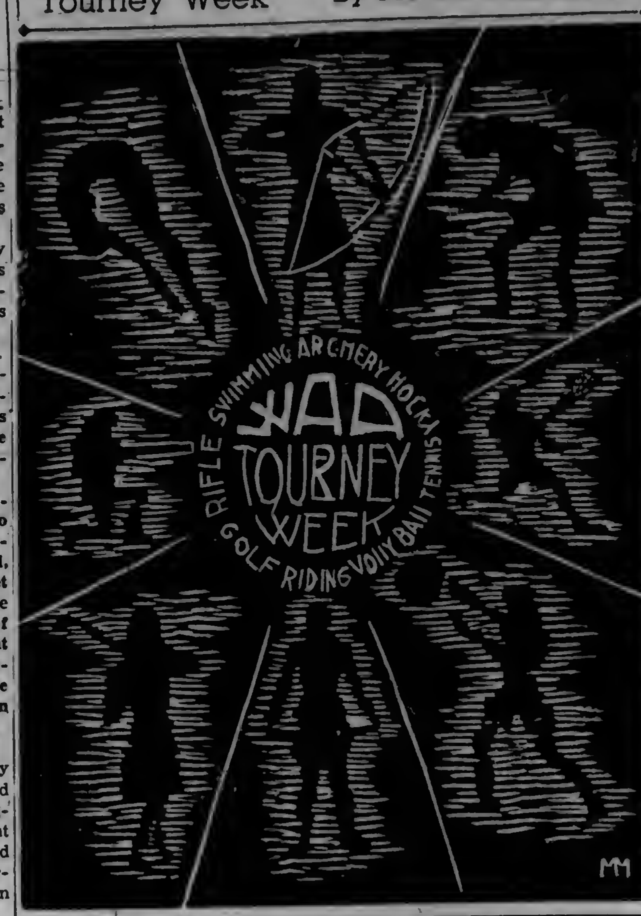
By Fashion Fanny

THOSE inimitable designs in smart new jewelry fashioned by Martha Sleeper have received much applause from the young women around town who know. Miss Sleeper has left jewelry for a while and has turned to the manufacturing of bags. The stores in town are showing the "Tom Sawyer Bag" which is rather a large pouch with slide zipper, and tied with leather thongs onto a bamboo stick and then slung over the shoulder vagabond fashion or carried under the arm. These bags come in the various spring shades also black patent, blue, and brown.

RIBBON BOWS

Now that Easter is over and the new spring outfits have been purchased, don't forget that even though your hat is about the smartest ever, it'll need refreshing before the summer is over. One of the stores in town will make your hat look like new by putting ribbon bows on it with a grand color selection for you to choose from. Or if you want veiling and flowers, one shop in town specializes in veils.

PLAY CLOTHES



Play clothes are coming into their own as spring advances and they promise to be very popular with the women all over. A white linen sports dress with matching bolero with scalloped edges and lined in blue to match the blue flowers on the material is very attractive. Seersucker striped material in three piece playsuits or the white linen suit is still popular. Bathing suits will be frilly and decidedly feminine this season in silks and satins and almost any material that suits the fancy of the bather.

MESH SHOES

Mesh shoes look and are very, very comfortable. They promise to be very fashionable this season and no doubt will be popular [illegible] year rolls around.

Tourney Week

By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

American Neutrality Urged; Fish Eating Deplored

• AMERICAN NEUTRALITY

Editor, The Guardsman:

The United States of America has no reason whatever to take sides in a European war. Instead the United States should proclaim a strict neutrality and sell no war goods to either side in a conflict whether they be a totalitarian power or democracy. We are separated by three thousand miles of water from the shores of Europe, we do not need to trade with the European nations because if we had to we could take care of ourselves economically, and we have no part in their quarrels, instead America should mind her own business!

Last week President Roosevelt said that the United States would support England and France in case of a war. Just why should Mr. Roosevelt make such a statement as that? In other words, he has said "In case of war we would fight with England and France". Naturally Germany resented this remark and the German press attacked Roosevelt strongly. We have no business to meddle in European affairs. Did we not learn a lesson in 1917 when we sent thousands of our youth over to die on a European battlefield, for what? What did we gain out of the last war? We lost billions of dollars to European nations through money which we lent, millions on armaments, and a depression in 1929 from which we are still staggering today! So Mr. Roosevelt instead of pledging aid to England and France in case of a war, would it not be better to draw up a new neutrality law that would prevent us from being plunged into another war and sacrificing everything that America stands for?

A Freshman

• A NOTE FROM THE "OLD SCHOOL"

Editor, The Guardsman:

It was with a great deal of disgust that I read a letter in last week's Rams Horn signed by a "New Student" and urging that this college have a gold fish eating or championship kissing contest in order to drum up some publicity.

The outside world must be getting a fine impression of American college youth when they read accounts of kissing contests, worm and phonograph recording eating contests and other forms of these zany contests fast being devised. While I shudder at calling myself a kill-joy, it seems to me there are better ways of getting publicity for one's college.

If there are such glory-loving persons in American colleges, let them get their publicity by doing these feats in their own private lives without linking the names of the colleges in their accomplishments.

It is indeed a sorry state of affairs when officials of colleges go so far as to sanction these contests. Yet it just goes to show that they are as misplaced in their positions as these students are in college.

As I still cherish the old fashioned spelling-bee type of contest, I feel that were these students to get their publicity for themselves and their colleges through their scholastic or athletic endeavors instead of these senseless and even barbaric contests, the American public as a whole would have a far better reaction toward our colleges.

Sincerely,

Tom Toiler

AFTER DARK

By John Ward

ANENT the series of historical films playing at the San Francisco Museum of Art: last week four bits of the great thespian past were presented. Madame Sans-Gene with the famous Rejane displayed a charming comedienne in the grand manner. La Dame aux Camellas with the notorious Bernhardt presented a well-fed darling of the gay nineties who did a large amount of gesturing and made alarmingly violent love. Vanity Fair introduced to this generation America's late darling Minnie Maddern Fiske who proved to be a charming little lady and very little else.

Far be it from us, however, to judge these women from these bit films. The cinema was far too young and far too immature in 1910-12-14 to present great actresses at their best. And said actresses' knowledge of cinematic technique was, to be sure, nil. What did impress us from the evening was a short drama called Cenere, starring the great Eleonora Duse. Here was a pantomime by one of the most hauntingly beautiful women we have ever seen on the screen. The incredibly lovely hands, the distant (there is no other word) noble face, the strange, slow, dance-like movements of her body: all added up to an altogether real artistic treat and a tardy introduction.

At the Clay Theater last week (and we hope this week) is a swell comedy called The Ghost Goes West. One of the best bits of cinematic satire we have seen in a long time. To be sure it is a return engagement and we have seen it before, but for all that it stands up with the best that Hollywood has produced in the lighter vein. And it contains one of the classic scenes of all movies for us: that scene wherein Murdock Glourie is blown to smithereens on some historic Scottish battlefield and all that eventually returns of his mortal self is a wee bit o' tam with a wee bit o' feather attached.

Rene Clair, the director and one of the best directors the French have produced, filled his comedy with digs at the American expansive tastes. This is one of the delights of the film. One supposes that an audience likes nothing better than to laugh at itself. Certainly The Ghost Goes West is full of opportunities for such sport.

Perhaps it is missing in America though we would prefer not thinking so. But with the Russians there is at least a semblance of hope, of plain ordinary belief in the world today. We feel that America is (as is Europe) tending to the easy cynical, the all too simple defeatism (What ho! Munich, etc.) Still, as we have been reminded by one of our more amusing critics, artists shouldn't dabble in politics, etc. But what we should like to know is: who should? just politicians? We do hope that that little game of "you play in your own back yard and I'll play in mine" isn't coming back into fashion.

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

FALSE modesty prevented the Executive Council from voting its individual members honor pins for their fine work this semester.

• • •

While excavating for Incan pottery in Yucatan a few years ago, we discovered the following priceless pearl of poetic endeavor.

There's a wonderful family named Stein,
There's Gert and there's Epp and there's Ein,
Gert's stuff is the bunk,
Epp's statues are punk,
And nobody understandes Ein.

• • •

IT'S REALLY CUTE

Jane Mitchell, Associated Students' secretary wants a poll of opinion on her new pink sweater. If there is enough pressure Jane promises to purchase another sweater.

• • •

With no needs of statistics, Miss Florence Hanson nominates Roy Mann as the champion lady's man of San Francisco Junior College.

• • •

SEA-WEED SWALLOWER SAMMY

What with all these college students eating wiggly goldfish for publicity and last week a young man eating mice for $10.00, we believe Sam "Little Neptune" Galstaun, staff photographer can outdo any of them. Sammy ate 654.5 square inches of sea weed in less than three minutes. Sammy also eats raw fish—and they are a lot larger than goldfish.

• • •

Here's information for the Rally Committee: Bill Brady, a student of the college is a good dance director. He is assisting in the U. C. Extravaganza "Anything Goes". Tom Coyne is a song writer, and there are at least a half dozen students of the college who think they can write a good musical comedy.—Does this suggest anything?

• • •

MISS MITCHELL MOST VALUABLE

At this late period of the semester we would like to invite the students of the college to the Executive Council meetings so that they may observe the goings on in San Francisco Junior College student affairs. We will wager our reputation that a majority of the outsiders will decide that Jane Mitchell is the most valuable member of the esteemed body. Miss Mitchell, no doubt, will deny her value.

• • •

OBIT

Yosemite, (under the Pink Rat), the last stand of the college intellectuals, etc., is now an impotent and quite normal sandwich shop since the decline of intellectualism in San Francisco.

AMEN.

• • •

PAT ON THE BACK

Congratulations to John Cumming, editor of the Forum Magazine, who worked practically unassisted to publish the annual literary specialty. Cumming put a great deal of his time into the publication and we anxiously await his endeavors.

Presidential Notes

By Frank Verducci

BE sure to attend this semester's initial business meeting on April 27, as it concerns each and every one of you. We shall vote on the electioneering amendment, which if passed, will go into effect immediately. This will have a decided influence on this semester's election which will be held on May 5.

ACTUAL AMENDMENT

For the benefit of those who do not know what the electioneering amendment is, it is hereby stated: 1. The circulation of printed matter in any form as a campaign procedure for the election of any candidate for any student office shall disqualify said candidate. 2. The use of the radio or a vocal amplifying system to the unfair advantage of one candidate over another shall constitute a reason for disqualifying said candidate. 3. The Executive Council shall determine upon receipt of satisfactory evidence if a candidate has for any reason warranted disqualification for candidacy. If you have any opinion on this subject and wish to vote on the amendment, be sure to come Thursday, April 27 at 2:30 p.m. in the Galileo auditorium.

PETITIONS DUE

All candidates who intend to run for Associated Student offices should get their petitions signed by 75 students immediately. They should also hand into Dean Browne's office a record of their grades signed by their instructors. This should be done at once as the Nomination Rally is to be held on Friday, April 28, at 2:30 p.m.

Complete Athletic Program Planned By Sophs For Barbecue

Attend Women's Horse Show Held At San Francisco Academy

Will She Win?

Pictured above is Susie, one of the prominent performers in the forthcoming Women's Horse Show. Susie isn't what she used to be, but she will be in there fighting.

Riding Club Presents Free Horse Show; Two Trophies To Be Given As Awards

Another big event during Tourney Week will be the Riding Club Horse Show which will be presented on Saturday evening, April 22 at 7:30. The place of presentation is the San Francisco Riding School, Stanyan Street at Haight.

Admission to the spectacular event is free, and anyone who is interested may attend.

Events scheduled for the evening are as follows:

Walk, Trot, Canter—singles—Beginners.

Walk, Trot, Canter—singles—Intermediates.

Walk, Trot, Canter—pairs—Beginners and Intermediates.

Trophy Game—Beginners and Intermediates.

Exhibition Jumping

Walk, Trot, Canter—singles—Advanced.

Walk, Trot, Canter — pairs — Advanced.

Walk, Trot, Canter — fours — Advanced.

Jumping—Advanced.

Mounting and Dismounting — Advanced.

Trophy Game—Advanced.

Dorothy Woods, the riding manager, has left town and was not able to arrange the show as it was planned. Under the direction of Laurine Bergin of the faculty, Betty MacKenzie and Phyllis Learned were appointed to take charge of the event. In a short space of time, Miss MacKenzie and Miss Learned have prepared the show for this Saturday, and are certain it will be successful.

Compete For Trophies

Awards for the evening will be two trophies, one for the Trophy Game between the beginners and intermediates, and one for the game between the advanced students.

During the past weeks, the Riding Club has been training for the Show, and under Mrs. Bergin has shown continuous improvement.

Dorothy Sanderson Heads Nominating Committee For WAA Semi-Annual Elections

Approved by the WAA Council last Friday, those who have been nominated for office next semester are as follows: President, Lucille Jacke, and Thursa Scott; Vice-president, Gloria Miller, and Majorie Radke; Secretary, Dorothy Nelson, and Madeline Holmer; Treasurer, Helen Godman, and Alma Koopman.

On the nominating committee were Dorothy Sanderson, president, Polly Trenk, Marion Dicke, Annette Schunick, and Vera Spencer, sponsor of W. A. A.

Election of the officers is taking place this week, and those who are eligible to vote are women who were members of WAA last semester and this semester's members.

The women may vote in the morning at Powell Street on the Mezzanine, and in the afternoon at the Girl's Gym at Galileo.

In the filming of Men With Wings only one crash occurred, and that a minor one, when a rebuilt Fokker ran out of gas and landed in a potato field smashing the landing gear.

RAM chops

By JACK SCHMALE

Sporting news, at least along victorious lines, is not as available as it might be around these parts at the present time.

Therefore, it shouldn't be such a bad idea to scribble a few flattering remarks about our famed Dean of Men, Edwin C. Browne, and his ability to upset wooden targets on Harry Alten's Golden Gate Recreation bowling alleys.

The good Dean should not feel that he is being exploited only as a last resort to write something complimentary on the local athletic situation. Such is not the case, and far be it from us to ask Hizzoner to stoop to the viol low of whipping off a tune on fiddle number two.

Dean Bowls Mean Game

The real, scout's honor truth of the matter is that our jovial Gunga Dean, defying convention as bowling scores define deans-of-men, took it upon his manly shoulders last Thursday to splatter maple all over Jones Street for a fine, undeanly 231 game score!

Most deans would be content with a supreme achievement of around 165 or 175, but not E. C. Browne. No sir. Where others of his contemporary standing in the community lack the audacity even to aspire toward a round-figure score of 200, our Dean pops up with 231—and yet moans on corner-pin "taps" in the second and fourth frames.

It is such men who keep the pioneer spirit alive and make San Francisco Junior College what it is today!

Amori Amazes

Joe Amori, nevertheless, maintains his faculty top score, with 235. In the actual student class, Benny Papapietro's 246 still dominates, and in actual interscholastic match game competition—well, we are inclined to be modest, but, oh shucks, a guy who writes a sports column for The Guardsman hit 235 against Redwood City last semester.

The college's keglers, by the way, are tentatively slated to take over the Redwood alleys tomorrow night, meeting Menlo at 8 o'clock. Drop down and have a look, eh keed?

Well, That's State

A local daily last week contained a picture of Dick Boyle, new grid mentor at S. F. State, showing Boyle explaining football plays to his young daughter. Now unless Mr. Boyle's daughter is a candidate for the State eleven, a fact which is rather difficult to imagine, don'tcha think it might be a good idea for him to concentrate his explanations upon his prospects. Huh?

In the spring, as well as the fall, a young man's fancy often turns to thoughts of football. Locally, however, the spring grid practice under Coach Lee Eisan is more confined to thoughts of football than actual participation. Not that the hands aren't willing to undergo a bit of April viciousness, but Galileo field is closed to the Ram hopefuls, and who would scrimmage on Soldier's Field?

At any rate, Coach Lee says things look pretty fair right now, but there's lotsa time for things to happen between now and September. Jack Gaddy's 1938 spawn crop of "Flying Lambs" will produce some mighty fine talent for this year's varsity. Wait and see.

"39er" Pete Cashes In

Remember when Captain Mel Peterson, the "rabbit boy", was labeled number '39 last football season? Well, don't be surprised if you see Mel employed at the Exposition this summer, a direct result of the '39 business. Art McChyrstal, Fair Sports Director, promised Pete a job, and Art is not one to go back on his word. Good luck, "Treasure Island" Mel!

On May Day only sissies think of the Maypole Dance. We hardy outdoor men would rather hit the road in quest of elusive finny creatures known as trout. Don't forget boys, this opening is supposed to be the best in many a year.

Conlan's Divot-Diggers Will Meet Menlo's Golf Team

Led by Bill Hoffman, local ace who fared well in the recent Northern California Junior Golf Championships, Coach "Dutch" Conlan's Ram divot-diggers will meet Menlo Junior College in the near future.

At the San Francisco World's Fair a gigantic talking wisdom tooth, electrically animated, gives lectures on tooth decay, tooth pulling and kindred subjects.

Ram-State Track Meet Slated For Kezar Saturday

Highlighted by a duel between two outstanding sprinters, the annual San Francisco State-Ram track meet will be held this Saturday at Kezar at 10 a.m.

Bob McGuire, Ram ace, will encounter Luther Theofield, diminutive State colored star, in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes with meet records expected to topple in each event. Both have accomplished 9.9 in the century this year, while Theofield has a shade the better time in the furlong. McGuire, however, has not been extended up to the present time and there's no telling what type of a record shattering performance he might turn in.

Other Rams expected to garner first places include Bob Klingler in the 440, and Bob Goeppert in the 880. Unofficial pre-meet tabulation, however, foresees a 72 to 59 State victory.

Baseballers Split Twin Bill With Santa Rosa; First Victory Of Semester, 4-2

A Ram nine, six times dropped to the depths of ignominous defeat, finally broke into the win column with a 4 to 2 win over the Santa Rosa Junior College aggregation in the first game of a recent twin bill played on the Funston diamond.

Unable to stand prosperity however, the Gaddymen then started to sink once more, suffering an 8 to 7 setback in an extra inning nightcap.

Galbraith Hits One

The first fracas was an even-steven affair at two all going into the last half of the eighth inning when Weaver Galbraith trudged to the dish and slashed out a mighty blow to deep right-center field for a three bagger, driving in pitcher Harry Aleo for what proved to be the winning tally.

Galbraith then counted on Kent Baird's single to left.

In the second game, "Cookie" Sypher, Santa Rosa mentor, started Grissom against Ram coach Gaddy's Leahy. Grissom went the distance and hurled creditable ball while Leahy was blasted from the hilltop in the third inning. Charley Christensen then assumed mound duties until the eighth frame when he was relieved by the basketball star, Willie Blackfield who was charged with the defeat.

Hits Foul Blows

Weaver Galbraith was the outstanding Ram pastimer with four blows in seven tries including his first game, eighth inning three-bagger which was responsible for the first Ram victory in seven games.

Gavo and Bowen starred for the country boys.

Scores	R	H	E
Santa Rosa	2	6	4
San Francisco	4	6	4

Batteries: SR—Fredson and Randall; SF—Aleo and Mustanich.

	R	H	E
Santa Rosa	8	11	2
San Francisco	7	11	4

Batteries: SR—Grissom and Randall; SF—Leahy, Christensen, Blackfield and Mustanich.

Local Netsters Administer Six To One Beating To Outclassed Peninsula Squad

Returning to the Palace of Fine Arts courts after their disastrous southern invasion, the local racquet welders drubbed the Menlo squad six matches to one in a non-conference encounter last Thursday.

Dodson Wins

Bill Canning defeated Andy Roberts, peninsulan star, in straight sets 6-3, 7-5, while Bill Madamba proved equally effective as he required just twenty-five minutes to down Ed Chiossi 6-3, 6-2. Bill Dodson, performing in the third spot for the first time this season, showed splendid improvement as he allowed Bob Moulton but two games in winning 6-1, 6-1.

The newly formed combination of Canning and Madamba found their Menlo opponents easy pickings as they won in straight sets 6-2, 6-4. Ray Kline and Dodson, playing the second doubles, came back after dropping the first set at love to win 0-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Results:

Canning (S.F.) def. Roberts 6-3, 7-5
Madamba (S.F.) def. Chiossi 6-3, 6-2
Dodson (S.F.) def. Moulton 6-1, 6-1

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

McCutchen-Baca "Battle" Fails To Come Off; Deer Being Given "Raw Deal"

In the last issue we informed our readers that all you would have to do to get the results of the Carl McCutchen-Eddie Baca brawl for the 129 pound boxing Championship of the college would be to send us a self-addressed envelope and a ten dollar bill to cover the cost of incidentals. We received plenty of self-addressed envelopes, but where in the h— are the ten spots? Is that so? Well, if that's the way you feel about it, okay!

Seeing as how we are possessed of an unusually large heart and a feeling toward our fellow-man, we have decided to give you the "dope" anyway. There was no fight!

BOTH SHOW FOR BATTLE

The time of the battle was set for 4:30 p.m. last Thursday, and the place Galileo gym. Both of the pugilists put in an appearance as did Joe Amori, boxing coach who was going to referee the affair. Baca refused to fight (and who can blame him) because Amori wouldn't put up the 129 pound medal and because the spectators could be counted on one hand. Therefore, although other boxing commissions may overrule us, and although our judgment may be questioned, we hereby crown Carl "Killer" McCutchen as the 129 pound champ by virtue of a walkover (that's Canadian for default).

In commenting during past weeks upon the deplorable state into which the tennis team had fallen because of ineligible players, we stated that if the team, weakened as it is by the loss of key men, still wins the title, Coach Tom Wilson is a miracle man. To think that soon we may be calling Wilson a miracle man. That is the payoff! It seems that San Mateo, the Rams' outstanding rival for the championship get careless last week and dropped some matches to an inferior squad. Result—Wilson's men are back in the running again.

SILLY, ISN'T IT?

While pouring over one of the local dailies we stumbled upon an item that intrigued us no end. It seems that a bill is being introduced in the Assembly at Sacramento whereby bow and arrow marksmen would be given a week's head start on deer hunting each season. The bill would open the season to archers a week before hunters using rifles are allowed to start shooting in the various parts of the State. Why? Because the bowmen's risk would be decreased. Isn't that silly? Of course it is.

Besides, it isn't playing fair with the deer. Were they consulted in the matter? We'd like to bet that they were'nt. If that bill goes through, bloodthirsty, would-be "Robin Hoods" will be invading the woodlands before the deer have a chance to hold their semi-annual confab on how to avoid hunters. The week before the season opens, the deer get together and have a big bull session. Now, their sessions will be raided and they won't have a chance. Gosh dern it, it just ain't cricket.

RUNS OUT TO BEACH

Encouraged by the blast of publicity he received in last week's issue, Charles Ward, the college's outstanding exponent of physical development, is no longer running down Polk Street to Aquatic Park each morning—he is running out to the beach. 'Tis also rumored that Ward endorses swallowing live goldfish as a means of developing muscle and has a plentiful stock (of fish) on hand. Anybody that swallows live goldfish is not a human being—he is an animal (and that goes for you too, Ward, see).

Small Stuff: Robert "Stogie" Fex, ex political boss of the college, is now working on the WPA investigation—as a bookkeeper. . . Elmer Hubacher and Wilton Latz, former members of the now non-existant Ram fleet, seen skimming over the waters of Aquatic Park practising for who knows what . . . Harry Mortimer, college fencing star, helping the Olympic Club fencing team defeat the Los Angeles Athletic Club in an inter-city match. . . . Floyd Lawrence, high soph prexy, preparing a day of athletic events at the coming high soph barbecue that would do credit to any four-year university.

Local Cindermen Defeat Menlo, Marin In Triangular Meet At Kentfield

Accumulating the major portion of the second, third, and fourth places, Coach Russ Sweet's Ram tracksters piled up a total of 65 points as against 50 for Menlo, and 33 for Marin, in a triangular meet held at Kentfield last Saturday.

Mile Run: Won by Johnson (Men); Henry (SF) second; Valenti (SF) third; Seeley (SF) fourth. Time, 4:43.

440 Yard Dash: Won by McFarland (Mar); Klingler (SF) second; Marshall (Mar) third; Finn (SF) fourth. Time, 51.4 seconds.

100 Yard Dash: Won by McGuire (SF); McNeely (Mar) second; Stern (SF) third; Murphy (Men) fourth. Time, 10.1 seconds.

High Hurdles: Won by Chow (Mar); Needham (Men) second; Keast (Mar) third; Bitgood (SF) fourth. Time, 16.5 seconds.

880 Yard Run: Won by Johnson (Men); Goeppert (SF) second; Clifford (SF) third; Henry (SF) fourth. Time, 2:02.5.

220 Yard Dash: Won by McGuire (SF); Murphy (Men) second; Stern (SF) third; Goodman (SF) fourth. Time, 23.1 seconds.

Shot Put: Won by Needham (Men); Murphy (Men) second; Bitgood (SF) third; Lathos (Men) and McVeigh (Mar) tied for fourth. Distance, 39 ft.

High Jump: Won by Raine (SF); tie for second between Keast (Mar) and Hagen (SF); Carne (Mar) fourth. Height, 6 feet.

Low Hurdles: Won by Needham (Men); Bitgood (SF) second; Sparba (SF) third; Raine (SF) fourth. Time, 26.6 seconds.

Javelin: Won by Franklin (Men); Lathos (Men) second; Gherine (Men) third; Ortman (Mar) fourth. Distance, 148 feet, 8 inches.

Pole Vault: Won by Groswird (SF); Perry (SF) second; Cryer (Mar) third; Chow (Mar) fourth. Height, 12 feet.

Broad Jump: Tie for first between Neely (Mar) and Lathos (Men); Emery (SF) third; Ida (SF) fourth. Distance, 20 feet, 9½ inches.

Discus: Won by Plamondon (Men); Keast (Mar) second; Grant (SF) third; Jenkins (Men) fourth. Distance, 108 feet, 6¾ inches.

Relay: Won by San Francisco J.C. (Team composed of Goeppert, Finn, Clifford and Klingler). Time, 3:35.

TRACK MENTOR

Russ Sweet

Net Squad Forges Into League Lead; Ties San Mateo

With the conference leadership at stake, the Ram tennis team battled to a three to three deadlock with the San Mateo squad on the Palace of Fine Arts courts last Saturday. As a result of the tie, the local college is now leading the league by a single match.

The Ram scoring was taken care of by Bill Canning and Bill Madamba, top netmen of the college who won their single encounters and then teamed together to win the first doubles.

Canning Beats Joost

Canning took the measure of Carl Joost, San Mateo's top player, after a torrid match, that saw Joost rally after being down in the first set, only to lose out, 7-5, 6-2.

Madamba, playing his best tennis of the season, easily trounced Tom Daly 6-2, 6-2. Madamba was content to play from the baseline and outrally Daly, who relies mostly on his net game, which could not function against the splendid passing shots of the Ram.

In the first doubles encounter, Joost and Alderman proved no match for the splendid teamwork of the Canning-Madamba combination who won as they pleased 6-2, 6-3.

Kline Loses

A splendid opportunity for the Rams to cinch the title appeared when Ray Kline, playing the fourth singles assignment, was leading in the third set at 5-2, only to ease up and allow his opponent to overtake him and win the match 1-6, 6-1, 8-6.

Bill Dodson, performing in the third spot for the Rams, played far above his average form but could not cope with the remarkable play of Earl Alderman, who won in straight sets 6-3, 8-6.

With only two conference matches remaining on the 1939 schedule, the Rams should annex the title, although the loss of a single match would throw them into a deadlock with San Mateo.

Results (Singles):

Canning (S.F.) def. Joost 7-5, 6-2
Madamba (S.F.) def. Daly 6-2, 6-2
Alderman (S.M.) def. Dodson 6-3, 8-6
Montieth (S.M.) def. Kline 1-6, 6-1, 8-6

Doubles:

Canning-Madamba (S.F.) def. Joost-Alderman 6-2, 6-3
Daly-Montieth (S.M.) def. Dodson-Kline 6-3, 6-4

Lost To Net Squad

Robert "Bob" Kun, stellar Ram netster who was unable to compete in the Menlo and San Mateo matches because of ineligibility.

WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADE

By FRANCES MANALO

Election of next semester's Women's Athletic Association officers will take place during Tourney Week. Women may vote at Powell Street, on the mezzanine floor, in the morning; and at the Girls' Gym at Galileo, in the afternoon.

Any woman who is a member of WAA this semester, or was a member last semester may vote for the officers. The results of the election will be announced at the Tourney Week Banquet on April 25.

• • •

Entertainment that was provided for the Sports Day held on Treasure Island was prepared by Margaret Meader, chairman of the committee.

Tap Dancers Entertain

Under the instruction of Laurine Bergin, the Tap Dancing Class offered two numbers to the program. The first was a straight tap routine; the second was a folk-tap, that is, La Cucaracha done in a tap-dance manner.

Marion Grant and her accordion supplied the accompaniment for the tap dance group.

Other events on the program was a Community Sing that was led by Barbara Smith, who also sang solos.

It was only under the direction of Mrs. Bergin that the group was able to perform so well. Practice after class hours contributed to the perfection of the steps.

• • •

Convention Speeches

In attendance at the American Federation of College Women Convention, held on the University of California campus, was Dorothy Sanderson, president of WAA, and Marjorie Radke, general chairman of Tourney Week.

Miss Sanderson spoke on the Development and Responsibilities of the Student Leader and was highly complimented by the chairman of the convention.

As the affair was a national event, the college WAA members were able to become acquainted with delegates of junior colleges and universities from all over the United States, as a result, Miss Sanderson and Miss Radke exchanged views on WAA functions with the delegates.

According to the members who attended, the convention was filled with interesting events that drew the attention of all the delegates concerned with women's athletic functions.

• • •

Badminton Play Strong

On March 31, the badminton group started the women's singles tournament. As far as the tournament has gone, strong competition has been shown by many of the players. Many of the games that have been played ended with scores that were too close to judge the better players.

The leading players are Tillie Huddleson, Ethel Vizzard, Dorothy Sanderson, and Alice Cullen; all of these women are whizzes when it comes to making the little birdie fly!

• • •

On Monday the basketball team was on the go again when the Freshmen met the Sophomores. The teams were fighting hard all through the game, and the scores were only one basket behind all the way. The women who were referees had a really tough time watching the players as they flew up and down the court.

Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPE-

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .

WRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.

Remington Typewriter Division
Remington Rand, Inc.
509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600

STUDENTS

You need a portable in your home. We are offering a limited number of Royal Varsity Models at $32.70. Manufacturers price $42.50.

This Is What You Get

New typewriter complete with case; standard office keyboard; back spacer, margin stop and bell; line finder for writing on ruled lines and filling in.

It has every essential for office or home use. May be purchased on easy terms. Trade in accepted. See it at 591 Market St., or call SUtter 4734 for home demonstration.

San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
591 Market Street SUtter 4734

Library Browsing

By JANET FELLOWS

There is a wealth of material in the College library this week; from this abundant supply we have chosen only a few articles to review.

The opinions of the movies reviewed in this column are not those of the reporter. All comments are those of the critics in the Motion Picture Review Digest magazine.

Movies

I'm From Missouri, starring Bob Burns, Gladys George, and Gene Lockhart, is a comedy which is funny to some of the critics and not so funny to others. One critic thought it was as fast as is Bob Burns' drawl. Most of the critics agreed that it is not the Van Beuren boy's best picture.

Much more popular with movie reviewers is Three Smart Girls Grow Up, with Deanna Durbin, Charles Winninger, and Nan Grey in the cast. Only one critic thought the picture was not so 'hot', and another felt that it was a picture more for the enjoyment of high school students, than for adults. Some said of it, "delightful, sparkling comedy", "interesting situations", and "top entertainment . . . scintillating achievement."

Vocations

A symposium, Youth and Labor, appears in Occupations—The Vocational Guidance Magazine for March, 1939. The question, Why Should Youth Join With Organized Labor? is answered by John L. Lewis and William Green. John J. Collins handles the question, What About the Independent Union? while Leo Wolman and George B. Cutten take A Candid Look At Organized Labor.

Foreign Affairs

In Newsweek, for April 3, 1939, Il Duce's Albanian seizure is discussed in Problem Left in France's Lap Despite Duce's Pulled Punches. Subtitle says, "And He Reaffirms Axis, Even If Dazzling Hitler Moves Have Put Strain On Tie". The King and Mussolini both demand appeasement.

Hitler and Poland, the key state in the eastward push, are put in the spotlight in Memel—and On, in the same issue.

A Capella Choir Issues Request For More Sopranos

Flossits Badger, A Capella Choir director, has issued a call for sopranos for next semester's choir. In asking for singers, Miss Badger also requested that any students interested in becoming a member of the choir should get in touch with her as soon as possible. The only requirement for becoming a member of the choir is the instructor's consent.

The A Capella Choir will appear before the San Francisco Kiwanis Club on Thursday, April 20, at the Fairmont Hotel. This program will be the third in three successive years that the choir will have presented.

14 Students Lose Card Privileges For One Month

At an informal meeting of the Judical Committee held April 9, it was decided that the 14 students who had their cards confiscated at the college dance March 31, would be deprived of all privileges as Associated Students until May 9.

This decision, the most drastic since the formation of the judiciary board last semester seriously affects the students concerned since it deprives them of the right to attend the AMS barn dance, the Soph Formal, and in addition, will not be permitted to vote in student elections next month.

Commenting upon the recent action of the committee, Dean Edwin C. Browne said "It is unforunate that so many students have been deprived of certain privileges, but I feel that the college has been especially lenient by warning students many times before it finally took action".

It is hoped by Associated Student officers and administration officials alike that this incident will serve as a warning to any other students who have ideas of lending their cards to anyone not attending the college.

WSS To Hold Rummage Sale To Procure Money For Fund

To raise funds for their Student Loan Fund this semester, the college Women's Service Society will hold an annual rummage sale during April 21 and 22.

Contributions, such as old clothes, costume jewelry, cooking utensils, furniture, and bric-a-brac, which could be used in the sale can be left at the bank at Galileo. Other arrangements can be made by telephoning OVerland 6383, to call for the rummage. Any contributions will be greatly appreciated," said Joy Anna Mack, WSS president.

The present activity marks the third annual rummage collection and sale sponsored by the society.

ANSWERS

1. 1847. 2. Church Street (between 14th and 16th Streets). 3. Stockton Street.(between Bush and Sacramento) because of the tunnel. 4. Montgomery Street. 5. Coloma. 6. Capt. Sutter. 7. John Norton ('Emperor Norton I'). 8. Charles S. Howard. 9. The wreck of the Rio de Janeiro. 10. San Francisco.

The first steamer to ply in and out of the Golden Gate was the wooden steamer California, which arrived early in 1849.

Fordham, Georgia State, Rhode Island State, and Shepherd State of West Virginia also bear the name "Rams".

Approximately 30 per cent of the students who enter colleges and universities in the United States every fall drop out before spring.

Hotel Division Welcomed At Monterey

During the recent tour of California of the college Hotel and Restaurant division during Easter Week, the above picture was taken at the Hotel San Carlos in Monterey. Seated from left to right are: Hilda Watson, directior of personnel for the division, Mayor Emmet McMenamin of Monterey, Cynthia Richardson, representing Sir Francis Drake hotel. Standing are A. B. Spencer, Hotel San Carlos, Bob Klingler, George Thompson hotels; Carl Rutledge, Fairmont and Mark Hopkins; Terry Sandelin, St. Francis; Lee Scarlett, Benjamin Franklin; Don Sands, Manx; Tom Duffy, Californian; J. Graham Sullivan, coordinator of the hotel division; and Peter W. Watson, also of the San Carlos hotel.

College Exams May Be Taken This Week Says Registrar; Advisers' Hours Given

Students returning to the college next semester are asked to see their advisers immediately to make out tentative program lists, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, announced. To facilitate appointments the registrar has released the following partial list of advisers who have reserved special times at which they may be consulted by students.

Louis Berman, Tue., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 452.

Chester W. Clark, Wed., Fri., 9:30-11 a.m., Powell St. Lobby.

Edwin A. Cranston, Tue., Thur., 9-10 a.m., Powell St. Lobby.

George L. Green, Daily, 3-4:30 p.m., 464.

Lloyd D. Luckmann, Mon., Wed., Fri., 3-3:30 p.m., 458.

William K. Mayo, Mon., Wed., 2:30-5:20 p.m., Tue., Thur., 8:15-11:05 a.m., 353.

Glenn A. Noble, Mon., Tue., Wed., Thur., 3-4 p.m., 358.

Don Perham, Mon., Wed., 10-10:30 a.m., Powell Lobby.

T. R. Porter, Mon., Tue., Wed., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 361.

Edward E. Sandys, Mon., Wed., Fri., 10-10:30 a.m., 12-12:30 p.m., Powell Lobby.

Nelson A. Wells, Tue., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 312.

Ward Nichols, Mon., Wed., Thurs., Fri., 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

John Ross, Mon., Wed., Fri., 11 a.m. to 12 M.

All students who have not taken the required college examinations will be given an opportunity to do so this week, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar of the college, who announced the following dates that they will be given.

Thursday, April 20, 2:30 Room 458 —Thurstone Psychological Test

Thursday, April 20, 3:30 Room 458 —Iowa High School Content Examination

Friday, April 21, 2:30 Room 458—Vocational Interest Test

Miss Learnard also announced that students who have not yet had their pictures taken should report to the Moulin Studios located at 153 Kearny.

Students who fail to comply with the requirements printed above will not receive their final grades of transcripts at the end of the semester, Miss Learnard warned.

Home Economics Group Has Special Fair Day

Tomorrow, April 20, is 'San Francisco Junior College Home Economies Day' at Treasure Island where the members of the Home Economies 16 class will be honored, according to Claire Cuneo, Association adviser.

According to Miss Cuneo, the group will convene at 4 o'clock in the White Star Tuna Building on the island for luncheon, following which they will be taken on a conducted tour of the fair grounds.

At 4 o'clock the women will view the Cavalcade of the West and at 5 will visit the Oriental Buildings and the textiles and crafts of the various nations.

Dinner at 6:30, to be followed by their attendance at the presentation of "The River" to be given by the members of the Federal Theater Project, will bring the day's activities to a close.

"The entire cost of the day will be $1.50," Miss Cuneo said. "This will include entrance, luncheon, dinner, and tickets to the two performances. Women who are free from classes Thursday can go to the island women ever they wish to do so, provided they meet the remainder of the group in the White Star Tuna Building at 1 o'clock," she concluded.

Tea Dansant To Be Given By AWS Thursday, May 4

Sponsored by the Associated Women Students, an afternoon tea dansant, honoring High Sophomores, will take place May 4, from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Century Club, according to Dorothy Trood, AWS president.

"Plans are not quite complete, as we have yet to select the orchestra, but everyone is invited, the only admission being an Associated Student card for each man or woman attending," Miss Trood declared.

Committee members for the affair, Janet Ball, Margaret Meader, and Helen Culp have selected attractive bids picturing a woman wearing the traditional mortarboard hat.

'Child Welfare Workers In Demand,' Says Dougherty

Women interested in child welfare work are urged to contact Margaret Dougherty, Associated Women Students' adviser, in the near future.

"We can use a few more students in work at the Children's Agency," Miss Dougherty declared, "and I wish to remind those majoring in such a course that this is a splendid opportunity to gain experience for future use."

Junior College Council To Present Program Next Monday In Hall

As its part in the observance of Public Schools Week, the San Francisco Junior College Council will present a program of diversified entertainment for students, parents of students, and faculty members next Monday at 8:15 to 9:15 o'clock p.m. in the Powell Street Study Hall.

Featuring an address by President C. S. Morris of the San Mateo Junior College, and other addresses by faculty members and students of this college, the program will be rounded out by music provided by Miss Flossita Badger and the A Capella Choir.

Highlight of the observance will be the termination of the "hot fight" for nomination and election of officers to the council for the ensuing year. With Joseph Williams being prominently ballyhooed for re-election as president, and Claude Shull mentioned by those in the know as the "dark horse" of the heated race, and Richard Allman being backed by a large clique of supporters for secretary, it is almost certain that the election will be one of the most scorching, violently contested affairs in the history of the council.

Urging students, faculty members, and parents to attend, Williams stated, "We want everyone to have a hand in the observance of Public Schools Week. This college is the first of any San Francisco institutions to present its program in observance of the occasion, and the council is determined to start off the three observances successfully. A well rounded program has been arranged.

Luncheon Tomorrow, 12:30 For Public Service Program

In contemplation of inaugurating several new courses in the college designed to develop students as workers in city, state, and Federal public service, the faculty association is giving a luncheon provided by the Hotel and Restaurant Division tomorrow at 12:30 in the faculty cafeteria of the Galileo High School.

With such civic and fraternal luminaries present as Mayor Rossi, William Henderson, executive secretary of the Civil Service Commission of San Francisco; Louis J. Kroeger, State Personnel Director; Harry L. Kronz, Federal secretary of Civil Service Commission; Alexander Watchman, president of the Building Trades Council; Mrs. Lovell Longstreth, president of the San Francisco Center League of Women Voters, and other leaders of civic groups present, the college authorities will present their plans for the inauguration of such a course at this college.

REDUCED PRICES ON NEW PHILCO
Auto Radios
$39.95 sets reduced to $29.95
$29.95 sets reduced to $24.95
LIBERAL ALLOWANCES MADE ON OLD RADIOS
Reconditioned Sets Fully Guaranteed From $10.95
TERMS AS LOW AS 50 CENTS PER WEEK
BRUNTON'S
1460 Pine Street

Class Sweetheart Contest Planned For Soph Week

With tickets now on sale for the "gigantic" barbecue being given by the High Sophomore class at Balboa Park on May Day, the latest development in the fast-taking-shape plans of Floyd Lawrence, High Sophomore president is the sanctioning of another Sweetheart Contest.

So plagued has Lawrence been by repeated requests for another contest of the type held last semester, that he has capitulated to demands and has agreed to hold another Sweetheart Contest this semester.

Sophomore Women Eligible

Open only to women from the High Sophomore class, Lawrence urged that they enter the contest.

Although it has not been determined how the winner will be chosen, Lawrence disclosed that she will be introduced at the barbecue.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the barbecue sell for but fifty cents and can easily be acquired from the Galileo and Powell Street Banks, from Tony Manov, or from Lawrence.

"Featuring broiled barbecue in the Southern manner as cooked by the culinary chefs of the hotel division, a huge grown-up May Day observance with athletic events of all sorts being planned by Russ Sweet, Lee Eisan, Bertha Keller, and Verrel Weber, all of the faculty plus a good old-time reunion with all the alumni" . . . words just failed Lawrence at that point, so enthusiastic was he of plans for the occasion.

As has been prominently ballyhooed, one of the bigger features of the barbecue will be the Sadie Hawkins event, wherein cute college coeds will chase the terrified males over the cement foundations of Balboa Park with prizes being awarded for the best hunters and biggest catches.

Formal Bids On Sale

Bids go on sale next week for the Sophomore Formal at the California Country Club on Friday, May 5, and may be procured in the early day of next week from Floyd Lawrence.

POLL OF Opinion

By DAN ROSENBLAT

Outbreak of a general European war will eventually lead to American participation, in the opinion of 79 per cent of students interviewed this week by the poll. Only 21 per cent of the students answering the question, "In the event of a general European war can the United States remain neutral throughout its duration?" replied in the affirmative.

Majority Fear War

Some students felt that the United States was in so strong a position that under no circumstances could she be dragged into a conflict. However, the vast majority were inclined to the belief that eventually events would force an abandonment of neutrality and a direct entrance into the conflict. Sole hope held out by these students was that modern methods of warfare may result in settlement by conquest so soon that nothing of a nature to provoke American participation will have occurred.

Swing Feud Question

Venturing timidly into a very controversial field, the poll this week dares to inquire, "Do you like swing music?" The famous Ward-Wright feud, carried on through the medium of the Ram's Horn, has shown that there is considerable feeling in the college relative to this subject therefore, your interviewer looks forward to an interesting battle of opinions.

Do you share in this great struggle by checking your answer to the question on the following ballot and leave it in The Guardsman box either at Galileo or at Powell Street.

Do you like swing music?

Yes..... No.....

Man..... Woman.....

Extra Hours To Be Allotted NYA Students

Notice has been sent to all NYA supervisors regarding the amount of extra hours allotted to NYA students during April and May, which has been made possible by an extra appropriation of funds. "Students should get in touch with their supervisors or with me at once," said Edward H. Redford, college NYA director.

There will be only one more pay check, May 17, for NYA students this semester.

ROOS

CAVALRY TWILL SLACKS IN NEW MIXTURES— $10
Roos Bros
MARKET AT STOCKTON—

CLUB SCHEDULE

NAME	Type of Meeting	TIME	PLACE
Alpha Delta Epsilon	No plans
Alpha Gamma Sigma	Business	April 20, 2:00 p.m.	Galileo
Alpha Phi Omega	Business	April 25	Oakland
Army-Navy	No plans
Astronomy	No plans
Beta Phi	Business	April 24, 8:00 p.m.	3040-22nd Avenue
Block S. F.	Business	April 25, 7:30 p.m.	Galileo
Beta Tau	No plans
Chinese	No plans
Forestry	Business	April 19, 7:30 p.m.	Galileo, Room 360
Forum	No plans
French	Discussion	April 20, 8:00 p.m.	Indefinite
George Washington	No plans
Home Econ. Ass'n	No plans
Hotel-Restaurant	Dance	April 21, 9:00 p.m.	Mark Hopkins
Iota Chi	No plans
Japanese Students	Business	April 19, 8:00 p.m.	Sturges Memorial Hall
Lambda Chi	Social	April 28, 6:00 p.m.	Oakland
Music	No plans
Newman	Business	April 24, 8:00 p.m.	St. Mary's Cathedral
Omicron Phi Pi	Initiation	April 21, 7:30 p.m.	2340 Francisco, No. 203
Peace Society	Discussion	April 21, 8:00 p.m.	Indefinite
Phi Beta Rho	Business	May 3, 8:00 p.m.	1462 Jackson Street
Phys. Ed. Majors	Social	April 26, 5:30 p.m.	Sigmund Stern Grove
Pi Mu Gamma	Speaker	April 28, 7:30 p.m.	Homewood Terrace
Pick & Hammer	Business	April 19, 7:30 p.m.	Galileo, Room 360
Rifle & Pistol	Business	April 21, 4:00 p.m.	Rifle Range
Tarbuth	Election	April 23, 7:30 p.m.	300 Page Street
Tri Epsilon	Business	April 24, 8:00 p.m.	Indefinite
Women's Service Society	Rummage Sale	April 21 and 22	Indefinite

ADVERTISING RATE:
1-50 inches ..... 70c an inch
51-150 inches ..... 60c an inch
151-up inches ..... 50c an inch

Enjoy May Day At Soph Barbecue; All You Can Eat, Fun For All

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Help Decide Electioneering Amendment; Attend Assembly Tomorrow

Vol. VIII WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1939 No. 14

Barbecue-How To Get There

If you intend reaching Balboa Park, scene of the Sophomore Barbecue by street car, the most convenient methods are to take either the No. "12" car on Mission Street and disembark at the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues, or if preferable take the Municipal "K" car. After getting off at Brighton and Ocean Avenues, walk up two blocks to Phelan. Those unacquainted with the various short cuts to be followed when going by car will find it advisable to follow Mission Street to Ocean Avenue and then take Ocean to Phelan Avenues.

Rally For Student Statesmen April 28; Henry, Hubacher Vie For Presidency

Presentation of nominees for Associated Student offices for the fall semester will take place at the nomination rally at Galileo High on Friday, April 28, at 2:30 o'clock p.m., announced Frank Verducci, Associated Student president.

Always a highlight in student events, this semester's election promises to be one of the most interesting in the college's short career. Heretofore student elections and campaigns have been carried out without restrictions as to campaign principles. However, owing to the proposed amendment restricting electioneering practices as put before the student body yesterday by the Executive Council, the race this semester will be decided purely on the virtues possessed by the candidates.

Hubacher, Henry Candidates

Thus far the announced presidential candidates include James Henry and Elmer Hubacher. Henry at present is president of the scholarship honor society, Alpha Gamma Sigma. Hubacher, member of the Block SF Society, and formerly on Jack Gady's crew, has been vice-president of the Club Advisory Board. Indications point to a close race, as Henry has the backing of the Alpha Gamma Sigma and Hubacher will receive the support of the Block SF Society.

Running for the vice-president's chair will be Margaret Jack, Phi Beta Rho candidate, and Dorothy Trood of Alpha Phi Omega. Miss Trood is the present holder of the executive position of the Associated Women Students.

Four candidates, Muriel Grenelle, Virginia Peterson, Marie Heiler, and Jean Wilkin are the nominees for the secretarial position of the Associated Students.

AMS Race To Be Close

Closest race forseen is that of the position of president of the Associated Men Students. Lee Scarlett, president of the High Frosh; Tony Manov, secretary of the Block SF, Art Pomares, present yell leader, are the announced candidates. All of these men have been active in student functions for the past year, and the division of votes should be close.

Janet Ball and Muriel Nolan will vie for the Associated Women presidency. Miss Ball, member of the Phi Beta Rho sorority, has served the past semester as secretary of the Associated Women Students. Miss Nolan is prominent as a member of Alpha Phi Omega.

For the Vice-President's chair in the AWS Vera Herndon, secretary of the Club Advisory Board and member of the Alpha Phi Omega, will compete with Annette Schunick, representative of the Women's Service Society and vice-president of the Athletic Association.

Secretary of the AWS for next semester will either be Gloria Miller of the Women's Service Society or Mildred Grey of Alpha Phi Omega. Treasurer position will be taken by Marian MacKillop, Alpha Phi Omega, or Adele Kuhn of Phi Beta Rho.

Three For Yell Leader

Competing for yell king will be Ray Berns, Guardsman sports editor, and George Berlelan, representative of the East Bay. It is rumored Pete Adaylotte, now assistant yell leader will also compete.

Candidates for the remaining offices for the Associated Men Students have not as yet been announced, but will be introduced and formally nominated at Friday's rally.

Forum Magazine To Be Out In First Week of May; Considered Best Ever

Tickets for the Forum Magazine, college literary publication, which serves as an outlet for the writings of students who desire to have their material published and placed before the entire student body, went on sale last Thursday at 15 cents a copy.

Tickets Available

Tickets are available in English and science classes, from any member of the Forum Club, or from students in the lobby of the Powell Street building.

Those desiring to sell tickets are urged to get in touch with Bob Porter.

Holds Forty Pages

Consisting of 40 pages, this semester's Forum Magazine, which will come out the first week of May, is filled from cover to cover with essays, articles, poems, short stories, in fact almost every type of literary writing, including a special art section devoted to colored and black and white prints, which has been included in the magazine for the first time in its three years of existence.

Has Good Selections

"Because the number of manuscripts turned in this year was greatly in excess of previous years, a better selection was possible," said John Cumming, editor of the magazine.

Electioneering Assembly, Galileo Tomorrow 2:15

Marking the first Associated Student's assembly meeting of the semester, the proposed electioneering amendment to the Associated Student's Constitution will be voted on this Thursday at 2:15 in the Galileo Auditorium.

The amendments as drawn up by the executive council and already passed by that council reads:

1. The circulation of printed matter in any form as a campaign procedure for the election of any candidate for any student office shall disqualify said candidate.

2. The use of the radio or a vocal amplifying system to the unfair advantage of one candidate over another shall constitute a reason for disqualifying said candidate.

3. The Executive Council shall determine upon receipt of satisfactory evidence if a candidate has for any reason warranted disqualification for candidacy.

Editor's Note: This means that attempts to influence voters by distribution of political literature, use of radio or public address systems or any other forms of persuasion are expressly forbidden because all such matters necessarily involve monetary expenditures. (See editorial comment, page 2.)

Subject Highly Controversial

A highly controversial subject, the issue bids fair to be one of the most hotly contested fights of the season.

Similar measures to the one proposed for this college have been adopted by most of the major colleges on the Pacific Coast who felt the need for such an adjustment.

Two-thirds Vote Necessary

After the motion has been made to Frank Verducci, chairman of the meeting, the amendment will be discussed by those present, with everyone given a chance to express his view. A two-thirds standing vote will decide the issue.

A change has been made in the time of the meeting from that previously announced. The meeting will start at 2:15 instead of 2:30. Although 2:30 classes have been dismissed, students must report to their classes at the conclusion of the meeting.

Rally Urges Attendance

President Frank Verducci especially urged that a large representation of students be on hand to decide the issue.

"If passed this amendment will change the entire procedure of electioneering in this college and as such should be of vital concern to all students. It is absolutely essential that a large representation of students attend this meeting as only then can the pro and cons of the issue be fully discussed."

Inauguration of Public Service Course At College Announced For Near Future

Inauguration within the college of courses designed to prepare students for civic office positions came a step nearer actuality last Thursday.

At a luncheon to which were invited leading officials of San Francisco, President A. J. Cloud outlined the contemplated vocational curriculum.

Conlan Co-ordinates

This curriculum would culminate in internships in civic offices to be served by selected students in the courses planned. Louis Conlan, physical education instructor is acting as co-ordinator in developing the course. Assurances of interest on the part of city officials were extended by Mayor Angelo J. Rossi.

Courses To Raise Standards

According to William L. Henderson, secretary of the San Francisco Civil Service Commission, who outlined city cooperation, "Such internships are not designed to lower wages or to limit employment possibilities, but to raise the standards of public service and provide trained young men and women to fill government positions."

College Officials Stress

College officials stressed the fact that the course is not intended as a coaching school, but as pre-employment training.

Honored guests at the luncheon in addition to Mayor Rossi included C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, Joseph P. Nourse, Superintendent of Schools, and Dr. J. C. Geiger, city health director.

Upper Classmen Try To Smash Records In Week Of Varied Fun

Sophomore Week Schedule

Event	Date	Time	Place
Barbecue Day	May 1	11 a.m.-5 p.m.	Balboa Park
Softball Game		10:30 am.
Sadie Hawkins		1 p.m.
Barbecue		5 p.m.
Dance
Rally	May 2	2:30-3:30 p.m.	Galileo Auditorium
Tea Dansant	May 4	4 p.m.-6 p.m.	Century Club
Soph Formal	May 5	9 p.m.-1 a.m.	Calif. Country Club

Men's Club Jig Fri. At Devonshire; Amori Whets Axe

Students who are acquainted with the Suzy-Q, Big Apple, Pool Jones, Virginia Reel, Polka, Quadrille and Jigging are welcome to the big Barn Dance to be held Friday, May 28, sponsored by the Associated Men Students at the Devonshire Country Club near San Carlos.

Probable time of the scheduled

Barn Dance Host

Dave Johnson

dance will be from 9 to 12 p.m.

Amori Is Optimistic

'A great time is expected to be had by all, according to Joe Amori, faculty adviser.

To furnish "barn music," the AMS has acquired a 12-piece orchestra led by Walter Gardiner, accompanied by a featured vocalist. Music will include old and late hits played "mountain style."

Lanterns To Illuminate

Lanterns, instead of the usual electric lighting affair, will hang glowingly in order to correspond with the season. Attenders are requested to wear barn clothes to the dance.

In concurrance with the barn dance custom, a prize dance will be held, the winners to receive free tickets to the coming Soph Formal, said Amori.

Will Serve Punch, Goodies

For refreshments, plenty of "drink (punch) and goodies" will be served.

"We're expecting a fine gathering," predicted Amori, "and the more the better. However, I would like to suggest two desires.

Warn Against Lending

"First, do not lend out student cards. Secondly, we do not want to have, and will refuse to admit any person who comes "star." Student cards will admit a couple to the affair."

Sophomore Sweetheart To Be Chosen This Friday

It's Sophomore Sweetheart Time again! Voting will take place at 2:30 Friday, April 28, at the entrance to the Galileo auditorium just before the nominations rally begins, Floyd Lawrence, class president, announced.

The only requirement to be sweetheart is that she have Sophomore standing and the backing of a club, fraternity, or sorority. Only entries at present are Frances Herndon, Alpha Phi Omega; Shirley White, Lamba Chi; Betty Townsend, Iota Chi.

The winning girl will reign over Sophomore Week, when she will be introduced, first at the Sophomore Barbecue and then at the Sophomore Formal. In addition she will receive a free bid to the Formal.

Soph Rally Slated For Next Tuesday At Galileo; All 2:30 Classes Excused For Show

Second feature of the many and varied events of High Sophomore Week will be the staging of a Sophomore class rally next Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock in the Galileo auditorium.

Entertainment Planned

With all 2:30 classes dismissed for the occasion, one full hour of diversified entertainment, ranging from tap dance routines to original skits prepared by Floyd Lawrence, president of the High Sophomore class, emcee of the event and would-be playwright, will hold full sway.

Exclusively featuring college talent with several acts that are said by Lawrence to excel some of the "finds" discovered by the rally committee, the talent is described by Lawrence as "surpassing anything yet presented at a college rally."

All Students Invited

Issuing an invitation on behalf of the Sophomore class for everyone to attend, Lawrence especially urged that students arrive on time, as late arrivals tramping down the aisles, detract attention from the stage and are most disconcerting to those on it.

With hopes of presenting a rally devoid of any rowdyism, Lawrence asked that those on the stage be given every consideration of respect by the audience.

Frank Wells Orchestra Chosen To Play For Soph Formal On Friday, May 5

Dancing to the music of Frank Wells and his orchestra, the High Sophomore class will follow tradition by sponsoring the semi-annual Sophomore Formal dance at the California Country Club, Friday, May 5.

Specialties Featured

In addition to dance music, the orchestra will also feature several professional specialty numbers. Dancing will begin at 9 p. m., continue until 1 o'clock.

Site of the affair is the California Country Club, easily accessible by automobile. Prospective dancers should go down El Camino Real to a point one mile beyond the junction of the boulevard and the 19th Avenue cut-off, at which point the gates of the club are located on the right-hand side of the roadway. Official designation of the site of the dance is Baden.

Bids Now On Sale

Bids to the dance are already on sale, may be obtained for $1.25 from Floyd Lawrence, president of the High Sophomore class, or the Galileo bank counter. "I feel certain that everyone will thoroughly enjoy himself at the dance, for in addition to a really magnificent site, we have an orchestra which has played many times for University of California formal dances," said Lawrence.

Only One More Pay Check This Semester For NYA

Though college NYA students have only one more pay check, May 17, they have been given additional working hours for April and May, which has been made possible by the extra appropriation of funds, according to Edward H. Redford, director.

AWS Tea Honors High Sophs; Balboa Park Barbecue Leads Off Week Of Carefree Frolic

Event At Century Club On May 4: Admission By Student Body Card

In honor of High Sophomores, an afternoon tea dansant, sponsored by the Associated Women Students, will be held May 4 from 4 to 6 o'clock p. m. at the Century Club, announced Dorothy Trood, AWS president.

"Admission charge will be merely the presentation of an Associated Student card for each man and woman attending," Miss Trood said.

Fancy Bids

Although the orchestra for the affair will start with a softball game between the alumni and faculty at Balboa Park at 10:30 Monday morning.

Balboa Park, the locale of the barbecue can be reached by the "12" or "K" street cars. Meeting place of the vast throng expected to attend the event will be the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues.

Full Day Planned

A full day of "entertainment galore" has been arranged for the occasion, according to Lawrence. Softball games, sack races, three-legged races, and all types of athletic events are being arranged by the college athletic authorities with prizes being awarded to the winners.

When contemplating the buying of a ticket, Lawrence would not have students forget the excellent barbecue and full course meal which automatically comes with the ticket. Lawrence promises that a ticket entitles one to all he can eat, prepared by the culinary chefs of the Hotel Division.

Tickets are now selling for 50 cents and can be secured from Tony

Barbecue Boss

Floyd Lawrence

Manov, Sam Galstaun, Lawrence, or at the Galileo bank.

The first presentation of the Queen of Sophomore Week, an old fashioned Maypole dance, the highly publicized Sadie Hawkin's event, and other events too numerous to mention are now being arranged.

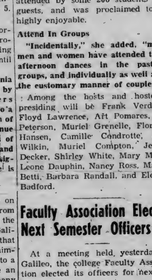
Dance After Barbecue

A full day of "entertainment galore" has been arranged for the occasion, according to Lawrence. Softball games, sack races, three-legged races, and all types of athletic events are being arranged by the college athletic authorities with prizes being awarded to the winners.

When contemplating the buying of a ticket, Lawrence would not have students forget the excellent barbecue and full course meal which automatically comes with the ticket. Lawrence promises that a ticket entitles one to all he can eat, prepared by the culinary chefs of the Hotel Division.

Tickets are now selling for 50 cents and can be secured from Tony Manov, Sam Galstaun, Lawrence, or at the Galileo bank.

The first presentation of the Queen of Sophomore Week, an old fashioned Maypole dance, the highly publicized Sadie Hawkin's event, and other events too numerous to mention are now being arranged.



Dance After Barbecue

A full day of "entertainment galore" has been arranged for the occasion, according to Lawrence. Softball games, sack races, three-legged races, and all types of athletic events are being arranged by the college athletic authorities with prizes being awarded to the winners.

When contemplating the buying of a ticket, Lawrence would not have students forget the excellent barbecue and full course meal which automatically comes with the ticket. Lawrence promises that a ticket entitles one to all he can eat, prepared by the culinary chefs of the Hotel Division.

Tickets are now selling for 50 cents and can be secured from Tony

Tea-Dansant Hostess

Dorothy Trood

fair is as yet unannounced, other arrangements, and plans are nearing completion.

Attractive bids, picturing a young woman wearing the traditional mortarboard hat, have been selected. Hosts, hostesses, and many guests have already been invited to attend.

Punch to Be Served

"Our refreshments will be punch, and of course cake or cookies to go with it," declared Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

According to Miss Trood, students have requested more of such affairs, because of their past successes. The AWS dansant of last semester was attended by some 200 students and guests, and was proclaimed to be highly enjoyable.

Specialties Featured

In addition to dance music, the orchestra will also feature several professional specialty numbers. Dancing will begin at 9 p. m., continue until 1 o'clock.

Site of the affair is the California Country Club, easily accessible by automobile. Prospective dancers should go down El Camino Real to a point one mile beyond the junction of the boulevard and the 19th Avenue cut-off, at which point the gates of the club are located on the right-hand side of the roadway. Official designation of the site of the dance is Baden.

Bids Now On Sale

Bids to the dance are already on sale, may be obtained for $1.25 from Floyd Lawrence, president of the High Sophomore class, or the Galileo bank counter. "I feel certain that everyone will thoroughly enjoy himself at the dance, for in addition to a really magnificent site, we have an orchestra which has played many times for University of California formal dances," said Lawrence.

Only One More Pay Check This Semester For NYA

Though college NYA students have only one more pay check, May 17, they have been given additional working hours for April and May, which has been made possible by the extra appropriation of funds, according to Edward H. Redford, director.

Faculty Association Elects Next Semester Officers

At a meeting held yesterday at Galileo, the college Faculty Association elected its officers for next semester.

Although final results of the election have not as yet been announced, the following members of the faculty were nominated for officer's positions: President, Lloyd Luckmann, Nelson Wells; secretary, Eileen Rue; members-at-large, E. A. Cranston, Miriam Gatley, Edward Sandys.

May 10 has been announced as the date of the faculty dance, to be held at the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Edward Sandys, retiring president of the organization, anticipates a large attendance at the social affair.

Lawrence To Open Festive Week On May 1 With Monster Feed

In what has been described as a worthy attempt to establish a traditional event in future semesters, Floyd Lawrence, president of the High Sophomore Class, will officially open the festivites of Sophomore Week at 10:30 a. m. on May Day, Monday, May 1, with the staging of the Sophomore class barbecue at Balboa Park.

Inaugurating the many and varied events of Sophomore Week, the barbecue, an all-you-can-eat affair with many attractions of a sundry nature,

Old Clothes Suggested

Students attending the barbecue are advised to wear old clothes, since the affair will be held on a broad, dusty field and might injure any wearing apparel other than that which has taken on an aspect of old age.

Tea-Dansant Hostess

Dorothy Trood

fair is as yet unannounced, other arrangements, and plans are nearing completion.

Attractive bids, picturing a young woman wearing the traditional mortarboard hat, have been selected. Hosts, hostesses, and many guests have already been invited to attend.

Punch to Be Served

"Our refreshments will be punch, and of course cake or cookies to go with it," declared Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

According to Miss Trood, students have requested more of such affairs, because of their past successes. The AWS dansant of last semester was attended by some 200 students and guests, and was proclaimed to be highly enjoyable.

Specialties Featured

In addition to dance music, the orchestra will also feature several professional specialty numbers. Dancing will begin at 9 p. m., continue until 1 o'clock.

Site of the affair is the California Country Club, easily accessible by automobile. Prospective dancers should go down El Camino Real to a point one mile beyond the junction of the boulevard and the 19th Avenue cut-off, at which point the gates of the club are located on the right-hand side of the roadway. Official designation of the site of the dance is Baden.

Bids Now On Sale

Bids to the dance are already on sale, may be obtained for $1.25 from Floyd Lawrence, president of the High Sophomore class, or the Galileo bank counter. "I feel certain that everyone will thoroughly enjoy himself at the dance, for in addition to a really magnificent site, we have an orchestra which has played many times for University of California formal dances," said Lawrence.

Only One More Pay Check This Semester For NYA

Though college NYA students have only one more pay check, May 17, they have been given additional working hours for April and May, which has been made possible by the extra appropriation of funds, according to Edward H. Redford, director.

Faculty Association Elects Next Semester Officers

At a meeting held yesterday at Galileo, the college Faculty Association elected its officers for next semester.

Although final results of the election have not as yet been announced, the following members of the faculty were nominated for officer's positions: President, Lloyd Luckmann, Nelson Wells; secretary, Eileen Rue; members-at-large, E. A. Cranston, Miriam Gatley, Edward, Sandys.

May 10 has been announced as the date of the faculty dance, to be held at the Mark Hopkins Hotel.

Edward Sandys, retiring president of the organization, anticipates a large attendance at the social affair.

Dance After Barbecue

Immediately after the barbecue, and starting at about 5:00 o'clock, to be held either at nearby Sigmund Stern grove

(Continued on page 4, column 1)

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. VIII WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1939 No. 14

JOHN JULIUS.....EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Editorial Adviser — Business Adviser
Joan Nourse — Edward H. Redford

Bill Frantz.....Managing Editor
Leonard Gross.....News Editor
Sam Galstaun.....Staff Photographer
Isadore Maloff.....Feature Editor
Dorothy Trood.....Women's Editor
Janet Fellows.....Club Editor
Marion MacKillop.....Staff Artist
Allen Martin.....Business Manager
Edmund Wunsch.....Assistant Business Manager

REPORTERS
Lucretia Antonicelli, Ethan Bernstein, Victoria Candido, Bill Canning, Jacqueline Davis, Janet Fellows, Lois Gipson, Louis Goldstone, Frances Manalo, Daniel Rosenblat, Jack Schmale, Gordon Sollman, Harold Unterberger, Frank Verducci, John Ward

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

College Electioneering Procedure Needs Change; Attempt Amendment Tomorrow

TOMORROW a meeting of great importance to all students of the college is being held. An amendment to the constitution of the Associated Students will be the main order of business.

Giving rise to a great deal of controversy, the proposed amendment to abolish electioneering in the college promises to be highly contested before its passage or its defeat.

It is to be hoped, however, that the measure will not be defeated, since for obvious reasons it will contribute to the good of the college if it is passed.

THAT WORD "POLITICS"

A constant thorn in the side of the American public, and a constant stumbling block and hindrance in the path to good, efficient government is that word called "politics". From time immemorial politics have played the major part in the election of men to offices where it is their job to serve many people intelligently and wisely. In fact, in the United States today it is no longer a question of how well fitted a person is for public office, but of how many friends he has and how powerful his political machine turns out to be.

It is not necessary to spend a great deal of time on this rather unclean subject of politics since the many phases concerning it are more or less well known to everyone. Suffice to say that politics, especially underhanded, or as they are more commonly called "dirty" politics are an unwanted and unnecessary evil in present day government.

The main purpose of this amendment is to eliminate as much as possible the pollution of college government by undesirable politics, for strange as it may seem, this evil can and does exist in may institutions of learning throughout the nation. By abolishing all forms of electioneering, which is just another way of saying politics, an equal chance will be given to everyone. Passage of this amendment will at least assure all candidates that they have as much chance as the next fellow. It will no longer be a case of how much money a candidate can spend to influence voters.

PUBLIC OPIONION SWAYED EASILY

Unfortunately public opinion can be swayed very easily, giving the person with the most influence and money, no matter how well fitted he is for the office, a better than average chance of being elected. This proposed change in the constitution will specifically forbid the influencing of students in any way concerning money, so that the candidate who cannot afford such an expenditure will be on an equal footing with his perhaps more fortunate competitor.

Of course abolishing electioneering will not give a perfect government since such is not possible, but it will at least be a step in the right direction.

—L. Gross

Men Urged To Strive For Scholarships; Two Scholarships Now Being Offered

TWO separate institutions have offered scholarships to the men of this college. Both the University of San Francisco, and the San Francisco College of Business have been more than generous in their efforts to send students part or all the way through college.

This is a great opportunity and should not be ignored or forgotten. The scholarships are open to all third or fourth year students having a grade average of "B".

In some quarters when the mention of scholarships is made, a frightened attitude is adopted and the general opinion seems to be one of "Oh well, I couldn't win one anyway, so why try?"

It is unfortunate that there are people like that, unfortunate for them. The committees in charge of the awards expressly stated that anyone meeting the requirements is eligible, yet some persons adopt the attitude of being beaten before they start.

There is an old saying that opportunity only knocks once. If this is true, the persons who pay heed to the first knock are the ones who will eventually prove to be successful in life.

—L. Gross

Sophomore Barbecue To Provide Preview Of Future Campus

NEXT Monday will be the opportunity for many students of the college to glimpse at Balboa Park, the site of the future college, for the first time.

Providing a colorful background for the highly entertaining Sophomore Barbecue, the location will actually be occupied for the first time by students of the college. Although dreams of taking over the site in another manner, that is by permanent residence, have not as yet come true, the May Day festivities will serve as a sort of preview to an even greater occasion which will be held in the very near future.

The foresight of the sophomore committee in choosing such a location for the class barbecue is to be highly commended. Nothing could be more suitable than the occupation of Balboa Park long before schedule.

—L. Gross

Prosperity Corner
By Sam Galstaun

1. What country, that was victorious in the World War, did not receive any new territory?

2. Where is the mountain, Nanda Devi?

The elevation of this mountain is 25,645 ft., and is the highest mountain ever climbed by man. It's summit was reached on August 29, 1936.

3. What nation, defeated in the World War, increased its territory as a result of the peace treaty?

4. What is the temperature of absolute zero?

This temperature has never been experimentally realized, although with modern research methods scientists have approached within one-tenth of a degree of it. It has been determined only by indirect methods, and, according to theory, all molecular motion stops at the absolute zero.

5. What non-participating nation in the World War received new territory?

6. How many symphonies did Beethoven compose?

In 1802, he recorded the fact of his oncoming deafness in the dramatic Heiligen-Stadt testament. At this time he had finished his first three symphonies, more than half of his piano sonatas, six of his quartets, and three of his five piano concertos. However, most of his greatest works were written after this date.

7. What were the names of Christopher Columbus' three ships?

8. Which college in the United States does not have examinations?

Maybe the following is treason, but statistics show the system used in this particular college is very successful. Even if it were not successful we're quite sure that 99.44 per cent of this college would gladly advocate it, including Willie Frantz and Phil Whaley.

9. Is it correct to say "Good morning Doctor"?

10. Identify the following slogans with its product: a. "The Pause That Refreshes"; b. "Good to the Last Drop"; c. "When It Rains It Pours"; d. "Instrument of the Immortals"; e. "Do As Your Dentist Does"; f. "Eventually, Why Not Now?"; g. "That Five O'Clock Shadow"; h. "Hasn't Scratched Yet".

(These are unpaid for advertisements)

(Quiz Answers—Page 4, Column 4)

The Case Of Sadie Hawkins Versus Students Of San Francisco Jr. College

By ISADORE MALOFF

"Write" ordered the grand exalted editor, "a little story about the Sadie Hawkins event at the Sophomore Class barbecue on May Day."

Like a glittering crystal shattered to fragments, our dream of getting home early collapsed. Drat the Sadie Hawkins event anyway!

But the editor having spoken in his official capacity, there was nothing for us to do but produce, so while the other would-be literary hacks trembled like leaves in the breeze as the editor ominously stood over them with whip in hand, we grabbed our trusty pencil and slunk off to the nearest corner in an attempt to cope with the orders of our esteemable deadhditor.

Five minutes passed. Ten minutes passed and the copy paper was still as blank as an empty cartridge. Suddenly our stupefied senses became aroused from the lethargy of despair, and stood up like soldiers on the alert. The editor was approaching.

"What!" he spluttered in his most grandiloquent manner. "Can it be that your linguistic powers are failing you at this time? Why don't you see Floyd Lawrence and find out what the event is all about."

"Hush," we replied, curtly favoring him with a look of cold dignity, "it shall be done."

"Mr. Lawrence we've been assigned to cover the case of Sadie Hawkins versus the students of S. F. J. C. Just what is the dope?"

With due enthusiasm, Lawrence replied, "The Sadie Hawkins event will be the most grandiose, riotous event of the barbecue. At a certain, given time in the afternoon's festivities all the eligible flowers of knighthood will be rounded up into some sort of a corral. At the same time, the women will put on their track shoes, their best powder and most enticing perfume in preparation for the hunt.

At a given signal the males will then hurriedly scamper over the vast areas of Balboa Park while each woman will hotly pursue the one that catches her fancy. As soon as the male is caught he automatically becomes the property of the woman and is eligible for the prizes we are awarding to the best huntress."

Since we saw that Lawrence was working himself into a fever by his evident enthusiasm, we interrupted his flow of words, cordially thanked him and departed for our copy desk.

Encouraged by Lawrence's bit of information we turned out the following story for the editor.

"With hippopotamus-like agility, some three hundred college men will serve as foxes at Balboa Park on May Day in the first Sadie Hawkins event of the season. Scampering over the hills, dales, and gopher holes of beauteous Balboa Park, the males will be pursued by competent co-ed hunters. Each hunter will pick up the trail of the one she picks out as her victim and will endeavor to capture the prey for her own before some other scheming woman beats her out."

"All men are asked to come clean shaven for this event."

Just then the editor hovered over us and saw that last line about coming clean shaven to the barbecue.

"Why?" bluntly asked his highness.

"Because," we replied, "it is a well known fact that men, like bullets, go farthest when they are smoothest."

"Give me that copy paper," furiously yelled the editor at the same time grabbing it from our hands and we were free to go home at will.

Cabbages & Kings
By Blue Pencil Bill

PERSONAL nomination for the best dressed student on the campus—Bob "Esquire Kid" Kun. Don't you know who he is? Well, he's the ineligible tennis player whose handsome brunette likeness graced the sports page of The Guardsman, April 19 edition.

* * *

SCRUI BIZNIS

Hui Eleu Captures
1939 Inter-Hui
Softball Title

(Headline in the Honolulu High School publication.)

Also "Alii Held Inferior."

* * *

Tri Epsilon won the mythical Inter-Mural basketball championship by defeating Pi Mu Gamma last week. Score was 20 to 18—there were more fouls than scores. It is rumored that 40 fouls were called and no more than two free throws sunk. Reason: Elmer "Fair Play" Hubacher was referee.

* * *

FEARLESS MAN

Phil Whaley, at 132 pounds soaking wet, will take any bet when it comes to the gentle art of osculation. Up to the time of writing Phil is approximately $21 ahead of the more bashful gentlemen of the college. In the Galileo cafeteria a young foreign engineering student bets Phil that he cannot walk up to a strange young lady student and plant a kiss upon that young lady's cheek. Phil hasn't lost yet—but his face has been slapped.

* * *

WHO IS IT?

He was a college professor, greatly beloved because of his kind heart, but with the common scholastic failing of being very absent-minded. He visited his married niece and listened to her praise of her first born. When she paused for breath the professor felt that he must say something.

"Can the little fellow walk?" he asked, with every appearance of interest.

"Walk?" cried the mother, indignantly. "Why, he's been walking now for five months."

"Dear me!" exclaimed the professor, again relapsing into abstraction. "What a long way he must have gone!"

SWING INVADES TYPING

In Tom O'Neill's typing class at Galileo one can hear a phonograph entertaining the typists with music such as "Old Man Mose," "A Tisket, a Tasket"—and "Stars and Stripes Forever." O'Neill claims it gives the typists rhythm.

(Read Poll of Opinion column for more information about swing in college.)

Sartorial Modes
By Fashion Fanny

NOW is the time to start planning the summer vacation wardrobe, and you'll get a better selection if you start early. First of all, you will want to get several of those stunning new cotton dresses. One in particular that was intriguing was a blue and white pin striped dress with a zipper half-way down the front. Grand for those that like the princess style. Another interesting cotton was made on the basque style of flowered material like grandma used to wear. The squared neck is treated with small black velvet ribbon and bows. The ever-popular sunback dress in striped material and a bolero of contrasting material is again back in the stores.

Incidentally stripes are the rage this season along with checks.

MORE STRIPES

Playsuits are being played up a lot this season because they are so feminine. One outfit consisted of a blue-jumper short affect with an all-around pleated skirt. The blue and white striped blouse had short sleeves and a pocket in which there was tucked ever so innocently a white linen hankie. For bike riding there is the polka-dotted Racketeer—a three piece idea with shorts and shirt and skirt buttoned down the front. The shirt has long sleeves, a bit different from the other suits.

WHITE ORGANDY

Cotton formals are next on the list for summer wear, and oh what a joy they are. White organdy with embroidered red roses made with a very narrow waist and bust, and full from the knees. It can be worn with straps, but is simply stunning without them. Another one to grace a smart store is made of shadow organdie in light blue, pink or white. It has a square neck, starting at the neck and going down to the very bottom of the hemline is a row of little bows. And for evening wraps, the taffeta quilted are about the best for summer.

BAGS FOR SUMMER

Here's something for the woman who likes to collect bags. One shop is showing in its summer collection, a silk bag with flags from all the nations printed right on the silk.

This same department store is introducing a new shade of lipstick, powder and rouge Camellia is the name of the two new shades and they promise to be very popular this summer. After that tan you acquire, a suntan shade is very good.

WHITE FORMALS

White evening gowns, it is predicted, will again lead fashions at night. White embroidered organdy with a full skirt, tight bodice with square neck, and puff sleeves trimmed with narrow black velvet ribbon and a red quilted silk jacket make one picture, while another is the sculptured white chiffon formal which was so popular two seasons ago.

One of the most severe tests given to an automobile on the proving ground is to drive it at a high speed over a smooth concrete road. The vibrations thus set up attack hidden faults much more rapidly and with greater damage than would a rough road.

RAM'S HORN

Contributions: One Fine Pep Talk; Two Irked Ires

Letters to this department are welcome. All contributions must be signed by the writer. If the author desires, his identity will be kept confidential. Refrain from lengthy dissertations; short letters will be given preference. Leave contributions in office at Galileo, or in The Guardsman office, W. J. (opposite room 261, Galileo). Deadline for Wednesday's paper is the preceding Thursday.

● ARDENT VOTER WRITES
Editor, The Guardsman:

It was with a feeling of extreme gladness that I read the editorial about elections in last week's issue.

In the three semesters I have spent in the college I have from the first semester felt that as a member of the college it was my duty to have an interest in the life and actions of the college. Therefore I voted for those persons I felt would best govern the student affairs.

What I am getting at is that from the amount of students who vote there are only about 500 out of 2,000 who really care and feel that it is up to them to place in office students who would govern the student affairs to the best of their ability.

If those of you who have not voted will delve into your memories and figure out why you did not vote you will find out it was mostly laziness.

Is it too much effort to express your choice of officers by voting, which takes only a minute's time? If you can't afford that much time to vote now, what are you going to do when the time comes to vote for the leaders of our country? Here you can receive the experience and thrill of voting without an age limit.

Let us see if we can't break all records and have at least one thousand votes in the forthcoming elections that would still be only a fifty per cent vote. Don't forget the day, May 5 to vote.

A Third Termer

● LEAGUE OF ORGANIZED CHEATERS
Editor, The Guardsman:

When I took my first midterm here at S.F.J.C. I thought perhaps I was just seeing things; surely there was no mistaking the lines on the outside of the bluebook. (Dishonesty not tolerated, etc.)

The phrase means little or nothing to me now. I have seen little or no objection taken by student body officials in this matter. The trend is generally to conceal underhanded activity in examination from the professors—there is no attempt to conceal anything from student body officers however. There has to be cooperation between faculty and students to suppress cheating.

Oh! How my grades suffered. But (heh, heh, heh) I now know what to do; for I, yes I, "Willie the Weasel" have a plan. I shall teach all my friends the general service code. Then we shall all have call numbers and send out messages by tapping our pencils on the desks. I can see it all —dot dash, dash dot. Heh, heh, heh.

Willie the Weasel

● PRANKSTERS BEWARE
Editor, The Guardsman:

In this college there exists a certain clique of pranksters who delight in playing jokes on others and then laughing heartily as the victim falls into one of their traps.

Among these ruffians who have nothing to do but wile away their time at the expense of others are those who fix the tables in the study hall so that they fall down when an unsuspecting student sits at it.

As I have been a victim of one of these pranks I know just how it feels to sit down at a table very casual like, and then have the board atop the table fly up into the air, or have the seat fall out from under you. It's a pretty hard problem to regain your composure after being laughed at by all those present.

Yet nothing seems to be done about it. Pleas and threats of the janitor go unheeded by these pranksters who delight in seeing the discomfiture of others. Just how can I deal with them, for in my fury I'm determined upon revenge, although in a more ladylike manner?

The somewhat lax judiciary committee evidently does not care to bother with them, therefore I would like to know if there are other ways of bringing about justice through the college, or if I shall have to get my revenge in my own way.

Amazon Anne

Presidential Notes
By Frank Verducci

NOW is the time for all loyal members of the Associated Students to rally to the support of their alma mater. Tomorrow, starting at 2:15 o'clock (instead of the previously announced time) the electioneering amendment is to be discussed and voted upon. It is absolutely essential to have a large representation of students so that the amendment may be fairly treated.

The following day, Friday, at 2:30 o'clock, is the day selected for the nomination rally. We must again remind those students intending to run for Associated Student offices that it is absolutely imperative that they turn in their petitions for election, together with a record of their grades, before Friday, April 28.

On Friday evening, April 28, that long awaited Barn Dance of the Associated Men Students will be held. Judging from the interest and enthusiasm shown thus far, the dance will be the most enjoyable that students will ever have the pleasure to attend. Dave Johnson, hard-working AMS president, and Joseph A. Amori have been working arduously to insure the dance's success. At this stage of the game we can safely say that their efforts will be rewarded.

This coming Monday, May 1, marks the beginning of a new tradition. The Hi-Soph barbecue endeavors on this day to take its place among the activities of Sophomore Week.

AFTER DARK
By John Ward

IN this age of quick communication and rapid transportation, an actually great work of art is not what one would call a rarity. They have been known to appear in circulating libraries, the opera house occasionally displays one, and the radio has been known to admit a few. What is rare is to see one created, to become part of the impetus and part of the result in a really great work of art. And just this one San Francisco audience recently experienced.

Last week Rockwell Kent spoke before some 600 people on The Artist in Defense of Democracy. Mr. Kent is one of the top rank American artists and also an important progressive leader in these United States. Also he is the greatest speaker we have ever heard.

The Russian film, The Defense of Volochayevsk, which played the Larkin Theater last week, was an interesting film full of portentous political allusions to present day situations set in some distant historic past (i.e. Japan will never gain an inch of Russian territory, etc.) The past in this case was the defense by the Red Army of the territory around Vladivostok from the Japanese army and a scattering of White Russians. The moral, certainly valid in this day and age, ran something like this: no imperialistic army will win a nation through aggression when the whole people of the attacked nation are opposed to any such arrangement.

ONE UP ON HOLLYWOOD

The Defense of Volochayevsk may not be a great film but it is a good film. Hollywood could probably put out the same thing just as well. But one element would be missing. With a Russian film, usually full of propaganda, one at least has the feeling that the actors who are making the film are for and with what they are doing. One feels and knows that they believe in what they are presenting, that they have something to believe in. Hollywood rarely gives us this feeling.

. . . while thinking . . .
By Leonard Gross

IN a move calculated to insure the United States the best possible men for her newly expanded air corps, the government last week called Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, famed flyer, to active service with the military force of the nation.

We seem to recall sometime ago that there was quite a controversy over the fact that Lindbergh seemed to be helping foreign countries rather than the United States. Although the recent turn about may appear to be rather surprising, it is our guess that the flyer has been unofficially working for the American government ever since he moved to England. It is not logical to believe that such a man as Lindbergh would deliberately work against his own country.

* * *

ONE of the greatest hypocricies on the face of the globe is being practiced in this country by the Nazi-American Bund. The bund, supposedly a thorough 100 per cent American organization (to hear members tell it) has time and again patriotically declared its allegiance and love for the United States, claiming that their members above all others adhere to the ideals of Americanism.

The following are two excerpts from the definition of Americanism as stated by an official poster on the Powell Street bulletin board: Americanism is: Loyalty to the institutions and ideals of the United States (under which freedom of religion, speech, and press would come), undivided allegiance to the flag of the nation (this does not refer to the Nazi swastika). Enough said.

* * *

IT has been said that the only way the world will have peace is for Franco's widow to tell Stalin on his deathbed, that Hitler was assassinated while attending Mussolini's funeral. (S. F. Chronicle.)

* * *

MAYBE we're wrong but it seemed to us that the German and Italian troops were supposed to leave Spain as soon as the war was over, since there was no longer any possible need of their remaining. Be that as it may, the fact still remains that the foreign soldiers are still sitting around Spain doing nothing. This is just another indication of the cleverness of the totalitarian powers who no doubt feel that as long as their troops are within Spanish territory, there won't be any chance of the newly formed government forgetting that their allegiance is to Germany and Italy.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Complete Athletic Program Planned By Sophs For Barbecue

Playoff Today In Hunch Tournament; Galileo Gym, 3:30, Today

RAM chops
Schmale Misses Cinema Opportunity; Dean Browne Bowls Over 200 Again

By JACK SCHMALE

It is with no little anxiety that, with a strangle hold on one of Uncle Sam's four-bit pieces, we eagerly await the local cinema premier of the brief Hollywood newsreel production depicting last week's Louis-Roper one-rounder.

Put this one on your "must see" list.

For our good friend, Walt Daley, who scribbles flattering yarns with reckless abandon on the college's athletes, teams and coaches, makes his screen debut in this fistic opus.

Equipped with 11 dollars and 20 cents worth of ringside seat, curley-haired Walter plomped himself down in a firmament of flicker celebs in L.A.'s spacious Gilmore Stadium to enjoy the tragic tussle for the world's heavyweight face smashing title.

Right smack in the second row, one of 30,000 spectators, was our friend Daley, who enjoyed the quick contest even more because the $11.20 seat was donated with the compliments of Mike Jacobs. Nice work if there's a vacancy in the sports writing business.

Daley Saves A Penny

The pictures showing the pre-tragedy weigh-in ceremonies will find Daley's handsome countenance on the silver sheet right in between Louis and Roper.

We shudder to think of Walt's future had the boys decided to stage a prelude when hopping on the scale.

Knowing Daley as we do, we ascertain his motive in the middle to have been a chance to weigh his averdupois without charge of the customary penny—even at the precarious risk of stepping on the toes of either of the principals, who by Daley's own generous admission, could have licked the stuffings out of him at will.

Walt says he scored a moral victory in that he did click off the weight-teller at 173½, fighting condition, before the referee got there.

A penny saved is a penny earned!

Schmale Misses Out

The irony of the whole thing is that if Daley should be discovered by talent scouts of Cinema City we'll be plenty burned. You see, we too, were invited to skip south with Walter, and in staying home, might have passed up the chance of a lifetime.

Oh, drat it, anyway!

Nice to know that we'll have a second year sweetie in a few days. Step right up boys and girls, and cast your ballot for your choice for the college's second Sophomore Sweetheart. Voting will be held at the nominations rally Friday afternoon, and just to show the efficiency of the committee (plug) the lucky lass will be crowned, or whatever you do to sweetheart contest winners at the barn dance Friday eve.

Floyd Lawrence's garden party, soph barbecue to you, should provide a good time to all hungry and interested Rams and Ramettes Monday. Floyd should take a bow for his novel idea, which unwittingly renders him host of the very first, initial, premature house-warming party of our new campus. Nice going, Floydie.

(Editor's Note: Wrong, Mr. Schmale. Ground-breaking ceremonies were held at Balboa Park exactly two years ago yesterday—April 25, 1937.)

Bob McGuire, our blond cinderacer, asks whether it would be feasible to attempt an excursion to Sacramento a week from Saturday for the all-conference track meet in Solonville. It'll be a good meet; the Rams will definitely score points, the weather's fine in Sacramento these days—but and excursion? Quick, Doctor Verducci, another aspirin!

Keglerette Keggles

Jose Senor Amori's Knights of the Mineralite, also referred to by the common people simply as bowlers, should gather around and give a lusty cheer for one of our San Francisco feminine keglerettes. She's Ida Konetsky, who runs Powell Recreation. Last Thursday afternoon Ida rocked the circles of the Women's International Bowling Congress gigantic in Oklahoma City, shooting a 591 series that went for second place in the singles. Pretty good, huh?

Gunga Dean Browne, California's leading bowling dean-of-men, pierced the 200 mark on the alleys again last week, continuing his phenomenal run. Following closely on the heels of a previous 231 colossal, the good Dean clicked 'em for a 202 this time.

What-a-man.

Helen Crlenkovich Wins National Diving Laurels
Local Girl Outpoints Opponent 144-138; 'Did The Hard Ones'

Helen Crlenkovich, college diving star, after four years of effort finally achieved her foremost desire when she defeated National Champion Marjorie Gestring of Los Angeles in the indoor diving championships held at the Fairmont pool last week.

Scoring "neck and neck" with her competitor, Helen finally won the match by performing splendidly in her two favorite events, the gainor one and a half in tuck position and the forward two and a half in tuck position. The point score was 144 to 138.

The victory earned the title of National Senior Women's Springboard Diving Champion for the San Francisco girl.

Underrated because of Miss Gestring's previous wins over her, Helen, thrilled by the throng that witnessed the event, failed to exhibit any appearance of being nervous. She seemed, also, very sprightly in her take-offs.

The newly crowned aquatic champion is now rated in number 1 position as diving representative of the United States for the Olympic Games diving events to take place in 1940.

New Champion

—Courtesy S. F. Call-Bulletin
HELEN CRLENKOVICH

Recognized for her style and gambling technique, the junior college lass had almost always been willing to perform a difficult feat in order to increase her score. On the other hand, Miss Gestring, a conservative diver, has depended solely on her ability to perform an easier plunge perfectly.

It is expected that the dethroned champion will soon make a bid for her lost crown.

Baseballers To Meet San Mateo Today; Seek Fourth Consecutive Win

Coach Gaddy's horsehiders, after winning their second and third consecutive victories, travel to San Mateo this afternoon to grapple with the win-hungry Bulldogs.

The locals defeated Menlo last week 9-0 in the first game of a doubleheader and again in the nightcap, 9-0. That is how it looks in the books. The fact is that Menlo forfeited the games, giving the Rams a good rest and also a pair of needed victories to attempt to balance the games in the loss column.

Weaver Galbraith and Kent Baird are expected to bolster the Ram scoring attack.

STUDENTS

You need a portable in your home. We are offering a limited number of Royal Varsity Models at $32.70. Manufacturers price $42.50.

This Is What You Get

New typewriter complete with case; standard office keyboard; back spacer, margin stop and bell; line finder for writing on ruled lines and filling in.

It has every essential for office or home use. May be purchased on easy terms. Trade in accepted. See it at 591 Market St., or call SUtter 4734 for home demonstration.

San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
591 Market Street SUtter 4734

WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADE
By FRANCES MANALO
Girls Learn To Canoe; Riding Club To Travel To Jack London Ranch

As part of the Life Saving course, members of the swimming class convened at the Crystal Plunge with their instructor, Vera Spencer, to receive instructions in canoeing.

During the evening that was spent at the plunge, the students were taught how to enter a canoe from the water. Gunwaling was also demonstrated, that is, instructions in entering a canoe already filled with water.

In addition, two of the students overturned one of the canoes, dived, and came up in the canoe and paddled it with their hands. Paddling a canoe water-filled was another experience for the women. Hands were used as the paddles.

To finish the evening in fine style, Miss Spencer took to the diving board and dared the students to follow her. Diving first game them some courage and Tedda Kosch, Marion Dicke, and Polly Trenk were the first to take the dare.

Starting with the low board, Miss Spencer next approached the ten-foot board, then the platforms. It was quite a few minutes before the students would jump from the twenty-foot platform; nevertheless, they executed a simple dive to show they were not sissies.

* * *

April 29, eight of the WAA tennis club will go down to San Mateo Junior College to join in a sectional play day there. The women who are to attend are the first and second place winners of the singles tournament, and the first, second, and third place winners of the women's doubles.

The women will remain at San Mateo for lunch, then participate in matches between the two colleges.

Last Wednesday, the two finals in women's singles were played off, the matches were between Tillie Huddleson, who is always out in front in the finals, and Helen Godman, manager of the tennis club.

Louise Hinterman and Helen Godman played off the finals in the women's doubles with Jean Paquin and Tillie Huddieson yesterday. The next matches to be played are the mixed finals which will take place this week.

* * *

With the success of the Horse Show in the past, the Riding Club is now planning a ride to the Jack London Ranch this coming Saturday, April 29.

When the Play Day at the Fair was held Saturday, April 15, different incidents proved amusing to the spectators. During the entertainment, prepared and provided by the tap dancing group, the second number was a Mexican dance in which the women wore long skirts. The time allotted between the numbers was not enough to allow the women to roll their slacks above the skirts, and while the routine was being presented, the slacks of the five dancers started to slip and caused much laughter from the audience. In addition, Laurine Bergin, instructor of the group, wanted them to make a good impression and urged them to smile. In the open air theater, her voice carried to the women seated below, and caused smiles on the faces of the spectators.

* * *

Compliments were extended to the committee members by the instructors on how well the play day program was presented and the smoothness with which the day ran. There were no complications during the entire day, and even an added bit of entertainment was provided by the Federal Project orchestra, which was playing while the WAA members were distributing lunches to the other women.

IN KEZAR FIELD . . .

Above are the history-makers in the State vs. San Francisco Junior College Track Meet last week at Kezar Stadium. (1) Schwab, of State, wins the 880 yard run, Goeppert and Clifford trailing. (2) Bob McGuire, exAnnapolis boy, who upset State's Luther Theofield in both dashes. (3) Joe Sanderson, State timber-topper, leads Paul Bitgood in the High Hurdles. (4) Keith Groswird, Russ Sweet's pole vault ace, clears 12 feet for first place tie. (5) Bob Klingler, hotel management lad, captures third spot in the 440. (6) McGuire breaks the tape eight yards in front of Theofield in the 220.

Track Squad Loses To Gators; Meets Santa Rosa Today

Kezar Stadium was rented for a track meet last Friday, featuring the cinder forces of San Francisco Junior College and S. F. State.

State collected most of the points, but the Rams supplied the color. And what's a track meet without color?

It would truly be a difficult task to spin the yarn on this event from the State side of the fence, but for a Ram supporter—a pushover.

Russ Sweet's toddlers were slightly defeated, but what a series of moral victories were gained during the foggy afternoon, which was cold enough to make ice cream in a campfire around the 50 yard line. So, in fact, were most of the performers.

First of all, our Bobbie McGuire skunked their Luther Theofield in both the sprint waltzes. Blond Bobbie did so with a little difficulty in the century in 10 flat, and by a most embarrassing margin of eight yards in the furlong, which the clockers proclaimed as 22 seconds flat—especially for Theofield and his Statesmen.

Then there's the point of meet records. The Rams captured the lone new mark of the scramble, when our Tom Emery planked himself out 22 feet, 7½ inches for broad jump supremacy.

McGuire tied the 100 record, State tied another in the low hurdles, and we took a "tie for a tie" in the pole vault, when our Keith Groswird deadlocked their George Otis at 12 feet, equaling the mark.

We also took second place in the relay.

State, incidentally, won the meet with 89½ points, but we got 32½!

100 Yard Dash: Won by McGuire (JC); Theofield (S); Stern (JC). Time—10 seconds.

220 Yard Dash: Won by McGuire (JC); Theofield (S); Stern (JC). Time—22 seconds.

440 Yard Dash: Won by Crane (S); Purden (S); Klingler (JC). Time—52 seconds.

880 Yard Run: Won by Schwab (S); Goeppert (JC); Clifford (JC). Time—2:04.8.

Mile Run: Won by Kline (S); Carollin (S); Henry (JC). Time—4:41.

High Hurdles: Won by Schultz (S); Butler (S); Otis (S). Time—15.9 secs.

Low Hurdles: Won by Sheppard (S); Butler (S); Sparba (JC). Time—25 seconds.

Shot Put: Won by Gittens (S); Pantages (S); Otis (S).

Discus: Won by Pantages (S); Gittens (S); Bolander (S).

Javelin: Won by Bolander (S); Carlson (S); Finn (S).

High Jump: Tie for first among Hagen (JC); Otis (S) and Parker (S). Height: 5 feet, 11 inches.

Broad Jump: Won by Emery (JC); Parker (S); Ida (JC) third. Distance—22 feet, 7½ inches.

Pole Vault: Tie for first between Kleth Groswird (JC) and Otis (S); tie for third between Perry (JC) and Glass (S). Height—12 feet.

Relay: Won by State. Time—3:37.4.

Russ' Roving Ram race runners revert to the Redwood road region this afternoon to take on Santa Rosa in a conference track and field meet at 3 o'clock.

The Ram Ramblers, showing steady improvement in almost every event during the past few weeks, rate slight underdogs to the powerful and well balanced Bearcub squad.

Local point collectors are expected to be McGuire in the sprints, Klingler in the 440, Raine and Bitgood over the hurdles and Groswird in the pole vault.

Tom Emery, who smashed the broad jump record in the State meet, is expected to repeat his performance against the Redwood lads.

This afternoon's trip marks the final dual track meet for Sweet's proteges before the annual conference meet in Sacramento.

College Hunch Tournament Playoff Today, Galileo; 'Fighting Irish' vs. 'Champs'

Playoff of the college Hunch tournament will be in the Galileo high school gymnasium at 3:30 this afternoon, pitting the "Fighting" Irish, American League champions against the Champs, winners of the National League title.

Starting with 15 picked teams, the elimination contest has now narrowed down to the winners of the two gym class leagues. Lee Eisan, instructor for the Monday and Wednesday gym classes, is the sponsor.

Representing the Fighting Irish today, are the heretofore victorious members, Bob Cianna, Al Goodwin, John O'Leary and Joe Di Martini.

The Champs will send into the fray, Cliff Lamp, Paul Loze, Charles Blenio and Don Skelton.

To those unacquainted with the term, "hunch", the title implies that it is one of basketball's off-springs. Composed of from two to four men per team, the game is played before one gymnasium basket. Idea of the contest is to surpass the total of 21 points, the squad to do this first being declared the winning team.

The game itself, is played exceedingly fast and gives the individual players an opportunity for more basket shots.

COMPLETE ATHLETIC PROGRAM FOR SOPH BARBECUE, MAY 1
Men's, Women's Physical Education Departments To Cooperate With Floyd Lawrence In Balboa Extravaganza

Featuring numerous softball contests, races, and games, a complete athletic program has been arranged for the soph barbecue on May 1 at Balboa Park.

Floyd Lawrence, high soph president, has engaged the services of Bertha Mae Keller and Lee Eisan, physical education instructors who have outlined a series of events for the occasion.

At 10:30 a. m., the first softball game between the high sophs and the alumni will take place, to be followed at 11:30 a. m. by a contest between the "fellers" and the "gals."

In the first fracas, such worthies as Lawrence, Mel Petersen, Phil Whalen, Bob Kun, Sammy Galstaun, and Frank Verducci will participate for the sophs, while it is expected that the alumni will be represented on the field of battle by Treacy Slattery, Bob Fex, Dick Simpers, Jerry Flamm and other former Ram "greats."

In the next encounter, an all-star men's aggregation will meet the college's foremost feminine pastimers. Included in the women's lineup will be such stalwarts as Jeanne Kelly and Helen Culp. Lawrence announces that there will be other softball games going on at the same time giving all a chance to play.

Sadie Hawkins at 1 P. M.

The major portion of the races and games will start at 12:30 p. m., with the Sadie Hawkins event scheduled to get under way in the neighborhood of 1 o'clock.

Listed on the program as races are the three-legged race for mixed couples, the sack race, peanut race, and egg race.

Immediately following the races, a volley-ball game will be held, with the men contesting the women once again.

Decathlon Events

Outstanding event for the men will be a decathalon which will include baseball throw for accuracy and distance, football kicking for distance, passing the football for accuracy and distance, sprint races, and slinging the bull.

RAM TENNISERS DEFEAT MARIN; TIE WITH MENLO FOR LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

Climaxing a hectic season filled with disappointment and hard luck, the Ram tennis squad finished in a deadlock with San Mateo for first place in the conference standings by emerging victorious 5 matches to one over the Marin team on the Palace courts last Saturday.

Earlier in the week, the Ram team held a one match lead over their peninsulan rivals, but Bill Canning dropped his first singles engagement to Salinas and threw the race into a tie. Following this, San Mateo proceeded to drop a match to Menlo and the local netmen were again in the lead.

Facing Marin in the last conference match of the season, the Rams were hopeful of copping the title, but their plans were thwarted when Ray Kline dropped his singles encounter. As this was the only loss suffered at the hands of the Marin team, the Rams must now face the San Mateo squad in a playoff for the title, with the winner scheduled to face the strong Modesto netmen, winners of the valley conference.

Bill Canning and Bill Madamba against proved the bulwark of the local team by capturing their tussles in easy fashion. Canning trounced Chris Larsen in straight sets 6-3, 6-3 while Madamba continued his brilliant play by defeating Lionel Alanson 6-1, 6-2. Madamba compiled the best record of the entire squad as he failed to drop a conference match during the entire season.

Bill Dodson again demonstrated his remarkable improvement by knocking over Charles Sciaroni, former Lowell ace, 6-3, 6-2.

The Rams were given a terrific scare in the second doubles encounter when Bill Madamba and Ray Kline were forced to stage a brilliant rally to overcome the Marin pair, Sciaroni and Alanson. The local pair was behind 4-1 in the deciding set but came back strong to win out 6-2, 4-6, 6-4. Had the Rams dropped this tussle they would have finished in second place in the conference race.

In the playoff with San Mateo, the local netmen should emerge victorious if they play their best tennis, as the two squads battled to a three to three deadlock in their only meeting this year.

Conlan's Golfers Attempt To End Jinx Against Menlo

While finishing the season of league competition with two matches against the seemingly unbeatable Menlo J. C. putters, Coach "Dutch" Conlan's golfers will attempt to end a four-year jinx before preparation for the college golf championships to be held soon.

Tomorrow at Ingleside, Conlan's boys will play their first match. On Saturday, April 28, the college team will journey down to Los Altos to play on the opposing team's home grounds.

Expectations of trimming the Menlo boys are running quite high according to the Ram coach. Undefeated, to date, the locals have displayed a smooth driving technique in practice.

RAMblings
O. U. Deer Thanks Berns For Stand On Bow And Arrow Hunters

By RAY BERNS

The following "gem" was extracted from the high soph dictator, Floyd Lawrence, after little or no persuasion. "Rivaling the Sadie Hawkins event on the Sophomore day program will be the three-legged race for men and women."

That, kiddies, is the pay-off! It would be fine and dandy if they had a three-legged race for men, or even a three-legged race for women, but mixed doubles, wow!

A Few Suggestions

Lawrence tells us that he is a bit short on ideas for athletic events for the barbecue. We now present a few of our ideas and they're yours for a sitting, Floyd. Add a marble game for men, jacks for women, and Kite-flying for instructors.

We herewith take great pleasure in acknowledging a letter from O. U. Deer, head of the Deer Protective Association. In last week's issue we censured an assemblyman for introducing a bill in the assembly, designed to give archers a week's head start on hunters, thereby catching the deer unprepared. Mr. Deer has sent us a letter expressing the thanks of all the deer for the stand we have taken. Mother, mother, pin a medal on us.

News Item: High school track coach in middle west thinks he has a prospect in a freshman cinder-duster because the kid won all the events in an inter-class meet. What we want to know, is how did he win the relay? Ye gods, the guy must be a superman.

Favors Galento

If we remember correctly, we went out on a limb not so long ago and picked Tony Galento over Joe Louis in their forthcoming fistic encounter for the heavyweight championship of the world.

After the Louis-Roper debacle, we are still of the same mind. For one thing, Louis wasn't expecting that flurry of blows Roper threw at him in the first round. Louis couldn't have been expecting those punches, because he was wide open. Your guess is as good as ours.

Yes, indeed, Louis will not meet a set-up in Galento who is as lithe as a tiger and just as quick. The Jersey phenom will extend the Brown Bomber no end, but don't mark our words.

Bagatelles: Tony Manov, basketeer, seen riding Lawrence. . . . Elmer Hubacher assisting.

Club Advisory Board Elections Tomorrow 1 P.M.

Meeting for the purpose of electing a president for the forthcoming semester, the Club Advisory Board convenes tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 101.

Running for the office, which carries with it a seat on the executive council, are Harold Hoffman and Vera Herndon. Hoffman has held the presidency this semester, seeks reelection; Miss Herndon is the present secretary of the organization.

Sole Nominees Listed

Nominated without opposition, and thus automatically elected are Robert Schlesinger, who will occpy the vice-presidency, and Donn Nordon, who will serve as secretary of the board.

Winding up the semester's activities, the board is cooperating in deriving information for the college handbook by addressing questionaires to the member clubs.

Deadline Extended

"The deadline for returning completed questionaires has been extended a week from the previously announced date until tomorrow's meeting.

At that time all clubs desiring a detailed listing of their activities rather than mere mention of their names in the handbook must turn in their questionaires," said Hoffman.

Comment Favorable

Administration comment on the revivification of the board has been very favorable. "We feel that a great deal of credit is due to the officers and the adviser, and of course to the individual members, for the definite upswing in the activities of the board.

"It has most certainly taken its rightful place as an organ of student affairs," said Paul M. Pitman, assistant to President Cloud.

POLL OF ... Opinion

By DAN ROSENBLAT

Swing out! Some do and some don't—like swing. An even 40 per cent of the students of the college questioned in the negative to the question, "Do you like swing music?"

The remaining 60 per cent registered their approval with various degrees of enthusiasm ranging from a belligerent "I hope to tell you. Now Benny Goodman—" to a rather doubtful affirmative qualified by hasty additional information to the effect that the student also appreciated symphony, of course, but then . . .

John Ward Surprises

Biggest surprise of the poll was the reply of the great anti-swing advocate, John Ward. Questioned while in an unusually mellow mood, he admitted to your reporter in an exclusive and music-world-staggering interview that perhaps he did like swing.

"After careful and unbiased consideration of the subject I have decided that some, mind you, I say some swing has a certain amount of originality and good musical arrangement. Not the Benny Goodman or Artie Shaw type, but such music as is played by Duke Ellington and various other musicians of his style," said Ward.

Political Parties Poll

Next week the poll drifts back to politics, asks you for your political affiliation in order that we may see how Republicans, Democrats, and other parties stack up. You don't have to be a registered voter in order to mark the ballot below with the name of the political party which has your support. After you have made your decision, add a check indicating if your politics are liberal or conservative, then leave your ballot in The Guardsman box at Galileo or Powell Street.

What is the political party that has your support?

Are your politics liberal or conservative?

Liberal.......... Conservative..........

Sophomore Week

(Continued from page 1)

or at a neighborhood dance hall, as far as women are concerned will depend on the individual woman's hunting prowess in the Sadie Hawkin's event. Only women who have succeeded in capturing a male in this event will be admitted to the dance.

Faculty, alumni, and students alike are earnestly urged by Lawrence to come out en masse and enjoy themselves.

Present day students and faculty instructors will have an excellent opportunity for greeting old friends and meeting new ones at the affair.

Campus Choir Prepare To Give Selection

Highlights of recent music programs featuring the choir have been radio broadcasts originating on Treasure Island and produced over national hookups. Also participating with the choir in many of its music programs have been the double-quartet and the Men's Chorus.

Always active in college programs and outstanding in musical circles, the A Capella Choir, (pictured above) directed by Flossita Badger, rounds out its most successful semester thus far with its participation next Monday in the annual Junior College Music Festival on Treasure Island.

A Capella Singers To Appear On Treasure Island

On May 1, 1939, the college A Capella Choir will appear at the annual Junior College Music Festival, on Treasure Island, Flossita Badger, choir director, announced Friday.

The Festival, which combines glee clubs and choruses from throughout the northern part of California, is usually held at a four-year college or university, but in honor of the Exposition will be presented from Treasure Island.

The local choir will be featured in four numbers. "There is a possibility," Miss Badger said, "that the Men's Chorus under the direction of Charles McKiernan, will appear also."

Saturday, April 22, the choir was presented over station KFRC on the Fiesta Days program. Featured with the KFRC orchestra were the double-quartet consisting of Patricia Keefer, Marie Sullivan, Dorothy Pilgrim, Janet Fellows, William Jackman, Arnold Chapin, Walter Scott, and Robert Poss.

Ice Carnival Called Off; Not Enough Tickets Sold

Because 100 tickets had not been sold, the number needed to obtain low rates for admission, the Ice Carnival at Sutro's was postponed indefinitely.

Students who purchased tickets can have their money refunded at the Galileo bank, carnival sponsors announced.

The first apple tree ever planted at Fort Vancouver, Washington, still stands and bears fruit. Not long ago a pie was made of the apples of this tree and sent by the citizens of the town to the President of the United States.

MEN STUDENTS OF COLLEGE OFFERED SEVERAL SCHOLARSHIPS BY USF, COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

Giving an opportunity to all eligible men students of this college, the University of San Francisco last week announced that two scholarships, one for two years, another for one year will be awarded.

Regular men students completing their third or fourth semester, and having an average of "B" or better in their university grade studies are eligible to compete.

Applications must be filed before May 1. They may be given to any member of the scholarship committee, consisting of John Selig, Mary Jane Learnard, Francis Colligan, Lloyd Luckmann, and John Gaddy of the faculty.

The president and administrative staff of the University of San Francisco will award the scholarships upon the basis of merit as evidenced in the applications and the student's records.

Scholarships are operative upon graduation from the college, and are not transferable.

F. G. Marsh, business director, announced Thursday that the San Francisco College of Business is offering a scholarship of $125 a year for four years to the men students of the college.

Marsh said that competition for the scholarship was not limited to those in the business department but was extended to all the men in the college with a B average. Applications should be made to J. Paul Mohr, chairman of the scholarship committee, not later than May 10, 1939, Marsh added.

Business Students To Compete

This week, 64 members of the college business department will compete in the Business College division of the state contest in Stenography, Typing, and Bookkeeping. Last year, the college representatives won an award in shorthand, took first place in stenography, and second and third places in typing.

"With the close of the present semester," Marsh said, "six members of the Retail Merchandising classes will receive permanent positions in downtown department stores." The students to be placed have been working part-time during the semester.

Students Urged To Take Course

At the present time only six students have signed up for the Retail Merchandising classes next semester. To enter the classes the student must have a C average and have been at the college for at least one semester.

College Observes Public Schools Week By Program

As a part of the current Public Schools Week, which ends this Friday, the college last Monday morning participated in a program held at the Powell Street building.

The event was highlighted by an address by Charles S. Morris, president of San Mateo Junior College, and several vocal selections by college students under the direction of Flossita Badger, faculty music sponsor.

Public Schools Week is an annual affair in which all the schools of the city take an active part.

ANSWERS

1. United States. 2. Himalayas. 3. Rumania. 4. -273.16° C. 5. Denmark (Received Schlesswig-Holstein) 6. Nine. 7. Santa Maria, Nina, and Pinta. 8. Bennington College, Vermont. 9. No: the surname should be added to the title. 10. a. Coca-Cola; b. Maxwell House Coffee; c. Morton's Salt; d. Steinway Piano; e. Dr. Lyons' Tooth Powder; f. Gold Medal Flour; g. Gem Micromatic Blades; h. Bon Ami.

CLUB SCHEDULE

NAME	Type of Meeting	TIME	PLACE
Alpha Delta Epsilon	No plans
Alpha Gamma Sigma	No plans
Alpha Phi Omega	No plans
Army-Navy	Business	May 5, 8 p. m.	1239 15th Ave.
Astronomy	Business	May 1	Galileo Observatory
Beta Phi	Business	Indefinite	Presidio
Block S. F.	No plans
Beta Tau	No plans
Chinese	Election	April 28, 8 p. m.	Chinese Y. W. C. A.
Forestry	Dinner Dance	April 28, 7:30 p. m.	Lake Merritt Hotel
Forum	No plans
French	Picnic	April 29	Larkspur
George Washington	No plans
Home Econ. Ass'n	No plans
Hotel-Restaurant	Election	May 2	Indefinite
Iota Chi	No plans
Japanese Students	Wienie Roast	Indefinite	Sigmund Stern Grove
Lambda Chi	Social	April 28, 6:00 p.m.	Athens Riding Club, Oak.
Music	Election	May 2, 7:30 p. m.	1223 25th Ave.
Newman	Election	May 2, 8:00 p. m.	St. Mary's Cathedral
Omicron Phi Pi	No plans
Peace Society	No plans
Phi Beta Rho	Business	May 3, 8:00 p.m.	1462 Jackson Street
Phys. Ed. Majors	Social	May 2, 5:30 p. m.	Sigmund Stern Grove
Pi Mu Gamma	Business	April 28, 7:30 p.m.	Homewood Terrace
Pick & Hammer	No plans
Rifle & Pistol	Business	April 28, 4:00 p. m.	Rifle Range
[illegible]	No plans
Tri Epsilon	Basketball game	April 26, 8:00 p. m.	Aptos Junior High
Women's Service Society	No plans

Library Browsing

By JANET FELLOWS

Among the great variety of material in the college library we are able to choose only a few of the fine magazines that fill the library's shelves.

Movies

Hound of the Baskervilles, a Sherlock Holmes story, is widely acclaimed by the critics. This eerie movie chiller includes in its cast Richard Greene, Basil Rathbone, Wendy Barrie, Nigel Bruce, Lionel Atwill, and John Caradine, and it was directed by Sidney Landfield. This mystery melodrama has been cleverly adopted by the movies from the novel of the same name by the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

Another famous novel has been evolved into a splendid motion picture—it is Wuthering Heights. The novel was written by Emily Bronte; the picture is directed by William Wyler, and the cast includes Merle Oberon, Lawrence Olivier, and David Niven. Wuthering Heights is a tragic love story tenderly and delicately told, in both novel and picture. All the reviewers put this picture on the 'must see list' and give it a dozen bells.

Both of these pictures are reviewed in Motion Picture Digest for April 10, 1939.

Books

In the book review list in "The New Republic" magazine, of April 12, 1939, is "Our Maginot Line", by Livingston Hartley. This is a long-range perspective of American foreign policy. The author presents a carefully thought-out program of collective defense. In view of the present conditions this book should be of timely interest.

"Walls Rise Up", by George Sessions Perry, is reviewed in the same issue. This book is about "three hoboes in a leisurely interval on the banks of the Brazos River." Hoboes generally make winning subjects and these are no exception. Their blend of hard-boiled tenderness and engaging insolence will remind you of "Tortilla Flat."

National Affairs

In Newsweek, of April 17, 1939, Bewildered Congress Groping for Sound Neutrality Policy informs that popular sentiment is veering toward a strict cash-and-carry plan. A Gallup poll shows that 66 per cent of the American people are in favor of selling arms to Britain and France during wartime, as compared with 55 per cent a month ago.

College Students Eligible For CMTC Summer Camps

Opportunities to enroll in the Citizens' Military Training Camp at the Presidio of Monterey are still open.

While quotas from each county are limited, there are yet some places to be filled, according to Colonel Homer M. Groninger, 11th Cavalry, Camp Commander.

Offers Well-Rounded Month

The CMTC program offers a well-rounded month of summer activity, extending from July 1 to 30, this year.

Transportation, food, clothing, and quarters are all provided by the Government without expense to the successful applicant.

Time Devoted To Recreation

While military training in Infantry, Cavalry, or Field Artillery is the basis of the program, at least three hours every afternoon are devoted to recreation and competitive athletics.

The CMTC program offers opportunities to prepare for commissions in the Officers Reserve Corps. For many young men who are unable to attend a University, this is the only way by which the commission may be attained.

Can Apply Right Here

College men interested can get the necessary information from either James Hughes or Fred MacFarland of the faculty. Application blanks may be had from either of the above men as well as from the registrar's office here.

Application may also be made direct to the Enrollment Officer, Presidio of Monterey, if desired. Advanced standing may be given for Junior ROTC or equivalent training.

Before oil was used for printing, a type of paint called tempera was the medium of expression. This paint or paste was made from egg and pigment and was applied on wood.

BECOME A CHARMING HOSTESS OR GUEST

THE ETIQUETTE STUDIO

EX. 5990 or DO. 5959

This Course Will Overcome Social Complexes

Students Urged To See Advisers To Make Out Tentative Programs

Students returning to the college next semester are asked to see their advisers immediately to make out tentative program lists, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, announced. To facilitate appointments the registrar has released the following partial list of advisers who have reserved special times at which they may be consulted by students.

Louis Berman, Tue., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 452.

Chester W. Clark, Wed., Fri., 9:30-11 a.m., Powell St. Lobby.

Edwin A. Cranston, Tue., Thur., 9-10 a.m., Powell St. Lobby.

George L. Green, Daily, 3-4:30 p.m., 464.

Lloyd D. Luckmann, Mon., Wed., Fri., 3-3:30 p.m., 458.

William K. Mayo, Mon., Wed., 2:30-5:20 p.m., Tue., Thur., 8:15-11:05 a.m., 353.

Glenn A. Noble, Mon., Tue., Wed., Thur., 3-4 p.m., 358.

Don Perham, Mon., Wed., 10-10:30 a.m., Powell Lobby.

T. R. Porter, Mon., Tue., Wed., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 361.

Edward E. Sandys, Mon., Wed., Fri., 10-10:30 a.m., 12-12:30 p.m., Powell Lobby.

Nelson A. Wells, Tue., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 312.

Ward Nichols, Mon., Wed., Thurs., Fri., 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

John Ross, Mon., Wed., Fri., 11 a.m. to 12 M.

John Gerstung, Monday, Friday, 11-12 Powell lobby; Tuesday, 12-1.

Jennet Henderson, Tuesday, 8-12 Powell Office; Thursday, 8-12, Powell Study hall.

Mildred Williams, Monday, Wednesday, 1-2, 58 Sutter.

Final Examination Schedule—Spring, 1939

Classes	Day	Hour
8 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Monday, May 15	9 a.m. to 12 m.
*8 o'clock, T., Th.	Friday, May 12	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
9 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Friday, May 12	9 a.m. to 12 m.
9 o'clock, T., Th.	Tuesday, May 16	8 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.
10 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Wednesday, May 17	9 a.m. to 12 m.
*10 o'clock, T., Th.	Thursday, May 18	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
*11 o'clock, M. W., F. & Daily	Thursday, May 11	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
11 o'clock, T., Th.	Thursday, May 18	8 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.
12 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Thursday, May 11	9 a.m. to 12 m.
12 o'clock, T., Th.	Thursday, May 18	11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
1 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Saturday, May 13	9 a.m. to 12 m.
1 o'clock, T., Th.	Tuesday, May 16	11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Monday, May 15	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock, T., Th.	Tuesday, May 16	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock, M. W., F. & Daily	Wednesday, May 17	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock, T., Th.	Friday, May 19	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
4:30 o'clock, M., W., F., Daily and T., Th.	Friday, May 19	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

* See Schedule below. All classes meet in regular room for examination.

ROOMS FOR FINAL AT GALILEO HIGH SCHOOL

8 o'clock, T., Th. Classes. Galileo H. S., 2:30-5:30, Friday, May 12
Art 28b	Allman	455
Art 81	Messer	355
English 1a	Gatley	255
Geography 5b	Williams	456
History 4a (Sec. 1)	Gerstung	458
History 4b (Sec. 1)	Bolton	362
Hygiene 1 (Sec. 3)	Wilson	207
Hygiene 2 (Sec. 5)	Bergin	206
Jurisprudence 1b	McKiernan	357
Psychology 20	Turner	205
Psychology 50	Brennan	413
10 o'clock, T. Th. Classes. Galileo H. S., 2:30-5:30, Thursday, May 18
Anatomy 2b	Hobbs	306
Business 51a	Williams	362
Business 51b	Stough	260
Business 93	Goss	206
Economics 40	Zarchin	254
English 20b	Cooper	250
Hygiene 1 (Sec. 9)	Gaddy	205
Hygiene 1 (Sec. 10)	Sweet	255
Music 3b	Badger	456
Philosophy 5b	Gerken	261
Political Science 15 (Sec. 1)	Hughes	458
Subject A (Sec. 5)	Bracher	333
Subject A (Sec. 6)	Colligan	203
Subject A (Sec. 7)	Perham	207
11 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily Classes. Galileo H.S., 2:30-5:30 Thurs., May 11
Art 1b	Allman	362
Business 70	Nowell	306
Business 70	Williams	305
Business 86	W. C. Marsh	303
Business 88	Stough	260
Chemistry 12	Mueller	408
Chemistry 53a	Forbes	314
Economics 1a	Goss	458
English 1a	Utter	302
English 1b	Perham	414
English 10a	Gatley	206
English 10a	Sandys	207
English 16b	Cooper	250
English 57	Brennan	413
French A	Cranston	411
French A	Kelly	456
French B	Maggetti	404
Geology 1a	Green	356, 357
Home Econ. 51b	Cuneo	317
Jurisprudence 18b	Luckmann	205
11 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily
Latin D	Soule	203
Mathematics C	Kershner	415
Mathematics 1a	Horowitz	412
Philosophy 5a	Gerken	261
Physiology 12a	Ralston, Wells	315
Political Sci. 15 (Sec. 2)	Hughes	455
Spanish A (Sec. 3)	Musante	403

YOUR LAST CHANCE

Review for finals with outlines of your courses

Come in and see them

LET US HELP YOU

JUNIOR COLLEGE STUDENT'S STORE

518 POWELL

Bring Associated Student Card To Polls

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Remember! Vote This Friday

Vol. VIII WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1939 No. 15

Sophomore Formal Set For Friday At California Country Club; College Women Throw Shindig, Tea For Grads

Fun Begins At 9 P.M. With Frank Wells Providing Music; Lawrence Raves, Slips In Free Tux Ad

Traditional finale of college careers, the semi-annual Sophomore Formal will be held this Friday night at the California Country Club.

Beginning at 9 P. M., Frank Wells and his orchestra will produce music until 1 o'clock of the following morning, interspersing several professional specialty numbers in the course of the evening.

Has Country Club Locale

Scene of the festivities, this semester, is the California Country Club, which is situated just off El Camino Real at a point ten miles down the peninsula from San Francisco, and a mile below the 19th Avenue cutoff.

Reports from college students who have attended affairs there extoll the "beauty of the surroundings and the unexcelled dancing facilities".

Flowers Add Spring Note

Floral displays will be arranged by the Club management in order to add the appropriate spring note to the atmosphere.

Bids for the occasion may be purchased at the Galileo bank counter, selling for $1.25. This bid is the sole password needed to make possible an evening of dancing, and will be exchanged at the door for a red suede program folder.

Patrons, Patronesses Listed

Patrons and patronesses of the occasion will be President and Mrs. A. J. Cloud, Dean and Mrs. Edwin C. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams, and Marion Turner.

Asked to comment on the dance, Floyd Lawrence, president of the high sophomore class, released for publication his opinion that the dance would be "the most super-colossal affair of its type, an outstanding success in all its elaborate splendor."

Lawrence Is Additional Attraction

"Furthermore," added Lawrence, "an additional attraction will be the opportunity presented to everyone present to see me shine in my new tuxedo. Yes, of course, double breasted.

"Speaking of tuxedos, anyone wishing to make special-rate rental arrangements should see me before Friday."

AWS Affair To Feature Eddie Murphy's Orchestra; Eats Gratis; Admission By Student Body Card

Tomorrow's AWS tea-dansant, honoring the graduating sophomores, will take place at the Century Club, 4 to 6 P. M.

Admission to the AWS affair will be the presentation of an Associated Student card by every student, for those attending individually, or one card for each couple.

"The committee has selected Eddie Murphy's orchestra to accompany the dancing," Dorothy Trood, AWS President, announced.

To Serve Punch, Cookies, Cake

Tasty punch, and a variety of cookies and cake have been promised as intermission refreshments by Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

"I think that students will find this to be one of our most enjoyable social gatherings of the semester, especially since it is the climaxing event and the one for which we have had continued requests," she commented.

Bids To Be Omitted

According to Miss Trood, it has been decided to omit bids, since the dance is in the afternoon, and informal; however, novel paper napkins will make up for any attractiveness lost by their omission.

"There will be hosts as well as hostesses to look after our guests and see that students make new acquaintances," she continued.

Special Guests Invited, Listed

Special guests invited include President and Mrs. A. J. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Pitman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Mohr, Mary Jane Learnard, Edna Denhart, Mary Perry, Eileen Rue, Mabel Stone, Mae Pritchard, Marion Turner, Tom Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams, Verrel Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sweet, Vera Spencer, Alden Smith, Joan Nourse, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parker, Mr. and Mrs. George Green, Bertha Keller, Evans Ecke, Annemarie Delfs, Claire Cuneo, Mabel Clay, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Agosti.

Many Hostesses To Serve

In addition to formerly announced hostesses, the following women will serve: Barbara Crespi, Helen Culp, Dixie McCormick, Margaret Meader, Jean Stewad, Denise Deuprey, Miriam Dunne, Jene Dunnigan, Matina Ellis, Marion Falconer, Margaret Gaddy, Irene Williams, Maryan Grant, Pauline Rafferty, Marylouise Gries, Dorothy Tatti, Lorraine McGill, Jeanne Kelly, Rita Bann, Barbara Currier, Loraine Johnson, Eleanor Bradford, Muriel Nolan, Frances Kosta, Janet Ball, Hazel Bounton, Mitzi Benkman, Carol Blumenbury, Rose Davis, Bette Chrysler, Jeanne Collins, Barbara Randall, Helen Hickey, June Hauter, Jerry Fisher, Louise Jamison, Amy Wilterdink, and Margaret Ward.

The Century Club is located on Franklin Street near Sutter.

Soph Sweetheart

Shown above is Muriel Nolan, winner of the Sophomore Sweetheart contest. Miss Nolan will be presented to the student body at the Soph Formal Friday. Gaining second place honors in the contest was Frances Herndon. Other women students nominated were Betty Chrysler, Jerry Fisher, Margaret Meader, and Shirley White.

Pacific Thespians Will Stage Vaudeville Show Tomorrow In Study Hall

The Little Theater Group of the College of Pacific will stage its own vaudeville show for students and faculty members of this college in the Study Hall of the Powell Street Building tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

A yearly attraction at this college, the College of Pacific players will present their own stage show complete with dramatic skits, comedy, and all the trimmings that go into the making of a successful vaudeville program.

All 9 o'clock classes will convene as usual but instructors may take their classes to the show if they so desire, announced Paul Pitman, assistant to President Cloud. The show, said to be as much of a success as previous offerings, is open to all.

The Little Theater Group of the College of Pacific has earned an enviable reputation along the Pacific Coast wherever it has appeared. It is a representative of the same college as the A Capella Choir which recently gave a recital at this college.

Shull Elected President Of Junior College Group; For Approaching Year

San Francisco Junior College Council, city-wide organization which includes faculty members, students, parents of students and anyone interested in the college, announced that officials have been elected for the coming year.

Claude Shull, president; Dr. W. Dolman, vice-president; Helen Reveal, secretary, and Mrs. A. E. Mitchell, treasurer, were elected.

President Archibald J. Cloud of the college was made honorary vice-president, while Kenneth Pasqualetti, Sr. was elected as historian at the election held during the recent Public Schools Week.

Scene Of Friday's Formal

Quickest way to reach the California Country Club Friday, 10 miles south of San Francisco, and scene of the Soph Formal, is to take the 19th Avenue cutoff to El Camino Real. The Club is one mile south of the junction of the cutoff and El Camino Real.

Forum Tickets Now On Sale; Magazine Will Be Issued On May 8

Copies of the Forum magazine will be on sale the rest of this week at 15 cents a copy, according to the publication's editor.

Tickets may be purchased from students in the lobby of the Powell Street building, from Forum club members, or from Victoria Candido at Girl's High from 8 to 12 o'clock.

Distributed On May 8

May 8, the magazine will be distributed to students holding tickets. Composed of essays, articles, poems, short stories, and other literary writings by college students, the Forum has been published for three years.

An added attraction of the magazine is the special art section containing colored, black and white prints.

To Hold Special Meeting

At a special meeting to be held at the end of the semester, the winner of the best contribution submitted to the Forum will be announced.

All students who desire to assist in the assembling and stapling should see either John Cummings, editor, or Frederick Bracher, faculty adviser, immediately.

'Student Rule' Subject Of Medal Debate, May 9

Six Veteran Speakers To Argue Pro and Con With Trophy As Prize

First of what is hoped will become a traditional series of Medal Debates is to be held on Tuesday, May 9, at 12 o'clock, in the Powell Street Lecture Hall, announced Lloyd D. Luckmann, Debate Coach.

Participants, all of whom are graduating sophomores, will argue the question: Resolved, That student government is a necessary part of junior college life.

To Present Trophy

"This debate," Luckmann said, "will bring together six veteran speakers, all of whom are graduating at the end of the semester. A trophy, emblematic of the importance of the subject to be discussed, will be presented to the victors.

"I am sure that all students will find the program of great interest, and I have hopes that the Medal Debate will continue as a traditional semi-annual event."

Both Sides Listed

Defending the affirmative side of the question will be Charles Henry, John Ellis and Bill Switzer, while Floyd Lawrence, Russell Henry and Fred Hoshiyama are scheduled to push the negative offensive.

"It is not the purpose of this debate to argue for another form of student government for this or any other junior college.

Based on Student Government

"The debaters will discuss the question on the basis of student government as it is practiced under laws governing secondary," Luckmann declared. "It will be the duty of the negative to prove that any form of student government is unnecessary and superfluous."

Special Invitations Extended

Special invitations to attend have been extended to President A. J. Cloud, Charles A. Simonds, director of counselling and guidance, San Francisco Public Schools, student officers of city high schools, officers of the Associated Students, members of the faculty, and all speech classes in the college.

According to Luckmann, this event will close the most successful season that the college debaters have yet experienced. In the course of the semester the team has engaged ten opponents, including Stanford, University of California, College of Pacific, Seattle College, University of San Francisco, and Sacramento and Modesto Junior Colleges.

Construction of College Building Begins In Time For Soph Barbecue

Construction of college buildings began Tuesday, April 25, at Balboa Park. It was two years to the day since ground-breaking ceremonies were held there.

Long though the delay has been, indications this week pointed to speedy completion of plans that school department authorities in San Francisco believe will culminate in a plant exceptional in modern architectural convenience.

Barbecue Marks Progress

Students of the college were witnesses to the progress last Monday when they attended the Sophomore Barbecue on the campus.

At present only the science building is under construction. This part of a completed campus will be used as the academic unit until other buildings are developed in the near future.

Time Cut

Ground work at the site was completed nearly a year ago, which will aid in cutting the time element to a minimum in large scale production.

Following the delay in progress because of the opportunity to utilize Federal funds, acceptance of plans and construction bids occupied the major part of the semester about to close.

Funds and plans for the college gymnasiums are also ready, and they will be the second units to be incorporated in the campus.

Campaigning Proposal Slaughtered By Students; Voting Machines Available For Friday Elections; Nominees Named

Amendment Buried By 150 Votes After 15 Minute Debate; Small Turnout Deplored; Verducci Mum

Overwhelmingly defeated—that was the fate of the proposed electioneering amendment to the Associated Student Constitution as 150 students of the college spoke for 2000 and emphatically rejected the plan at a business meeting last week.

It took less than 15 minutes for the measure to be introduced, discussed and finally relegated to the scrap heap.

Students Unanimously Opposed

Except for a mere handful of students supporting the motion, student opinion was almost unanimously opposed to the proposal which would prohibit electioneering of any kind other than verbal in college elections.

That last semester's executive council first felt the need for a revision in electioneering procedure leaving the proposal as unfinished business for the present executive council to act upon.

Indicate Favorably

The student vote, however, indicated that electioneering as carried on in previous semesters is the more favorable of the two.

President Frank Verducci could not be reached for any comment.

Matjosich, Hein Selected As Student Commencement Speakers; Rehearsal Date

John Matjosich and Virginia Hein, both of the May graduating class, have been selected as the student speakers at the commencement on May 19.

The valedictorian and salutatorian posts were chosen by a faculty committee composed of President Archibald J. Cloud; Paul Pitman, assistant to the President; J. Paul Mohr, registrar; Annemarie Delfs and George Green, sponsors of the December class, and Marion Turner and Joseph Williams, sponsors of the spring class, and two members of the college speech department.

Scholarship Oratorical Basis

Scholarship and oratorical ability were the basis upon which the students were judged.

Twelve high sophomores, both from the December class and from the May class, also participated in the try-outs. These students were invited to give trial speeches before the judging committee. It was by these speeches that Miss Kein and Matjosich were chosen.

"Rehearsal will be held at the War Memorial Opera House May 19, from 9 o'clock until 12. Each person graduating is asked to be present so there will be no errors made in the graduation processional that evening," Marion Turner, sponsor, warned.

Women are asked to wear light dresses and white shoes, while the men are requested to wear dark suits.

Both Were Active

Both of the student speakers are active members in the Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, and have also been outstanding in the field of sports.

Guest speaker for the evening will be the Honorable Louis F. Byington, Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission for San Francisco. President Archibald J. Cloud will preside at the commencement exercises, and Frank Verducci, Associated Students president, will introduce student officers.

Ushers To Be Provided

The Low Sophomore class and the High Freshman class will provide the ushers for commencement. Claire Cuneo and John E. Ross, Low Sophomore sponsors, will choose the ushers from their class, and Verrel A. Weber and Nelson Wells, High Freshman sponsors, will select the High Freshman ushers.

Members of the graduating class will be able to obtain tickets for their guests Friday, May 12, at the Powell Street office from Thomas O'Neill. Tickets will be available the following week, if students cannot get them Friday. Each graduating student is entitled to eight tickets.

Aspiring Presidents

JAMES HENRY — President of Alpha Gamma Sigma aspires to presidency.

ELMER HUBACHER — Block man and vice-president of CAB runs for prexy.

If You Need Expert Drivers See The Dean

Dean Edwin C. Browne announced, this week, that his office is in contact with a number of first-class student car operators, who are anxious to earn their way East this summer by driving a car.

Anyone having knowledge of parties going East, who could avail themselves of this service, is requested to notify the Dean.

Henry vs Hubacher For Associated Students Presidency; Voters Told To Bring Cards; Morale Nosedives

Election of Associated Student, AMS and AWS officers for the oncoming semester will be held next Friday by means of voting machines.

Voting machines will be placed in the Powell Street check room from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M., Galileo, Room 150, from 2 P. M. to 4 P. M. Voting at Girls High School and the 58 Sutter classes will be carried on by means of paper ballots distributed to classes.

Candidates running for the various offices are as follows:

Associated Student Offices:

President: James Henry, Elmer Hubacher;

Vice-President: Dorothy Trood;

Secretary: Muriel Grenelle, Marie Heiser;

Yell Leader: Ray Berns, George Retalas.

Associated Men's Student Offices:

President: Tony Manov, Lee Scarlett;

Vice-President: Mike Hanrahan, Willie Latz, Hugh Ryan;

Secretary: Charles Henry, Robert Owens;

Treasurer: Ben Papapietro, Ken Pasqualetti.

Associated Women Student Offices:

President: Leone Dauphin, Muriel Nolan, Jean Wilkin;

Vice-President: Vera Herndon, Margaret Meader;

Secretary: Mildred Grey, Gloria Miller;

Treasurer: Gyda Anderson, Adele Kuhn, Marion MacKillop.

Miriam Dunne, chairman of the election committee, warned all students that they must have an Associated Student card to vote. "Remember to bring your cards with you next Friday so that a record vote may be cast," Miss Dunne said.

Other members of the election committee besides Miss Dunne are Jane Mitchell, Bill Frantz, and Harold Hoffman. The group has charge of voting procedure during the day of elections.

All-Time Low

Setting an all-time low in indifference toward student activities, a mere 200 members of the Associated student body appeared to hear the speeches of the nominees at the nomination rally held Friday, March 28. Although the attendance was far below that expected, it is hoped by President Frank Verducci and the candidates that a renewal of school spirit will take place before the election is held on Friday next.

Hoffman Re-Elected As Club Board Head In Photo-Finish

Climaxing its first complete semester of activity, the Club Advisory Board re-elected Harold Hoffman to its presidency.

The race for the presiding office was decided by a very close vote between Hoffman, the incumbent president, and Vera Herndon, secretary of the board during the past semester.

Cast Unanimous Votes

To Robert Schlesinger and Donn Norden went unanimous votes for the offices of vice-president and secretary respectively. Both Schlesinger and Norden had uncontested nominations.

"I want to thank you for the opportunity to continue in this office. I have many plans for the board activities, but they will be disclosed next semester," said Hoffman.

Hughes Issues Reminder

James S. Hughes, faculty adviser to the board, issued a reminder that all club representatives would be considered as still representing their organizations next semester unless written notification to the contrary is received.

Last activity of the board will be a fraternity-sorority picnic to be held by the board sponsoring committee of restricted social organizations.

Picnic at Searsville

Scene of the affair will be Searsville Lake near Redwood City, the date, Sunday, May 7.

"All members of the fraternities and sororities and their friends are invited to attend on the stipulation that they bring their lunch," announced Louise Jameson, committee chairman.

HAROLD HOFFMAN — Was re-elected to presidency of Club Advisory Board.

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. VIII WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1939 No. 15

JOHN JULIUS ... EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Editorial Adviser — Joan Nourse
Business Adviser — Edward H. Redford

Sam Galstaun ... Staff Photographer
Bill Frantz ... Managing Editor
Leonard Gross ... News Editor
Isadore Maloff ... Feature Editor
Dorothy Trood ... Women's Editor
Janet Fellows ... Club Editor
Marion MacKillop ... Staff Artist
Allen Martin ... Business Manager
Edmund Wunsch ... Assistant Business Manager

REPORTERS

Lucretia Antonicelli, Ethan Bernstein, Victoria Candido, Bill Canning, Jacqueline Davis, Janet Fellows, Lois Gipson, Louis Goldstone, Frances Manalo, Daniel Rosenblat, Jack Schmale, Gordon Sollman, Harold Unterberger, Frank Verducci, John Ward

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Seven Elections Haven't Seen More Than 450 Voters; Still They Howl

THE next few weeks usher in the close of the college's eighth semester. For the eighth time student leaders are making elaborate and complete preparations to enable the main body of students to choose officers and to decide important issues of the ensuing semester by VOTING.

Out of a Possible 2,100

Chances are, however, that for the eighth time not more than 450 young men and women out of a possible 2,100 will turn out to the mechanical polls which are to be set up at the more frequented of the college's various campuses.

Newspaper editors since America first took to voting have harangued their readers just before election time by explaining the many reasons why they should exercise their prerogatives by turning out to the polls.

It is still the editorial duty to point out why we should, in a democracy such as the college, show our interest in the various phases and affairs by taking an active part to the best of our ability. To most of us this means voting during the last few weeks of the semester.

Nine-tenths of college students, it has been estimated, have a special extra-academic field of interest either as participant or just plain observer or "fan". It is generally conceeded the bulk of college population is "wrapped up" one way or another in activities ranging from chess to football.

Too Much Clique Politics

Often student officers are total failures and certain decisions reached by executive councils are obviously the result of petty clique politics. Now, but too late, the student who is affected but doesn't bother to vote the better candidates into office, raises a grand howl. But, it is too late.

Certainly in a rapidly expanding college such as this, the many growing interests should attract more people and in turn attract many more voters to the polls at election time to look after their interests.

Out of a total enrollment of more than twenty-one students it is indeed high time that at least a thousand turned out.

CMTC Camps Offer Opportunities For College Man; Educational Recreation

SUMMER invariably brings with it ideas of the great outdoors, camps, trips, and other activities that would normally be restricted by the demands of a college education.

To the young man with an eye on the European situation and a secret idea that he would look well in a uniform, the Citizens' Military Training Camps offer a month long opportunity for educational recreation.

Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery Given

Beginning in July, courses in Infantry, Cavalry, and Field Artillery will be offered to young men between the ages of 17 and 29 able to pass the physical eligibility requirements.

Bay area candidates will be transported at government expense to the Presidio at Monterey, there to participate in a month's course of varied activities including military training in the branch of the service they have selected, varied sports, and general recreation.

Offers Great Deal To Student

CMTC offers a great deal to interested students, and provides an easy, yet instructive method of participation in the nation's defense program. If it appeals to any student of this college, applications should be entered at once.

Daniel Rosenblat

Prosperity Corner

By Sam Galstaun

1. What President of the United States was elected by a plurality and not a majority?

2. Romulus and Remus were the legendary founders of what city?

There are several closely linked legends about the founding of that city, but there is one in particular which is the most fanciful, and beyond doubt the best known legend. As it reads, there were two mythical heroes who happened to be twin brothers by the names of Romulus and Remus. When they were infants they were kidnapped by a jealous god, who set them on a raft in a river to let them die of exposure. Somehow, they were miraculously saved by a wolf who nursed them until they were old enough to set out on their own. Romulus and Remus, after their departure, chanced to pass a place surrounded by seven hills, and on the instant they decided to erect a city. The brother quarrelled over its future name, and in a rage of anger Romulus slew Remus.

3. With whom did the late George Gershwin usually collaborate in writing his songs?

4. What is the name of the country home of the third president of the United States?

The new nickel coin which has recently been issued bears a relief image of this famous home.

5. Who was the "Manassa Mauler"?

(Thanks to Doris Sehnacke.)

6. Is the zebra black with white stripes, or white with black stripes?

(Thanks to Harold Hoffman.)

Mr. Hoffman states that this is not a trick question, and for a further explanation to see him at the Club Advisory Board meeting at one o'clock on Thursday in Room 101.

7. How many former reigning sovereigns are still living?

(Thanks to Dan Rosenblat.)

8. What president of the United States was buried without funeral services?

He was the twelfth president of the United States, and at Buena Vista, before he became the Chief Executive, he popularized the line, "A little more grape, Captain Bragg."

9. Who wrote: "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

10. Identify the following slogans with its product: a. It floats. b. Listen to it Fizz. c. Time to Retire. d. It Thinks of Tomorrow. e. A Little Goes a Longer Way. f. Tattle-Tale Gray. g. Ask the Man Who Owns One. h. Chases Dirt.

(Quiz Answers—Page 4, Column 3)

. . . while thinking . . .

By Leonard Gross

THROUGH the efforts of United Press, correspondents throughout the world recently conducted a survey to determine the possibility of war at the present time. Results obtained were that the odds are seven to one in favor of a general European conflict. This does not mean, however, that the peoples of the world are in favor of such action, but that it appears to be the inevitable end to all the international wrangling existing today.

Far be it from us to appear presumptuous and disbelieve the words of our elders, but we are forced to maintain our belief that there will not be war. Such a prediction must necessarily be based on something, and the basis of this assumption is that the totalitarian nations of the world will not be insane enough to take a chance on losing all they have gained during the past few years. Add the fact that the other powers in Europe are so manifestly eager to avert an armed conflict, and result obtained is "no war."

* * *

HERE in California we have our troubles. A war is raging within our very borders that threatens to be more important than anything that has hit this state in years.

The little town of Coalinga is literally surrounded by a menacing army that if successful will mean financial ruin to many farmers in that part of the country. We are, of course, referring to the recent grasshopper invasion.

It is interesting to speculate on how this invasion of the gangsters of insectland will be stopped. All efforts along that line so far have met with little or no success. It's rather tough to fight billions of insects for the more exterminated, the more there seem to be.

* * *

POOR Grover Whalen. After all his efforts to put the New York World's Fair on the map, he has to run into difficulty at the most crucial moment. Several days before the scheduled grand opening of the fair last Sunday, the daily newspapers carried stories of a fire in one of the buildings and as if this were not enough, the entertainers in Billy Rose's Aquacade went on strike for higher pay. Oh, well, tourists can come to San Francisco instead. It's a better fair anyway.

Additional trouble for the New Yorkers came with the President's surprise announcement ordering the battle force of the United States fleet to Pacific waters. Plans for extensive naval participation on the opening day of the New York Fair, to include a gigantic full-dress parade of thousands of naval men, had to be scaled down in proportion to the small number of vessels of the Atlantic squadron, only unit of the fleet left in New York waters. However, it's an ill-wind that blows nobody any good, for the same wind that blows the fleet from New York will blow it to San Francisco, and the Golden Gate Exposition will have the opportunity to play host to the boys in blue.

* * *

IT seems as if the officials of Georgia State Penitentiary believe in leaving themselves wide open for ridicule from the general public. At a recent baseball game between prison guards and convicts, the guards won the game, but lost the convicts. Seven prisoners escaped on the journey back to the penitentiary. And we always thought there was honor among thieves, tch, tch.

Sartorial Modes

By Fashion Fanny

Feathers In Hair New College Vogue

STILL talking about spring clothes, and clothes for vacation time, but so many interesting ones have entered the city and many more are yet to come so we'll try and tell you about a few of the cottons and play clothes.

WASH DRESSES

First to catch our eye was a crush resistant washable, trimly tailored in the classic manner with animated print figures of famous dancers from 1900 to 1939. Jacket dresses are always in demand and this one is especially delightful. Made of Peter Pan sanforized lawn with scalloped neckline and reverse of white pique. A white floral pattern on grounds of navy, redberry, copen, or luggage.

Something to replace the dirndl! It's unbelievable but true for the two-piece dresses with snug quilted jackets are coming into their own for spring-into summer cottons. Some are made up of pin dots or candy stripes and the skirts are very full.

PLAY CLOTHES

Bamba, a casual Californian for this well-tailored slack suit. Four patch pockets on the shirt which is left on the outside and its boasts an exaggerated shoulder and pearl buttons. Ideal for the summer vacation.

Cute Thing—a little-angel affair of dot stripe crown-tested rayon. The box-pleated play-suit is like a little dress, with coy frills and a swish gored skirt for trips to town.

Then there's Ruffian in Raffia—slacks with the new unpressed pleats, and a braided belt. Underneath, a one-piece play-suit with strictly tailored shorts and shirt. The shorts button onto the shirt.

SMART ACCESSORIES

We love accessories that stand up under hard wear, and we also love them to be smart and inexpensive, which may be asking a lot. However, here are a couple of bargains, for they combine all the requirements. The bag's of pigskin, lined throughout with leather to be as durable inside as out. The belt matches exactly, and is the newly narrow width. Both are saddle-stitched right handsomely, and the prices should make you leap with delight.

SNOOD STOCKINGS

Another advancement in fashion history is the Snood Stocking. The Larkwood Silk Hosiery Mills have bustled forth with stockings banded in Lastex yarn, which give and give and give when you bend. Then, the tops look nicely lacy, in case you are a vain one, and you will admire the way they wear. They can be found under the name of Knee-Free at good stores all over.

For dining out summer evenings, nothing could be more delightful than a dinner gown of chartreuse and plum Martha Ann chiffon . . . the bodice with narrow pleats . . . the skirt full and flowing as you whirl around the dance floor.

Start a fad at the college . . . bright feathers in the hair swept the Colby Junior College campus over night. Undergraduates have their names burnt on (either printed or in handwriting) their wooden shoes at Hollins College.

RAM'S HORN

Block Society Receives Two-Way Letter of Appraisal

● PERFECT GENTLEMEN

Editor, The Guardsman:

Oh ye Block Society my praises be!

We are indeed fortunate that we have a body such as the Block Society, which is a non-political organization simply functioning for the progress of athletic sports and the general welfare of the college.

I would like to enumerate some of the wonderful evidences of the manly practices of the Block Society used to keep this college from social, political, and educational disintegration:

The Block Society cooperates in every possible way with the student government and student clubs. They try to see that students attend business meetings of the Associated Students and that no partisan interest misrepresents the facts to be presented at these assemblies. The president of the Associated Students for the present semester observes the utmost respect and consideration to parliamentary inquiries.

The Block Society always puts up members for offices at both the student body and club elections. Their scholastic standing, which is never low, and because of their primary interest in the advancement of the college, permits them to carry out promissory platforms.

Leaders of the Associated Men Students who are backed by the Block Society never put on "Smokers" that are custard pie comedies, or barn dances that really should be relegated to the barn. They put on wonderful social affairs.

Those club presidents coming forth from the Block group also put on knockout events. The one I particularly remember practically inundated the fourth floor of a building in its attempt to give its participants their money's worth. The student body doesn't regret the loss of the gym for future night dances, it had a grand one night stand.

Of course the Block Society takes an active interest in the appearance at the building on Powell Street. Both through their own personal appearance and that of the student body. They never come to school with scraggly beards, grimy nails, or cords taped with adhesive tape, perhaps because so many of the boys are physical education majors pursuing hygienic studies. They keep the walks and steps in front of the building clear, they are gracious to passersby, and they never would think of jeering at passing motorists who might be foreign dignitaries or visitors.

The Society never stalls the voting at the polls like other raucous students by violating voting restrictions. The Block Society above all never announces at their meetings before elections who the prospective student body officers will be. They observe elections with the utmost efficiency, democracy and pessimism.

Truly, without such an unprejudiced body of intellectual athletes to run this school for us I think S. F. J. C. would simply wither and perish. Oh, ye warriors of the glorious red and white, rise and fight for your cause as you have in the past.

Sincerely,

Appreciative

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

YOU can't pick on politics this time. The electioneering assembly last week proved that only those people who can gain something by a law will vote for or against it when it comes to a vote.—The others just don't give a damn and show it by not voting. Why kick about it?—That's the way it goes in grown-up elections. Those who make the biggest noise are often members of a minority, while the majority doesn't even take the trouble to register their intentions to vote.

* * *

NO COLDS

Seen: Jack Schmale after his opening fishing season excursion.

Asked: Catch anything, Jack?

Answered: Yes, two.

Asked: Good! What were they?

Answered: The 6:45 going and the 4:30 coming back.

* * *

Miriam Dunne, Associated Students' vice-president, is wearing a big smile nowadays. Reason: Pipe the sparkler she wears on the number three finger of the left hand.

* * *

This short, short story reminds us of Phil Whaley, the perennial Romeo.

Guy,

Gal;

Smack,

Whack!

* * *

Strolling into one of the first class San Francisco hotels were two sheep-herders down from the mountains to see the famous World's Fair and bridges.

As they passed the desk the clerk looked at the pair, startled. "Say, wipe the mud off those shoes."

One mountaineer gazed at his comrade and with a puzzled look at the clerk said:

"What shoes?"

* * *

Assorted facts: There are more than 6,000 different shapes and sizes of tin cans in the world.

They took the phonograph machine out of the Book Store.

There will be electioneering.

* * *

METROPOLITAN OAKLANDERS

There's the bright commuter, Robbert Klinkner, who hitch-hikes his way across the bridge by holding a sign in his hand reading "Berkeley?", thus saving on his thumb and voice.

We are a strong advocate of advertising and you can quote us as saying, "It pays to advertise."

Presidential Notes

By Frank Verducci

THIS Friday, May 5, is election day. It is the day that you pass judgment on those persons running for election. This is not an easy task because there are so many outside influences which sometimes alter a person's opinion. Don't let this happen. You and you alone are responsible for these candidates who are to lead you next semester.

Therefore, it is up to you alone to select the person with the best merits and qualifications sensibly and carefully. Don't under any circumstances select a person because he is marvelous dancer or because he has cute, wavy hair or because he is tall and handsome. Last Friday you listened to the campaign speeches of the various candidates. It is from these speeches and from the qualifications and abilities of the person that you should form your opinion.

PLEA FOR RECORD

You will be able to cast your ballot by going to the voting machines which will be found at the Powell Street building from 9 until 1 o'clock, and at the Galileo Building from 2 until 4 o'clock. Since so few votes are cast at Girls High, voting there will be by paper balloting. In each of the past semesters more and more votes have been cast. Let's keep the ball rolling and continue to cast more votes this semester. It is absolutely imperative that you bring your Associated Student cards with you when you vote, for without them you cannot vote. Let's rally to our alma mater's support and cast a record vote.

BOUQUETS

Tomorrow is the Associated Women Students' Tea Dansant, which is being held at the Century Club. A delightful time is promised to all who attend. We offer our congratulations to Dorothy Trood, AWS president, for a very successful termination of student activities.

Friday night's Sophomore Formal will bring to a close the festivities of Sophomore Week. This promises to be one of the best Soph Formals ever held, according to President Floyd Lawrence. Congratulations to Floyd, who has really done wonders as the leader of the Sophomore class.

AFTER DARK

By John Ward

SOMEONE (why mention names?) is flooding the opera house with a particularly poisonous brand of archaic antique. Nothing can and will kill the whole building quicker than these cast-offs from a Victorian museum. For instance: that Burne-Jones idea of what every Roman patio should have which has been foisted on the poor, defenseless foyer of the opera hour is about as corny a piece of junk as one could desire not to see.

What we should like very much to know is: who said the people of San Francisco, to whom the opera house presumably belongs, oh kayed said donations, as excellent and praise-worthy as the initial spirit of said donor was?

ALARMINGLY AMUSING

At the Clay Theatre: The Pearls of the Crown with the comparable Sacha Guitry, creator, actor, director, narrator. A grand film full of French joie de vivre and magnificent experiments. The story of how, where and why the four pearls that now adorn the British crown (and three other rather ill-fated companion pearls) were, went and ended up covers some five or six centuries and introduces some of the most notorious citizens of history, includes every kind of conceivable adventure and is rarely unfunny (to use a bad word).

If you should be one who likes to follow cinema history, see this experiment in time-traveling, and if you like an alarmingly amusing film it would be inexcusable to miss The Pearls of the Crown. Also excellent for language students because the film is divided between Italian, French and English. (How strange the similarity of a mere critical tip and a press blurb!

SWINGING OVER

TO OUR CRITICS: We have found one example of swing that particularly pleases the jaded side of our palate: Honky Tonk Piano as conceived and executed by a remarkable Negro pianist, Meade Lux Lewis (Victor B-10175). It is the last word in pure decadence, an almost exact duplication in musical terms of what the Dadist (forerunners of Surrealism) did in words and with paint. Actually the resemblance of Lewis' barbaric and monotonous piano playing and the painting, by Marcel Duchamp, of a moustache on the da Vinci Mona Lisa is very close.

Do not get the idea, however, that we have changed our verdict on swing: it is still the last word (or darn near it) in escape. Listening to Lewis' playing is like riding on the scenic railway at the fair—running away from reality, which can be amusing (perhaps even necessary) but hardly an admirable permanent state of mind.

NEW WHITE HOPE

At the Larkin Theatre: Jussi Bjorling in the Road to Success. If you haven't discovered by now that Mr. Bjorling is the white hope of Italian opera these days it is time you made that discovery. It may be difficult to put into words what constitutes a magnificent tenor voice. Perhaps the nearest one can come is to say Bjorling sings like he enjoys singing—makes you feel that singing is as much fun as taking a swim or riding the merry-go-round. Of course there are many other just-as-important elements in good singing and Mr. Bjorling has all the qualifications. And besides his grand singing the other big surprise of the film is that he doesn't sing one operatic aria, thank God, as many another critic has said, from whom all blessing flow. (P.S. opera is a good, expensive brand of escape.)

Poll of Opinion

By Daniel Rosenblat

That student political allegiance in the college is rather sharply divided has been more or less conclusively shown by the results of the most recent poll.

By asking the question, "What national political party claims your support?" it has been discovered that of the total number of students interviewed, 48.6 per cent are Democrats of various shades of enthusiasm for the New Deal. Republicans can claim the support of 35 per cent, Socialism has adherents to the extent of 1.3 per cent of students interviewed, 15.1 per cent were allied with no party at all.

Democrats Divided

Breaking down these statistics even further, we find that the Democrats are divided among themselves into New Deal Democrats and "just Democrats". The New Dealers can claim a little over half of the party's total, or to be exact, 56 per cent.

The G.O.P. also finds itself split into factions, but not nearly as evenly as its opponents. No more than 13 per cent of the followers of the elephant claimed to be Progressive Republicans, as against 87 per cent of the more conservative variety.

39 Per Cent Conservative

Most interesting part of the poll was the result of the question, "Are your politics Liberal or Conservative?" No less than 39 per cent of interviewed students replied that they were of a conservative nature politically; very surprising results from a statistical sample composed of college students.

Complete tabulations follow:

Republicans	31 %
Progressive Republicans	4 %
Total Republicans	35 %
Democrats	27.4%
New Dealers	21.2%
Total Democrats	48.6%
Socialists	1.3%
No Party	15.1%

Last Poll of Semester

Next week's poll, the last of the semester, asks, "Should the United States give no aid whatsoever, full economic aid, or complete economic and military aid to the democracies in the event of a European war?" Check your answer on the following ballot and turn it in to The Guardsman.

Should the U. S. give:

No aid ....

Economic aid ....

Economic and military aid .... to the democracies in the event of war?

Registrar Lists Rules For Mailing Grades

Students who wish to have their final grades mailed to their home at the conclusion of the current semester should leave a stamped self-addressed envelope at the Registrar's office. The envelope should be large enough to hold a 4 by 6 card, announced Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPE-

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .

WRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.

Remington Typewriter Division
Remington Rand, Inc.

509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600

Bring Associated Student Card To Polls

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Remember! Vote This Friday

RAM chops

By JACK SCHMALE

Trackie-Wackies Chased To New Record; Eisan Lauds Future Pigskin Prospects

Still another outstanding triumph was added to the long line of this semester's athletic moral victories by the local tracksters last Thursday at Santa Rosa.

The Bearcub trackie-wackies won the meet; true enough, but were forced to break the conference relay record to do so.

When our relay quartet extends the opposition to the point of breaking a record, it must really prove something. Santa Rosa's four steppers, realizing that defeat in the nightcap event meant a 65-all tie score for the meet, were scared into setting the new mark.

Cindermen Inspire Bearcubs

Never before realizing what a fraternal spirit existed among cindermen, we feel it fitting and proper to bestow editorial laurels on our relay sturdies for frightening the daylights out of the Santa Rosans.

After all, it was that Ram-inspired fear that drove the Cubbies to 3:27.2 and record time. And if our boys aren't breaking conference records, isn't it the next best thing for them to chase their opponents to such glory? The locals can at least say they had something to do with the marks, eh kids?

Besides, our Bob Emery busted the meet's broad jump record wide open, with a leap of 22 feet, 7 inches.

Looking forward on the track, this column suggests a jaunt to Sacramento this Saturday for the all-conference meet. The ride to the Capitol City provides an enjoyable outing (see Guardsman, issue of Oct. 22, 1938) and an opportunity to witness all Northern California Junior College athletes in action in an en masse attempt "to beat the other guy."

Fewer Excursions

Speaking of the aforementioned Guardsman reference, it is with a tearful eye we inform you that next football season will lack for our traditional excursions. Sacramento and Modesto, evidently attracted by Treasure Island's marvels, will do their football playing with the Rams here in town.

The pigskin may prove worthwhile next fall. Headman Lee Eisan has been drilling his troops all this semester, and his reports are not exactly pessimistic. A flock of good line prospects came up from Jack Gaddy's Lambs to join the Jones, Schoenstein, Manuel, Chicazola, Carignani, etc., and company, who return for another season.

DOTS 'N' DASHES: Elmer Hubacher, prexy nominee, and John Julius, Guardsman editor, were planning to join 30,000 other citizens in opening trout fishing season this week . . . a radical move to enter Kenn Pasqualetti in the Soph Sweetheart contest was nipped in the bud by Floyd Lawrence's agents last week . . . he probably would have carried the Block SF vote and emerged with the sweetie honors . . . how 'ja like the Amori-Johnson barn dance? . . . Nate Wolf will get any Ram interested a good buy in a tux for the formal . . . a friend of ours, named Cy Tupper, deserves a write-up for challenging J. Louis to a few rounds . . . latest reports from Joe's J. C. tell that the ex. council recently passed a "Corrigan Bill," providing that football players be declared ineligible for academic classes upon failure to sparkle on the gridiron . . . remember, these special prices prevail only today through Saturday.

WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADE

By FRANCES MANALO

Prominent Guests Attend WAA Banquet; Horse Show Proves Participant's Ability

Closing an exciting week of athletic events, the Women's Athletic Association banquet was held on Tuesday, April 25, and the results of all activities played during the semester were made public.

Results of the election of officers were announced, as well as the team awards, and the women who were to receive the highest award to be earned. This semester, a record was broken when a total of four women received their blocks; during the previous semesters, only one or two of the students had earned the awards.

Awards Given.

Blocks were distributed by Dorothy Sanderson, president, to Helen Godman, tennis manager, and next semester's vice-president; Phyllis Learned, who is known for her work during the big events held during the semester; Polly Trenk, swimming manager, and chairman of committees that planned the Treasure Island Play Day; and Tillie Huddleson, who has participated in all of the WAA activities and whose name is known for placing in the tennis tournaments.

Besides the presentation of awards, the banquet was the climax of another successful Tourney Week for the WAA. The banquet was attended by representatives of all WAA sports, and presidents of the Girl's Athletic Associations of seven of the high schools.

Davis Guest of Honor

Guests who attended were Charles Davis, director of the Recreation Department of the Golden Gate International Exposition; plus members of the Women's Physical Education Department of the college, Bertha Mae Keller, Laurine Bergin, Verrel Weber, and Vera Spencer, sponsor of WAA.

Members of the Registrar's office also attended, Mary Jane Learnard, Mary Perry, and Eileen Rue. Dr. Alice Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Pittman, and Peg Park, president of WAA last semester, were among the honored guests.

It was a joyful occasion when the election results were announced and congratulations were heard and repeated for the remainder of the evening.

* * *

Qualifications High

For the women who are planning to work for one of the WAA awards, the qualifications are as follows: for the highest award, scholarship rating of not less than a "C" average for the whole college course, good sportsmanship, superior playing ability for the first team, and moderate playing ability for the second team, neat appearance, not more than two unexcused absences, and objective standards should be set up in as many activities as is possible.

Participation credit shall be given for attendance in at least half of the sport practices.

Triangular chenilles shall be awarded to each individual making a first team for the first time. A small felt chenille representing the sport shall be given for the initial and subsequent first teams and shall be sewed upon the large chenille.

* * *

Horse Show Results

Final results of the Riding Club Horse Show that was held on a previous Saturday night show that there is great riding ability on the part of the participants. In the first event, beginners walk, trot, canter, first place was taken by Frank Fenlon; second, William Hansen; third, Phyllis Kirschbaum. Intermediates, walk, trot, canter, first was captured by Tedda Kosch; second, Bob Bourne; third, Dixie McCormick. Beginners' intermediates pair, walk, trot, canter, first, Jean Smith and Bob Bourne; second, Virginia Howell and Phyllis Kirschbaum; third, Jeannette Gellerman and Pearl Sansom. The game was taken by Frank Fenlon.

Advanced walk, trot, canter, first, Betty MacKenzie; second, Lorraine Nash; third, Nick Varquin. Paris, walk, trot, canter, first, Carol Blumenberg and Don Norden; second, Phyllis Learned and Herbert Raynaud; third, Betty MacKenzie and Lorraine Nash. Fours, walk, trot, canter, first, Betty MacKenzie, Lorraine Nash, Phyllis Learned, and Herbert Raynaud; second, Nick Varquin, Leon Kalimos, Don Norden, Carol Blumenberg; third, Mary Sarrett, Betty Sanchez, Bob Bourne, and Tedda Kosch.

Jumping was taken by Betty MacKenzie; second, Lorraine Nash; third, Nick Varquin. Mount and dismount was open to all classes and was captured by an Intermediate, Bob Bourne; second, Don Norden; third, Leon Kalimos, both advanced students. The final game was won by Bob Bourne.

Tracksters Trek To Sacramento Conference Meet

Bob McGuire Expected To Cop Sprints; Rams Underdogs In Meet

Russ Sweet's Ram tracksters trek to Sacramento Saturday to compete in the annual all-conference meet which will be held in the Municipal Stadium at 1 o'clock.

Lacking balance in the field events, the Rams are not favored to walk off with team honors, but several of the local cinderdusters are expected to gather points and assure the Sweetmen of a respectable position in the final standings.

McGuire, Emery Favored

Bob McGuire, Ram sprint ace who was subjected to unexpected defeats in the century and furlong by Santa Rosa's Kenny Battaglia last week, will, nevertheless, be installed in the favorite's position in both sprints, while Tom Emery, local broadjumper who has been improving with every meet, is expected to be right in there when the final results are tabulated.

Groswird To Place

Another Ram hopeful is Keith Groswird, pole vaulter. Groswird has been consistently getting over twelve feet in the pole vault this season which should be good enough to take a place in the meet.

Sweet's crop of distance runners including Bob Klingler, Bob Goeppert, Bob Clifford, and Charles Henry are all capable of staging upsets and sneaking into point-gathering positions.

Distance Men Counted On

Klingler in the quarter-mile and Henry in the mile have been chasing rivals into record times this season and may be counted upon for their best efforts, while Goeppert and Clifford, half milers, are considered excellent prospects by Sweet.

The four place point system will be used in the meet, awarding five points for first place, three for second, two for third, and one for fourth.

Strong Santa Rosa Track Squad Defeats Local Team In Conference Dual Meet

Anchored by Ken Battaglia, sprint phemon, Santa Rosa's mile relay team, running in conference record time, robbed the college's track and field squad of a tie meet in their dual engagement in the Rose City last week. The final score was 66 to 56 in favor of Santa Rosa.

Relay Record Broken

The locals were down but five points going into the last event and needed a relay win to tie the score, but Ram hopes for a tie were quickly dispelled by Santa Rosa's quartet of quarter-milers who handed Battaglia a thirty lead going into the final lap which he increased into a fifty yard margin at the completion of the race. The time, 3:27.2, broke the class B Northern California Junior College conference record for the relay event.

Meet Records Smashed

Five meet records were broken during the course of the afternoon, four of them by Santa Rosa. In addition to the relay, record-breaking efforts were put forth by Santa Rosan's in the 100 yard dash, Battaglia traversing the distance in 10.1 seconds; Joe Kelley won the mile in 4:39.9; Sterling Bussman flipped the discus 129 feet, 10 inches, while Tom Emery provided the lone Ram assault on records, leaping 22 feet, 7 inches for a new broad jump mark.

Biggest upsets of the afternoon were provided by Battaglia when he triumphed over the favored Ram speedster, Bob McGuire, in both the century and the furlong.

Baseballers Handed Double Defeat At Capital City

Beaten into submission by the Sacramento Junior College nine, the once rampaging Rams took a double defeat at the capitol city by the scores of 12-8 and 7-4 last week.

Sorely missing the services of the three ineligibles, Mickey McMahon, Rube Friedkin, and Frankie Nilan, the local ball players made their coach, Jack Gaddy, close his eyes to conceal the hurt he felt, as they erred their way into next to last place in the conference.

On Guard!

Recalling the days of chivalry, college students take to the foil and mask in Verrel Weber's fencing class. Top, left to right, Len Gross, Daniel Rosenblat, and Bob Butler. Center, left to right, back row, Bob Butler, Daniel Rosenblat, Ed Wunsch, and Len Gross. Front row, Anne Agnew, George Koerner, and Emogene Du Bois. (Note: Miss Weber failed to catch the fault of Emogene Du Bois' left foot, which should be flat on the floor instead of turned on its side.) Bottom, left to right, Emogene Du Bois, Anne Agnew.

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

All we have to say is that it has to stop. What? Flipping a coin for a championship, that's what. One of the adjoining news-stories relates how the Ram tennisers won the title by winning the toss after they had finished in a deadlock with San Matea in the championship encounter.

Wilson Wilts From Ordeal

Being one of the charter members of the S.P.C.C. (Society Prevention Cruelty Coaches), our heart bled when we observed the terrific mental anguish one Thomas D. Wilson, tennis mentor, was undergoing during the toss. It's true we won the title, yes, but if you could have seen Wilson as he walked into a banquet on the evening of the match, you, too, would have been deeply touched.

It seems that a few of the tabloids in covering the story of State-Ram track meet, reported that Luther Theofield, State's colored speedster, was upset by Bob McGuire, Ram flash. In the first place, McGuire won by a margin of eight yards in the furlong. That isn't an upset—it's a massacre. In the second place, McGuire is a former National Interscholastic sprint champion, and champs are the ones that are upset—they don't have to upset anybody.

No Law of Averages

Incidentally, State has defeated the locals in football, basketball, and track the past year.

Overheard at one of the Ram baseball games: "Boy, our pitcher sure has 'em going in circles." Coach Gaddy: "Yeah, circles around the bases."

News Item: Salinas Junior College high jumper who stands a mere 5 feet 4¾ inches, clears 6 feet 3¼ inches in meet. That's 10½ inches over his head. What did they do, fill him up with air before he took off?

We hear tell that the Block SF Society will engage the men's physical education department in a volley-ball game in the near future. It seems that the society was in favor of a six-man football game, but the "sports dictators" frowned upon football as being a little too rough.

Lucille Jacke Elected WAA Head For Next Semester; Dot Sanderson Given Gavel

Announcement of the Women's Athletic Association election results was made public at the Tourney Week banquet held on Tuesday, April 25.

Officers for the coming semester are: Lucille Jacke, president; Marjorie Radke, vice-president; Dorothy Nelson, secretary; and Helen Godman treasurer.

Voting took place during Tourney Week, and the candidates' pictures aided the voters in deciding their choice for the offices. The ballots were calculated the early part of last week, and the final results were only known by the officers of W. A. A.

Election results were the highlight of the banquet, and were announced by this semester's president, Dorothy Sanderson.

Besides the election results, Block awards were distributed by Miss Sanderson to the four women who have been working for the highest award. The women are Helen Godman, Phyllis Learned, Tillie Huddleson, and Polly Trenk.

As a climax to the banquet, after the president had been handing out awards right and left, an unexpected award was made to Miss Sanderson. A gavel was presented to her by the Council with the inscription, "Love—and Stuff, Your Council, Spring '39."

Unexpected surprises came one right after another, the second surprise was on the instructors of Women's Physical Education, Verrel Weber, Laurine Bergin and Bertha Mae Keller were named as official members of the W. A. A. Honorary Society. Their names were added to that of Vera Spencer, first and only member heretofore.

Local Golfers Submerge Menlo At Ingleside Course

Coach Louis "Dutch" Conlan's six man golf team broke Menlo Junior College's four-year win streak over the Rams when the Colanmen emerged victorious 9 to 0 at Ingleside last Wednesday afternoon.

Led again by the great Ram golfer, Bill Hoffman, who shot down in the low 70's, the winners failed to relinquish even a single match. From start to finish, the Ramblers dominated the out-of-towners.

The victory kept the Ram record clean from the earmarks of defeat.

Ram Netsters Defeat San Mateo In Championship Match At Palace Courts; Win Third Straight Title

Toss Of Coin Decides Victorious Team; Wilsonmen Will Face Modesto, Valley Champions, In Titular Encounter

Lady Luck smiled on Coach Tom Wilson's netmen for the first time this season thus enabling the local lads to cop the conference for the third straight year on the Palace of Fine Arts court last week.

After the regular season ended with the local team in a tie with San Mateo for the top spot, a playoff was necessitated in order to determine the winner. The playoff failed to produce a champion as the two squads again battled to a 3 to 3 deadlock.

Coin Flip Decision

As the lads had previously agreed to decide the winner by the flip of a coin if they should again finish in a tie, Mr. Cy Bashore, coach of the San Mateo, promptly brought forth a shining fifty cent piece. With the members of both squads nervously awaiting the outcome, Mr. Bashore tossed the coin into space and Coach Wilson calmly called "heads". As the telltale coin settled to the ground, the peninsular lads saw their championship hopes fade and Coach Bashore quietly offered his congratulations to Tommy Wilson, coach of the victorious Rams.

Madamba, Canning Win

As to the matches, they proved true to form, with Bill Canning and Bill Madamba again copping the Rams three points. Canning required but fifteen minutes to down Pete Monteith in straight sets 6-1, 6-0, while Madamba came through in fine style to defeat Carl Joost in the most important match of the day. Coach Bashore had shifted his lineup in hopes of taking the odd match, but Madamba thwarted his plans by conquering Joost in surprisingly easy fashion, 6-0, 6-1.

Kline Defeated Again

Bill Dodson, the most improved player on the Ram squad, put up a splendid battle against Earl Alderman, only to lose out 7-5, 8-6. In the other singles encounter Ray Kline proved no match for Tom Daly who had been shifted from his number two spot to the fourth singles assignment. Canning and Madamba were forced to go three sets before downing Joost and Alderman in the first doubles. After being behind 2-5 in the first set, the Ram pair rallied to win the set at 7-5, only to drop the second at 6-4. Coming back after a slight rest, the local lads did not allow their opponents a game as they won the match 7-5, 4-6, 6-0.

The second doubles was equally exciting as the underated Ram pair, Dodson and Kline, forced their peninsular rivals to three sets before losing 6-1, 3-6, 4-6.

Rams, Modesto in Playoff

The Rams, champions of the coast division, must now face the strong Modesto netmen, winners of the valley conference, in a playoff for the entire conference title.

With the individual conference tournament scheduled for May 5 and 6 on the Stanford courts, the local college will be well represented. Bill Canning and Bill Madamba will undoubtedly be installed as favorites on the basis of their excellent play during the season.

Results

Canning (S. F. def. Montieth 6-1, 6-0.

Madamba (S. F.) def. Joost 6-0, 6-1.

Alderman (S. M.) def. Dodson 7-5, 8-6.

Daly (S. M.) def. Kline 6-1, 6-4.

Doubles

Canning-Madamba (S. F.) def. Joost-Alderman 7-5, 4-6, 6-0.

Daly-Montieth (S. M.) def. Dodson-Kline 1-6, 6-3, 6-4.

WAA Tourney Week Banquet Highlighted By Distribution Of Athletic Team Awards

Distribution of team awards was one of the highlights of the W.A.A. Tourney Week banquet held on April 25.

The team awards were handed to the outstanding players of all the activities, basketball, baseball, swimming, badminton, tennis, rifle, riding, golf, dancing, and ice skating.

In basketball those who received awards were: On the first team, Alma Koopman, Tillie Huddleson, Phyllis Learned, Dorothy Nelson, Marjorie Radke, Annette Schunick, Ethel Vizzard, and Dorothy Sanderson. Second team, Muriel Grennelle, and Low Freshmen, Victoria Acosta, Dorothy Behrmann, Eva Burkey, and Barbara Smith.

Badminton's first team awards were distributed to Tillie Huddleson, and Ethel Vizzard. Second team awards to Mary Camaches, and Freshmen, Victoria Acosta, Eva Burkey, Barbara Gunn, and Alice Cullen.

Modern Dancing's only award went to Daisy Tani, but Folk Dancing had two teams, first, Viola Gibson, and Dorothy Sanderson. Second team to Mary Skattabol, and Freshman, Victoria Acosta.

In Golf, Dorothy Neiderholf earned the award, and in Ice Skating Ruth Gustaffson won the award.

Rifle's first team are Lucille Jacke, Thursa Scott, Dorothy Sanderson, Jean Wilkin, and Freshman, Bette Barlar. On the second team are Marleen McCray and Astrid Rogenes.

On the first team of the Riding Club are Betty MacKenzie and Jewel Grimason.

Peggy Kamper and Tedda Kosch were the two women on the Swimming first team; on the second team are Mary Skattabol and Polly Trenk.

On the Tennis first team are Tillie Huddleson and Helen Godman, plus Freshman Louise Hinterman. Rema Corbit, and Freshman Astrid Rogenes and Barbara Maynihan are on the Tennis second team.

Guardsman Mixed Doubles Trophy Won By Virginia Heins; Bob Kun; Fine Field

Winning their way through the finest array of tennis talent ever to assemble in the college mixed doubles championships, Bob Kun and Virginia Heins captured the Guardsman Trophy last week on the Palace Courts.

The champions took their new title by defeating Bill Madamba and Tillie Huddleson 7-5, 8-6.

Semi-final matches proved eventful as the Hein-Kun combination easily defeated Dick Bennett and Marion Betti 6-3, 6-4, while Huddleson and Madamba overwhelmed Ed Topping and Rosalind Hyde 6-1, 6-3.

The most exciting matches occurred in the opening round where Madamba and Huddleson defeated Rema Corbitt and Harold Wagner 6-3, 6-4, and the Bill Canning-Jean Paquin team took the measure of Ray Berns and Anna Lee Smith 6-3, 11-9.

The new champions succeed last year's champions, Harold Mitchell and Tillie Huddleson. Engraving on the trophy will now have added: Spring Semester, 1939. Virginia Heins, Bob Kun.

The City's New . . .

MUSIC CENTRE

WATERS & ROSS

533 Sutter Street, San Francisco

Famous Names in Band Instrument History

"OLDS" . . . "KING"

Top values in fine pianos by renowned makers. Comprehensive stock of music for band, orchestra, chorus, and solo instruments.

Perfect repair work by expert artisans

Promptness . . . Efficiency . . . Courtesy

Students Urged To See Advisers To Make Out Tentative Programs

Students returning to the college next semester are asked to see their advisers immediately to make out tentative program lists, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, announced. To facilitate appointments the registrar has released the following partial list of advisers who have reserved special times at which they may be consulted by students.

Louis Berman, Tue., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 452.

Chester W. Clark, Wed., Fri., 9:30-11 a.m., Powell St. Lobby.

Edwin A. Cranston, Tue., Thur., 9-10 a.m., Powell St. Lobby.

George L. Green, Daily, 3-4:30 p.m., 464.

Lloyd D. Luckmann, Mon., Wed., Fri., 3-3:30 p.m., 458.

William K. Mayo, Mon., Wed., 2:30-5:20 p.m., Tue., Thur., 8:15-11:05 a.m., 353.

Glenn A. Noble, Mon., Tue., Wed., Thur., 3-4 p.m., 358.

Don Perham, Mon., Wed., 10-10:30 a.m., Powell Lobby.

T. R. Porter, Mon., Tue., Wed., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 361.

Edward E. Sandys, Mon., Wed., Fri., 10-10:30 a.m., 12-12:30 p.m., Powell Lobby.

Nelson A. Wells, Tue., Thur., 3-4:30 p.m., 312.

Ward Nichols, Mon., Wed., Thurs., Fri., 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

John Ross, Mon., Wed., Fri., 11 a.m. to 12 M.

John Gerstung, Monday, Friday, 11-12 Powell lobby; Tuesday, 12-1.

Jennet Henderson, Tuesday, 8-12 Powell Office; Thursday, 8-12, Powell Study hall.

Mildred Williams, Monday, Wednesday, 1-2, 58 Sutter.

William Goss, Tuesday, 11 to 12, 58 Sutter; Wednesday, 10 to 11, Powell Street.

Final Examination Schedule—Spring, 1939

Classes	Day	Hour
8 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Monday, May 15	9 a.m. to 12 m.
*8 o'clock, T., Th.	Friday, May 12	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
9 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Friday, May 12	9 a.m. to 12 m.
9 o'clock, T., Th.	Tuesday, May 16	8 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.
10 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Wednesday, May 17	9 a.m. to 12 m.
*10 o'clock, T., Th.	Thursday, May 18	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
*11 o'clock, M. W., F. & Daily	Thursday, May 11	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
11 o'clock, T., Th.	Thursday, May 18	8 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.
12 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Thursday, May 11	9 a.m. to 12 m.
12 o'clock, T., Th.	Thursday, May 18	11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
*1 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Saturday, May 13	9 a.m. to 12 m.
1 o'clock, T., Th.	Tuesday, May 16	11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily	Monday, May 15	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock, T., Th.	Tuesday, May 16	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock, M. W., F. & Daily	Wednesday, May 17	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock, T., Th.	Friday, May 19	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.
4:30 o'clock, M., W., F., Daily and T., Th.	Friday, May 19	2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

* See Schedule below. All classes meet in regular room for examination.

ROOMS FOR FINAL AT GALILEO HIGH SCHOOL

*8 o'clock, T., Th. Classes. Galileo H. S., 2:30-5:30, Friday, May 12
Art 28b	Allman	455
Art 81	Messer	355
English 1a	Gatley	255
Geography 5b	Williams	456
History 4a (Sec. 1)	Gerstung	458
History 4b (Sec. 1)	Bolton	362
Hygiene 1 (Sec. 3)	Wilson	206
Hygiene 2 (Sec. 5)	Bergin	206
Jurisprudence 1b	McKiernan	205
Psychology 2b	Turner	205
Psychology 50	Brennan	413
*10 o'clock, T. Th. Classes. Galileo H. S., 2:30-5:30, Thursday, May 18
Anatomy 2b	Hobbs	362
Business 81a	Williams	362
Business 51b	Stough	260
Business 93	Goss	206
Economics 40	Zarchin	254
English 20b	Cooper	250
Hygiene 1 (Sec. 9)	Gaddy	205
Hygiene 1 (Sec. 10)	Sweet	255
Music 3b	Badger	456
Philosophy 5b	Gerken	261
Political Science 15 (Sec. 1)	Hughes	458
Subject A (Sec. 5)	Bracher	355
Subject A (Sec. 6)	Colligan	203
Subject A (Sec. 7)	Perham	207
*11 o'clock, M., W., F. & Daily Classes. Galileo H.S., 2:30-5:30 Thurs., May 11
Art 1b	Allman	362
Business 70	Nowell	306
Business 70	Williams	303
Business 86	W. C. Marsh	303
Business 88	Stough	260
Chemistry 12	Mueller	314
Chemistry 53a	Forbes	314
Economics 1a	Goss	458
English 1a	Utter	202
English 1b	Perham	414
English 10a	Gatley	206
English 10a	Sandys	207
English 16b	Cooper	250
English 57	Brennan	413
French A	Cranston	411
French A	Kelly	456
French B	Maggetti	404
Geology 1a	Green	356, 357
Home Econ. 51b	Cuneo	317
Jurisprudence 18b	Luckmann	205
Latin D	Soule	203
Mathematics C	Kershner	415
Mathematics 1a	Horowitz	412
Philosophy 5a	Gerken	261
Physiology 12a	Ralston, Wells	315
Political Sci. 15 (Sec. 2)	Hughes	455
Spanish A (Sec. 3)	Musante	403
*1 o'clock M., W., F. & Daily Classes. Galileo High School, 9-12 Sat., May 13
Anthropology 1a	Hobbs	362
Anthropology 1b	Williams	456
Business 97b	Zarchin	314
English 1a	Utter	414
English 1b	Gatley	255
English 55b	Redford	202
English A	Soule	411
French B	Cranston	454
German A	Delfs	355
German C	Moeller	354
History 4a	Gerstung	458
Landscape Design 70b	Herman	250
Mathematics 1a	Horowitz	306
Philosophy 10b	Gerken	261
Physics 2b	Finney	413
Political Science 1b	Luckmann	206
Political Science 8b	Selig	203
Psychology 2	Leuenberger	205
Sociology 1a	Ross	356, 357
Spanish B	Garibaldi	305
Spanish C	Musante	403
Speech 1a	Somers	207
Speech 1b	Hughes	465

Library Browsing

By JANET FELLOWS

From the many magazines to which the college library subscribes we have chosen the following articles to review because we think these will be of interest to most students.

* * *

Movies

Those who keep up with Hollywood productions are sorry that they kept up with Broadway Serenade, starring Jeannette MacDonald and Lew Ayres, with Ian Hunter and Frank Morgan. Most of the critics agree that the production is too lavish, too ponderous, and lacking in entertainment value. A few, however, thought it outstanding in musical artistry and in magnificent direction.

Another musical, and according to the reviewers, a "sure-fire hit", will swing across the country's silver screen; it is Bing Crosby's latest—East Side of Heaven. The cast of this hilariously humorous comedy includes Joan Blondell, Mischa Auer, Irene Hervey, and C. Aubrey Smith. Crosby's crooning, Miss Blondell's decorative loveliness, a snappy dialogue, and a rapidly-moving story blend to make an excellent screen entertainment.

For further comments about these and other new movies see the Motion Picture Review Digest of April 17, 1939, in the college library.

* * *

Books

In the April 24 issue of Newsweek, How To Be a G-Man, by T. H. Tracy and Leon Turrou, is reviewed. It is a practical textbook for boys who some day want to become operatives for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The authors, both former G-men, tell what qualifications the aspirant must have, how special investigators are trained, and specifically what kind of work takes up their time.

* * *

Foreign Affairs

In April 24 issue of Time magazine, Power Politics offers a discussion of what France and England can do now that Italy, Germany and Spain have France surrounded, and what Russia will and can do, if anything.

* * *

National Affairs

President's Plea to Dictators Hastens Showdown in Congress in Newsweek, of April 24, 1939, is a dissertation on the President's gesture, which the dictators denounced, the new path of entanglement in Europe, the United States Ambassador to France, William C. Bullitt, and his part in the new world crisis.

All of these magazines are in the Powell Street branch of the college library.

Radio Engineers Inspect Transmitter Of Station KPO, Airport Radio Room

College radio engineering class last week paid a visit to the transmitter of radio station KPO, located at Belmont, announced Lowell M. Hollingsworth, instructor.

The students looked over the transmitter thoroughly, and on their return journey spent some time at the Municipal Airport examining the radio control towers, teletype machines, news bureau, radio room, and transmitter.

ANSWERS

1. Abraham Lincoln. 2. Rome. 3. With his brother Ira Gershwin. 4. Monticello. 5. Jack Dempsey. 6 White with black stripes. 7. Eight. a. Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany; b. Alphonse of Spain; c. Ferdinand of Bulgaria; d. Edward VIII of England; e. King Prajadhipok of Siam; f. Haile Selassie of Ethiopia; g. Crown Prince Michael of Rumania; h. King Zog of Albania. 8. Zachary Taylor. 9. Shakespeare in "Romeo and Juliet." 10. a. Ivory Soap; b. Alka-Seltzer; c. Fisk Tires; d. White Rock Water; e. Ingram's Concentrated Shaving Cream; f. Feis-Naptha Soap; g. Packard Cars; h. Old Dutch Cleanser.

Dean Browne Revealed As Piano Impressario

Edwin C. Browne, popular dean of men, passed us in the hall near 211 the other day and nodded. We returned the greeting and resumed our stroll. Something in Dean Browne's manner informed us that he was in great haste and seemed to be listening to something. We pricked up our ears—someone was playing the piano.

The music came from somewhere in front of us and as we listened, we could hear the pianist swing into the refrain of the national favorite, tops for several weeks on Hit Parade, "Deep Purple".

Intrigued by the sound of our favorite swing tune, and also by the catchy style in which it was played, we decided to play detective and do a little private snooping. We were not, however, the only ones interested in the music, for the Dean had also heard it and was making rapid progress in the direction of the women's gym.

The pianist seemed to be in for a good scorching because Dean Browne seemed rather perturbed by the noise he was making during class time.

Hoping to see someone bawled out, we ran after the fast disappearing Dean and caught up with him by the women's gym. Around the corner, near the stage door was the piano, pianist and two enthralled spectators.

He had curly brown hair and was rather nice looking and how he could play. He was really good. Were we disappointed though when Dean Browne instead of lecturing, told him to put on the soft pedal.

On inquiry, by the Dean, we learned that he had never taken lessons on the piano but had picked up the formation of a few chords and had worked from them. Further questioning disclosed that he could read no music except the top line of the melody.

"Have you ever played for rallies?" asked Dean Browne. The student replied that he hadn't because they had never been able to catch him.

Imagine our surprise when our dignified Dean sat down and accompanied the newly discovered talent in a series of duets.

SWING IT, CURLY

Hotel Division Publishes Information Pamphlet, Continues Banquet Work

Out next week will be the new Hotel Division bulletin number 4. Contained in this pamphlet are all types of information concerning the hotel division and its activities.

Kept Busy By Banquets

Banquet activities have been keeping the hotel division very busy of late. Tea was served to 1,500 persons at the San Francisco building on Treasure Island. Students also acted as hosts.

The division has prepared the Block SF society barbecue and the Faculty Association barbecue.

Students also planned, served, and prepared the WAA banquet and the Rifle and Pistol Club banquet.

Serve Science Institute

Tomorrow night the college science instructors will act as hosts to the Bay Region Science Teachers Association. One hundred are to be served in the dining room.

All Bills To Be In Comptroller's Hands By May 10

All bills to be paid from student body funds or club accounts should be approved by the sponsor and turned into the comptroller by Wednesday, May 10, announced Ward Nichols.

If these bills are not turned in at this time, they will not be paid until next semester. At that time they will be charged against the fall budget and thus cut down expenditures for next semester, Nichols warned.

Home Economics Assn. To Hold Tea In Honor Of Retiring Officers

To honor the outgoing officers of the Home Economics Association, a tea will be held at the home of Claire Cuneo, association adviser, on May 19.

"The tea is the last social event of the association for the semester," Miss Cuneo said, "and all members are cordially invited to attend."

The group will meet in Room 317 at Galileo High today at 2:15 o'clock to make further plans for the event. Eleanor Leitner, association president, announced.

Of interest to all members of the association is the announcement by Miss Cuneo that instead of nominating and electing officers at the end of the semester as has been the previous custom, nominations and elections for next semester's officers will not be held until the beginning of the Fall semester.

Lloyd Luckmann Elected Faculty Assn. Head

Final announcement of results of the recent election of the Faculty Association were made public following the organization's election of officers held March 25.

Race Not So Heated

Although the race this semester was not as heated as that of last year, the selection of the president's chair was contested rather vigorously before Lloyd Luckman, college political science instructor, was elected.

Other officers who will rule the Association for the year '39 to '40 are John Gerstung, vice-president; Eileen Rue, secretary; Ubaldo Maggetti, treasurer; Miriam Gatley, E. A. Cranston and Edward Sandys, members-at-large.

Sandys Expresses Approval

Retiring President Sandys expressed his approval of the newly elected officials and thanked all who had helped him to make his term successful.

Final function of the association will be a soft-ball game with the Block SF Society to be held Wednesday, May 10, at Galileo, at 2:30 P. M.

ADVERTISING RATE:

1-50 inches ..... 70c an inch
51-150 inches ..... 60c an inch
151-up inches ..... 50c an inch

STUDENTS

You need a portable in your home. We are offering a limited number of Royal Varsity Models at $32.70. Manufacturers price $42.50.

This Is What You Get

New typewriter complete with case; standard office keyboard; back spacer, margin stop and bell; line finder for writing on ruled lines and filling in.

It has every essential for office or home use. May be purchased on easy terms. Trade in accepted. See it at 591 Market St., or call SUtter 4734 for home demonstration.

San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
591 Market Street SUtter 4734

NYA Workers May Submit 10 Extra Hours

NYA students can turn in as many as one-third extra working hours for the last pay period, but the possibility of being paid for the additional time will depend on the sufficiency of the appropriation allotted to the college NYA fund, Edward H. Redford, director, announced.

"This is the risk that students will have to take; however, payment for one-half of their additional hours, that is, a student usually allotted 30 working hours may turn in 40 with the assurance of receiving at least $14 instead of the customary $12, is guaranteed. If funds are adequate, payment will be made for the rest," Redford said.

Applications for NYA work for the coming semester must be made now, but at the beginning of next semester, when new blanks will be made available by the government. Both new and old students should plan to get in touch with Redford on the first day of registration, or if the present proposal is carried out, his office will be open a day or two before.

Preference for NYA jobs will be given to students with past NYA experience, who will probably be requested by faculty members, who are to be given the opportunity this semester to put in applications for the type of work they want done and the students they desire.

Two weeks from today, May 17, time slips will be due in the Powell Street office.

Business Department Is Commended By Visiting Boston College President

Carl Smith, president of The Babson Institute, a graduate college of business in Boston, Massachusetts, visited the college business department Tuesday on a tour throughout the country in which he is endeavoring to study the methods of instructions used in the business education of students who will terminate their college career with graduation from Junior College.

Smith, who will be one of the main speakers at the National Education Association Convention here in July, told F. G. Marsh, college business director, that the San Francisco Junior College "business course compared very favorably with that of other junior colleges and business schools in the country."

Marsh announced Thursday that Betty Calhoun, business department student, has been placed in a stenographic position.

Nothing is in the Tryion at the New York World's Fair, but in the Perisphere is the "World of Tomorrow".

Music Club Invites All To Trans-Bay Picnic Day Outing At Russelman Park

An all day picnic at Russelman Park will be given by the Music Club on May 20, and all students in the college are invited to join in the fun. Russelman Park is on the side of Mount Diablo, across the bay, and it has an out-door swimming pool, a baseball diamond, horse shoes, and other types of amusements. Swimming will cost 25 cents, but everything else will be free.

The men will furnish the transportation and the women will furnish the food. Anyone who would like to come and who is not a member of the club, should get in touch with Gee Boomer, Bill Jackman, or Norma Kelly immediately. The meeting place has not been decided yet.

ROOS

ANGELIC YOU in a baby sweater hand Knit of thick wool on great big needles. White or pastels

$6.95

ROOS BROS
MARKET AT STOCKTON

CLUB SCHEDULE

NAME	Type of Meeting	TIME	PLACE
Army-Navy	Business	May 5, 8 p. m.	1239 15th Ave.
Forestry	Business	May 3, 8 p.m.	571 Hearst St.
French	Dance	May 12	Indefinite
Iota Chi	Dinner Dance	May 20, 8:30 p.m.	Lake Merritt Hotel
Lambda Chi	Dinner	May 12, 6:30 p.m.	Riviera
Music	Picnic	May 20	Russelman Park
Phi Beta Rho	Business	May 3, 8:00 p.m.	1462 Jackson Street
Phys. Ed. Majors	Social	May 3, 5:30 p.m.	Sigmund Stern Grove
Pi Mu Gamma	Social	May 3, 8:30 p.m.	571 Hearst St.
Rifle & Pistol	Business	May 5, 4 p.m.	Rifle Range
Tri Epsilon	Business	May 8, 7:30 p.m.	Indefinite
Women's Service Society	Initiation	May 4, 6:30 p.m.	Western Women's Club

- 30 - OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

- 30 -

Vol. VIII WEDNESDAY, MAY 10, 1939 No. 16

Commencement May 19 At Opera House

Caulfield, Byington, Student Speakers To Address Graduates

Commencement exercises, May 19, will feature prominent San Franciscans and graduating students as speakers.

Exercises will begin at 8 o'clock in the War Memorial Opera House, guest speaker for the evening to be the Honorable Louis F. Byington, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of the city of San Francisco.

President Cloud To Preside

The Honorable C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, will present the opening address. With President Archibald J. Cloud presiding over the exercises, Frank Verducci, Associated Students' president, will introduce the graduating student officers.

John Matjacich, a member of the May graduating class, is the valedictorian and will be introduced by Miriam Dunne, present vice-president of the student body.

Was Outstanding Athlete

Matjacich has been outstanding in athletics and is a prominent member of the Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society.

Virginia Hein, also of the May graduating class, will give the salutatory address. Miss Hein was a popular performer in women's athletic and was also active in the scholarship society.

Randall To Introduce

She will be introduced by Barbara Randall, last semester's Associated Students' vice-president.

Participating under the direction of Flosita Badger, the college A Capella Choir will provide the musical entertainment for the program.

Soloists on the program are William Jackman, a member of the graduating class, and Walter Scott, popular baritone.

Soloman, Chapin Accompany

They are to be accompanied by Marie Soloman and Arnold Chapin.

The choir's renditions of The Cherubic Hymn by Gretchaninoff, Waltzing Matilda, and Australian Folk Song will complete the musical part of the program.

Low Sophs, High Frosh Usher

The low sophomore, high freshman and low freshman classes are providing the ushers for commencement.

Faculty committee on the commencement exercises are Margaret Dougherty, chairman, Annemarie Delfs and George Green, advisers to the December graduates, and Marion Turner and Joseph Williams, advisers to the May graduates.

241 Receive A.A. Degrees Along With Diplomas

A total of 241 students will receive diplomas of Associate of Arts at the college's fourth commencement May 20.

This group includes both December, 1938, and May, 1939 graduates.

Members of the class will be able to obtain tickets for their guests Friday, May 12, at the Powell Street office from Thomas O'Neill. Tickets will be available the following week, if students cannot get them Friday. Each graduate is entitled to six tickets, each ticket admitting two guests, the Sophomore Advisory Committee revealed.

A partial list of ushers for the commencement exercises, as released by Marion Turner, adviser, include Janet Ball, Dorothy Trood, Muriel Nolan, Barbara Jones, Norma Kelly, Dave LeBaron, Richard Cohn, Bette Chrysler, Lucille Jacke, Art Pomares, George Retalas, Bill Brown.

The following list of graduates is only tentative, announced Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

Spring 1939 Graduates

Francis Casper Albrecht, Anne Matilda Andrews, Frederick Wilbur Anderson.

Ethan E. Bernstein, Ynez Barrios, George K. Bedrosian, Carol Edith Blumenberg, Dempster Lee Bollinger, Frank Boal, Lawry Joseph Bowman, Eleanor M. Bradford, Frank John Brickwedel, Jr., Carl William Brogger, Eugene John Bulf, Robert Wallace Burrowes.

Francisco G. Cachapero, Betty Marie Calhoun, Robert George Campbell, Vicoria Louise Candido, Victor Anthony Cero, Albert S. Chan, William G. Chinn, James Clark Chittick, William Page Chittick, Tal Kwai Cheng, Bette Chrysler.

Jacqueline Davis, Thomas A. Devine, David A. Dillon, John Denby Doran, Donald Theodore DuBain, Miriam Lucille Dunne, June Marie Dunnigan.

John Boardman Ellis, Thomas Charles Emery, Hiram Eng.

Paul Edward Fechtner, Frank Edward Fenlon, Gordon Sloan Fluno.

Van Samuel Galstaun, Viola Elizabeth Gibson, John Arthur Goetz, Jr.,

(Continued on page 4, column 1)

"Rehearsal will be held at the War Memorial Opera House May 19, from 9 o'clock until 12. Each person graduating is asked to be present so there will be no errors made in the graduation processional that evening," Marion Turner, sponsor, warned.

Women are asked to wear white dresses and, white shoes, while the men are requested to wear dark suits.

Bricks Flying For New Campus; Cloud Pleased

Last Thursday Official Starting Date; Will Be Completed In May

Coming to students of the college with startling suddenness was the long awaited announcement of the actual beginning of construction on the first unit of the new college at Balboa Park. Administration officials received the welcome news during the latter part of last week.

Although the news was anticipated to some extent, it was nevertheless surprising since the opinion shared by many was that it was only a wild rumor.

Thursday Was Starting Date

Last Thursday, May 4, was the official starting date. At exactly 1:45 p. m. the first brick was thrown and the actual construction was on its way. The event was highlighted by the presence of many official dignitaries, and newspapermen.

May 4 marked the first of the 300 working days in which time the building will be completed. Actual date of completion is estimated as May, 1940, approximately one year after the beginning, announced President Archibald J. Cloud.

Assurance Given

Assurance of speedy construction was given by officials of the Clinton Construction Company, in whose charge is the work of building the unit now under way. "Since foundations for the campus have already been laid, it makes it that much easier to go on with the actual building, and thus facilitates completion within a year," said President Cloud. To Move In August

Continuing, President Cloud vehemently claimed that the new buildings will be occupied by students of the college no later than August, 1940."

Coming almost simultaneously with the beginning of work on the academic unit was the announcement that plans for both the men's and women's gymnasiums had been approved.

Pflueger Okehs Plans

The plans had been turned over to Timothy Pflueger, architect for inspection, and he returned them with his approval last Tuesday at the regular meeting of the Board of Education.

Board Works Swiftly

Working swiftly, the board referred the plans to the building committee which held a meeting Wednesday and approved the plans.

Contractors are now figuring the approximate cost and will submit their bids and estimates within ten days. The sum of $355,000 has been appropriated.

(Continued on page 4, column 3)

Students Cavort At Picnic

College students and faculty members spend a day of fun at Balboa Park, scene of sophomore picnic. The picnic was the first real college activity on the site of the long awaited campus, and offered students an opportunity to see the preparations being made for the actual beginning of construction on the first unit of the new college.

Forum Magazine On Sale; Margaret Wilson Awarded Prize, Ward Gets Mention

Distribution of the Forum, college literary magazine, started Monday, May 8.

Including essays, poems, short stories, articles, and other literary writings, the Forum Magazine enables students of the college, interested in writing, to have their work placed before the entire student body.

Copies Still Available

Copies will still be available today in the lobby at Powell Street or at the bank at Galileo.

Judges Frederick Bracher, William Goss, and John Cummings, Forum editor, announced Margaret A. Wilson as winner of the annual prize, which is given to the winner of the best contribution.

Ward Given Honorable Mention

The prize, consisting of a book, was given for her group, Five Poems. Honorary mention went to John Ward for his fragment, For You Too Can Be the Life of the Party.

Ward is generally known for his three years' work on The Guardsman as a columnist. He was author of the critical column, After Dark.

GAVEL CHANGES HANDS

Retiring Associated Students' President Frank Verducci turns over the gavel symbolising his office to Elmer Hubacher whose victory at the polls last Friday named him as leader of the college students for the ensuing semester.

Hotel Division Holds Luncheon At Hamilton Hotel

Concluding a year highlighted by the Easter week tour of California hotels, the college Hotel and Restaurant Society participated in a luncheon last Saturday, May 6, at the Alexander Hamilton hotel.

The occasion was the Hotel division's annual spring meeting with the Educational Advisory Committee. Guest speakers were Dr. Benjamin Mallory, of the Vocation Educational department of the University of California, and Charles Horrworth, Public Relations Council for San Francisco Hotels.

Cloud Introduces

Both men were introduced by President Archibald J. Cloud, of the college.

Students of the college who submitted their regular reports were Waldo McDermott, Don Sands, Lee Bartlett, Tom Duffey, Bob Klingler.

Other Guests Listed

Besides several members of the faculty, guests of honor included Harvey M. Toy, Mans Hotel; P. T. Loud, California Hotel; Dan London and Joe Primeau, Hotel St. Francis; Don Burger, Sir Francis Drake Hotel; George Smith, Hotel Mark Hopkins; William Taylor, Palace Hotel; Frank Ferry, Hotel Whitcomb, and Chris Sarantis, executive of Sweitzer and Company.

Sterling Silver Appointed

Sterling Silver, member of the Hotel Division was appointed campus representative to the Northern California Hotelmen's Association which held its monthly luncheon meeting Monday.

Outgoing officers of the college Hotel Society are Carl Rutledge, president; Lee Scarlett, vice-president; Cynthia Richardson, secretary; Waldo McDermott, treasurer, and Don Sands, historian.

AWS Tea Last Thursday Pronounced Huge Success

Associated Women Students' tea dansant of May 4, attended by some 200 students and guests, climaxed an active semester socially for the organization, announced Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

"I am so glad that our last affair was the most successful, and I only hope that our future president will be backed by officers as faithful, and helpful as mine have been," Dorothy Trood, AWS president declared.

The popularity of such afternoon affairs became evident when, according to Miss Trood, students requested more dansants similar to that of last semester.

Assisting in AWS offices this semester were Janet Ball, vice-president; Margaret Meader, secretary, and Helen Culp, treasurer.

Bill Frantz Succeeds Julius As Editor; Gross, Goldstone To Assist

Bill Frantz, present Managing Editor of The Guardsman, was named Editor for Volume IX at a meeting of the editorial staff last week. He will succeed John Julius, graduating editor.

To fill the position of Managing Editor, Leonard Gross, present News Editor and writer of the column While Thinking, was promoted.

Isadore Maloff, and Dorothy Trood were re-elected to their present positions of Feature Editor and Women's Editor respectively.

New Sports Editor is Louis Goldstone, ace reporter and feature writer, best known for his serial Rocket To The Moon.

Other editorial positions will not be filled until the beginning of next semester. Editor Frantz revealed that he would continue to write his column, Cabbages and Kings, as well as assume the editorial duties.

This issue of The Guardsman is the last of the semester. Publication will be resumed the first Wednesday after classes begin next fall," Frantz said.

USF Scholarship Deadline Extended Until Today; Winners To Be Announced

John Selig, chairman of the University of San Francisco scholarship committee announced Friday that the deadline for applications to enter the scholarship contest has been extended to today.

"Several students have already presented their applications and more are expected," Selig said.

Announcement of the winners of the awards will be made before the end of finals by President A. J. Cloud, Selig indicated.

Applicants are open to regular men students who are completing their third or fourth semester of study at the college, and who have maintained an average of B or better in their university grade.

The scholarships, one for two years and the other for one year, provide free tuition in the College of Liberal Arts, and will become operative in the semester following graduation from the Junior College. They are not transferable.

San Francisco To Hold Yearly Fiesta, Pageant

In the hope of establishing a tradition for San Francisco rivaling New Orleans' yearly Mardi Gras, a committee of prominent San Franciscans has been formed to make a yearly affair of last February's Fiesta.

Encouraged by the success of the last fiesta the committee will be backed up by local business-men in its attempts at luring out-of-towners to see the modern revival of the Old West.

Hubacher Wins Close Battle For Presidency

The Delicate Art Of Electioneering; Truth At Last

By Louis Goldstone

The halcyon days of handlebar mustaches, derby toppers and good five-cent beer are forever vanished. Gone are the days when the political hopefuls led their loyal constituents through town in a torchlight parade, and yanked the plebian into Henessy's Family Entrance for a clammy handshake and a jigger of aromatic persuasion. (toma-to juice . . . Ed.)

Lost—The Vital Touch

With all our modern material comforts, we "moderns" have lost the vital touch . . . the esprit d'combat . . . which characterized the old-time election campaigns.

We retain the empty shell of custom and circumstance, but the élan vitale has fled. Such was given amazing evidence last week in the semi-annual college elections.

Distebute Free Stogies.

Our elections "feature" curbstone politicos who distribute free cigars with all the verve and agressiveness of a Wooden Indian.

Other candidates whoop up public fervor with aid of brass and drums and junk-wagons hauled by broken-down hayburners.

Candy Cigars—Phooey

But, the saddest trend of current political evolution is the ever-decreasing regard in which the candidate holds the sensibilities of the voter. When a politician will insult a citizen's palate by bribing him with a candy cigar . . . a CANDY cigar, mind you . . . and when a citizen will so degrade his prerogatives as to trade his vote for a rope which cannot be smoked . . .

If political practice is to progress rather than degenerate, we must widen the horizons of campaigning option. Candidates must employ new, and different methods in bribing the Great American Boobie.

Shrimps, Rice—Very Nice, But—

Shrimps and rice . . . is very nice, as is slightly soiled pastry, but progressive politicians must awake to the fact that the proletariat is determined to hold out for slightly higher compensation.

Free clambakes, tickets to the Gayway, free breakfasts, free luncheons, free dinners, free slot-machine slugs, passes to the Follies, free lunch counters . . . these are what the Masses crave; these are the political weapons of the Golden Future.

Tentative Registration Dates For Fall Semester Released By Administration

Although the detailed school calendar has not yet been approved by the Board of Education, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced Friday that "it is highly probable that registration will take place at Galileo High School on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, August 24, 25, and 26. Classes will start on Monday, August 28."

Miss Learnard said that students should get in touch with the registrar's office during the summer to be absolutely sure about the dates. The office is open every day except Saturday from 9 until 5 o'clock.

Students desiring to have their grades sent to them at their homes should leave a stamped, self-addressed envelope at the registrar's office.

Scarlett Scores Upset Victory Over Mcnov For AMS Prexy

President-elect of the Associated Students by virtue of an 86 vote plurality over his opponent, James Henry, last Friday, Elmer Hubacher this week pledged himself to making his term of office "one of the best ever."

"I am certain," said Hubacher, "that the coming semester will prove to be one of the most eventful in the history of the college. I am equally confident that the newly elected student officers will fully prove the trust that has been placed in them by the voting student body."

Success Due to Electioneering

Hubacher attributed no small share of his success to the vigorous pre-election campaign which netted him 281 of the total 476 votes cast.

Dorothy Trood, running unopposed, broke the tape with 386 votes, to win the vice-presidency.

Grenelle Secretary

The battle for Associated Student secretary was a humdinger. Muriel Grenelle won the laurels from Marie Heiser by a total score of 212 to 193.

Berna In Slim Victory

Ray Berns, without the aid of election cigars, came across with a 233 to 218 victory over George Retelas for the Yell-Leader post.

Leland Scarlett, high-froth president this semester, polled 177 votes for the office of AMS President, to win a closely contested race from Tony Manov. It is notable that Scarlett is the first Men's Club leader in two years to be a non-member of the Block Society.

Assisting Scarlett will be Hugh Ryan, as Vice-President, Robert Owens, Secretary, and Kenneth (Man-About-the-Campus) Pasqualetti, Treasurer.

Sophomore Sweetheart AWS Leader

Final results in the Associated Women Students election also produced a few surprises.

Muriel Nolan, selected last week as "Sophomore Sweetheart," defeated Jean Wilkin, 77 to 55, for the organization's presidency.

AWS Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer are, respectively, Marge Meader, Gloria Miller, and Marian MacKillop.

Mediocre Vote Tallied

This election was expected to produce a greater popular vote than those seen in recent campaigns, but the total number of ballots cast was 476, a count exceeded by last semester's turnover.

Following is a complete tabulation of returns:

Associated Students

President:
Elmer Hubacher 281
James Henry 195

Vice-President:
Dorothy Trood 386

Secretary:
Muriel Grenelle 212
Marie Heiser 193

Head Yell-Leader:
Ray Berns 233
George Retelas 218

Associated Men Students Offices

President:
Lee Scarlett 177
Tony Manov 148

Vice-President:
Hugh Ryan 138
Michael Hanrahan 111
Will Lutz 75

Secretary:
Robert Owens 168
Charles Henry 146

Treasurer:
Ken Pasqualetti 219
Ben Papapietro 108

Associated Women Students Offices

President:
Muriel Nolan 77
Jean Wilkin 55

Vice-President:
Marge Meader 74
Vera Herndon 59

Secretary:
Gloria Miller 73
Mildred Grey 53

Treasurer:
Marian MacKillop 81
Adele Kuhn 44
Gyda Anderson 39

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. VIII WEDNESDAY, MAY, 10, 1939 No. 16

—30—

JOHN JULIUS .... EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
Sam Galstaun .... Staff Photographer
Ethan Bernstein .... Reporter
Bill Canning .... Sports Reporter
Jacqueline Davis .... Reporter
John Ward .... Columnist

Editorial Adviser — Joan Nourse
Business Adviser — Edward H. Redford

Bill Frantz .... Managing Editor
Leonard Gross .... News Editor
Isadore Maloff .... Feature Editor
Dorothy Trood .... Women's Editor
Janet Fellows .... Club Editor
Marion MacKillop .... Staff Artist
Allen Martin .... Business Manager
Edmund Wunsch .... Assistant Business Manager

REPORTERS

Lucretia Antonicelli, Ethan Bernstein, Victoria Candido, Bill Canning, Jacqueline Davis, Janet Fellows, Lois Gipson, Louis Goldstone, Frances Manalo, Daniel Rosenblat, Jack Schmale, Gordon Sollman, Harold Unterberger, Frank Verducci, John Ward

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

The Great Man Votes

"HAVE a cigar, bud?"

"Well . . . okay, don't mind if I do."

"And remember! Vote for Marmaduke O'-Ginsberg for Head Puppet of the Associated Flunkies!"

* * *

The greatest single contribution of American politics to world culture is the good old 100% American practice of vote-buying. In all seriousness, this time-mellowed custom represents a genuine advance toward the ultimate ideological omega which is near and dear to the heart of every upright citizen . . . the goal of a sound, efficient, rational, incorruptible government. Vote-buying is noble means to an ultra-magnificent end. It removes the element of uncertainty from democratic processes; it kicks the "mock" clean out of DE-MOCK-RA-CY! What's more—and this is important—it gives Johnny Q. Public something to vote for. Did anyone ever inhale a principle? Would any sane citizen in this great republic of our'n expend the muscular effort required to pull down the lever, unless there was something in it for Number One? And something for nothing . . . ah . . . THAT is IRRESISTIBLE!

* * *

Democracy, our Light and Hope!
Long wave thy Banner in the breeze!
Ham and Eggs (warmed over, please)
Quite evidently hit the spot,
Ditto, two Chickens in each Pot!
But We cannot be swayed by Words
Of pullets or of luscious birds;
We'll sell Our vote for a Nickel Rope!

* * *

The most despicable specimen of humanity is the double-crosser who will vote against the candidate from whom he receives a stogie. Whether the stogie is strong or mild, good or bad, is no justification for mutiny. The one possible exception is when the stogie is loaded . . . and, quite obviously, no successful candidate passes out loaded stogies. For the voter who is greedy, we here state that it is patently permissible to take stogies from BOTH candidates, and then vote for the side which gives the best quality. If both stogies are of approximately equal quality, the voter may flip an election card to determine upon which side of the fence his sacred ballot is to descend. The voter who will refuse to accept a campaign stogie falls under one or more of the following classifications:

(1) Anaemic—Cigars make him sick.
(2) Altruist—Says it isn't ethical.
(3) Optimist—Thinks his vote worth TWO stogies.
(4) Bum—Prefers his stogies half-smoked.

This hideous conglomeration forms a small, reactionary minority which is impeding the fruition of Man's social instincts. This group grows smaller every year, and is, fortunately, no longer a monkey-wrench in the machinery of democracy. Suffice to say that justice will, nay, IS triumphing. It is only natural that vote-buying should become the keystone of the New Golden Age of Progressive Politics. The candidate gets his office, and the voter gets his stogie . . . and everybody is happy!

* * *

One more suggestion . . . The New Era of Progressive Politics relegates the voting booth to the corner ash-can. We can be rid of the outmoded formality of ballot casting by simply bestowing the contested post upon the candidate handing out the greatest number of stogies. He wins in any event.

Afterthought: Besides, such a system will improve our trade relations with Cuba and the Philippines.

L. Goldstone

'All Things Come To Him Who Waits' Proved Here By Construction At Balboa

AN old axiom reads "all things come to him who waits". This ancient adage has proved to be more truth than poetry to the students of the college. After waiting four years for a permanent location, it seems as if our patience has been rewarded.

Actual construction of the academic unit of the college has begun, which means that within a very short space of time, the wandering, and traveling from one classroom to another will be no more.

Luck Comes In Bunches

It seems as if good luck comes in bunches. Not only will the academic building be completed within a year, but at the same time both the men's and women's gymnasiums will be able to receive occupants.

To those who will be the first occupants of the new site, it will be a new and novel experience to at long last have a building instead of several.

Means Much More

Occupation of Balboa Park means more than just students moving to a new location. It marks the end of an era of pioneering for San Francisco Junior College and the beginning of an era of prosperity. Besides the improvement of the educational handicaps resulting from our present situation, the fact that we are a fully constituted two year college with a regular campus excelling many four year institutions will lend a prestige that is sure to increase enrollment by leaps and bounds.

Leads To More Efficiency

Student administration will no longer be forced to labor under the many handicaps of the present, but will be able to deal more adequately and efficiently with student problems.

Although both students and faculty have waited four years for a permanent campus, one glance at the plans and drawings of the buildings will assure them that they were well worth waiting for.

Have No Equal

For sheer architectural beauty and structure the edifices have no equal.

Combine these points with the most modernistic improvements known to present day architects and designers, and the result is a beautiful, complete, and practical group of buildings that would do honor to any institution.

L. Gross

* * *

Confuscius says: "If you are caught in hot water, be nonchalant; take a bath."

* * *

A man who never touches meat, alcohol, or tobacco recently celebrated his seventieth birthday. How?

Prosperity Corner
By Sam Galstaun

1. Who was the only President of the United States born west of the Mississippi?

2. Whose artistic endeavor is the Portal of Hell?

The Portal of Hell is a bronze door which took the artist some twenty years to complete. It was commissioned for the Museum of Decorative Arts in Paris. The door is six meters high and perhaps the most elaborate of all of his works. It was inspired mainly by Dante's Inferno, the poet himself being seated at the top, while at his feet, in under-cut relief, we see the writhing crowd of the damned, torn by the frenzy of passion and the anguish of despair.

3. San Simeon is the home of what well-known newspaper publisher?

4. Who is the prominent member of the Executive Council who is frequently seen wearing a pink sweater?

5. Who was the Queen of England for nine days?

This "Queen for nine days" was the granddaughter of Henry VIII's younger sister Mary. After the reign of Edward IV (son of Henry VIII through Jane Seymour), there were several claimants to the throne. The most powerful was "Bloody Mary" (daughter of Henry VIII through Catherine of Aragon). The "Queen for nine days" was but a young girl of sixteen, and had been appointed as a claimant to the throne by Duke of Northumberland, who feared "Bloody Mary." The Duke arranged a marriage between the girl and his own son. However, the English people now saw in this girl only the daughter-in-law of the hated, hypocritical Northumberland. Mary had a great many supporters. They easily conquered the castle, and took the young couple prisoners. They were imprisoned in the Tower of London, and shortly after the unfortunate girl became a victim of the ax.

6. What passenger vessel burned off the New Jersey coast in September, 1934?

7. How much wax is there in sealing wax?

8. Who imposed the wearing of queues or pigtails onto the Chinese people?

The queue was a mark of bondage, and in fact was a sign of inferiority. The Chinese have been constantly ruled by foreigners, but only one foreign dynasty demanded the wearing of queues.

9. Who wrote:
"Oh this too too solid flesh would melt,
Thaw and resolve itself into a dew."

10. Identify the following slogans with its product: a. Covers the Earth. b. Milk from Contented Cows. c. The Watch of Railroad Accuracy. d. Keep that Schoolgirl Complexion. e. Life Begins at 40. f. Made Milwaukee Famous. g. It Works During the Night. h. Will not Rub Off.

(Quiz Answers—Page 4, Column 3)

. . . while thinking . . .
By Leonard Gross

THE situation in Europe last week seemed to reach an all-time high for tension and seriousness among the powers. Adolf Hitler's dramatic declaration that he will give Poland two weeks to give up Danzig, and Poland's subsequent arming, give indications of greater trouble to come.

It looks now as if Hitler has gotten himself into position where he can neither back down nor go forward. If he backs down he will have the people of Germany on his neck, and if he doesn't back down and makes good his threat to Poland, he will have the powerful nations of France, Great Britain, and Russia on his neck. The only solution at the time of this writing seems to be a new peace pact, which will solve for the time being both Hitler's problems, and those of the democracies of Europe.

* * *

PRIDE and joy of native Californians is the excellent drill unit known as the California Grays. The Grays, with a proud history in back of them, have long been highly esteemed as worthy of the plaudits heaped upon them. At the present time the organization is putting on a campaign to secure funds for their scheduled trip to New York, where they will drill before World's Fair crowds.

Since it would be rather embarrassing and cheap not to have an official escort for Mayor Rossi when he attends the Fair for a nation-wide conference of mayors, let us hope the Grays succeed in getting the necessary funds.

* * *

SURPRISING as it may seem, one of the countries of Europe has actually offered to pay her war debt of some 64 million dollars, to the United States. The formal proposal was made last week to Secretary of State Cordell Hull from the little Balkan nation of Rumania.

Quite a contrast to the attitude of Rumania is that of Great Britain. The question of Britain's paying the war debt to this country was raised in the House of Commons recently, and met with stony silence.

* * *

NEW defenses are being planned for the Panama Canal Zone, official sources revealed late last week. High military officials are studying plans to establish American air and naval bases in Mexico and the Galapagos Island off Eucador, so as to fortify the Pacific approaches to the all important canal.

We have long been of the opinion that something should be done to fortify the Panama area as a safeguard against its being attacked by a foreign country. The canal is the key position of the Pacific Coast, and would be the first point an enemy would attack. Severance of this life line would mean that any naval aid for either coast would have to be rerouted around the Horn, taking many days longer than the short cut through the Panama Canal.

Bigger and better defenses will serve to show the rest of the world that the United States is not asleep, and is prepared for any eventuality.

Commencement May 19

RAM'S HORN

● FROM A WARRIOR
Editor, The Guardsman:

Oh ye exalted critic, "Appreciative", my praises be!

How, my dear, does it feel to be able to climb the pinnacles, far above the madding crowd, and to gaze down upon us poor mortals. Now that thou has unburdened thyself of thy criticism, is not thy fine heart proud?

Tell me, my dear, how did you enjoy the basketball games, the soph picnic, and most of the dances this year? Spirit is an integral part of the organization of a college and I know that you displayed that spirit by turning out for all of the above-mentioned functions. You were there, weren't you, or were you?

I think, perhaps, you misinterpreted the facts last week in stating that the Block Society functions for the general welfare of the college. The Society simply doesn't have spirit—the members don't attend college functions—much.

You're right, my dear, without such an unprejudiced body of intellectual athletes to run this college for such as you, S.F.J.C. would wither and perish. We warriors of the glorious red and white (as you have so aptly dubbed us) have, as in the past, risen and fought for our cause—and we have won.

Sincerely, A Warrior

AFTER DARK
By John Ward

ONE LAST, CULMINATIVE BLAST

I. Slams:

Grace Moore and Nelson Eddy are without a doubt two of the world's worst singers and remain same without much competition, ahmen . . . After fifteen visits: the G.G.I.E. proves to be a fairly dull educational exhibition commercially conscious. The best bits: the Federal building entire, the Art Exhibit and the Gayway. Still the best bets: the two bridges . . . Radio has become the great contemporary waste land — given over to repeating comedians and fifteen minute serials.

II. Tributes:

Thanking all musical deities for Pierre Monteux, one of the world's finest conductors, and for the splendid instrument he has made of the San Francisco Symphony . . . to Herb Caen a one gun salute: a daring young man who occasionally displays an accidental significance and who has become an indispensible morning habit . . . for three poets a brass band and all the cheers we can muster: Stephen Spender and W. H. Auden, the great poetic pamphleteers of the 20th century, and Kenneth Fearing, the American poet who keeps a very typically American step with the two English men just mentioned. Poetry has suddenly become as thrilling as headlines.

III Regrets:

That too few people know the difference between a man who believes in Americanism and an American . . . That too many people know that Hitler means all the things he says he means . . . That this column has been badly mutilated by our unreluctant fate for some weeks past . . . but most regrets because it won't be mutilated any more.

IV. Plugs:

The most consistently satisfying cinema houses in S. F. are the Larkin and Clay theatres, homes for European film fare . . . . The S. F. Museum of Art (in the Veterans building) is an exciting and very remarkable place where art has all the earmarks of being alive . . . The Greenstreet Theatre where the best little theatre work we have ever seen is now producing a modern dress version of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

V. Invitation:

To all those students who partake of things artistic: to the Paul Elder gallery (Post, between Grant and Stockton) commencing May 15, this year, an exhibition of oil paintings by John Cumming, student of this college and editor of the 1939 edition of Forum Magazine. Note: we enthusiastically vouch for Cumming's work promising you some moments of real artistic experience and many moments of very keen painting. If our guess is worth anything we should say that if Cumming continues painting as excellently in the future as he has in the recent past he can be sure of a steady audience sincere following.

VI. Obituary:

This is a notice we have put off printing for several months as result not only of our intense sorrow but of the necessity of pulling the trick at the right moment: to a class in mental gymnastics—once a feat for a lazy afternoon — recently destroyed by a fate worse than death.

THAT'S THIRTY FOR NOW, FOLKS.

Sartorial Modes
By Fashion Fanny

ABOUT this time of year, all young women attending college give plenty of time and energy to planning the best summer wardrobe possible.

CAMPING OUT

There are the ones that are really going to camp out in a big way this year, and they'll take along sturdy slacks and shirts that will stand the rough and tear. And of course these young ladies will get those extra sturdy boots to hike around in and blaze a new trail in the wilderness of the Sierras.

Take along a couple of attractive print wash dresses in case there happens to be a party or a little dance in the village before you entrain for home and books.

TROPICAL VACATION

Ocean, beaches, and tropical nights want young and interesting clothes, and the girl that travels to the briny playground will want lots of light summery things. Plenty of shorts, and slacks with shirts to accompany, or those new crocheted sweaters. Several bathing suits, say one woolen, another satin, a crinkly cotton, and maybe a sharkskin tailored one for extra special occasions.

THE GUIMPE DRESS

Then for dining in town, you'll need some attractive linen dresses, or sharkskin or soft silk. Shirtwaist dresses in the flowered handkerchief linen are extremely popular, and the new guimpe dress with the jumper part of a plain material, and the little blouse usually of crisply starched white organdy with huge puff sleeves.

If you go to one of those popular summer resorts on the salty front, where they sometimes dress formally for dinner, a couple of summer formals would come in right handy. One of those new and intriguing gypsy formals with the Roman striped skirt, red kid belt, and an embroidered organdy or lace blouse, would fit right in with your plans.

SUMMER SHOES

You'll need a pair of those Dutch boy shoes, white is excellent if you're planning on a set of white play clothes, but these funny little shoes come in various colors, so you can take your pick or get a couple of pairs.

White shoes continue to be popular for summer, but many of the stores are featuring reds, pinks, yellows, blues, and soft greens to wear with the light summer apparel that is so prevalent in all the smart shoppes at the present time.

Start thinking about your winter wardrobe for college pretty soon, and remember that green is going to be very popular this autumn and winter.

Come back to college with a fashion first and a grand tan that will cause the campus to talk about the smart costume you have chosen.

Mixtionary:
Science—billboards
Prism—building for convicts
Truss—faith
Force—short humorous play
Velocity—three-wheeled cycle
Conical—humorous

Cabbages & Kings
By Blue Pencil Bill

THE Acme of Superfluity—the vice president, secretary, treasurer of the Associated Men Students of San Francisco Junior College. Or should we just call them the dummy directors of the AMS.

"Whataya mean, Bill?" asks a gentleman glancing over our shoulder.

"Just this, that they are elected by ballot the same as the Associated Students officers—only they haven't performed any duties and in the three semesters we have attended the college they have never done anything efficiently and with any show of responsibility. You will notice, my friend, that all the work, worry, and planning of AMS affairs is done by Joe Amori and the Men's club prexy," we answer.

"Say, how do you join this Men's Club? Do you have to know somebody? How much are the dues?" questions the gentleman, still glancing over our shoulder.

"Well," we said, trying to find the answers to those same questions which had been troubling us for the same three semesters. It's like this, pal. Every fellow in the college who owns a student body card is a member in good standing of the AMS. You see, that entitles you to all affairs given by the Men's Club, including Orientation week, the Fights, and the AMS Dance—and you don't pay any extra dues."

"Yeah? Then you mean I'm a member of the Men's Club—that's pretty swell!" said the fellow.

"Sure, and so are we.. So if these minor officers are elected by us, don't you think they ought to help the AMS president and Joe Amori next semester instead of sitting back and letting someone else do the work?"

"Yes, I think so," said our curious companion. "I sure do."

* * *

DO YOUR DUTY TROODY!

To demonstrate the value of campaign slogans we give you the following incident.

Dorothy Trood, sole candidate for the vice-presidency said at the close of her nomination speech.

"It's your duty to vote for Troodie"

At the Soph Picnic, a young man passed Dot, stopped, turned around and asked. "Do your duty, Troodie?" (Troodie smiled a wry smile.)

* * *

Fashion Fanny, believe it or not, is now accepted as the women's style authority at the college. None other than Muriel Nolan, the Sophomore Sweetheart, has the sartorial modes columnist purchase her fashionable wearing apparel.

* * *

Orchids are pretty.
Jasmines are too,
But they cost too much
For a dame like you.

Thanks to Edmund Wunsch, Ass't Business Manager, who ought to know the prices of flowers.

Presidential Notes
By Frank Verducci

A PAT on the back, or a bit of praise will make a person rise to great heights. Your student officers are no exception. That pat on the back that they need is your attendance at the functions they plan for you. You students who stayed away from the nomination rally didn't realize what it would mean to your officers. We went through a great deal of work and planning to get that rally for you and what happened? Approximately 200 loyal students put in an appearance. This was not only discouraging to the semester's officers, but it had a tremendous effect on the candidates for student offices.

RESULTS DISCOURAGING

Before the rally began they were back stage, full of pep and enthusiasm; they were ready to put their ideas and plans before the students; these were the persons who were going to lead you next semester. Then they went out on the stage, saw the small group assembled and suddenly all their pep and enthusiasm was gone. They were disgusted and they had a right to be. They had found out what it has taken us a full semester to discover.

That is that the majority of the students are a very unappreciative group of people. It is a difficult task to plan activities and functions when you know before hand that a small group of people will attend. It is indeed discouraging to note that the spirit here is totally lacking: that the students have no pep and enthusiasm and that they are entirely unappreciative of the efforts of others.

These are the qualities that distinguish an unified body of students from a totally disorganized body of students.

It is with a great deal of pleasure that we offer our congratulations to next semester's officers and also offer them all success.

Sphinx—disagreeable odor
Moisture—masculine of Miss

Read WAA Sports Parade For List Of New Officers

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Attend Last Rally Of Semester Today; Awards To Be Given

BLOCK RALLY AT GALILEO TODAY

RAM chops
By JACK SCHMALE

Aspiring pigskin pastimers:

Finals are approaching, fellas, and if you're planning to pursue your respective careers under L. Eisan next fall, it might be a good idea to dust off the text books—or else!

You see, around here one must pass in at least 10½ units to be eligible for athletic competition, sort of no pass the books, no pass the football. Even the tackling dummy's gotta have a C average.

Unethical and Unbefitting

If you notice any semblance of hard feeling in existence among the faculty these days, it might be attributed to the fact that our good Dean, E. C. Browne, was toppled from his throne as king of bowlers by one Ed Sandys. Mr. Sandys should be instructed that such conduct is unbecoming an English teacher. It is not ethical, gentlemanly, good business nor sportsmanlike to down the Dean. In fact, it's treason, no less.

Mr. Sandys, we advise you to see that this unfortunate occurrence is not repeated in the future.

Set 'em up, brother, and long live the Dean!

Adrian's System

Our 225 pounds worth of tackle, Adrian Carignani, won't like this column anymore for pulling the stool pigeon act on him, but our resistance is overwhelmed.

It seems that Adrian, more affectionately labeled "Chinky" by his intimates, had concocted a "system" for hauling in a limit of trout on opening day in the high Sierras last week. "Chinky," not without considerable time and trouble, transported his 225 pounds to Dardanelle in the Sonora Pass region the day before 300,000 hungry anglers were unleashed in a premeditated assault on the unsuspecting finny citizens of our lakes and streams.

Carignani Prepares

Carignani's favorite waterway, it seems, is Eagle Creek, a bubbling, babbling, tumbling mountain brook, its headwaters three miles up a tough trail, at an elevation of 7,000 feet. "Chinky," for many weeks visualizing an easy limit catch, enough to fill several good sized frying pans, and perhaps some fly fishing, arose at 4 o'clock and pierced the grey dawn en route up the three mile ascent.

After what seemed fully an hour of anxious trudging, Carignani finally arrived at Eagle Meadows, reassured him to the spot, and immediately himself no brother angler had beaten made preparations for as handsome a morning's fishing as ever was experienced by a true descendant of Isaak Walton.

All was well — theoretically anyway. After such careful planning, the early arising, the long hike, "Chinky" had earned a full creel. Sure, the reports said that the stream would furnish fine fishing, that the water would be low, and the Fish and Game Commission had noted that Eagle Creek would be opened on May 1.

Fish Disappoint

Only the fish had other ideas! They had the audacity to defy the Fish and Game Commission and went on a "no bite strike."

"Chink," we suggest you write your congressman and have the "swim-out" declared unconstitutional.

Oh well, there's no license required to open a can of sardines!

Three Bills --- Three Aces

Pictured above are the BILLS who have, through their explicit play, brought the Ram tennis team out of the doldrums into a tie with San Mateo J.C. for the league championship. They are, left to right, BILL Dodson, BILL Madamba, and BILL Canning. The latter two, Madamba and Canning, faired well in the individual conference tournament held during the week end on the Stanford courts.

CANNING CRASHES FINALS IN CONFERENCE PLAY; MADAMBA ELIMINATED IN SECOND ROUND

Wading through his opponents in spectacular fashion, Bill Canning, Ram net ace, gained the final round of the Northern California Junior College Conference tennis singles which were held at the Stanford University course last Friday and Saturday.

The locals were not so fortunate in the doubles event, however, the lone Ram combine of Bill Madamba and Will Dodson being defeated in the quarter-finals, 6-2, 7-9, 6-3, by Marin's Chris Larsen and Walt Klyce.

Drops Eight Games

Canning, playing superb tennis, overwhelmed three opponents and dropped but eight games en route to the finals.

First to fall before the slashing drives of the local star was Klyce who succumbed 6-1, 6-4. Canning then eliminated Jack Dixon of Modesto, 6-2, 6-0, in the quarter-final round, and then subjected Tom Daly, San Mateo player, to a humiliating 6-0, 6-1 defeat in the semi-finals.

The finals were supposed to be played on Saturday afternoon, but due to the fact that Canning was scheduled to appear in the Marin County Championships at Mill Valley on the same afternoon, the two semi-finalists in the opposite half, Larsen of Marin and Carl Joost of San Mateo, agreed that the winner would meet the Ram star at a later date for the title.

Madamba Eliminated

Bill Madamba, who, with Canning, guided the local team into a co-championship this year, emerged victorious over Modesto's Gerry Hogin by scores of 6-3, 6-2 in a second round match, but was eliminated by Joost, 6-2, 6-1, in the quarters. The match left much cause for wonderment for 'twas a startling reversal of form. Madamba had blanked Joost, 6-0, 6-1, in the Ram-San Mateo team match the previous week.

The other Ram entries in the singles went down to defeat in the early rounds of play. Fred Hoshiyama bowed before Dixon, 6-2, 6-1, in a first round fracas, while Dodson was gently but firmly ushered out of the tourney by Larsen, 6-4, 6-1.

Given Close Battle

In the doubles, the Canning-Madamba duo didn't compete because of Canning's participation in the Mill Valley tournament. The new combination of Madamba and Dodson was thus born and gave Larsen and Klyce a stiff tussle before losing.

Ram stars carried off both singles and doubles honors in the tourney last year, Bob Lazare copping the singles and teaming with Al Altfield to win the doubles crown.

Repeat Chances Marred

The ineligibility of Hal Wagner, Bob Kun, and Ray Berns marred the college's chances of repeating, but it was hoped by Coach Tom Wilson that the remaining netsters would be able to carry on as they had done in team play. Canning lived up to expectation in the singles, but his non-participation in the doubles ruined local chances for capturing the lion's share of titles.

Wilson complimented the lads on the fine manner in which they had come through and won a co-championship after ineligibility had played havoc with the squad.

RAMblings
By RAY BERNS

Berns Reviews Sports; Horses Around As Dick Simpers Hits Parlay

Inscribed on the dirt hill bordering the field where the soph picnic was held, were the letters S F J C. Bob Fex informs us that after careful study, he had decided that the letters should stand for Slattery, Flamm, Johnson, and Centanni . . . What's the matter, Bob, shouldn't Fex be in there?

The alumni softball team that defeated the Block Society, 12 to 11, was composed of two alumni, two who had quit college, two instructors, and four undergraduates—some alumni team. Upon conclusion of the game, Fex remarked, "so long, fellers, see you all next year." A perennial sophomore, that's Fex. Incidentally, quite a few of the more rugged lads about the college were walking about with aching joints and muscles the next day. It seems that the wheel-barrel and peanut races were too much for them.

Some Babe

"Babe" Dahlgren, former Mission first sacker, stepped into Lou Gehrig's shoes on the New York Yankee outfit last week and socked a homer and double in his initial appearance. Dahlgren worked out with Gaddy's Ram horsehiders at the beginning of the season and created a favorable impression both as a ball player and as an all-around good fellow.

Sports Review of the past semester:
Crew—cast out.
Basketball—second place.
Baseball—cellar champs.
Golf—undefeated (as yet).
Track—fair.
Tennis—co-champs.

Summary—We'd rather not summarize.

Horsing Around

News Item: Horse is entered in claiming race on eastern track at $1,500. Man claims horse. Horse, a two year old gelding, drops dead during race. Man forced to pay $1,500 for a dead carcass. Just shows to go what lengths some animals will go to prove their devotion to their masters.

This 'N' That

It certainly looks like "Dutch" Conlan, basketball coach, is going to have to start from scratch next casaba season. Out of this year's 13-man varsity, 13 men graduate. Sure is great, isn't it? Yeh.

Oh, how this hurts. Oh well, here goes. Wilson, you're one-half of a miracle man (the netsters are co-champions). Flash: Joe Louis knocks out Jack Roper in first round of heavyweight title bout scheduled for ten rounds. Okay, so what if it is second-hand. You can't never say that this column doesn't give you the lowdown.

Small Stuff: Floyd Lawrence uses soph rally to heckle buddies . . . Dick Simpers plays three-horse parlay and gets the limit ($50) . . . Slattery and Johnson tear the shirts off each other's backs at the soph picnic.

Schedule of Football, Other Fall Sports Released By Eisan

Fall sports of prime interest have tentatively been scheduled by Louis "Dutch" Conlan, physical education instructor.

Issuing the program with aim to assist sport-minded individuals in making out their class schedules, the following information was obtained:

Football—Funston Field—12-2 p.m.—Eisan.

Soccer—Funston Field—1-2:30 p.m.—Wilson.

Pre-season Basketball—Galileo—3:30 p.m.—Conlan.

Swimming (Mon.-Wed.) — North Beach Pool—1 p.m.—Sweet.

"Provisions also for baseball, preseason track, tennis, and other activities are now under arrangement and will be included in our new college schedule which is at present being made," Conlan explained.

WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADE
By FRANCES MANALO

In the WAA the award of the block to outstanding members is not worked for as stated in last week's column, but it is an honorary degree which is placed on one by the choice of the four instructors.

* * *

Congratulations go to the officers of the Women's Athletic Association for the success of all the activities that have taken place during this semester.

This has been one of the most outstanding semesters in the history of WAA. Of all the many events that were presented, the most successful was the Sports Day that was held on Treasure Island. On this day members of the WAA's of the junior colleges of the Pacific Coast participated. The college was honored to be the first to hold any such sports day on the Fair grounds.

With the aid and cooperation of all sports managers, the officers of this semester have done exceptionally well in completing the semester's activities. Congratulations to Dorothy Sanderson, president; Annette Schunick, vice-president; Murial Grinelle, secretary, and Phyllis Learned, treasurer, officers of the association.

On the program of successful activities was the initiation luncheon, the play day on Treasure Island, Tourney Week, and its banquet.

Tourney Week was the week in which all of the WAA sports finished their finals and tournaments with great excitement, and in which high schools were invited to participate in games with the members. Then, at the banquet, final results were announced with the results of the elections for next semester's officers. The results were Lucille Jacke, president; Marjorie Radke, vice-president; Dorothy Nelson, secretary, and Helen Godman, treasurer.

Congratulations were extended to the new officers with the assurance that they will make next semester even more interesting and exciting.

One of the highlights of the Tourney Week banquet was the announcement of new members to the block society, Tillie Huddleson, Polly Trenk, Phyllis Learned, and Helen Godman. Sincere congratulations on your appointments, as well as to this semester's officers for their outstanding work, and to next semester's officers who will try to make the coming semester historic as well as successful.

* * *

This year in place of the annual horse show, the Mills College Riding School is holding an Equestrian Clinic for amateur riders on Saturday, May 13, at 2:00 p. m. A buffet supper for riders and their friends will be held on Pine Top, following the afternoon riding events.

Events will be listed for hunters, jumpers, and hacks with ribbon and trophy awards. There will be two sets of judges: one to score the horse for awards and the other to record faults and merits of the riders and their mounts. After the show, riders will meet informally with the judges to discuss their horsemanship and the performance of their mounts with the idea of obtaining helpful criticism and a better understanding of the goal of equitation.

For those who are interested in the Mills College Riding School Equestrian Clinic, Cornelia Van Ness Cress, director of the school, announced that all entries to participate were registered by May 6. Miss Cress also wishes to make it clear that although the program is primarily for the riders' enjoyment, visitors are welcome to watch the riding events.

Conference Singles Ratings Given

1. Canning (SF)
2. Larsen (Mar)
3. Joost (SM)
4. Roberts (Men)
5. Dixon (Mod)
6. Madamba (SF)
7. Hansen (Sal)
8. Daly (SM)

Hoffman Toppled By Marin Golf Star In No. Calif. Finals

Bill Hoffman, the college's sole representative in the Northern California Junior College Golf Championships, was defeated in the final match of the tourney by Martin Junior College's ace golfer, Lee Smith.

Reaching the finals by winning over the medalist of last year, Tom Harris, Hoffman finally succumbed to the drives of the Marin phenom on the 18th hole, the score being one up.

Sacramento Junior College won team honors followed by Marin and the college.

Called the finest Ram player this semester by Coach Louis Conlan, Hoffman was the athlete upon whom Conlan pinned hope and much confidence "to come through."

Playing on the college golf team this season for the first time, the Rammer has gone undefeated in team play. He was the main cog on this season's undefeated Ram squad.

When playing on the links, Hoffman has seldom shot above the 80's. His accurate putts and powerful drives have enabled him to gain prominence. Conlan believes that Hoffman is labeled for "bigger and better things" in the field of divot digging.

Ram Netmen Tie Modesto, 3-3, For Tennis Crown

Climaxing a successful season, the Ram net squad became co-champions of the N.C.J.C.C. by tying the Modesto squad 3 to 3 on the Palace of Fine Arts courts last week.

The local netmen were again led by Bill Canning and Bill Madamba who scored the three Ram points. Canning trounced Jack Dixon, Modesto ace, in straight sets 6-1, 6-3, while Madamba conquered Bob Moeller in easy fashion 6-2, 6-3. The two winners later teamed together to win the first doubles from Dixon and Nye Moses after a gruelling struggle 7-5, 7-5.

Canning, Madamba Outstanding

By capturing this tussle Canning and Madamba established themselves as the outstanding doubles combination in the Northern California conference, as they failed to drop a match during the entire year. Bill Dodson, playing the third singles, dropped his match to Moses 8-6, 6-1. Dodson played well the first set but wilted to drop the second set quite easily.

Kline Out-Steadied

The fourth singles tussle was captured by Modesto as Jerry Hogan outsteadied Ray Kline, local netman, in three long sets. Kline took the first in easy style only to drop the match after holding leads in the final set. The second doubles, which pitted Dodson and Kline against Hogan and Little was equally exciting, as the outcome of the championship depended on it. The local duo took the first set at 6-2 but suddenly collapsed and dropped the two remaining sets and the match 6-2, 12-14, 6-4.

Had the Rams been able to capture either of these two matches the local college would be the sole wearers of the crown.

1939 Ram Pigskin Schedule

Announcement of the college's 1939 football schedule was made known recently by Lee Eisan, Ram coach.

Advantageous for the team, the schedule shows that out of nine games to be played, only three will be out of town.

The schedule list will be as follows:

Placer J.C.	Sept. 15	Seal's Stadium
USF Frosh	Sept. 22	Seal's Stadium
Pasadena J.C.	Sept. 29	Rose Bowl, Pasadena
Cal. Frosh	Oct. 7	Memorial, Berkeley
Sacramento J.C.	Oct. 13	Seal's Stadium
San Mateo J.C.	Oct. 21	San Mateo
OPEN DATE	Oct. 28
S.F. State	Nov. 4	San Francisco
L.A.J.C.	Nov. 11	Kezar Stadium
Modesto J.C.	Nov. 18	Seal's Stadium

Baseball Joe and The Silver Stars

Bang—went the ball at the Balboa Park Picnic—when Tony Manuel socks out a triple. Seen on Tony's left is the rooting Floyd Lawrence as Dave Johnson grimly watches the ball take a ride. On the right, stands Dean Browne (pipe in mouth) as he lets go one of his terrific curves.

Assembly To Feature Introduction Of Student Officers, Athletic Awards, Mel Petersen Will M.C.

Cavalcade of Sports To Feature Program With Pantomine of Games' Highlights; New President of Society To Be Announced

By RAY BERNS

Featuring the presentation of athletic awards and the introduction of next semester's student officers, the semi-annual rally of the Block Society will be held in the Galileo Auditorium at 2:30 this afternoon.

Mel Peterson, Block Society president will act as master of ceremonies.

Yell Tradition Continued

Frank Verducci, student prexy, will be introduced by Peterson, and will, in turn, introduce the student officers for next semester. At the conclusion of the introductions, Verducci, carrying on a tradition established last semester, is going to lead a yell for the new Associated Students president. According to the tradition, the new president will, in turn, lead a yell for Verducci.

Cavalcade of Sports

The society's presentation of the "Cavalcade of Sport" is expected to feature the program. A new and rather novel idea, the "Cavalcade" will portray highlights of football, soccer, tennis, track, baseball, and basketball in pantomime with Blockmen acting out the scenes, Floyd Lawrence and Charles Henry, originators of the idea, will perform as commentators.

Award Blocks On Stage

A new precedent will be established when the men receiving blocks will be awarded their letters on the stage. The coaches of the various sports are to award the letters to the men on their teams.

The rally will conclude with the presentation of the new Block Society officers.

Block Awards

Basketball: Tony Manov, Ed Curcio, Tom Pauli, Bob Burrowes, Jack Wolf, Al Opalinski, Hal Fischer, Willie Blackfield, Frank Albrecht, Bob Nicco, Lou Rouspil, George Bedrosian.

Baseball: Bill Mustanich, Kent Baird, Tom Garritty, Frank Rahmer, Harry Aleo, Bill Rufus, Bill Openshaw, Bill Gractich, Charles Christianson, Mel Petersen, Dave Johnson, Weaver Galibraith.

Track: Bob Klingler, Keith Groswird, Bob McGuire, Bob Johnson, Ken Hagen, Bob Raine, Bob Clifford, John Finn, Bob Goeppert.

Golf: Gordon Romey, Roy Romey, Ed Canepa, Bill Hoffman.

Jayvee Basketball (Circles): Hugh Ryan, Bob Owen, John O'Donohough, Bill Oshida, Charles Martin, Dick Yamoto, Mario Salacone, Clifford Forester.

Tennis: Bill Canning, Bill Madamba, Ray Kline, Will Dodson, Fred Hoshiyama.

RAMS "ALSO RANS" AS SACRAMENTO CLEANS UP IN CONFERENCE TRACK MEET

MUNICIPAL STADIUM, SACRAMENTO, May 6—Cindermen of Sacramento Junior College extended little more than frigid hospitality here this afternoon to eight guest institutions, romping home with 48 points and the 1939 conference track and field title.

San Mateo Second

Consolation honors went to San Mateo, with 41 digits, Modesto gathering 23, San Francisco and Santa Rosa 11 apiece, Salinas 10, Hollister 3, Menlo 2 and Placer 1.

Peninsula bound this evening also were the only records smashed during the day's competition. Les Steers, San Mateo's great high jumper, accounted for a new conference mark with a leap of 6 feet, four inches, teammate Bob Moore in possession of a new low, a 4:26 flat mile.

McGuire Stars

Standout sprinters of the meet, Bob McGuire of San Francisco and Kenny Battaglia of Santa Rosa, split honors in the fast stepping twin bill. "Extremely conservative" timers clocked McGuire in 10.4 seconds over the 100 yard route, Battaglia's winning time accepted at 22.2 in the 220.

Rams Take Fourth Place

The 11 points identifying San Francisco with fourth place marked a new high achievement for the Rams in this annual event. This despite the fact that several of Russ Sweet's cinder merchants were left behind in San Francisco suffering from influenza.

McGuire's 100 yard triumph and second spot in the 220 brought the Rams eight points. Keith Groswird, ever improving pole vaulter, collected another by tying for third in the "bamboo high jump". Groswird's supreme effort measured 12 feet, the winner soaring over the bar six inches higher.

Emery Disappoints

The other two markers added to the Ram cause were donated by Tom Emery, bespectacled broad jumper.

Ram Ball Team Plays Final Season Game At Funston Today

The local willow wielders, under the guidance of Coach Jack Gaddy, entertain high hopes of winding up a mediocre campaign in a blaze of glory by walloping the powerful, barnstorming Compton Junior College nine this afternoon at 1 o'clock on the main diamond of Funston Field.

Compton Plots Revenge

Loaded to the gunn'ls and ready to shoot a few runs across the pan, the Comptonians will have an added incentive . . . that of downing a team whose predecessors, last season, administered a surprising 4-3 dumping to these same Comptonians who were then regarded as probably the most outstanding junior college nine in Southern California.

Aside from the above mentioned facts, and the fact that Compton definitely will have a powerful team, little is known of the personalities who comprise the visiting aggregation.

Ram Lineup

Coach Gaddy will in all probability start a local nine consisting of Openshaw, 1b; Gerughty, 2b; Baird, ss; Rahmer, 3b; Rufus, lf; Galbraith, cf; Peterson, rf, and Aleo, pitching.

The Champs won the college title as champion "hunchers" when they defeated the Fighting Irish in the playoff with two hard-fought battles, 21-16 and 21-18 at Galileo recently.

POLL OF Opinion

By DAN ROSENBLAT

To the European democracies in the event of war, full economic aid and assistance, but no military co-operation whatsoever. This was the answer of almost half of the students of the college interviewed by the poll with the question, "What should the United States do in the way of aid to the democracies in the event of a European war?"

For a third of the interviewed students sympathy for the democracies went even further. They felt it imperative that totalitarian aggression be stopped at any price, even involving the United States in the war.

A composite quotation of those holding that we should grant full economic and military aid would read as follows: "It's only the present balance of power in Europe that keeps the United States safe from aggression. If the dictators win in Europe, and they probably will unless the democracies have American aid, then we will find facism springing up all around us in South America and in Canada. We've got to help stop the dictators on European soil now, or we'll have to stop them on American soil later."

Minority Isolationists

The remaining 18.5 per cent fall into the catagory of complete isolationists, holding that in the event of a European war, the only sensible course of action for the United States to pursue would be an absolute "hands off" policy. All commerce would be on a "cash and carry" basis, all shipping to be carried on non-American ships in order to minimize the opportunity for incidents.

Complete tabulation of results follows:

Full cooperation.....33 %

Economic cooperation.....48.5%

Isolation 18.5%

New Advertising Course Offered By Business Section

Tentative plans made by F. G. Marsh, business director, for the business department next semester, will include two new courses.

One, to be entitled Office Practice will involve actual office work. The units for the course will be based upon laboratory hours, three hours of practice equaling one unit.

Actual Practice In Advertising

The other contemplated subject will be Advertising practice planned for those students who desire actual practice in soliciting advertisements for the college paper, The Guardsman.

The prerequisite for Advertising practice will be Business 80 or 83 according to Marsh.

Considers More Changes

In addition Marsh is considering several changes in the business courses. Among them will be a change in the hours of the Accounting classes (Business 50A-B) from two lectures and one laboratory to daily classes. All stenographic courses are expected to be changed to two hours daily and will embrace six units.

A course in Consumer Insurance, consisting of two units and open to all students will be introduced to acquaint the college student with the various forms of insurance from the consumers viewpoint.

Hopes for 2 Additional Courses

Marsh expressed hopes that in the spring an additional two courses would be made available—a course in Fire Insurance, consisting of two units, and one in Personal Finance, also two units.

That Herbert Denring, business student, has received a full-time posion as a junior clerk at the New York Life Insurance Company was Marsh's concluding announcement.

A Capella Takes Semester's Final Bow At Graduation

Heading the A Capella Choir next semester will be Robert Powles as manager, Marie Sollaman as assistant manager, and Dorothy Gilberg as secretary.

Flossita Badger, choir director made this announcement Friday when she said that the choir would make its final appearance of the semester at the commencement exercises on May 19. Soloists at the exercises will be Robert Scott and Bill Jackman.

Miss Badger also announced that she would accept applications any time now for entrance into the choir next semester. The only prerequisite is the consent of the instructor.

In commenting upon the success the choir has had in the past semester, Miss Badger said, "With its appearance at commencement Friday evening, the choir will close the most active and most successful semester it has had since the beginning of the college.

The choir received a stimulating ovation at its appearance at the College of Pacific and the Calaveras High School last Thursday.

"Natnrally we are looking forward to an equally successful semester next fall," Miss Badger concluded.

Building

(Continued from page 1)

appropriated by the Board of Education for the construction of both gymnasiums.

Gym Buildings Begin In Summer

"Construction of the gymnasiums will commence on or before June 1, of this year," remarked President Cloud. Building of both the academic and gymnasium units will go on concurrently so that both units will be completed at approximately the same time.

To Work Faster

Work can be done much faster on the physical education unit since there are not as many technicalities to be dealt with.

The two gymnasiums are situated at the lower southeast edge of the campus, with about a 200 foot distance between them, allowing for a swimming pool, and athletic fields.

Separated By 760 Feet

From the gymnasiums to the main building is a distance of about 760 feet which will be filled with roadways, paths, and lawns, somewhat on the order of the campus at the University of California.

Express Gratitude, Thankfulness

Administration officials and members of the faculty expressed their gratitude and thankfulness that occupation of the new buildings was finally in sight.

"I am gratified beyond measure at the manner in which things are progressing, and I am quite sure that my colleagues and the students of the college share my opinion," President Cloud said.

Graduates Listed

(Continued from page 1)

Laura Melloh Golden, Armando Luis Guglielmino, Ruth Mea Gustafsson.

Lorraine Catherine Hall, Toshichika Hara, Raymond E. Healy, Virginia Marie Hein, William Reed Henderson, Raymond E. Henry, Jack Dalford Henshaw, Mary Louise Hicks, Toyoko Hidekawa, Shimizu Hisao, George Warren Hoffman, Clare Marie Hoffman, Fred Yaichio Hoshiyama, Virginia Elizabeth Howell, Frank Hultman.

Tomoyoshi Ishii.

William Edward Jackman, Louise Jameson, A. Windsor Johns, Loraine Priscilla Johnsen, Harley Samuel Johnson.

Kay Kagami, Robert Paul Kantner, Yukio Kawamoto, Evelyn Mae Keller, Murielle Frances Kilger, Kiyoshi James Kimoto, Annette Klang, James S. Kraemer, Victor Emanuel Krakow, William M. Krasow, Harold E. Kren, Clyde Manuel Kushnick, Jerome Lawrence Kushnick.

Charles William Lambert, Floyd C. Lawrence, Jr., William Howard Lawrence, Theodore Tin Lee, Walter F. Lee, Gerald Harry Lefkowitz, Alyce Verna Leong, Lester S. Lipinski, Harry K. Louie, Kwai-chock Low, Clemen Hing Lowe, Gladys Jacqueline Lowe.

Elizabeth McAllister, Margaret Lee McCormick, Lorraine Patricia McGill, William M. McKay, Jr., Horace Jurs MacKenzie, Wilbur Hobro McKenzie, Marie Louise McNutt, Andrew Charles Maass, Elizabeth Corinne Malim, Antonio Manuel, Edward W. Mar, Howard Morton Markovits, John P. Matjasich, Lily Edythe Meyer, Joseph Mignola, Jr., Francis E. Miles, Logan T. Miles, Nicholas Minitzky, John A. Miskel, Jane Allison Mitchell, Keichi F. Mizuno, Clyde Wickliffe Moonie Laurence Joseph Moser, Jr., Louis Frank Musso, Jr.

Makoto Nao.

Randolph William Osborne, Sukehiko Albert Ota.

Theodore F. Parnow, Tom C. Pauli, Lily Mae Phillips, Dorothy Patricia Pilgrim, Russell William Pritchard, George Shipley Prugh, Jr.

Lillian H. Ramirez, Barbara H. Randall, Robert William Rathke, Louis Reinthaler, Jr., William Oliver Richards, Robert Lawrence Ridolfi, Dorothy Kathryn Rodenback, Lita Mae Rogers, Patricia A. Rogers, Mitzi Roi, Barbara Rose, Lewis G. Rugaber, Carl Dupree Rutledge.

Elizabeth Elliott Sanchez, Dorothy M. Sanderson, Tokuye Anthony Sato, Jack Meade Scholey, Herbert E. Selden, Jr., Vincent Edwin Sherman, David D. Shinn, John Ross Simpson, Mary Skattebol, Vernajo Soanes, Ichiro Sowa, William Searles Stone, Robert Joseph Sullivan, Shoji John Suzuki, Neil Swanson, Hugh Birney Swenson, William deWarel Switzer.

Minoru Tamaki, Helen Kathryn Tardif, Jack Norman Tobiason, Howard Orrett Tracy, Yvonne Marie Trauger.

Irene Varguin, Ethel M. Vizzard, Walter C. Voigt.

Eleanor Wildhagen, Margarita Leslie Williams, Carol Woo.

Shigeru Yamamoto.

Irving Zangor.

Fall Semester 1938 Graduates

Irving Sass Amstrup, Marian E. Androvich.

Elliott Ball, Robert James Barnecut, Milton Berman, Ann Bertolucci, George R. Bokanich, Eugene F. Boomer.

Lionel Bruce Cade, Edwin L. Casady, Alice Frances Cavanagh, Dorothy Chamberlain, Joseph Malcolm Coccellato, Janet Marie Cope, Robert Louis Crowley.

Albin J. Dahl, Marian DeLano, Louis F. deLara, Frank A. Doupnik, Jack DuFosse, Kirk Delmont Dunann.

Emil I. Eckmann.

Margaret Campbell Ferguson, Robert Bernard Fex, Albert Michael Flaherty.

Roger LeRoy Gillmore, Ruth Graham, Albert L. Graves, Jr., Raymond Frank Greenwood.

Max Martin Hoberg, Marie Anne Hoeger, Richard H. Holmes, Jr.

Marjorie Elizabeth Ilg.

Patricia R. Jenks, Walter Clifford Johnson, Olwen W. Jones.

Helen Marie Koster, Jacqueline Kramer.

Paul M. LeBaron, Walter S. Leporsky, Betty MacKenzie, Thomas F. Maguire, Domenic Manfredi, Julius Paul Matula, Joseph George Meeko, Jr., Orion Edward Moss, Jr., LeRoy William Mow.

Maclyn G. Newell, Norman Lenneau Ng.

Benedict M. Ostinsky, Norman Len-Ow.

Kathryn Mary Palmer.

Muriel Rademacher, Geraldin' Mae Roberts.

Donald R. Scheuch, Frank E. Schofield, Alan L. Searles, Barnard Fred Seggern, Tracy Lewis Slattery, Ruby Soo Hoo, Mary Amelia Spring, Albert C. Stoltze, Donald Robert Swing.

Stanley W. Tobiason, Ozzie Gerald Torricelli.

Robert Yasuo Uyeda.

Fred Vast, Charles Henry Vaughn, Bernard Alexander Viner.

Wilene S. Wann, John Milton Ward, III, Lawrence Daniel Wiechers, Marjorie Betty Wright.

Marion Elizabeth Yager.

Omicron Phi Pi Initiates Branch Chapter At Modesto

Initiation of ten students into a branch chapter occupied local members of Omicron Phi Pi, college economics honor society, during their recent trip to Modesto.

"We are very happy to have had the opportunity to help in the founding of a new chapter at Modesto. We hope that next semester we will be able to repeat our initiation ceremonies at the founding of further chapters. Marin and San Mateo Junior Colleges are likely to provide excellent new prospects," said Michael M. Zarchin, faculty adviser to Omicron Phi Pi.

Galstaun Graduates

Sam Galstaun, staff photographer for The Guardsman during past semesters, graduates next week. He will continue photography as a career, specializing in news reel work for which his fine work on the college paper has well qualified him.

Hotel Student Will Work On Ranch For Ronald Colman

One of the greatest opportunities ever offered to a student of the Hotel Division was given to Collan Oveland who has just accepted a position at the San Ysidro Ranch in Santa Barbara.

This ranch is owned by Ronald Colman of motion picture fame and by Al Weingand. Oveland will leave his position at the Mark Hopkins Hotel to act as Weingand's assistant.

About eight students will graduate from the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division this semester. Next semester the division probably will have an increased enrollment for many applications are coming in from out of state people, particularly from Washington and Utah.

The program in floriculture under the direction of John R. Herman is also making plans for next semester. Members of the advisory committee will be the guests of the Hotel Division tonight for dinner.

The committee will discuss landscape architecture and will also make plans for the teaching curriculum. Friday, members of the committee comprising the nurserymen will meet and make plans for that part of the course.

7. None; it is made of shellac and resin. 8. The Manchus. 9. Shakespeare in Hamlet. 10. a. Sherwin-William Paint. b. Carnation Milk. c. Hamilton. d. Palmolive Soap. e. Fleischman's Yeast. f. Schlitz. g. Cascarets. h. Carbona Shoe Whitener.

ANSWERS

1. Hoover. 2. Auguste Rodin. 3. W. R. Hearst. 4. Jane Mitchell. 5. Lady Jane Grey. 6. Morro Castle.

Home Economics Group To Hold Dinner, Theater Party Thursday, May 18

Changing plans for a tea dance to a dinner to be followed by attending the current attraction of the Federal Theater Project at the Alcazar theatre, the Home Economics Association met last Wednesday.

The dinner, the last social function of the semester will be held on May 18. The hour and place have not as yet been decided upon, Claire Cuneo, association adviser, announced.

Members of the association desiring tickets should sign up with either Eleanor Leitner, president, or Lillian Auyong, recording secretary, as to whether they are going to either of the events or to both, before Monday, May 15, at 4:30 o'clock, Miss Cuneo said. Tickets for entrance to the play may be obtained for 15 cents.

Miss Cuneo also announced that plans to form an Alumni Association for the Home Economics Association will be discussed at the dinner.

Combination Special!

15c SANDWICH
15c MILK SHAKE
Both For 25c

SUTTON AND ROWLAND

500 SUTTER AT POWELL

NYA Vacationeers Given Directions For Obtaining Pay

Students planning to leave the city prior to May 28 should give their summer address to Thomas O'Neil, or check can be obtained from the WPA, Division of Finance, Edward H. Redford, director, announced.

"NYA students can turn in as many as one-third extra working hours for the last pay period, but the possibility of being paid for the additional time will depend on the sufficiency of the appropriation allotted to the college NYA fund," Redford said.

Must Take Risk

"This is the risk that students will have to take; however, payment for one-half of their additional hours, that is, a student usually allotted 30 working hours may turn in 40 with the assurance of receiving at least $14 instead of the customary $12, is guaranteed. If funds are adequate, payment will be made for the rest," Redford said.

To Apply Next Semester

Applications for NYA work for the coming semester must be made, not now, but at the beginning of next semester, when new blanks will be made available by the government.

Both new and old students should plan to get in touch with Redford on the first day of registration, or if the present proposal is carried out, his office will be open a day or two beforehand.

Experience Given Preference

Preference for NYA jobs will be given to students with past NYA experience, who will probably be requested by faculty members, who are given the opportunity this semester to put in applications for the type of work they want done and the students they desire.

Two weeks from today, May 17, time slips will be due in the Powell Street office.

Library Browsing

By JANET FELLOWS

The articles reviewed in this column are taken from the magazines in the college library.

* * *

Movies

Again Bette Davis shows how to win Hollywood's outstanding tribute. The highly dramatic plot of Dark Victory is different from that of most motion pictures. The acting of Miss Davis and George Brent, according to the reviewers, is superlative. One critic said in his review, "The enjoyment is paradoxical—it is fascinating because of splendid acting and the understanding manner in which the story is handled, but it is emotionally depressing." Note to women students: take along a large hankie—preferably a bandana.

Sorority House, with Shirley Ross and James Ellison is not a production on a magnificent scale. The vociferous adjectives of the press agents cannot be applied to this picture. It is, however, a pleasingly entertaining film.

Books

Showdown in Vienna, by Martin Fuchs, in the book review list of the New Republic, is a record of the conversations, protocols, treaties, pledges, first, second and third-hand remarks by Europe's statesmen about what was going to happen to Austria, from the end of 1935 until the thing happened. This sordid story is told in minute detail.

Car Tickets To Be On Sale At Bank During Finals

Car tickets will be sold every afternoon during finals from 2 to 4:30 p.m. "Students are advised to buy several books to last out during the vacation," said Ward Nichols, comptroller.

CASH PAID FOR USED TEXTS

Remember . . .

BOOKS are revised and changed rapidly.

If you intend to sell them, they should be disposed of at the end of each semester.

We pay highest cash prices.

S. F. J. C. STUDENTS STORE
518 POWELL ST., SAN FRANCISCO
"The Friendly Student Store"

WE ARE NATIONAL TEXTBOOK JOBBERS

"Advice"... with an ulterior motive!

spRoos up!

It May Help You Get a Job... or Marry the Boss' Daughter

Far be it from us to turn valedictorian, but if you're going to be looking for a job in another few weeks, may we suggest that you first look over our business suits. They also take you through a lot of social whirl in good fashion.

CASTLEROCK SUITS $30
WORSTED-TEX SUITS . . . $40
THOS HEATH SUITS $50

Roos Bros
MARKET AT STOCKTON

SCHOOL YEAR

1939 — 1940

Book Exchange Room 728
P. G. & E. Building
Closes Next Wednesday

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

File Registration Books
When Scheduled
Warns College Registrar

Vol. IX — FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1939 — No. 1

BALBOA CAMPUS RISING RAPIDLY

Message

THE AMERICAN WAY

By A. J. CLOUD, President
San Francisco Junior College

Welcome, returning students and incoming students, to San Francisco Junior College, your educational home!

Here, you will find a friendly faculty, able and devoted to the important social project of guiding your steps as you advance, rapidly now, from boyhood to manhood, and from girlhood to womanhood.

All of us have seen on many a mountain top in California a beacon which shines at regular intervals at night. Mariners of the air when they pass, check their course by the refulgent rays and steer safely into port.

Our college beacon is likewise placed on the crest of a hill. At Balboa Park, the central structure is rising steadily day by day, and will be ready for occupancy within a year. As we approach it, we shall be looking upward, not downward, and ascending, not descending; and that is fitting, for it is dedicated to the promotion of a high and noble purpose.

College President

Archibald J. Cloud

The term "Education" is used to describe that purpose. Through education changes are effected in us by which our fibre is strengthened and we are enabled to aspire toward loftier aims than otherwise we might.

We assemble at the opening of our fifth year during days of turmoil, verging on chaos, in other parts of the world. It is indeed well to give thought—much thought—to this situation, and contrast opportunities under the American way of life with those afforded (or denied) young people today in many foreign lands. The American way is the ideal toward which we endeavor to move at San Francisco Junior College.

Students Interested In Jobs Asked To Make Applications Immediately

A limited number of positions are open to American citizens enrolled in the college, upon application to the NYA offices. NYA is an organization financed by the government to help students work their way through college. Opportunity is given those in need the jobs to work for various instructors and departments of the college. All new students who are interested in joining the NYA should see Redford as soon as possible.

Students interested in the National Youth Administration positions offered by the college should make their applications at once to Edward H. Redford, NYA Director, in his offices on the seventh floor of Pacific Gas and Electric Building on Sutter Street.

Scholarship

Judge W. Denman Announces College Scolarship Fund

Circuit Judge William Denman sent a check for $250 to the Superintendent of Schools office early this week to be used for scholarships to San Francisco Junior College. The scholarships are to be awarded to girl graduates of San Francisco schools now attending the college.

The scholarships came from the James Denman Medal Fund. Medals for scholastic achievement were awarded girls graduating from the eighth grade preparatory to attending high school. They were discontinued twenty years ago by the Board of Education because of the absorption of the eighth grade into the junior high school movement. Meanwhile the money from the fund has been accumulating. Last week the court granted to turn the money back to the Denman estate. Judge Denman decided to use the fund for a series of scholarships to the college.

James Denman is reputed to have been the first educator in the city of San Francisco. He was Superintendentof Schools during the latter part of the last century. He was President of the Board of Education when Superintendent Nourse, to whom the letter was addressed, entered the field of education.

Judge Denman, son of James Denman, will be consulted in the requirements of application for the scholarships. The scholarships will be distributed annually.

Unusually Large Turnout For Class Elections, Announces Elmer Hubacher

With the successful completion of class elections last Wednesday afternoon, the student officers roster for the Fall Semester of 1939 now stands completed. Marked by unusually large turnouts in all classes, the election committee declared the entire procedure to be most orderly and successful.

O'Neil Triumphs

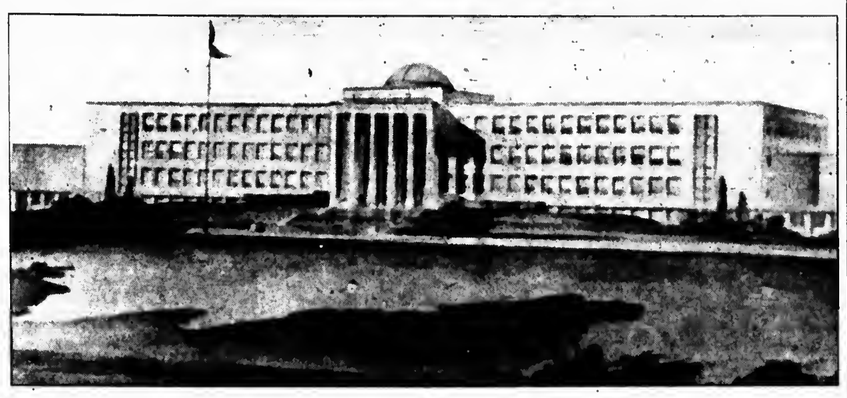
In the feature race for High Sophomore President, Bill O'Neil, popular scholar and athlete, emerged triumphant as High Sophomore President. Assisting O'Neil in conducting the affairs of the class will be newly elected Adele Kuhn as Vice-president and Janet Ball in the office of Secretary-treasurer.

Achieving the office of Low Sophomore President was the ever popular Art Pomares, former college yell leader. Mary Miller, and Julie Bradshaw of Oakland were chosen to assist Pomares in their offices of Vice-president and Secretary-treasurer respectively.

High Frosh Plans

Dave LeBaron, former President and athletic star of George Washington High School was put into office as High Freshman President. With the help of Dale Cuniffe as Vice-president and Barbara Gunn as Secretary, LeBaron outlined plans for the High Freshman class this semester.

Largest turnout of all classes was reported at the Low Freshman meeting. Chosen to lead the Low Frosh was Douglas Alexander, formerly of Polytechnic High School. Voted into office to aid President Alexander were Dorothy Mills, a graduate of Lowell as Vice-president and Jeanne Grenelle, graduate of University High School in Berkeley as Secretary-treasurer.



Associated Student President Elmer Hubacher expressed his satisfaction at the orderliness and success of the elections.

At the business meeting preceding the class elections, President Cloud urged cooperation between faculty members and students at the same time assuring the assemblage that the new campus will be ready for occupancy within a year.

Dean Browne invited all students, with or without individual problems to come into his office and become acquainted.

The Campus

'40 - - The College At Balboa Park

'39 - - Construction At Balboa Park

'38 - - Balboa Park

Above and to the left are scenes depicting the development of the college from an idea to an actuality. (See story, left below.)

Left Picture—Michael Steel, inspector for the bureau of architecture, looking over the first plans. (Note tractors clearing ground.) Extreme Left—Joseph P. Nourse, superintendent of schools, President Archibald J. Cloud, Dean Edwin C. Browne, and Bill Frantz, Editor of The Guardsman admire height of building from steps of main entrance.

Centre Picture — Overlooking workmen busily constructing the second floor. Gives a graphic description of the progress that has been made thus far.

Top Picture—Architects drawing of the academic unit now under construction as it will appear when completed next year.

College Construction Booming; Gyms, Science Unit To Finish On Schedule

By LEONARD GROSS

Moving along with machine-like swiftness and efficiency, work on the newly begun buildings to house future students of the college, has progressed rapidly and almost completely according to schedule, announced Registrar J. Paul Mohr yesterday afternoon.

Cement for the first floor has already been poured, and the second floor is half way up. "Although at the present time the Clinton Construction Company, building contractors are slightly behind their anticipated schedule, they have given college authorities complete assurance that the college will be completed in the time specified, 300 working days. This would set the completion date at May, 1940," Mohr said.

GYMNASIUM UNDER CONSTRUCTION

The men and women's gymnasiums which were started two months after the academic unit are also well under way and are rising rapidly. It was announced by the registrar's office that there is to be a section between the two gymnasiums which will later become the site of a swimming pool.

Earlier this week, Joseph P. Nourse, Superintendent of Schools, President Archibald J. Cloud and Dean Edwin C. Browne accompanied by student photographers and newsmen journeyed to Balboa Park to get a glimpse of the buildings under construction.

CLASSROOMS, HALLS TAKING SHAPE

"Upon arriving at the site, it was easy to visualize the great colonnades towering above one's head as we climbed the steps to the main entrance" President Cloud said. "Once inside the building," he added, "it was simple to distinguish the classrooms and leeture halls as they gradually began to take shape."

The driveways leading to the entrance are completed and were lined with the workmen's automobiles. Upon inspection of the building, most noticeable is the rapidity of construction, the great number of workmen, and the immense territory the academic building alone seems to cover.

LONGER THAN CITY HALL

Staircases, classrooms, and lecture halls, seem to be sprouting up almost before the eyes. Workmen are scattered all about busily hammering or sawing or climbing about the framework. The building, which will be four stories high, will be longer than the city hall and about the same height.

To San Jose State

Paul M. Pitman, pictured above, who concludes four years at the college as assistant to President Cloud to assume the duties of Dean of Men at San Jose State College. J. Graham Sullivan, formerly co-ordinator of the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division of the college has been promoted to the position left vacant by Pitman. The new title of the position, named this semester, is officially Co-ordinator of Educational Management.

W.S.S.

Book Exchange Will Remain Open Until Tuesday

Continuing the service established last semester, the Book Exchange sponsored by the Women's Service Society will remain open until next Tuesday, it was announced yesterday by Gloria Miller, president of the organization.

The exchange, which opened last Tuesday, serves as a go-between for students who wish to dispose of used books and students who wish to buy used books. Its office is located in room 728, PGE Bldg. All students who wish to bring in old books may set their own price, and the exchange will try to sell them. Persons desirous of obtaining used text books may apply at the office.

Bank Handles Funds

If books brought in are sold, the money may be obtained at the Galileo bank. Any books not disposed of can be recovered after Tuesday also at the Galileo bank. Students are advised to get their books from the bank within a months after the exchange closes. Books left after a month will be sold and the proceeds will go into the WSS student loan fund.

Business Increased

"The Book Exchange has shown a remarkable increase in business since last semester," said Miss Miller. Eighty books were handled the opening day this semester as compared with 200 books handled the week of operation last semester.

It is expected that business will increase rapidly as soon as the students of the college become fully cognizant of the advantages to be obtained through dealing with the student Book Exchange.

Not Well Known

Verrel Weber, WSS adviser announced that the main obstacle in the path of complete success for the venture was that only a few of large numbers of students enrolled in the college were aware of the existence and whereabouts of the organization.

"It is to be hoped that this difficulty will be eliminated in the near future," Miss Weber said.

Social

Freshman Dance At St. Francis Hotel Tonight

With the Colonial room of the St. Francis Hotel as the scene, the college will tonight play host to the incoming students of the Low Freshman class at a semi-formal dance to be given in their honor, announced Dorothy Trood, vice-president of the Associated Students and chairman of the social committee.

Murphy's Orchestra

Dancing will be from 9 to 12 to the melodic music of Eddie Murphy and his orchestra. Murphy, a student of the college, has played for several other college affairs and was chosen because of his usual satisfactory performances.

The dance is the first social affair of the semester and officially closes Freshman Orientation Week.

"Admission to the dance will be one Associated Students card per couple" said Miss Trood.

The bids are to be the college colors, red and white with pictures of the new college building surmounted upon them.

Card Lending Warned

All students are advised not to lend their student cards to any outsiders. An identification committee will be at the door constantly, and any person presenting a borrowed card will have the card confiscated and the owner penalized. Confiscation of the card will mean that the offender will automatically be deprived of all Associated Student privileges for the remainder of the semester. This includes all future social affairs and athletic contests.

"I cannot stress too greatly the fact that these dances are for students of the college only and admission of outsiders would mean an overcrowded situation would exist making it impossible for anyone to enjoy himself. Such a procedure would deprive the students of the college of the rights accorded them through the possession of a student card," Miss Trood remarked.

Prominent members of the faculty who will attend the affair are: President and Mrs. A. J. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Pitman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham Sullivan, Mary Jane Learnard, Margaret Dougherty, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Mohr.

Registrar's Office

ENROLLMENT RECORDS SOAR TO NEW HEIGHT, REGISTRATION OF 2400 STUDENTS ANTICIPATED

Smashing all previous enrollment records, registration closed with a total of 2213 students, announced J. Paul Mohr, Registrar of the college.

This number, which does not include an estimated 125 late registrants, is already considerably above the total registration of last semester, which had in its turn set an all time record.

New Courses Added

To accommodate larger enrollment, extra courses have been added to the curriculum, including the nucleus of a comprehensive Police Training course, a course in Engineering Drafting, and a series of Civil Service training courses designed to follow up the work of the business deparfment.

TESTS FOR LATE REGISTRANTS

Subject A and Vocational Interests tests for all entering students who have not already taken them will be held at 2:30 p.m., Friday, September 15, in room 458 at Galileo.

Thurston Psychological and High School Contents tests, together with taking of pictures of entering students will be held Saturday morning, September 16, at 9:00 a.m. in room 458 at Galileo.

This will be the only opportunity for students who have not already done so to take these tests and have their pictures taken, therefore all students affected should make every effort to report at the appointed times.

"The Mayor and the heads of the departments of the city's government are interested in aiding the development of a group of well trained potential civil servants. To this end, they have offered to open their departmental offices for practical experience to students whose courses at the college have included business courses and the new courses in the elements of civil service," said Mohr.

Medical Exams Monday

Medical exams for men begin Monday at Galileo, the doctor being in attendance from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. Women's exams are already in progress at the Public Health Building at the Civic Center. Women students who have not made appointments for such exams should see Verrel Weber immediately.

The office of the registrar warned students that filing of registration books begins Monday, and continues through Tuesday and Wednesday. Students are asked to check the filing date stamped on the cover of their books, and be sure to file on that date in the study hall at Powell street in the mornings and at Galileo in the afternoon.

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1939 No. 1

BILL FRANTZ ..... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser ..... Business Adviser
Joan Nourse ..... Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross ..... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ..... Feature Editor
Dorothy Trood ..... Women's Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Sports Editor

REPORTERS
Lucretia Antonicelli, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, John Hansen, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Daniel Rosenblat, Harold Unterberger, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Edmond Wunsch

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Fourth College Anniversary Marks Four Years Of Real Progress; Plea Made For Progress In Consideration Of Others During Fifth Year

IT was four years August 26 since the first students and faculty met for the newly inaugurated San Francisco Junior College. Each August 26 following the beginning of the college marked another year of true progress—progress in increased enrollment, in educational and semi-professional training, and in the formation of an outstanding institution.

This semester we are progressing greatly in the construction of our permanent buildings as evidenced by the photographs on page one. On the August 26 anniversary in 1937, the college was able to look back upon the first promise of permanent buildings at the Balboa Park site. The anniversary in 1938 showed the foundations layed and the athletic field finished. This year with all obstacles cleared away, progress on the actual construction has gone ahead astoundingly and there is certain promise of completion before the next anniversary of the college.

New Fields To Conquer

Each semester The Guardsman proudly flaunted headlines evidencing new records in enrollment. This semester, more than ever, records in enrollment will far surpass those of previous semesters. A great deal of credit for the increase is due to the addition of new fields of study.

The institution of new fields of study leading toward practical preparation has, it seems, been based on the success of the Hotel and Restaurant Division. This semester, courses in the preparation for Civil Service, Radio Script Writing, Retailing, and Police Training have been added to the already successful courses leading into Accounting, Stenography, Merchandising, Radio Engineering, Insurance, and Landscape Architecture.

Guardsman In Trend With Times

In keeping with the progressive tendencies of the college The Guardsman, too, has undergone a change. It has been streamlined little by little until this semester it has reached a new height in modern makeup. Observe also the change in the day of publication. It is expected that such change of date will be accepted by the student body as an added indication of efficiency.

While we speak of moving ahead, we miss Paul M. Pitman. Once the assistant to President A. J. Cloud, he is now Dean of Men at San Jose State. Pitman was symbolic of progress at the college. His warm, optimistic and friendly personality emanated through many of the important events happening during the years represented by the past four anniversaries. His place is capably filled by J. Graham Sullivan, the man responsible for the success of the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division.

Respect Rights Of Others

Further progress this year is promised by the Denman Scholarships (Story on page one), the improvement of extra-curricular activities through the Club Advisory Board's "Join A Club" campaign, through the eager efforts of the college organizations to give the entire student body "their money's worth", and through the capable leadership of the Associated Students' officers.

One step we might make toward progress is in consideration of other persons' property. We must remember that we are at present occupying borrowed buildings. For the one remaining year we must possess the utmost thoughtfulness in using the buildings loaned to us. The location at 58 Sutter Street is in operation as an office building. There are "no odds" in annoying the elevator operators and other occupants, because the blame is placed on the already heavily laden shoulders of Dean E. C. Browne and the persons instructing there. Obeying the parking laws on Powell Street will raise our institution in the estimation of the citizens of San Francisco who so heartily cooperated with us in the campaign for our permanent buildings.

Cooperation—A Necessity

Yes, it would be well to mark as the really important step toward continued progress, the proof to the people of San Francisco that we, of the college, are worthy of the advantages they have given us.

We can also strive to cooperate with our fellow students, and our fellow citizens that we may look back at the next anniversary to a year truly important from the standpoint of our relations with the other citizens of the city.

We welcome the freshmen to our college in the hope that they may assist us in our fifth year of progress.

Local Boy Makes Good On Daily Californian; Fred Vast Takes Over Foreign News Beat

Although it is not progress within the college, it is to be noted that a former editor of The Guardsman is making good at a university. Fred Vast, editor during the fall semester 1938, is now writing the front page foreign news on the Daily Californian this semester. The Guardsman staff wishes you success, Fred, more power to you.

Presidential Notes
By Elmer Hubacher

THE first thing we would like to do is to show our sincere appreciation to those of you who have made our nomination and election possible. The second thing is to make a statement as to our policy and objectives for the coming semester.

Realizing the trust you have placed in us, we are going to endeavor to give to you an executive council you will be proud of. After trodding our different campi for three semesters, and voicing our criticisms as loud as the rest against the executive council, the paper, and other things, we now find ourselves the subjects of possible criticism rather than those who are criticising.

We, too, will be criticized just as we in the past have criticized others. However, we assure you that we will try to profit by this criticism, thereby improving ourselves and in doing so benefit your executive council.

Our promise, made to you at the close of last semester, was this:—To build up student unification, better known as "school spirit". Spirit is what we lack. An organization without spirit is no organization. A fighter without spirit is through. A runner without spirit is defeated before the race starts. If we display spirit, and we can, no junior college on the Pacific Coast will approach us. But we must work together. Cooperation will do the trick. Cooperation between you, the students, and your elected student leaders. We can do it. The material is here. Let us work together for the common good.

Please do not take us wrong, we are not preaching or trying to sound officious. On the contrary, we speak sincerely and hope our simple words will be driven a little closer home if they are taken with the sincerity with which we have set them down.

Provided we work together, this semester will be one that will be long remembered in the annuals of the college.

. . . while thinking . . .
By Leonard Gross

EVERYONE is now well aware of the fact that the second Great War is in progress, so it would be futile for us to go over and rehash the swiftly moving events which have so filled the past week.

However, we do wish to express the opinion that this war, unlike the last will not be for long duration. Naturally, before putting ourselves out upon this limb we were careful to have some strong substantiating statements. They are as follows: Germany is not economically strong enough to last a long war because she is not sufficiently self supporting to be able to exist without outside aid. It is a well known fact that the German Reich is on the very verge of an economic collapse. She must have certain essential materials with which to wage a war, among them being oil and wheat. These materials may easily be purchased from neutral nations but only as long as there is money to pay for them. The glaring fact still remains that no matter how much Germany may bluff she does not have sufficient money to carry on an extensive battle. The neutral nations surrounding the Nazis do not love them so dearly that they will transact business on a credit basis especially since the German word seemingly isn't worth the air it is filled with. An attempt to annex the smaller nations that refuse credit would only result in enlarging the battle front and causing the German army further to divide its forces.

Here is another aspect. The German people do not want a war. They never have, but unfortunately they had nothing to say about it. It is inconceivable to believe that a nation which is already on a stringent food ration basis even more restrictive than in the closing days of the first World War, will long suffer under such a yoke of tyranny. It will only take a few major defeats on the battle field to convince the German people and the army that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler is not an idol to be worshipped as a Heaven-sent being, but instead is an ordinary man with an over developed ego and a determination to become master of the world. Once the German army together with the people back home begin to awaken it will not be long before a revolution that will overthrow the whole Nazi regime will be the result.

Some persons will no doubt recall the fact that many people in 1914 predicted that the war would be over in a short while. Few expected it to last four years. Before accusing us of the same lack of foresight it would be well to remember that this time Britain and France are prepared, and that last time Germany was a far more prosperous, well fed nation, certainly in direct contrast to its present day status.

• • •

NATIONAL

THE European situation should practically clinch President Roosevelt's reelection for a third term. Even if Roosevelt himself should not desire to run, he would probably be forced to accept renomination on the grounds that the country needs him and his foreign policy to keep us out of war. It would be folly for the reins of government to change hands at such a crucial time as this.

• • •

In line with the recently renovated policy of our national defense comes the news that one of the four great 16 inch coast defense guns in existence in this country has been transported to Fort Cronhkite, on the other side of the Golden Gate. It is good to realize that after all these years of unpreparedness the United States is finally building an adequate army, navy, and air corps. "Neutrality" coupled with "Preparedness" are two strong words which mean than anything help keep the United States intact throughout the European conflict.

• • •

Governor Luren D. Dickinson of Michigan has burst forth once again with an emphatic denunciation of a form of social relaxation, modern dancing. He first broke into the headlines some weeks ago when he stated that a governor's position was not safe for a young girl. His most recent claims are that modern dancing "results in the losing of the finer impulses, in rutination and human wrecks through the fascination of rhythmic music and bodily embrace."

Governor Dickinson's tirades are somewhat reminiscent of an old maid who has soured on life as it is today and it attempting to change it to suit her own ideas. Perhaps it would be better for the old maid to attend to her knitting and not attempt to find two meanings where there is only one.

• • •

PRESS

THE American people should be gratified to realize that at the present time the only important nation in the world with a free, uncontrolled press is the United States. With contradictory reports pouring in from Europe it is easier to sift the true from the false when you realize the newspapers are reporting happenings as they are and not as they are told to by the government.

There is little or no use indulging in blank hypotheses and totally unsubstantiated conclusions concerning a subject of which we KNOW practically nothing.

Cynic.

● Check Your Lunch?

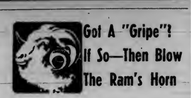
Editor, The Guardsman.

Although I am fully aware of the difficulties our college has had to face, there is one point that has constantly arisen in my mind.

Why is it that while we have a checkroom for coats and books, we have no adequate checking for lunches brought by the more thrifty members of the college?

I do not wish to be accused of being a "crank" but it seems to me there should be some provision for the safe keeping of lunches. After all, it presents a rather sloppy and unsanitary aspect to see students' lunches lying about the chairs or tables in the Powell Street study hall.

In an effort to remedy this condition, I would suggest that there be a separate portion of the present checking space set aside for lunches. Then the system of giving students call checks (similar to the one now in use at Powell Street) could be used.



Perhaps the newly elected student officers can devise a better plan. Here's hoping.

C. Ulater.

"The Music's Talkin' To Ya: You Know Tonight's the Night"

RAM'S HORN

Got A "Gripe"? If So—Then Blow The Ram's Horn

Any person, faculty member, or student, is privileged and invited to express himself in a letter to this column.

We change Lincoln's famous saying to suit our situation: "You can satisfy some of the readers all of the time. You can satisfy all of the readers some of the time.—But you can't satisfy all of the readers all of the time." Therefore, if at any time you are dissatisfied with what you have read in The Guardsman, if you have a complaint about student affairs, or even if it is only a pet "gripe"—send it to the Ram's Horn.

Anonymous letters will not be printed. One can, however, request the editor to withhold the signature. Letters are printed at the discretion of the editor.

● PROPAGANDA, No. 1

Editor, THE GUARDSMAN:

I don't know quite what to expect from the first issue of your esteemed publication, but have one request, with which I would be most gratified to see you comply. It is this: PLEASE KEEP THE WAR OUT OF THE GUARDSMAN — ENTIRELY, IF POSSIBLE. If you feel it a journalistic prerogative to deal with a subject on which most of us are already more than satiated, I hope you will see that an objective method of presentation is observed. Opinions, yes; propaganda, NO!

shots at RAMdom
By Isadore Maloff

NOW that that trying period called vacation has finally come to its lengthy end, thereby paving the way for the glorious semester of fun and study lying before us (portion of-of-ficious welcome No. 79285 Copyright College Greeters of America) it's time once more to drag out Bessie, our faithful typewriter from among the moth balls (or do they pack typewriters in moth balls?) in an attempt to produce some semblance of literary productiveness for this, the first issue of The Guardsman. (breath)

Our promotion from batting out news stories to the higher art of cavorting freely in a column of our own would make a typical Horatio Alger story—without Horatio Alger. For quite some time we had been hankering for a column of our own but it was only this semester that the urge to become a columnist became so strong that we threatened the editor with physical mayhem should he hand us another rejection slip. Being duly impressed by the immense proportions of the writer and the vehemence with which we dealt our threats, ye editor has at last capitulated. Now that we are out on our own, we intend to deal mostly in whimsey or as a particular mood may strike us

We never did quite realize what a sentimental lot the newspapermen are, but this summer Editor Bill has been covered to our complete satisfaction that a newspaperman, gruff and stern though he may seem, is really a sentamentalist at heart.

While investigating progress over at Balboa Park, site of the new campus, who should we see but Editor Frank sprinkling bread crumbs on the foundations of the new buildings. Blocked against the setting sun, he created a truly inspiring sight. He stood there, a thing of beauty, and a boy forever. As the 4:30 whistle blew, tired workers were gathering momentum, which they stuffed into little bags. Suddenly his eye fell upon us, bruising us slightly. Caught redhanded sprinkling the crumbs. Bill confessed he was just doing it for a lark.

• • •

During this first week of school, we have been the recipients of numerous complaints from Sophomores declaring that incoming freshmen are behaving in a most disgraceful manner. Rather than see any freshman starting the semester in ignorance of the proper way to conduct himself, we have composed the following set of rules for Freshmen. If all incoming Freshmen will follow these rules in explicit detail, we are all certain to enjoy a harmonious and eventful semester.

Freshman Rules for 1939

Observeth this set of rules explicitly and thy presence will be tolerated.

Rule I. Thou shalt not heave fruit, brieks, chairs, lunches, nor tables in the (pronounced the) study hall.

Rule II. Thou shalt not hack thy desks into small particles with thy hatchet.

Rule III. Thou shalt refrain from dropping ink on the floor to ascertain that thy pen is equipped with the liquid fluid that thou useth in writing.

Rule IV. Thou shalt not gallop madly down the halls and steps in great numbers, thereby trampling upon and wounding thy brethren.

Rule V. Thou shalt not tramp noisily down the study hall making huge dents and holes in the floor.

Rule VI. Thou shalt not attend thy classes arrayed in rags but shall be clothed in all thy finery.

Rule VII. Thou shalt not flounder on the steps of the main entrance thereby causing the marble to wear smooth.

• • •

What did you say? Why, of course we're Sophomores.

TODAY'S SHORT SHORT

The other day
I saw
A girl and
She dropped her purse.
I hurried after her,
But I fooled her—
I kept the purse.

I took it
Home and Opened it up.
But I
Got fooled—
There was some Money in it.

Cabbages & Kings
By Blue Pencil Bill

IN A world filled with strife ("While Thinking" please copy) we present you with the lighter side of life.

Introduction of Mister Kenneth Pasqualette, the kid who is prematurely baldish but compensates with a profusion of hair on his chest. He has a roly-poly physique and a delightfully jolly personality. Ken does not drink, smoke, or dance. But don't get us wrong—he is not a goody-goody—on the contrary he is much like Tony Galento than any other person except Tony himself. But let's get down to what we were going to say.

Ken was in a small group of veteran Junior college attenders when the subject of preferences in the female of the species came up. One of the red-sweatered Blockmen pictured himself dancing at the Law Frosh Hop with an attractive little freshman. Another young gent described himself with a lovely newcomer attending a swing session at one of the hoity-toity hotels.

Ken looked at them with a smile of inward satisfaction and said, "I like the parlor and marshmallow kind." The group glanced at him—then the fellows laughed. For no reason at all Ken's face showed crimson beneath its fur while he repeated, "I still like the parlor and marshmallow kind."

Of course we're not running a date bureau, but an incoming freshman girl considering herself the parlor and marshmallow type is invited to report the fact to her adviser, who will in turn report to young Pasqualette.

• • •

VACATION SNAPSHOTS

Helen Crlenkovich, our National Diving Champ is shown diving off the forty foot tower into a cup of coffee and coming up with a couple of doughnuts.—Good to the last drop! (With apologies to Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell.)

Adrian Carignani, battling behemoth on Lee Eisan's line is pictured sleeping on the sands of Baker's Beach while a troop of cavalry is lying in his shade.

Here's one taken at Boyes Springs. It's Willie Blackfield, perennial basketballer, vociferously denying that he will return for a sixth semester. (Willie was first in-line on August 29.)

• • •

CUTE FRESHIES

Our Stockton correspondent writes:
Breathes there a man
With soul so dead
Who has never turned
His head and said:
"Hmm-m-m, not bad!"

It certainly describes the freshman girls. A little life, boys! while we're on the subject of freshman femmes, the self-appointed greeting and sizing-up committee elected Claire Adams, ex- of Washington High, the best looker of the lot. Claire is a smooth little brunette with adorable big blue eyes.

We are withholding the name of the sizing-up committee because he has a permanent investment in Oakland. The permanent investment has spies in San Francisco.

• • •

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

"—and if you don't behave I'll bring my water pistol!"—Dot Trood.

in TROOD ings
By Dot

CAUSING hearts to flutter among the never female elements of the college is biscuit brown, blond president Elmer Hubacher. Elmer gathered tan this summer as a life guard and also doing that daily mile swim down at the Aquatic Park. . . .

And what about those padded shoulders of the great Lenny Gross, eminent member of The Guardsman staff? Lenny has nothing to say about the matter. . . .

To say nothing of the embarrassment of Muriel Nolan, A.W.S. president and last semester's Soph Sweetheart, when a group of jolly men sang "Happy Birthday" to the young gal during registration last week. . . .

Energetic Bob Owen, S. F. blockman, who wore himself down to the ankles, and those are Bob's very own words, during the hustle and bustle at registration. . . .

And what will the women do without the advice of Fashion Fanny. . . . Some say that the illustrious fashion editor is going to publish her own magazine, while others are of the opinion that this clothes mogul is still vacationing on the Rue de la Paix and won't be back for the next month . . . but during the rush Fanny sent us a rubbergram advising the new freshman women to look their best at the Low Frosh Dance at the St. Francis Hotel tonight. Nothing would be better, continued the college fashionette, than one of the taffeta bustle dresses which are sweeping into prominence on campuses all over the country . . . and that's all from Fanny because cables are expensive and . . . need we say more.

Bokays to Hugh Ryan, A.M.S. vice-president, who has done a lot of hard work in the absence of the president, Lee Scarlet. Hugh did lots of running around to find a club for the semi-annual Smoker, and he also put a great deal of though into the Frosh-Soph brawl which is taking place today.

Petite Muriel Grenelle, secretary of the Associated Students, was asked if she could take shorthand at a minimum rate of speed.

"Oh, no, but I can type," replied this winsome miss," and if shorthand is needed, perhaps I could take a quick course." Such enthusiasm is overwhelming.

Alas, Alack, poor Yorick, the vice-president of the college has not even had a word to say in the first edition of Volume IX, so we'll give her a full paragraph next year. . . .

To the freshman . . . no more gags about your major.

At Dartmouth College old examinations are available to all students in bound files kept in the college library.

Rifleers Hurl Defi; Invite British To Shooting Match

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Ram Pigskin Artists Scrimmage; Plan To Repay '38 Wallopings

RAMblings
By RAY BERNS

Gertrude Stein says, quote, spring is here, is here, is here, as a bean is on a farm—unquote. Although not quite as daffy as Miss Stein (?), we say—football is here, is here, is here, and there isn't much we can do about it.

Grid Prospects Favorable

With such worthies as Bob Schoenstein, Jim Mollch, Mel Chickazola, Adrian Carignani, and Dan Baker returning to grace the fold of Coach Lee Eisan's little flock, Ram grid prospects are looking up. Yes, we know, college sports scribblers have, from time immemorial, sung the praises of Joe Dokes, and have, a great deal of the time (most of the time), proved poor prophets. We are not, however, afeared to follow in the footsteps of our colleagues, and, with few misgivings and barrels of enthusiasm, predict a brilliant season for Eisan's lads.

Ah yes, indeed, kiddies, our little group of pigskin cuties appears destined to carry on the glorious traditions of the red and white and, like an all-powerful wave, roll over our poor, defenseless opponents.

Two Sports Listed

To those lads and lassies uninitiated into the mysteries of Ram athletics, we lend a helping hand. It is with great sorrow that we reveal that there are but two sports on the fall semester program—football, already mentioned, and soccer.

The two seasons previous to last year, Thomas D. Wilson, soccer mentor extraordinary, and his band of Ram soccerites walked off with the junior college championship. Last year, however, the league was disbanded and Wilson's lads were forced to go "big time", and compete against California, Stanford, and other universities in the Northern California intercollegiate League.

There was no championship but the locals made an excellent showing and it seems only fair to wish Cal and Stanford that Wilson's shinkicking brigade will be back practically intact and gunning for the title.

Blockmen Abdicate

Ye Gods, ain't much things be? Yep, I'm feared so. What? This is what: Exactly one year ago, Blockmen Jerry Flamm, Tip Hamilton, Duke Worsham, and Bubbles Applehofer left this hallowed institution. Six months ago, Bob Fex, Dick Simpers, Stan Tobiason, and Tracy Slattery abdicated. At the end of last semester, Dave Johnson, Mel Petersen, Floyd Lawrence, Frankie Milan, and Tony Manuel took their leave. And now, at the conclusion of this semester, Elmer Hubacher, Frank Verducci, and Tony Manov say farewell. Next semester, yours truly, accompanied only by his lonely self, will invade the sacred shrines of Harrington's, and Harry O's, and, with tears falling into his suds, will mourn the ghosts of yesteryear, unless, remember, we say unless, a new crop is grown. Touchingly tragic and pathetic, is it not?

We stumbled upon a freshman athlete during registration the other day, who, within a short period of time, will undoubtedly take his rightful place as one of the leading characters of the college. The lad appeared to be wandering around in a daze as we offered to help. The following conversation ensued.

"What subjects do you want to take?"

"I don't care."

"Who's your adviser?"

"I don't know."

"What's your major?"

"I don't know."

"Do you want to graduate?"

"I don't care."

"What in the h— are you going to college for, to waste time?"

"Sure."

Country Has Laws

It so happens that this country, believe it or don't, has laws regarding attempted mayhem, or else our enthusiastic freshman would have bid adieu to this earthly sphere.

It may be a mile too early for such chatter but along about November, the Ram football special will set out for Modesto. The trip usually lasts about twelve hours—from 2 p.m. to 2 a.m. To those of you who are unacquainted with football excursions just ask the nearest sophomore about Sacramento.

Small Stuff: Hal Wagner and Ed Amark, two ex-Ram net stars, teamed together to win the Pacific Northwest and Washington State doubles championships this summer, while Amark won the Northwest singles and Wagner defeated Amark in the finals of the Washington State Men's singles. . . . Helen Crlenkovich carried off the National Diving championship defeating the Olympic champ, Marjorie Gestring.

No Brawl
AMS Plans Big Events; Soph vs Frosh Brawl Out

Starting off the new semester with Orientation Week, the Associated Men Students organization has planned a number of "big events" for the winter months.

Headed by Joseph Amori, faculty adviser, the AMS with its newly elected student officers, have already got in line a tentative schedule of a large line of new entertainment.

Elected AMS officers for the semester include Lee Scarlet, president; Hugh Ryan, vice-president; and Bob Owens, secretary. Until now, Ryan has acted as president since Scarlet has not returned from the north as yet.

No More Brawl

Most discussed radical change made by the AMS is the omission of the Frosh-Soph Brawl, until now, a regular semi-annual affair.

"Cause for the termination of the Brawl," announced Amori, "is due mainly to the various injuries suffered by students engaged."

"Also," he remarked, "because of the lack of cooperation given to us during the past semesters. As far as I can visualize, I do not believe that there'll be another Brawl until the new buildings have been completed at Balboa Park."

Football Game Today

Today, at 3:30 o'clock, a free football game sponsored by the AMS will be staged at Galileo field.

Newest available presentation of the AMS will be the so-called Fathers and Sons Night, to be held here soon.

Together with the regular boxing and wrestling championships, and also the semi-annual Barn Dance, it is believed that the AMS will indubitably be one of the college's most diligent groups.

Leaders' Work Praised

Satisfied with the work of the AMS leaders Amori made the following statement:

"This new group of officers is the finest and most industrious division the college has had as far as I know. They're certainly bound to get things done if the boys come through."

Swimming In Doubt; Sweet Urges That More Interest Be Shown

It has been left squarely up to the students as to whether or not there is to be a swimming team in the college this semester.

A proclamation to this effect was issued by Russ Sweet last Wednesday. Sweet, physical education instructor and swimming mentor in years past, declared that there is not much use in trying to organize a team in the absence of a "distinct demand" by the student body as a whole.

Students, Sweet emphasized, must prove that they want to swim, otherwise there is no likelyhood of team organization.

Asked what he had in mind as a panacea for effecting the return of aquatic enthusiasm, Sweet suggested that "the organization of a Swimming Club would undoubtedly be the correct solution.

"Students usually get what they ask for," he amended.

Flying Lambs Already In Action; Meet Commerce On Saturday

Announcement of the Junior Varsity's football schedule is expected to be made by Coach Lee Eisan in the near future.

Picked from the third string catch, the JV boys are usually very busy scrimmaging with various high schools.

To date, the lads have played with squads from Sacred Heart and a group of ex-footballers. Anyone showing promise in these various tilts stands a chance for promotion, as Eisan is always on the lookout for promising gridders.

According to reports from generally reliable sources, the Lambs have made good showings so far.

They hope to hold aloft the standard tomorrow, Saturday morning, when they will collide with the Bulldogs on Commerce field. The game is scheduled for 10:30 a.m.

How about smearing Sacramento this Fall, and, incidentally re-capturing that hooked banner?

Master Of The Rams

Lee Eisan, who used to tear up the turf for the Golden Bears, appears as kingpin of the Ram gridiron directorate this Fall.

"I'm not too optimistic," Eisan amends, with due reticence; but prospects are bright.

With the Red and White gunning for opponents who contributed to the 1938 debacle, Lee is the man to show them how to turn the trick.

Seeming to have lost none of the old sparkle of halcyon days, the Boss sticks out a hip and takes it away. He does it when they least expect it, fools them, makes the boys eat grass at scrimmage.

MEET THE COACHES . . . . "DUTCH" CONLAN

Veteran member of the men's physical education department and reputedly the "brains of the outfit," Louis "Dutch" Conlan coaches varsity basketball in the spring semester and handles the linemen on the football squad in the fall.

Although he was born in Berkeley, Conlan was raised in San Francisco and received his early scholastic training at Commerce High School.

Moraga Man

Upon graduation from Commerce, "Dutch" went to one of the first pigskin institutions in America, St. Mary's of Moraga, where he gained fame as one of the greatest of all Gael quarterbacks.

Conlan received his degree in 1926 and was immediately appointed frosh football and varsity basketball mentor at the Catholic institution.

"Dutch" had a successful three-year period at St. Mary's before he returned to his alma mater, Commerce, as football and basketball instructor.

Casaba Savant

While at Commerce, Conlan piloted three out of four 130 pound basketball squads to AAA championships, and had fair success with his football teams.

Conlan came to San Francisco in 1935, and, in the first year of the college's existence, produced a championship basketball squad.

A notable achievement has been accomplished in that none of the red and white casaba squads have finished out of the first division in the history of the college.

Sender-Offer

A tribute to the coaching genius of "Dutch" is the fact that several of his casaba aces have gone on to four-year institutions and made good in a big way.

Those who have made good include Ralph Hillman, stellar guard and captain of the first team who later proved a sensation at the University of California, Chabby Grant, high scorer of the 1937 outfit, who is now on San José State mainstay, and Ernie Lazzarini, all-conference forward of the 1937 team, who is now one of San Francisco State's outstanding players.

Go Getter

Conlan's success may be attributed, in part, to the dynamic fight talks he gives his teams before they take the floor for a contest, a trait which he undoubtedly picked up from that fiery St. Marys coach, Edward "Slip" Madigan.

'39 Ram Gridiron Schedule

September 15	Placer	Seals Stadium	Night
September 22	USF Frosh	Seals Stadium	Night
September 29	Pasadena	Pasadena Rose Bowl	Night
October 7	Open	Berkeley Memorial
October 13	Sacramento	Seals Stadium	Night
October 21	Open
October 28	San Mateo	San Mateo
November 3	S.F. State	Seals Stadium	Night
November 11	Los Angeles	Kezar Stadium
November 17	Modesto	Modesto	Night

Wilson's Shinkickers Shorthanded; Recruits Urged To Try Out

Need for more soccer men has been stressed by Coach Tom Wilson. With only a dozen men trying out for the squad to date, Wilson has asked Hugh Ryan, team manager, to be on the watch for any and all men interested in this "somewhat overlooked sport."

Three Veterans Return

Only three of the twelve out for the team are regulars from last year. However, the rest have had high school experience which is certain to be an asset in the scramble for first team starting positions although the soccer team was very successful last year in league play, many positions are available to newcomers through the heavy loss in graduation.

Championship Chance

"The more they turn out, the finer our team should be," said Wilson.

He believes that junior college experience is a great help toward the squad's chance of a championship team next year. Wilson is ready and glad to give all freshmen a chance to exhibit their wares.

Current Hopefuls

Soccer men already in suits are: Javrotsky, fullback; Schnider, right half; Chering, inside right; Cuniffe, fullback; O'Leary, fullback; McHugh, center forward; Greig, goalie; Mottou, fullback; Owens, wing; and Thodus, center half.

Daily, practice is at Funston Playground at 12:30.

Prelim Matches

Two practice games are scheduled for next week. On Tuesday, the Rams engage with Mission High School and with Poly on the following Friday, September 15. Both battles will be fought on the Beach Chalet.

Football
Ram Gridders Crack Down; Point For '39

WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADE
By CAROL PICKERING

Launching the women's sports season with all the speed and velocity possible in a brand new staff of officers, the Women's Athletic Association has its clubs arranged and big dates set for their fall semester.

Among the usual list of sports is Ice Skating, offered as a fall sport for the first time this semester. Classes will be held at Winterland, recent home of the celebrated Ice Follies of 1939. The time and price have not been decided as yet.

Handbook Eah!

The new informative WAA hand books should be a blessing to athletic minded women of the college. They contain every iota of information about WAA, and suggest in no small way the interest and fun that members have enjoyed in the past.

Important events are listed for Fall '39.

Sign-ups for Sports—Registration from August 28 to September 11; Women's Rally during Orientation Week; Sports Begin on Friday, September 15; Nomination of Club Managers on September 15; Election of Club Managers on September 26; Initiation (Sports Spread) on September 27; Intercollegiate Sports Days throught, October to December; and Tourney Week (Sports Finale and Banquet) from December 8 to 14.

Announcing Mrs. Olson

Vera Spencer, former WAA adviser and gym instructor, 'Middle Isled it' this summer with Olson of the University of Sweden. The new Mrs. Olson is in Sweden now on a year's leave. Comes the dawn about certain Swedish lessons at night school all last year.

Short handed because of the absence of Mrs. Olson, Bertha Keller, new WAA adviser, Verrel Weber, and Laurine Bergin are working an extra many-an hours, having divided Mrs. Olson's classes among them.

Credited gym classes and WAA activities are scheduled at different hours, so that the gym classes will not be a mixture of WAA'ers and credited students. The plan was introduced last semester by Lucille Jacke, new WAA president.

Archers in Strategic Retreat

Back-stagers of previous semesters were often routed from Fort Mason field on rainy days. Seeking a solution to this catastrophe, the women sports faculty decided to conduct the course inside the Palace of Fine Arts in the Marina District.

Finally we greet Bertha Keller as the new WAA adviser, and the new officers of WAA: Lucille Jacke, president; Helen Radke, vice president; Dorothy Nelson, secretary, and Helen Godman, treasurer.

Eisan Leads Team In "Give 'Em the Works" Motto

Sixty-five prospective football heroes in the initial entry list; half a dozen warm-up scrimmages already run; a murderous schedule ahead. That's how things stack up at present with the 1939 Ram gridiron squad.

The roster will be weeded down to forty-five early next week, and still more casualties are due before the first clash with Placer, on next Friday night. So announces Lee Eisan, long-time assistant coach, and now big shot of the college pigskin destinies.

"In other words," says Eisan, "I'm not too optimistic over the outlook." But neither is he pessimistic.

Heavy Losses

What was fondly expected to be a demi-Wonder Team last year didn't pan out as such; nevertheless, it was a good team, and Coach Eisan intimates that he would like to have some of the battle-scarred veterans, now graduated, who formed the tough nucleus of that 1938 aggregation.

"We lost practically every experienced man," declares the Mentor, "but the new replacements are pretty good." In current practice sessions, a few of the old timers are filling their respective niches, and play reasonably be expected to continue to do just that through the coming season.

Hold Fort

Schoenstein and Carignani hold the fort at the tackle spots, thus far resisting the forays of a newcomer named Gores, who has been lauded by Eisan. Gray is going places at left end. And these are only a few of many.

REVENGE DEPT

In case you've forgotten, here again is the score of the 1938 Ram football campaign. If the thought of the indignities embodied in the following list won't inspire the Rams to Give 'Em the Works in '39, nothing will.

GAME	RAMS	OPP.
Placer	19	0
Cal. Frosh	0	12
USF Frosh	2	26
San Mateo	6	0
LAJC	7	13
Sacramento	7	25
SF State	0	19
Pasadena	0	33
Modesto	0	21
TOTALS	41	155

Well????

Strongest since way back when, will be the '39 forward wall, and a versatile lineup including Spieller, Leggett, Cuniffe and George Washington fame, respectively—and Moisan, Berkeley nova, portends a strong backfield combination on both offense and defense.

Meanwhile, the work goes on. Jack Gaddy's Flying Lambs, from which outfit the varsity conscripts numerous recruits, have already met up with Saint Ignatius and Polytechnic, acquitting themselves satisfactorily in both cases. Tomorrow, Saturday morning will find them tussling with the local Bulldogs on Commerce Field. Experience is the watchword —at a premium.

Shifts Expected

There has as yet, been no permanent allocation of Ram manpower to first, second, and third strings. The shuffling and interchanging of personnel will continue until C.I.C. Eisan and Assistants Conlan and Gaddy can field an array capable of appropriately greeting the visiting firemen from Placer under the bright lights of Seals Stadium on Friday night, September 15.

To sum up: Backbone of '38 squad gone, but plenty of new candidates capable of moulding around few veterans remaining. Promising material in both line and backfield. Strong revenge motive for those seven losses of late unlamented year. Battle cry revised from "Sic Transit Gloria Ram" to " Give 'Em the Work!"

Russ Sweet, athletic coach and former Montana grid star, is due for a gift from the Wieland Lager Co. The other night Wielands dramatized Ross' touchdown in the 1926 East-West game, via their radio program.

Those touring with the team on the Pasadena trip will get a look at the famous Rose Bowl, where New Years classics are played.

Block Activities Soon To Begin; Initiates Swell Depleted Ranks

Under the leadership of Frankie Verduzel, newly installed prexie, the college's Block Letter Society is ready for a full semester's activities with a host of new names on the roster.

Replacements Noted

The ranks of the Monogram Men were depleted with the graduation of several of the college's outstanding athletes. Many neophytes were oldtimers at the conclusion of last semester as a result of their earning blocks or circles in baseball, tennis, basketball, junior varsity basketball, track, and tennis.

The first meeting of the society will be held next week, and although a definite list of the season's events has not been scheduled as yet, the society's usual functions will be held, according to Verduzel.

Weenies and Inhibitions

These functions include a barbecue for high school athletes and a Suppressed Desire dance.

Assisting Verduzel will be Vice-president Ken Pasqualetti, and Secretary-treasurer Tony Manov.

The amazing influence of the popular magazines on the thoughts of Americans can be graphically illustrated when one realizes that if all the Saturday Evening Posts sold in one week were stacked magazine on magazine the pile would reach as high as Mount Tamalpais.

Library Browsing

By JANET FELLOWS

JUST to be different we caught up on the war in Asia as Europe's latest crisis became fatal. Pearl Buck's newest novel, The Patriot, combines fiction and facts in order to create a poignant story of the Chinese-Japanese undeclared war. The Patriot is Mrs. Buck's first novel with a Chinese setting in four years.

Before taking the reader into the war, the author paints the China scene in the days leading up to the Communist Revolution, Chiang Kai-shek's sudden turn-about-face from Communist leader into an instrument of the capitalists, and China's short and restless peace.

From here we leave China and proceed to Japan. For the first time Mrs. Buck draws the Japanese picture. Sympathetically she describes the Japanese people—their thoughts, customs, and their lives.

DEVASTATION PICTURED

When the reader returns to China he finds a devastated country, having been occupied already many months by the destructive Japanese army. With the Chinese one suffers the heart-breaking losses of the sadly trained Chinese army, which vainly tries to win the war through unfamiliar western military strategy.

Pearl Buck has the uncanny ability of tearing down racial differences and prejudices, making one feel at one with the characters, no matter what might be the reader's racial inheritance. Because of her warm understanding and vivid writing about the feelings of people, Mrs. Buck's Oriental characters are fundamentally neither strange nor distant from our own emotions. Except for the physical differences and heterogeneous customs one gleans through Pearl Buck's writing that all men are in reality alike, and because of this, hate and war are stupid and wasteful energies of foolish mortals.

ORIENTAL WRITING

The style of Pearl Buck's writing has a certain Oriental twang to it, and at first it is difficult to believe the author is an American born woman. However, as one proceeds into the story he becomes so absorbed with interest he forgets to notice such a thing as style.

To sum it all up, The Patriot is a thoroughly enjoyable novel, and today, as men tragically die east and west of our country, it reminds us how very fragile and dear is that intangible 'dove of peace'.

Dean's Message Offers Congratulations On Fine Cooperation Of Students

Dean's Message

By the time this reaches you, enrollment and registration will be complete, and sincere congratulations will be in order for all students entering and returning alike, whose willingness and ability to cooperate has made clear their appreciation of the difficulties brought about by our unusual and temporary physical conditions.

My office is always open to students whose problems for adjustment give rise to a need for advice or assistance, and any student faced with such problems should not delay in seeing me.

A limited number of opportunities for students to earn their room and board have presented themselves, and application for these positions should be made to my office at once.

Whether I can be of material assistance to you or not, do not hesitate to expect my cooperation in any way that my office may be able to afford. In return I ask only your indulgence and cooperation in the problems that confront the college as a whole.

EDWIN C. BROWNE
Dean of Men.

Student Government

STUDENT COMMITTEES, BUDGET TO BE DISCUSSED AT EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Announcement of the standing committees for the coming semester, and consideration of the budget will be on the program for the second meeting of the executive council to be held at Galileo next Thursday afternoon, announced Elmer Hubacher, Associated Students' President.

Ex-Council Chairman

Elmer Hubacher

Thereafter the council will meet regularly each Thursday to transact such college business as falls within its province.

All students of the college have been invited by Hubacher to attend the meetings in Room 201 at Galileo at 2:30 p.m. on Thursdays that they may see their elected representatives at work.

Advantages Of Student Body Cards Stressed By Student President

Possession of an Associated Students card is an invaluable advantage was the opinion expressed by President Elmer Hubacher, this week.

"We have each semester, from six to eight dances, all of which are held at prominent San Francisco hotels. To each of these card holders are admitted free. That is, one Associated Students card admits one couple," Hubacher said.

"There is a very active Junior College Athletic Conference schedule of basketball, football, tennis, baseball, and track. Cards entitle one to free admission.

"The Guardsman, a weekly, seven column, four page paper, rated as one of the best college papers extant is given to those students with membership in the Associated Students.

"Associated Men Students and Associated Women Students activities and entertainments are gratis to those possessing cards," Hubacher announced.

"Furthermore," he concluded, "a student who purchases an Associated Students card makes it possible for San Francisco Junior College to offer a very broad extra-curricular program in which all students may participate, naturally producing fine school spirit which is greatly to be desired."

Now to inject a grim note into a hitherto cheerful story. In the past it has been the duty of the Judicial Committee to collect all Associated Students cards that are lent out by well meaning students. "This duty," insisted Hubacher, "will carry over into this semester so don't let anyone inveigle you into lending your student card. The punishment is sure and swift."

Military Science Classes Continue To Offer Chance At Reserve Commissions

Initiated last semester, the Military Science classes are again open to students with an R.O.T.C. background. Giving special training in the Coast Artillery Corps of the armed services; they offer students the possibility of becoming eligible for a Reserve Commission as a second lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps Reserve.

Added to the regular course this semester are special courses in the Military History and Policy of the United States, and courses in Police Drill and Discipline.

Starting with an initial enrollment of 15, the course has grown in popularity as a military substitute for regular gym classes. Enrollment necessitates enlisting in the 250th Regiment of Coast Artillery in the California National Guard, and a weekly drill period at the California State Armory is part of the course.

Students interested in this opportunity to prepare for a reserve commission should see Captain James S. Hughes of the college faculty.

Jim Keene, ASUC President advocates the removal of the "honor system." He based his decision on the failure of the system to prevent cheating at exams.

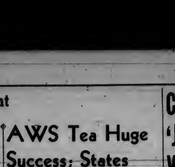
AWS Tea Huge Success, States Women's Prexy

Seeing old faces and meeting new friends proved the old adage of being a treat at the Associated Women Student's tea held yesterday, gave the freshman women a chance to get acquainted with the upper division women and also women from the faculty.

A program planned by Muriel Nolan, AWS president, and her committee, was the first event of the day, which took place in the Little Theater at Galileo High School. Several readings were given under the direction of Ruth Jensen Somers, and Flossita Badger, director of the A. Capella choir, led the women in the college hymn, and Fight On. Patricia Keefer, member of the college choir, sang a solo number. Members of the tap dancing class, under the direction of Laurine Bergin, gave one number.

Leaders of the different groups for women were introduced, and Lucille Jacke gave a short talk on the activities of WAA. After the program, the new women adjourned to Room 212 for refreshments.

Introduction of the AWS officers to the assemblage was a feature of the program. Officers for the present semester are President Muriel Nolan, Vice-president, Margaret Meader, Secretary, Gloria Miller, and Treasurer, Marion MacKillop.



Dorothy Trood, vice-president of the Associated Students welcomed the new women to the college. Members of the faculty introduced at the program, included Margaret Dougherty, adviser to the women students.

Class Elections Complete List Of Students Selected For New Social Committee

Election of class officers completed the new members of the Social Committee for the fall semester, announced Dorothy Trood, chairman of the group.

Those assisting on the committee this year are President Elmer Hubacher, AWS president Muriel Nolan,

Social Chairman

Dorothy Trood

AMS vice-president Hugh Ryan, High Sophomore president Bill O'Neill, Low Sophomore president Art Pomares, High Freshman president LeBaron, and Low Freshman president Douglas Alexander.

Faculty members on the committee are Margaret Dougherty, Claire Cubbon, Alfred P. Agosti, and Edwin C. Browne.

Manila Sends Quotation Of Marsh's Famous Quip

F. Grant Marsh, business division coordinator, received a letter from a former student working in the Orient.

It contains a clipping from "College Humor." The clipping reads:

"You may write your term papers in any manner you choose—only, please observe the copyright laws."

Prof. F. G. Marsh, Naval History, San Francisco Junior College.

My dear Marsh:

". . . Am enclosing a clipping from "College Humor" which I stumbled across in an out of the way Chinese hotel down in the southern part of the islands. Thought you'd find it more or less of interest to know how far from San Francisco your humor eventually found its way. Have no idea of the age of the periodical so couldn't say how many years it may have taken to reach the Chinese.

For your information and also because I am curious to know if you can find it on a map the place was Butuan, Agusau Province, Island of Mindanao. . . ."

George C. Snow

It is a compliment to the Cabbages and Kings column which first published it on the January 18, 1939 issue of The Guardsman . . .

—SPECIAL—
Milkshake and Sandwich
Both for 25c
SUTTON and ROWLAND
500 Sutter at Powell

CAB Inaugurates 'Join A Club' Week Monday

Officially beginning activities of the fall semester, the Club Advisory Board will next Monday inaugurate a "Join A Club" week, announced Harold Hoffman, president of the organization.

The purpose of this drive is to interest both new and old students of the college in joining one of the various clubs.

C.A.B. Proxy

Harold Hoffman

During the week the names of the clubs, together with a list of their activities, will be posted on the Powell Street bulletin board. Any student desiring to join a club will sign up there. A representative of the club will then call upon the student and give him any additional information desired.

"The clubs are the life blood of the college. By means of the extra social and educational value offered by the clubs, one is able to gain new friends and learn more concerning subjects in which he is interested" Hoffman said.

The bulletin board will also contain a social calendar to inform students of the numerous club events which are continually taking place.

Berns Announces Rally Committee; Plans Start For Initial Gathering

As preparations for the first big rally of the semester, contemplated for some date in the near future were laid being whipped into shape, Ray Berns, college cheer leader, disclosed that he has already chosen his rally committee.

Purpose of the committee is to take charge of all college rallies, assisting and planning details for said rallies with the head yell leader. The committee arranges for talent, sets the dates of rallies, takes care of seating arrangements and officiates at rallies as it sees fit.

Heading the committee will be yell leader Berns and two assistant yell leaders yet to be chosen. The remaining members of the committee are: Tony Manov, Jack Schmale, Harold Hoffman, Frank Verducci, Bill O'Neil, Malcom Jacobs, Jeanee Kelly, and Marge Meader.

Tests

Purpose Of Test For All Entering Students Shown

Aiding students to select their respective vocation is one of the major problems of the psychology department of the college, according to Harold Luenberger, college psychology instructor.

The psychology department endeavors to gather enough knowledge about the abilities of a student to make it possible for the faculty adviser to use this information and to guide the student into a vocation which will suit his abilities.

Information is derived from a series of five tests. Subject A Examination, The Strong Vocational Interest Test, Psychological Examination, High School Achievement Test and a Reading Test.

Subject A

The test which concerns the student most is the Subject A Examination. If the student fails to pass this test, he is required to take a course variously entitled English A or Subject A, which deals with grammar and sentence structure. This test is passed by an average of about one of three students.

Combined with the preceding test is a reading test. In this examination, the student reads a paragraph in a limited number of minutes and answers questions on the material read. For students who do poorly in this quiz there is a course, Psychology 50, which increases the speed and comprehension of reading. This course is not required, but it is advantageous to a student to learn to read rapidly and intelligently, educators believe. "So much reading is required in college, the student who can read and assimilate the most knowledge will in all probability receive the best grades," Luenberger said.

Vocational Interest

One of the most important tests of the group is the Strong Vocational Interest Test, Luenberger believes. This examination is one of the main factors in aiding the faculty adviser of the student to place him in a suitable vocation. The quiz is several pages long, and is composed of objective questions, some of which are seemingly senseless, but which in reality, help to determine the student's psychological reaction to a certain profession or job. This test is not fool-proof but is a fairly accurate means of reasoning.

All entering students are required to take these examinations and the results may be found by consulting the faculty adviser or the registrar.

Sharpshooters

Rifleers Hurl Defi; Challenge All Comers, Ask Minor Sport Rating

Setting its sights this week is the college Rifle Team, squinting at what is hoped will be one of its most eventful seasons. Several enticing targets are on the menu, and Fred C. McFarland, team coach and Club sponsor, beams in anticipation.

"First of all," announced McFarland, at week's end, "we want to see Rifle made a Minor Sport.

"The Ram Rifle Team," he emphasized, "is every bit as good as Stanford or California; in fact, good enough to beat them both. And yet, these two teams receive Minor Sports awards, while our own boys get nothing.

"We best both Stanford and Cal.," concluded the Captain, "and we believe we are entitled to recognition."

League Play Near

With hotshots North, Humphreys, Templeton, Davy, and Darr on deck, the team will enter into its regular schedule of competition in the Golden Gate League. A separate team will be entered into each of the League divisions.

Circumstances permitting, there is also the possibility that the Rams will engage in matches with Oxford, Cambridge and other British universities. If the contests can be arranged, scores of the respective teams will be exchanged by mail.

Will Take All Comers

In any event, the college Rifleers, according to McFarland, are ready, willing, and able to meet anyone, anywhere! It is hoped that matches can be negotiated with colleges and universities throughout the United States, and in all available parts of the world.

Many of last year's veterans have left the college halls, but McFarland considers current prospects of little or no importance.

"We'll have a dandy team," he in-

WELCOME . . .
STUDENTS OF THE
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE!
Visit the
COMPLETE STUDENT STORE
For All Required Texts and Materials
STATIONERY BINDERS
FOUNTAIN PENS
ENGINEERING SUPPLIES
ARTIST MATERIALS
A complete line of BINDERS
Especially Made For College Students
We buy your old textbooks at highest Cash Prices
Liberal trade-in allowances for all Current Textbooks
You are always welcome at the
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE STUDENT STORE
518 Powell Street San Francisco

Business

Downtown Stores Offer Students Business Posts

Twenty paying positions in downtown department stores will be open to students of the college enrolled in Retail Merchandising classes, announced F. G. Marsh, head of the business division last Wednesday.

The offer also includes full time work during Christmas vacation.

At the present time only seven students are enrolled in the Retail Merchandising class, leaving room for at least 13 others. Prerequisites for the class are a C average and at least one semester in the college. Students attend classes and work not less than 15 hours a week at a salary of not less than 40 cents an hour.

Arrangements have been made so that students may continue at college until they acquire enough units for graduation.

Any students interested in enrolling in the course are requested to see Virginia Gohn, coordinator for the class at 58 Sutter street between 9 and 11 a.m. daily, or Marsh in Room 102 at Girls High on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Marsh will also be found at 58 Sutter Tuesdays and Thursdays.

sists, "regardless of prospects. We have the material, and we can make a team. All the individual faults will be ironed out in the preliminary trials, and the actual shooting will just serve as a final exam."

ADVERTISING RATE:
1-50 inches ..... 70c an inch
51-150 inches ..... 60c an inch
151-up inches ..... 50c an inch

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .
Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.
Remington Typewriter Division
Remington Rand, Inc.
509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600

SPROOS UP!
Sports coats

Imported British Tweeds
DIAGONALS + DONEGALS
$20
Roos Bros
MARKET AT STOCKTON — MONTGOMERY AT BUSH

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
The Guardsman
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE
Vol. IX FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1939 No. 2

Tests For All Late Registrants To Be Held At Galileo Tomorrow

"Join A Club" Week Now In Progress; Read Your Handbook and Choose

FIRST RALLY AT GALILEO TODAY

Government

Executive Council Change Meeting Date To Tuesday

Next meeting of the college executive council will take place Tuesday, September 19, and future meetings will be held on Tuesday of each week instead of the usual Thursday as heretofore, announced Alden W. Smith, faculty adviser to the group.

The change was necessitated by the new date of publication of the Guardsman, which made impossible the printing of executive council news until over a week following the meetings. Present schedule, brought about by reversing the day of the executive council meeting and the Political Science 92 course for Associated Students officers, will make possible publication of executive council news within three days following the meetings.

Taken under consideration by the council at its last meeting was the semi-annual budget of the Associated Students of the college. Publication of the budget will be made in The Guardsman as soon as its final approval has been received.

To Paul M. Pitman, resigning assistant to President Cloud, went a letter from the council expressing in the name of the students they represent the college's appreciation of his excellent work and their best wishes for success in his new position as Dean of Men at San Jose State College, announced Elmer Hubacher, Associated Students' president.

Approved by the council were the standing committees to deal with rallies, social and judicial affairs. At early meeting was predicted for the latter group in order to deal with cases of loaned student body cards at the season's first social event, the Low Freshman dance held last week.

Browne's Office Seeks Information On Student Part Time Employment

Any information relative to the possibility of placing students of the college in positions where they might earn room and board by part time work was requested this week by Dean Edwin C. Browne.

"I have on file the applications of a number of students who rather need some sort of part time employment in order to aid them through their college education. We are doing our best for these students, but the number of positions available does not equal the applications. For that reason I would very much appreciate it if students could let me know at once should they be acquainted with any positions that would offer a college student his board and room or a chance to make a few dollars by working Saturdays and after school," said the dean.

The Dean also expressed his gratitude and appreciation of the way in which students of the college cooperated during the past few weeks.

"The administration is very grateful for the excellent spirit shown by the students in adapting themselves to the temporary circumstances which necessitate the travelling from one building to another," Browne said.

Dougherty Offers College Women Aid In Finding Jobs

To women of the college interested in part time work came an offer of help from the office of Margaret Dougherty, adviser to women.

"If any women are interested in room and board and a small salary in return for part time work, they should see me in my office at room 211 in the Galileo High School Building," said Miss Dougherty.

Miss Dougherty's office is the first of the three small offices located in room 211, which is situated to the left as you enter Galileo from Francisco Street.

Students pictured above are returning to the College Hotel and Restaurant Management Division after a summer's experience at the following places: Ernest Box, Relief Man at Boyes' Springs; Tom Caswell, Clerk at Hotel Californian, San Francisco; Bill Dewey, Porter at Big Trees Lodge, Yosemite; Albert Floyd, Elevator Boy at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco; Elsc Franceour, Maid at Hotel Sir Francis Drake, San Francisco; Harry Green, Clerk at Feather River Inn, Blairsden; Robert Klingler, Clerk at Hotel Fairmont, San Francisco; Waldo MacDermott, Assistant Auditor at Hotel El Cortez, San Francisco; Kikito Momli, Sandwich Man at the Union, Stanford University; Terry Sandelin, Clerk at Palace Hotel, Ukiah; Sterling Silver, Feather River Inn, Blairsden; Ilse Sommer, Pantry Woman at the Cellar, Stanford University; Harry Tousley, Porter at San Francisco Hospital; Robert Walker, Elevator Operator at Hotel Drake-Wiltshire, San Francisco.

Hotel and Restaurant Division Increases Enrollment; Credit To Student Placement

Continuing under the coordination of J. Graham Sullivan, who has added the post of assistant to the President of the College to his other duties, the Hotel and Restaurant division has noted an increase in enrollment for the coming semester, announced Mrs. Hilda Watson of the administrative staff of the division.

Students Placed

Giving credit for the increased enrollment to the prompt placement of graduates, Mrs. Watson said that many former students had secured permanent employment and that other students of the division had been employed during the summer as clerks and assistants in hotels throughout the bay area and at Lake Tahoe.

Also announced by the same source were plans for a series of guest speakers from the hotel and restaurant world to address the division during the course of the semester. Prominent hotel men who have spoken before the division in the past include the manager of the Waldorf Astoria in New York, the Hotel Utah in Salt Lake City, and the managers of several of San Francisco's larger hotels.

The Hotel and Restaurant Society, social group affiliated with the division, has announced plans for a barbecue and picnic. "We are planning our first social event for the early part of October. The probable location is Mill Valley, but our plans are not yet final," said Stirling Silver, vice president of the society.

The following graduate students of the division have been placed in permanent positions as listed below:

Louis Aber, night auditor, Hotel Whitcomb; Lester Asbury, clerk, Hotel La Playa, Carmel; Eugene Boulware, counter server, Cellar, Stanford University; Clark Chittick, porter, Yosemite Lodge; William Chittick, clerk Yosemite Lodge; Ralph Cummings, baker, Hotel St. Francis; Robert DeShields, cook, Cellar, Stanford University; Jean Gejbard, steward, United Air Lines, Chicago.

Naomi Giffen, assistant director, Dining Halls, Stanford University; Kenneth Hargette, baker, Hotel St. Francis; Mitchell Hoffman, clerk, Hotel St. Francis; Harley Johnson, cook, Hotel Empire; Collin Overland, assistant manager, San Ysidro Ranch, Santa Barbara; Wenzel Peck, chef, Oakland Women's City Club; Cynthia Richardson, hostess, Big Sur Lodge; Carl Rutledge, assistant catering manager, Hotel Empire.

Don Sands, refreshment service, Feather River Inn; Neil Swanson, apprentice cook, Hotel St. Francis; Alma Teeter, housekeeper, Jokake

(Continued on page 4, column 4)

Judicial Committee Meets Next Week To Discuss Student Card Violations

Meeting for the first time this semester, the judiciary committee will meet at Galileo next week.

This first meeting is for the approval of the tentative plans, which will then be given to President A. J. Cloud for his approval. Another important topic is the approval and rewriting of the Judiciary committee by-laws by the committee in charge.

There are only five members on this committee, Elmer Hubacher, president of the Associated Students, Dorothy Trood, vice-president of the Associated Students, Al Williams, chairman of the committee, Muriel Nolan, president of the Associated Women Students, and Tony Manoff of the Block Society.

Members of the committee are appointed. They are expected to fulfill the two main functions of the committee, which are to prevent students from loaning their Associated Student cards to outsiders or to students who do not possess a card, and to enforce the honor system among all students.

Last Friday at the Low Freshman dance, the committee was active and collected four student cards. In accepting the honor system, the committee hopes that this will not have to be done at the rest of the social dances sheduled for this semester.

The offenders, whose cards were collected will be notified by mail when to come for their hearing. Such hearing, it was said, will not be a trial, but a meeting to warn students against lending their cards.

Meetings will be held at Galileo at least once a month. Letters are to be sent to the members of the faculty asking their aid in enforcing the honor system. This is to be done at the first meeting or very soon after.

LOST

A woman's ring probably in girl's washroom at Galileo last Monday afternoon. Silver open work with round, flat, black stone. White lily with a touch of blue set in stone. Valuable to owner as keepsake. Finder kindly return to college office at Galileo or to Lois Rasmussen. Reward.

High Freshman Dance Set For October 11; Orchestra, Place Unknown

With the date of the next social affair of the college definitely set at October 11, plans for completion of the remainder of this semester's social calendar are progressing rapidly, announced Dorothy Trood, chairman of the college social committee.

It has not definitely been decided whether the dance, to be held the Wednesday night before Columbus Day will be informal or semi-formal. Honors High Frosh

The affair which will be the semi-annual High Freshman class dance will be held either at the War Memorial auditorium or the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel.

"Although it is still too far in advance definitely to choose the orchestra which will play, it may be possible to get Ernie Heckscher and his band to play for the occasion," Miss Trood disclosed. Heckscher, a well known band leader in the bay area played at Larkspur for several seasons and recently concluded a successful engagement at the Rose Room Bowl of the Palace Hotel.

Large Crowd Friday

"We were gratified to see the large crowd of students that turned out for the dance last Friday and sincerely hope that all enjoyed themselves," Miss Trood said.

The next meeting of the social committee will be held Tuesday, September 19, at the Galileo building.

Hotel Students Return To Campus

Campaign

Club Board Meets Soon; Join A Club Week Is Extended

Holding its first meeting of the semester, the Club Advisory Board will pass out club petitions to representatives present on Thursday, September 21, at 1:00 P.M. in Room 103.

Campaign Extended

According to Harold Hoffman, president of the Board, the "Join-a-Club" Week has been extended another week in order to give the new students an opportunity to get acquainted with the various organizations.

Invitations to attend the first meeting have been extended to President A. J. Cloud by James Hughes, adviser of the Board. A representative from each club in the college must be present at this meeting in order to receive a petition.

Discussion of the social calendar for the whole semester and the schedule to be posted on the calendar in the Powell Street lobby bulletin board, will be the purpose of the meeting.

Dance Planned

Among the tentative plans of the Board is the Club Advisory Board dance which, when it is approved, will be held about October 25.

As the "Join-a-Club" Week has been extended, all low Freshmen who are interested in becoming members of some of the organizations of the college are urged to get in touch with the officers of that club. The names of the associations are listed in the Student's Handbook.

Petitions are to be issued at the coming meeting and are to be returned by the representatives at the next meeting which will take place during the first week of October.

"This semester, the Club Advisory Board is planning to stimulate more interest among clubs than in previous semesters, and in this way have every student in the college a member of one of the many clubs. The Board is sure that this will improve the feeling of fellowship and spirit among the students, as well as widen their interests in the college," Hoffman said.

After the first meeting the Club Advisory Board will have the schedule of all events posted at Powell Street, and the time of the next Board meeting will be scheduled.

Officers of the clubs are urged to have a representative present at this coming meeting, as very important topics are to be discussed.

Organized a year ago, the purpose of the board is to act as a coordinating body between the students in the clubs and the Administration. First begun by former Guardsman editor John Julius, the organization has enlarged its activities, and according to Dean Edwin C. Browne "has acheived a well merited fame as a smooth functioning group."

Music

A CAPELLA CHOIR TO SING AT FAIR SEPTEMBER 30 IN SAN FRANCISCO BUILDING

First performance of the semester of the A Capella Choir will be at the Golden Gate International Exposition on September 30, probably in the San Francisco Building, Flossita Badger, director announced yesterday.

"On our first program the choir will sing Hodie Christus Natus est (Today Christ is Born) by Willard, Heavenly Light, a Russian number, and Waltzing Matilda, an Australian folk Song," Miss Badger said.

Miss Badger herself appeared in two concert engagements this week. The first was last night in Berkeley, and the other will take place at the Fair tomorrow afternoon in the California Building. The concert at the Exposition is sponsored by the Mu Phi Epsilon, a Music National Honor Sorority. On the same program will be Gertrude Hopkins, well known New York harpist.

Harp and voice duets, rendred by Miss Hopkins and Miss Badger, will be Mendelssohn's On Wings Of Song, Si Mes Vers Avaient des Ailes, by Hahn and The Star by Rogers. Among the solos to be sung by Miss Badger, will be Fildein san beit by Brahms, Serenata Gitana by Buzzi and Peccia, Vignities of Italy by Sara Teasdale and Wintes Watts. The Harp solos will include four groups featuring modern French music.

"There are many music courses open to students who are interested but not majoring in music. We are always glad to have these students in the available courses," concluded Miss Badger.

Benny Walker Scheduled To Star At First Football Cheer Fest; Luminaries' Appearance Rumored

Featuring well known local radio personality Benny Walker, the first football rally of the semester, intended primarily as a medium of arousing spirit for tonight's opening football game with Placer Junior College, has been set for this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Galileo auditorium.

Walker will bring Little Benny of The Homestead Amateur Hour to the rally and together they will put on a short skit.

A strong possibility that several movie stars here for the Comedians versus Leading Men's baseball game may be on hand for the rally was voiced by Jack Schmale, college press agent.

Appearance of the movie stars depends upon the probability that any of these luminaries will be in San Francisco by this afternoon. In the event that some of the group should arrive here by that time, Schmale has been practically assured by Bob McIver, publicity director for the baseball game, of their services. Included in this group may be such stars as Joe E. Brown, Wayne Morris, Edgar Kennedy, Buster Keaton, Joan Blondell, and Dick Powell.

Radio Personality

Benny Walker

In the absence of Ray Berns, college yell leader, Art Pomares, headyell leader of last semester will lead the college yells. Assisting Pomares will be the two newly chosen assistant yell leaders, Bill Menary, formerly of Balboa High School and Peter Aydelotte, Jimmy Fawn, also a former college cheer leader, will aid the above mentioned three in the yell leading chores.

Coach Lee Eisan will be introduced for the first time as head football coach. Eisan will briefly discuss prospects of the team and will then introduce the individual members of the team.

So that all students may come to the rally thereby insuring a large turnout at tonight's game, all 3:30 o'clock classes will meet and then go to the auditorium, the registrar's office announced.

WSS Book Exchange Closes After Successful Week

Concluding an even more successful semester than the previous one, the WSS Book Exchange closed its doors last Tuesday after handling approximately 200 books for students of the college, announced Miss Verrel Webster, sponsor of the group.

Holding a meeting early next week, the WSS will discuss future plans for the book exchange. Dean Edwin C. Browne will be present to help the organization iron out any difficulties that may arise.

Fire Drill Bell Empties Powell Building Rapidly

Pictured above is a recent scene showing students emptying from the portals of 540 Powell Street.

First college fire drill of the semester found the entire Powell Street building cleared in a period of three and a half minutes, announced the representative of the San Francisco Fire Department following the drill last Tuesday.

This time, within a few seconds of previous records, is considered to be satisfactory for clearing a building of this size with a reasonable margin of safety.

However, it was the opinion of the fire department that the exterior fire escapes were not being employed properly so as to clear the building in the shortest possible time.

"It has been observed that the first students to come out on to the fire escape platforms do not seem to know what to do. They stand at the head of the escape waiting, wasting precious time until someone leads the way down, thus forcing down the stairway from its normal position," observers said.

The fire department estimated that the time lost on Tuesday from this cause amounted to almost a full minute.

"The department has suggested that some definite person be given the responsibility of seeing that the exterior escapes are lowered immediately the fire warning sounds, and steps will be taken with this in view before the next fire drill," announced Thomas O'Neill, faculty member in charge of the Powell Street building.

Further suggestions on bettering the time for clearing the building were advanced by Dean Edwin C. Browne. "It has been reported to me that in several classrooms students did not seem to be aware that the prolonged sounding of the bell so indicates a fire warning, and it was only after being so informed by the faculty members in charge that they began to leave their rooms. I wish to remind students that immediately upon hearing the fire drill bell they should begin to move out of their rooms toward the designated exits so as to save valuable time," said Browne.

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1939 No. 2

BILL FRANTZ ..... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse — Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross ..... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ..... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat ..... Assistant Managing Editor
Dorothy Trood ..... Women's Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Sports Editor

REPORTERS
Lucretia Antonicelli, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, John Hansen, George Jensen, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Harold Unterberger, Jack Wieckers, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Edmund Wunsch

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Editor Bill Frantz Directs Guardsman By Remote Control; Associates Pinch Hit

PINCH hitting for Editor Bill Frantz, convalescing in a hospital from a recent injury, The Guardsman staff will be forced to carry on for the next two weeks without his guiding hand.

Frantz, well known in college circles is suffering from a wrenched back. Although lying in bed at a hospital, Bill is still keeping a watchful eye over the destinies of The Guardsman, and is transmitting his orders through the Managing Editor.

As spokesman for the staff, the faculty members, the officers of the Associated Students, and the many students acquainted with Bill, the Managing Editor wishes him a speedy recovery.

Balance Between Study, Play Is Desirable Goal Of College Student and Well Rounded Life

One of the hardest tasks facing the college student today is the problem of keeping balance. Keeping balance in regard to college simply means controlling the often-noted impulse to make a college career a long, hearty and thoroughly wasted one. The question has often been asked, "Do students come to college to study or to play? The answer is both. This should be self evident to most people, since both study and recreation play an important and highly essential part in student life.

Unfortunately, some collegians are inclined, either consciously or unconsciously to take advantage of their positions and devote most of their attentions to the lighter veins of college. The expression "He has lived a well rounded life" has been said many times, but of course that the individual in question has divided his life equally among the several interests he pursued.

A student after graduation should be able to say the same. To be able to face the world with equanimity and confidence, an equally divided college is essential.

This does not mean that all college students should immediately revert to the "bookworm" type. Such would be neither desirable or even remotely possible. It does, however convey a part of the attitude that should be sought.

In the modern university or college there are usually three classes, the two extremes and the middle group. One extreme is the type of student who does nothing but study, and worry over his lessons, paying no heed to the many other phases of college life. The other extreme is the student who lives from one dance or athletic contest to the next, or takes part in some sport and devotes all time and energy to it. Then, of course there is the middle group, which is usually in the minority. This group does not go to one extreme or the other but remains balanced, spending part of the time studying and part of the time with other affairs.

The two extremist groups are each losing an essential part of their college life, one group by playing too much, the other by working too much.

It should be possible for the normal, average college student to regulate himself so that after he has completed his college course, he can emerge with a satisfaction derived from feeling that he had a good time, as well as learned a great deal.

College Offered First Opportunity To Show Support of Activities — Football, Rally, Clubs

Tonight marks the advent of the football season for the college.

Editorial writers at this college have from time immemorial waxed eloquent on the subject of athletic teams and encounters, and seemingly are pretty much ignored.

Perhaps this is due to lack of interest on the part of the students, perhaps it is through lack of confidence in the team. At any rate, there is no doubt that our teams, especially football have lacked support. The best test of college spirit and feeling is the support the students extend to their team. Football has in the past suffered greatly in the college because of its somewhat poor showing. Students do not stop to realize, however that a poor showing on the part of the team is to a certain extent the fault of the spectators, or rather the lack of spectators. There is no denying that in the past the college football teams have not reached top rating, but whatever good qualities did exist were destroyed through lack of support on the part of the student body.

Football is a tough sport. It is easy enough for those on the sidelines to make caustic comments and severe criticisms, but it isn't quite as easy for those fellows on the field who are battered around.

College support of the team will greatly help and inspire the players. Any men knowing that the students in the stands have confidence in them, are cheering them on, will naturally put their best efforts forward, and strive for victory.

First evidence in the support of the team will be at the rally this afternoon. The rally committe has prepared a highly entertaining show at which many celebrities will be featured. The rally

(Continued on page 4, column 1)

in TROOD ings

By Dot

IN eager anticipation to get home in time for dinner last week, Hal Hoffman, CAB prexy, laden down with books and binder, came tearing out of Galileo Building at a terrific speed. Forgetting the fact that his shoes were only a couple of days old, and still very slippery, Hal made a wild dash to catch the oncoming car, and . . . oops my dear! what a neat spill. Hoffman, with feet in mid air and books and binder flying helter skelter, was indeed a spectacle to the many onlookers. How are you feeling now Hal- Still embarrassed?

Overheard . . . Helen Hansen telling some friends that the next time Harry Owens comes to a local hotel, she is going to do a specialty number . . . THE HULA. If that's the case, Helen, you'll be seeing lots of your friends at the hotel during your engagement.

Seen . . . those long, long lists of names being carried around in sacred trust by the prexies of the Alpha Phi Omega, Phi Beta Rho, and Lambda Chi organizations.

Perhaps everyone should go horseback riding before a college dance, because contrary to usual belief that, well . . . you know, Marion MacKillop and Florence Hansen, two members of Laurine Bergin's Friday afternoon class, were as full as pep as anyone that attended the dance. . . .

And speaking of those popular new jackets worn by the male element of the college, have you all seen that one Horace Simi is sporting? If you haven't, be sure and get around to seeing it, as it is quite the thing!!! We won't begin to describe it, as this jacket should be at the top of your MUST SEE list.

It is too bad that more people couldn't have been around yesterday to see Hal Lund turn blonde Shirley White over his knee. It seems that Shirley, by some hook or crook, got hold of Hal's shoe lace and wouldn't give it back to him. The battle lasted about two hours and it is hard to say who won because . . . well . . . we'll leave it at that.

To quote Dan Rosenblat, "There are gentlemen, and gentlemen, and then again there's Rosenblat."

To class officers—get started on the activities you plan to have your class sponsor before the semester is half over. How about more class enthusiasm this year?

The . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

LAST year Ruth Eleanor McKee, in collaboration with Alice Pleenor Sturges, wrote her novel, Three Daughters. As a story of the first World War, Three Daughters is an interesting book. Its lack of literary greatness is vindicated by its background of starkly realistic war horrors and tragedies. Almost too realistic are the descriptions of a convoy of American ships besieged with a plague of the death-dealing Spanish influenza, of the hospitals overcrowded hospitals for the wounded, of the broken minds and bodies, and of the other ghastly and gory disasters rendered by the rapacious World War I.

Although the characters of Three Daughters are fictitious, the historical data and the tragedies that fill the book are authentic. With the aid of the diaries and memories of American Red Cross nurses and other women who aided the Allies in the cause during the war Miss McKee relives for us the nightmarish years of 1917 and 1918.

The novel is fundamentally a love story, concentrated around three daughters of a wealthy American munitions manufacturer. The eldest sister becomes a war nurse in 1914 for the French and later for the Americans. Her younger sister follows her to France in 1917 to work first as a canteen girl and later as a telephone operator in the Signal Corps. The youngest sister goes 'over there' in 1918 as a Red Cross worker.

The part the war plays in the lives of this family, at home as well as abroad, and of the world-wide aftermath of the Great War reminds us once again what a salient influence that war will have on generations to come. The stormy Peace Conference and its Versailles Treaty, as well as the attitude of the people of the United States during and after the War have not escaped the authors' all-enveloping picture of life as it was for the Allies in the last two years of the War.

In this novel one does not read of a romantic, heroic period, but of ugliness, dispair, bitterness, and heartache. It seems that the author is trying to show the uselessness of war, as well as the almost irreparable ravage and destruction war never fails to leave.

To those who want a true and living story of the dramatic, rather than romantic side of modern warfare, beyond the flagwaving, Star Spangled Baner stage, we recommend Three Daughters. To those who want to cherish illusions about the 'Road to Glory' we give warning not to read Three Daughters—and likewise to those who have weak hearts—the scenes describing the wounded may be too much!

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

FADE IN

"It is late Sunday night—In fact it is early Monday morning when the night clerk at one of the first rate San Francisco hotels is discovered sitting behind the desk. He has a far-away look in his eyes.

The telephone jangles, jarring the young man out of his reverie. The young man says "x—?#!) (&:;)" and shakes the dreams out of his top piece. He picks up the phone and his voice smfles, "Room Service." The other voice moans, "send me up two hot water bottles, my feet are cold."

The clerk, now entirely alert, asks "Won't one be sufficient, sir?" Party of the second part retorts, "Listen, I've got two feet and they're both cold!"

FADE OUT

• • •

The year is 1947. Bob Klinger, prexy of the Hotel and Restaurant Club in 1939, is pacing the parlor angrily. Says Bob, "I stand all day over a hot stove making crepes suzettes and then come home and cook and bake for you! and what do I get? Nothing!"

Wife: "You're lucky. I get indigestion."

• • •

SPELLING

Germany—the aggressor
Russia—keeping out
Italy—So are we England—We are allies
France—So are we Put them together and they spell "GRIEF".

Thanks, Sam.

• • •

Ken Pasqualetti thought his search for the "parlor and marshmallow" type of girl had narrowed down a bit. He discovered himself in a class with 21 girls and just a few boys. His enthusiasm ran away with him as he informed his friends of his good fortune. Ken has learned to keep his mouth shut for there are too many new fellows in the class—all Ken's friends.

• • •

"Dusty" Rhode is speeding down Powell Street. We yell, "What are you running for?"

"Gonna stop a fight."

"Who's gonna fight?"

"Just me and another fellow."

• • •

PROSPERITY

Art Pomares applied for a job at a prominent men's furnishings store. The personnel manager decided to test art's application of abstract thinking.

"Well, Mr. Pomares, what would you do with a million dollars?" he asked.

"Oh gee—I wasn't expecting so much at the start."

• • •

It certainly looks as if Elmer Hubacher's newly appointed Judicial Committee is going to fulfill its duties spectacularly. There is not a more capable member of the college than Al Williams when it comes to functioning as a committee of this type. For Al was Don Mix's coworker in planning the Judiciary body and the Associated Student's constitution.

Dorothy Trood, Associated Students' vice-president, has also been president of the AWS. Dot, too, is experienced in student government.

Tony Manov, slightly baldish basketball star, is the third member of the committee. Tony is mature of judgement and a thoroughly competent committeeman.

Untried but capable is Muriel Nolan. Muriel is noted for her pulchritude, but before the semester is over, she will be complimented for her excellent judgment and cooperation.

The next step is to have the 2400 students cooperate with them.

• • •

(Feature Editor's note)

Blue Pencil Bill wrote the above while recuperating from a sprained back. It is the opinion of many persons that he received the injury from continually "shovelling it." Bill refuses to comment.

Animals provide the inspiration for many college cheers. Columbia has given us "The Lion," here a yell in which the rumblings of the king of beasts are given off. California's "Grr-ah" is taken from the growl of the Bear, and Purdue has a "Kitty Yell' in which the rooting section purrs. Dartmouth rooters use Indian war hoops and so do the Illini.

Over The Goal

By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Freedom of Press! No!—Yes! Both Sides Expressed

● HOORAYS AND BOUQUETS

Editor, The Guardsman:

"Bouquets" are in order to the staff and its adviser for its first issue of The Guardsman. Some of the new columns (with extra special mention to "inTroodings" by Dot are extremely good. Even though The Chronicle did think of it first, the streamlining idea is fine.

Taking everything into consideration I think the entire college student body should give a loud "Hip, Hip, Hooray" for a Junior College paper that's really tops.

Doris Schnacke

● FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a recent graduate of the college I was interested in seeing the first issue of the paper. There was only one fault I could find. In the column by Leonard Gross there is a statement which was false and which has been the basis for numerous arguments. The press of the United States is not "free and uncontrolled" although such a prerogative is granted by the constitution. So-called "Big Business" stands behind every large newspaper in the country. As to distinguishing between true and false foreign reports, such a thing is impossible. All foreign reports are censored before they leave the country. One cannot even term Associated Press reports as unbiased and reliable. The Associated Press is known for its coloration and suppression of news. And only because it is responsible to capitalistic interests rather than the general public. The American public is quite ignorant of the true status of a so-called "free press." For further enlightment on this subject I refer Mr. Gross to two books by George Seldes, "Freedom of the Press" and "Lords of the Press."

Disillusioned

● NO LORD OF THE PRESS

Editor's Note:

Over such issue, the followers of American newspapers have argued for more than a century. Because the Constitution as well provides to all citizens of these United States freedom of opinion and expression therefor, of the writer of the above letter is entitled to his opinion. Before, however, attempting to influence others with his own professed propaganda, we suggest that he supply authoritative foundation for his statements. We also, most humbly, suggest that the writer consult authors other than Mr. Seldes alone on the subject, namely, Alfred McClung Lee and his "The Daily Newspaper in America." The press, like all other functions in the sociological processs, has its faults. Freedom of the press, like all other ideals, is one toward which newsmen at least strive. With the above with Voltarian sentiment—"We do not agree with the writer's opinion, but will fight to the death for his right to express it."

shots at RAMdom

. . . By Isadore Maloff

SMARTING terribly over the success of our competitor's "Breathes there a man with soul so dead" rhyme appearing in the "Cabbages and Kings" column of last week's issue, the writer of this column hereby declares open war on the farmer who cultivates those cabbages for your reading pleasure.

Our first step will be to show up that little rhyme with one of our own. It was forwarded to us by our Hollywood correspondent. (None of this maintaining of correspondents in such one-night stops as Stockton for us—we go the limit to bring you the real lowdown direct from inimitable Hollywood.)

Lives there a man with soul so dead
Who to himself hath never said:
"Well, this one is different"!

• • •

ORIGINAL "POME"

Encouraged by this comeback, this week we go a step further in presenting a poem of our very own. Despite its amateurishness it is at least original.

Stringless Story

Every now and then we wonder,
What's become of friends we knew,
In those good old days of yonder,
When J. C. was a college new.

Just the other day we noticed,
A dear old pal of yesteryear,
Tennis racket frames he sells now,
In a town not far from here.

"Tell us, Morrie," we asked him frankly,
"How'd you end up doing this "
"First," he sobbed, "Lend me your hanky,
For how dear old J. C. I do miss.

"The world is full of graft," claimed Morrie,
"Without pull not a job could I catch,
But selling frames was a different story,
Because there were no strings attached."
(nor red tape, either)

STRING FEVER

Concluding that Morrie was "just stringing us along," we bid him adieu taking our hat, coat, and departure. We suspect that there are going to be some Doubting Thomases who will claim, quite logically enough, that as long as Morrie is engaged in selling tennis racket frames he must also be stringing bobs. (Can't overlook these technical angles in this sort of work).

We can only explain that Morrie's boss is such a firm believer in specialization, that Morrie cannot even touch a single gut, in fact, his boss is so stringent that Morrie is even forbidden to split a gut when he laughs! Poor fellow perhaps that's why he has such a warped outlook on life.

. . . while thinking . . .

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

ACCURATE reporting or commenting upon the war in Europe is impossible, since the newspapers are only given such information as will further the cause of the various nations involved. Therefore, this column will in the future avoid mention of the conflict unless there is something concrete to report or comment upon.

It is hoped that the people of this nation, and more especially the college students of this nation, are well aware of the deluge of propaganda that has descended upon us, both Allied and German in an attempt to gain American sympathy. Believe little or none of it, for it is mostly deliberate lies. Attempt to strike a medium course, and remember by doing so American neutrality will be assured. The question "If we can't believe what we read or hear then what can we believe?" has been asked by many. Our only answer to this query is to think, use your head, and by keeping cool and collected, try to sift the true from the false.

• • •

NATIONAL

AMERICAN Nazi No. 1, Fritz (I am a loyal American) Kuhn, last week in New York said: "The war is the outcome of international Jewish plotting". Well that brings the Jewish batting average to .0000. They've been blamed for everything wrong in the world except the weather. It must be nice fighting to be able to cause enough trouble to plunge the world into war and then blame it on someone else.

Relegating European news to second position, the newspapers of the nation last week flung forth the surprising headlines, "FDR Declares Limited National Emergency". Although at first glance, the headline appeared to give the impression that the United States was about to enter virtually in an armed conflict, upon closer scrutinization it was discovered to be only a precautionary measure to insure American defense and preparedness.

The decree provided that 100,000 men be added to the armed forces of the nation. These men to be raised only by voluntary enlistment are to be divided among the Army, Navy, Marines, and National Guard branches of the service.

Experience is evidently a great teacher, for this is the first time in the history of the United States that the government has seen fit to prepare itself for an eventuality before that eventuality became a reality.

• • •

STATE

THAT Ham and Eggs proposition is rearing its ridiculous head again. As the time for the election draws near, State officials in Sacramento are becoming more touchy than ever on the subject of $30 every Thursday. It seems that cash for relief purposes is running low, and because of the impending election, the State deficit, and the unsettled international situation, the banks are shying away from further aid to the State government.

How strange it is that thousands of people have indulged in wishful thinking to such an extent that they are trying to make this hard-headed, practical world believe there is such a thing as a Utopia.

• • •

CITY

CAPTAIN Fritz Weidemann, German Consul, is seemingly the target for all anti-Nazi guns in the big region. There have been many attempts to get him sent back to Germany, and most recently a forged telegram asked his resignation from the Olympic Club. Naturally the club apologized to the Captain and denied sending such a rude note, after which the resignation was withdrawn.

We are of the opinion that the upstarts in this area who cannot leave Weidemann alone at least should have the decency to respect the consummate the representative of a foreign nation is accorded. After all the diplomat is merely a man obeying his government's orders, and it is the government, not its servant that should be shunned if there is to be any shunning. Come to think of it Captain Weidemann is probably not very well loved by Adolf Hitler, else he would not be stuck at a diplomatic post so many miles from Washington, D. C. or Berlin.

• • •

PRESS

WALTER WINCHELL, ace newspaper columnist and radio commentator has installed a new feature in his regular Sunday night broadcasts. He calls it "Debunking the American propaganda" and it is devoted entirely to showing up the false statements issued not only by Germany, but England, France, and Poland as well.

We extend our sincerest congratulations and approval to Mr. Winchell for rendering the people of the United States such a splendid service at a time when they so badly need it.

RAMS VS PLACER TONIGHT

RAMblings

By LOU GOLDSTONE

Note: This week's RAMblings is an attempt, dubiously successful, at pinch-hitting for RAY BERNS, who, we regret to announce, is ill. BERNS will resume his column upon his recovery.

The scourge of regimentation slaps its clammy mit on the pigskin world —and the Rams go under with the rest.

Those who hark back will recall the dark age of California football, when Bill Ingram, the messiah slated to lead the Bears out of the wilderness of defeat and into the land beyond the double chalk line, took in hand the Bear football fortunes. Ingram had brilliant individual players —Reedy, Schaldach, Keefer, Williams—but never a well balanced team, never a smoothly functioning organization relatively independent of individual performance.

Teamplay Made Difference

After a few rotten seasons, Stub Allison took over the reins, and came up with a surprising outfit in 1935 and '36. In 1937, the "Thunder Team" went to the Rose Bowl, and walloped Bama, and last year the Bears suffered only one defeat.

Bottari—sure; and Chapman, and Meek, and Smith, and a bunch of other stars. But for the past four years, Cal has been fielding a TEAM —not a make-shift club formed around a couple of heroes.

No Stars

So it goes. There are no "stars" on this year's Ram outfit. Regimentation it may be, but experience has shown that it pays dividends.

The 1939 crop of budding geniuses failed to ripen, or something. Whatever the reason, it won't be repeated now. So don't look for prancing halfbacks and flashy ends from big shots at the Ram games this Fall. The tactics of unity are being tried in '39; and the Rams have a TEAM. To the immortal hell and farewell.

Congradiction No. 1

No sooner said than—pooey! This concerns a squirt named Leo Leggett, who comes to us by way of George Washington high school, where he was considered to be a fair player. It looks like "Legs" is the stuff. In the last couple of practice brawls, Coach Elsan sent Leggett in to pull the situation out of the fire and into the bag.

Each time, the Active Atom responded with plays that turned the trick. And in the nick of time; Leggett, the Dynamic Dyne, the Energetic Ery, the Murderous Molecule, sent the winning shots through with ten and one minutes to go, respectively, in the two contests. Is "Legs" sensational—or are we under the wrap?

And incidentally—what about the 1940 Olympics—huh?

Don't Go Near the Gridiron

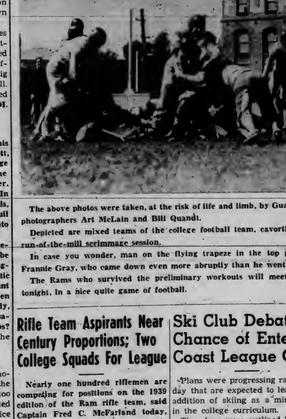
Football is a dangerous game! Photographer Art McLain, in taking the shots you see on this page, came too close to getting crushed and mangled by the avalanche as those practice end sweeps came charging around toward the camera.

Half a ton of brawn is no joke when it roars over the turf and gallops into your face. Ask Art.

Tricky Stuff

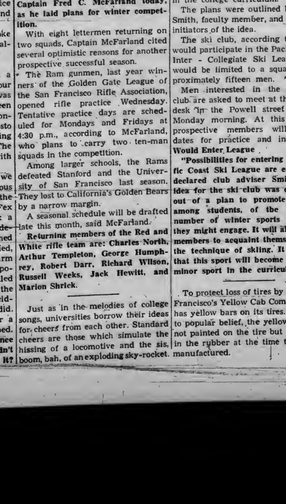
This conference we play in is a funny business. There are only four teams in the works, and so it was that last year, though we had been kicked around by almost every opponent, the Rams came up to the Modesto game with the prospect of breaking into a tie for the conference title. The score in that game was 21 to 0; with the Rams gathering the digit.

You probably remember that we viewed a particularly ignominous incident during the contest. On the last play of the half, Bob Fox dropped far, far back to uncork a throw. He was totally lacking in defense, and a trio of Pirates swarmed all over him. Nevertheless, Bob tried, and as he heaved the pill, his arm was batted down by one of the opposish. Consequently, the football rolled over weakly in midair, fell into the paws of a startled Pirate, who decided to do something about it. He did. Something like seventy yards for a touchdown—as the popper popped.



We look forward with confidence to 1939. . . And why not; it couldn't be worse than 38. . . Or could it?

Roaring Rams On Rampage



Hiyoooo Silver!

Oops!

End of the Line

The above photos were taken, at the risk of life and limb, by Guardsman photographers Art McLain and Bill Quandt.

Depicted are mixed teams of the college football team, cavorting in a run-of-the-mill scrimmage session.

In case you wonder, man on the flying trapeze in the top photo is Frannie Gray, who came down even more abruptly than he went up.

The Rams who survived the preliminary workouts will meet Placer tonight, in a nice quite game of football.

Rifle Team Aspirants Near Century Proportions; Two College Squads For League

Nearly one hundred riflemen are competing for positions on the 1939 edition of the Ram rifle team, said Captain Fred C. McFarland today, as he laid plans for winter competition.

With eight lettermen returning on two squads, Captain McFarland cited several optimistic reasons for another prospective successful season.

The Ram gunmen, last year winners of the Golden Gate League and the San Francisco Rifle Association, opened rifle practice Wednesday. Tentative practice days are scheduled for Mondays and Fridays at 4:30 p.m., according to McFarland, who plans to carry two ten-man squads in the competition.

Among larger schools, the Rams defeated Stanford and the University of San Francisco last season. They lost to California's Golden Bears by a narrow margin.

A seasonal schedule will be drafted late this month, said McFarland.

Returning members of the Red and White rifle team are Charles North, Arthur Templeton, George Humphrey, Robert Darr, Richard Wilson, Russell Weeks, Jack Hewitt, and Marion Shrick.

• • •

Just as in the melodies of college songs, universities borrow their ideas for cheerf from each other. Standard cheers are those which simulate the hissing of a locomotive and the sis, boom, bah, of an exploding sky-rocket.

Ski Club Debated; Chance of Entering Coast League Good

Plans were progressing rapidly today that are expected to lead to the addition of skiing as a minor sport in the college curriculum.

The plans were outlined by Alden Smith, faculty member, and Bob Ogg, initiators of the idea.

The ski club, according to Smith, would participate in the Pacific Coast Inter - Collegiate Ski League, and would be limited to a squad of approximately fifteen men.

Men interested in the proposed club are asked to meet in the faculty desk in the Dowell street building Monday morning. At this meeting prospective members will discuss dates for practice and instruction.

Would Enter League

"Possibilities for entering the Pacific Coast Ski League are excellent," declared club adviser Smith. "The idea for the ski club was developed out of a plan to promote interest, among students, of the unlimited number of winter sports in which they might engage. It will also enable members to acquaint themselves with the technique of skiing. It is hoped that this sport will become a regular minor sport in the curriculum."

To protect loss of tires by theft, San Francisco's Yellow Cab Company now has yellow bars on its tires. Contrary to popular belief, the yellow patch is not painted on the tire but is colored in the rubber at the time the tire is manufactured.

WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADE

By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

Splash Initiation

With Helen Crienkovich, celebrated high diver, performing, the Women's Athletic Association will "splash" into its fourth initiation ceremony at the Y.W.C.A. pool September 22 at 5:45. p.

For the first time in the association's history the women athletes will deviate from the traditional noon luncheon in the Galileo cafeteria to the "splash-party-to-be-followed-by a-spread" affair in the evening. Reason according to association adviser, Bertha Keller, is the unfortunately true fact that few women were free during the noon hour to attend.

Installation of officers and initiation of new members (no dunking! Miss Keller promises) will hold the spot-light at dinner (along with food of course!!) Tickets for the swim and dinner are on sale for 35 cents at the ticket office in the Powell street building. All the women of the college are invited.

• • •

Sport Sign-ups Closed

Have you signed up for a sport? Well, if you haven't, you should have! WAA sign-up was extended from Monday, September 11 when it was scheduled to close, until Thursday, September 14, to give those who hadn't enrolled for an activity time to do so. Aren't you ashamed! —and sorry!

Today will see the start of sports with Volley-ball, badminton, tennis and rifle in the lead. More than one hundred students have enrolled in the physical education rifle classes, and every-other-be WAA riflerry have trained their guns at the targets. —(we didn't say they missed!) Instructor: Capt. Fred McFarland—Time: Tues., Thurs., 2:30.

• • •

Badminton step into the spotlight with an invitation to participantees to bring the "boy friend." Following closely is volley-ball making its bow this semester with a new 32 in copy. The enrollment is heavy and hopes are high for individual play days.

• • •

On Ice

Coming out in front is the college's fastest growing sport in popularity—and we don't mean!' of course. The Ice-Skating! (my my what the Ice Follies have done for the skate manufacturers in town—if there are any!) If professor Joseph Williams, class instructor, and a few other interested parties have their say—well, skaters will have an ice-skating party some time next week. Time, place, and date to be announced. Collegians, rumor has it will be admitted for 30 cents with skates and 55 with-out. (High-school rates). And don't forget your student body cards.

• • •

The riding enrollment speaks for itself—Horses! Horses! Everbody is crazy over horses—and why not! With its horseshow with trophies and everything in the future spurring on them thar equis — equiess — cowboys and cowgals to you!

• • •

Up to the pinnacle of fame via the step-ladder—the tennis one, we mean. An innovation to the college established to start "ace" racket-swingers on their' way. Puff! Puff! Here they come, Wimbledon! Misses Marble and Stammers please note.

• • •

Overflow; Delight

The Y. W. C. A. pool is overflowing with would-be Helen Crienkovich's and Nancy Merkis, although the elementary group has room for a few more amitteur swimmers, according to Laurine Bergin, instructor.

To add to Mrs. Bergin's delight two men have enrolled in her tap-dancing class.

Members of the folk-dancing class have turned into seamstresses and are whipping up their dancing costumes.

With Richmond High School contributing to the stardom of the Hockey field, the popular sport gets under way with great promise for the coming semester.

• • •

Don't forget that you have a date Wednesday, September 27 at 5:45 to splash in the Y. W. C. A. pool at the WAA splash-spread initiation festivities.

Junior Varsity

Flying Lambs Win Two Tilts; Leggett In Starring Role

Two "last minute" victories were registered during the week-end by the Flying Lambs, thanks to wee Leo Leggett, former Washington high school sensation.

Downfall came to Polytechnic's strong league bidders and to Commerce's Bulldogs when Signor Leggett lost all sense of etiquette to place the reserves in the win column.

Saves Day

In the Poly game, things seemed pretty even until the final period. Cofeh Elsan, a gent who enjoys in having a winning team, pushed Leggett into the fray with the intention, of course, of obtaining a score. He was not disappointed.

Leggett, with the line blocking out cooperatively, promptly grasped the spheroid from the center position, faded back ten feet and dropped the ball into veteran Dan Baker's mitts for six points. Final score read: Rams 6, Parrots 0.

Resumes Combat

After a three day "rest", Leggett was sent into the Commerce battle for the aforementioned identical purpose by Elsan. This time, however, the game was something like two minutes from completion.

Again the Ram line blocked out beautifully and again the plays clicked. A long run, a power plunge, and the work was done. Leggett, the little handy man, again came through for the Lambs.

From now on, according to Elsan, it is going to be a different story.

Goes To Varsity

"I'm afraid the Flying Lambs will have to do their own scoring, now. We need this little 140 pound package for varsity use," he explained.

The Lambs, to date, have displayed considerable promise and will undoubtedly bolster the varsity when help is needed.

It is expected that Eisan will put the pinch on many of the boys who have tried out. The coach wants the squad cut down to about forty.

FALL TRACK

Fall track notices are available to students wishing to take a course in track and field. Russ Sweet, athletic mentor, has announced that tryouts will be from 12 to 2 o'clock this afternoon at Galileo.

Those interested in "making the squad" next semester are urged by Sweet to try out. Although this is considered in the fall as a minor sport, it is one of the few major activities held during the spring.

Pigskin Parade Opens At Seals Stadium!

Battle Slated To Begin At 8 P. M.; Mountaineers Field Strong Eleven To Oppose Eisan's Resurrected Rams

Feudin' time again! Truckin' on down from the Placer lode come the Mountaineers, muskets loaded for — Ram. Tonight, Ram meets Hillbilly under the canned ultra-violet at Seals Stadium. A non-conference game; the season's opener for both contestants.

When the whistle blows and the porker floats high, the college 1939 football year will have begun with the first clash on a nine game schedule. The Ram eleven, in some respects green and not yet fully organized, bulges into a Placer outfit that is both rugged and experienced.

Last year's Ram victory—the score was 19 to 6—was no pushover; the figures are deceptive. Now, with the Northerners having lost their handy man, a Mr. Sexton, who ran, blocked, backed up the line, passed, kicked, and shined the coach's shoes, tonight's battle appears to rate as something of a tossup.

Placer Lines Up

On the Placer side of the ledger, the probable starting lineup reads: Backs—Boscariole, Joyal, Kinschloe, and Domitrovitch, an experienced gang averaging around 180 pounds; Ends—Campbell and Dugger; Tackles —McKenzie and Bermingham; Guards—Trafton and Balbo; Center —Ostrum. The team as a whole will average about 170 pounds in weight.

The Rams, this year, are working as a unit. There are, before the start of the season, no scintillating stars—but Lee Isan has the makings of a top rank team.

1939 Watchword

Sound fundamentals; that's the watchword of 1939. Promising material is on hand to replace the veterans lost through graduation. In the backfield, Leo Leggett, Bob Chourret, Al Nauman, and Alex Spieller are in the running.

Spieller will not play tonight, because of an ankle injury suffered in practice. John and Frannie Gray are plugging for the first string end positions; add Jim Motich, converted halfback, George Meyers, and Herb Taylor.

Carignani, Gores, Schoenstein, and a few others are out for tackle, while battling for the guard spots are Leong, Birbe, Johnson and Mel Chicazola. Center position looks to be up to Dick Wilson, and Gil Johannsen.

The line for the Rams averages about 189, and the backfield 167.

Placer is the first hurdle on that long comeback road. The Rams have a cause to work for; the crushing defeats of last year will be avenged.

Tonight is the acid test.

MEET THE COACHES

Russ Sweet

Russ Sweet, popular football, track and swimming coach, comes to the college via Wisconsin, Montana, and Menlo Junior College.

Born in Wisconsin 35 years ago, Sweet attended high school in his home town, Wisconsin Dells, a thriving metropolis of some 5000 souls.

Made All-America

Russ then went on to Montana University, where he starred at left half on the football team for three years. In 1926, his senior year, he was awarded honorable mention on the All-American team.

Participating in the East-West Shrine game the same year, Sweet caught the touchdown pass (thrown by Kelly, another Montanan) that won the game for the boys West of the Mississippi.

Some Boot

One of the highlights of Sweet's gridiron career was a coffin corner kick against Idaho, which traveled 79 yards in the air and went out of bounds on the 1 yard line.

Sweet also gained recognition as a track man, and he still holds the Pacific Coast Conference record of 9.7 seconds for the 100 yard dash.

After graduating from Montana, Russ competed for two years with the San Francisco Olympic Club Team.

Marched Through Menlo

His next stop was at Menlo Junior College, where he was a member of the physical education department over a period of five years.

Russ came to San Francisco in the college's initial year, 1935, coached the '37 and '38 football squads, and is on Head Coach Lee Isan's general staff this Fall.

PRE-MEDS PLEASE NOTE

The Board of Medical Examiners in Sacramento points out there are 12,996 licensed doctors in California.

'39 Ram Gridiron Roster

No.	Name	Position	No.	Name	Position
39	Cunningham, Dave	Half	56	Johannessen, Gil	Center
40	*Nauman, Al	Quarter	57	Mattson, Bill	Center
41	Leggett, Leo	Quarter	59	*Wilson, Dick	Center
42	*Gray, Fran	End	61	Hagen, Jim	Tackle
43	Chourret, Bob	Half	62	*Gray, Johnnie	Full
44	Gores, Jim	End	63	Corbett, Hal	End
45	Malina, Joe	End	65	Jensen, George	Full
46	Taylor, Herbert	End	67	*Leong, Harding	Guard
47	Windeler, Bill	Tackle	68	Nelson, Warren	Guard
48	*Davies, Temple	Half	69	*Schoenstein, Bob	Tackle
49	*Molich, Jim	End	70	*Carignani, Adrian	Tackle
50	Baker, Dan	Half	72	Hufnagel, Bob	Guard
51	Vernon, Aguaido	Tackle	73	*Chiezola, Mel	Guard
53	Molsan, John	Full	74	Johnson, Clark	Guard
54	Spieller, Alex	Quarter	75	Kuckein, Edwin	Guard
55	*Craigie, Bob	Half		*Probable Starters

'39 College Football Schedule

September 15	Placer	Seals Stadium Night
September 22	USF Frosh	Seals Stadium Night
September 29	Pasadena	Pasadena Rose Bowl Night
October 7	Cal. Frosh	Berkeley Memorial*
October 13	Sacramento	Seals Stadium Night
October 21	Open
October 28	San Mateo	San Mateo
November 3	S.F. State	Seals Stadium Night
November 11	Los Angeles	Kezar Stadium
November 17	Modesto	Modesto Night

Life In The Raw Is Usually Mild

(Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents the first of a series of autobiographies by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandys, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities of a new 'short story' laureate, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. All stories will be published anonymously.)

Just 19 years, 4 months ago, I had the misfortune to come into this world of ours. Why do I say misfortune? Looking back on my somewhat dreary life, I can see no highlights or big events to make me use another word. The saying is that "Everybody is created for some reason or to fulfill some purpose." As yet I can see no reason and have fulfilled no purpose, nor do I see any in the future. I don't think I can ever call myself an average boy. I may be mistaken and I hope that I am, but I believe that my life, so far, has been less than the average. What the future holds for me, lies in the hands of Providence.

You may be curious enough to wonder why I have this sour, and somewhat depressed outlook on life. Therefore, I shall attempt to show, by giving you a brief summary of the highlights of my life, the foundation of my beliefs. You, after listening to my story, may form an entirely different idea as to the dreariness of my life. Maybe I expect too much. Who knows?

Going back, way back to the dim memories of my childhood, the first big event which I remember is the time I became separated from my mother while she was shopping. I was promptly gathered up by a policeman, placed in a patrol wagon and delivered home, much to the surprise of our neighbors.

When we moved to Oakland, my life as a farm boy began. How well I remember the time another boy and I ran away from home for no reason at all, and slept all night by the creek. How scared we were, and how anxious we were to return the next day. It was during this period that I started smoking. It is a story in itself. We would retire to our clubhouse in the upper limbs of the tallest tree in the creek. There we would smoke to our heart's content, sometimes devouring two or three packs in a couple of hours. If our money failed, we would pick up cigarette butts from the gutters, put them in our corn cob pipes, and thus continue our wonderful pastime.

It was at this period that I fell in love with my first girl friend. It was brief and left me unscarred.

Probably the next few years that followed are the happiest years in my life. I was at the stage where I had no scholastic, financial, or social worries. The days were spent in attending school; riding half-trained ponies; learning to drive a car; playing cowboys and Indians on some horse-carts that had been junked in a lot; making wooden guns and slingshots; flying kits, and the hundred and one things a boy can do at this age. This period will never be forgotten by me.

Upon moving back to San Francisco, I entered upon a dull period of time. The days were spent between schooling and reading books. I read too much. I did not go out and play like the other children. It was here that I ruined my eyesight, and have been forced to wear glasses ever since. It was during this time that I became acquainted with a boy and we found that we had so much in common, that we have become inseparable friends. It is a friendship which will go with the years.

Finally I started high school. Here followed the most dull and boring four years that I can remember. Nothing happened at all. Looking back, the four years seem like an eternity. How can a person spend four years without something exciting happening to him?

Comes Junior College days and life takes on a somewhat rosier glow. Gathering five or six of my closest acquaintances about me, I at last found the friendship I had been hungering for as far back as I can remember. We were all interested in dancing, learned together, and have since been going to dances together. One of the few highlights in my life, was the two day trip the gang took to the Russian River. There were six of us in the old Auburn. It was the first time for all of us and we were expecting big things. Although the majority of the things never materialized, I still had a swell time. We roughed it, if anybody ever did. Eating cold sandwiches for our meals, and sleeping in a field was a big kick to us. I froze all night, and could not sleep because of the activity of a mole digging in my immediate vicinity. Nevertheless I will hardly forget this excursion of ours.

About this time I fell in love with a girl again, but soon found out that women are all alike. Guess I'll be a bachelor or a hermit.

I have taken a pointed interest in my major in school-engineering and sort of look forward half-heartedly to the future, but I can see nothing promising.

So, my dear listeners, you have it. The few outstanding events in my rather boring life. What do you think?

Editorial — Support Of Activities

(Continued from page 2)

should serve as a practice session for the game, for it will awaken the students to that feeling of college spirit that is so vital. It will also be a good chance for rooters to become proficient in the giving of college yells. Members of the college desirous of seeing gridiron victory tonight can help the team arrive at such an end by giving it wholehearted support this afternoon, followed by a large turnout tonight.

Not only in the field of athletics can student support be evidenced, but in other fields as well. This week under the sponsorship of the Club Advisory Board, the "Join A Club" campaign goes into its second week. The purpose of this drive is to acquaint students, both new and old, with many clubs existing at this institution, and to get their interest and support in making these clubs successful.

There is a saying that "No one does anything for nothing." Perhaps that is not necessarily quotation is true in any event joining a club gives a student in return for his time at the club meetings, a broader outlook upon college life, and a chance to become even more better educated in either a favorite line of work or a particular hobby, to say nothing of the social occasions involved.

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE LIBRARY DISTRIBUTION OF BOOKS

GENERAL COLLECTION

Philosophy, Psychology, Religion, Biography, Fiction ..... Extension Lobby
All other books (except General Reference works) ..... 518 Powell St.
Reference Works ..... P. G. & E. Bldg.
Periodicals (except latest numbers) ..... P. G. & E. Bldg.

RESERVED BOOKS

Books reserved for use in specific courses ..... Extension Lobby (Reserved window)
Periodicals (latest numbers of each) ..... 518 Powell St.

RULES GOVERNING USE

1. Books from general collection (except reference works and periodicals) circulate for one week and are not renewable.
2. General reference works and periodicals are to be used only in the reading room.
3. Reserved books and the latest number of periodicals circulate for two hours or for overnight use after one o'clock.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

may be secured from faculty supervisors in each division of the library.

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .

Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.

Remington Typewriter Division
Remington Rand, Inc.
509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600

—SPECIAL—
Milkshake and Sandwich
Both for 25c
SUTTON and ROWLAND
500 Sutter at Powell

Share Of Exposition Art Treasures May Go To New Balboa Campus

With the announcement this week by Mayor Angelo J. Rossi that many of the art exhibits now being shown at the San Francisco Fair will be distributed among the city's museums and schools at the conclusion of the fair, President Archibald J. Cloud disclosed that the college may come in for its share of the art pieces providing enough students should profess a want for them.

President Cloud pointed out that the acquiring of such art pieces would be of great benefit in decorating the halls and campus at the soon-to-be completed Balboa Park site. Inasmuch as President Cloud does not know just what sort of art pieces the students desire, he urges all students having any ideas on this subject to bring their views to his office.

Many of the murals of the 1915 fair are still stored away in basements with many of these properties being damaged or lost. To prevent such a situation this year, Mayor Rossi has appointed an eighteen person committee to avoid such a similar occurence.

First Debate, New Policy Highlight Activities Of Forensic Department

Beginning the semester with a heated debate and a new policy, that of limited competition for the first semester combined with lecturers and practice, and debating on a large scale the following semester, Lloyd D. Luckmann's debate class swung into action last week.

With two returning veterans, Eleanore Coy and Robert Cohn in his large class, Luckmann plans on two debates, the Bakerfield Junior College Speech Contest and the semi-annual College of Pacific Tournament for this semester.

The present list for next semester includes University of San Francisco, San Francisco State, Marin Junior College and San Mateo Junior college, Luckmann said.

Registrar

Tests And Pictures Tomorrow For All Late Registrants

All entering students who have not as yet had their entrance aptitude tests and pictures taken must report tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock in Room 458 of the Galileo High School Building, according to an announcement by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

Registrar Paul J. Mohr warned all students contemplating graduation at the conclusion of this semester that petitions for graduation should be filed next week. Any changes in programs must be made before the graduation petitions are filed.

With a total enrollment of 2400 students, including four or five university graduates, Miss Learnard disclosed that the individual cards that go into the making of the directory will be ready for use by the beginning of next week.

"Each student who has filed his registration book, should have in his possession a blue registration card. All students must keep these cards at their disposal as classroom instructors will soon ask to see them. Students not having their cards will not be allowed to attend classes," Miss Learnard warned.

Enrollment Of Business Department Increased, New Equipment Added To Course

With a larger enrollment than ever before, it has become necessary for the business department to add new equipment to its stock.

Among the additions, according to F. Grant Marsh, business director, are new typewriters, filing equipment, a multigraph machine and a typepacer to develop rythm in typing.

Students in the spelling and vocabulary class, a former one unit course graduated to the two unit group, will be tested at the beginning of the semester and again at the end to determine the progress they have made. "The tests are not this college" Marsh said, "will be rated by a mechanical scoring machine."

Clyde Mooney, a May graduate of the college, received a scholarship to the school of Business in the University of Chicago. His brother, David, a graduate of 1937 also received a scholarship to the school of business there.

AWS Leader Outlines Plans For Future Social Affairs

Muriel Nolan

To discuss plans for future social events, was the main purpose of the meeting held yesterday by officers of the Associated Women Students, announced Muriel Nolan, president.

Among the many former AWS successes was the fashion tea for the graduating women of the senior high schools, and the tea dansant which originated a year ago, Miss Nolan said.

Similar affairs are being planned by the AWS officers for the women this semester.

Women students are urged to become acquainted with the women's lounge which is located beneath the book store. "This room is kept up each semester by the AWS especially for the women and they should make the most of this advantage," Miss Nolan advised.

Youth Administration Students Requested To Submit Time Reports To Thomas O'Neil By October Third

All students on the National Youth Administration payroll are advised to have their time reports in to Thomas O'Neill, timekeeper no later than 2 p.m. Tuesday, October 3, Edward H. Redford, NYA director, announced last week.

Inaugurating a new system of checking the hours worked by students Redford said, "All students concerned must check in and out with their supervisor." Previously the method has been to turn in the time report at the end of the time period. Under the new system the report will remain in the hands of the supervisor.

"Checks for this pay period which closes the third of next month will probably be received approximately ten days after the reports are received," Redford concluded.

Men's Club

Dance And Fights Given By AMS For This Semester

Swinging into action with the return of President Lee Scarlett the Associated Men's club of the college is making plans for a Hallowe'en barn dance to be held sometime next month, announced Joe Amori, faculty adviser.

The specific time and place have not as yet been suggested but arrangements are to be completed within the next few days.

The barn dance, a traditional affair within the college, has in the past been held at various country clubs throughout the peninsula. Last spring Devonshire country club was the scene of the event, and several semesters ago Belmont Country Club played host to the college. Pronounced the outstanding and most enjoyable affair of the college season by many students, the affair this year promises to be one of the high lights of the Fall semester," Amori said.

Also in the embryonic stage of preparation is the semi-annual Men's Club boxing matches. Held once every semester, the "fights" attract large crowds of students and give promising boxers within the college a chance to display their ability. Any pugilistic minded student who desires to enter these matches is requested to see Amori for further information. Matches are held between members of the various weight divisions during the regular boxing class sessions. The winners then fight before the eager eyes of the college against the champions of their division. All matches are refereed by Amori, and are judged by several members of the faculty.

Journeys

Military Classes Undertake Three Field Excursions

Extensive field trips to points of military interest will continue to be a part of the regular program of the college military science classes during the coming semester, announced James S. Hughes, head of the department.

Tentative plans released by Hughes call for an anti-aircraft firing demonstration October 31, observation of service firing by 12 inch coast defense guns at Fort Baker on December 5, and inspection of the San Francisco Harbor Defense Headquarters at Fort Scott January 9. All field trips carried out by the classes are under the direction of Major Philip F. Biehl, the regular army instructor attached to the 250th Coast Artillery Regiment of the California National Guard.

"Detachment of bay area troops to special duty guarding the Panama Canal may have the effect of changing our program somewhat, but if all goes well the trips will be held as scheduled," said Hughes.

Six members of the last semester military science class reported for duty at the regular encampment of the National Guard during the summer.

On September 23, the Expedition Battalion of the 250th Coast Artillery will stage a searchlight review in the Court of the Nations on Treasure Island as a part of the celebration of National Guard Day at the fair. Included in the battalion are members of the college military science classes who are also enrolled in the National Guard unit.

Stough Announces New Office Force At Bank

John Finn, Keith Groswird, and Helen Nast will compose the office force at the bank during the present semester, announced Carl F. Stough, business instructor.

Students may now obtain their money on books sold by the book exchange, or have their unsold books returned to them if they will call and present their stubs at the Galileo bank immediately, Stough said. After a month all unclaimed books left at the bank will be sold and the proceeds will go into the WSS student loan fund.

Daniel Rosenblat

Armed with this information, we have spent the better part of the summer delving further into the subject, and have found that several other scribes have come to the same conclusion, and have even gone so far as to tabulate their results. Probably the most comprehensive of these research masterpieces is the work of Robert T. Souter published in Esquire under the title of "Boys Will Be Boys". Extracts from this work we print below.

A FRESHMAN BELIEVES:	A SOPHOMORE BELIEVES:	A JUNIOR BELIEVES:	A SENIOR BELIEVES:
That Mary is the name of the sweetest girl in the world, and she's waiting for him back home.	That Mary is the name of the girl back home who is waiting for him.	That Mary is the name of a girl back home.	That Mary is the name of a girl.
That hazing and general castigation of Freshmen is an outworn custom, stupid and unnecessary.	That hazing and general castigation of Freshmen is a necessary part of their education. It will make men of them.	That hazing is hazing.	That hazing and general castigation of Freshmen is a time-worn custom, stupid but necessary.
That all professors are inspired with Divine wisdom.	That all professors are very wise men.	That Professors make human mistakes.	That Professors make inhuman mistakes.
That a trot is something connected with a horse.	That a trot is unethical.	That a trot is a very handy publication.	That a world without trots would be a world without degrees.
That there is more real education in a bull-session than in a classroom.	That there is more real education in a bull-session than in a class room.	That there is more real education in a bull-session than in a classroom.	That there is more real education in a bull-session than in a classroom.
That a man's room-mate is his best friend.	That a man's dog is his best friend.	That a man's pipe is his best friend.	That a man's his own best friend.
That Father is one of two parents.	That Father is someone who signs checks.	That Father is someone who dislikes signing checks.	That Father is someone who can't comprehend the expenses incidental to a college education.
That Esquire is some sort-of-a-title.	That Esquire is a title of respect.	That Esquire is a mag.	That Esquire is a rag.
That a football victory is a glorious triumph.	That a football victory calls for a little celebration.	That a football victory calls for a big celebration.	That a football victory means a Blue Monday.
That all "Old Grads" are learned, wealthy Captains of industry.	That "Old Grads" are fairly successful men.	That all "Old Grads" are just grown up boys.	That all "Old Grads" are just boys who never grew up.
That Foreign Affairs are interesting.	That International Affairs are interesting.	That Boccaccio's Affairs were interesting.	That affairs of the heart are interesting.
That Prep School boys are infants.	That Freshmen are infants.	That Sophomores are infants.	That Juniors are infants.
That he will someday write a best seller.	That he will some day write a best seller.	That he will someday write a best seller.	That he will someday write a best seller.
That the class grind is a queer cent.	That the class grind is almost human.	That the class grind is a friend indeed.	That the class grind is a very helpful friend.
That Thomas Marshall was right.	That Adam Smith was right.	That Mohammed was right.	That Barnum was right.

After slowly digesting the above, and at last realizing that here is an actual cross-section of college beliefs, we thought it only appropriate to add as a sort of last word a quotation by a fellow named Chapin who believed that one should not " . . . ask if a man has been through college. Ask if a college has been through him."

S. F. J. C. Student Store features
RAM "T" SHIRTS
75c

Hotel Division

(Continued from page 1)

Inn, Arizona; Ozzie Torricelli, clerk, Hotel Piedmont, Oakland, Trevett Wilson, clerk, Hotel El Cortez; Gustaf Wolfe, apprentice baker, Hotel St. Francis; Lawrence Wong, assistant steward, Hotel Benjamin Franklin.

Some college cheers are made up of old Latin and Greek words or other ancient languages. The popular "rah" is said to have been the cry of Teuton legions as they stormed across Europe. "Hurrah" is the cheer used by old Anglo-Saxon noblemen, "Hallelujah" was what the early Christians yelled, and "banzai" is a Japanese cheer.

Notes On A College Man's Cuff . . .

All last semester we tacked our byline under a bit of journalistic experimentation known as The Guardsman Student Poll of Opinion, a free-lance attempt to find out what the average (or so-called "Joe" type) of college man was thinking about current debatable points. Only concrete result apparently produced was more or less proof that the college man of today, despite professorial opinion to the contrary, does think in his off moments.

How Many Steps Do You Take At College? Read "Shots At Random"

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Exposition To Feature A Capella Choir On September 30

Vol. IX FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1939 No. 3

AERONAUTIC COURSE FOR CAMPUS

W.A.A.

Women's Splash Party Sept. 27 Stars Crlenkovich

Featuring Helen Crienkovich, famous national high diving champion, the Women's Athletic Association of the college will swim into a semester crammed full of activities with its initiation ceremonies next Wednesday.

The affair, which will be held in the form of a "splash-spread" party, will take place at the YWCA pool, at 5:45 o'clock, September 27.

As far as can be learned, Miss Crlenkovich will do a swan dive, back dive, jackknife, forward dive, half-gainer, full gainer, tuck dive, a new back jackknife, a forward one and one half tuck, and a forward one and one half pike.

Fresh, Soph Meet

According to Marion Dickey, swimming chairman, plans are being made for a swimming race with Freshman competing against Sophomores, in addition to various water stunts. "You don't have to be a good swimmer to compete," Miss Dickey said, adding that "It might be a good idea for freshman girls to get together and select a captain for their teams."

Swimming will be followed by dinner in the YWCA cafeteria, at which time the new officers of the association will be introduced, announcement of this semester's club managers will be made and new members initiated. "The initiation ceremony," Bertha Keller, association adviser said, "consists primarily of having the initiates sign the WAA handbook."

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the event are on sale for 35 cents at the ticket office in the Powell Street building.

Committees in charge of the affair, under Lucille Jacke, association president, are, arrangements, Polly Trenk; hostess, Barbara Smith; decorations, Astrid Rogenes; swimming, Marion Dickey; rearrangemets, June and Irene Schunick; general chairman, Alma Koopman.

Curriculum

Police Training Course Receives Student Support

Extending the long arm of the law's citizen protection interests even into the college, the San Francisco Police Department is currently sponsoring a police training course, for students interested in joining the forces of law and order after graduation from this institution.

New This Semester

The course only inaugurated into the campus curriculum since the beginning of the semester has been approved by administration officials, and enthusiastically accepted by the students of the college.

It has as its purpose the training of young men in the fundamentals of police work so that after having taken the two year course at the college they will be more fitted to become the nation's peace officers.

The course entails a study of criminology, gunnery, military drill, civil service, courtesy, police administration, general principles of patrol work, traffic principles, and first aid.

Faculty Members Instruct

Under the competent instruction of faculty members Harold W. Leuenberger, Lloyd D. Luckmann, Louis G. Conlan and Captain Fred MacFarland, the work is progressing rapidly.

Leuenberger, head of the college psychology department is the instructor in the criminology class. With an enrollment of about 30 men this class studies the principles of crime prevention, control and suppression of delinquency, and the general principles of criminology.

Working together in the Civil Service department, Luckmann and Conlan instruct police students in state government, local government, American institutions, and principles of civil service.

MacFarland Handles Gunnery

MacFarland, a reserve army officer supervises the gunnery, military drill, and courtesy and customs of the service.

The training course is divided into four sections: First elements of rifle marksmanship; second, further practice with the .22 caliber and .30 caliber rifle; third, pistol marksmanship; and fourth, elements of hand grenades, sub-machine guns and gas.

Military drill consists of training the members of the class in the principles of correct posture, marching, and efficiency with an eye to developing well disciplined police officers. The students will be instructed in both the old style army drill and the new streamlined type which has just gone into effect this month.

Courtesy Taught

Courtesy and customs of the service includes a training in courtesy and respect to superior officers, to law and order, and to the citizens of the community.

Captain Arthur Layne of the San Francisco Police Department conducts in police administration, considering the history, duties and customs of the service. Captain Layne also instructs in the principles of patrol work and traffic.

Students entering the course are at times given various tests to discover their physical and mental aptitude for police work. (See adjoining pictures). The results of these tests are recorded so that as time passes it will be posible to check back on the student and discover if he has improved any since he last took the examination.

Separate Boxing Class

Separate classes in boxing are also conducted by the college in order to train the police students in the kind of physical tactics necessary to their chosen vocation.

All students are required to undergo a rigorous physical examination similar to that given men applying for jobs on the police force.

There is also a separate class in hygiene, sanitation and first aid for

(Continued on page 4, column 3)

Future Peace Officers

Pictured above are students of the college enrolled in the new police training course (see adjoining story.) In the top picture from left to right are George Miller, holding the dynometer or grip testing device, John Geytas looking over the color perceptor (test of color blindness) and George Takada examining the mental motor coordinator.

The second picture from the top is a view of the criminology class in front of the Powell Street building.

Immediately above students are seen examing the workings of a .22 caliber revolver. From left to right are Mel Chicasola, Temple Davies, instructor Captain Fred MacFarland, and Bill Gibson.

Shown to the left is Captain Arthur Layne of the San Francisco Police Department seated at his desk in the Hall of Justice.

Hotel

Student Campus Representation Plans Underway

Plans for coordinating college hotel representation have been undertaken by the Hotel and Restaurant division, will come near to completion when applications for would-be representatives to fill out are made accessible in the Dean's office today.

Selections from among the applicants for the positions of college representatives on the campus for the Hotels Mark Hopkins, Fairmont, Sir Francis Drake, Palace, Lake Merritt, and Claremont, will be made by the office of the Dean and the Hotel and Restaurant Division. Selected Candidates, two or three for each hotel listed, will be interviewed by the hotels concerned for final choice.

Lunch Service Earlier

Further activities of the division during the past week include inauguration of luncheon service for college students in the faculty cafeteria at Galileo from 12:45 p.m. on instead of the customary one o'clock opening.

To Yosemite for the annual convention of the California Hoteimen held Thursday, Friday, and Saturday go three representives of the Hotel Division to meet hotel men of the state, make contacts, and publicize the college's unique hotel division. Chosen for the trip are Stirling Silver, vice president of the Hotel and Restaurant Society, William Dewey, and Terry Sandelin.

Foley Added To Faculty

Coming to the college is a new member of the Hotel Division faculty, G. J. Foley, specialist in food costs and administration of catering departments in hotels and restaurants.

Foley, associated with the firm of Harris, Kerr, Forster and Co., restaurant accountants and auditors, recently arrived from Chicago to handle administration of several local accounts of his firm, will devote a portion of his time to teaching food cost accounting at the college.

Judicial Committee Will Consider Honor System For Approaching Midterms

To work out a method of enforcing the honor system during the first midterm period, the Judiciary Committee met twice last week at Galileo.

By-Laws Corrected

During the first meeting which was held on Tuesday, the committee, under the chairmanship of Al Williams, straightened out the by-laws of the organization, which in turn were approved by the committee.

Yesterday the committee discussed ideas and suggestions to carry out the honor system during midterms and finals. Further development of the policy of the association was brought into discussion by committee-members.

Plans of the committee were presented to the Executive Council for approval.

Honesty To Be Enforced

"Enforcement of the Honor System is bound to control part of the unnecessary cheating that has been done in the past," remarked Williams, chairman of the Committee, "the members of the committee have made it their biggest aim to prove that what is written on the front of all blue books is absolutely true."

Reports as to the students whose Associated Student Body Cards were confiscated at the last social dance will be notified when they will have to be present at the committee meeting.

The next meeting has not as yet been scheduled, but the chairman of the committee has the right to call the members together whenever he feels it necessary.

Civil Authorities Grant Permission To Teach Student Pilots' Classes

Beginning this semester, the college is offering an Aeronautic course which will facilitate the turning out of pilots qualified to hold private flying licenses.

A definite announcement to that effect was forthcoming this week, from the office of J. Paul Mohr, registrar.

The aeronautics course will be jointly sponsored by the college and the Civil Aeronautics authority, as a part of a far reaching program of civilian air-training provided for by the last session of Congress.

Mohr, in relating the background of the new program, stated that the entire training movement was the result of the new "air preparedness" policy, which the President advocated last spring in an effort to provide an increased potential aerial strength of the nation.

One of 300 Colleges

The course has been awarded to 300 colleges and junior colleges throughout the country.

"In our own case," said Mohr, "the application which we turned in about three weeks ago has just been passed on by the Washington authorities."

It is expected that the aeronautics course will entail a period of 72 hours in its primary "ground training" phase, to be followed by a routine of actual flight instruction.

Mohr indicated that a probable maximum membership in the class will be 20 students. Sophomore standing, he added, will be a prerequisite, and enrollees must be registered students of the college.

COMPETITIVE EXAMINATIONS FOR STENOGRAPHERS AND TYPISTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Announcement of open competitive examinations for the positions of senior stenographer at $1,620 a year, junior stenographer at $1,440 a year, senior typist at $1,440 a year, and junior typist at $1,260 a year, was made by F. G. Marsh, Business Director, Wednesday.

Applications which may be obtained in Room 119, Federal Office building, San Francisco, should be filed there before the close of business on October 5, 1939.

One Application Limit

Applicants should file only one application for these examinations, and should state the title as follows: Typist, applicants who wish to take only the subjects of the Typist examination.

Junior and senior stenographer, applicants who wish to take the typist subjects, and the dictation test at both rates of speed.

Junior stenographer, applicants who wish to take the typist subjects, and the dictation test at 96 words a minute only.

Senior stenographer, applicants who wish to take the typist subjects, and the dictation test at 120 words a minute only.

For senior stenographer the dictation will be at the rate of 120 words a minute; for junior stenographer at the rate of 96 words a minute. Applicants must be eighteen years of age and citizens of the United States.

Air Navigation Opening

Also included in the United States Civil Service Examination was the announcement of open competitive examination for Under Communications Operator (air navigation) at $1,200 a year. For this position men are desired.

Applications, which may be obtained in California at either Berkeley, or Oakland, must be filed before the close of business on October 4, 1939, at the office of Manager, Twelfth U. S. Civil Service District. Room 119, Federal Office Building, San Francisco, California.

The applicants must have the necessary qualifications to show conclusively that they are able to operate a teletypewriter at a minimum speed of 35 words a minute by touch system, or regular typewriter at a minimum speed of 50 words a minute by touch system. Persons appointed as a result of this examination, who are unable to maintain the required speed at the time of appointment will be separated from the service.

In view of the direct relation of the duties to air radio communication and air navigation credit will be given under the second subject for electrical experience or mechanical experience with radio communication equipment.

All persons appointed as a result of this examination must qualify for such certificate within a reasonable time after appointment, in no case to exceed 60 days from the date of entrance on duty.

Applicants must be between 18 and 40 on the closing date for at the head of the announcement.

Applicants must be citizens of the United States on the closing date specified at the head of this announcement. Foreign-born applicants who meet the citizenship requirements must furnish proof of United States citizenship before they will be eligible for appointment under civil service rules.

(Continued on page 4)

Ice Skating Party Next Friday At Winterland

Potential ice-skaters will hold their Ice-Breaker at Winterland, under the sponsorship of the Women's Athletic Association, Friday, September 29 at 2:30 o'clock. According to instructor Joseph Williams rates are 25 cents with skates and 40 cents without.

"These rates are extremely reasonable," Bertha Keller, women's athletic instructor said. "In fact, they are the best we have ever had, but fifty people must attend the Ice-Breaker in order to get these rates."

Ice-skating is co-educational. In all, 20 women have already enrolled, and Williams has issued a special invitation to men to join the club. Men who are interested in joining the ice skating club must get in touch with Williams before Friday, September 29 and sign up.

If anyone who is interested cannot get in touch with Williams they are requested to leave a note in his mailbox at either the Powell Street building or at Galileo.

Special NYA Jobs Still Open Announces Redford

"There are still a few special jobs opened to qualified students of the college," E. H. Redford, NYA director, announced.

"Although there is a larger allotment of money this semester there is a proportionate increase in the number of applications. Already there is a waiting list for most types of jobs," Redford revealed. "This does not mean that no more students will be placed, however; they will be placed as soon as openings are found."

All NYA students are reminded that the new time sheets are to be filled out in full and handed in by October 3.

WAR MEMORIAL AUDITORIUM CHOSEN AS SCENE OF HIGH FRESHMAN DANCE, WARREN RINGEN TO PLAY

Completion of plans for the forthcoming High Freshman dance was announced last week by Social Committee chairman, Dorothy Trood.

War Memorial Chosen

At a meeting of the committee it was finally decided to hold the second class dance of the semester at the War Memorial Auditorium, Wednesday night, October 11, from 9 to 12 p. m.

The dance will be informal and music will be provided by Warren Ringen and his orchestra. Ringen has played for the college on several occasions and is expected to repeat his past pleasing performances.

"We have not definitely decided on the theme of the occasion or what the bids will be like, but expect to have the matter cleared up at the next meeting of the committee," Miss Trood said.

Room To Dance

The scene of the dance was chosen by the group because it was felt that in the Veteran's Auditorium there would be room enough for all guests to dance. "Since the college enrollment has increased so perceptibly we chose this location so that there would be no complaints about lack of space in which to dance," Miss Trood continued.

Admission to the affair is the usual one Associated Student's card per couple. Although the dance is to be given in honor of the High Freshman class, all students of the college and their guests are invited. "For the benefit of new students, I wish to say that they do not necessarily have to bring a member of the college. Their possession of a student's card entitles them to bring whomever they please," Miss Trood concluded.

Daniel Rosenblat

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1939 No. 3

BILL FRANTZ — EDITOR

Editorial Adviser: Joan Nourse — Business Adviser: Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross — Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff — Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat — Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone — Sports Editor
Dorothy Trood — Women's Editor
Marion MacKillop — Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Lucretia Antonicelli, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, John Hansen, George Jensen, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Harold Unterberger, Jack Wieckers, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Edmund Wunsch

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Lack of Spirit and Enthusiasm Sore Factor In College Life; Lethargic Attitude Prevails

LAST week in The Guardsman an editorial asking student support of the college football team appeared. The very same night the team opened it's season by winning a decisive victory. Did the rooters in the stand respond with cheers? Did they give any outward demonstration of college spirit?

It has long been a source of great surprise and wonder that this institution has seemed from time to time lacking in morale and in spirit. This is not the first time such lack of enthusiasm has been shown. It has happened at many athletic contests and rallies. The point is, Why?

STUDENTS DON'T CARE?

Appearances would suggest that students of this college do not care what happens to their teams, are too lazy to turn out and cheer them on, and in short are too self centered to give a single thought to anything or anyone besides themselves.

The demonstration, or rather the lack of demonstration last Friday night would further the evidence. The students of this college who were in the stands seemed too engrossed in other matters to respond to the exhortations of the cheer leaders. On the other hand, the small handful from the rival college made enough noise, and displayed enough enthusiasm to make the stadium ring.

Perhaps the so called sophisticated youths of today believe it is beneath their dignity to stand up and cheer when a team makes a touchdown. At any rate it seems to be the impression that is given.

DISGUSTINGLY IRONIC

It is ironic to realize that the college is composed of the types of persons who will eagerly kick a team that loses, and refuse to pat on the back the team that wins.

It is now up to the students of the college to prove whether the apparently existing situation is true. The opportunity is again present whereby the poor showing displayed last week can be vindicated.

If appearances have been misleading, it will be a pleasant relief and heartening to everyone. If they have not, it will merely substantiate the aforementioned observations.

New Traffic Safety Laws Enacted; Affect Students Jaywalking, Parking Restrictions

THE early part of this week, the new safety laws governing both the pedestrian and the motorist went into effect.

Passed by the Legislature for the purpose of safeguarding all, the new laws will effect students of the college along with everyone else.

Most important to college students is the fact that jaywalking will no longer be tolerated. The new law requires pedestrians to obey traffic signals.

Also of interest to campus car owners is the law that holds the registered owner of a vehicle guilty of illegal parking even though someone else may have parked his auto illegally. It would be well to check up on the parking situation around the Powell Street building.

It looks as if the San Francisco Police Department really means business and is prepared to fulfill to the letter the new regulations.

Since this is so, it would be extremely wise for the college along with the citizens of the city to think twice before committing what will in the future be considered a violation of the law.

The Case For Neutrality

THE Congress of the United States yesterday convened in special session to consider the President's proposal for the scrapping of the Neutrality Act. The Congress is still assembled today, and may remain so for several weeks.

Crises of extreme gravity have confronted the Congress a number of times in the Nation's history. The legislative body faces a problem now, which may be considered as of a gravity equal to any previously dealt with since this country's inception.

Some hold that it is the duty of America to enter the European conflict. If so, what will we be fighting for? Democracy? We might, of course, be defeated, but even if we should be victorious, could European democracy be saved? What is more important, could our own Democracy be preserved under the strain of a foreign war?

America can, and will, if it is wise, prepare itself for a defense against whatever may arise from the shambles of Europe. Arming ourselves, we can feel safe in our hemisphere.

If we retain our neutrality, we can build and strengthen our own defenses, and in a world of darkness, salvage what remains of human dignity. Rather than risk all we have won, we will consolidate our position, in the firm determination that in so doing we will lay solid foundations for a real Democracy—an honest and enduring civilization such as Europe has never seen, and can never hope to see no matter which side wins.

. . . while thinking . . .

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

RETRACTION: This column two weeks ago voiced the opinion that ravaging Europe would not last long. Main basis for that assumption was that Germany could not exist alone against England, France, and Poland. Entrance of Russia, and possibly Italy into the conflict brings about an entirely opposite hypothesis. Your columnist therefore wishes to retract the previously made statements in regard to the length of World War II, which just goes to show that, contrary to popular belief, reporters are also human beings, entitled to making mistakes.

• • •

Mahatma Ghandi, famed Indian statesman last week appealed to the British government to recognize India as a free and independent nation. Ghandi hinted that British refusal to his request would make it rather difficult for Great Britain to secure whole hearted co-operation from India to help win the current war.

In other words the British reply will mean the difference between having an unwilling ally and a willing one. After having waged a long battle for Indian independence, it is possible that now, with Britain not daring to incur uprisings or rebellions from any of mightay possessions, Mahatma Ghandi's ultimate aim might soon be achieved.

• • •

Switching from one war to another we find that the Japanese have launched another of their determined drives to end the Sino-Japanese war. This general offensive, like all the others will attempt to crush any and all Chinese resistance.

It is our opinion, however, that this new campaign like the others will also fail. There is no reason to believe otherwise. The Japanese are no stronger now than at any other time. If anything, they are weaker. The Chinese, on the other hand, are well versed in the art of eluding the enemy in the hills by day, and returning to harass their camp at night. Perhaps this new drive is but an attempt to "save face" for the people back home.

• • •

NATIONAL

RETURNING once again to the Portsmouth navy yard where she so gallantly set forth some months ago on what proved to be her last journey, the ill fated submarine Squalus arrived last week at her home base. The return of the undersea craft to dry dock ended one of the most tragic of naval disasters ever to hit the United States, and at the same time saw the conclusion of one of the most remarkable rescue and salvage operations in the long history of the American Navy.

• • •

Proving that old adage about an ill wind, comes the information from Washington, D. C. that the present war has put thousands of Americans back to work, and will probably solve most of the unemployment problems existing at the present time.

It is unfortunate that jobs for some means death for others, and the people of this nation may well give thanks that our unemployment situation is not being solved by giving man a gun with orders to shoot down his fellow man.

• • •

The U. S. State Department recently announced that plans were under inspection for the strengthening of American ties with the Latin American republics.

It appears that this country is not taking any chances of allowing another nation to make a favorable impression on any part of South America. This is as it should be, for now more than ever before is it necessary for the Americas to be united in action if not entirely in opinion and thought.

• • •

CITY

DURING the past few weeks, the ever persistent rumor that the Golden Gate International Exposition would run for four months next year has been popping up quite frequently.

Although we do not wish to go so far as to predict that this will happen (although it is very likely) we will say that we think it should happen.

The business men of San Francisco are for it, most of the people are for it, and with the war in Europe driving many tourists to the West Coast, next summer should prove very profitable for this city in particular and all of the West in general.

To add a softer touch—we find the very thought of tearing down and destroying the very beautiful "Pageant of the Pacific", repugnant and thoroughly depressing.

Expanding the curriculum of the night division, the University of San Francisco has added a journalism course covering all features of modern newspaper work.

The . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

BOYS will be boys, or so they say, and Hollywood will be Hollywood. Louis Bromfield's novel, The Rains Came was a choice morsel that Hollywood could not resist. The devastating earthquake, the rapacious monsoon, the cholera epidemic, and the cleansing fire were all done in Hollywood's best "Cecil B. De Mille" manner. Added to this, Bromfield steals a trick or two from Shakespeare and for the convenience of the plot, deals death to three of his characters, then winds up the story with a paradoxically tragic yet glorious finale.

Those who read the novel and saw the picture were disappointed with the Hollywood adaptation. Evidently the book is one that is written so beautifully that it cannot be justly reproduced on the screen.

Tyrone Power, as the Hindu doctor, Major Safti, did a neat piece of acting. As a rule we do not care for Power, but in this picture he deviates from his usual role of a smitten Casanova into a character whose only aim in life is unselfishly to help his backward people, giving up all personal and worldly pleasures for a cloistered life.

Famous for being the ideal wife, Myrna Loy, as Lady Esketh does an about face, and charmingly becomes a designing woman, utterly unfaithful to her old, sickly, rich husband.

Portraying a world-weary English artist, George Brent gives his all to a poor role. As a drunkard and a scoundrel, Brent subtly convinces us that Tom Ransome is really a kind and noble person under his blase veneer.

As Fern Simon, Brenda Joyce lets us all down. Miss Joyce was an attractive addition to the cast, but we wish she had not tried to act!

The petite woman who played the part of the Marahani of Ranchipur was superb. We could not help but love her. Like Queen Victoria, her small stature was forgotten in her queenly manner. The nurse stole the show, when with a mere facial expression she revealed her hopeless love for Major Safti and her potent jealousy of Lady Esketh.

In the opening scene Brent expressed a bit of philosophy about the Victorian era and our own which this writer would like to remember.

Power, in the last scene, touchingly and excellently, took a last look at his former life, and then, with a firm expression turned and majestically went forth to speak to the masses who were depending upon him.

Although something was lacking, we cannot deny that the cast of The Rains Came, with only a few exceptions, made the most of every opportunity to do their best job of acting. In closing, may we comment that although The Rains Came is an overpraised motion picture, it is good entertainment. It is playing currently at one of San Francisco's down-town theaters. On the same bill was a short propaganda picture, striving to stimulate American patriotism, an educational feature, a newsreel, and of course, Previews of Coming Attractions.

College students have lowered their health standards so that they have become a dying group, says Marshall C. Cheney, associate physician for men at California.

Thrills and Spills

By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN — Jitterbug Rooters For Needed Pep: Policy vs. Scope

Editor, The Guardsman:

Each semester some illustrious member of our dear institute of higher learning raises the query: "Why haven't we an organized band or rooting section?"

Nothing has been done about it, so consequently I suggest a jitterbug rooting section (seeing jitterbugs are in style) to supply the much needed pep and entertainment. (If they cannot supply the exuberance then man is not essentially a homo-sapien.)

You giggling gerties may gaily guffaw at this product of my usually latent intellect, but remember people laughed at Columbus, Marconi, Hitler, cross word puzzles, Wright Brothers, the Marx Brothers, the Ritz Brothers, and Bob Hope."

There is a demand and I have supplied it. I can undertake to coach the aforementioned project, as I possess a diploma verifying my qualifications and qualities as an aesthetic dancer, having matriculated from Madam Hootz's Flute Institute.

I will hold the first class at 7 a.m. in the alley north of the Powell Street entrance Monday, September 25, 1939.

See you there jerks,
Dusty Rhodes, B.A.D. (Bachelor of Aesthetic Dancing)

P.S. You supply the music.

• • •

• DOESN'T WANT POLITICS
Editor, The Guardsman:

I believe it is the policy of all news vehicles to present news available and useful for general public consumption.

Now far be it from me to decree what this paper should and should not print, for that is your inalienable right, BUT I don't believe you should have anything to do with speculation in politics (national and international).

This was self evident in the first issue of The Guardsman, concerning this country's foreign policy.

Now let's can this sort of dope and concern ourselves with conditions within our scope.

Signed,
Disgusted with such a policy.

• • •

Editor's Note:

It is felt that by the time students have entered college they have acquired a sufficient amount of maturity to be able to comprehend factors outside of campus life.

Since the American college yonths of today represent the more highly educated portion of society it is only fitting that they be able to comprehend forces which will eventually pertain to them as future citizens of the nation.

It is suggested that the writer of the above letter be reminded that he is no longer confined within the limited concepts of a high school publication, and that The Guardsman is a college newspaper.

For further reference it would be well to secure copies of any other college or university paper where at least one column devoted to outside topics will be found. Evidently the great institutions of learning throughout America do not believe that such articles are "out of their scope".

in TROOD ings

By Dot

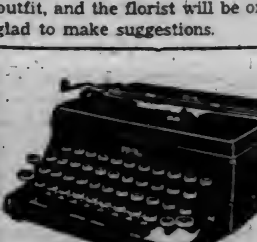
EACH year, the great ones in the fashion world bring forth new styles, materials, and colors, but the clothes which were shown at the Pan-hellenic Fashion Show last week surpassed in color, style, and textile any previous showings. The one outstanding feature of the fashion show was the amount of red being used in clothes this fall.

One dazzling affair that was modeled was a red crepe date dress with the new tucked bodice and quarter length sleeves. Another even brighter crepe dress of lipstick red was worn with a black wool reefer coat and a red velvet hat to match. Red in suits, red in hats, red in dresses . . . In fact, red is everywhere this year in the fashion world. Red with black, instead of black with red, is the thing for this fall.

For street wear, one outfit that is ideal for the college girl . . . a brown wool top with a brown and white striped velveteen skirt with lots and lots of fullness. Accessories are brown suede pumps with the covered up toe, please, brown suede pouch bag, brown gloves, and hat to match.

For evening . . . there is going to be lots of black—black crepe, velvet, and taffeta. One of the loveliest was a black velvet dinner dress with a white lace collar and sleeves with a band of black velvet edging the sleeves, but black isn't the only color for evening —there will be misty blues, multi-colored pinks, and of course white— dramatic white for very formal occasions.

Jewelry, indeed, plays an important part in both afternoon and evening wear. Chunky gold necklaces with matching bracelets . . . glass beads . . . and not to mention one unusual necklace and bracelet that was worn with a black afternoon dress at the fashion show. On a gold chain, little groups of lavender and orchid flowers about the size of a dollar were strung. The effect was simply stunning.



There has been no mention of the beautiful fur coats that were worn in the parade of fashion, so need we say more?

Overheard . . . a group of women of the college discussing the subject of FLOWERS one bright day last week. It seems that the gals are tired of wearing gardenias or cape jasmine and having every other young lady turn up at the same affair wearing three of these rather overbearing fragrant flowers.

"I appreciate the sentiment and all that, but why can't the men ask us what color our costume is for that evening, if he is going to send us flowers, and get something that will show up both costume and flowers," remarked the slim young brunette of the crowd, and the others echoed her statement. Quite a discussion followed when one of the young women brought up the fact that there was going to be quite a demand for tuberous begonias and she remarked, "These begonias come in the loveliest of colors, and even camellias are a change."

Don't think for a minute that these young women aren't appreciative of the flowers they receive, but for the most part the male contingent has been sending gardenias since high school days, and it seems natural for him to go into the florist and say, "Fix me up three gardenias".

Next time you're taking "the light of your life" out, and you are thinking of sending flowers, why not ask her what color her outfit is. She will think more of you after that. Even roses are appreciated when they are presented in some exciting new arrangement. Find out the color of her outfit, and the florist will be only too glad to make suggestions.

STUDENTS

You need a portable in your home. We are offering a limited number of Royal Varsity Models at $32.70. Manufacturers price $42.50.

This Is What You Get

New typewriter complete with case; standard office keyboard; back spacer, margin stop and bell; line finder for writing on ruled lines and filling in.

It has every essential for office or home use. May be purchased on easy terms. Trade in accepted. See it at 591 Market St., or call SUtter 4734 for home demonstration.

San Francisco Typewriter Exchange

591 Market Street SUtter 4734

shots at RAMdom

By Isadore Maloff

EVER anxious to enlighten our readers on subjects directly relating to their daily lives, this department takes pleasure in publishing for the first time in any magazine, leaflet, or newspaper, its uncensored, unexpurgated, unadulterated, unashamed, and unreliable expose disclosing why students at this college have flat feet and what true facts we have unearthed make them so.

After two weeks of painstaking effort donated free of charge so that our readers might see the light of truth, "we now take great pleasure in presenting" (as they say at one of our better known vaudeville houses) the results of our laborious findings.

STEP BY STEP

First task of those aiding us in this worthy undertaking was to check up on the number of stairs at the Powell Street Building. Here are the complete compilations ready to be cut out for framing.

1. There are 11 marble stairs on the front entrance of the Powell Street Building.

2. There are 30 wooden stairs from the first to second floors.

3. There are 21 stairs between the second and third floors.

4. Ditto the third to fourth.

5. There are 34 stairs from the Study Hall to the main floor.

6. By starting out with the left foot and ending up with the right it can be noted that there are 833 steps from 58 Sutter Street to the Powell Street Building providing all walking is done at a normal pace and without any deviation from a straight line.

Having garnered this bit of information we then turned it over to Miss Rhea Search of our department of statistical research. After an involved and lengthy mathematical process which must of necesity remain secret Miss Search has obliged with the following info:

PITY THE STUDENT

The average student at this college scampers up and down 372 stairs a day at Powell Street alone. Adding 34 more steps for the possibility that some students may go down to the study hall once a day (some students still do—believe it or not) and an equal number in getting back to the main floor we can safely assume that the average student climbs up and down 440 steps each day. This will mean that you as the average student carrying a load of 15½ to 16½ units of work will ascend and descend 2200 stairs a school week or 35,200 stairs a semester! If you walk from Powell Street to 58 Sutter and back again once every school day you will have taken 8,330 steps per week or 133,280 steps a semester in this process.

Now, here is the point of these findings. It has been found that each student exerts enough energy in going up and down Powell Street stairs each semester to climb up Mount Tamalpais 2 1-9 times and still have enough steps left in reserve to walk from the foot of the mountain to the Golden Gate Bridge approach. Unfortunately, the student will have to thumb his way from that point for according to our findings the reserve stock of steps should run out after 3-5 of the first mile of the bridge approach. We can appreciate the query of Harold Hoffman therefore, when he asked quite naively, "Why don't we have a hiking club?"

SLEEP, SWEET SLEEP

Flash: Recent word from Miss Rhea Search's friends disclose that Miss Search has become ill over the ordeal of these compilations that she cannot sleep. It seems that visions of moving stairs and numbers jumping up and down these steps persist in affronting her. She has tried Ovaltine, hot coffee, cold milk, and lukewarm lemonade but they seem to be of little help. Just the other day she received an anonymous letter. "Try sleeping on the edge of the bed," it advised, "you may drop off." Miss Search is now sleeping blissfully. (Just thought you might like to know).

Rams vs. Don Frosh Tonight; Get Out And Attend The Game

Big Events In Near Future For Netmen, Rifleers, Skiiers

Last Week—

Rams Arise, Hand Placer 20-0 Pasting

Seals Stadium, Friday, Sept. 15—Like irresistible waves of mechanized cavalry, the Legions of the Ram tonight battered, mauled, and completely crushed the visiting Placer Mountaineers, 20 to 0, in the season's opening gridiron clash for both elevens.

For eight uninterrupted minutes in the first quarter, Coach Lee Eisan's powerhouse laid down a rolling barrage that resulted in two quick touchdowns. The first scored on a wide end sweep from the Placer six yard line by Al Naumann, driving backfield ace; the second on a beautifully executed 50 yard pass play, Naumann hurling to Molich for the tally.

Final points were chalked up early in the fourth quarter when Adrian Carignani, at tackle spot, broke through the Placer line to smother a punt, scooping the ball up on the two and stepping into paydirt.

The Ram first string, as a unit, stayed in the game only the first eight minutes. After that, with 13 points on the scoreboard, the college board of strategy began shuffling and reshuffling the reserve manpower, seeking new offensive combinations. That none functioned with the precision of the starting lineup is axiomatic.

From the opening gun, Placer fought gamely, but almost futilely. The Placer line leaked like a sieve on defense, and the secondary was time and again mowed down by viciously charging Ram blockers.

Rams March

Receiving the ball near midfield the Rams kicked, in the game's first minute, to the Mountaineer 15. A return boot was returned by Davies 10 yards to midfield. Then came the avalanche. Two gallops by Naumann gave the Rams first down on the 40; Nauman then passed to Molich on the 29, and on the next play, broke through guard to the 22. Jensen piled over center for 2 yards; Nauman circled right end to the 15; Jensen hit center again, this time for a first down on the Placer 11. Penalties on both teams placed the pill on the 6, from which point Nauman, sailing wide behind murderous four man interference, ripped around left end and skipped to a touchdown in coffin corner. Nauman's attempted conversion pass was low and no good.

Rapid Repitition

Two minutes later, the Rams had another score. Placer received the kickoff, fiddled uselessly for a couple of downs, and kicked to the Rams at midfield. One play sufficed. Nauman, again taking the pigskin, raced wide to his right, sucking the Mountaineer secondary. Molich, from his left end position, cut diagonally down the field and arrived a stride behind the Placer safety as Nauman, going full tilt, lofted a high floater. The ball came down on the 20 yard line, Molich taking it over his head and racing into the end zone while the Mountaineer safety ate dirt in a desperate dive. This time, Molich placekicked the extra point, making it 13 to 0.

Shortly thereafter, numerous replacements swarmed in from the Ram bench. Nauman went out in favor of Leo "Legs" Legget, and the new experimental lineup, hindered by numerous penalties, bogged down for the duration of the contest.

Kick Blocked

The final seven points were collected as the game neared its end. Broberg, Placer punter, had been hesitating in his boots all evening, and it seemed inevitable that sooner or later he would find one of his kicks being rammed down his throat by the charging Ram forward wall. It happened. Adrian Carigniani smacked through as Broberg kicked from the Mountaineer 3. Carigniani heaved himself into the hoghide's line of trajectory, blocked it's flight with a satisfying thump, and recovered it on the first bounce to trot over the goal with six points under his arm. Molich booted the conversion for the second time, making it Rams 20, Placer 0.

Greatest significance of the Placer victory lies not in the score—for almost as impressive a total was rolled up by last year's eleven....but in the type of play exhibited by the Rams. The intimations, in last week's Guardsman, that the '39 Rams are a team-unit, rather than an asemblage of individuals, was fully substantiated.

Sound Fundamentals Win

Terrific blocking in both line and backfield made posible the brilliant exhibitions of running and passing that spelled victory. Defensive play was fundamentally sound throughout. This year, each component part of the team fulfills it responsibilities and cooperates smoothly with every other part. There are few observable weaknesses; those that exist can and will be remedied before the next game—with the U.S.F. Frosh, on September 22.

The Rams passed the entrace exams with flying colors . . . but . . what a tough country they're entering now!

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

Although this column is not usually cluttered up with that bugaboo of all sports readers, prognostications (that's long for guesses), we are going to set forth a prediction which we know you'll heartily dislike.

It seems almost folly to try to pick an outstanding player out of that group of young Dons that will take the field against our rambling Rams tonight, but our choice, nomination, or what have you for the game's standout star is Keith Bridwell, lanky end.

Bridwell, a former Galileo star, just doesn't miss passes, is an expert blocker, and, without a doubt, one of the most savage tacklers ever to enroll at the hilltop institution. Watch him.

Immediately after last week's game with Placer, Johnny "Brusier" Gray, local fullback, was approached in the locker room by an enthusiastic Loyola scout who tried to proposition Johnny. Gray was a former all-county star at Berkeley High and has terrific drive. Team-mates say he hits like a locomotive. Other Ram standouts were Captain Molich, playing his first game at end, Temple Davies, and Bob Cragie.

Rose Bowl Bound

Along about this time next week we'll be rolling on our merry way with the football squad headed for the Pasadena Rose Bowl. next Friday night, our local lads take on a reputedly potent Pasadena Junior College team, which, thank our lucky stars, will be minus the services of that swivel-hipped halfback, Black Jack Robinson who is now enrolled at U.C.L.A.

From all reports quite a congregation of the local yokels are going on the jaunt. Most of them will be going by hook or crook, otherwise known as thumbing or hopping a freight, but a few will plank out $10.80 to travel via Southern Pacific (the plutocrats). Anyhow, the battle cry is On To Pasadena.

Russ Sweet, track mentor, was mighty happy when Bob McGuire, former National Interscholastic sprint champion, enrolled here last semester. McGuire aided the team no end. Sweet, however, is now gushing over with joy what with the entrance into college of lanky Eddie Preston, winner of the recent Treasure Island Marathon. Preston who has been competing the past few years under the colors of the Olympic Club will provide a welcome addition to the cinder-dusters.

Alibi Time

They'll do it every time. Before the Galento-Nova beef, most of the sports writers made Nova an overwhelming choice on the basis of his victory over Baer. When the catastrophe in the form of Galento overtook Nova, the scribblers on the metropolitan dailies immediately changed their tune. Practically all of the columnists dragged out back issues to show how they had predicted Nova's downfall because of a swell head. Oh well, anything for a laugh.

Minor Chords: Jack Gardner, coach of Modesto's Hoosier Hotshots, has retired to his favorite stamping ground as coach of Kansas State. . . . Can it be that revelers, fresh from promenading upon the polished planks of Larkspur's Rose Bowl who sauntered down the streets of Larkspur minus a few raiments are local yokels? . . . Johnny Verducci stellar back of last year's Ram outfit, is making a bid for first string quarter on the San Francisco State eleven.

As Rams Marched Through Placer

Two of the highlights of last Friday's 20-0 Ram football victory, as shot by photographer Bill Quandt. Upper picture catches the successful try for point after second college touchdown, early in the first period. Jim "Cat-Eye" Molich, stellar end, who has just romped over with Nauman's pass for 6 points, is shown as he boots from placement for the additional digit.

Outstanding too, was the Ram passing attack. Herb Taylor, in the lower photo, attempts to drive through a dual tackle, after taking a short flip from Nauman. He didn't get away, and was stopped, as shown, after a short gain.

MEET THE COACHES . . .

Tom Wilson

Thomas D. Wilson, more familiarly known as "Atlas," is, at the age of 28, the youngest member of the college's physical education department.

Wilson mentors the varsity soccer squad in the fall, and handles the varsity tennis and junior varsity basketball outfits in the spring semester.

Born in Napa, Wilson attended Napa High Schol where he played football and basketball under Ras Pohnson, Galileo's present football coach.

Tom went to the College of Pacific at Stockton upon graduation from high school and achieved fame as one of the Pacific "immortals."

While at Pacific, Wilson earned letters in five varsity sports competing in football, basketball, track, tennis, and baseball.

Tom gained his greatest recognition as a halfback at Pacific meriting a second string all-coast berth in 1933 and gaining all-American mention in '34.

Outstanding feat of Wilson's career was a 65 yard completed forward pass thrown against Loyala in 1933 which went down in the record books as the longest pass of the year.

Upon graduation from Pacific in 1934, Wilson stayed on through 1935 assisting Amos Alonzo Stagg in coaching the football squad.

Wilson came to San Francisco in its infant year, 1935, and has produced three championship tennis teams, two championship soccer squads, and several outstanding junior varsity basketball outfits.

The sky rocket cheer had its beginning during the Civil War. A soldier of the Seventh Regiment of New York originated it on the night of April 30, 1861, following mobilization of the Union Forces, a band of Princeton students heard it and incorporated it into their college yells.

WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADE

By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

Its a strange thing what an obstacle a few bales of straw can be. (Yes, this is the WAA column!) It seems that until the straw is spread on the floor of the Palace of Fine Arts, the Archery classes can't "arch"—and the straw won't be laid (?) until—oh well, in the meantime Robin Hoods and Hood-esses are biding their time by—waiting!

—Fencing too, is on the waiting list, but the reason here is Health Exams which won't be over until the second week in October. Then classes will begin wth a bang! All the equipment in both classes, incidently, is furnished by the college.

A note from WAA adviser, Bertha Keller, makes known the fact that this semester's sign-ups for WAA clubs are the best in four years. There are 181 students enrolled, including, of course, WAA converts, the Boys! Men are participating in WAA sports to a greater extent than ever before.

The co-recreation program consists of riding, archery, badminton, and fencing. The "He's" wear white slacks and shirts and we hear, make quite a pleasing sight. Some of the girls, Miss Keller said, arrange time for recreation in busy college programs by taking several activities.

Thirty-seven experienced players have singled tennis out as the leading sport. Plans are in the making for competition with San Mateo Junior College and San Francisco State. We would caution San Mateo and State to look to their laurels.

• • •

Badminton on Friday afternoon holds a strong appeal for faculty men and their wives who can hold their own with the students (no doubt about that!) Competitive [illegible] are being planned with other colleges for mixed groups.

Rifleers Out For Nation's Inter-Collegiate Title; Hope To Reach Finals

A national Inter-Collegiate rifle championship. That is the goal of Captain Fred McFarland's Ram rifle team, holders of the Golden Gate Rifle League title.

This goal was set today by Captain McFarland, veteran coach, as he carefully made practice plans by which his riflemen are expected to achieve the distinction of capturing a national championship.

The squad has been cut to 25 able gunmen, and will be cut to a final 16 men before initial contests, said McFarland, who will draw a schedule at the end of this month.

Under the sharp eye of McFarland, capable producer of several former Ram championship teams, the current edition of the gunmen will hold heavy training sessions Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays at 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday mornings.

Four new prospects who have had previous experience with city and school leagues and who are expected to add materially to the strength of the Rams during the new season are Joseph Davey, Dan Minnum, Arthur Crofts, and Chester Mullen.

"With six weeks before the first scheduled match, our riflemen should have sufficient time in which to build accurate eyes and well - trained bodies. The primary purpose of our early practice campaign is to condition the team so that it will be eligible to compete for the National Inter-Collegiate title, and consequently a trip to Chicago for the finals. This is our ultimate goal," McFarland said.

KNUCKLES DOWN

Oldest sporting event in England is the annual marble tournament held in Trisley Green since 1568. This year over four thousand spectators watched eight teams at their championship labors.

And Tonight—

Rams Meet Don Frosh In First Crucial Tilt

Game Starts 8 P.M. Tonight, Under Lights At Roberts Stadium; U.S.F. Major Hurdle To Rams' Title Hopes

One down—eight to go. Tonight, at Roberts Stadium, the Roaring Rams, taste of Mountaineer blood still fresh on their teeth, collide with a highly touted U.S.F. Frosh outfit.

Lee Eisan's surprising crew, which just a week ago displayed power and teamwork aplenty in mangling Placer to the tune of 20 to 0, tonight gets the chance to launch its first move in the contemplated Campaign of Vengeance for the defeats of '38.

Last year, the Don yearlings paddled the Red and White by 26 to 2. Morale high after the Placer debacle, the Rams now hope to return the compliment by smearing the Hilltopper freshies with that newly discovered power.

This much must be said: according to the orthdox form-charts, a Ram victory tonight over U.S.F will constitute as surprising an upset as did the dumping of the Don varsity, on Sunday last, by the strictly small-fry Ratlers from Texas way.

Dons Boast Stars

The young Dons rule as favorites tonight by virtue of their "all-star" lineup; five "all-city" gridders, two "all-valley," and one "all-Southern California" filling eight of the eleven starting posts.

Bolstered with experience and confidence, spurred on with the determination to reverse last season's lopsided score with interest, the Rams will field a hard-running, hard-blocking, hard-tackling, brainy and efficient team tonight under the arcs.

Lineup Game

The starting lineup will be substantially the same as that which pounded out two touchdowns against Placer in eight minutes last Friday evening. Frannie Gray and Bill Molich will cavort at ends; Adrian Carignani and Schoenstein occupy the tackle berths; Mel Chicazola teams with Harding Leong at the guard slots; Dick Wilson will perform double duty at center. In the backfiled, Al Nauman will start at quarter, to be spelled by Leo Leggett; Temple Davies and Bob Carnegie will operate at the wingbacks; Johnny Gray and George Jensen alternating at full.

Opposing, will be the Don frosh team, with the following roster: ends —Tonge and Bridwell; tackles—Lahaderne and Lyon; guards—Abbey and MacIntyre; center—Winslow; quarter—Quartini; halves—Ramus and Russo; full—Calavero.

If the Rams can hurdle tonight's hazard—and slap down Pasadena Junior College in the Rose Bowl next week—they will be established as the best ball club in the annals of the college. In line with the current trend, the crucial tilts are coming early in the season . . . a policy which—like mud—is a great leveler . . . and a great breeder of upsets. . . .

RAM chops

By LOU GOLDSTONE

NOTES ON A HANGOVER

Perspective is great from the press box atop Seals Stadium's rim. The Placer rout unfolds with a precise monotony relieved only by the gentle sobs of Johnny Julius, last semester's Guardsman editor, crying in his suds over the forty centavos he has shelled out en route through the turnstiles. General confusion of the Associated public-address barker on discovery that numbers on the printed line-ups are at variance with those on the backs of the players. The classy looking gal a few rows down who gets all steamed up when Al Nauman's name roars from the sound truck. The sickly gurgles from the college rooting section, and the long silence as we wait for a yell for Lee Eisan . . . A yell that never comes.

THE OLD GUARD

It seemed like a good idea at the time, and doubly satisfying to get together with the gentlemen whose names will surely endure as long as the college itself. Fex, Flamm, Slattery, Boitano, and a swarm of other traditional heroes whose identity is lost in the miasmic fog of the morning after.

Congregating at the Fair: "Porky" Fex, saying he has sweated off in excess of thirty pounds, avoirdupois, during the summer . . . Jerry Flamm, spitting, by special request of Julius, through his front grinders—or the lack thereof . . . The lowdown on the boomerang juggle-pass, or what is colloquially termed "a Fex", comes from the lips of the maneuver's perpetrator. "And this guy comes runnin' up to me and sez, 'Gimme the ball, Bob; I wanna make a touchdown'— An', so I sez, 'Sure, pal, here it is!' " . . . With appropriate gestures . . . Eight stars in the bowl of the Big Dipper . . . Dick Simpers romps in with cash in his jeans. He has just finished his nightly vigil at the teletype. Pins are shifting on the European map, says Dick; red pins are moving in from the East. A toast to keeping out of it . . . The "Beer Barrel"—its lusty strains no longer roll from the music machine . . . Darkness outside; darkness over the Earth . . . But this is football season . . . What's the matter with us, anyway? . . .

BETTER LEFT UNSAID

President Cloud is viewing the game from a seat far down the slope of the stadium. At halftime, we inquire how he is enjoying the proceedings. Alongside the Man Who Hooked The Axe is none other than the Prexy of Placer. We retire in good order. . .

It seems that, in the past, there has never been too much fuss made about obtaining photos of the Ram football games. Now tastes vary, but after all, it must be generally conceded that there is nothing in this cockeyed sphere to compare with a good football shot. The fact that almost all the college tussles occur at night adds to the difficulty of giving you satisfactory pictures, but it would appear that McLain and Quandt, the twin flash-bulb maniacs, are capable of delivering the goods. The Guardsman Sports motto, this semester, is "Full Coverage of All Major Athletic Events". Over a bucket of gore, we have taken a solemn oath never, NEVER to attempt to pass off any posed or "canned" photos on the unsuspecting readers! Now you can go home and sleep in peace . . .

Speaking of the Silver Nitrate Fiends, Bill Quandt reports that he not only fried his fingertips, Friday night, on an obstreperous flash, but also meandered into the wrong dressing room at halftime . . . That is to say, the Placer dressing room.

Ski Club Calls For More Volunteers; Trip To Reno Ice Carnival Anticipated

Athletically inclined men wanted. This call was sent out today by Alden W. Smith, initiator of the idea to establish a ski club in the college curriculum.

First meeting of the new club was held Monday, at which time instructor Smith outlined plans for the attendance of members at the Reno Snow Carnival in December.

Smith expects to carry a squad of fifteen men on the team. Dry ski training will occupy the members during the coming three months, according to Smith. These training classes will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 3:30 p.m. in the Galileo Gym.

"Twelve men attended our first meeting Tuesday," said Smith. "This is a fair indication that the students are interested in developing a ski team. During the Christmas vacation we expect to take the team to Nordon, California, where actual participation in the winter sport will be carried out. Bill Klein, Austrian ski champion may be on hand to assist in coaching at this time."

The Club's next meeting will be held in Room 261 at 3:30 o'clock Thursday. All students interested in joining the club are invited to be present.

Student Executives

Budget Still Delayed; Schmale Is Rehired For Publicity By Council

To the executive council, meeting two days earlier than usual in an attempt to get news of their executive actions to the students as soon as possible, came word at last Tuesday's meeting that the budget, already overdue, could not be presented to them for final approval because of continued reducing treatments in the hands of the Dean.

From the Dean himself came the statement that he was ". . . still chopping here and there," felt sure that the overswollen demands of various groups would be pared down sufficiently by the next meeting to make possible presentation of a budget within the means of the college.

Such action became necessary Deane Browne revealed when it was discovered that the total amount of expenditure exceeded the total amount of income. It was also deemed advisable to take such steps when it was found that some students are carrying on these activities to their individual advantage.

New budgets, limited only to expenses actually incured are to be drawn up and presented to the Executive Council for approval at its meeting next week.

The new budget will be printed in The Guardsman as soon as it is verified and made public.

Schmale Rehired

Main item of business on hand was the question of hiring Jack Schmale as publicity director of the college. Employed each semester for the past few years, Schmale has been handling all sport publicity.

Subject to reemployment by this semester's executive council, Schmale indicated a willingness to enlargen his scope of activity during the coming semester, include social and administrative items in the material he attempts to publicize in city papers. On the basis of this assertion, Schmale was rehired at the same standard salary, will attempt to give social events of the college all possible metropolitan newspaper publicity.

Dances Planned

Announced to the council by the heads of the various committees were plans for the High Freshmen dance October 11, Associated Men Students' dance October 27, and a Low Freshmen sponsored dance in the Galileo gym some time during October or the early part of November.

Further meetings of the executive council will continue to be held Tuesdays, gathering in Room 261 at 2:30 p.m., and open to all students of the college wishing to attend.

"I was very glad to see the large turnout of interested students at the last meeting of the council, and I hope that other students will take the opportunity of attending these meetings in order to see how the student executive body functions," said Elmar Hubacher, president of the Associated Students.

Increase

Record Enrollment Announced As 2391 Register

All college enrollment records have fallen with this semester's registration total of 2391 students. According to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, this is the largest number of registered students in the history of the college.

The low freshman class has gained 108 new members over their number of last fall, and is the largest of any of the classes this semester. It has 1109 members as compared with the 1282 combined upper-classmen. Of the freshmen, 773 are men students. The remaining freshmen women total only 336, hence there is a ratio of more than two men to one woman in this class. This ratio of men to women is about the same in the college as a whole, the figures being 1651 men to 730 women.

"There has been an increase of more than 300 students over the figures for the fall of 1938, when 2064 students registered. Moreover, since the college opened in the fall of 1935, the enrollment has increased by more than 800. This is an increase of 60% in four years, and indicates a much larger enrollment in the future," Miss Learnard said.

A CAPELLA CHOIR WILL SING WITH THE ALL-CITY CHORUS AT FAIR SITE

Members of the college A Capella Choir will sing with the All City Choir, under the direction of Charles Dennis, at the Fair on September 30. In addition, the entire college A Capella Choir will sing, on the same program, Willard's Hodil Christus Natus est, Heavenly Light by Wilhousky, and Waltzing Mathilda, announced Flossita Badger, director of the college choir.

This program, the first of the choir's many engagements, will take place in the San Francisco Building at the Golden Gate International Exposition.

In the evening of September 30, at the dinner hour Patricia Keefer and Bob Scott will sing at the Western Women's Club in San Francisco.

"The choir has a full schedule this semester, and a large repertoire," added Miss Badger. "The choir members are promising material and I am expecting fine performances from them."

AMS Halloween Barn Dance Plans Revealed By Amori; To Preceed San Mateo Game

With the successful finish of Frosh Orientation week the Associated Men Students' organization has turned to the planning of its next big event, the semi-annual Halloween Barn Dance.

Joseph Amori, faculty adviser, announced that the date has been set for Friday, October 27.

"Although the place has not been chosen it will be held in some large, barn-like building decorated in keeping with the occasion," Amori said. "Everyone is expected to appear in appropriate costume, and as an added attraction refreshments, consisting of nuts, popcorn, cider and apples, will be served."

"Admission will be a student card, and because of the large turnout expected, no stags will be admitted," Amori warned.

Other AMS plans include a Father and Sons night and the regular Boxing and Wrestling championship.

Amori, praising the cooperation of the students, said, "The students of the college made Orientation week a big success and I hope this kind of cooperation will continue throughout the semester.

CLUB SCHEDULE

NAME	Type of Meeting	TIME	PLACE
Alpha Delta Epsilon	No Plans
Alpha Gamma Sigma	No Plans
Alpha Phi Omega	Invitational Tea	Sept. 24	Century Club
Army-Navy	Business	Oct. 3—8:00 p.m.	Indefinite
Astronomy	No Plans
Beta Phi	No Plans
Block S.F.	Business	Oct. 2—7:30 p.m.	Rm. 450—Galileo
Beta Tau	No Plans
Chinese	No Plans
Forestry	Business	Sept. 22—8:00 p.m.	537 - 53rd St.—Oakland
Forum	Business	Sept. 23—8:00 p.m.	See Bulletin Board
French	No Plans
George Washington	No Plans
Home Econ. Ass'n.	Business	Sept. 27—2:30 p.m.	Rm. 315—Galileo
Hotel-Restaurant	No Plans
Iota Chi	No Plans
Japanese	No Plans
Lambda Chi	Initiation Meeting	Oct. 5	Western Women's Club
Music	No Plans
Newman	Business (Speaker)	Oct. 2—8:00 p.m.	Indefinite
Omicron Phi Pi	Initiation and Business	Sept. 27—7:30 p.m.	295 Urbano Drive
Peace Society	No Plans
Phi Beta Rho	Tea	Sept. 24	62 Taraval
Phys. Ed. Majors	Officers Business	Sept. 25	Powell St. Lobby
Pi Mu Gamma	Business	Sept. 28	450 Sutter
Pick and Hammer	No Plans
Pre-Nursing	Business	Sept. 25	Galileo
Rifle and Pistol	Picnic	Sept. 29	Searsville Lake
Tarbuth	Business	Sept. 28	300 Page St.
Tri Epsilon	No Plans
Women's Service Society	Tea	Oct. 7	Indefinite

Leadership

Verducci Resigns Block Presidency; Elections Soon

Frank Verducci

Because of the resignation of Block S.F. Society president, Frank Verducci, the organization will hold the election of a new staff of officers next Tuesday, September 26.

The announcement eminating from faculty sponsor Russell Sweet followed the statement by Verducci that he had tendered his resignation because he had to work during the part of the day and thus could not devote his time to furthering the aims of the society.

The secretary of the organization is also occupied, making it doubly important that new officers be selected.

The election was previously scheduled for early last week but it was unable to be held at that time because the organization did not have a quorum present.

Verducci, last semester's Associated Student's president said, "I extremely regret that circumstances have forced me to resign as leader of the athletic society and I am sure a capable member will take over the reins."

New Drill Regulations Are Tried By Military Classes

New infantry drill regulations for the United States Army had their effect on the college, as students in military science classes spent their armory drill period with the California National Guard learning to drill without "squads right," "right-front-into-line," and many of the other cherished commands of drill sergeants since the first days of the army.

"A number of the students in the military science classes never had any drill before this semester, and it has been found that they have picked up the new regulations for close order drill and the new manual for the rifle with much greater ease than if they had been attempting to learn the old method," announced James S. Hogue, faculty member in charge of the classes.

The St. Mary's Collegian, student publication of St. Mary's has started the new year by changing the make-up of the paper from a six sheet, seven column issue, to an eight column, four page release.

Police Training

(Continued from page 1)

the prospective peace officers.

Job Not Insured

The job does not insure a position with a police department upon graduation, but simplifies this matter a great deal, since the law is always willing to accept men who have a high mental and physical ability and in addition are schooled in the fundamentals of police work.

In explaining the purpose and reason for the course, Lesenberger said, "Our objective is the development of a course which will give the students a background of knowledge and attitudes, together with personal characteristics to develop the type of men that are desired as police officers; one who commands respect, by physical condition and behavior, of his position; who is himself a competent citizen in every sense of the term; who has a knowledge of the government of his nation, his state, and his city; which has definite and proper concepts of the laws of society he is protecting; who can think quickly and accurately in difficult situations; and who knows, upon graduation from the course, the broad fundamentals of actual police work."

Detailed training in local police departments will continue to be given after employment as peace officers is secured by the graduating students.

Replete With Words but Chary of Facts

(Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents the second of a series of autobiographies by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandyz, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. All stories will be published anonymously.)

The question that arises at this time is how to write two pages without saying anything. An autobiography is called for, and it will be delivered, but it will be a very vague autobiography. One designed to fill but not to nourish. Replete with words but chary of facts. Why? Usually I do not give a damn what other people think yet when the time comes to unveil I begin to feel a little sensitive. The only solution is to be vague and (here you have an insight into my character showing how weak I am) that is the course I shall follow.

Are you interested in dates? No? Good, then I shall give dates. Birth either December 30, or 31 either 1918 or 1919. I have it down so many different ways throughout the country that it is best not to commit myself. I shall omit the joke about being near my mother at the time because at best it is very unfunny.

Jumping a few years we arrive at my youth. Was I the sturdy young fellow with the tousled head and the sparkling eye? No, I was the one in the back of the room with his dirty neck towards the camera.

Skip a few more years. I now have washed my neck and am facing the camera which makes me wonder why I went to all that trouble. Schooling—St. Pauls. Dull, regimentive but at the same time very good teaching. Skip a few more years. High school—Sacred Heart C. H. S. The best school in the city, heartily recommended to all your children. Democratic, easy going with its large campus rivaled only by Powell Street.

In regard to extra curricular activities, at this time—Junior year to be exact—I was involved in a minor indiscretion (the very word) which though it might have had unfortunate consequences, was successfully glossed over. There are other things also, which I shall not mention.

Out of High School, one year was spent in sleeping. The next year is the present in which I am attending J.C. and incidentally still sitting in the back of the room. I must have an inferiority complex.

In retrospect the only clear thing which I have picked up in my long life is that I dislike work. I have worked at various jobs since I was eight years old and have come to the conclusion that the two best gifts of God are sleep and unemployment. God doesn't love me because I am still working and there is always something that comes up and prevents my getting my eight hours sleep nightly.

Women's Fashion Show and Tea Dansant Planned By AWS

In keeping with the traditional customs of the college, the Associated Women Students are making plans for a women's fashion show and tea dansant. Muriel Nolan, AWS president announced this week.

This fashion show will be honoring the graduating women of the senior high schools and private schools, continued Miss Nolan. At last semester's fashion show, the A Capella Choir, under the direction of Flossita Badger, rendered several selections.

There have been so many requests for another tea dansant, that the AWS officers have decided to sponsor another one during Sophomore week. This type of affair was originated a year ago, and it has proved so successful, that we have decided to make it a traditional affair for the sophomores, concluded Miss Nolan.

ADVERTISING RATE:

1-50 inches	70c an inch
51-150 inches	60c an inch
151-up inches	50c an inch

Data . . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
Game — Rams vs. USF Frosh	Roberts Field	Tonight
Ice Carnival	Winterland	September 29.
Rifle Club Picnic	Searsville Lake	September 29.
Game — Rams vs. Cal Frosh	Berkeley	October 7.
High Frosh Dance	War Memorial	October 11.
AMS Barn Dance	Indefinite	October 27.

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE LIBRARY DISTRIBUTION OF BOOKS

GENERAL COLLECTION

Philosophy, Psychology, Religion, Political Science, Biography, Fiction	Extension Lobby
All other books (except General Reference works)	518 Powell St.
Reference Works	P. G. & E. Bldg.
Periodicals (except latest numbers)	P. G. & E. Bldg.

RESERVED BOOKS

Books reserved for use in specific courses	Extension Lobby (Reserved window)
Periodicals (latest numbers of each)	Extension Lobby

RULES GOVERNING USE

1. Books from general collection (except reference works and periodicals) circulate for one week and are not renewable.
2. General reference works and periodicals are to be used only in the reading rooms.
3. Reserved books and the latest number of periodicals circulate for two hours or for overnight use after one o'clock.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

may be secured from faculty supervisors in each division of the library.

Classes

Low Freshman Plan 'Hello Day' Dance

Completion of the tentative plans of the Low Sophomore class will take place at the next class meeting, according to Mary Miller, vice-president.

During the semester, the officers are anticipating holding one outstanding affair at the Lake Merritt Hotel, although assurance of this has not been given them.

Art Pomares, president of the class, is considering holding one large event, or a series of events that are varied.

Tentatively planning a dance at the Galileo Gym in conjunction with the Hello Day that is to be sponsored by the Club Advisory Board, the Low Freshman class have discussed with the members of the faculty the possibility of holding this dance.

It is not certain, however, but if Harold Hoffman, president of the Advisory Board completes plans for Hello Day, the dance will be assured.

Picnic and Weenie Roast At Searsville Lake Will Be Sponsored By Rifle Club

Holding their first affair of the semester, the college Rifle and Pistol Club announced plans for a combined picnic and weenie roast.

The affair will be held at Searsville Lake, down the peninsula, Friday, September 29.

Admission to the picnic and barbecue is open to all students of the college. The only charge will be 30 cents for gasoline for the automobiles that will convey the pleasure seekers to the lake.

Students desirous of attending are requested to sign up in the Galileo rifle range.

Automobiles will leave San Francisco at 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

All those attending the outing are reminded to bring their own swimming suits and sandwiches.

NYA Time Reports Must Be In No Later Than Tuesday, October 3

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

First Midterm Period Starts Next Week; Dust Off The Textbooks

Vol. IX FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1939 No. 4

A Capella

College Songsters Perform

Pictured above are members of the college A Capella Choir who will sing before Expositio nvisitors tomorrow, September 30, in the San Francisco building. Coached by Flossita Badger, faculty instructor, the Choir who will sing before Expolition visitors tomorrow during the last few years. This will be the second time the choral group has been featured at the Fair.

College A Capella Choir Will Sing At the Fair In Connection With San Francisco Day Ceremonies

Tomorrow the college A Capella Choir will sing at the Golden Gate International Exposition for San Francisco Day. On the same program the San Francisco All City Choir will appear.

Repertoire of the college choir will include Heavenly Light by by Wilhovsky, Hodie Christus Natus Est by Willard, and the Australian number, Waltzing Matilda. The choir concert will take place in the San Francisco Building on Treasure Island, announced Flossita Badger, director.

Patricia Keefer and Bob Scott, members of the A Capella Choir, will sing for a convention banquet tomorrow evening at the Western Business and Professional Women's Club. Miss Keefer and Scott will sing in duet, La Ci Darem La Mano from Don Giovani Mozart, and Thine Alone from Eileen by Victor Herbert. For their solos Miss Keefer will sing Shubert's Ave Maria and Scott will sing Evening Star from Tannhauser.

The San Francisco Opera Company has planned an unprecedented event in that it will give a dress rehearsal with the entire cast of Madam Butterfly. This performance will be for students only, and the price will range from 50 cents to $2.50.

The San Francisco Schools' Department of Music has been trying to get the opera company to do this for many years, but not until now has the company consented to do such a thing. The performance will take place in the afternoon of November 2. Those who are interested should see Miss Badger and buy their tickets from her before October 15.

College Debaters Discuss Question of Continuing Exposition Next Year

That the Fair should be operated during the season of 1940 is the question to be argued by college debaters at two exhibition debates, one scheduled for the Moose Club on Wednesday night, October 4, and the other later in the month before the Fraternity Club in the Palace Hotel.

According to Lloyd D. Luckman, debate coach, Dean Edwin C. Browne obtained the engagements for the debaters.

Katherine Crotia, Janet Fellows, and Robert Cohn will argue affirmatively against the negative arguments of Elmer Coy, Phillip Jenkins, and Herman Simons. These debaters are scheduled to perform for the Masonic Club, while Goldstone and Robert Cohn will debate the affirmative of the same question against the negative side to be presented by Howard Letcher and David Spencer at the Fraternity Club.

Following the debates everyone in the audience will be asked to vote for the side he considers presented the better argument.

College debaters also have a challenge from the University of California freshman debating group to argue the question: Resolved, That the working class should support the Government if it declares war against Germany. The California group has asked for an informal, non-decision debate to be held on the California Campus October 31, at 4 p.m., with the Ram debaters sending negative speakers to that meeting which will be followed by California's sending negative speakers to the Ram Campus sometime in that same week.

Applications For Campus Hotel Representatives Taken In Dean's Office

Continuing in its efforts to coordinate the campus representatives of local and bay area hotels, the Hotel Division today reissued an appeal for interested students to fill out applications in the Dean's office. Designed to bring all student campus representatives together in a coordinating, cooperative group, the plan has been sponsored by the division with the help of Dean Edwin C. Browne.

All students who may be interested in acting as a representative of a hotel on the campus should fill out applications which may be obtained in the Dean's office today and Monday. These applications will be reviewed by Sterling Silver of the Hotel Division, and candidates whose qualifications are approved will be interviewed by the various hotel publicity departments for final decision.

The Hotel and Restaurant Society, social group of the division, will meet during the coming week to hold elections for its presidency, will view motion pictures of the Hotel Waldorf Astoria in New York pertaining to specific details of hotel work.

Aeronautics

Applications For Flying Course Being Accepted

First applications for flight training here, under the sponsorship of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, will be accepted until next Wednesday in Room 262 of the Galileo High School, according to information released by Captain George Richards, campus director for Civilian Flight training.

Ground school and flying lessons for approximately 30 hand-picked men will be under way soon after October 1, Richards stated, after applicants have been given physical examinations and fulfilled the other requirements for the course.

Seventy-two hours of ground school, and 35 to 50 hours of flight training will be offered, the ground school to be taught by Captain Richards, and the flying course by officials at the San Francisco Municipal airport, under C.A.A. direction.

Record Enviable

Captain Richards has an enviable record. With more than 13 years of flying experience he is now engaged as a U. S. airplane pilot. Captain Richards has formerly served as an Air Patrol Officer, Field Manager for T.W.A., Chief Dispatcher for the Army Air Mail, Government Instructor in aeronautics. A graduate of San Jose State Teacher's College, Captain Richards completed his studies at the University of California, University of California at Los Angeles, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and with the basic air course in the United States Army.

Outline and specifications of the Civilian Pilot Training Courses in conjunction with this college are as follows:

Purpose: To train approximately 11,000 airplane pilots in civilian life each year. To stimulate interest in the private and commercial aspects of aviation. Graduates from this course will be eligible for advanced work and for army and navy flying schools.

How Conducted: The Civil Aeronautics Authority (C.A.A.), in cooperation with the college and a commercial flying school will train during the present school year approximately 20 students in ground school and flight instruction.

(a) The ground school instruction will be given by Captain Richards. A total of 72 hours of such instruction is specified.

(b) Flight instruction will be given by a commercial flying school at the San Francisco Municipal Airport. Flight instruction includes a minimum of 35 and a maximum of 50 hours of flight instruction.

Details of Instruction: (a) Ground school is given on a semester basis, a 6-hour weekly course, and a total of 72 hours of ground school instruction is required. This will be given the first semester. The course is divided into 8 divisions which are:

1. History of Aviation
2. Civil Air Regulations
3. Navigation
4. Meteorology
5. Parachutes
6. Aircraft and theory of flight
7. Engines
8. Instruments
9. Radio Uses and Forms

(b) Flight training: Flight instruction is to start not later than November 1, 1939. For the first 12 hours of the course the student is to receive 3 thirty-minute lessons per week.

(Continued on page 4, column 6)

Registrar

MIDTERMS BEGIN NEXT WEEK FOR ALL STUDENTS; MOHR ADVISES IMMEDIATE STUDY

Next week is "Hell Week" for every man and woman in the college, be he freshman or sophomore, pledge marshall or pledge. Midterm examinations will be given throughout the week in nearly every course of the college curricula. There will be no exceptions, according to J. Paul Mohr, registrar and personnel director of the college.

"The time to study is now," says Mohr, "not the night before each particular midterm. I cannot stress too much the advisability of coming through this first midterm without any poor grades. Low freshmen especially should heed my warning to study and keep up their grades. Ask your upper classmen if this is not good advice."

Mohr added that notices of poor grades, better known as cinches, would be mailed as soon as possible to old students and to the parents of new students.

Old students desiring to remove incompletes hanging over from last semester with a grade better than D are warned by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, that today is their last day to remove such incompletes. Miss Learnard said that students with incompletes should contact their old instructors as soon as possible today to make certain of the removal of their incompletes.

Picnic Sponsored By Rifle Club At Searsville Lake To Be Held This Afternoon

Captain Fred McFarland's Ram Rifle and Pistol club will hold its annual picnic this afternoon at Searsville Lake, according to club bulletins.

The event, scheduled for 2:30 o'clock, will feature swimming, dancing, and music, and will be climaxed by a wiener-roast, said Captain McFarland, who added that not only are the club members invited, but the student body as a whole is asked to participate i nthe picnic.

"The entire trip will cost 50 cents a person," McFarland said. "This will include swimming and dancing."

Meanwhile McFarland's riflemen are engaged in strenuous practice with an eye toward their ultimate goal, a national Inter-Collegiate rifle championship. A practice match with the University of San Francisco Dons will be held in the near future.

The San Francisco Rifle Association's league schedule will be drawn up the middle of October, according to McFarland.

Rally

ROPED OFF CHEER SECTION FOR FUTURE FOOTBALL GAMES ANNOUNCES BERNS

Assurance of a roped-off rooting section for college game-goers at all future home contests was promised by Ray Berns, college yell king, after a meeting of the rally committe yesterday morning.

The committee, twelve chosen students prominent in college circles, have been given their instructions by leader Berns and will officiate in their respective capacities at all forthcoming games. Said duties consist of seating arrangements, selecting talent for rallies, and keeping order at all rallies and games.

Students showing their own student body cards will be the only persons admitted to the special rooting section.

Discussion of plans for two proposed excursions, a bus trip to San Mateo and a train trek to Modesto for the respective football games with those institutions resulted in the appointing of a special committee to investigate particulars.

Date of the next rally has been tentatively set for Friday, October 13, date of the Sacramento game, Berns announced. New talent recruited from the ranks of the low freshman class is now being auditioned for the occasion. The services of Ernie Smith, ace sports commentator, have definitely been secured.

"The college turnout at the University of San Francisco game was highly encouraging" Berns opinioned. "Yells were fairly successful but I hope to see a larger and more spirited turnout at the next home game with Sacramento."

NYA Time Sheets Must Be Turned In By Tuesday

"All NYA students must have their time sheets properly filled out and handed in by Tuesday, October 3, if they expect to receive credit for their work," E. H. Redford, NYA director, warned.

Time sheets are in a new form this semester. Students must check in when they begin work and check out when they finish. In this way an accurate record can be kept.

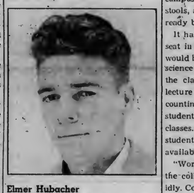
"Although there are no positions opened at the present time, applications are still being accepted to fill jobs later on in the semester," Redford said, "but only students who need part time jobs in order to continue school will be placed.

Skaters

Ice Skate Carnival At Winterland This Afternoon

Today at 2:30 o'clock, ice-skaters will convene at the Winterland rink for their long awaited Ice-breaker. Cutting the ice as instructor will be Joseph Williams, college faculty member.

Rates according to Williams will be 25 cents with skates and 40 cents without, if 50 students enroll for the class, otherwise, the general admission fee will be charged.



The college physical education department stepped into the picture Tuesday when it announced that full class credit would be given to all college men who take ice-skating.

Bertha Keller, Women's Athletic director, which is sponsoring the ice-skating class, said last week that "the rates that have been offered by the Winterland rink are the best the college has ever been given."

Ice-skating is co-educational. In all, 29 women have already enrolled, and a special invitation has been issued by instructor Williams to the men.

"We make no provisions for taking care of skaters who "break the ice, however," Williams said, "if they wish to get home they will have to swim!"

Student Body President, Reporter, To Pasadena

Elmer Hubacher

To Pasadena with the football team go Elmer Hubacher, president of the Associated Students and a representative of The Guardsman sports staff, the former to officially represent the college students, the latter to insure adequate coverage of the game. Their expenses were approved by the council after some argument, will come out of the Dean's fund and the Guardsman's budget respectively.

"Hello Day" Is Abandoned; CAB Will Sponsor Rally And Dance With Low Frosh

Disbandment of the plans for "Hello Day" is due to the lateness in the semester, and in place of this, the Club Advisory Board will sponsor a rally and dance lafer in conjunction with the Low Freshman class.

On October 5, in Room 206 at 1 o'clock, the discussion of the future of the Club Advisory Board will take place, and a message will be delivered by Dean Edwin C. Browne regarding the board itself.

"All Clubs are urged to send a representative to this coming meeting as it is one of great importance," stated Harold Hoffman, president of the board.

The number of representatives at the last board meeting came to only half the number that should have been present, and to have the petitions of the clubs accepted they must be presented at the meeting on Thursday.

Petitions must be filled out properly so that the clubs' charters may be renewed, and as this is the third regular meeting of the board, all petitions should be turned in by the representatives.

Representatives should hand a list of the social events to an officer of the board to be placed on the social calendar at Powell Street, or put the list in the Club Advisory Board box, in the office.

All students of the college are invited to come and attend the meetings of the board, and listen to the discussions, and in this way, become acquainted with the purpose of this board.

Ex Council

Student Budget Passed Following Considerable Paring Of All Organizational Requests

Approved by the executive council at its regular Tuesday meeting, the college budget for the ensuing semester became final after considerable paring down on the individual organization's budgets that comprise it. High expenditures and low income made budget balancing a difficult task, necessitated reduction in nearly all fields, and anticipation of a reserve fund considerably less than customary.

Additional action of the council included acceptance of a committee report from Lee Scarlett, president of AMS, that Mrs. Mozelle Milliken of the Hotel and Restaurant Division faculty had undertaken limited publicity work for the college, would suppliment more extensive efforts of college publicity director Jack Schmale.

Mrs. Milliken's experience included handling of publicity for the hotel division, gave her many contacts of value in bringing college affairs to the attention of the city.

STUDENT BODY BUDGET, FALL SEMESTER, 1939

Income
Estimated income		$ 6,000.00
Estimated income, games		2,050.00
Reserve		1,310.10
		$11,960.10
Expenditures
Administration
Supplies (hand books)	$ 340.00
Programs	50.00
Registrar	150.00
Miscellaneous	150.00
Medical	100.00
Gowns
Reserve
Rentals
Bowling	$ 240.00
Tennis	200.00
Archery	60.00
Swimming	250.00
Nursery	90.00
	$ 640.00
Student Body
Guardsman	$ 2,072.00
Social Committee	654.50
Soccer	173.50
Basketball, Varsity	386.25
Basketball, 145	63.00
Baseball	30.00
Tennis	32.80
Music	180.00
Women's Athletic Assn.	247.00
Assoc. Women Students	400.00
Assoc. Men Students	400.00
Dean's Fund	300.00
Sophomore Week	292.00
Rifle Team	159.00
Rally Committee	90.00
Publicity	255.00
Debate	52.00
Bowling
Fall Track	60.00
Swimming	45.85
Club Advisory Board	22.00
Awards	100.00
Football	4,415.00
	$11,960.10

Building

WORK ON ACADEMIC UNIT OF NEW CAMPUS REACHES HALFWAY POINT AT LAST

Welcome news to approximately 2400 students last week was the information that work on the academic unit of the college at Balboa Park was half completed.

This statement issued by the college registrar's office followed on the heels of the announcement that the pouring of cement for the second floor was nearing completion. This leaves only one more floor and the roof to be constructed as far as work on the actual building is concerned.

Requisitions for furniture for the campus including chairs, tables, stools, and other accessories have already been made.

It has been estimated that if every seat in the building were filled there would be room for 600 students in the science laboratories, 1450 students in the classrooms, 450 students in the lecture halls, 150 students in the accounting and typing rooms and 70 students in the drafting and art classes. This makes a total of 2720 students for whom there will be available space in the new campus.

"Work on the two gymnasiums of the college has also progressed rapidly. Cement is ready to be poured for the first floor," Mohr said.

Speedy construction of the college plant according to the rigid schedule set by the government Public Works Administration last April assures complete construction of the gyms and academic unit by May, 1940.

"It is gratifying to realize that after waiting four years for a permanent campus, the hopes of the students and the administration will soon be realized," Mohr said.

Clinton Construction Company, contractors for the new plant, has maintained a steady pace of construction and has given college authorities assurance that all will be in readiness for occupation in the allotted time.

Police Training Students Get Intelligence Tests This Week

Police training students have been subjected to an intelligence test this week according to Instructor Harold Leuenberger. This is one of three tests to be given the students, and the others include Strength and Coordination, and Personality and Temperament.

Although the actual results of the intelligence tests will be kept secret, Leuenberger commented that the men in the course had "better than average" scores.

The Strength and Coordination test is used to test the small and large muscles. Later actual policemen on the beat will be asked to take the test the men took and a comparison will be made.

Data . . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
Ice Carnival	Winterland	September 29.
Rifle Club Picnic	Searsville Lake	September 29.
Game — Rams vs. Cal Frosh	Berkeley	October 7.
High Frosh Dance	War Memorial	October 11.
AMS Barn Dance	Indefinite	October 27.

Faculty Cooperation Asked To Enforce Honor System

Letters are being sent to the college faculty asking their co-operation for the enforcement of the honor system during the mid-terms by the Judicial Committee.

Meeting last Thursday, the committee under Al Williams explained both sides of the question of lending Associated Student cards.

During mid-terms, the committee will try to make it clear to students just why dishonesty is not tolerated in this college, and in this the instructors will co-operate.

The next meeting of the Judicial Committee is not certain, but it may be soon after the completion of the mid-term week.

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1939 No. 4

BILL FRANTZ.....EDITOR
Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse
Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross.....Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff.....Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat.....Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone.....Sports Editor
Dorothy Trood.....Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch.....Business Manager
Marion MacKillop.....Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Lucretia Antonicelli, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, John Hansen, George Jensen, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Law of Fair Play In Education—"Dishonesty Is Not Tolerated In This College"

"DISHONESTY Is Not Tolerated In This College" proclaims the blank Blue Book on its cover. But that phrase seems as tyrannical as the King's hat on the pole in the story of William Tell. It is tyrannical until one realizes that the above sentence represents not a domineering group—but the law of fair play for every student obtaining an education.

Is there a law of rewards and punishments in the education of college students? There is—if a majority of the college students wish it. They are placed upon their own conscience. And their conscience follows one of the following paths: (1) That lousy so-and-so has the answers on a slip of paper in his blue book. If he doesn't get caught I'll try it in my next midterm. (2) There sits a person who has violated the trust placed in him. He'll raise the class average and down goes my mark. I can't tell on him—I wouldn't be a stoolie!

If a person hasn't the guts to try cheating, his chances of getting a grade point average necessary for continuing into university are cut down. If he sees how successful one cheater is, he is apt to become one himself. The latter type encourages dishonesty, the former tolerates it.

Laws are mere words unless they are enforced. Do not tolerate the dishonesty when you see it—and don't fool yourself into believing that you won't get caught acting dishonestly. Some persons in each of the classes will become sick and tired of seeing cheating go on rewarded and unpunished. They have a legitimate right to let the dishonest student know that he has been observed.

Backing up the law of fair play in college is the Judicial Committee. The committee was formed for the express purpose of discouraging deviations from the laws of rewards and punishments in the classroom, and the policy this semester is to enforce judiciously the phrase and law "Dishonesty Is Not Tolerated By The Students Of This College".

A University President Speaks His Mind

"AS students you are not here to act. You are here to get ready to act wisely in the life of your time. You are not here to organize and promote propagandas. You are here to learn how to keep your heads in the midst of a world bombarded by myriad propagandas both sound and sinister.

"If, as freshmen and sophomores, you were able wisely to determine just what the final answer is to the political, social, and economic dilemmas of our times, there would be no need of you attending a university.

"A high wall should not be built around the university, in which students would be hermetically sealed from the outside world, but you, as students, should take the opportunity afforded by your years on this campus to stay back of the front-line trenches and to stabilize and discipline your judgment for the time when you are called upon to serve your generation."—President Glenn Frank, University of Wisconson.

An editorial in The Guardsman three years ago—the thought still holds true today.

Presidential Notes

By Elmer Hubacher

WE are now in the fourth week of actual classwork and already our conscientious instructors are surprising us with daily tests and quizzes. It behooves us all, therefore, to start in "tearing the texts" before midterms crop up and "really lay us low."

BUDGET BLUES

Being a member of the Executive Council is decidedly an interesting as well as educational experience. Among other things, we have learned how to cut a large amount from an already slashed budget. Because of such action, queries and some criticism have been voiced by many students. The Executive Council has no alternative. It has only a set amount of money with which to work and that is all it can possibly spend. Kindly try to bear with the council for the time being.

A few pertinent words about the football team might be proper at the present time. The men on the team are really out there fighting. Anyone who has seen either of our games will certainly back up that statement. It is distinctly noticeable that there are no "stars" in this "ball club"; there is a team performing as a team. Remember that this is our team. With proper support it will go far this season—without it,—you know the answer. The students are definitely not giving the team the backing and support it needs. A large turnout for the next game will give the team the support it actually deserves.

ROOTING SECTION

At our next game we shall have an organized rooting section in which only student body card holders will be allowed. It has been noticed that there has been no organization whatsoever at previous games. This action should solve the problem.

This semester, as in the past, the question arises, "Should the rifle team be given blocks?" We are told that the marksmen are now meeting the "tops" in topflight competition. The rifle team argues, "If Stanford and California receive blocks, why should not we?" Any suggestions pertaining to this problem will be appreciated.

See you at the Executive Council meeting next Tuesday. Room 261 at 2:30 in the Galileo High School Building. Students invited.

The . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

WHILE the temperature zoomed past 100 we looked for a cool movie, and Winter Carnival sounded positively icy, even though it does star Hollywood's much publicized No. 1 "oomph" girl, Ann Sheridan. (As the daily newspapers say, we quote: Iced—but Hot. (Unquote!)

Winter Carnival, supposedly a comedy, was not extremely funny. However, there were a few laughable gags sprinkled delicately and unexpectedly into the dialogue. Speaking of the dialogue, there was nothing particularly outstanding about that, either.

NOT SO HOT

As for the cast, Miss Sheridan may be very appealing from the male standpoint, but we have come to the conclusion that her acting ability is 99 and 44-100's per cent publicity. Of course, Miss Sheridan's failure in turning in a fine performance may have been due to the lack of a good part rather than to a lack of ability—at least we hope so!

Richard Carlson, Winter Carnival's leading man, did little better than did Miss Sheridan. We do think Carlson is promising, and with a better opportunity he may do quite well.

CHILLED "OOMPH"

The story of Winter Carnival is centered entirely around Dartmouth's annual winter sports festival, and, as a San Francisco newspaper says, "It's a fine tribute to winter sports, but that's about all we can say for it!" The scenes of the ski meet were excellently done, and the night scene, when the skaters and skiiers performed by torch light were especially beautiful. Typically Hollywood, and like all collegiate pictures, Winter Carnival presented a Utopia of college life—all fun and no studying. Dartmouth's newspaper office made us turn green with envy when we remembered our two-by-four at Galileo. Oh well, there's always the Balboa campus to look forward to!

"OOMPHISH FINISH"

The main idea of Winter Carnival is that life has more to it than champagne, diamonds, and ermine. Ann Sheridan, the society girl, falls in love with Richard Carlson, the college professor at one of Dartmouth's Winter Carnivals. The society girl jilts the professor for a European Duke, but after tiring of her royal life returns to the scene of her first love, and from there on the professor tries to domesticate his rotogravure sweetheart, and of course the picture concludes with the usual Hollywood finis. The story did provide a good moral which should make "the great underprivileged masses" feel a little more satisfied.

in TROODings

By Dot

IT SEEMS that the heat was bothering Dorothy Mills, freshman vice-president, for the other day blonde Miss Mills came bursting forth with what follows:

Breathes there a man
Around this school,
Sufficiently restrained and cool,
To limit his demands
Enough to say "Good night," just Holding hands.
Who is satisfied to wait—
Until at least a second date
To reach a warm romantic state
And give a girl some preparation
Before expecting osculation
If such there be,
Go mark him well
For I'll date that guy
Though he looks like h——

WHAT NEXT?

For unique things around the college, take a look at Grace Tatti's macaroni and nail polish bracelet. In case some of you young ladies would like to do something on a rainy day, have your mother buy some narrow elastic, a box of macaroni at the grocery store, and some cyclamen nail polish, and then go to work. It's really wonderful what one can accomplish with a few inexpensive articles. Why not try a necklace. If the bracelet comes out?

By the sound of things, the freshmen are really going places with their jokes. Just listen to this one Doug Alexander pulled on several innocent college students:

JOKE

Doug: Did you have your radio on last night?

Stooge: Yeh—so what?

Doug: Just wanted to know how it fit you. Guess I'll be going now.

Happiness was written all over the faces of the college lads and lassies last Friday when classes were dismissed early. And as they poured out of the building and down Powell Street, one wondered where so many people could come from and then disappear so suddenly.

At long last Jackie Davis, formerly of the college, has sailed for that much talked of trip to New York. Miss Davis started to talk about her trip to New York way back in February, and has talked ever since about the clothes she had to buy, and the things that just had to be done before she sailed on the City of Norfolk. Well, as the day of sailing dawned, this young lady was still flying around getting things that were needed into her trunk. And so Miss Davis sailed amidst orchids and best wishes from her friends.

. . . while thinking . . .

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

ASSASSINATION of Rumania's most competent statesman, Premier Armand Calinescue, by members of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard gives rise to the opinion that the little Balkan nation is tottering on the verge of disaster. Although the murder of Calinescue may not have been ordered by Berlin, the fact still remains that Rumania is a choice plum for the German-Russo combine.

With Russia on her border waiting for an excuse to take over the rich grain fields of Bessarabia, and with the Reich anxious to obtain possession of her all important oil fields, the little country of Rumania may soon join the ever-increasing list of nations who have fallen at the hands of totalitarianism.

* * *

FORMER Commander-in-Chief of the German army, Colonel-General Baron Werner von Fritsch was killed in action on the Polish front last week.

Responsible for the rebuilding of the German army after Adolf Hitler came to power, von Fritsch was reputedly one of the greatest of military strategists.

Reportedly unable to get along with Fuehrer Hitler, he was purged in 1938 but returned to active duty when Poland was attacked.

The strange part of the whole affair is that the general was killed while on emergency patrol duty at the front. Anyone at all familiar with the set-up of an army is well aware of the fact that high ranking generals do not belong in such a position. It would be almost as ridiculous to send Britain's Viscount Gort and France's Marshall Gamelin out on a scouting party.

It was an established fact that General von Fritsch was disliked by many high ranking Nazis. Perhaps there is more behind the incident than meets the eye. It does seem strange that the Germans who are certainly no slouches when it comes to military strategy should let one of their ablest leaders and tacticians be exposed to death from the guns of simple Polish peasants.

* * *

Best defense of neutral nations Holland and Belgium is their dikes. Earlier this week as a warning to belligerent powers to stay clear and respect their neutrality, these two nations began a preliminary flooding of their frontiers to show the world they were determined to resist with force any violation similar to that of 1914.

* * *

NATIONAL

BRINGING surprise and consternation to the people of the United States was the announcement that the armed forces of the nation were pitifully inadequate to cope with any great foreign power.

This nation holds the unenviable record of never once being prepared for any major conflict in which we were engaged. (Any history of the American military forces will substantiate this statement.) Although it is true that now for the first time we are making a serious effort to protect ourselves, such plans have not as yet shown any great fruits.

World War I proved conclusively that the cry, "A million men to arms overnight," was ridiculously impossible, since it takes many months to weld a trained soldier out of a raw recruit, yet this nation does not seem to be aware of the fact. We are neither a strict militarist nor a strict pacifist, and have no desire to be confused with the alarmist that predicts our imminent entrance into the war. We feel, quite to the contrary, that there is a fifty-fifty chance of our remaining intact throughout the conflict, but only if we are adequately prepared to protect ourselves.

* * *

Congress is now embroiled in one of the most important battles the United States has ever waged. It is not our intention to go into controversy concerning the neutrality legislation nor to vent our personal opinion of the measure. We do hope, however, that no matter what decision Congress makes it will serve further

(Continued on page 4, column 4)

Future Pilots

By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Contributions: A Piece On Peace; A Plea For Lockers

● A PIECE, A PEACE, APPEASED
Editor, The Guardsman:

Pieces of peace have long been decreased,
The flight of the dove has long ago ceased;
For Appeased has gotten his piece without peace,
And the Czechs and the Poles are now in decease.

Bob Mason

● LOCKERS FOR LUNCHES
Editor, The Guardsman:

Being one of those many students carrying heavy programs, forced to lug miscellaneous books, binders, lunches, clothing matter, gym clothes, and other various and sundry articles from class to class, I particularly feel the need for lockers at the college.

It may be that I acquired a bad habit at high school, but while at that institution I became so attached to my locker that I sorely miss the use of one at this college.

Although I have attempted securing a locker at Galileo I have found that it cannot be done. Stolen books and a missing lunch (with two bananas in it) already taken, leave me hesitant to leave anything further of any value at Powell Street—check-room notwithstanding.

With a little expenditure by proper authorities, it would seem that lockers could be installed against the wall of the study hall at Powell Street, thus fulfilling the need for what is an evident necessity.

Even as few as 50 or 60 lockers would help lessen the burden. Students could bring their own combination locks and use any available locker so that individual lockers would not have to be issued.

Sincerely,

By Bye

Editor's Note:

The Powell Street Extension building is borrowed from the University of California for our morning classes. They use their building in the afternoon and evening. Despite the need for lockers and additional check room space the college respects the rights of the owners of the building. It would be unfair to the University of California if we built lockers on the property—especially on the property which they use the same days as we. Any movement of our equipment in borrowed buildings is blamed onto Tom O'Neill and J. Graham Sullivan. Students of the college have stood the inconvenience for eight semesters already—try to understand the position of the owners for the next two. We'll have our own buildings soon.

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

WE were in the hospital when we met Blackie. He was a tall, hairy, yet clean-cut Okie whose tousled dark hair and defiant eyes left a definite impression on a person seeing him for the first time.

He may have been thirty years of age but he didn't show physical strain brought on by the passing of three decades—if he were in his twenties his air of nonchalant maturity belied it. The only clue we had to his age was the admitted fact that Blackie had been a Knight of the Road since 1931.

When we came upon him he was singing in a well-tempered Mid-Western tenor—

"The Kansas wheat is ripe again,
John Farmer needs ten thousand men . . ."

And after the orderly turned out the lights Blackie would recite as his "good night":

"We'll meet again in the jungle,
The Wise Man, the Hoosier, and John,
The winos, and dinos, and dingbats,
Gazoots, gazocks, and gazons . . ."

We can't recollect the remainder of the poem—but it's harder than remembering a three-day-old dream. It is doubtful that we'll ever meet Blackie again to hear it repeated because he has recuperated from his illness and hit the road again.

That dark-haired Okie endeared himself to us when he narrated the adventures of Montana Jimmy, the French-Canadian Jean La Fort, and himself "on the bum." Blackie had the gift of giving a subtly humorous twist to any phrase that rolled off his tongue. And always these phrases were uttered from a pan as serious as a subpoena.

He was travelling around the ward in a wheel chair the day he told us: ". . . when Jimmy en I wuz workin in a lumber camp, it wuz cold ez hell an' the oney reason we worked wuz becuz they gave us good chuck. Lemme tell yuh, Jimmy was a expert pocket-miner, jack-roller, an' con man an' we wuz sick an' tired of hard work—boy, how we wanted to hit the freights again! The boss paid us off one night an' we wuz miles away from town so we boozes up, turn on the raddio an' Montana Jimmy an' a big Swede lumberjack get happy an' dance a old folk dance. All the time Jimmy got his hand in the Swede's pocket. Purty soon the Swede says, 'Say, Yimmy, youf got your hend in my pockit!' An' jest ez calm ez you please Jimmy says, 'That's right, Pete. That's the way ya do this dance. Here—you put your hand in my pocket.' We hopped our freight that night—we had to! Jimmy got the Swede's wallet."

Often, when supper was done Blackie would give lessons in Natural History. To the amazement of all ichthyologists he related tales of wonderful fish he had seen in his meanderings. His most impressive was the story of "Jingle Bells."

This amazing creature was so powerful, he broke every line that caught him and he would swim away with the hook and sinker dangling from his mouth. It wasn't long before there were so many hooks in his mouth and sinkers dangling that when the fish would swim down the Klamath River, the sinkers would clink against each other resulting in a series of musical chimes—thus "Jingle Bells."

We were almost tempted to accompany Blackie on a thievery expedition down the Sacramento River. Too bad we are such a slave to the nicer things in life.

Blackie left the hospital one sunny day and the ward seemed empty—and out of our humdrum existence passed the most romantic person we have ever known.

shots at RAMdom

. . . By Isadore Maloff

NEWS NOTE:

Movie producers in Hollywood are cutting down the length of kissing scenes in all films. It seems that in the middle West, theatre goers are showing their displeasure when bored with the length of such sentiment by throwing darts at the screen.

If this practice continues we can envision a new form of movie game to take the place of those now on the wane. "Darto" the new game would most probably be called. As each customer pays the admission price to the theatre he would be entitled to two darts with the privilege of throwing such darts at human figures portrayed on the screen in particularly irksome poses. Prizes would be awarded for the most expert marksmanship. (Patent Pending.)

SOME FUN!

We imagine that such sport would be great fun. The thought of throwing a dart and striking Mae West right in the—er, middle of the second reel, is overwhelming. Such amusement could also be put to good advantage in Western pictures. Just as the villain slinks up behind the unsuspecting hero intent on knifing our hero in the back, from out of the darkness a dart is let fly sticking the villian in—uh, true Western style.

Unhappily such a game could never become a reality in San Francisco. Local fans are far too complacent and easy going to become excited over the length of kissing scenes in the movies. At any rate it would seem much more novel for the theater-goer to show his distaste for mushy sentimentality by slinging darts than by squirming in his seat or gazing at the beautiful murals on the ceiling and walls of the theater.

* * *

LAST LAUGH

In history class the other day,
I met a maiden fair,
She had a smile so lovely,
And golden was her hair.

She smiled at me quite sweetly,
A smile—casting a spell,
And spoke of the pleasant weather,
In a way rehearsed so well.

I gave her my next day's homework,
I just couldn't resist her plea,
She thanked me quite sincerely,
And flashed that smile at me.

Again that night I met her,
This lovely maiden fair,
To my surprise she favored me,
With a decidedly wintry stare.

"Well now," I thought unto myself,
"This girl will come to sorrow,
For I'll be just as proud as she,
In the history class tomorrow."

Lou Goldstone is wondering when the French army bombers are going to wing their way over Berlin and drop French picture post cards on the startled Berliners. Seems like excellent propaganda, eh?

* * *

KORNY KEN'S LATEST

Some people really receive an overdose of publicity. Here for the last time, is recorded the latest bright remarks of Korny Ken PasKaletti (apologies to Nan BlaKstone), Kollege Kutup and worldacknowledged sage. Korny Ken reveals the following leaves of his intimate diary concerning his coast-to-coast buggy ride this summer:

New Orleans: . . . "That evening I was talking to a little Southern lass. It was getting very late so I said to her, 'May I take you home?'"

"Sho' 'nuff," she replied, "Where yo' all live?" . . . "I didn't like that city so . . ."

Omaha: . . . "I ran into my old friend "The Doc." I asked him, 'Did you ever hear of Naples, the famous old Italian port?'"

"No," replied Doc, "how much a bottle is it?"

* * *

(Personal to Mr. Hughes: Pay up Jim. You lose.)

* * *

I love to watch the Rooster crow
He's like so many Men I know
Who brag and bluster
Rant and shout
And beat their manly
Chests without
The first damn thing
To brag about.

RAM chops

By LOU GOLDSTONE

Indigo Monday

And a streamlined interview with Lee Eisan, to wit:

Q. Did the Rams show improvement, in the U.S.F. game, over their play in the Placer encounter?

A. A great deal of improvement. In the line, in offense and in defense. General improvement.

Q. What weaknesses were evident to you in the U.S.F. game?

A. The guards were handled on the U.S.F. spinners. The choice of plays might have been better. Tackling and offensive blocking were sloppy.

Q. What are the Rams' chances against Pasadena?

A. Pasadena just finished beating Pomona, 26 to 0.

Q. Tossup?

A. About a tossup.

Just the keep the record straight.

Statistics Dept.

The Rams have, in the two games played so far this season, scored a grand total of four touchdowns. Three of the touchdowns have been converted. Dave Cunningham, who booted the placement in last Friday's gigantic, avows that it was the first such effort in his experience, which is also something. Jim Molich has kicked two PATs, both in the Placer game. Not only that, but Molich has carried the ball over twice after receiving passes from Al Nauman. It's a combination that clicks. Nauman has scored once from scrimmage on an end sweep, while Carignani blocked a Placer punt for a touchdown. At this writing, the Rams have won one and lost one, hold 27 points against opponents' 14. At season's end, The Guardsman sports will present a more or less complete statistical breakdown of the college porcine year.

While on the subject of precision, it might be well to report that Doc Sewall has made a momentous discovery. September 15 was "first-game night" for many colleges and junior colleges, the nation over. Doc was on the alert. By means of a stop-watch and extra-sensory perception, Doc deduces that the Rams' first tally against Placer, after eight minutes of play, on the night of September 15, was undoubtedly and indisputably the very first touchdown scored by any college in the 1939 season.

Use of Photos

The pictures you see on this page serve two purposes. Firstly, they provide an incentive to glance at The Guardsman sports. They show how the Rams lost to the U.S.F. frosh, and they illustrate, in part, why the Rams lost to the U.S.F. frosh.

Earlier this week, Lee Eisan saw the first prints, and immediately pointed out some beautiful examples of what passes in the night for blocking and tackling. After giving the team a two hour chalk-talk, Eisan confronted the offending brethren with the evidence of the camera . . .

Ill-Considered Fact

Without playing the apologist, this column can truthfully call attention to the fact that, in the U.S.F. game, one man, Al Nauman, had to play the full 60 minutes at tailback position. Not only was Alex Spieller on the mend, but the other candidates for the ball-carrying post, Johnny Gray and Leo Leggett, also reclined on the sidelines throughout the contest.

Tennis Tourney At Fine Arts Palace; Prizes Offered To Net Stars

To commence "sometime" next week, according to Coach Tom Wilson, a super-tennis tournament will make its appearance at the Palace of Fine Arts.

Calling it something new and something worthwhile, Wilson said that winners of the tournament would receive a brand new shiny trophy.

"Not only will prizes be offered, but we'll all be in for an enjoyable time. I'm hoping that a lot of fellows will turn out," Wilson said.

The tournament will be divided into two branches; the singles, and doubles, it was explained.

"Because of the range of classes held," remarked Wilson, "we'll have to adopt a form of student arrangement in concern with the selection of opponents."

Coach Wilson has announced that entrants may sign up at the Palace of Fine Arts or to see him personally. Today or Monday would be the most convenient time to do this.

Such brilliant "racqueters" as yell leader Ray Berns, experienced Bill Madamba and other notables are expected to make their entries.

First Loss . . .

Hilltop Star Gains

Pounding off guard on a spinner, John Calavero, U.S.F. freshman ace batters his way to the Ram 5 yard line, late in the fourth period of last week's game at Roberts Stadium.

Calavero, stripped of his powerful blocking, goes down in the arms of Johnny Moisan, while Gray and Johannesen stand waiting to plug down any possible breakaway.

A few plays later, the Dons were over for their 13th and 14th points, sending the hopeful Rams to their first defeat of the season.

Don Frosh Topple Rams, By 14 to 7

Nauman to Moisan Pass Scores In Third; Rams Crumble Toward End As Poor Strategy Gives U.S.F. Opening

Roberts Stadium, Sept. 22.—The Rams are defeated, scored upon, but still untied . . . and still one of the greatest teams in college history.

Tonight, on this field, eight thousand spectators witnessed a real football game; a game that ended with the U.S.F. freshmen, most versatile crop in Hilltop annals, scoring a pair of touchdowns in the final quarter to triumph over the Rams by a 14 to 7 score.

Throughout the first and second quarters, the Don yearlings roared and ranted and bucked against a springy college defense, that yielded yards in midfield, but dug in to hurl back all advances past the 30 marker.

Repel Assaults

A fumble on the first Ram scrimmage play gave U.S.F. the ball in a very favorable position. From then on, it was the Dons plugging and gaining first downs, while the defense held at crucial points, to kick out of danger. Once, in illustration, Davies attempted to field a punt on his own three, and was downed on the spot. The Rams kicked out to the 29. Russo, Ramus, Calavero & Co. came driving back to the college 13 . . . and were pushed back, relinquishing the oval on the 20. From that point, Davies and Nauman motored to safer ground, and booted the Dons into their own home lot.

In the first half, the Rams were busy stopping young opposition marches, had no time to think of offense, never crossed midfield.

After the intermission, things happened fast. From his own 21 yard line, Temple Davies kicked a magnificent spiral that flew out on the Don 43. Russo, whose battering drive had been good for consistent gains, was dumped by Leong for a loss. Ramus picked it up again, and then punted to the Ram 27. Playing for the breaks, Davies kicked back. This time, starting on their 35, the eager Dons were knocked back 20 yards before they, in turn, kicked . . . only to have hard-running Al Nauman ram the kick back down their throats with a brilliant return to 15 yards past midfield.

Nauman to Molich

As in the Placer game, Nauman, on first down, spun wide to the right, hesitated, and hurled a strike down the sidelines. Jim Molich cut across from end, and received the pass on the Don 10, over the safety man's head, to trot unmolested for the Ram touchdown.

Those rising hopes of an upset—and an undefeated season—didn't last. They melted in the fiery blast of Don opportunism in the game's ensuing minutes.

Dons Go

First break came, a few plays later, as an oversight on the part of the Ram field strategy department. With the ball on the Don 40, the college gridders elected to pass on third down, rather than play safe by punting. The pass was a crowded, puny attempt, hurled in desperation to avoid a seven yard loss. The pass was intercepted near the center of the field. After an exchange of kicks, the Dons started driving, and a tired Ram eleven couldn't stop Ramus and Calavero on devastating spinners that tore through the guard positions.

A minute into the final frame, Russo cracked right tackle for the score, and Calavero followed up to split the goal posts for the extra point.

Another gamble paved the way for final defeat. Deep in their own territory, the Rams chose to pass again, and again it was intercepted. From the 15, it took the Dons six plays to work the ball over, with Calavero scoring. Again the conversion.

Inexperienced, crippled by the temporary loss of three key backfield men, the Rams showed stamina, if spotty judgment, in going down before a really powerful U.S.F. outfit.

The practice game has been played and lost. The Rams can still cop the conference laurels, and start on the comeback trail against Pasadena Junior College, next Friday evening, in the Rose Bowl . . . with all hands on deck.

Boxing Classes Holding Double Sessions; Amori Calls For Pug Hopefuls

Pugilistically minded men students of the college are receiving instruction in the "manly art" on two fronts this semester. One class meets under the supervision of Jack Gaddy, hygiene and physical education instructor, and the other is under the tutelage of Joe Amori, boxing coach par excellence.

Gaddy's group meets on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at the Galileo gymnasium. This class consists of 30 members who, according to Gaddy, are learning the fundamentals to the best of their ability.

Amori is instructing the class for police training at Funston field Monday and Wednesday afternoons at 1 o'clock. This class is open only to students who are enrolled in police training course. This leads to taller men in this class, because of the minimum height requirement for policemen of 5 feet 9 inches. The class as a whole consists of tall men in the heavier weight divisions.

In regard to the Men's Club fights Amori said, "With more than 50 men taking instruction in boxing and the many other fistically inclined students of the college, there should be some really good fights this semester. The members of Gaddy's class, and the winners will fight for the school championships."

Hoffman To Lead Golfers In Conference; Wilson Slated As New Mentor

Extensive plans were being prepared today for the entrance of golf into the college curriculum next semester. The Rams, under careful coaching by Tom Wilson, golf mentor, will enter the California Junior College Conference as second place team. San Mateo captured first division honors last year.

Golfers interested in competing for the Ram team are urged to contact either Wilson or "Dutch" Conlan during the coming week.

"We expect to produce a winner this year," said Conlan, who will assist in coaching. "Eight men will probably be carried on the team."

Bill Hoffman, finalist in conference playoffs last season, will head the list of returning lettermen. Other experienced men returning are Barney Rice, and Bill McLaughan, one of the best Bay Region golfers last year.

Track Meet Held At Galileo Today; Sweet Enthusiastic

Fall track training enters its third week Monday as Russell Sweet, track mentor, made plans for the initial practice meet scheduled Friday noon.

Thirty prospective Ram cinder stars showed up for training during the first week. At present approximately 40 tracksters are engaged in daily workouts, said Sweet.

All distance men are undergoing the fall sport as a means of acquainting themselves with the condition under which they will work next spring when the sport becomes a major attraction.

Sweet said today that he will welcome any new track men to the fall sport. Field athletes will not train until the regular track season begins. There is a possibility that the fall trackmen will participate in a number of cross-country runs, but this depends upon the ability of the distance runners to progress in the short season, said Sweet.

College Ski Club Plans To Enter Pacific League

Discussion of plans to enter the Pacific Coast Ram ski club were held as officers for the club were elected at a weekly meeting Thursday afternoon.

Bob Ogg, president of the Club, conducted elections and presided over discussions of equipment, trips, and practice schedules.

Erling Jacobsen was elected secretary of the organization; Vernon Estes was chosen treasurer.

A club name will be chosen from various names to be submitted by members. Alden Smith, advisor of the group, suggested the weekly meetings be uniform and that students who are expecting to participate in actual skiing attend every meeting.

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

Lee Eisan's red-jerseyed, rambling Rams, replete with revengeful rascals raring to reverse last season's rout with repercussions that will really reverberate, will romp and roar in the Rose Bowl tonight against a potent Pasadena powerhouse packed with punting and passing pigskin playboys who portend a passion for points and who are prepared to practice physical persuasion and pounce upon their prey, purportedly our poor pill-packers.

Minus three outstanding backs, Alex Spieller, "Legs" Leggett, and Johnny Gray, our local lads staged a stirring battle before succumbing to the young Dons, and, unless we're very much mistaken, will extend the Pasadenans no end.

The local impressario of optimism and exuberance, Jack Schmale, college publicity director, informs us that a bevy of lovely maidens will be on hand to greet our invading red and white warriors. We, however, are interested only in urging our footballers on to victory. Yeah.

Sacked Sacramento

Our scouts report that the metropolis of Sacramento has not been the same since the Ram special hit that village last year. History records that the Capital City experienced a six-hour reign of havoc and terror and it seems that the town has as yet to recover. Information relayed via RAM-line whispers that Modesto, next stop on the local yokels' excursion list, is hurriedly throwing up fortications hoping to withstand the onslaught of approximately 200 Rams and Rammettes. Take it from us, Modesto, you haven't a chance.

That perennial freshman, Robbin "Stogie" Fex, ex-political boss of the college, is trying to arrange a game on an open date between the varsity and an alumni squad. Robbin mentions the fact that such well-known ex-Ram pigskinners as Jerry Flamm and Walt Boltano would compete. On that Sophomore picnic last semester, certain members of the alumni went home with aching and creaking joints after the peanut race and a few more games of that type. After all, Robbin, you aren't as young as you used to be.

Scoop: After painstaking experimentation, Ima Stooge, statistician par excellence and head of our research department, announces that the odds in rolling the bones are 351 to 244 against the caster. Theoretically, therefore, you are foredoomed to defeat when rolling the bones but remember, men, "it don't mean a thing if it ain't got that swing."

Whatamean Word

The college's outstanding exponent of physical culture, "Chuck" Ward, is back with us once again. Ward, however, no longer battles the roaring surf of Aquatic Park or swallows goldfish, but instead feeds his palate with those rarest of delicacies, phonograph records. Ward says, "Jumping Jive, flavored with tobasco sauce, is red-hot." We regret to announce that one of our proteges and Ward's boon companion, the redoubtable "Terrier" Arce, uncrowned 119-pound fisticuffs champ of the college, has taken a leave of absence as has Bob Roth, white hope of the 169-pound division. The retirement of the lads leaves the old "Spider's" stable sadly depleted and we will gladly accept any and all applications.

Flying Rams Squad Dropped; Varsity Team Cut Down

Discontinuation of Junior Varsity football was formally announced, this week, by Lee Eisan, varsity coach.

Reason for the deletion was believed to have been the difficulty to organize gainfully. Announcement that Eisan was compelled to reduce a team of 80 prospects to a group of 40, has suggested indirectly the bounds in which he must remain in order to keep one good team in tip top order.

"I'd have gratefully kept every one of the 80 ball prospects if I had been able to do so," said Eisan. "With much material, a coach can plan for the future."

However, Eisan is hoping that next year it will be a different story. With a new campus and other available conveniences, he believes that organization will be sufficient to enable the college to be represented by a Flying Ram team.

As the situation now stands, the semester will continue with the varsity divided into three teams.

WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADE

By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

WAA elections which were held during the first part of the week terminated Wednesday when the names of the successful contestants were announced at the splash party. Those nominated for club members were Frances Manalo and Barbara Smith, badminton; Alma Koopman and Patricia Greenby, archery; Camille Condrotte, dancing; Jane Young, golf; Peace Alvarez, riding; Ruby Klistoff and Betty Teeter, hockey; Dorothy Mills and Dorothy Behrman, volleyball; Louise Hinterman, Rosamund Patterson and Astrid Rogenes, tennis; Barbara Gunn and Muriel Grenelle, fencing; Patricia McKenna and Rema Corbitt, ice-skating; Thursa Scott, Sylvia Rogenes, rifle.

* * *

A drive for WAA emblem-wearing made its way to the fore this week under the sponsorship of Bertha Keller, association adviser, and Lucille Jacke, WAA president. We notice that the campaign received the enthusiastic support of the many possessing triangles. The emblems which are acquired by good scholarship, unceasing attendance at club meetings, good sportsmanship, and ability in a sport, make a pleasing sight.

* * *

Tennis stars have started their ladder tournament, with beginners, intermediates, and advancees competing. Tennis eliminations have also started. The only catch is that in the eliminations, competitors must win two out of three games while on the ladder a vanquished opponent always has a chance to return and challenge.

* * *

In addition to the appearance of Helen Crlenkovich, national high-diving champ, Maxine Turner, the youngster who created quite a stir when she drum-majored in front of the Stanford band last year at the Stanford-California game, performed at the splash party Wednesday.

* * *

Because of a budget cut it was necessary to abandon plans for the WAA swimming club. "Perhaps," Miss Keller said, "it will be possible to have another splash party some time later in the semester." Now if San Francisco were to have another heat wave in, say, November . . . ?

* * *

Jean Wallace, Alameda County's contribution to badminton (she's the county's champ, you know) has enrolled in both tennis and badminton. The college is fairly "champ-ing" at the bit, these days, what?

* * *

Some Saturday in the near future, it is rumored, tennis and badminton racket-eers will have a play day with San Mateo Junior College. Birdies will fly in the Galileo gym and aces and deuces will hold out at the Palace of Fine Arts. Wait a minute—luncheon will follow for the combined groups. (Line forms at the right.)

* * *

A call for more golfers went out Monday, from Miss Keller, when she said that the class was far from being complete. "Incidentally," she added, "the equipment for golf is provided by the physical education department, and this holds true also for the majority of other clubs."

Since badminton classes didn't meet last Friday, because of a Galileo dance in the gym, a large turnout is expected today.

* * *

A full council meeting for the newly elected club managers of WAA sports was held yesterday, according to Lucille Jacke, association president. Purpose of the meeting was to acquaint the new managers with the general business aspects of managing a club sport.

* * *

Add-a-note: Just before press time, Bertha Keller, association adviser, made the announcement that women who haven't had their health examinations yet, may make an appointment to do so now.

* * *

Those of you who are interested in getting the high-school rates of 25 cents with skates and 40 cents without, for the ice-carnival today, had better scurry to find Instructor Joseph Williams and sign up, because if 50 people don't sign for ice-skating, the rates automatically rise. Don't say we didn't warn you! . . . See you at Winterland at 2:30 today for the Ice-Breaker . . .

Comeback

Rams Meet Pasadena In Rose Bowl Tonight

College Team At Full Strength For Southland Tilt; Hopes Up For Win Over Bulldogs, 16 Times Victors

Speeding southward, this afternoon, is the Ram gridiron squad. Tonight, in Pasadena's famed Rose Bowl, perennial locale of New Year's Day championship games, the college warriors clash with a Pasadena outfit that has won its last sixteen consecutive battles.

The Rams beat Placer, but dropped the U.S.F. Frosh encounter, while the Pasadena Bulldogs have already kept their record intact by walloping Pomona, 26 to 0.

The outcome of the game is unpredictable . . . the unknown quantity. Pasadena is weaker, by far, this year. In 1938, the Southerners came to Kezar, and turned loose a streak of Black Lightning named Jack Robinson on the unsuspecting locals. In the 33 to 0 debacle that followed, the Rams were submerged and humiliated.

This year, however, Robinson will be making it tough for the opponents of U.C.L.A., and consequently Pasadena J. C. has lost its most potent offensive threat.

Morale Steady

Lee Eisan's Revamped Rams, on the other hand, present an entirely different aspect from 1938's slightly blowheaded crew. The team, despite the U.S.F. defeat, showed tremendous improvement last week; fundamentals are being worked hard, and the boys are snapping into their assigned grooves with cool determination.

For one thing, "Lefty" Spieller, Johnny Gray, and Leo "Legs" Leggett are all in perfect physical trim for tonight's match. The three of them were benched for the U.S.F. game, and Al Nauman was forced to shoulder the burden of sixty straight minutes at the tailback slot. He, too, will be ready tonight, and that gives the Rams prodigious backfield talent.

The lineup will be much the same as heretofore, with Fran Gray and either Dave Cunningham or Jim Molich starting at ends, Adrian Carignani and Bob Schoenstein at tackles, Chicazola and Johnson or Leong at guards. Wilson will hold center.

In the backfield, Temple Davies, whose soaring punts have featured both previous Ram games, will play at left half, while Bob Craigie and Johnny Gray take their stand at right half and fullback, respectively. Al Nauman encores at quarter.

Win Streak

To meet this Ram ball club, a team now experienced and possessed of a new-found confidence and stability, are the Pasadena Bulldogs. 16 times victors in their last 16 games.

"Sensational!" declares Pasadena advance publicity in describing Jake "Jake-rabbit" Leicht, 156 pound quarterback, who sprints the 100 in 9.7. Leicht will operate behind the blocking of backs Bill Holden and Keith Palmer. Both Bill Murray and Don Winton will see action at full.

Hersh Patten, veteran Bulldog letterman, occupies the center berth. Allen Wheelden and Bill Wall will start at guards, reputedly Pasadena's weakest positions. Lettermen Morris Jackson and Merton Kilgore fill in at tackles, while the end positions are strong with personnel consisting of Clem Tomerlin and Joe O'Laughlin.

Passing Duel?

That the Rams have a steady defense was demonstrated by their actions, last week, in stemming the strong U.S.F. rushes for more than three quarters. Pasadena must be credited with an equally smart combination.

Ground power may be equally divided tonight, but it is more than likely that the Rose Bowl audience will witness a passing duel of proportions. Those Nauman to Molich touchdown tosses have countered twice this season. Pasadena boasts an aerial offense which has given them numerous points. Atmospheric warfare—on and off the gridiron—can click beautifully . . . or boomerang disastrously.

Honor Society

Alpha Gamma Sigma Eligibles Are Listed By The Registrar's Office

Compilation of the names of students eligible for Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college honor society, has been finished by the registrar's office.

Those students whose names are not included in the list, but believe they are eligible for membership in the society, should report at once to Alice Cooper, Alpha Gamma Sigma faculty sponsor, or to the registrar's office, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, announced.

Requirements for entrance into the society include 30 honor points, exclusive of Physical Education, with no D's. Members of the Gold Seal Scholarship association in high schools are also eligible. These students should contact Miss Cooper immediately.

"Officers of the society last semester have all graduated," Miss Cooper informed, "so we must hold a meeting for election of officers soon. Please watch the bulletin board at Powell Street for nominees."

In the absence of officers, Albert Day has been acting as temporary representative at Club Advisory Board meetings.

The following students are eligible for membership in Alpha Gamma Sigma:

Allen, Virginia
Anderson, Gyda
Bailey, James
Bauman, Doris
Benkman, Mitzi
Biglousky, Sidney
Blackfield, Willard
Blumenberg, Carol
Bradford, Eleanor
Bulf, Eugene
Burgess, Violet
Burr, Robert
Castaneda, Frederic
Champman, Douglas
Chew, James
Cohn, Richard
Corgiat, Stephen
Coulter Phyllis
Cramer, William
Cranna, Robert
Dancoff, Martha
Day, August
Deeds, James
Diamond, Lillian Doran, John
Garbe, Helen Gellermann, Jeannette
Goodman, Ernest
Graves, Donald
Gross, Jean
Gunn, Barbara
Gustafsson, Ruth
Hammarstrom, Fred
Hashioka, Kenji
Hashiyania, Fred
Hata, Akira
Hein, Virginia
Henry, James
Herzberg, Eva
Hoffman, George W.
Hoffman, Norma
Holmer, Madelen
Iawoka, Joe
Joseph, William
Jigour, Joseph
Keller, Lewis
Kilger, Murielle
Kim, Florence
Klang, Annette
Koopman, Alma
Kreider, Dorothy
Kreo, Harold
Lambert, Charles Learned, Phyllis
Legros, Robert
Leitner, Eleanor
Lichtenstien, Irwin
Loucks, Kathryn
Lowsdo, Marjorie
McCaffery, Robert H.
McGarvie, Kathleen
McKenzie, Wilbur
Makower, Ted
Malim, Elizabeth
Mersman, Scudder
Miller, Gloria
Moran, Elwood
Murphy, Marian
Nakamura, Arthur M.
Nash, Lorraine
Nelson, Dorothy
Newell, Elizabeth
Nicol, Tamara
North, Charles
O'Keefe, Grace
Olsen, Norman
Ottesen, Alice
Pilgrim, Dorothy
Pitt, William
Read, Winifred
Rehbock, Ruth
Rogers, Lig
Roi, Mitzi
Rose, Barbara
Rosenblat, Daniel
Ruffino, Eleanor Ryan, Lillian
Samuel, Alan
Sansom, Pearl
Schneidewind, Frederick
Selby, Ruth
Selden, Herbert
Smith, Arthur
Smith, Barbara
Stone, William
Strehl, Bob
Sugiyama, Shinobu
Swensen, Maxine
Switzer, William
Tanaka, June
Thompson, Hartley
Tibbits, Charles
Trofimoff, Lydia
Trood, Dorothy
Vais, Lawrence
Verducci, Frank
Wilken, Jean M.
Williams, Bailey
Willson, Marie
Wong, Constance
Wrede, Ted

Business Students To Get Credit For Merchandising Work At Down Town Stores

Starting at 40 cents an hour for 15 hours a week, 60 beginners in the Retail Merchandising classes have obtained positions in a large number of downtown department stores. They are followed by four advanced students who receive 50 cents an hour for the same time, according to F. G. Marsh, college business director.

Receiving full college credit for their work, the business students attend classes at the Holbrook building from 9 until 11 o'clock in the morning.

"In time," Marsh said, "we have hopes that the Retail Merchandising curriculum will be expanded. Already, this semester, we have had calls for more students than we can supply."

The department stores employing business students are: Livingston's, Magnin's, City of Paris, O'Connor and Moffat, Sears Roebuck, Weinstein's, Penny's, Hale's, and the Emporium.

In addition to the business students employed, nine members of the Insurance laboratory course are acquiring practical experience by working for insurance companies. "The remuneration these students receive," Marsh said, "is the practical experience they gain, and the positions that await them when they qualify for their line of work. That is the purpose of the business department; to train students until they are qualified to work."

Today, from 12 until 1 o'clock, Henry Martin of the Standard Forms Insurance Company will speak before the general insurance class on Fire Insurance. Martin, who is the former office manager of the Royal Liverpool and Globe Fire Insurance Company, with its offices in London, is, according to W. C. Marsh, college business instructor a known authority on Fire Insurance.

Those interested are invited to attend the lecture which will be held in Room F in the Holbrook Building, 58 Sutter Street at 12 o'clock.

Most Reverend Thomas A. Con- auxiliary bishop of San Francisco attended Mission High School in 1914 and played first base on the ball team.

Champ Gets Sewing Lessons

For the first time in the history of the college, a woman student will be honored by the Block SF Society when it confers upon Helen Crlenkovich, America's famous high-diving champion a block letter.

Miss Crlenkovich, the first honorary member of the society, will probably receive her award from Coach Lee Eisan at the next rally, according to Edwin C. Browne, dean of men.

Jack Schmale, college publicity director gave as the reason for the award, Miss Crlenkovich's outstanding achievement in diving. "Although she doesn't compete officially in the name of the college Miss Crlenkovich is undoubtedly the most famous athlete, man or woman, in the history of the college," he said.

When questioned as to how she felt about being awarded a block letter, Miss Crlenkovich said, "I'm really thrilled. It's quite an honor to be the first girl to be presented with a block letter for athletic achievement. As soon as Frank Verducci finishes teaching me how to sew I'll sew the letter on a white sweater." (See picture)

High Freshman Dance Will Be Held October 11 At the Veterans' Auditorium

Withholding the theme of the bids for the High Freshman class dance as a last minute surprise, Dorothy Trood, chairman of the college social committee, announced last week that the affair was scheduled for the Veteran's Auditorium Wednesday night, October 11.

Collegians attending will dance to the smooth rhythm of Warren Ringen and his orchestra.

"All students of the college are invited to attend," Miss Trood said.

At the meeting of the committee held yesterday, final plans were made concerning the design of the bids and date of the Low Sophomore class dance. It is rumored that this dance will be held in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel.

Art Students To Display Colombia Map At Fair

On October 13 some of the art students of the college will display a large colored map of Colombia, furnishing a backdrop for the Latin American program, which will take place on that day in the Colombia Building at the Fair.

Among those who are working on the map are August Day, president of the Alpha Delta Epsilon, the college art club, Marion MacKillop, staff artist for the Guardsman, and Hazel Bray.

While Thinking

(Continued from page 2)

to protect American interests and help us to remain neutral.

• • •

Incorporating sections of the old 1917 Espionage Act together with new clauses the American government late last week put into effect a stringent law affecting the activities of foreign agents in this country.

Although this measure will not by any means put a stop to espionage activities, it will in some respects curtail them, since every foreign agent is required to notify the State Department of his activities.

Among other things this act may mean the partial stopping of subversive propaganda before it has gotten a grasp on the American public.

• • •

STATE

LATEST reports state that through Public Works Administration grants, $26,000,000 of educational facilities have been added to the institutions of learning through the state during the past few months.

Mention of the PWA always strikes a soft chord in our heart for if it were not for its grant of money, the college campus at Balboa Park would still be a mythical dream instead of a rising actuality.

• • •

PRESS

SURROUNDED by an ominous ring of censorship the foreign correspondents are finding that all is not a bed of roses when it comes to covering a war. Strangely enough the British and French maintain a stern silence while on the other hand the Germans allow reporters to work to a certain extent unhampered. Of course nothing passes through unless it is favorable to the national cause.

It is about time the blundering fools who have clamped down the strictest censorship of all times realized that they are doing themselves infinitely more harm than good by adopting such an uncompromising attitude.

Added note to the reading public: Criticism of the American newspapers because of lack of adequate war news is most unjust. The blame lies entirely on the shoulders of the warring nations.

'Mentally Deficient' . . .

By MIRIAM FRAZIER

Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents a series of interesting attempts at literature by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandys, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. Short stories will be signed, autobiographies will be published anonymously.

Father's voice stalked rudely into her thoughts without so much as knocking—

"Eight o'clock, Elizabeth Ellen. Pray put your book away."

"Yes, Father."

Two dutifully polished buttoned boots respectfully approached Father's chair, inadvertently squeaked as they stood on tiptoe to permit their mistress to receive a paternal kiss, then, abashed, to complete confusion, noisily withdrew.

"Pick up your feet, Elizabeth."

"Yes, Father," and the door closed softly behind the blue-pinafored, brown-pigtailed figure.

Up the long staircase she raced. Black steely prongs of night air raked through her hair. It made her head feel hard and tight like a knot in her petticoat string. She undressed in the dark. The cold drummed against her ears and made them ache. In bed, she piled the blankets over her head, hunched her knees up under her chin, cupped numbed fingers over her face, and breathed hard into them to warm her nose. Then, half-fearfully, surreptitiously, sick with excitement, she lit a candle and groped beneath the porcelain-cold pillow for Dombey and Son. Her stomach felt like a bunch of taut wires. The slightest noise and tumultuous vibrations shimmered throughout her small body. As long as the flame burned she read, then closed her book and lay with a hot cheek pressed against the icy counterpane.

She hated school and dreaded the splenetic, sour-visaged teacher—an unholy trinity of terror, temper, and tyrannny. Yesterday, all had been well until the Latin lesson; then fear ricocheted through the brains of Lizbeth Lappet like a mouthful of grape seeds pitted into an empty sack. Through stiffened eyes she had watched the woman approach. Miss Crimpson's black bombazine switched menacingly from narrow hips. She remembered thinking that the teacher's eyes had something loose, like egg white, stuck to them, and she sickened with the feel of coddled egg in her mouth.

"Miss Lappet, please to conjugate requiesco, requiescere, requiesi, requietus."

The words dripped like vitrified syrup from the corners of her flaccid mouth, and bounced like hard, brittle, unmeaning pellets, distractedly into Elizabeth's head. Terrorized revulsion gagged her. She could say nothing.

And on the report card of that little girl, who, now, twenty years later is known as Dr. E. E. Lappet, England's foremost psychiatrist, was written:

"Mentally deficient."

AMS Forms Cooperative Council; Makes Plans For Coming Barn Dance

As a subsidiary group to the Associated Men Students' Council a new standing committee has been formed to be called the AMS Cooperative Council.

"The Council has been formed not to criticize, condemn, or condone functions, but to assist in their promotion in any way possible if requested," announced Lee Scarlett, AMS president.

According to Scarlett, it shall be the desire of the Council to make all extra-curricular functions a success as follows:

1. Formulating cooperation among all college organizations with the following objectives, (a) attendance, (b) unity among all organizations.

2. Donation of services (manual or otherwise) when needed.

3. Discussing as a group any problem relating to the promotion of any social event encountered by new clubs with a view toward solution.

4. Encouraging all men students to attend the activities of any group of which they might be a member.

"Any college organization should feel free to call on the council at any time it needs help of any nature," said Scarlett, "the council will not intrude upon any club or organization unless asked to do so."

The members of the council are Lee Scarlett, AMS president; Terry Sandelin, of the Hotel and Restaurant division; Ray Berns, yell leader; and Joseph Amori, AMS advisor. They will select AMS members to help when needed.

"The annual AMS Hallowe'en dance is to be held Friday, October 27, after the San Mateo Junior College game," announced Scarlett.

Aeronautics Course Outlined

(Continued from page 1)

For the balance of the course he is to have two 1 hour instruction periods per week. A total of between 35 and 50 hours of flight instruction is to be given. Flight instruction will be conducted at the airport and will consist of the following:

Stage A:

1. Preliminary ground instruction for flight, 2. Taxiing, 3. Air work which includes first flight, 4. Take-offs, 5. Landings, 6. Spins, 7. Simulated forced landings.

Stage B:

1. Solo Flight, 2. Solo Practice.

Stage C:

1. Advanced Solo and advanced flying instruction. Students who pass the flight examination will be eligible for the C.A.A. Private Pilot Certificate of Competency.

Application Conditions: (a) Students participating in the program must be citizens of the United States. They must have reached their eighteenth birthday but not their twenty-fifth birthday on or before September 1, 1939.

(b) Students participating shall not have had any solo flying experience.

(c) Each student selected will be expected to provide adequate insurance and to submit to the flight physical instruction. Total cost of the insurance and physical examination will be approximately $30.

(d) College students in the freshman year are not allowed to participate.

(e) Students shall be required to present guardian's or parent's permission to take the course before they can qualify.

(f) Students will be required to present at least two letters of recommendation from members of the faculty.

Physical Limitations Given Are: (a) Height—must not be less than 64 inches and not more than 78 inches.

(b) Weight—must not be less than 115 lbs. and should be proportioned to height.

(c) Vision—20/20 each eye, uncorrected, is required. Strabismus "crossed eyes", disqualifies. Defective color vision disqualifies.

(d) Hearing—must be able to hear the whispered voice at 20 feet with each ear separately.

Qualification Procedure: (a) A roster of eligible students will be made up as quickly as possible.

(b) From this list of applications a college committee of three will make a preliminary roster.

(c) The committee will consider letters of recommendation, academic ability, personal qualifications, and will consider any other information at hand in qualifying students.

(d) As stated in the opening paragraph students interested in this training program as above outlined must fill out an application form supplied by the C.A.A. at the college office at Galileo not later than next Wednesday.

Enrollment In Ground School: (a) The ground school will start as soon as practicable and will meet from 4 to 5 hours a week until 72 hours of instruction is given by the end of the first semester.

(b) Those students qualifying will meet at a class hour that will be selected by agreement and certain necessary adjustments in their college program will be made so that they can proceed with the training.

(c) Those students selected will have the necessary changes made in their present programs.

STUDENTS PLANNING TO GRADUATE NEXT JANUARY MUST FILE PETITIONS BY WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER FOURTH

Students planning to graduate in January, 1940, must file petitions for graduation on or before Wednesday, October 4, warns Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

"This date is chosen so that the office will have time to check up on each applicant's record and determine, before it is too late, what he needs to complete the requirements," said Miss Learnard. "Last semester several students delayed applying until near the end of the term. They were out of luck. Such is unfortunate, but these applications must be in our hands on time."

Applications may be procured and filled out at the Registrar's office in Room 262 at Galileo.

Low Sophomore Class To Hold Dinner Dance

Officers of the Low Sophomore Class have tentative plans to be presented to the members of the class for approval, and completion of the plans. This will be done at the next meeting which will be called after a rally in the near future.

This semester, the Low Sophs are planning to hold a special dinner and dance at the Lake Merritt Hotel in Oakland. The date for this affair is uncertain, and will be determined at the class meeting.

Plans for the Low Freshman afternoon dance and rally are still tentative, but if they are completed, it will be held later in the semester, and further plans will be made at the next class meeting, officers said.

CLUB SCHEDULE

NAME	Type of Meeting	TIME	PLACE
Alpha Delta Epsilon	Business	Oct. 10—2:30 p.m.	Rm. 253—Galileo
Alpha Gamma Sigma	No Plans
Alpha Phi Omega	Special	Oct. 2—8:00 p.m.	3535 Fillmore St.
Army-Navy	Business	Oct. 3—8:00 p.m.	Indefinite
Astronomy	Business	Oct. 2—7:00 p.m.	Galileo
Beta Phi	No Plans
Block S.F.	Election	Oct. 3—7:30 p.m.	Rm. 458—Galileo
Beta Tau	Pledge Dinner	Oct. 2—8:30 p.m.	Indefinite
Chinese	No Plans
Forestry	Trip	Oct. 13—15	Mountains
Forum	No Plans
French	No Plans
George Washington	No Plans
Home Econ. Ass'n.	No Plans
Hotel-Restaurant	Election	Oct. 3—7:30 p.m.	St. Francis Hotel
Iota Chi	No Plans
Japanese	No Plans
Lambda Chi	Initiation Meeting	Oct. 5	Western Women's Club
Music	Program	Sept. 29—7:45 p.m.	2269 Francisco
Newman	Business (Speaker)	Oct. 2—8:00 p.m.	1100 Franklin St.
Omicron Phi Pi	No Plans
Peace Society	Business	Oct. 6	830 Hyde St.
Phi Beta Rho	No Plans
Phys. Ed. Majors	Business	Indefinite	Indefinite
Pi Mu Gamma	Initiation	Sept. 30	Indefinite
Pick and Hammer	No Plans
Pre-Nursing	No Plans
Rifle and Pistol	Weenie Roast	Sept. 29	Searsville Lake
Tarhuth	No Plans
Tri Epsilon	Business	Oct. 9—8:00 p.m.	Parkwood
Women's Service Society	Tea	Oct. 7	Indefinite

Patronize Our Advertisers

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE LIBRARY DISTRIBUTION OF BOOKS

GENERAL COLLECTION

Philosophy, Psychology, Religion, Political Science, Biography, Fiction .... Extension Lobby
All other books (except General Reference works) .... 518 Powell St.
Reference Works .... P. G. & E. Bldg.
Periodicals (except latest numbers) .... P. G. & E. Bldg.

RESERVED BOOKS

Books reserved for use in specific courses .... Extension Lobby (Reserved window)
Periodicals (latest numbers of each) .... Extension Lobby

RULES GOVERNING USE

1. Books from general collection (except reference works and periodicals) circulate for one week and are not renewable.
2. General reference works and periodicals are to be used only in the reading rooms.
3. Reserved books and the latest number of periodicals circulate for two hours or for overnight use after one o'clock.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

may be secured from faculty supervisors in each division of the library.

WE HAVE IT!

The New MAGIC* MARGIN ROYAL PORTABLE
See It at
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. Hastings
591 Market St. Phone SUtter 4734

STANLEY'S
LUNCHES DINNERS
FOUNTAIN SERVICE
Corner Steiner and Sutter
Near Girls High

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .
Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.
509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600
Remington Rand, Inc.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940

Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1939 No. 5

Social

High Freshman Dance Next Wednesday Night

Swinging into the second dance of the semester, students of the college will honor the High Freshman class next Wednesday night, October 11, in the auditorium of the Veterans' War Memorial building.

The announcement, emanating from Dorothy Trood, chairman of the social committee also disclosed that the affair would be informal and that all students of the college were invited to attend.

Ringen To Play

Music will be provided by Warren Ringen and his nine-piece orchestra. Ringen has played for several other social affairs and is expected to excell his past pleasing performances.

Admission to the affair will be the usual one, Associated Student's card per couple. Although the dance is to be given in honor of the high freshman class, all students of the college and their guests are invited. "For the benefit of the new students, I wish to say that they do not necessarily have to bring a member of the college. Their possession of a student's card entitles them to bring whomever they please," Miss Trood said.

Dancing will be from 9 to 12 p. m.

Room To Dance

The scene of the dance was chosen several weeks ago by the social committee because it was felt that in the Veterans' Auditorium there would be room enough to dance. "Since the college enrollment has increased so perceptibly this semester, we chose this location so that there would be no complaints about lack of space in which to dance," Miss Trood continued. The auditorium is considered to be the largest dance floor in the city for an affair of this kind.

Continuing with the policy established last semester there will be an identification committee constantly at the door to see that only students and their guests gain entrance to the dance.

Composed of several members of the faculty, headed by Dean Edwin C. Browne, the committee will refuse admission to any couple not holding their own Associated Student card.

Card Loaners Warned

"Students are once again cautioned not to loan their cards to outsiders. Any cards collected at the door will be confiscated by the college and the offenders brought before the Judicial Committee. It would be wise for every student once again to read the signed statement on the back of his student card, and to understand that we are definitely not fooling," Dean Browne commented.

The theme of the dance and the design of the bids has not been announced. It is rumored that the social committee plans them as a surprise for the students attending the dance.

Men's Club Barn Dance Oct. 27 At Devonshire Country Club; Time Undecided

It has been definitely decided to hold the annual Associated Men Students' halloween dance at the Devonshire Country Club on Friday, October 27, according to Lee Scarlett, AMS president.

"It has not been definitely decided whether the San Mateo football game will be held Friday night or Saturday afternoon. The dance, however is definitely scheduled for Friday night, and the time of the affair will depend entirely on subsequent developments. We will have a definite statement regarding the hours of the dance next week" said Scarlett.

The dance committees will be as follows:

Location — Hugh Ryan, Tony Manov.

Music—Ernest Godfry, Lee Scarlett, Art Pomares.

Decoration — Ray Berns, Sterling Silver, Ken Pasqualette, Tony Manov, Mel Jacobs.

Refreshments—Tom Duffy, Bob Klingler.

Special Invitation—Bob Owen, Roy Romey, Gorden Romey.

Publicity — Lou Goldstone, Jay Wright, Art Maclain.

Building

Lowdown From Higher Ups

Pictured above is a unique shot of President Archibald J. Cloud (right) and Superintendent of Schools Joseph P. Nourse, taken by Guardsman photographer Bill Quandt from the scaffolding of the now completed second floor of the new building.

The two educators are busily inspecting plans for the new campus now more than half done.

Started last April, work on the buildings has progressed with machine-like rapidity on both the academic unit and the two gymnasiums. Given 300 days to complete the three buildings, Clinton Construction Company, contractors for the job have given college authorities assurance that the work will be completed within the specified time.

Applications For Student Hotel Representatives No Longer Being Accepted, Results Announced Soon

Near completion are the plans of the Hotel and Restaurant Division to coordinate all representation on the campus of San Francisco and bay area hotels.

The plan called for applications from interested students for the various campus representative positions. "Receipt of applications is now closed, and representatives of the Hotel Division will meet with Dean Edwin C. Browne shortly to sort the applications, and send two or three to each hotel for final selections. The results will be announced next week" said Stirling Silver, spokesman for the division.

Special student luncheons are being offered by the division in the Galileo cafeteria from 12:45 p. m. to 2:20 p. m., instead of as formerly from one o'clock, announced Mrs. Hilda Watson, faculty member in charge of cafeteria serves.

Initiation of 20 new members, and election of officers featured this week's meeting of the Hotel and Restaurant Society, social group affiliated with the division. Elected to fill the presidential vacancy left by the resignation of Robert Klinger was Stirling Silver, former vice-president, and elected to the vice-pesidential succession was Ernest Box.

Plans of the society for the near future include a trip on October 12 to the Beringer Winery in Napa County, followed by an inspection of the catering problems of the Napa State Hospital. The day will end with a barbecue at White Silver Springs, said Silver.

Guest Lecturers Featured Each Week During College Business Course Classes

Guest lecturers are currently becoming a fad for students who do their studying at the Holbrook Building, located at 58 Sutter Street.

For the past several weeks, various classes under the leadership of F. Grant Marsh and W. C. Marsh, business department instructors, have had the opportunity of listening to many noted authorities in the field of business.

Whether or not this becomes a weekly event, there is one thing certain. The students enjoy and appreciate these formal discourses. This was implied by W. C. Marsh when he said, "We like to hear them all."

To keep the chain of lectures in continuity, an address concerning the various technicalities of contracts was delivered last Wednesday at the Holbrook Building by J. Jones, manager of the Maryland Casualty Company.

Delivered especially to the casualty insurance class, students learned emphatically "What to look for on a contract.". Also discussed was the policy of buying and selling insurance in competition.

Possibility of another guest speaker looked almost certain at this time. W. C. Marsh announced that he was soon expecting a lecture concerning marine insurance; the definite date, however, could not specifically be learned.

Berns Increases Rally Committee, Schedules Rally For Next Week

Expansion of the rally committee from a group of 12 to a newly established quota of 25 students was recently announced by Ray Berns, college yell leader.

New Problems Arise

In explaining his reasons for such action, Berns disclosed that new problems have arisen with the tremendous increase in enrollment. He hastened to explain, however, that the taking of this step will not cause the committee to become overly cumbersome, for he has divided the entire group into three sub-committes to be known as the pep, ushering, and greeting committees respectively.

Serving in the pep committee will be the two assistant yell leaders and Elmer Hubacher, president of the Associated Students.

Duties of the second group, the ushering committee, are to take care of seating arrangements, and generally to officiate at the various games in which this college participates. Members of this committee are Bill O'Neil, Louis Delare, Harold Höffman, Malcom Jacobs, Wilton Latz, Lee Scarlett, Bob Owen, Hugh Ryan, Tony Manov, and Frank Verducci.

New Committee

Newest of the groups is the welcoming committee. Composed entirely of women, it will be their duty to welcome the visiting members of teams and their delegations who come to encounter our teams on the fields of athletic endeavor. Serving to put the visitors at ease are Muriel Nolan, Janet Ball, Dorothy Trood, Jean Kelley, Murielle Grenelle, Marge Meader, Jean Chesley, Dolores Dixon, Adele Kuhn, and Virginia Pearson.

Date of the next rally has been tentatively set for next Friday afternoon.

Debate Team Awaits Phi Kappa Delta Topic

Release of the Phi Kappa Delta national debate question in the middle of October will be the signal for college debaters to plan for their debate with San Francisco State College scheduled for early in November.

Debate coach, Lloyd D. Luckmann, explained that although the college did not belong to the national debating fraternity, Phi Kappa Delta, it would debate the fraternity's question because of its nationwide importance.

New Course

Aviation Ground School Underway Within A Week

With preliminary medical examinations and interviews now being given to all applicants, the college flight training ground school should be under way within a week, Captain George Richards, college flight instructor disclosed this week.

Selection Soon

On the basis of these preliminary examinations and interviews, a tentative selection of students will be made for the ground school. Final selection of persons considered most capable of becoming pilots will be made as soon as the more advanced tests and physical examinations are given and will be announced soon.

Although a goodly number of students have shown their interest in the course, it is expected that the "weeding out" process will eliminate many of the applicants through physical defects or inability to pass the more advanced tests.

In urging more applications, Captain Richards said, "More applications are needed for flight training under the Civilian Pilots Training Program of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. This program is your Federal Government's attempt to train suitable young men for flying, who will continue to fly, it is hoped as private pilots, thereby stimulating the aviation industry.

No Military Connection

"There is no military connection in this program and one does not assume any obligation in this respect, upon entering the training.

"This might well be the start of a career in private and commercial aviation that would have an unlimited future. Aviation has arrived. No other branch of the system of transportation offers such a fine opportunity for distinctly gainful employment or unsurpassed recreation.

"Flying is a young man's game and a challenge to all youth with an eye to the future, the beginning of a college education, and the ambition that all normally healthy young people should have.

First Time Offered

"This is the first time that your government has ever offered free flight training to other than military pilots. Why not take advantage of it?"

New Special Rates Are Offered By Winterland To All College Students

Winterland ice rink made further concessions to ice-skaters after Friday's initial ice meet, when there was announced a 30 cent rate with skates and a 50 cent rate to any of the students interested in joining the skaters. These rates are effective at any of the ice-skating sessions, if the students present their student body cards.

With a turn-out of 30 students, men and women, plans were made for Bill Quandt to discuss with Dean Edwin C. Browne, the organization of a junior college ice-skating club.

"Now that midterms are over, or will be over," Joseph Williams, skate instructor, said, "why not come out and celebrate on the ice."

New Book On U.S. Foreign Policy On Hand At Library

One of the many new reference books just received at the college library at 447 Sutter Street, is one of especial importance in its timeliness. On the United States' foreign policy, The United States and War, compiled by Julia E. Johnsen, is replete with material concerning either side of the present neutrality legislation.

The freshman student seems to be having a hard time finding the college library, according to Librarian Francis J. Colligan. Librarians at the P. G. & E. reference library on Market Street have been having quite a time rerouting misdirected freshmen to the correct library.

For their information, the freshmen will find the San Francisco Junior College Library is at 447 Sutter Street, in Room 728 and is open from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m.

Student Government

Rifle Team To Receive Block Awards; Ex Council Studies Honor System

Confronted with the problem of finding a solution to dishonesty among students during examinations, the Executive Council at its last meeting sanctioned the establishment of an auxiliary investigation committee.

Designed to supplement the work of the Judicial Committee, the new organization was described by Allan Williams, chairman of the Judicial Committee, as one that would "undertake the duty of devising some scheme whereby the entire problem of cheating in examinations can attain a solution.

"It must be understood that this will not be a policing committee designed to apprehend violators of the honor system, but rather it will have as its purpose the investigation of a solution to the entire question, which solution may be a revised honor system or any one of a number of other schemes."

Reports to the council, in addition to routine committee reports, included a statement by Dean Edwin C. Browne on the distribution of official passes to Associated Student affairs of the college. Destination of these passes included the office of the Mayor and the Board of Education.

To Pasadena Junior College, by the direction of the executive council, went a letter of thanks for the courtesy extended to the football team and representatives of the college during the period preceding and after the game held in the Rose Bowl last weekend.

Emerging triumphant after a battle extending over several semesters, the college Rifle Team has finally been recognized as a minor sport within the college, announced Dean Edwin C. Browne early this week.

Decision Unanimous

At a meeting of the Men's Athletic Council held last Wednesday, Charles North, captain of the rifle team, presented the case to the group. The council, consisting of Russ Sweet, faculty adviser, Dean Browne, Elmer Hubacher, president of Associated Students, Wilton Latz, representative of the Block SF Society, and Hugh Ryan representing the circle members of the Block SF was unanimous in its decision.

North, when explaining the situation to the council quoted from a letter received from the University of California to the effect that "Riflery is recognized as a minor sport at this university and circle "C" awards are made to the 10 leading scorers on the rifle squad."

Besides California the college team competes with the Stanford riflemen and the teams of other colleges and junior colleges in the state.

Other Teams Recognized

It was felt that because the sharpshooters in other colleges were recognized as sportsmen eligible for minor awards it was only logical that rifle teams from this institution be accorded the same honor.

In commenting upon the decision of the council Sweet said, "In view of the excellent showing made by the college rifle team last semester in defeating almost all their opponents and coming within a few points of downing the University of California team, it is believed that the sport is worthy of recognition."

The rifle team is an authorized collegiate sport and is allotted student body funds to carry on its activities.

Eligibility Undecided

A definite decision as to who will be eligible for circle awards has not been made yet. Sweet and North will confer with Captain Fred MacFarland, team adviser, as to ways and means of deciding this point. The plans formulated at this meeting will be presented before the next session of the college Executive Council when it convenes Tuesday, for approval.

Recognition of the team marks the close of one of the most controversial matters ever to take place within the college. Started several semesters ago the subject did not gain prominence until last semester when a spirited request for recognition was made. The request was refused on the grounds that the organization was coeducational. This, however, was in reference to the college Rifle and Pistol Club whereas the argument this semester was concerning the rifle team composed only of men students of the college. It was in view of this fact and the very excellent showing made by the team in competition last semester that the council reversed the original ruling.

Cinch Notices Out Next Week; School Holiday Thursday Says Registrar

Dreaded news to students of the college this week is the announcement from Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, that "cinch" or deficiency notices will be mailed next week.

Mailed to all students receiving a grade of "D" or below, the notices commonly referred to as "cinches" will be addressed to the parents of new students. Students of the college who have already been at this institution for one or more semesters will have their bad news sent directly to them.

Also from the registrar's office comes the announcement that Thursday, October 12, Columbus Day is a school holiday.

CAB Calls For Charter Renewals; Board To Meet Oct. 19 At Powell Street

With the warning to all recognized clubs that applications for renewal of charters are now due, Harold Hoffman, President of the Club Advisory Board announced that petitions must be in the hands of Vice President Don Norden before Thursday, October 9, date of the board's next meeting.

In order for a club to retain its standing as a chartered member of the CAB, it must fill out the requirements recently given to all club advisors. It is the duty of the organization's president to see that these sheets are properly filled out and turned in, according to Hoffman.

"As provided in the CAB constitution, any club failing to file its petition for two semesters is ruled defunct," stated Hoffman. "Be sure that your organization has a representative and your petition for renewal of your charter at our next meeting."

A. J. Cloud Back From NYA Conclave, Reports 30 Per Cent Fund Increase

Returning from a meeting in Los Angeles of the State Advisory Committee of the NYA, President Cloud announced that a meeting had also been held of the Sub-Committee on College and Graduate Advancement.

"Attending the meeting was Robert Wayne Berns, state director of the National Youth Administration," President Cloud said. "Berns reported that there has been an average increase of 40 per cent in NYA funds over last year. The increase for San Francisco Junior College is 30 per cent, making a total of $25,380."

The average number of students helped per month this year is 10,150, while the average per month last year was only 7,938, out of the 43 junior colleges in the state.

"The NYA funds were the only ones out of the many state appropriations which were raised instead of cut. This is an indication that the Legislature believes that the NYA has a large value throughout the state of California," President Cloud said.

AWS Offers Social Work To Student Volunteers

"Any women students interested in social service work can receive excellent exprience by volunteering to assist the Children's Agency in its work," said Muriel Nolan, AWS president early this week.

Work will consist of helping small children with their lessons. The Children's Agency is a subsidiary of the Community Chest. Further information may be obtained by contacting Miss Nolan or Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

The AWS is planning its fashion show and tea, but will not know definitely whether it will be the end of this month or the first of November. "This tea will be in honor of the graduating women of the senior high schools," Miss Nolan also announced.

Course In Training Service Station Operators Planned

A meeting of the Semi-Professional Advisory Committee was held Wednesday for the purpose of installing in the college a course for training service station operators, according to J. Graham Sullivan, coordinator.

"Attending the meeting," Sullivan said, "were representatives from five oil companies, General Petroleum, Richfield, Shell, Texaco, and Union Oil Company."

Japanese Fencing Introduced

By HAROLD UNTERMOTO

Newest activity to enter within the walls of the college is Kendo!

A well-known form of fencing and, incidentally, one of Japan's most impressive sports, Kendo will seek its inauguration here in the near future, announced Dean Edwin C. Browne.

To be under the supervision of the Physical Education Department, this form of muscle building activity will receive auxiliary assistance from the honorable Professor Takano, experienced exponent of the Japanese fencing, who attends the college now.

A friend of Dean Browne, Takano is widely known for his impressive style as a Kendoist.

"We are honored deeply to have within our college, such a highly talented person," commented Browne.

Kendo will be featured on a program sponsored by the Physical Education Department next Wednesday afternoon at the Galileo Gym.

Equipment will be generously donated by the Japanese Fencing Club.

Object of Kendo, in brief, is this: Including two individuals, each combatter has as his weapon, a long bamboo pole which he grasps firmly with both hands and with utmost skill and tenacity, he endeavors to strike his opponent.

College President Returns From Del Monte After Conference of Educators

President Archibald J. Cloud today returned from the annual three-day Conference of Superintendents of Schools at Del Monte, California.

Called by Dr. Walter E. Dexter, State Superintendent of Public Instruction a meeting was held to discuss junior college problems.

Led by Dr. Aubrey Douglas, assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the committee was composed of 15 men and women from the various junior colleges, state colleges, and universities throughout the state.

Data . . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
Game — Rams vs. Cal Frosh	Berkeley	October 7.
Game—Rams vs. Sacramento	Seals Stadium	October 13
High Frosh Dance	War Memorial	October 11.
AMS Barn Dance	Devonshire	October 27.
Game—Rams vs. San Mateo	San Mateo	October 28

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1939 No. 5

BILL FRANTZ ... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser — Business Adviser
Joan Nourse — Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross ... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat ... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone ... Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli ... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop ... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, John Hansen, George Jensen, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin

PHOTOGRAPHERS
art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Students of the College Have Not Adapted Themselves To Democratic Education—Are Requested To Solve Honor Code Problems

"WHEN I presented my precious papers to the Secretariat, (for my Ph. D. at Heidelberg) the clerk looked askance at my bachelor's diploma.

"'What's that?' asked one of them, and I told him.

"'Oh, an American Doctorat!' he said. 'It's worthless here.'

"He despised my degree . . . and I was hurt, with cause. I had worked, sacrificed my interests—I had cheated for that worthless baccalaureate."

—The Autobiography of Lincoln Steffens.

Steffens had attend a university where the students abused the honor system. He was not to pass up an opportunity to get away with something when other students were taking advantage of faith in human nature. He realized the folly of his actions only after his reward for dishonesty, the diploma, was regarded as worthless by someone in authority. That scene still takes place.

Honor System Still Violated

This week, although there had been a plea for respect of the honor system, there were again open violations. There is a Judicial Committee. There was a letter asking faculty members to cooperate with the Judicial Committee. Faculty members were asked to explain to their classes the entire situation and report any violations to Dean Browne. The students fear "grade failure". The fact that they have failed to adapt themselves to democratic action which is, in our opinion, one of the main functions of American education, means little compared with the fear of a low mark on a piece of cardboard.

Is there a blame which can be placed? Is there a sure-fire method of catching violaters of the system? Shall students assume respondent action toward the violators? Shall the administration? Should the experiment in democratic education be replaced by a rigid observation system during examinations?

Ex-Council Cannot Solve It

The executive council went into a committee of the whole in its last meeting to attempt to draw a conclusion to the honor system problem. It could cover very little ground in its discussion. The problem is too large for any one committee—the cooperation of all persons involved is needed. Who will get them to cooperate? Will they have sufficient intelligence to respect the honor system of their own free will? So far they haven't.

To relieve the pressure of the problem a few suggestions have been made. The "stool-pigeon" system. Personal observation by the instructor. Observation by an uninterested spectator-judge. Revamp the examinations, e.g. open book examination with a time limit for completion.

Why does the honor system work in some institutions and not in others? A lack of moral intelligence? Or does the idea of living up to a trust in the students' honesty result only when traditions are established and ivy covers the wall of an institution?

Students Should Solve This Problem

There are answers to each of the above questions. It is doubtful that one person can answer all of them. But it is not doubtful that some students can answer at least one of the questions.

Students of the college have a problem in these violations of the honor code. It is their responsibility—and not the responsibility of the small group which has been appointed on the Judicial Committee, nor is it the responsibility of the editor to make the honor system work.

The problem is there for the students of the college to solve. Solutions and even ideas are requested and will be welcome in the Ram's Horn.

in TROOD ings

By Dot

WELL, now that mid-terms are over, or shall we say almost over for another month, those of us who have buried our noses in books for the past few days ????? can take a breather. The first mid-terms always seem to catch one unawares, especially the freshmen who seem overly worried.

Small things puzzle small minds, but what if you happened to be called upon by one of those quiz programs to answer a lot of questions about things you had noticed but never paid any attention to, what would you do?

"Good afternoon ladies and gentlemen, this is the Peaches and Cream Quiz Program brought to you through the courtesy of Skin Smooth Products.

"The first contestant this afternoon is a young man from the neighboring state and his first question was sent in by a young woman on the Isle of Bali. Sir, can you tell me within sixty seconds how many keys are on the typewriter?"

That is not counting the back space, tabular key, shift lock, and the shift key. Ah, that's too bad for your time is up. There are exactly forty-two keys.

Now the second contestant for the day is a young lady and the question for you to answer is, "What Avenue does the main building of the new junior college site face? Correct, Phelan Avenue, and to you goes this large jar of Skin Smooth Cream to keep that lovely complexion of yours just like apple blossoms.

Contestant No. 1 is back again for his second answer. Are there students you have seen lately that resemble Hollywood notables? No. Well, if you're curious you might start looking around for Bette Davis and George Raft.

And that is all for today ladies and gentlemen. Yes we know contestant No. 2 did not receive a second question, but on answering her first question correctly—well, it was just too much."

Congratulations, orchids to you, and what not Peggy Jacke for the wonderful time everyone had at the Rifle Club outing last week. Peg went to a lot of work to see that everything went off without a hitch, and we tip our hat to you Miss Jacke. Bill "Hoot" Gibson said that he had a wonderful time.

And seeing that we are throwing flowers, we'll toss a few orchids to Lucille Jacke, the WAA board, and adviser Bertha Mae Keller for the colossal time everyone had at the WAA Splash Party.

Rumors rant about the super time everyone had in Pasadena * * * * the gigantic plans that are being prepared by AWS officers for the fashion show they are to present within a few weeks.

Have you heard about the young woman in college who claims she's better than Deanna Durbin?

The . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

THE WOMEN, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest extravaganza, is an elaborate version of that ancient plot—the eternal triangle; only this was not one triangle but several! The movie adaptation is a spectacular reproduction of Claire Boothe's Broadway hit. The cast is entirely women—365 to be exact (and it's all about men!"), and an audience leaves wondering if women would ever be kind if there were no men in the world!?! Miss Booth's women were viciously sweet to one another and tenderly sweet to their men (and other women's men, too!).

The plot was weak, but the dialogue was magnificent, with Norma Shearer, as the loving wife and mother, versus Joan Crawford, the gold-digging shop girl, and Rosalind Russell, the ruthless gossip. As clever as only a woman can be, the shop girl steals the faithful wife's husband while the gossip viciously wrecks a "perfect marriage." After her Reno divorce and two years' freedom Mrs. Haynes, the wife with all her feline instincts raised, wins back her husband, who is already tiring of his shop-girl wife. Added to this are several other divorces and straying husbands—all good, clean fun!

Rosalind Russell stole the show, with Crawford and Shearer coming close behind in the photo finish. Everything about Miss Russell's acting was perfect — her facial expressions, her posture and mannerisms, her voice, and even her wardrobe typified her character.

The performances of Miss Shearer and Miss Crawford were done exceedingly well, but Miss Russell's brilliant work in the picture overshadowed that of everyone else. Others in the cast who added to the excellent production were Mary Boland, as the thrice divorced countess, Paulette Goddard, as the man-hunting chorine, Joan Fontaine, as the innocent young wife, Virginia Weidler, as the "child of divorce," Hedda Hopper, the feminine Walter Winchell, and—but we can't name all 365 of the women in the picture.

. . . while thinking . . .

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

ALTHOUGH the newspapers of the world have been prone to push the Turkish part in World War II somewhat in the background, it seems to us that the Turks are the smartest nation in the Eastern Hemisphere at the present time.

Bickering has been going on for some time over treaties between Turkey and Great Britain and also Turkey and Russia. Just to prove how intelligent the Turks are they signed a mutual assistance pact last week with the English but threw in the clause that they never be required to bear arms against the Russians.

This leaves the little nation free to make a treaty with the Soviet. If this is done then Turkey will be in the ideal position of being assured support from both sides of the European fence.

To our way of thinking this is one of the nicest bits of diplomacy we have seen in a long time.

• • •

IRONY in the news: The Polish Embassy in Washington, D. C., recently informed the United States government that Poland will continue to fight for her independence.

• • •

NATIONAL

THE prediction of Martin Dies, head of the House Committee on Un-American activities, that the Communist party in the United States would be outlawed soon, received much comment throughout the nation last week.

In this rush to fight Communism people seem to have forgotten the activities of another left wing group, the Socialist party.

The general consensus is that the Socialists are too insignificant to investigate, and are too small a group to do any harm. Sources indicate that this however, is decidedly incorrect since the organization is growing larger and more potent every day.

Most people feel that the Communists and the Socialists are interested in fomenting a revolution but the difference between them is that the Communists are going to wait for the revolution to come along and then step in, while the Socialists are going to create the revolution. The party motto of this group "Socialism in our time" indicates as much.

It appears to other persons that actually the most subversive element in the United States today is the Socialistic party. Not that the Communists are any bunch of angels, but the other group seems by far the more active of the two.

As a matter of fact, while on the subject of activity it might be well to mention that a division of the Socialist party is designed to work in the colleges and universities throughout the nation. This organization, called the Young People's Socialist League is composed of young men and women who do their best to spread their crack-brained, idealistic theories among the college students.

Also in the same vein is the highly interesting news that political exiles from Fascist dictatorships in South America are using the asylum of the United States to undermine the nations that threw them out because of their leftist tendencies.

One of these groups, the "Aprista" party which is actually the Socialist Party of Peru has organizational headquarters in California and other western states. From these headquarters they bombard Peru with propaganda advocating the overthrow of the present regime.

If the United States really intends to be a good neighbor to South America, it wouldn't be a bad idea to crack down on these empty-headed aliens who cower behind the name of this nation to fling mud at a country friendly to North America.

STATE

CITIZENS of Monterey last week had visions of death and destruction at the hands of an invading force. The people of this sleepy town observed the sleek body of a submarine rise from the ocean's depth and lie quietly on the surface of Monterey Bay.

Upon further investigation it proved to be a submarine of the American navy, so we suspect that by now the excitement has died down and the town has gone back to sleep.

Any Passes Left? By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Verse and Ve[illegible]

• AH, ROMANCE

Editor, The Guardsman:

It was announced last week, in a column labeled "Introodings," that a certain Miss Dorothy Mills is looking for a man:

"Who is satisfied to wait—
Until at least a second date
To reach a warm romantic state."

Miss Mills, I am your man! For years I have been looking for a girl who will not, upon first sight of her man of the evening fall, gushing and cooing, into his arms.

Not, mind you, that I don't like to have a girl in my arms, but horrors not the first date. When I stop to think of the other dates she must have been on, the other arms she [illegible]

[illegible] Hope [illegible] Ram's [illegible] bureau— [illegible] a rendezv[illegible]

shots at RAMdom

By Isadore Malo[illegible]

News Item: "Two of those cute little honey bears caged in front of the Australian building on Treasure Island got free last night and for a time there was quite a bear hunt at the Exposition.

One of them visited the Phillipine Building, the other was curious about what was going on at Gay Paree on the Gayway."—S. F. Chronicle.

BARING THE FACTS

We sympathize with the little bear who wandered over to the Gay Paree exhibit probably in search of companionship from fellow members of the animal kingdom. He must have heard of those bare dears who work in the show.

Additional information on the subject was given us by a night watchman directly concerned with this incident. It seems that the little bear, unable to bear his disappointment at finding the exhibit closed for the night was just about to join his brother at the cultural Phillipine Building when this night watchman friend of ours bore down on him.

The bear, thinking the watchman was his keeper, bit him under the impression. (What's that—You don't be(ar)lieve it? Well, we're not sure whether bears bite humans either but it makes a good story.)

Finally captured and returned to its cage, the little bear cuddled up to its mama whispering his tale into her ears. A special Indian guide witnessing the capture (what he was doing at the fair at 4 a. m. is beyond us too—but he was there) who claimed that he understood Bearlingo, the language of the bears, offered to interpret the little bear's words for a slight monetary reward. Having paid over the desired fee we learned what the little bear said to his mommy. He said, "They never would have got me if I hadn't of lost my bearings."

• • •

CLEVER, THESE CHINESE

The other evening we indulged in our first full course Chinese dinner at an out of a way restaurant in downtown Chinatown. Being a loyal member of the old school, we had until this time relished such time honored dishes as cheese blintzes, pickled herring, and egg noodles (some combination mixed together and downed with Coca Cola), so that it was with considerable trepidation that we finally entered the place.

Half-expecting to find a hatchet man lurking behind every nook and cranny (My, my! The influence of these modern movies!) our fears were soon dispelled when served by a courteous Chinese waiter and we ate heartily of the meal. Most appealing of all the dishes was fried shrimp. Prepared in a manner kept secret between God and the Chinese restaurant operator, fried shrimp is every bit as appealing as chicken and Ann Sheridan.

We agree with that modern philosopher, Conchewscious, when he made the statement designed to create a better understanding between the Chinese and American peoples, "American food velly good but Chinese food belly good!"

Without so much as a backward glance for any hidden hatchet men, we took our leave of old Chinatown patting our tummy contentedly and marvelling at the ingenuity of these Chinese. (With full apologies to Ruth Thompson of "Eating Around San Francisco" fame.)

• • •

ADDS WITH A KICK

Most novel of the club notices tacked up on the Powell Street building bulletin board are those advertising the virtues of the Tarbuth Club. Sometimes overdone to the point of cornyness, the posters command the attention of quite a number of students. (Even though the writer of these adds does frequently make use of Ann Sheridan—that dame again—or of Pauline Goddard kicking Rosalind Russell, to attract the yokels of this actual copy.)

Not knowing the person who thinks up these notices, we're not sure whether or not he'll appreciate our tip but it seems to us as though the ideal job for him would be as a copy writer for Awful Fresh MacFarlane, the nut king of Taste B4 U Buy renown.

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

WE SIT at our typewriter—words refuse to exude from our nimble fingers. A knock on The Guardsman door. A tiny, elfish figure stands gazing at me. "Doris Schnacke sent me." Says she, "Are you in trouble, Bill?" So I says, "Sure enough, chum. I'm all written out—I can't think of a thing to write in "Cabbages and Kings" this week." The little fairy looks at us sadly and asks, "Do you think you'll ever amount to much?"

WE THINK

It set us to thinking and we spoke truthfully to the elfin figure, "No. We are a disappointment to our mother and our father and our teacher. But what shall we do? What shall we do? O woe! O misery!" The little fairy showed her sympathetic side to the unhappy pseudo-columnist.

"Would a discourse on chickens and eggs do for the time being, poor boy? Not the ordinary discourse on priority but one dealing with complementary conditions of eggs and egg cups?

"Elucidate!" we command.

"How does a hen know the size of an egg so that they (the egg and egg receptacle) fit each other?" suggests the little elf.

"But aren't you stealing Edward Everett Horton's stuff?"

"Do not allow that to disturb your sleep, Bill. You see Eddie has his written-out moments and I suggested that to him—and it went over big."

DISCOURSE

"Well, my little elfin friend, I accept your kind assistance. On with the discourse."

[illegible]-to decide whether [illegible]dency of hens [illegible]nd shape [illegible] of [illegible] He [illegible] comic [illegible]um over— [illegible]. Badge number

• • •

INVITATION

S. F. State is inviting the members of the college to their dance after the Ram-Gator game next month. It's in their gym. (Enemy territory!) Let's let bygones be bygones and behave ourselves like little ladies and gentlemen. Rumor has it that there will be a "Doe line" due to the surplus of feminity at the State institution.

• • •

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Fashion Fanny: "Whenever I'm down in the dumps I get myself a new hat."

We often wondered where she got them.

• • •

The man who made a rug out of the wolf at the door has nothing on "Dusty" Rhode. "Dusty" was instructed as a fraternity pledge by Pledgemaster Frank Hospodarsky to go into the Art School across from the Extension building and ask the instructors for their signatures.

Rhode walked right in, saw the instructor, took her signature and noticed that the building had a nice little ballroom. As bold as you please "Dusty" asked permission to hold a dance in the ballroom that afternoon. To his surprise he received permission. That afternoon students of the college were guests of the Art School and danced to music supplied by a phonograph in the ballroom.

There is a man who will go far in life.

• • •

1st Scientist: "I killed five flies today/three males and two females."

2nd Same: "How can you tell a male from a female fly?"

Original S: "Well, three were sitting on the beer bottle and two on the mirror."

• • •

Stan Cohn, sports editor of the Daily Californian is credited with saying in his column last Friday. "For sentimental reasons at the game tomorrow, let us give a few rah rahs and hoorays as Amos Alonzo Staggers onto the field." Well the old boy must have taken offense at that. We think Cal's "Stub" stumbled out of the field after the 6-0 "upset".

Be At Berkeley Tomorrow Morning; Both Games For $1.65 With Student Card

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Minor Sports Are Under Way; Rifle, Soccer, and Bowling Now In Full Tilt

Rams Drop Close One To Pasadena, 7 To 6

Johnny Gray Scores In Fourth But Conversion Misses; Bulldogs Tally On Early Break; New Drive Found

Pasadena Rose Bowl, Sept. 29—The Rams "came back" tonight! They lost to Pasadena by a score of 7 to 6, and, in so doing, exhibited the stuff that makes great football teams great.

Playing the underdog role, against an outfit which had won 16 consecutive games, and which last year mangled the locals, 33 to 0, the Rams bore up under stunning reversals in the first quarter, and came back fighting mad to rip the Bulldog defense to shreds with a stirring last period rally that fell only one point short of tying the count.

It was revenge—revenge for last season's holocaust — that the Rams were after; and in a measure, they had that revenge. Pasadena had the breaks—and still was lucky to pull through with a one-point advantage. The southerners, undisputed champs in their own league, were handed the worst scare in more than two years of victorious play.

Best Ball Game

In losing, the Rams rose to new and brilliant heights; in losing, the Rams played their best ball game in a couple of seasons. It was a tough one to lose. The difference was only that of an unsuccessful conversion attempt, as, late in the fourth quarter, Dave Cunningham's attempted placement was low—a hasty, wobbly effort made in the faces of charging Bulldog linemen who came charging through in a desperate try to keep Pasadena's long and impressive record intact.

Break Gives Score

A break gave Pasadena its touch[illegible]own early in the first period. From [illegible]e beginning, the Rams were in the [illegible]ie, as Al Nauman, receiving the [illegible]ning kickoff, fumbled on the five [illegible]d line and was smothered on the [illegible]e.

[illegible]avies kicked out on the first [illegible]immage play, and Louie Spelts, [illegible]lldog ace subbing for the injured [illegible]ke Leicht, ran it back to the Ram [illegible]1. Passing for nine yards on the initial play, the Bulldogs followed up with a Spelts cutback that went to the 25, where a crushing tackle sent the pigskin flying free. Nauman pounced on the loose ball, and the Rams had possession on their own 23.

After a futile plunge, Davies again booted. Pasadena gained on a cross-buck, and tried two passes that were broken up, then kicked. Close in the shadow of his goal, Nauman fielded the ball, and was smashed down on the Ram seven. In the hole again!

This time, Temple Davies stood a yard in the end zone, in punt formation. The pass from center was low and fast, and Daves fumbled. He tried to pick the ball up, but it was too late. A wave of Bulldogs, led by end Clem Tomerlin, swarmed all over Davies, and when the pile was unscrambled, Tomerlin was hugging the ball in pay-dirt.

Jake Leicht, recuperating on the bench from an injured ankle, was rushed in to kick the extra point, and kick it he did. He split the cross bars with a boot that later proved to be the margin of victory.

Rams Hold Fort

Throughout the remainder of the first half it was the same story. The Rams never had a chance to get their own offense under way as the Bulldog machine, powered by the running and passing of Spelts, Chuck Byram, and Don Winton, moved the ball repeatedly across the midfield stripe and into Ram territory.

It was enough that those marches were stopped at crucial points, and the score prevented from assuming greater proportions.

Just before halftime, Pasadena pushed as far as the Ram 13, only to be bounced for a six-yard loss. On fourth down, Leicht came on the field once more, this time to attempt a field-goal from placement. The kick was rushed badly, and went wide. As the gun popped, the Rams were uncorking their first real threat, with Nauman flinging two passes for an aggregate gain of 40 yards. But there, on the Bulldog 40, the march ended with the intermission.

Rams Go To Town

Tables turned in the third period. First indication came as Nauman, behind scythe-like blocking, knifed through for the 11 yards and a first down on the Pasadena 49. Two plays later, Nauman again took the ball and roared through the guard spot for 11 more, and another first down on the Bulldog 38. Now the line was blocking holes big enough to drive a truck throuh opened miraculously to spring Ram backs into the secondary. On the 34, Davies kicked one that came within an inch of being downed on the Pasadena one-foot line, but, as fate would have it, rolled into the end zone.

There the Bulldogs took over, and, unable to gain, kicked. The Rams booted in return, and inside of four downs, the ball had changed hands three times on pass interceptions and fumbles. From midfield, Davies punted deep, and Pasadena was buried on its own 20. A first down was piled up, but the end of the period found the Rams in possession, once more, near the center of the gridiron.

Gray Goes Over

Nothing to do but kick. And this time Davies' try sailed down to the Bulldog 17, where an ambitious runback was horse-collared brutally by end Jim Moiich.

On third down, Pasadena tried a pass which was completed—and fumbled. Moiich, driving in, dropped on the ball on the Pasadena 8-yard line!

After having played three quarters on a "kick and wait for the breaks" policy, the Rams had found the opportunity!

Nauman, on first down, was dumped for a loss of two, back on the 10-yard line. Then he faded and hurled a pass at Moisan, who was waiting on the goal. Moisan went down before the ball reached him, and interference was ruled, giving the Rams a first down on the Pasadena 2.

Now or never. And the Bulldog stands, 5,000 strong in a total attendance of 20,000, were roaring to "hold that line"!

First down: Johnny Gray, hitting guard and coming up with one yard gained. Another yard to go. Second down: Gray again — smacking back the center of the Bulldog line, and falling on his face in the end zone for a touchdown!

The Rose Bowl was a madhouse as Dave Cunningham stepped back to kick the extra point. That kick, if successful, would send Pasadena's proud record wheeling into the dark limbo of forgotten things.

As the ball was snapped, a desperate Bulldog line poured through the center and ends. Cunningham booted hastily, to avoid having the ball blocked. The kick was low; it bounced in the end zone and rolled past the base of the uprights.

Pasadena 7, San Francisco 6

There the score remained, although the Rams came driving once more before the game ended. The Rams started on their own 32. It was Nauman to Moisan for 5 yards; Nauman cracking to the 38; Nauman passing to Moisan for first and ten on the Pasadena 43. Nauman heaved a beauty to Moisan on the Bulldog 15-yard line—BUT—a cruel penalty nullified the gain—It was "backfield in motion" and a five-yard penalty instead of a 28-yard gain! The Rams passed again and again, and finally relinquished the ball when the Bulldogs intercepted on their own 17.

In There Fighting

There can be no apologies for this one-point loss. None are needed. The Rams were in there fighting all the way, and they showed plenty. In this game was revealed a hint of the kind of play that may be expected from the college team throughout the rest of the season.

As Coach Lee Eisan phrased it, after the game: "If the Rams continue to play the kind of ball they showed in the second half, I won't have to worry any more."

There were no standouts. The team played as a smoothly co-ordinated unit. For the first time this year, the Rams showed that they can drive when the going is tough. They gave definite notice that they are out to win from here on.

Not only are the chances good for winning the conference championship, but the remaining non-league teams on the schedule—Los Angeles, State, and, next Saturday, Cal Frosh—can look forward to meeting a Ram eleven that has found itself at last!

The Oakland football team is now playing under the rules of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations. The major difference under the new rules is that a forward pass can be made from any point behind the line of scrimmage.

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

We wish to put our prediction of last week that our Rams would extend a strong Pasadena team, undefeated in sixteen starts, no end. We weren't fooling.

A bad break in the form of a fumble on our own goal line in the first three minutes of play gave the Pasadenans their score. We lost the game 7 to 6. So our lads put on as great a second half comeback as we've ever seen.

After those first three heartbreaking minutes, the locals dug in and threw back the highly touted Bulldogs. In the second half the Rams showed no quarter and shoved the Pasadenans all over the field only to get the breaks—bad breaks. We're not alibying that defeat. It's nothing to be ashamed of. We lost the game, yes, but believe you me, we've got a football team.

Overheard: Dave Cunningham — "I'm a manager, I don't play. Please give me a piece of peach pie." Walter —"You don't want any pie—you want to win the game."

Dave—"Aw, you're right. I'm a baaaad boy."

Dean Browne—"Counting each one as one, there's one, two, three, etc."

Harding Leong—"Hey look, fellows, a chop suey joint, look."

Dan Baker to luscious lassies surrounding bus at Glendale—"See you later. C'mon fellers, we've got to keep our minds on the game."

Bus driver on Hollywood sight-seeing tour—"To your right is Lafayette Park which used to be a dumping grounds 25 or 26 years ago." Mel Chickazola—"Hasn't changed a bit."

A Great Town

Scattered Shots: Los Angeles is really a great town. Of course, they have oil wells in the middle of the streets and a few other oddities (about 6,000,000), but, outside of that, it's super.

Most of the residents are dippy in the dream box. Don't tell anyone we told you, but the poor folks are struggling to make ends meet. They're living in shacks — thirty-room shacks, which reminds us that Marion Davies' former dressing room on the Warner Brothers' lot has only nineteen rooms—just a bungalow. Poor kid, where'd she put her clothes.

The village of Los Angeles has a few high schools to accommodate the young 'uns—35 to be exact. They must play a round-robbin football schedule which is somewhat on the order of the five-year plan. If such is the case, they should be in the fourth year of this cycle. Only two more years to go.

While wandering along South Hill Street (the better part of town), we discovered our popular Associated Students president, Elmer Hubacher, in the Salvation Army store. Elmer was too busy in picking out his winter wardrobe. When pressed for a statement later, Elmer said, "Dammit, caught in the act."

Riflers Shifted Up To Higher League Bracket; Women's Team Under Way

Indications were seen here this week that the Ram Rifle Club, under command of Captain Fred McFarland, will sponsor women's teams in the San Francisco Rifle Association.

One or two women teams, depending on the number of women enrolling, will compete, under the college banner, with various other women's organizations in the city during the winter season.

At a meeting of the Rifle Association Monday evening, it was decided that the Reds, winners of two trophies last year, should be moved into the second highest league. The 1939 schedule will be drafted in two weeks, according to association officials. Actual shooting will begin the last of October.

Thirty remaining Ram riflemen will hold a series of practice matches beginning Tuesday, according to Chuck North, Rifle Club president. Sixteen men will be eliminated before league competition begins.

North, George Humphrey, and Art Templeton will form the nucleus of the 1939 Rams.

"We wish to express our appreciation to the student body for its loyal support in making the annual Rifle Club picnic a success," said President North.

According to Fritz Crisier, nationally known gridiron coach, the ancient Greeks employed the forward pass in a game similar to rugby football.

Cal Frosh Meet Rams Tomorrow At Berkeley

Rams Set To Shine After Narrow Loss At Rose Bowl; Cal Team An Unknown Quantity; Ram Roster Same

The college Rams, habitual night-owls, play their first game in the broad light of day tomorrow morning at Berkeley Stadium.

For opposition—the untried and unknown California Frosh.

Last year, the Bear Cubs sent the Ram gridders home with a 12 to 0 bouncing. Tomorrow, the chances are 50-50 that the outcome will be sharply reversed.

This game—fourth in the current Ram schedule and first for the Berkeley team—marks the opening of Clint Evans' sixteenth year as freshman mentor over in the rugged eastern foothills.

Lee Eisan, another one time California great, will be leading his own team for the first time against his old alma mater.

New Drive

The Rams found themselves last week in the Pasadena game. A new spirit and a new drive was uncovered. The players themselves discovered that they could really go to town against tough opposition.

Probably the same as for the southern encounter will be the Ram starting lineup for the Berkeley game.

In the backfield, Nauman will operate at quarter, Johnny Gray at full, Temple Davies and Jim Moisan at the wingbacks.

Ends will be Frannie Gray and Jim Moiich or Dave Cunningham; Bob Schoenstein and Adrian Carignani will handle the tackles; Leong and Chicazola hold the guard positions; Wilson starts at center.

Of the California outfit, little is known. The crop of freshman talent at the East Bay institution is always adequate, as affirmed by the fact that many of the Frosh stars who last year contributed to the Ram defeat now hold jobs on the Bear Varsity.

Wide Open

The local gridmen are out for b'ar tomorrow. It is expected that the game will be wide open in every respect, with both teams flinging every trick in the old basket.

Gunning for their first victory of a so far non-existent season will be the Cal Frosh.

The Rams—well, this game may well be the turning point of the college football fortunes. After tomorrow, the Conference, State and Los Angeles City College lie ahead.

Begins 10:15

The game begins at 10:15 a. m., in the Berkeley Bowl. In the afternoon the second (minor) feature of a double bill will be played off. St. Mary's, a football camp located in the Moraga hills, meets the University of California, one of the less notable opponents of Old Man Stagg's College of Pacific Bengals.

Soccer Team Ends Prelim Series; Launches Coast League Play This Month

The shinkicking brigade is in action, and the situation is expected to be well in hand before the season is out. Tom Wilson's soccer players having completed their preliminary practice tilts, and this week begin competition in the California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference.

Last Saturday the Rams opened their league schedule by engaging the University of California, at Berkeley, and losing by a score of 2 to 0.

San Mateo was the opponent on October 4, in a game played at San Francisco.

Next Saturday, Wilson's men run up against Menlo Junior College, the contest to be held on Menlo's home grounds.

Following is the soccer schedule throughout this month:

Oct. 11—U.S.F. at S.F.
Oct. 18—Lowell at S.F.
Oct. 21—Stanford at S.F.
Oct. 28—San Jose at S.F.

In the practice games, the Rams won one, tied one and lost three. Scores were as follows:

Rams 0, Mission 7
Rams 1, Poly 3
Rams 0, Galileo 1
Rams 1, Commerce 1
Rams 1, Commerce 0

The RAMaround . . .

By LOU GOLDSTONE

Spectacle

It's football time when there's a nip in the air and the leaves turn brown, and then the white stadium seats fill with colorful crowds. The green turf crossed with chalky line-stripes invite the Saturday thousands. Hot dogs and dripping mustard, and sometimes frosty breath, and always beer at 15 cents a bottle. The roar of the massed rooting sections and the poly-chromatic card stunts. The pennants waving atop the bowl's rim. Finally, just before game time, the bands march out with a ruffle of drums and a flourish of brass. College airs that make you jump around in your jeans. The exhibitions at half-time.

The game itself provides a small proportion of the pleasure derived from attending a modern gridiron gigantic. It's not merely the end runs and passes that make this game of football America's greatest sport. It's the crowd, the spirit, the contagious atmosphere of enthusiasm, the spectacle!

Of the first water was the pyrotechnic display put on by the Bulldogs as they played host to the Rams in the Rose Bowl, last Friday night.

Just before the kickoff, the Pasadena band, an organization of 150, paraded out onto the field. The brilliant arc lights studding the stadium's crest flared on the red and white satin uniforms. The thunder of music mingled with a roar from the packed rooting section and reverbrated in the huge bowl. As the band wheeled and faced the Pasadena stands, an R.O.T.C. color guard marched in. The band divided into two parallel columns, and down the broad center aisle the color-guard paraded and came to a halt.

Suddenly, every light in the stadium went out. The vast bowl was in complete darkness. Then, on the Bulldog side, two intense beams of white sprang down, concentrating their brightness in a tiny circle on the green turf. The color-guard, blazoned in a glowing spot of illumination, came to present. An audible gasp quivered around the stadium as the flag went up, waving there with those white lights playing on it, and all else submerged in a blanket of impenetrable black. Majestically, from the unseen dark, the massed band struck up the National Anthem * * *

And that, gentlemen, was something!

Minor Chords

It hardly seems necessary to elaborate further on the Pasadena game proper. The facts are set forth here on this page for all to see. There are, however, a few interesting sidelights—of minor importance, to be sure—but suitable for the prime requisite of the newspaper slave: the art of filling up column inches—otherwise and more colloquially known as shovelling it * * *

The Pasadena Bulldogs expected the Rams to sport their traditional red jerseys at the game, and so (for Pasadena's colors, too, are red and white), came on the field with unconventional uniforms consisting of gold pants, blue jerseys with gold numerals and gold arm stripes (a big one with a little one on either side), and black helmets.

But the Rams fooled 'em, and wore white jerseys.

The Pasadena institution is far ahead of us in many respects. For one thing, they put out their own official football program, containing comments, lineups. This little magazine is called The Huddle, and pays its own way with ads from the Associated Oil Co., dance orchestras, and * * * CAMEL CIGARETTES and LA CONFESSION CIGARS.

Ray Berns, college impressario, led the three (3) San Francisco rooters who came down to the game, in a ringing yell during halftime.

And a sleepless night was had by all * * *

WOMEN'S . . . Sports Parade

By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

Last week we told you who had run for WAA club managers (that is, we did if you read this column) anyway, this week, just to be different, we'll tell you who won. Here they are, Ladeez, the winnahs!

Archery, Alma Koopman; badminton, Barbara Smith; dancing, Camille Condrotte; fencing, Muriel Grenolle; golf, Jane Young; hockey, Ruby Kiistoff; ice skating, Pat McKenna; rifle, Thursa Scott; tennis, Astrid Rogenes; riding, Peace Aivarez; volleyball, Dorothy Behrman.

Along with their various duties, the sports mentors have been given your WAA membership cards to hand out at club meetings—if you don't have yours yet why don't you attend class sometime and ask for it?

Archery, which has been meandering along to a slow start, finally got going last week. According to Verrel Webber, club adviser, more people than ever before have signed up. The group has already received an invitation to shoot with Mills College any time after classes start.

Fencing, which will start next week, is holding its own with one of the largest enrollments it has ever had—in fact, last semester only three people turned out. (Again we quote Miss Weber.)

The Dean Delights

Rah! Rah! Rah! Dean Browne! Last week when the expected pianist didn't show up for the WAA initiation dinner, the Dean arose to the occasion and amid loud applause accompanied Maxine Turner in a tap dance. Then, to add zest to the already eventful evening, he led the "splashers" in community singing. And if you don't think the WAA appreciated it—well!

More notes about the oh-so-successful splash party: Helen Crienkovich, the college's favorite high diver, brought as her guest, Mary Alice Jenkins, Pacific Coast diving champion—these gals!—incidentally, Helen's diving held the spectators spell-bound—as well it should—Frosh and Sophs swam an even-Steven race, holding a magazine and reading aloud from it as they paddled(what a clatter!)—oh, yes, and then there were the balloons — contestants swam from one end of the pool to the other where without pausing they blew up balloons—an endurance test, we hear!

In describing the newly initiated freshman girls, Lucille Jacke, WAA prexy, said: "Ann Sheridan may have 'oomph' but I'll bet our new members would out-oomph her any time." From the above statement and other reports we glean the facts that the low Frosh gals have plenty of initiative, are excellent leaders, full of spirit (oomph) and are cooperative to the nth degree. You're starting in great style, Frosh-ies—KEEP IT UP!

"FIGURE"-ATIVELY SPEAKING

Now comes the news that if reaction from women students is favorable, bowling, ping-pong, boating (co-ed), hiking, bicycling, and skiing might be added to the extensive women's WAA sports program. If you're particularly interested in any of the above named sports speak to any of the WAA officers or to Bertha Keller, association adviser.

A note about skiing: It's a well-known fact that that grand sport is rapidly attaining a high degree of popularity in the United States—the prices aren't exceptionally high, there's a keen sense of excitement in it, and the results, both mentally and "figure"-atively are, to say the least, exhilarating.

At the WAA council meeting t'other day, tentative plans were advanced for various sports play days. Among the suggestions was one for two hockey play days—and since we're on the subject of hockey * * *

Particularly pleased about the team sports, Miss Keller enlightened us with a little information of the subject of hockey. "Primarily an English game," she said, "hockey, although fairly new to San Francisco, has made an important place for itself in the universities, colleges and junior colleges throughout America." She added, "As America plays baseball, the English play hockey." It may be likened to football in that it holds the same thrill, the same aggressiveness as America's current hobby.

The Emporium

MARKET OPPOSITE POWELL • EXBROOK 6800 • SAN FRANCISCO

At our new UNIVERSITY SHOP

MEMO

Esquire selects THE PADDOCK—$30 THE TWOSOME—$21.50 for real collegiate style and comfort. The Paddock is cut on 3 button style Bottom button at the waistline

The Twosome matching slacks and sport coat has full shoulders, trim hips wide chest too! Both styled by Keith Carleton only for The Emporium's New University Shop — Tweeds are the Trend

STREET FLOOR • REAR

[illegible]SE THE EMPORIUM'S PERSONALIZED CREDIT

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1939 No. 5

BILL FRANTZ .... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser — Joan Nourse
Business Adviser — Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross .... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff .... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat .... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone .... Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli .... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch .... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop .... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, John Hansen, George Jensen, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Students of the College Have Not Adapted Themselves To Democratic Education—Are Requested To Solve Honor Code Problems

"WHEN I presented my precious papers to the Secretariat, (for my Ph. D. at Heidelberg) the clerk looked askance at my bachelor's diploma.

" 'What's that?' asked one of them, and I told him.

" 'Oh, an American Doctorat!' he said. 'It's worthless here.'

"He despised my degree . . . and I was hurt, with cause. I had worked, sacrificed my interests—I had cheated for that worthless baccalaureate."

—The Autobiography of Lincoln Steffens.

* * * *

Steffens had attend a university where the students abused the honor system. He was not to pass up an opportunity to get away with something when other students were taking advantage of faith in human nature. He realized the folly of his actions only after his reward for dishonesty, the diploma, was regarded as worthless by someone in authority. That scene still takes place.

Honor System Still Violated

This week, although there had been a plea for respect of the honor system, there were again open violations. There is a Judicial Committee. There was a letter asking faculty members to cooperate with the Judicial Committee. Faculty members were asked to explain to their classes the entire situation and report any violations to Dean Browne. The students fear "grade failure". The fact that they have failed to adapt themselves to democratic action which is, in our opinion, one of the main functions of American education, means little compared with the fear of a low mark on a piece of cardboard.

Is there a blame which can be placed? Is there a sure-fire method of catching violaters of the system? Shall students assume respondent action toward the violators? Shall the administration? Should the experiment in democratic education be replaced by a rigid observation system during examinations?

Ex-Council Cannot Solve It

The executive council went into a committee of the whole in its last meeting to attempt to draw a conclusion to the honor system problem. It could cover very little ground in its discussion. The problem is too large for any one committee—the cooperation of all persons involved is needed. Who will get them to cooperate? Will they have sufficient intelligence to respect the honor system of their own free will? So far they haven't.

To relieve the pressure of the problem a few suggestions have been made. The "stool-pigeon" system: Personal observation by the instructor. Observation by an uninterested spectator-judge. Revamp the examinations, e.g. open book examination with a time limit for completion.

Why does the honor system work in some institutions and not in others? A lack of moral intelligence? Or does the idea of living up to a trust in the students' honesty result only when traditions are established and ivy covers the wall of an institution?

Students Should Solve This Problem

There are answers to each of the above questions. It is doubtful that one person can answer all of them. But it is not doubtful that some students can answer at least one of the questions.

Students of the college have a problem in these violations of the honor code. It is their responsibility—and not the responsibility of the small group which has been appointed on the Judicial Committee, nor is it the responsibility of the editor to make the honor system work.

The problem is there for the students of the college to solve. Solutions and even ideas are requested and will be welcome in the Ram's Horn.

in TROOD ings

By Dot

WELL, now that mid-terms are over, or shall we say almost over for another month, those of us who have buried our noses in books for the past few days ????? can take a breather. The first mid-terms always seem to catch one unawares, especially the freshmen who seem overly worried.

Small things puzzle small minds, but what if you happened to be called upon by one of those quiz programs to answer a lot of questions about things you had noticed but never paid any attention to, what would you do?

"Good afternoon ladies and gentlemen,this is the Peaches and Cream Quiz Program brought to you through the courtesy of Skin Smooth Products.

"The first contestant this afternoon is a young man from the neighboring state and his first question was sent in by a young woman on the Isle of Bali. Sir, can you tell me within sixty seconds how many keys are on the typewriter?

That is not counting the back space, tabular key, shift lock, and the shift key. Ah, that's too bad for your time is up. There are exactly forty-two keys.

Now the second contestant for the day is a young lady and the question for you to answer is, "What Avenue does the main building of the new junior college site face? Correct, Phelan Avenue, and to you goes this large jar of Skin Smooth Cream to keep that lovely complexion of yours just like apple blossoms.

Contestant No. 1 is back again for his second answer. Are there students you have seen lately tnat resemble Hollywood notables? No. Well, if you're curious you might start looking around for Bette Davis and George Raft.

And that is all for today ladies and gentlemen. Yes we know contestant No. 2 did not receive a second question, but on answering her first question correctly—well, it was just too much."

Congratulations, orchids to you, and what not Peggy Jacke for the wonderful time everyone had at the Rifle Club outing last week. Peg went to a lot of work to see that everything went off without a hitch, and we tip our hat to you Miss Jacke. Bill "Hoot" Gibson said that he had a wonderful time.

And seeing that we are throwing flowers, we'll toss a few orchids to Lucille Jacke, the WAA board, and adviser Bertha Mae Keller for the colossal time everyone had at the WAA Splash Party.

Rumors rant about the super time everyone had in Pasadena * * * * the gigantic plans that are being prepared by AWS officers for the fashion show they are to present within a few weeks.

Have you heard about the young woman in college who claims she's better than Deanna Durbin?

The . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

THE WOMEN, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's latest extravaganza, is an elaborate version of that ancient plot—the eternal triangle; only this was not one triangle but several! The movie adaptation is a spectacular reproduction of Claire Boothe's Broadway hit. The cast is entirely women—365 to be exact (and it's all about men!"), and an audience leaves wondering if women would ever be kind if there were no men in the world!?! Miss Booth's women were viciously sweet to one another and tenderly sweet to their men (and other women's men, too!).

The plot was weak, bnt the dialogue was magnificent, with Norma Shearer, as the loving wife and mother, versus Joan Crawford, the gold-digging shop girl, and Rosalind Russell, the ruthless gossip. As clever as only a woman can he, the shop girl steals the faithful wife's husband while the gossip viciously wrecks a "perfect marriage." After her Reno divorce and two years' freedom Mrs. Haynes, the wife with all her feline instincts raised, wins back her husband, who is already tiring of his shop-girl wife. Added to this are several other divorces and straying husbands—all good, clean fun!

Rosalind Russell stole the show, with Crawford and Shearer coming close behind in the photo finish. Everything about Miss Russell's acting was perfect—her facial expressions, her posture and mannerisms, her voice, and even her wardrobe typified her character.

the performances of Miss Shearer and Miss Crawford were done exceedingly well, but Miss Russell's brilliant work in the picture overshadowed that of everyone else. Others in the cast who added to the excellent production were Mary Boland, as the thrice divorced countess, Paulette Goddard, as the man-hunting chorine, Joan Fontaine, as the innocent young wife, Virginia Weidler, as the "child of divorce," Hedda Hopper, the feminine Walter Winchell, and—but we can't name all 365 of the women in the picture.

. . . while thinking . . .

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

ALTHOUGH the newspapers of the world have been prone to push the Turkish part in World War II somewhat in the background, it seems to us that the Turks are the smartest nation in the Eastern Hemisphere at the present time.

Bickering has been going on for some time over treaties between Turkey and Great Britain and also Turkey and Russia. Just to prove how intelligent the Turks are they signed a mutual assistance pact last week with the English bnt threw in the clause that they never he required to bear arms against the Russians.

This leaves the little nation free to make a treaty with the Soviet. If this is done then Turkey will be in the ideal position of being assured support from both sides of the European fence.

To our way of thinking this is one of the nicest bits of diplomacy we have seen in a long time.

* * *

IRONY in the news: The Polish Embassy in Washington, D. C., recently informed the United States government that Poland will continne to fight for her independence.

* * *

NATIONAL

THE prediction of Martin Dies, head of the House Committee on Un-American activities, that the Communist party in the United States would be outlawed soon, received much comment throughout the nation last week.

In this rush to fight Communism people seem to have forgotten the activities of another left wing group, the Socialist party.

The general consensus is that the Socialists are too insignificant to investigate, and are too small a group to do any harm. Sources indicate that this however, is decidedly incorrect since the organization is growing larger and more potent every day.

Most people feel that the Communists and the Socialists are interested in fomenting a revolution but the difference between them is that the Communists are going to wait for the revolution to come along and then step in, while the Socialists are going to create the revolution. The party motto of this gronp "Socialism in our time" indicates as much.

It appears to other persons that actually the most subversive element in the United States today is the Socialistic party. Not that the Communists are any bunch of angels, but the other group seems by far the more active of the two.

As a matter of fact, while on the subject of activity it might be well to mention that a division of the Socialist party is designed to work in the colleges and universities throughout the nation. This organization, called the Young People's Socialist League is composed of young men and women who do their best to spread their crack-brained, idealistic theories among the college students.

Also in the same vein is the highly interesting news that political exiles from Fascist dictatorships in South America are using the asylum of the United States to undermine the nations that threw them out because of their leftist tendencies.

One of these groups, the "Aprista" party which is actually the Socialist Party of Peru has organizational headquarters in California and other western states. From these headquarters they bombard Peru with propaganda advocating the overthrow of the present regime.

If the United States really intends to he a good neighbor to South America, it wouldn't he a had idea to crack down on these empty-headed aliens who cower hehind the name of this nation to fling mud at a country friendly to North America.

STATE

CITIZENS of Monterey last week had visions of death and destruction at the hands of an invading force. The people of this sleepy town observed the sleek body of a submarine rise from the ocean's depth and lie quietly on the surface of Monterey Bay.

Upon further investigation it proved to be a suhmarine of the American navy, so we suspect that by now the excitement has died down and the town has gone back to sleep.

Any Passes Left?

By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN — Verse and Love Versus Interference With Business

● AH, ROMANCE

Editor, The Guardsman:

It was announced last week, in a column labeled "Introodings," that a certain Miss Dorothy Mills is looking for a man:

"Who is satisfied to wait—
Until at least a second date
To reach a warm romantic state."

Miss Mills, I am your man! For years I have been looking for a girl who will not, upon first sight of her man of the evening fall, gushing and cooing, into his arms.

Not, mind you, that I don't like to have a girl in my arms, but horrors not the first date. When I stop to think of the other dates she must have been on, the other arms she must have fallen into, it leaves me with a cold, cold feeling for her.

But, "if she waits until at least a second date" I then feel that she has not romanced with every man she has known. Then I begin to get that warm, warm feeling.

I might add, Miss Mills, that although I have not the beauty of Robert Taylor I most certainly don't look like h—. Furthermore I like blondes.

My name and address may be had by applying at The Guardsman office at Galileo High School.

Hopeful.

Editor's note: In the future, Mr. Hopeful, please refrain from using the Ram's Horn column for a dating hureau—or The Guardsman office as a rendezvous.

shots at RAMdom

. . . By Isadore Maloff

News Item: "Two of those cute little honey bears caged in front of the Australian building on Treasure Island got free last night, and for a time there was quite a bear hunt at the Exposition.

One of them visited the Phillipine Building, the other was curious about what was going on at Gay Paree on the Gayway."—S. F. Chronicle.

BARING THE FACTS

We sympathize with the little bear who wandered over to the Gay Paree exhibit probably in search of companionship from fellow members of the animal kingdom. He must have heard of those hare dears who work in the show.

Additional information on the subject was given us by a night watchman directly concerned with this incident. It seems that the little bear, unable to bear his disappointment at finding the exhibit closed for the night was just about to join his brother at the cultural Phillipine Building when this night watchman friend of ours bore down on him.

The bear, thinking the watchman was his keeper, bit him under the impression. (What's that—You don't be(ar)lieve it? Well, we're not sure whether bears bite humans either but it makes a good story.)

Finally captured and returned to its cage, the little bear cuddled up to its mama whispering his tale into her ears. A special Indian guide witnessing the capture (what he was doing at the fair at 4 a. m. is beyond us too—but he was there) who claimed that he understood Bearlingo, the language of the hears, offered to interpret the little bear's words for a slight monetary reward. Having paid over the desired fee we learned what the little bear said to his mommy. He said, "They never would have got me if I hadn't of lost my bearings."

* * *

CLEVER, THESE CHINESE

The other evening we indulged in our first full course Chinese dinner at an out of a way restaurant in down-town Chinatown. Being a loyal member of the old school, we had until this time relished such time honored dishes as cheese blintzes, pickled herring, and egg noodles (some combination cooked together and downed with Coca Cola), so that it was with considerable trepidation that we finally entered the place.

Half-expecting to find a hatchet man lurking behind every nook and cranny (My, my! The influence of these modern movies!) our fears were soon dispelled when served by a courteous Chinese waiter and we ate heartily of the meal.. Most appealing of all the dishes was fried shrimp. Prepared in a manner kept secret between God and the Chinese restaurant operator, fried shrimp is every bit as appealing as chicken and Ann Sheridan.

We agree with that modern philosopher, Conchewscious, when he made the statement designed to create a hetter understanding between the Chinese and American peoples, "American food velly good hut Chinese food belly good!"

Without so much as a backward glance for any hidden hatchet men, we took our leave of old Chinatown patting our tummy contentedly and marvelling at the ingenuity of these Chinese. (With full apologies to Ruth Thompson of "Eating Around San Francisco" fame.)

* * *

ADDS WITH A KICK

Most novel of the club notices tacked up on the Powell Street building bulletin board are those advertising the virtues of the Tarbuth Club. Sometimes overdone to the point of cornyness, the posters command the attention of quite a number of students. (Even though the writer of these adds does frequently make use of Ann Sheridan—that dame again—or of Pauline Goddard kicking Rosalind Russell, to attract the yokels of this actual copy.)

Not knowing the person who thinks up these notices, we're not sure whether or not he'll appreciate our tip but it seems to us as though the ideal job for him would be as a copy writer for Awful Fresh MacFarlane, the nut king of Taste B4 U Buy renown.

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

WE SIT at our typewriter—words refuse to exude from our nimble fingers. A knock on The Guardsman door. A tiny, elfish figure stands gazing at me. "Doris Schnacke sent me." Says she, "Are you in trouble, Bill?" So I says, "Sure enough, chum. I'm all written out—I can't think of a thing to write in "Cabbages and Kings" this week." The little fairy looks at us sadly and asks, "Do you think you'll ever amount to much?"

WE THINK

It set us to thinking and we spoke truthfully to the elfin figure, "No. We are a disappointment to our mother and our father and our teacher. But what shall we do? What shall we do? O woe! O misery!" The little fairy showed her sympathetic side to the unhappy pseudo-columnist.

"Would a discourse on chickens and eggs do for the time being, poor boy? Not the ordinary discourse on priority hut one dealing with complementary conditions of eggs and egg cups?

"Elucidate!" we command.

"How does a hen know the size of an egg so that they (the egg and egg receptacle) fit each other?" suggests the little elf.

"But aren't you stealing Edward Everett Horton's stuff?"

"Do not allow that to disturb your sleep, Bill. You see Eddie has his written out moments and I suggested that to him—and it went over big."

DISCOURSE

"Well, my little elfin friend, I accept your kind assistance. On with the discourse."

"It is up to you to decide whether it is an instinctive tendency of hens to lay the egg the same size and shape of the egg cup, whether it is one of the 'facts of life' the mother hen tells to her offspring when said offspring comes of age, or whether it is something in the hen's constitution."

We sit and contemplate—Then we come to life! "Say, this is getting too silly. It had better stop right now!"

"Don't you speak to me like that—yon papier mache intellectual!" cried the elfin figure and she flew out of the room. We hope she doesn't report back to Miss Schnacke because Miss Schnacke has had enough free mention for one issue.

(Special columnist's note: So sorry, dear reader, we shall not inconvenience you again.)

* * *

REUNION

Jack Sigurson walked into Foster's this week same as he used to do last year. But this time more people noticed and remarked about his appearance than last year. Jack is one of the handsomest cops on the force and his youngish appearance caused several of the young ladies to eye him with a speculative glance. He looks like "Mickey Finn," the comic section police hero. Look him over—J.C. boy makes good. Badge number 563.

* * *

INVITATION

S. F. State is inviting the members of the college to their dance after the Ram-Gator game next month. It's in their gym. (Enemy territory?) Let's let bygones be bygones and behave ourselves like little ladies and gentlemen. Rumor has it that there will be a "Doe line" due to the surplus of feminity at the State institution.

* * *

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Fashion Fanny: "Whenever I'm down in the dumps I get myself a new hat."

We often wondered where she got them.

* * *

The man who made a rug out of the wolf at the door has nothing on "Dusty" Rhode. "Dusty" was instructed as a fraternity pledge by Pledgemaster Frank Hospodarsky to go into the Art School across from the Extension building and ask the instructors for their signatures.

Rhode walked right in, saw the instructor, took her signature and noticed that the building had a nice little ballroom. As bold as you please "Dusty" asked permission to hold a dance in the ballroom that afternoon. To his surprise he received permission. That afternoon students of the college were guests of the Art School and danced to music supplied by a phonograph in the ballroom.

There is a man who will go far in life.

* * *

1st Scientist: "I killed five flies today, three males and two females."

2nd Same: "How can you tell a male from a female fly?"

Original S: "Well, three were sitting on the beer bottle and two on the mirror."

* * *

Stan Cohn, sports editor of the Daily Californian is credited with saying in his column last Friday, "For sentimental reasons at the game tomorrow, let us give a few rah rahs and hoorays as Amos Alonzo Staggers onto the field." Well the old boy must have taken offense at that. We think Cal's "Stub" stumbled out of the field after the 6-0 "upset".

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Be At Berkeley Tomorrow Morning; Both Games For $1.65 With Student Card

Minor Sports Are Under Way; Rifle, Soccer, and Bowling Now In Full Tilt

Rams Drop Close One To Pasadena, 7 To 6

Johnny Gray Scores In Fourth But Conversion Misses; Bulldogs Tally On Early Break; New Drive Found

Pasadena Rose Bowl, Sept. 29—The Rams "came back" tonight! They lost to Pasadena by a score of 7 to 6, and, in so doing, exhibited the stuff that makes great football teams great.

Playing the underdog role, against an outfit which had won 16 consecutive games, and which last year mangled the locals, 33 to 0, the Rams bore up under stunning reversals in the first quarter, and came hack fighting mad to rip the Bulldog defense to shreds with a stirring last period rally that fell only one point short of tying the count.

It was revenge—revenge for last season's holocaust—that the Rams were after; and in a measure, they had that revenge. Pasadena had the breaks—and still was lucky to pull through with a one-point advantage. The southerners, undisputed champs in their own league, were handed the worst scare in more than two years of victorious play.

Best Ball Game

In losing, the Rams rose to new and brilliant heights; in losing, the Rams played their best hall game in a couple of seasons. It was a tough one to lose. The difference was only that of an unsuccessful conversion attempt, as, late in the fourth quarter, Dave Cunningham's attempted placement was low—a hasty, wohbly effort made in the faces of charging Bulldog linemen who came charging through in a desperate try to keep Pasadena's long and impressive record intact.

Break Gives Score

A break gave Pasadena its touchdown early in the first period. From the beginning, the Rams were in the hole, as Al Nauman, receiving the opening kickoff, fumbled on the five yard line and was smothered on the nine.

Davies kicked out on the first scrimmage play, and Louie Spelts, Bulldog ace subbing for the injured Jake Leicht, ran it back to the Ram 41. Passing for nine yards on the initial play, the Bulldogs followed up with a Spelts cutback that went to the 25, where a crushing tackle sent the pigskin flying free. Nauman pounced on the loose ball, and the Rams had possession on their own 23.

After a futile plunge, Davies again booted. Pasadena gained on a cross-buck, and tried two passes that were broken up, then kicked. Close in the shadow of his goal, Nauman fielded the ball, and was smashed down on the Ram seven. In the hole again!

This time, Temple Davies stood a yard in the end zone, in punt formation. The pass from center was low and fast, and Daves fumbled. He tried to pick the ball up, but it was too late. A wave of Bulldogs, led by end Clem Tomerlin, swarmed all over Davies, and when the pile was unscrambled, Tomerlin was hugging the ball in pay-dirt.

Jake Leicht, recuperating on the bench from an injured ankle, was rushed in to kick the extra point, and kick it he did. He split the cross hars with a hoot that later proved to be the margin of victory.

Rams Hold Fort

Throughout the remainder of the first half it was the same story. The Rams never had a chance to get their own offense under way as the Bulldog machine, powered by the running and passing of Spelts, Chuck Byram, and Don Winton, moved the ball repeatedly across the midfield stripe and into Ram territory.

It was enough that those marches were stopped at crucial points, and the score prevented from assuming greater proportions.

Just before halftime, Pasadena pushed as far as the Ram 13, only to be bounced for a six-yard loss. On fourth down, Leicht came on the field once more, this time to attempt a field-goal from placement. The kick was rushed badly, and went wide. As the gun popped, the Rams were uncorking their first real threat, with Nauman flinging two passes for an aggregate gain of 40 yards. But there, on the Bulldog 40, the march ended with the intermission.

Rams Go To Town

Tables turned in the third period. First indication came as Nauman, behind scythe-like blocking, knifed through for the 11 yards and a first down on the Pasadena 49. Two plays later, Nauman again took the hall and roared through the guard spot for 11 more, and another first down on the Bulldog 38. Now the line was blocking holes big enough to drive a truck throuh opened miraculously to spring Ram backs into the secondary. On the 34, Davies kicked one that came within an inch of being downed on the Pasadena one-foot line, but, as fate would have it, rolled into the end zone.

There the Bulldogs took over, and, unable to gain, kicked. The Rams booted in return, and inside of four downs, the ball had changed hands three times on pass interceptions and fumbles. From midfield, Davies punted deep, and Pasadena was buried on its own 20. A first down was piled up, but the end of the period found the Rams in possession, once more, near the center of the gridiron.

Gray Goes Over

Nothing to do but kick. And this time Davies' try sailed down to the Bulldog 17, where an ambitious run-back was horse-collared brutally by end Jim Molich.

On third down, Pasadena tried a pass which was completed—and fumbled. Molich, driving in, dropped on the ball on the Pasadena 8-yard line!

After having played three quarters on a "kick and wait for the breaks" policy, the Rams had found the opportunity!

Nauman, on first down, was dumped for a loss of two, back on the 10-yard line. Then he faded and hurled a pass at Moisan, who was waiting on the goal. Moisan went down before the ball reached him, and interference was ruled, giving the Rams a first down on the Pasadena 2.

Now or never. And the Bulldog stands, 5,000 strong in a total attendance of 20,000, were roaring to "hold that line"!

First down: Johnny Gray, hitting guard and coming up with one yard gained. Another yard to go. Second down: Gray again—smacking back the center of the Bulldog line, and falling on his face in the end zone for a touchdown!

The Rose Bowl was a madhouse as Dave Cunningham stepped back to kick the extra point. That kick, if successful, would send Pasadena's proud record wheeling into the dark limbo of forgotten things.

As the hall was snapped, a desperate Bulldog line poured through the center and ends. Cunningham booted hastily, to avoid having the hall blocked. The kick was low; it honnced in the end zone and rolled past the base of the uprights.

Pasadena 7, San Francisco 6

There the score remained, although the Rams came driving once more before the game ended. The Rams started on their own 32. It was Nauman to Moisan for 5 yards; Nauman cracking to the 38; Nauman passing to Moisan for first and ten on the Pasadena 43. Nauman heaved a beauty to Moisan on the Bulldog 15-yard line—BUT—a cruel penalty nullified the gain—it was "backfield in motion" and a five-yard penalty instead of a 28-yard gain! The Rams passed again and again, and finally relinquished the ball when the Bulldogs intercepted on their own 17.

In There Fighting

There can be no apologies for this one-point loss. None are needed. The Rams were in there fighting all the way, and they showed plenty. In this game was revealed a hint of the kind of play that may be expected from the college team throughout the rest of the season.

As Coach Lee Eisan phrased it, after the game: "If the Rams continue to play the kind of ball they showed in the second half, I won't have to worry any more."

There were no standouts. The team played as a smoothly co-ordinated unit. For the first time this year, the Rams showed that they can drive when the going is tough. They gave definite notice that they are out to win from here on.

Not only are the chances good for winning the conference championship, but the remaining non-league teams on the schedule—Los Angeles, State, and, next Saturday, Cal Frosh—can look forward to meeting a Ram eleven that has found itself at last!

The Oakland football team is now playing under the rules of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations. The major difference under the new rules is that a forward pass can be made from any point behind the line of scrimmage.

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

We wish to put our prediction of last week that our Rams would extend a strong Pasadena team, undefeated in sixteen starts, no end. We weren't fooling.

A bad break in the form of a fumble on our own goal line in the first three minutes of play gave the Pasadenans their score. We lost the game 7 to 6. So our lads put on as great a second half comeback as we've ever seen.

After those first three heartbreaking minutes, the locals dug in and threw back the highly touted Bulldogs. In the second half the Rams showed no quarter and shoved the Pasadenans all over the field only to get the breaks—bad hreaks. We're not allbying that defeat. It's nothing to be ashamed of. We lost the game, yes, but believe you me, we've got a football team.

Overheard: Dave Cunningham—"I'm a manager, I don't play. Please give me a piece of peach pie." Waiter—"You don't want any pie—you want to win the game."

Dave—"Aw, you're right. I'm a baaaad boy."

Dean Browne—"Counting each one as one, there's one, two, three, etc."

Harding Leong—"Hey look, fellows, a chop suey joint, look."

Dan Baker to luscious lassies surrounding bus at Glendale—"See you later. C'mon fellers, we've got to keep our minds on the game."

Bus driver on Hollywood sight-seeing tour—"To your right is Lafayette Park which used to be a dumping grounds 25 or 26 years ago." Mel Chickazola—"Hasn't changed a bit."

A Great Town

Scattered Shots: Los Angeles is really a great town. Of course, they have oil wells in the middle of the streets and a few other oddities (about $6,000,000), but, outside of that, it's super.

Most of the residents are dippy in the dream box. Don't tell anyone we told you, hut the poor folks are struggling to make ends meet. They're living in shacks—thirty-room shacks, which reminds us that Marion Davies' former dressing room on the Warner Brothers' lot has only nineteen rooms—just a bungalow. Poor kid, where'd she put her clothes.

The village of Los Angeles has a few high schools to accommodate the young 'uns—35, to be exact. They must play a round-robbin football schedule which is somewhat on the order of the five-year plan. If such is the case, they should be in the fourth year of this cycle. Only two more years to go.

While wandering along South Hill Street (the better part of town), we discovered our popular Associated Students president, Elmer Hubacher, in the Salvation Army store. Elmer was too busy in picking out his winter wardrobe. When pressed for a statement later, Elmer said, "Dammit, caught in the act."

Rifleers Shifted Up To Higher League Bracket; Women's Team Under Way

Indications were seen here this week that the Ram Rifle Club, nnder command of Captain Fred McFarland, will sponsor women's teams in the San Francisco Rifle Association.

One or two women teams, depending on the number of women enrolling, will compete, under the college banner, with various other women's organizations in the city during the winter season.

At a meeting of the Rifle Association Monday evening, it was decided that the Reds, winners of two trophies last year, should he moved into the second highest league. The 1939 schedule will be drafted in two weeks, according to association officials. Actual shooting will hegin the last of October.

Thirty remaining Ram riflemen will hold a series of practice matches beginning Tuesday, according to Chuck North, Rifle Club president. Sixteen men will be eliminated before league competition begins.

North, George Humphrey, and Art Templeton will form the nucleus of the 1939 Rams.

"We wish to express our appreciation to the student hody for its loyal support in making the annual Rifle Club picnic a success," said President North.

According to Fritz Crisler, nationally known gridiron coach, the ancient Greeks employed the forward pass in a game similar to rugby football.

Cal Frosh Meet Rams Tomorrow At Berkeley

Rams Set To Shine After Narrow Loss At Rose Bowl; Cal Team An Unknown Quantity; Ram Roster Same

The college Rams, habitual night-owls, play their first game in the broad light of day tomorrow morning at Berkeley Stadium.

For opposition—the untried and unknown California Frosh.

Last year, the Bear Cubs sent the Ram gridders home with a 12 to 0 bouncing. Tomorrow, the chances are 50-50 that the outcome will be sharply reversed.

This game—fourth in the current Ram schedule and first for the Berkeley team—marks the opening of Clint Evans' sixteenth year as freshman mentor over in the rugged eastern foothills.

Lee Eisan, another one time California great, will be leading his own team for the first time against his old alma mater.

New Drive

The Rams found themselves last week in the Pasadena game, A new spirit and a new drive was uncovered. The players themselves discovered that they could really go to town against tough opposition.

Probably the same as for the southern encounter will be the Ram starting lineup for the Berkeley game.

In the backfield, Nauman will operate at quarter, Johnny Gray at full, Temple Davies and Jim Moisan at the wingbacks.

Ends will be Frannie Gray and Jim Molich or Dave Cunningham; Bob Schoenstein and Adrian Carignani will handle the tackles; Leong and Chicazola hold the guard positions; Wilson starts at center.

Of the California outfit, little is known. The crop of freshman talent at the East Bay institution is always adequate, as affirmed by the fact that many of the Frosh stars who last year contributed to the Ram defeat now hold jobs on the Bear Varsity.

Wide Open

The local gridmen are out for h'ar tomorrow. It is expected that the game will he wide open in every respect, with both teams flinging every trick in the old basket.

Gunning for their first victory of a so far non-existent season will be the Cal Frosh.

The Rams—well, this game may well be the turning point of the college football fortunes. After tomorrow, the Conference, State and Los Angeles City College lie ahead.

Begins 10:15

The game begins at 10:15 a. m., in the Berkeley Bowl. In the afternoon the second (minor) feature of a double bill will be played off. St. Mary's, a football camp located in the Moraga hills, meets the University of California, one of the less notable opponents of Old Man Stagg's College of Pacific Bengals.

Soccer Team Ends Prelim Series; Launches Coast League Play This Month

The shinkicking brigade is in action, and the situation is expected to be well in hand before the season is out. Tom Wilson's soccer players having completed their preliminary practice tilts, and this week begin competition in the California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference.

Last Saturday the Rams opened their league schedule by engaging the University of California, at Berkeley, and losing by a score of 2 to 0.

San Mateo was the opponent on October 4, in a game played at San Francisco.

Next Saturday, Wilson's men run up against Menlo Junior College, the contest to be held on Menlo's home grounds.

Following is the soccer schedule throughout this month:

Oct. 11—U.S.F. at S.F.
Oct. 18—Lowell at S.F.
Oct. 21—Stanford at S.F.
Oct. 28—San Jose at S.F.

In the practice games, the Rams won one, tied one and lost three. Scores were as follows:

Rams 0, Mission 7
Rams 1, Poly 3
Rams 0, Galileo 1
Rams 1, Commerce 1
Rams 1, Commerce 0

The RAMaround . . .

By LOU GOLDSTONE

Spectacle

It's football time when there's a nip in the air and the leaves turn brown, and then the white stadium seats fill with colorful crowds. The green turf crossed with chalky line-stripes invite the Saturday thousands. Hot dogs and dripping mustard, and sometimes frosty hreath, and always beer at 15 cents a bottle. The roar of the massed rooting sections and the poly-chromatic card stunts. The pennants waving atop the howl's rim. Finally, just hefore game time, the bands march out with a ruffle of drnms and a flourish of hrass. College airs that make you jump around in your jeans. The exhibitions at half-time.

The game itself provides a small proportion of the pleasure derived from attending a modern gridiron gigantic. It's not merely the end runs and passes that make this game of football America's greatest sport. It's the crowd, the spirit, the contagious atmosphere of enthusiasm, the spectacle!

Of the first water was the pyrotechnic display put on by the Bulldogs as they played host to the Rams in the Rose Bowl, last Friday night.

Just before the kickoff, the Pasadena band, an organization of 150, paraded out onto the field. The brilliant arc lights studding the stadium's crest flared on the red and white satin uniforms. The thunder of music mingled with a roar from the packed rooting section and reverbrated in the huge bowl. As the band wheeled and faced the Pasadena stands, an R.O.T.C. color guard marched in. The band divided into two parallel columns, and down the broad center aisle the color-guard paraded and came to a halt.

Suddenly, every light in the stadium went out. The vast bowl was in complete darkness. Then, on the Bulldog side, two intense beams of white sprang down, concentrating their brightness in a tiny circle on the green turf. The color-guard, blazoned in a glowing spot of illumination, came to present. An audihle gasp quivered around the stadium as the flag went np, waving there with those white lights playing on it, and all else submerged in a blanket of impenetrable hlack. Majestically, from the unseen dark, the massed band struck up the National Anthem * * *.

And that, gentlemen, was something!

Minor Chords

It hardly seems necessary to elaborate further on the Pasadena game proper. The facts are set forth here on this page for all to see. There are, however, a few interesting sidelights—of minor importance, to be sure—but suitable for the prime requisite of the newspaper slave: the art of filling up column inches—otherwise and more colloquially known as shovelling it * * *

The Pasadena Bulldogs expected the Rams to sport their traditional red jerseys at the game, and so (for Pasadena's colors, too, are red and white), came on the field with unconventional nniforms consisting of gold pants, blue jerseys with gold numerals and gold arm stripes (a big one with a little one on either side), and black helmets.

Bnt the Rams fooled 'em, and wore white jerseys.

The Pasadena institution is far ahead of us in many respects. For one thing, they put out their own official football program, containing comments, lineups. This little magazine is called The Huddle, and pays its own way with ads from the Associated Oil Co., dance orchestras, and * * * CAMEL CIGARETTES and LA CONFESSION CIGARS.

Ray Berns, college impressario, led the three (3) San Francisco rooters who came down to the game, in a ringing yell during halftime.

And a sleepless night was had by all * * *

WOMEN'S . . . Sports Parade

By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

Last week we told you who had run for WAA club managers (that is, we did if you read this column) anyway, this week, just to be different, we'll tell you who won. Here they are, Ladeez, the winnahs!

Archery, Alma Koopman; badminton, Barbara Smith; dancing, Camille Condrotte; fencing, Muriel Grenelle; golf, Jane Young; hockey, Ruby Klistoff; ice skating, Pat McKenna; rifle, Thursa Scott; tennis, Astrid Rogenes; riding, Peace Alvarez; volleyball, Dorothy Behrman.

Along with their various duties, the sports mentors have been given your WAA membership cards to hand out at club meetings—ifyou don't have yours yet why don't you attend class sometime and ask for it?

Archery, which has been meandering along to a slow start, finally got going last week. According to Verrel Webber, club adviser, more people than ever before have signed up. The group has already received an invitation to shoot with Mills College any time after classes start.

Fencing, which will start next week, is holding its own with one of the largest enrollments it has ever had—in fact, last semester only three people turned out. (Again we quote Miss Weber.)

The Dean Delights

Rah! Rah! Rah! Dean Browne! Last week when the expected pianist didn't show up for the WAA initiation dinner, the Dean arose to the occasion and amid loud applause accompanied Maxine Turner in a tap dance. Then, to add zest to the already eventful evening, he led the "splashers" in community singing. And if you don't think the WAA appreciated it—well!

More notes about the oh-so-successful splash party; Helen Crienkovich, the college's favorite high diver, brought as her guest, Mary Alice Jenkins, Pacific Coast diving champion—these gals!—incidentally, Helen's diving held the spectators spell-bound—as well it should—Frosh and Sophs swam an even-Steven race, holding a magazine and reading aloud from it as they paddled(what a clatter!)—oh, yes, and then there were the balloons—contestants swam from one end of the pool to the other where without pausing they blew up balloons—an endurance test, we hear!

In describing the newly initiated freshman girls, Lucille Jacke, WAA prexy, said: "Ann Sheridan may have 'oomph' but I'll bet our new members would out-oomph her any time." From the above statement and other reports we glean the facts that the low Frosh gals have plenty of initiative, are excellent leaders, full of spirit (oomph) and are cooperative to the nth degree. You're starting in great style, Frosh-ies—KEEP IT UP!

"FIGURE"-ATIVELY SPEAKING

Now comes the news that if reaction from women students is favorable, bowling, ping-pong, boating (co-ed), hiking, bicycling, and skiing might be added to the extensive women's WAA sports program. If you're particularly interested in any of the above named sports speak to any of the WAA officers or to Bertha Keller, association adviser.

A note about skiing: It's a well-known fact that that grand sport is rapidly attaining a high degree of popularity in the United States—the prices aren't exceptionally high, there's a keen sense of excitement in it, and the results, both mentally and "figure"-atively are,to say the least, exhilarating.

At the WAA council meeting t'other day, tentative plans were advanced for various sports play days. Among the suggestions was one for two hockey play days—and since we're on the subject of hockey * * *

Particularly pleased about the team sports, Miss Keller enlightened us with a little information of the subject of hockey. "Primarily an English game," she said, "hockey, although fairly new to San Francisco, has made an important place for itself in the universities, colleges and junior colleges throughout America." She added, "As America plays baseball, the English play hockey." It may be likened to football in that it holds the same thrill, the same aggressiveness as America's current hobby.

The Emporium

MARKET OPPOSITE POWELL : EXBROOK 6800 : SAN FRANCISCO

At our new UNIVERSITY SHOP

USE THE EMPORIUM'S PERSONALIZED CREDIT

Business Department

Semi-Professional Courses Are Listed For Interested Students

This semester the college is offering a number of semi-professional training programs for students interested in securing additional instruction beyond the high school in industrial and commercial skills while acquiring a broader cultural and social background at the same time.

The business department offers Accountancy, General Business, Machine Operator, Secretarial, and Insurance programs, in which the student may receive practical experience side by side with theoretical instruction. During the last semester or two of their college program students may, since cooperative arrangements have been made, receive practical business experience in the business world.

The curriculum for an accounting career, omitting the required courses necessary toward graduation, are business 50a-50b, accounting, business 51a-51b, business mathematics, business 52a-52b, cost accounting, business 60-61-62, beginning, intermediate, and advanced typing, business 66, filing, business 67a, machine calculation, business 70, business English, business 71, business speech, business 72, business correspondence, business 74, vocabulary and spelling, business 79, psychology in business, business 90, international trade, business 95, applied economics plus jurisprudence 11, the citizen and the law, and jurisprudence 16, commercial law.

The curriculum for a general business career calls for the pursuance of the following courses: Business 50a-50b, accounting, business 51a-51b, business mathematics, business 60-61-62, beginning, intermediate, and advanced typing, business 66, filing, business 67a, machine calculation, business 70, business English, business 71, business speech, business 74, vocabulary and pelling, business 79, psychology in business, business 90, international trade, business 92, personnel problems and industrial relations, business 95, applied economics, business 96a-96b, principles of business management and administration.

The curriculum for a machine operator requires that the student take the following courses: Business 50a-50b, accounting, business 51a-51b, business mathematcs, business 60-61-62-63, beginning, intermediate, advanced, and special typing, business 60, filing, business 67a, 67b, 67c, 67d, machine calculation work, business 66a-66b, office machines, business 70, business English, business 71, business speech, business 72, business correspondence, business 76, personality in business.

A great number of women students are taking up secretarial work; there are also many opportunities awaiting men students in this field of work. The preparation required in order to be an A-1 secretary is found in the following courses: Business 55a-55b, stenography, business 56a-56b, dictation and transcription, business 59, office practice, business 60-61-62-63, beginning, intermediate, advanced, and special typing, business 66, filing, business 67a-68a, machine calculation and office machines, business 70, business English, business 71, business speech, business 74, vocabulary and spelling, business 72, business correspondence, business 76, personality in business.

Insurance, still a new curriculum at the college, is offered to all interested students planning to enter insurance work upon graduation. The curriculum includes the following courses: Business 50a-50b, accounting, business 51a, business mathematics, business 60-61, beginning and intermediate typing, business 70, business English, business 72, business correspondence, business 74, vocabulary and spelling, business 79, psychology in business, business 80, fundamentals of salesmanship, business 83a, advertising copy.

Nearly Half of Students In Police Training Course Can Claim Irish Descent

A little bit of Heaven fell out of the blue one day and from it have come police, police, and more police. There has been no exception to the Irish domination of police work even in the college's police training course. Begorra, St. Patrick's Day will be whoopee time for 40 per cent of the students in police training who are either whole or part Irish.

Survey of the nationalities represented in police training students was made by the instructor, Harold W. Leuenberger, who claims that after the Irish, 22 per cent of the students are of German descent, American (old stock) 13 per cent, and Greek, 9 per cent, followed by Swedish, Italian, Japanese, and English-French each comprising 4 per cent.

Double Cross . . .

By BOB KAUFMANN

Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents a series of interesting attempts at literature by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandys, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. Short stories will be signed, autobiographies will be published anonymously.

Nervous? Who wouldn't be nervous. It had been one week now. God he was jumpy! That brat again.

"Spat! Shut dat kidup or I'll slap her down. Dat sniveling brat is driving me nuts. Comere!"

A sudden ominous silence. The door slammed; the rickety shanty shook violently. A wheezy cough and Spots sat down at the little circular wooden table heavily. His cigarette smoke clung in a murky blue film to the lonely light suspended from somewhere in the shadowed eaves. His thick angular face betrayed his contemptuous self while black beady eyes contrasted sharply with a large sparkling diamond stick-pin thrust boldly through a lapel of the coat.

"Now git this, so youll know what your doing tonight. We meet old man Harrison's chauffeur on the dark part of th' lane, you know where. He hands me the money while you're in th' car with your gun on him. When I see that the dough's okay I'll let him go—and you're ready. Keep de engine running."

"It's gett'en time now. Tie th' kid up good. Here's the door key. We can't afford ta be late for the little party, eh? Th' cops are out of it, too, just like we said in the note. What a sweet set-up. We get th' twenty grand and then we blows. Comeon, it's getting late."

No Oregon night could have been darker. An entire absence of moon designated that home by the fire was the proper place to be. Nevertheless, the sedan ran along silently in the stillness.

It was Spat who spoke.

"Did you fix it up with Midge to be just off the Cape? It'll be curtains if we get picked up riding around wid 20,000 smackers in the boat."

"Ah, I got everyth'ng arranged I tell ya. We grabs the dough, picks up th' kid; beats it to the boat. On the way out we ties the old anchor around 'er foot and drops 'er over. No evidence . . . slick as a whistle. The Big Man almost overcame his nervousness with his self-confidence.

"There's the light!" hurled Spat, "See it off to th' left, right beside the big tree."

"Ya, I see it. Dim your lights. Remember, nc slip-ups."

The car rolled to a stop. The Big Man got out unhesitatingly. Simultaneously a dark form appeared from out of the blackness. The collective croaking of the frogs seemed to subdue, as if anticipating the junction. Here, between two men in the night, was represented the hopes of prayers of the anxious parents of a kidnapped eleven year old girl. The object of an intensive but nonresulting search. It was money in exchange for life.

"Wait," said a husky voice. It was a middle-sized man dressed in livery.

"You're trapped!"

The Big Man clutched tightly on something cold and hard in his left pocket.

"Whadda ya mean?" he snapped tensely.

"Half a mile down the lane you are on is a police cordon . . . as you drove in this lane they closed in behind you!"

"Why you scummy little stuffed shirt, I oughta . . ."

"Wait, the money is here—to avert suspicion."

In proof, the chauffeur opened a small overnight bag which divulged to the Big Man's searching flash, several neatly tied bundles of greenbacks. He zipped it closed again.

"Cut me in and I'll show you a road out."

Now the Big Man's integrity was just as keen in his emergency. Once out of this stratagem he would again be master of the situation.

"Sure," he said. "Yeah, sure. I'll cut ya in—but if you double cross me I'll drill you first. Gun 'er Spats."

"When you come to the wall," interposed the newcomer, "turn right, here . . . leads up to an old grist mill . . . comes out on the highway below the hill . . . cops think it's blind."

As the three entered the concealed shack the Big Man had a mingled feeling of fear and aggravation. He was relieved beyond comprehension but disturbed greatly by the entrance of the police which he translated as a double cross. Now that they had successfully engineered an escape, thanks to a stroke of luck, the police would double their efforts to apprehend the trio. There was no time to lose, and the Big Man was master of the situation.

"Spats, better git de kid, I'm firing dis joint. Hey, you! Call Brush 3438 and tell th' guy dat answers '20 minutes'. The boat's gotta be ready. Th' phones in dat left room."

The short man in the livery did as he was told. His absence gave the two the chance they wanted.

"We gotta rub him out—we can't cut him in," snarled Spats viciously.

The big man added his assent.

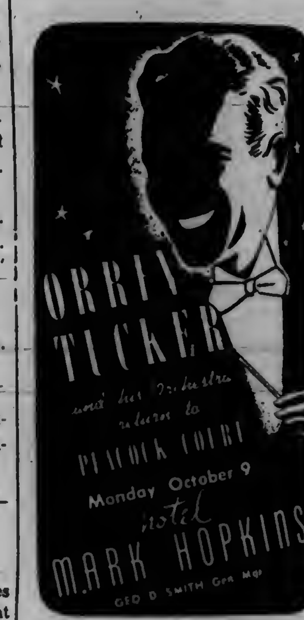
"We'll dump them both over at the same time. Watch for my signal. If necessary, kill him!"

The chauffeur lifted the receiver.

"Operator. This is a government agent speaking. Relay this to police headquarters immediately: Cape Blanco . . . kid okay . . .

Singing

A Capella Choir In Need Of Altos For Music Course



Women who have low singing voices and are interested in taking Choir should see Flossita Badger, choir instructor, immediately.

"There is a great need for altos in the choir, and although it is late in the semester, we will still give new members their full credit," Miss Badger said. Choir is a one-unit course, and it meets two hours each week.

If there are students in the college who can play or sing but have no time to include music in their curriculum they, too, should get in touch with Miss Badger.

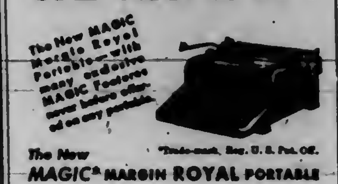
"There are many time when outside performances, radio, clubs, and others, call for solo or small group singing and playing," Miss Badger said. "When such a call comes in I would like to be familiar with the talent in the college in order to call them to perform when such talent is requested."

Twenty-eight ancient Greek and Roman coins recently were found studded in an antique box bought from a hobby shop by Albert L. Teraille, a truck driver in Hartford, Conn.

For reservations
DICK CALLAGHAN — SK 4171

CLUB SCHEDULE
NAME	Type of Meeting	TIME	PLACE
Alpha Delta Epsilon	Business	Oct. 10—2:30 p.m.	Rm. 253—Galileo
Alpha Gamma Sigma	Watch Bulletin Board!
Alpha Phi Omega	Initiation	Oct. 10—8:00 p.m.	3535 Fillmore St.
Army-Navy	Initiation	Indefinite
Astronomy	Business	Oct. 9—7:00 p.m.	Galileo
Beta Phi	No Plans
Block S.F.	Business	Oct. 31—7:30 p.m.	Rm. 458—Galileo
Beta Tau	Business	Oct. 9—8 p.m.	166 Commonwealth
Chinese	No Plans
Forestry	Business	Oct. 10—5:20 p.m.	Room 361—Galileo
Forum	Speaker and Disc.	Oct. 11—8:00 p.m.	21 Buena Vista—Room 17
French	No Plans
George Washington	No Plans
Home Econ. Ass'n.	No Plans
Hotel-Restaurant	Meeting	Nov. 1	Indefinite
Iota Chi	Business	Oct. 17—8 p.m.	Indefinite
Japanese	No Plans
Lambda Chi	No Plans
Music	No Plans
Newman	Speaker	Oct. 16—8:00 p.m.	St. Mary's Cathedral
Omicron Phi Pi	Initiation	Oct. 9	2340 Francisco Street
Peace Society	Business	Oct. 6—8:00 p.m.	830 Hyde St.
Phi Beta Rho	No Plans
Phys. Ed. Majors	Weenie Bake	Oct. 17	Sigmund Stern Grove
Pi Mu Gamma	No Plans
Pick and Hammer	No Plans
Pre-Nursing	No Plans
Rifle and Pistol	Social	Indefinite	Sigmund Stern Grove
Tarbuth	Business	Oct. 19—7:45 p.m.	300 Page Street
Tri Epsilon	Business	Oct. 9—8:00 p.m.	Parkwood
Women's Service Society	Tea	Oct. 7—3:10-5:00 p.m.	1474-38th Ave.

—SPECIAL—
Milkshake and Sandwich
Both for 25c
SUTTON and ROWLAND
500 Sutter at Powell



Wilson Announces Tennis Tournament

Tennisers entering the college tournament have been requested by Coach Tom Wilson to check with him for the schedule and time of play.

"Any entrants who miss a match are liable to default," said Wilson.

As previously announced, singles and doubles matches will be held at the Palace of Fine Arts courts just as soon as all entrants have been completely organized and a definite schedule has been made.

WE HAVE IT!

The New MAGIC* MARGIN ROYAL PORTABLE
*Trade-mark, Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

See it at
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. Hastings
591 Market St. Phone SUtter 4734

WOMEN'S SPORT SHOP

THIS IS THE "Carry All!"

$2

THE "Carry All" LIVES UP TO ITS NAME AND HOLDS:

CIGARETTES · HANDKERCHIEF · MATCHES · MONEY · MIRROR · STUDENT BODY CARD · COMPACT · LIPSTICK · PEN · KEYS · COMB

In Colors and Leathers that go with your Campus Clothes

Roos Bros
MARKET AT STOCKTON

MILLERS COFFEE SHOP
783 BUSH STREET
Fresh Donuts Made Many Times Daily
Coffee — 5c
Students Hamburgers — 10c
FOUNTAIN

Your subject is outlined . . .
2 COLLEGE OUTLINES
68c to $1.25
J. C. Student Store

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .
Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.
509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600
Remington Rand, Inc.

DANCE SPECIAL
For S. F. J. C. Students
Call Your CAMPUS CLEANER
Phone OVerland 8545 — 820 Ulloa Street
Speedy Service Anywhere
Quality Workmanship
Your Student President Uses Our Service
Why Not You?

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
The Guardsman
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940

Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1939 No. 6

Building . . .

Aeronautics Chief Richards, Guardsman Photographer Shoot Balboa Park College Campus From Air

Captain George Richards, director of the college's Civilian Flight Training, was waiting at the San Francisco Bay Airdrome last Saturday for Jay Wright, Guardsman photographer, to fly over Balboa Park for pictures of the new college campus.

Wright arriving, while the plane was being warmed up in preparation for flight, Gene Powell took the first picture of the Captain Richards and Wright standing by the plane.

At 10:30 Richards and Wright took off, flying across the bay to the building site. Arriving over the campus at an altitude of 2000 feet the second picture was taken showing the campus as a whole and the location of the various buildings as indicated.

Captain Richards then dived to 1500 feet and circled for the third picture, showing the Science Building with the first two floors completed and the third floor well on the way to completion.

The plane was then turned toward the airport and a landing was made at 11 o'clock. In a bare half hour a graphic series of pictures was made depicting the college campus as it nears completion.

Student Movement

State Invites College To Rally At Lake Merced Ground-Breaking; Welfare Committee Planned

Announced by Associated Students President Elmer Hubacher was the receipt of a letter of invitation from Bob Sweeney, student body president of San Francisco State College. The letter requested the presence of all students of the college at a joint State-Junior College rally at the ground breaking ceremonies of the new State campus at Lake Merced.

A four-man committee consisting of Hubacher, Bill Frantz, Ray Berns and Lee Scarlett, all members of the executive council, was appointed to visit State in order to make all the arrangements.

To head the newly formed investigation committee designed to find effective means for counteracting reported cheating during mid-terms is Allan Williams, chairman of the Judicial Committee.

Suggested at the executive council meeting was the formation of a so-called welfare committee which would have as its duty the general policing and "dirty work" of keeping-tabs on students to prevent violation of rules and regulations of the various campi.

Before any action for the formal inauguration of the committee was taken, a suggestion was made that the duty might well be delegated to the Club Advisory Board. Appointed as a committee of one to investigate the possibilities of this was Harold Hoffman, president of the Club Advisory Board, who was instructed to report back to the Executive council his findings in this matter at the first meeting of the council following the next Club Advisory Board meeting.

Judicial Committee Meets Soon To Punish Cheaters

Al Williams, chairman of the Judicial Committee, announced that a meeting of the committee will be held in the near future for the purpose of deliberating upon certain students caught cheating in midterm examinations.

Several cases have been referred to

(Continued on page 4, column 3)

C. A. B.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT WILL ADDRESS CLUB ADVISORY BOARD'S NEXT MEETING

Archibald J. Cloud, president of the college, will speak to the members of the Club Advisory board at its next meeting, Thursday, October 19. This will be the first student group President Cloud has addressed in some time.

Club Advisory Board chairman Harold Hoffman today made further appeals for the cooperation of clubs. He requested that representatives be sent to all the advisory board meetings in the future.

Petitions for renewal of charters must be submitted to the board in time to be voted upon at the meeting Thursday. These may be left in Tom O'Neill's office at the Powell street building until this time, according to Hoffman. Clubs failing to file petitions will be refused charters for the semester, thus losing standing in the college.

Plans are under way to promote an extensive intramural athletic program in which club members may compete. A number of varied sports will be included in a schedule now being drawn up. The schedule will be presented at a meeting in the near future.

Dean Edwin C. Browne suggested a reduction in the number of meetings held each semester by the board. Members at the meeting protested Dean Browne's suggestion that the board limit its activities.

The group meets in Room 206 at 1 p. m. every other Thursday.

Aviation

Air Applicants Still Being Accepted Reveals Richards

With more than 100 applications of students desirous of being chosen for the new aeronautics course already on file, arrangements are now under way for the appointment of a flight instructor, it was announced by Captain George Richards, college director of aviation pilot training.

Physical Requirements Strict

Physical requirements are so strict, that many of the applicants have already been eliminated, it was disclosed. Applications are still being received, therefore, for at least one more week. Preliminary petition blanks can be acquired as the college office in the Galileo High School Building.

Upon proper completion of the application blanks all men are required to arrange for an interview with Captain Richards. Captain Richards can be reached every morning from 9 to 12 o'clock in the North Library on the second floor of the Galileo Building.

After the interview, students will make appointments for their physical examinations by contacting Edna Denhart, in President Cloud's office at Galileo.

WAA Appoints Jacke, Scott Organization Yell Leaders Until Election

Saturday, October 21, the Women's Atheletic Association of the college will blossom out with a yell team consisting of Lucille Jacke, WAA president, and Thursa Scott, women's rifle club manager.

The occasion will be the Northern California Intercollegiate tennis and archery play day at the Palace of Fine Arts.

The Misses Jacke and Scott, who have led yells before together, will hold the position until after tryouts (the date for which will be announced later) when the winner will be announced.

Today Is A Special One; Consult Your Calendar, Beware

A blanket of gloom lies over the city. Men gather in little groups and discuss the occasion in somber tones. Students going to and from classes look fearfully around. Suddenly, a shrill scream pierces the air . . . A woman sobs "A horrible black cat crossed my path."

It is useless to conceal the facts any longer, therefore be it known that today is Friday the thirteenth, that day of days when ladders fall, mirrors break, and misfortune dogs the steps of all.

For the benefit of the students of this college it should be revealed that today will affect them in no little degree. First and foremost headache of the day is the information that those beautifully printed "cinch" notices will be mailed today, bringing joy and ecstasy (heh, heh, heh) to all who are so lucky as to receive them.

Then of course there is the little matter of the football game with Sacramento tonight. This, however, is the worry of the Sacramento team for they will doubtless go down in defeat for being so unwise as to schedule a game on this woeful day.

Ah well, why extoll the ominous things to come? Let us compose ourselves with a few hundred lucky charms and face the day with a somewhat dilapidated but never daunted grin.

New Star In The Music Hall Sky

Ed Murphy Plays Sunday At Exposition Music Hall

Roly-poly Eddie Murphy, former student of the college, and his orchestra get their big chance Sunday night when they open on Treasure Island. He will play at the Music hall where such greats as Benny Goodman, Ted Lewis, Kay Kayser, Eddie Duchin, and George Olsen have starred.

Playing at the college dances every semester for the past two years, Murphy became the favorite of the students. As a result, each semester he was procured by the dance committees by popular request. Reason for the Irishman's popularity is that when he's in the groove, and he usually is, he bangs out plenty of jive.

This is Murphy's big chance, and if he makes good there is a bright future ahead. Opening the first day of the Fair's music week, Murphy will be playing from 6 p.m. to 10 Sunday evening.

Browne's Speech Works

Dean Edwin C. Browne's speech at the rally this week showed its first application when Frank Hospodarsky caught Ray Rhode throwing scraps of paper on the Powell street steps. Hospodarsky, his huge form shadowing little Rhode's, requested that the errant youngster take a broom and sweep the stairs. The broom was donated generously by Garvey, the Extension building janitor.

Personality

Radio Classes Will Hear NBC Program Director's Address

The man who holds one of the most coveted jobs in local radio circles, the man who decides on what programs you shall hear on your radio, Glenn R. Dolberg, local program director of the National Broadcasting company, will disclose what goes on behind the scenes in radio production when he addresses Marie Weller's combined radio classes next Friday at 3 o'clock in the offices of The American Institute of Banking at 56 Sutter street.

Will Discuss Broadcasting

A guest of Miss Weller, college instructor of radio production, Dolberg, widely known for the excellent work he is doing on N.B.C., will speak on the general phases of radio production touching upon sound effects, announcing, and script writing.

Procedure of getting into broadcasting, the requirements needed by those desirous of entering the radio field, and other relative subjects will also be discussed by Dolberg who has expressed his interest in the college courses given by Miss Weller.

Although the talk and discussion to follow it are intended primarily for Miss Weller's combined History of American Broadcasting, and Radio Script Writing Courses, Miss Weller said, "that any student or teacher interested in this talk may contact her for possible arrangements."

Courses Outlined

Miss Weller, recently returned from radio experience in New York, is conducting the two popular courses. The first, Speech 30, or The American System of Broadcasting, deals with the development of the radio industry from its beginning to the present day, network and local station operation, American program policies, and consideration of the industry's future in a democracy. The second, Speech 31, or Radio Script Writing is an informal course devoted to lectures, writing of scripts both original and adaptations, class discussion and criticism, and analysis of broadcasts.

AWS Schedule Century Club Tea For November 14

Definitely scheduled for November 14, the Associated Women Students' tea will be held from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock at the Century club, 1355 Franklin street, announced Muriel Nolan, AWS president.

"We have invited Frances Shoup, prominent executive of a local department store to again give us a general idea of what the college girl in San Francisco would wear," Miss Nolan said. "This will be the largest affair that the AWS has sponsored in the new semester, and it will be held in honor of the graduating women of senior high schools and private schools.

Since so many of the college women enjoyed the fashion show and tea sponsored last semester by the AWS, we have decided that another fashion show would be of general interest to all the women. In addition to the women assisting me on the committee for this affair," Miss Nolan continued, "there will be many hostesses to welcome the guests and assist in serving refreshments which will be exceptionally nice."

Sacramento Rally

Pep Rally At Galileo Today Will Feature Ernie Smith

Under the supervision of Ray Berns, college yell leader, a huge pep rally, featuring the inimitable Ernie Smith, will be held in the Galileo auditorium at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of creating spirit for tonight's football game with Sacramento.

Smith, dean of bay region sportscasters, will interview Coach Lee Eisan and Captain Jommy Molich, and will then attempt to amuse the audience with his ready wit and vitriolic speech.

Although the sportcaster will be the outstanding attraction on today's bill of fare, Berns promises to present a supporting cast designed to entertain the students attending the funfest.

Included on the program will be a trio composed of three former Washington High lasses, Jean Chesley, Virginia Barney, and Annette Goldner, who, according to Berns, will present the latest word in harmony.

Comedy of the day will be handled by that—"internationally-renowned" dance team of "Bubbles" and "Peaches," who hope to entertain with their famed "Balloon Dance".

The dance team will be accompanied on the piano by Hal Boswell. It is rumored that Boswell is one of the finest pianists ever to enter this institution, and, upon completion of the Balloon Dance", will swing out on some of the latest and more popular hit tunes.

An innovation in college rallies will be introduced in the form of community singing. Describing it as something "new and different", Berns said, "as far as I know, this is the second time we have had community singing at a rally. The first venture, held three semesters ago, was pronounced a success, and if all who attend today join in, we'll have a swell time."

J. Paul Mohr, college registrar, reveals that a new plan has been worked out whereby students will attend shortened periods. All 2:30 classes will meet before the rally, adjourn to the auditorium and then convene at 3:25 and extend until 4 o'clock; from 4:05 until 4:40, 3:30 classes will meet, and 4:30 classes will commence at 4:45 and end at 5:20.

CLUBMEN TO ORGANIZE COLLEGE ROOTING SECTION; READY FOR GAME TONIGHT

"Social club men will come to the rescue of Ray Berns and his assistant yell-leaders now!" said Frank Hospodarsky enthusiastically.

"We are forming a rooting section for the college with the club men as a nucleus. There are more than 400 men in the college who belong to the organizations of the campus. If our club leaders work on it, we can easily get an organized rooting section at our football games, instead of a scattered mob of individual groups."

The above statement came from Hospodarsky's speech when questioned about his plan for installing a new system in the college's rooting section. His plan calls for co-operation between the club group and the yell leaders. This co-operation is assured by both Hospodarsky and by Berns.

This may mean more than mere assistance for the yell leaders before it has run its course. Social and scholastic organizations have long been in need of some co-ordination with each other for their own good and that of the college. Now some action is coming in the form of help for the student body and the reputation of the school.

Hubacher's Birthday

Honoring the birthday of Elmer Hubacher, Associated Students' president, members of the Hotel and Restaurant division have baked a cake to be presented to Hubacher at the rally today. Dorothy Trood, vice-president of the Associated Students, will read a poem written for the occasion by Hal Hoffman, as she presents the birthday cake. Hubacher refused to reveal his age.

Dean Urges Attendance At First Conference Game At Seals Tonight

Hope was expressed through the office of the Dean of Men today that members of the student body will turn out en masse for the initial conference football game this evening.

"Nothing would indicate finer enthusiasm in the college than the turnout of the students as a body to the contest tonight, especially since this is our first conference game," Dean Browne said.

Browne declared that the cooperation indicated in response of students to a recent assembly has been very noticeable.

Data . . . . for Dating
Occasion	Place	Date
Game — Rams vs. Sacramento	Seals Stadium	Tonight
AMS Barn Dance	Devonshire	October 27
Game — Rams vs. San Mateo	San Mateo	October 28
Ram — State Rally	Lake Merced	November 1
Game — Rams vs. S. F. State	Seals Stadium	November 3
S. F. State Dance	State Gym	November 3

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1939 No. 6

BILL FRANTZ ..... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser, Business Adviser
Joan Nourse Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross ..... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ..... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat ..... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Sports Editor
Lorella Antonicelli ..... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ..... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop ..... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, John Hansen, George Jensen, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Allen Martin, Jo Ann Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Write Solutions Of Honor Code Problem To Ram's Horn—Give Student Body Benefit Of Brainstorms

THE problem of the honor system was placed before the students of the college last week. It is a problem of some significance in the young lives of the students To continue on to university a grade not lowered by dishonest persons is vital.

Upon the observance of the honor code system rests the future of democratic action. Government of the people, by the people, can be accomplished successfullly only when the people know how to govern themselves. There is a poor future for real democracy when the future citizens haven't the ability to control themselves or each other in the matter of competition for grades.

All agree that there is a problem—yet few have the initiative to solve the problem.

There is no lack of intelligence among the students. We spoke to several students during the week and all had definite ideas about the problem—good ideas!—But few had the initiative to send their theories to the Ram's Horn.

As we said once before, this problem cannot be solved by any one person. It is the collective problem of the students attending the college. Let your fellow-students benefit by your ideas—write your observations and solutions to the Ram's Horn.

Club Advisory Board Supplies Cog Long-Missed In College Unity

SPIRIT lacking? Not entirely. Several social clubs have volunteered their aid in forming a nucleus for a college rooting section.

It was through the Club Advisory Board, the orphan of the student government, that this long-missed cog in college unity has been replaced.

Failure of the student body to take part in an action in the past has been blamed on the lack of "our own campus". The opportunity for any ambitious organization to do something to better the student activities has been within reach since the college first opened. Now that a group has organized and shown us that things can be accomplished in spite of "our lack of campus", we can take the lesson to heart.

It can be seen that where someone or some group makes the necessary first move it becomes easier for the remainder of the students to get into the swing of things. The necessary first move has been made—now the students can feel safe in giving forth with the "rah rahs."

Come out to the game tonight and join in on your rooting section!

Students Responsible For Good Will Of Citizens Of San Francisco

UPON us, the students of the college, rests the responsibility for the good—or bad-will toward the college Upon Dean Edwin C. Browne, falls the blame for any unfavorable actions of the students.

At the rally early this week Dean Browne placed before the students the accumulated complaints of unfavorable actions of students of the college. In an editorial earlier this semester we mentioned the fact that San Francisco Junior College exists through the cooperation of other parties—parties who allow us to use their buildings and property. These are the parties who are forced by us to make most of the complaints, and they are among those who have given us $4,000,000 so that we may have a location of our own.

Let us conduct ourselves so that the affable Dean Browne will not be burdened with complaints of the students' unfavorable actions. Show some appreciation for our $4,000,000 prize!

Presidential Notes By Elmer Hubacher

AS WE have tried to tell you and put over, we want this to be run the way you, the students, want it. Following along this same vein, we have called a meeting of the four class presidents for next week. This is to be purely a discussion group. If you have any ideas, criticisms, or suggestions you would like to have brought up at this time, please contact your class president or me and we will see that they are discussed.

As you all know, or should, we have a game tonight. In fact our first conference meeting. This by far is our most important conflict to date. We can win this game, if you, the students get out and back up your team. Let's give these fellows the support they deserve; now's the time they need it.

The spirit of the past games has been rotten! The team spirit has been excellent, but the spirit on the part of the students has been nil plus. Come on game, let's get going on this, be at the game tonight, get in the rooting section. Let's get organized and show our team that we mean business. Your enthusiasm will be contagious, and we assure you your team will bring home a victory.

This afternoon at 2:30 p. m. in the Galileo auditorium there is to be a rally in honor of our team and the game tonight. Let's pack the auditorium. The rally committee has a fine program planned, so we'll see you all there.

. . . while thinking . . .
By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

FOR the first time in her history, Sweden last week began the construction of bomb shelters for the civilian population of Stockholm.

Reason for this unprecedented move was Soviet Russia's threat to take over the Baltic trade from the neutral nations around the North and Baltic seas.

The Swedish government called approximately 100,000 men to the colors and stated their intentions of defending their rights.

This of course, is to be expected, but whether they will go through with their plans to defend Sweden is an entirely different matter. With the example of ravaged Warsaw before their eyes, and with the realization that their small army is pitifully inadequate to withstand the might of the Russian military machine, it is possible that the Swedes will make a compromise with the Soviet to save their nation from ruin and extinction.

* * *

JUDGING from all appearances, the Rome-Berlin axis isn't faring so well these days. The Italian press has been frankly shocked at German actions during the past few weeks, and was exceedingly condemnatory in regard to the Nazi-Soviet agreement.

Perhaps history will repeat itself once again and eventually see Italy going over to the side of the democracies. Who knows? Stranger things than that have happened. It is quite logical to believe that if the Italians enter the conflict at all they will go in on the side of the nations most likely to win, which to our way of thinking would be England and France.

* * *

NATIONAL

THE Navy Department recently revealed that 28 more old destroyers in service during the last war had been reconditioned for service with the neutrality patrol.

Let us hope the warring nations heard about this also, and take the hint to keep far, far away from American shores.

* * *

SERVING to keep the American reading public wide eyed and open mouthed with astonishment, the Dies committee is continuing its efforts to root out undesirable elements in the nation.

With the Communists and the Nazi-American bund already under investigation, the gromp is also keeping a watchful eye on other subversive organizations. If the revelations of the committee are true they certainly have lately handed full of explosive facts and statements.

Incidentally, the office of Martin Dies, head of the committee was broken into the other night and some files containing the records of the Nazi-American bund were stolen. Purely coincidence, of course.

* * *

CITY

SEEN in downtown department stores, this sign: "WARNING—Retail Stores Cannot and Will Not Accept 'Retirement Life Payment Warrants' (Ham and Eggs—30 Thursday)."

It has always been our opinion, that the idea wouldn't work, but we were never as certain of it as now. By a wide stretch of the imagination one may conceive the idea as passed by the voters, but even if it is, what good will it do if none of the stores or banks will accept the warrants? Maybe the originators of the plan onght to go home and sleep it off.

* * *

EXPOSITION

CROONING must be a popular sport these days if the attendance at Bing Crosby's two concerts at the fair last Sunday is any indication.

One wonders what it is that makes people, young and old, stand in the hot sun for hours to hear a man sing. (Speaking as one of the multitude who waited and listened, we're darned-ed if we know.)

It was interesting to observe the soulful signs that went up from the crowd when Crosby gave out with one of the current tunes of the day.

* * *

PRESS

TODAY and tomorrow are the last days of Newspaper Week. For those who have not as yet visited one of the metropolitan newspaper plants, let us suggest that you take an hour off and do so.

It is really surprising to see how a newspaper is made, and how the news is gathered. The general public doesn't even vaguely realize the work that is put into the job of giving the world its news.

Perhaps after being educated through a tour of The San Francisco Chronicle, which is holding open house this week, there will be an abatement of the derision and scoffing that is so plentifully heaped upon the press.

in TROOD ings
By Dot

TWAS Friday, and all was well with the world as two young women of the college strolled along Market street, until one of them suddenly burst out laughing at the sight of a clown who was giving out flowers to the passers-by. "Come on," cried the brunette, "I want to get one of those flowers."

Daringly she approached the clown, who suddenly and quite without warning, flaps the large sole of his shoe in front of this miss, making her jump (and not exaggerating it) almost out of her skin. Still undaunted, this young gal put forth her hand to receive a posy, and instead, her gift was half of a straw, the kind you get at the soda fountain. The crowd that had gathered around stood laughing at the embarrassment of the young woman, who was being abrnptly pushed across Market street by her companion, and thus up to the institution of learning from whence she had come.

CHIP'S IN THE RHODE

Someone, shouted "Goodbye Mr. Chips" and started everyone gaping for the sight of handsome Robert Donat, but in his place was the ever good-natured form of Dusty Rhode, wearing a pair of pinch-on glasses right on the end of his nose, and looking more like Mr. Chips than Dusty Rhode.

Blonde and vivacious Shirley White, noted for her great big brown eyes, has the most fascinating way of rolling them when listening to a good cat session. If you haven't noticed, do so the next time Shirley is in the neighborhood because it's something you shouldn't miss.

We are wondering what all the attraction at the Winterland Rink is these days besides the ice. Everyone is going out on Fridays to become future champions of the silver blades or champion of the sitter-downers. Just ask Louis Delare how he's coming along and he'll tell you "sitting down." Never mind Louis, you'll surprise us all yet.

MISS CELANTA

Cracking his heels and knocking his knees in ever smiling Frankie Verducci who has just told a group of admirers his latest joke, and oh me, Frankie, it surely hurt.

Gals—here's a warning. When you're trying to think of something different to wear with your green skirt or pink sweater, be sure to think twice about the color scheme in your careful eyes of Wilton Latz and Norman Gray will be checking up to see that everything is combined with taste. These fellows know what's what.

Collegiate Al Williams in that new sweater and a pipe added for the atmosphere . . . Helen Hansen climbing the iron poles out at golf . . . Blue Pencil Bill: We happen to know that Fashion Benny has all her hats made exclusively for her personality.

When the national pastime was born in Cooperstown, N. Y. in 1839, baseballs then used were made of finely rubber and covered with yarn and leather.

To Bally The Rally By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Is Honor A "Goner" Backed In A Corner? Students Mourn Her

● CHEATING GOES ON
Editor, The Guardsman:

There seems to be much doubt in the minds of many of the students of the college in regard to the truth of that old adage "honesty is the best policy". It really is a shame to think that college students still need "policemen" to prevent their cheating in tests.

I believe that it is the student, who is working merely for grades and not for an education, who cheats in his examinations. We honest members of the student body care little, if at all, if others want to blacken their own names, but we do care if the good name of the college as a whole is marred by their dishonesty.

Unfortunately, I can see no answer to this problem. Apparently, appealing to the "better sides" of the students is useless—including lectures in exhibitions of cheating I've seen in some of the classes. However, there may still be hope if these misjudged students can be made to see the "light".

I sincerely hope that the Judicial Committee will keep up its hard work and will be able to reach an answer to this perplexing issue.

Ann Ormiston.

● WANTS 'PERSONALS' COLUMN
Editor, The Guardsman:

Quite a few students would like to have a column where they can insert advertisements for a minimum price. Personals, ads offering to sell books and school supplies, could be a few of the ads included in such a column. It seems a good way to make money for the paper and an equally good way of satisfying students.

Think it over and give us an answer.

Sincerely,
Bix Nessman

● HONOR SYSTEM ABUSED
Editor, The Guardsman:

The other day I was told to buy a bluebook. I got slightly frightened, for it indicated "examinations." I usually do my work, and I generally succeed in it, but I always get nervous or something on exams, and so I did not like the idea very well. But those were "orders."

I went into the bookstore at the end of this class, and asked meekly for those books. I gave them a short glance but something arrested my eye. There was something more written than: "San Francisco Junior College."

I was slightly annoyed when I read: "Dishonesty is not tolerated by the students of this college." In my mind this was more or less natural, and I expressed as much to my companion. Then it was explained to me that examinations in this school work

(Continued on page 4, column 7)

shots at RAMdom . . . By Isadore Maloff

KEENEST song title to reach our ears in recent time is provokingly entitled, "What's Wrong With Your Sarong?" Supposedly inspired by curvsarongeuious Dorothy Lamour, the composer of the song figures to gross a goodly fortune in royalties from Hawaii sales alone. The writer of this lyric brought of the idea for the title when seeing a picture in which Miss Lamour's pettycoat was slightly showing. Which just goes to show you the good that can sometimes come from a little slip.

* * *

CORN(Y) ON THE COB

Today we take great pleasure in presenting the life story of Rankin Roseleaf, considered by many authorities an excellent example of the average freshman student. It was only after we had devoted considerable time and effort to the task of interviewing Mr. Roseleaf that we were able to pry out enough facts for this story as Rankin is quite a modest person.

Rankin Roseleaf came into this world April 1, 1921, thereby giving his parents the worst joke ever sprung on them.

When Rankin was only a small bud, his nurse took him out in his perambulator one bright morn for a stroll in Union park. It seems that two particularly pulchritudinous young coeds from a nearby college were passing through the park. As Rankin sat up in his carriage to judge the merits of the passers-by, he leaned just a bit too far over the side, falling squarely on his head.

His horrified nurse, rushing over to him, tried to pick him up, but Roseleaf, masculine hero that he was, shouted, "Leaf me alone!" And he rose by himself.

"I ought to plant one on your vase," muttered his nurse as she pulled the carriage top over his head. (Don't go yet—it'll get better.)

Rankin gave a deep scythe and decided then and there that when he became of age he would attend the same college from which the beautiful women he had seen had just come.

STRICTLY A CHARACTER

In his adolescence Rankin was one of those individuals who favored the universal transfer, who delighted in playing the guitar, and who patronized Dr. J. V. Campbell and Ole Roman heel bread because it was quite the proper thing to do.

We asked Mr. Roseleaf his opinion of Roman heel bread in our interview with him recently.

"Roman heel bread," declared Mr. Roseleaf earnestly, "is the fondest thing I is of." (Pardon Rankin's grammar—you see his father was an insurance salesman and Rankin learned from him always to end his sentences with a proposition.)

After graduation from Hickville High school with high honors, Roseleaf, with visions of the two women he had seen long ago in the park still before him, decided to come to this college to give it some Rankin.

"In what fields do you intend to major?" his adviser inquired of him on registration day.

"In the hayfields, I guess," declared Rankin who had been entertaining some queer ideas after having read one of John Steinbeck's novels.

"Hey! Hey!" shouted his adviser in agreement.

His program made out accordingly. Mr. Roseleaf declares he feels as though he is in seventh haven. (Peace—it's wonderful.)

Rankin particularly likes his military science course but has been working on an assignment for four days and hasn't been able to complete it. The instructor wants him to find a skirmish line but Mr. Roseleaf just can't seem to find the rope.

BULLONY

We saw him taking care of his prize bull in the livestock pavilion at the fair last week.

"You really like farming?" we asked him.

"Farming," said Rankin enthusiastically, "is the only game with a future. It offers unlimited opportunities to those who would really put their efforts into it. A field of waving corn, a little family of your own, a cow, a couple of chickens, a bull—"

"Aw, go tie your bull to someone else's pasture," we said. And we disgustedly walked away leaving him standing there with his bull.

We haven't seen Rankin Roseleaf for some time now, but we've heard that he found his skirmish line and tied his bull to it . . . A truly remarkable fellow. It's no wonder he was chosen the student most likely to succeed by his fellow hicks at Hickseville.

IN THE Blue Room
FREDDY MARTIN
And His Orchestra
HOTEL ST. FRANCIS
UNION SQUARE • SAN FRANCISCO
For Reservations Call
ELMER HUBACHER—MO. 1866

Cabbages & Kings
By Blue Pencil Bill

NO JUSTICE

AFTER spending all our loose nickels in the past on those attractive slot machines in the hopes of taking out more than we put in, we decided to lay off on account of the lack of profit in these ventures. So . . . .

It was 12:52 last Sunday morning when we walked out of a downtown theatre with "Dusty" Rhode and traipsed down Market street. A red-haired inebriate oozed out of a pinball machine joint and addressed us.

"Shay, I'll put the nickels in an you try an' win for me. Huh!" he said. His 'Huh' blew the liquor odor into our face and we staggered as we answered, "Nope, we gotta catch a train." "But I'll put the nickels in, C'mon." he interposed.

There's nothing to lose we figure, so we let the red-haired guy usher us into the place.

On the very first ball we hit the green light in the middle which lights all the others and "2" lights up on the scoreboard. The other balls cut some fancy capers and before we're done two dollars worth of free games register. The drunk thanked us. We walked out, puzzled and disgusted. There's no justice!

If there is a Pin Ball Machine Temperance Society we will gladly sign the pledge—so will "Dusty."

* * *

In the recent heavyweight title match Bob Pastor lasted 11 rounds with the Brown Bomber. The inside story of "Bicycle Bob's" courage didn't come out until a few weeks ago.

It was the end of the tenth round when Pastor's manager was ready to throw in the towel and said to his boxer, "Well, Bob, I'm afraid you've licked now." Bob gazed dizzily across the canvas to Louis' corner and answered, "Yeah, I should have gotten him the first round when he was alone."

But don't quote us.

ELECTION CARDS

It happened at the printer's office.

A candidate for office in the coming election came in to see the layout of his election card. The motto on the bottom of the pasteboard read, "Honest . . . Proficient . . . Progressive." The politico looked at the motto and yelled for the printer. "Hey you!" he roared, "Change that." The printer asked the candidate how he wanted it, then made the change. The card now reads, "Experienced . . . Proficient . . . Progressive."

* * *

Can you believe it? Dot Trood didn't catch on to the "down in the dumps" crack. Her mother had to tell her. Pipe her hat—she says she has them made exclusive! (?)

The League for Sentimentality in Courtship (H. Hofman, president) sends this missile in answer to that nostalgic plea for leniency in the fancy art of "smooching" from the pen of Dorothy What's-her-name.

After reading that poem against males,
I hope to relate here with details
About how we feel during a night of fun,
Which is helped along by a certain one.

For it is true that her feelings too
Are shared by all of us, me and you.
For she too likes a warm embrace,
Which surely these days is no disgrace.

* * *

The thrill of her presence being so near
Is a thrill more than can be explained here.
The slightest touch of her hand so soft
Does much to send your heart aloft.

Then there are pleasures really divine
When her head rests gracefully alongside of thine.
Because of these and her heavenly charms
Is the reason why you like her in your arms.

There shall come a day when your lips shall meet,
And then both shall enjoy the nectar
sweet.
It will be to you a heavenly bliss
When you partake of that first sweet kiss.

What do you think of that, Miss What's-your-name?

Will Friday the 13th Prove Lucky For the Ram Pigskinners???

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

It's Scalp Sacramento Tonight! Be At Seals Stadium For the Kickoff

RAMS, PANTHERS TANGLE TONIGHT

RAMblings
By RAY BERNS

Berns Offers Award But Goldstone Calls Bluff, Gives Police Gazette!

COHN'S CRACK KICKS BACK

Although this isn't exactly our business, it is sure funny.

Stan Cohn, sports editor of the Daily Californian, in commenting upon the defeat of the University of San Francisco by little St. Mary's of Texas, remarked that perhaps the defeat taught the Dons a lesson. That perhaps in the future, they wouldn't pick on a supposed setup for the opening game.

We don't like to say anything, but before the Pacific game with California, the Bengals were considered "meat on the table" for the Golden Bears. California's choice of Pacific as an opener, and their subsequent defeat by the Bengals, rather turns Mr. Cohn's statement into a boomerang. Definitely an amusing situation.

* * *

TODAY'S POIGNANT EPISODE

Perhaps this isn't exactly in the line of sports, but it has to do with one of our better-known Block lettermen, and is such a sweet and poignant drama of young love that we feel it our duty to unveil it as a cause for general rejoicing.

A young gentleman was informed by a young lady that it was her birthday, whereupon the young gentleman magnanimously withdrew a Municipal cartieket from his wallet, inscribed upon it the touching sentiment, "From Elmer to Muriel," and presented her with the car ticket. Tender, is it not?

* * *

FLAT AGAIN

As we are, at various times, accused of being a newspaperman, (We never accused you thusly!—Ed.) it seems, therefore, to be within our power (or does it) to condense the following item in such a condensed form that it may be construed as having been condensed:

On Saturday last, the Rams met and were defeated by the California Frosh, 14 to 0, and yours truly, as a result of a depleted pocketbook, is now subsisting on seaweed.

Sympathy is requested.

* * *

Bill Canning, Alameda tenniser, who helped lead the Ram netsters to a co-championship last year, is now enrolled at San Mateo and rumor hath it that Canning will hold down the No. 1 spot on Sy Bashore's peninsula aggregation next season. Will be rather interesting to note the fireworks during the Ram-Bulldog match next year.

* * *

FEX REARS ITS UGLY HEAD

You can't keep the old guard away. Seen at a few of our last games were such well-known ex-Rams as Frankie Nitan, Charlie O'Brien, Dave Johnson, Bob Fex, Jerry Flamm, and Treacy Slattery, not to mention the fact that Stan Tohlason has become so enamored of this hallowed institution that he has returned for the nth semester.

Cartoonists in some of our local dailies have started a fad (it's been going on for a few years) of awarding prizes to the outstanding football players in the bay-region each weekend; thus, we have the Hatlo Hat and the Wiley Smith traveling bags.

BATS IN THE BONNET

Not to be outdone by these cartoonists, we have decided to institute such a procedure on this paper and thereby get a jump on the other columnists. In the future, therefore, we shall award the Berns Bonnet. To those of you who merit receiving the Bonnet, we lend a word of warning. The funds are limited, and, consequently, the Bonnet is purely honorary. This week's award goes to Adrian Carignani, stellar Ram guard.

Sports Editor's Note: Berns has committed rank sabotage against The Guardsman Sports, with one policy It is to encourage esprit de corps rather than inflame individual egotism. Furthermore, his generous award of a non-existent skimmer smacks of deception on the part of the author.

In order that the obstreperous offender shall be duly chastised and publicly humiliated for his breach of ethics, the Sports Editor herewith inaugurates a weekly athletic prize that is a hundred times more desirable than Berns' vacuous nothing of a hat.

The prize—a FREE copy of the POLICE GAZETTE! Claimants will please come to The Guardsman office at Galileo to accept their laurels. Watch for the winner in the next issue of THE GUARDSMAN! How you like that, Berns?)

Six Pernts! . . . Rams' Last Score

Last time the Rams crossed the enemy goal was just two weeks ago, against Pasadena in the Rose Bowl. In the upper photo, taken by photographer Wilson Hole, Johnny Gray is seen reclining triumphantly in payoff territory, while Halfback Temple Dykes whoops it up in the background.

Last week, in the game with the California Frosh, the Rams failed to register on the scoreboard. Pickett, Bear Cub halfback, is shown, in the lower picture, being dumped at the end of a wide right side sweep. He gained only a yard, in one of the Cal Frosh's drives deep into Ram territory. He was stopped on this play by End Frannie Gray.

Sacramento Invades Seals For League Go

Conference Title Race Enters First Lap; Formidable Passing Attacks On Both Sides Presages Aerial Duel

Opening the 1939 conference season for both teams, Sacramento Junior College's hard-hitting Panthers meet the Rams tonight at Seals Stadium. The game is slated to begin at 8:15 p.m.

The Panthers, under the leadership of Coach Harry A. "Hack" Applequist, come into tonight's contest with one non-league game already behind them. Last Saturday they fought to a scoreless tie with Chico State. The Ram cridders, on the other hand, have had the experience of no less than four battles, three of which were dropped by relatively narrow margins.

Team-Unit Functioning

As demonstrated on October 7, when the college eleven fought a losing battle against the breaks and superior reserve strength, the Ram team-unit is beginning to function more smoothly. The football machine is shifting into mid-season form, and tonight comes to the most important point of the year.

Tonight the Rams start their fight to annex the 1939 conference championship. Of the three opponents which must be beaten before the laurels revert to San Francisco, Sacramento is the first. Later in the season, San Mateo and Modesto must be overcome.

In 1936, the Rams traveled to Sacramento only to lose the college banner and receive, in return, a 25 to 7 trouncing at the hands of the Panthers. Tonight, it is hoped that the score will be reversed . . . And unofficial sources maintain that the other grievance is likely to be avenged . . .

Panther Stars

The Panthers will field a veteran aggregation which has seen previous service in the grid wars. Starting ends for the invaders will be Tom Whitney and Jack Lee, expected to be pass-snagging demons; at tackles will be Olin Willard and. Art Spielman; Gregg Winter and co-captain Mike Windsor open guards; Ed Camara at center. In the backfield will be Arnold Bjork at quarter, Bob Libbee and Sam Lugorjo at halves, and Louie Colla at fullback.

Opposing the Panthers, and out for their first conference victory with that will obliterate the losses sustained in preliminary practice encounters—will be Lee Elsan's Rams in October form. The starting lineup will be the same as that which has opened the contests with Pasadena and the California Frosh.

Underdog Ram Shinkickers Clean Menlo, 3 to 2, In Last Minute Effort

Victory and a second place league standing was made possible last Saturday when Coach Tom Wilson's soccerites finished in a blaze of glory over a favored Menlo squad. Final score read 3 to 2.

Hero of the contest was a diminutive athlete named Bobby Cheung, freshman.

With only minutes left and the score tied up, 2 to 2, Cheung stole the ball away from one of Menlo's speedy forwards, dribbled down the field 25 yards and booted as clean a goal as ever went sailing through the uprights.

Louie Co-Hero

Probable co-hero of the tilt was Walter Louie. This lad had the honor of not only scoring the Ram's first goal, but of stopping cold the offensive tactics of Menlo's ace center forward, who had been in the Ram's goal area all during the first half.

With Don Sweeney as acting captain, the Rams played nip and tuck ball with the Menlo boys all through the game. Tied at the finish of the first quarter, 1 to 1, the Menlo team forged into a 2 to 1 lead just before the half time period ended.

Eventful Finale

The third period went scoreless as things looked rather dim for Wilson's boys. Then came the eventful finale. It was first Theodore, left wing, then Cheung, right wing on two quick goals and the job was completed.

Tough breaks and a nasty wind was blamed by Manager Hugh Ryan for the cause of the Ram's defeat at the hands of San Mateo October 4 at Beech Chalet.

"Not only did the peninsulans have the wind with them when they scored all their goals in the initial period, but we had at least 12 close-in shots which we miraculously missed," fretted Ryan.

The San Mateo boys had a 2 to 1 win as the result of their efforts.

Rams Shut Out 14-0 By California Frosh

California Memorial Stadium, October 7—This morning the Rams took their first whitewashing of the 1939 football season, which was administered by the California Freshmen to the tune of 14 to 0. Scoring a touchdown in the third period, and another touchdown and a safety in the final stanza, the Bear Cubs opened their season with a hard-won victory, sent the college gridders home with their third consecutive loss.

After seriously threatening in the first and second quarters, the Rams wilted visibly before the continuous pressure of the Californians, and folded completely late in the game as multitudinous fresh shock-troops poured into the contest from the Berkeley bench.

It was a marathon race. The Rams boasted an active roster of not more than thirty men, while the Cal Freshmen had fifty or over. The college offense, never spectacular, functioned briefly and collapsed under the incessant pounding of the Leidholts, the Picketts, the Jurkovichs, the Fergusons, and the Swishers—knights of the moleskin who are destined for the 1940 Cal Varsity.

First drive of the game was made by the Cal Frosh. After a preliminary exchange of kicks, the Bears punted to Nauman, who returned a pretty 19 yards to the Ram 39. As the headlinesman would have it, however, the play was called back, and the Rams penalized five yards for offside. The Bears, thus presented with a first down, kicked a couple of plays later, and from a more favorable position. This time Nauman ran it back to the 18.

That put the Rams right back in their own territory, and there they remained throughout most of the contest.

A first down was chalked up when Meyers hit tackle to the 28, but on the following scrimmage Cal's left tackle submarined Nauman for a five yard loss. Craigie punted, and Fran Gray slapped down the runback at midfield.

Mercilessly battering the center of the line, Cal moved from the 50 to a first down just 23 yards from the Ram goal. On the first play of the series, Pickett smacked over center to the 29. Trying at guard, he was rolled under for no gain. Frannie Gray smashed the Bear quarterback down at scrimmage on third down. Cal's last shot was a futile stab at the Ram right flank, which fell short on the 18 yard line.

Craigie kicked out of that hole, and two plays later a break presented itself in the form of a comic Bear punt that sailed only 12 yards and out of bounds on the Berkleyan 48, at which point the Rams took the offensive.

Piling up two successive first downs, the locals made their only real threat of the day. First, Al Nauman, with the forwards clearing aside blushirted debris, sliced off guard for five yards to the California 43. Then Nauman faded and hurled a strike to Craigie, the latter threading his way to a first and ten on the 33 yard line. Another crack at guard, this time off of a short reverse, gained only one, so Nauman faded again, throwing a shovel pass to Craigie complete on the 27. With third down and four, Nauman dropped back and shoveled to Craigie once more. Receiving on the Bear 25, Craigie broke loose and stumbled on to the 14, where he was hit down from the rear.

Aerials Flop

Only 14 yards from touchdown land, and Nauman crashed off tackle. He was hauled to the sod after a one-yard gain. Reaching into the old bag of tricks, the Rams came up next with a dazzler—a splnner developing into a lateral followed by a wide end sweep—which was a thing of beauty to see. It gained not an inch. Nauman's prayerful pass was smothered on third down. In came Leo "Legs" Leggett, who failed to connect on a last throw.

Just about everything in the book was attempted, but the college eleven found the going increasingly tough as time passed. They fumbled in bad spots, and as a result found themselves unable to get started, though their offensive, when clicking, was good enough.

The Bear Cubs tallied two minutes into the third period when Jurkovich grabbed a lateral from a falling teammate, and rambled 72 yards down the west sidelines to score. No less than three Rams had chances to down him, but the Berkeley halfback ignored them. "Lefty" Spieler, playing in the safety position, cut across on the Ram 10 yard line, hanged into the galloping Jurkovich, and fell on his face as the Californians strode into the end zone.

Eight Points More

The Cal Frosh tacked up another eight points before festivities were terminated. Six of them came when Pickett, Bear quarter, tossed a pass to end Ferguson, who took it out of the hands of Craigie in pay-dirt. Towards the last, Al Nauman, attempting a desperate pass from his own end zone, was cornered and hauled down for a safety.

WOMEN'S . . . Sports Parade
By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

WAA OFF TO FLYING START

They're off! There the WAAers!! On the 1939 semi-annual interclegiate playdays. As they leave the barrier we see Jaysee in the lead by a length—by two lengths—no, no! by three lengths. (Just to make it sound better.)

As they hit the first bend, tennis and archery are running neck and neck, leading by a few days that game old warrior, badminton, who holds its own but is closely followed by ice-skating, (it's new, but say! it's great!!), Hockey, a close favorite is bringing up the rear with—no! but it is—that hard-running, breath-taking old knock-'em-down-step-on-em chaser, basketball! Here they come and there they go! Whew—it's hot!

In case you're worried about the health of your correspondent, the gist of the matter is that interclegiate sports days hold forth from October until December when the WAAers' year culminates in the Tourney Week lonquet.

AND HERE'S THE FUN CALENDAR

The schedule for sports play days from the annals of the famed Lucille Jacks, (remember? she's the gal who "presidents" over the women athletes of the college) is as follows:

October 21.—representatives from the Northern California intercollegiate conference will convene at the Palace of Fine Arts for an Archery and Tennis playday. The tournament starts off at 9 o'clock in the morning with registration and follows through to a box luncheon at 12:15 o'clock. Four participants from each college are expected for Archery and six for Tennis. The locals will be identified by red and white ribbons, and those possessing triangles are urged to wear them.

Bow-twangers will shoot a Columbia round and racketeers will have singles and doubles competitions. Points will be awarded upon a basis of eliminations.

* * *

ELEVEN COLLEGES TO PARTICIPATE

Colleges expected to participate and to which invitations have been sent are Marin Junior College, Sacramento Junior College, Salinas Junior College, San Jose State College, Santa Rosa Junior College, Stockton Junior College, Placer Junior College, Yuba Junior College, Modesto Junior College, San Francisco State, and San Jose State.

Committees in charge of the affair are: general chairman, Annette Schunick; luncheon chairman, Irma Corbitt; hostess chairman, Emily De Young; invitation chairman, Jean Arnold; official, Thursa Scott; registration chairman, Gloria Miller.

November 4—a badminton tourney to be held at San Mateo. Those that participate have also been invited to ride with the San Mateans.

December 1—with the start of the basketball season Marin Junior College comes to San Francisco for another play day.

Student Demand Forces Formation of Water-Polo Team; Meets Planned

Water polo, one of the roughest of aquatic sports, will be played here soon, according to Russell Sweet, well known swimming mentor.

Because of numerous requests, Sweet has practically been forced to organize a swimming squad.

Already conceded positions on the team are Jack Byers, Don Rush, Mitchell Hoffmann, Bob Cohn, Norwood Forte and Bob Hansen.

The above mentioned have all had previous experience in water sports. However, Sweet is still on the lookout for other students who would like to make the team.

Seeks Olympic Matches

At present, Coach Sweet is seeking an available pool for the use of the squad. Having no definite schedule, he believes that he can get water polo matches with the Olympic Club in the near future.

The college had a water polo team last year and it enjoyed a rather successful season, having won a majority of its tussles.

"To keep swimming interest up would be for the good of the college," Sweet said as he saw hopes of a college pool soon after completion of the campus buildings at the Balboa Park site.

As there is no such thing as a Junior College water polo league, Sweet will be obliged to obtain free-lance meets with the various teams in the Bay district.

Ski Club Invites Women To Join; Nordon Jaunt Planned At Christmas

Cheered by news that ski training at Nordon, California, will be excellent this winter, 25 members of the Ram ski club renewed intensive plans by which they will enter the Pacific Coast Inter-Collegiate Ski league.

Announcement that the club is open for women interested in skiing was forthcoming from Alden Smith, faculty adviser of the club today. The women will be invited to participate in training and will be permitted to accompany the team on trips but will not engage in competition with the team, said Smith.

Students participating in the ski training are receiving credit for the primary work which consists of ice-skating once a week.

"Plans for a trip to Nordon during the Christmas vacation and other club business will be discussed Thursday, October 19, in Room 261 at Galileo, at 3:30 p. m. All students desiring to join the club or compete for positions on the, team will be welcome," Smith said.

College Tennis Matches Due Soon; Chances Seen For Meet With San Mateo

Tom Wilson's racket wielders will be holding their tournament soon for the championships of the college.

The matches are for men students only in both singles and doubles play.

Headlined for the future, if the conference ruling is favorable, is a match with San Mateo Junior college.

The . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

AFTER hearing Bing Crosby, that colossal crooner who convincingly chortles commendable chorus currently, and who literally packed 'em in at the fair last Sunday, we were inspired with the bright idea of reviewing something besides Hollywood's latest brain-children. With enthusiasm we stormed a near-by music store, well-known to musically minded students (no free advertising allowed, so we can't mention names) and demanded to hear some new records.

WHAT'S NEW?

While we're on the subject of Crosby we might as well say something about his record, 'What's New, which, if the expression were not so trite, we would say left us breathless. As usual, John Scott Trotter furnishes the background for Crosby's solo, and to our way of thinking, he certainly doesn't do the boo-boo-boo Bing any harm. Trotter's arrangement cannot be called anything less than smooth. But Crosby's solo is not only smooth—it's stupendous! What's New is the best record Crosby has made since Mood Indigo.

Our next victim was Tommy Dorsay, whom we've always liked. The first Dorsay record, It's a Hundred to One, left us completely cold. Edythe Wright, who usually warbles pleasantly, was corny, to say the least, and the orchestra was the poorest excuse for a jam session we've come across in a long time (and anyway, we don't like jam). Hopefully we listened to another new Dorsay record, and we liked it—Stop Kicking My Heart Around. Edythe Wright put her all into this new blues number. Although it isn't safe to prognosticate, we're willing to wager that this song will soon be a hit.

SHAW ENOUGH

Although we're confirmed "ickies" we do like Artie Shaw once in a while. His arrangement of Day In-Day Out, with Helen Forrest singing the vocal is worth-while listening to if the listener doesn't mind sweet-swing really swung! This Shaw arrangement is plenty good, and of course when the inimitable Artie swings out on his clarinet he really makes one's feet begin to move.

Glen Miller's new recording, Last Night, with Ray Eberle taking the solo, is no innovation in the Miller style or the Miller quality. There's a certain cadence in the Glen Miller orchestration that gets us, and for the past six months we've been trying to figure out just what combination of instruments Miller uses. (If someone can enlighten us on this we'd appreciate it immensely.)

Ray Eberle, who sounds so much like Tommy Dorsay's Jack Leonard, but isn't quite as good, is always pleasant to hear, but we can discover nothing unusually brilliant about his renditions. However, we still can't forget Crosby's What's New, and because of this it is difficult to praise too highly any other male vocalist!

Military Science Group Makes First Field Trip

First of a series of field trips sponsored by the college military science classes will be a firing demonstration by the 65th Coast Artillery regiment Tuesday, October 17, announced James S. Hughes, head of the military department.

The demonstration, featuring the very latest of modern anti-aircraft equipment, will include detection of planes by listening devices and gun drill with the new anti-aircraft guns just received by the regiment.

Army reconnaisance cars will pick up the students of the military classes at Powell street at one o'clock Tuesday, and transport them to Crissy field, scene of the operations.

The trip will be under the direction of Captain Hughes, with the cooperation of Major Philip Biehl, regular army instructor attached to the 250th Coast Artillery regiment of the California National Guard.

MAGIC

See it at
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. Hastings
591 Market St. Phone SUtter 4734

Forensics

Debaters Discuss "Ham and Eggs" Question Tonight

Four college debaters will argue the Ham and Eggs issue before the Fraternity club tonight at the Palace hotel. Howard Latcher and David Spencer will debate the affirmative against the negative team of Isaac Abrahams and Robert Cohn. Dean Edwin C. Browne arranged the appearance.

Five dollars was donated to the debating fund by the Loyal Order of the Moose before whom six debaters argued the Exposition continuance question on October 1. Debate Coach Lloyd Luckmann is in receipt of a letter from the Moose club congratulating and thanking the college debaters for a "splendid" program.

Meeting with the University of California freshman team has been refused because the question was deemed not debatable. Should the California team suggest another question then a debate may be possible, according to Luckmann.

This semester it is Luckmann's aim to have fewer competitive debates and to emphasize practise in speaking. This will be followed with the idea of developing a good debating team for next semester. There are twelve debaters in the class at the present time.

Morticians Organize

Newest innovation in college extra-curricular activities is the formation of an Embalmers club for would-be morticians.

According to Dean Edwin C. Browne, the motto of the group is "Sooner or later, we'll get you."

Members of the club can be identified by their stately walk and somber appearance. All students desirous of serving as models or as they are more commonly called "Corpus Delicious" may see the Dean for further information.

Rifle Team First String To Be Announced Next Week; To Receive Blocks

Ram rifle team captain, Charles North, is expected to announce first team members of the Reds next week, according to team notices.

A plan whereby the highest scorers on the squad would receive minor sport awards at the end of the spring semester was submitted to the Executive Council Thursday by North.

After several semesters of constant controversy over plans to incite the rifle as a minor sport in the curriculum, council members and faculty decided that inasmuch as the University of California and other colleges maintain an award system for their rifle teams, the Ram gunmen should also be included.

"Three teams, including a women's team will enter the San Francisco Rifle Association league under the banner of the Rams," said North. "We are anticipating a full year of active shooting. Now that awards are to be given to outstanding rifleers, competition among members will be extremely keen. The addition of a women's team will add to the importance of the rifle sport in the college," North concluded.

League schedules for the three teams will get under way the last week of October.

College Lost and Found Departments Listed Below

For the information of all students there is listed below the location of the college lost and found departments.

At the Powell Street building, the office of Thomas O'Neill, faculty member in charge of the building. The office is located at the head of the stairs leading from the lobby to the main floor.

At Galileo, the college office is located in Room 261 under the charge of Mary Perry of the administrative staff.

STANLEY'S
LUNCHES DINNERS
FOUNTAIN SERVICE
Corner Steiner and Sutter
Near Girls High

Revenge

By ELEANOR JOHNSON

Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents a series of interesting attempts at literature by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandys, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. Short stories will be signed, autobiographies will be published anonymously.

The dark heavy shadows caressing the deserted pier and nearby hungry lapping waves seemed to expel a foreboding omen into the atmosphere. Across the bay stretched the gigantic bridge, a glittering aura of synthetic beauty; but here, in this secluded spot, those twinkling lights seemed to accentuate the nervousness of a small figure barely discernible in the night.

Huddled in a shivering state of anxiety, Wanda despondently asked herself for the hundredth time why the reassuring put-put of the launch could not be heard. The gang couldn't have left over an hour ago but it seemed an eternity. If only she knew their plans and where they had gone, but she was a girl and naturally not to be trusted, even by Jimmie.

She remembered how she had begged Jimmie that afternoon to quit the gang and go straight. Jim was really a nice kid—a sweet kid—but he had been kicked around a lot during his nineteen years and last year when his kid brother had been killed by a hit-run driver something seemed to snap in his brain leaving him bitter and relentless. Of course, everyone knew it had been an accident, but the state couldn't risk prosecuting a "political boss" even if he did run over a kid and leave him lying in the street bloody and mutilated.

Jim did intend to leave the gang forever though. Wanda had faith in him and he had promised her this was his last night involved in these mysterious excursions. He would get a job somewhere and they would be married. The bridge seemed to blur and swim optically as Wanda scanned the black waters for a small light.

Hours later Wanda jerked up apprehensively as she sensed the sound of a boat. Half-conscious from anxiety and cold she thought her ears were playing tricks on her. Oh, fickle fate, please be generous—please do not fool my straining ears and do let it be the launch I seem to discern in the inky blackness and not my imagination mulled into madness. As these thoughts raced through her mind she groped forward. The mumbling of rough voices mingled with the grating of the boat against the dock seemed to Wanda the sweetest music she had ever heard.

Crying convulsively in Jim's arms, Wanda was trying to adjust herself to the realization that Jim was safe. "You shouldn't have waited for me here in the cold, honey." But Jim's voice held a strange note. It was an old tired voice which seemed to echo utter defeat and yet, somehow, courageous conviction. "I'm fed up, Wanda, through with trying to juggle my life as though we were all a bunch of puppets—and to her inquisitive startled glance—"Tim killed a man tonight—it was awful—and we're all as guilty as hell." He stood silent a moment, "It took me a long time to wake up, but I'm going down to police headquarters tomorrow and give them an earful. I might be in a long time, Wanda, but it's right, see?"

The girl's eyes were shining with admiration and affection as she took the boy's arm and their backs seemed a little straighter as they walked into the blackness.

Unnoticed by the engrossed pair, the constituents of the gang, Pedro, Tim and Bill had quietly been standing by. "Why the dirty yellow little brat—he'll never talk to no dick when I get through with him." Tim, fingering a pistol, and followed by Pedro and Bill hurried into the darkness after the pair who were tasting the happiness of new found ideals.

NYA Work Increased; Time Sheets Urged To Be Kept In Proper Order

Two hundred twenty students are being helped through the college this semester by the National Youth administration according to E. H. Redford, NYA director.

"This is an increase of 30 students over last year," said Redford.

Students are paid at the rate of 40 cents per hour. Ordinarily they will make about twelve dollars per month, which is considered sufficient for ordinary school needs.

"All NYA students are reminded that the new time sheets are to be kept up from day to day and that entries are to be made to the exact minute," Redford warned.

Low Sophomores To Meet After Rally This Afternoon

A meeting, to be held by the Low Sophomore class after the rally today, was announced by Art Pomares, class president.

"The purpose of the meeting is to form committees for the Low Soph dinner-dance and to decide where it is to be held," Pomares said. "It is important that all low sophomores attend as this is an important matter and must be decided immediately."

Grid Classic Date Changed; Barn Dance To Remain Same

Although the date for the San Mateo game has been changed to Saturday, October 28, the AMS Halloween dance is still to be held on Friday, October 27 at the Devonshire Country club, Joseph Amori, Associated Men Students adviser, announced.

"The theme will be a barn dance and everyone is expected to appear in an appropriate costume," Amori continued, "refreshments will be served consisting of nuts, cider, popcorn, and apples."

Orchestras are being auditioned now and one will be picked by Lee Scarlett, AMS president, Les Smith, Jack Carroll, and Howard Markuse.

"The dance will begin at 9:00 p. m. and end at 12:00 p.m.," Amori said, "admission will be one student card per couple."

Judicial Committee

(Continued from page 1)

Tony Manov, Elmer Hubacher, Muriel Nolan, and Dorothy Trood, members of the committee and Williams, for disciplinary action and it is expected that the decision will warn all students that dishonesty will not be tolerated.

Williams has also been appointed chairman of the investigating committee which will make a survey of the methods used by other colleges to combat cheating and enforce the honor code.

Future Policemen Are Progressing In Boxing Class

Boxing instruction continues on two fronts as coaches Joe Amori and Jack Gaddy tutor their respective charges in the manly art.

According to Amori, his charges, all future police officers, are progressing very slowly, but surely, toward proficiency in the sport. A similar report comes from Gaddy, who has issued gloves to his students for the purpose of getting more practice at home.

All boxers are pointing to the Men's club fights, scheduled for "sometime in November" by Amori. Members of both classes are trying to get in shape for these matches, as can be seen in their workouts.

"By the time the fights roll around, my boys will be ready," Amori claims. They seem to realize that three rounds are longer than they seem from a stop watch."

Art Classes Produce Huge Colored Map of Colombia For Display At Fair

Instructor Richard Allman's art class made a contribution to the World's Fair Latin American program today.

On exhibition in the Colombia building at the exposition will be among many features, a huge colored map of Colombia, which we created by the cooperative work of art students August Day, Elmer Freeman, Muriel Grennelle, Marion MacKillop, Hazel Bray, and Justin Matsuda.

With the purpose of holding a painting expedition as well as a picnic, the Balboa campus will be visited Sunday by the Alpha Delta Epsilon, college art society.

Newly elected officers of the society are Marion MacKillop, president; Elmer Freeman, corresponding secretary; and Sue Williams, secretary.

Curriculum

New Machine For Business Dept; Civil Service Courses Listed

Suggested curricula for those students desiring to enter civil service are the following: Civil service accounting, civil service secretarial, and civil service machine calculation. Students will gain a fundamental knowledge concerning our various governmental agencies, the backgrounds and principal aims, functions, and ideals which everyone in such service should possess. Its purpose further will be to build up in the individual a profound and lasting respect for the government service and break down false impressions and prejudices which have existed over the years. This object will be attained in part by bringing in men actually employed in the field to discuss the problems and opportunities ahead.

Another important phase of each program will be to send selected students for part-time work during the last six months of study into various governmental departments. The students will thus have an opportunity to get practical experience and observe first hand the actual workings of public service agencies.

Students interested in the civil service accounting curriculum should take the following courses, omitting the courses required toward graduation: Business 50a-50b, accounting, business 51a-51b, business mathematics, business 52a-52b, cost accounting, business 54, municipal accounting, business 60-61-62, beginning, intermediate and advanced typing, business 67a, machine calculation, business 70, business English, business 71, business speech, business 72, business correspondence, business 74, vocabulary and spelling, business 95, applied economics, civil service 51, state government, civil service 52, local government, civil service 53, American institutions, civil service 54, prinicples of civil service, and civil service 60, office practice.

The civil service secretarial program requires the following subjects: Business 55a-55b, stenography, business 56a-56b, dictation and transcription, business 60-61, beginning and intermediate typing, business 67a, machine calculation, business 70, business English, business 71, business speech, business 72, business correspondence, business 74, vocabulary and spelling, business 78, personality in business, and civil service 51, state government, civil service 52, local government, civil service 53, American institutions, civil service 54, principles of civil service, and cvil service 60, office practice.

Another popular semi-professional curriculum offered by the college is that of commercial art and advertising, for which students must prepare themselves by taking the following courses: Art 1a-1b, history of art, art 2a-2b, form, art 3a-3b, form and color, art 8a-8b, perspective, art 18a-18b, figure sketching art 19a-19b, appreciation of art, act 22a-22b, landscape painting in oil or water color, art 51a-51b, commercial art, business 83, advertising copy, English 11a-11b, training in English fundamentals.

To the women students of the college, especially, is offered a semi-professional course in costume design and construction. The program consists of the following subjects: Art 1a-1b, history of art, art 2a-2b, form, art 8a-8b, perspective, art 18a-18b, figure sketching art 51a-51b, commercial art, home economics 50a-50b, everyday problems in clothing selection and construction, home economics 51a-51b, history of costume and personal adornment, home economics 51c-51d, national costume, home economics 52a-52b, interior decoration, social science 11a-11b, contemporary problems, and English 10a-10b, freshman reading and composition.

Welcomed last week by the college's business division was a new $200 multigraph machine.

Capable of producing "unlimited copies," the machine has been put to use in the office machines department located in room 102, at Girls High school it was learned from F. Grant Marsh, head of the college business branch.

A relative new type of machine, the multigraph although having a complex appearance, is actually not difficult at all to manipulate Marsh explained.

Students are already using the multigraph to the best of advantage as was observed at the machines department two days after its arrival.

The addition of the new multigraph has now brought the total different types of machines used at Girls High up to seven.

The others include typewriters, calculating machines, dictaphones, shaver machines, ditto and mimeographs.

As each student is allowed to work all the various machines at the Scott and Geary street building, it has been noted that the policy of the business department has been to own as many kinds of equipment as is currently being used in downtown business.

"We try our best to keep up to date," Marsh said.

Operation of the multigraph includes a few simple adjustments, type is quickly set on cylindrical drums, and finally sheets of paper are automatically fed through the machine in which a typewriter ribbon prints as the paper rollers move sheets into one complete stack.

CLUB SCHEDULE

NAME	Type of Meeting	TIME	PLACE
Alpha Delta Epsilon	Painting	Oct. 15, 9:00 a.m.	Balboa Park
Alpha Gamma Sigma	Business	Oct. 19, 2:00 p.m.	Galileo, Room 150
Alpha Phi Omega	No Plans
Army-Navy	Initiation		Indefinite
Astronomy	Business	Oct. 16, 7:00	Galileo
Beta Phi	Business		Indefinite
Block S.F.	Business	Oct. 31—7:30 p.m.	Rm. 458—Galileo
Beta Tau	Initiation	Oct. 13	Indefinite
Chinese	No Plans
Forestry	No Plans
Forum	No Plans
French	No Plans
George Washington	No Plans
Home Econ. Ass'n.	No Plans
Hotel-Restaurant		Oct. 18, 7:30	Palace Hotel
Iota Chi	Business	Oct. 17—8 p.m.	Indefinite
Japanese	No Plans
Lambda Chi	No Plans
Music	Business	Oct. 13, 8:00	See Bulletin Board
Newman	Speaker	Oct. 16—8:00 p.m.	St. Mary's Cathedral
Omicron Phi Pi	Initiation	Oct. 23, 7:30	Indefinite
Peace Society	No Plans
Phi Beta Rho	No Plans
Phys. Ed. Majors	Barbecue, 35c	Oct. 17, 5:00 p.m.	Sigmund Stern Grove, Car 17
Pi Mu Gamma		Oct. 26, 7:30	450 Sutter
Pick and Hammer	No Plans
Rifle and Pistol	No Plans
Tarbuth	Business	Oct. 19—7:45 p.m.	300 Page Street
Tri Epsilon	Initiation	Oct. 12
Women's Service Society	Social	Indefinite	Indefinite

Ram's Horn

(Continued from page 2)

on an honor system basis. I like the idea because it generally works much better than with strict supervision.

The individual who cheats with an honor system feels much worse about it inside, but the student who cheats under supervision and does not get caught, has the satisfaction of having put something over on the teacher.

Glad in my heart I went to my first exam. The teacher wrote it on the board and then asked if we had understood all the questions. As she left the room there was an embarrassed little laugh from the students, and then we went on silently to do our work. I doubt very much that any one even thought of cheating while our teacher quite confidently had left us alone for a few minutes.

The next day, however, I took another test, and before we started the teacher pulled an "important-looking document" out of his binder and read it to us. It said something to the effect that we should be watched and that anyone caught cheating should be reported to Dean Browne, and that the Judicial committee would then take the offender in hand.

I could not help laughing to myself. It sort of made the impression that the Judicial Committee we trying to stir up business. I know that the members are too intelligent to merely try to do that, but sending these notes definitely does not solve the problem. This is the only criticism I know, but I don't see how this problem can be solved at all.

The moment it is felt necessary that we need be watched, it ceases to be an honor system.

In short these were the strangest examinations I ever took. They were supposed to work on the honor system, but they were a far cry from that method.

Puck.

New Buffet Service On Mezzanine Floor 500 Sutter

The Guardsman
OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE
Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1939 No. 7

Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940

Radio Classes

Program Chief For NBC Speaks This Afternoon

Open to all interested students of the college will be a special address to be given today to the radio broadcasting and script-writing classes of the college by Glenn R. Dolberg, local program director for the National Broadcasting Company, announced Marie Weller, speech instructor in charge of the classes.

Dolberg will speak at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the American Institute of Banking rooms at 58 Sutter Street. His subject will be the workings of radio broadcasting and the behind-the-scenes preparations that are necessary before a program goes on the air.

NBC Chief

Glenn R. Dolberg

Dolberg, who became program manager for the San Francisco offices of the National Broadcasting Company in the early part of 1938, was formerly station manager of KEX in Portland, and subsequently of KHJ in Los Angeles. His present duties include the preparation of all program schedules for local NBC stations, and preparation of such Red and Blue network programs as originate in San Francisco studios.

Twenty-one students are now receiving instruction in the theories

(Continued on page 4, column 2)

No School Next Wednesday; Last Chance to See Golden Gate Exposition Near

College officials today released the information that next Wednesday, October 25, will be an official school holiday.

This surprising news came as a direct result of the closing of the Golden Gate International Exposition on October 29.

The city Board of Education has dismissed all schools for the day for the express purpose of giving the students of San Francisco an opportunity to attend the Fair for one last look at its beautiful exhibits.

J. C. Council

Administrator Of State NYA To Give Address

Meeting for the first time this semester, the Junior College Council will convene Monday evening, October 30, announced Claude Shull, president of the group.

Burns Featured

Featured at the meeting will be Robert Wayne Burns, recently appointed NYA Administrator for the state of California. Burns will speak on the "Problems of Youth".

President Archibald J. Cloud will also speak to the group. His subject will be "The Present Problems Facing the Junior College."

Shull will preside at the meeting, which will be held at the central YMCA, located at 220 Golden Gate Avenue.

Music will be provided by one of the college glee clubs.

All parents of college students, faculty members, and friends of the college are invited to attend.

Coordinating Body

The Council has as its purpose the getting together of friends of this institution so that any problems confronting the college may be discussed and perhaps remedied. In this respect, the Junior College Council is to a certain degree similar to the regular Parent-Teachers Associations connected with elementary, junior and senior high schools.

Fashion Show Sponsoring Approved By Prominent Livingston Bros. Worker

Word has been received from Frances Shoup, fashion commentator of Livingston Brothers, that she will be happy again to sponsor a fashion show for the women of the college, announced Muriel Nolan, AWS president.

"This tea is in honor of the graduating women of senior high and private schools, but we also want to see as many of the women of the college attending this tea. It is an excellent way in which to meet your school friends and instructors," Miss Nolan said.

Margaret Meader, Marion MacKillip, Gloria Miller, AWS officers, will be assisted in receiving by the following women: Dorothy Trood, Muriel Grenelle, Helen Hansen, Helen Crlenkovich, Lorraine Caleagno, Florence Hansen, Loraine Johnsen, Anna Held, Claire Adams, Lucille Scammon, Helena Hovgaard, Lillian Ryan, Joy Anna Mack, Lucille Jacke, Barbara Smith, Mary Miller, Marion Falconer, Lois McClure, Tristan Smith, Adele Kuhn, Lyba Mackie, Jeanne Kelly, Peggy Kamper, Annette Sehunick, Julie Bradshaw, Shirley White, Grace Tatti, Camille Condrotte, Vera Herndon, Jean Chesley, Jo Crull, Margaret Jack, Dorothy Mills, Trufonda Bjornson, Helene Huxel, Blossom Young, Kathryn Bowman, Janis Noble, Jean Steward, Mildred Grey, Vivian Stand, and June Manning.

A Mouthful - No More, No Less

Surrounded by an admiring group of fans, Elmer Hubacher, Associated Student's prexy last week received a birthday cake composed of 80 per cent tin, 19 per cent plaster of paris, and one per cent cake. Pictured from left to right are Hubacher, Dorothy Trood, Ray Berns, Lee Scarlett, Mal Jacobs, and Hal Hoffman.

Cheer-Fest

Rally Scheduled For Thursday At Galileo 2:30

Ballyhooing the game with the Ram's next gridiron foe, San Mateo, a rally will be held in the Galileo auditorium at 2:30 p.m. next Thursday afternoon, announced Ray Berns, college yell-king.

An entirely new program featuring a well-known radio personality will be set forth for the approval of the students.

It is expected that the program will include, in addition, a comedy act, a popular soloist, a pianist, and possibly an exhibition of Kendo, Japanese fencing.

Mimeographed sheets containing the entire program will be distributed the day of the rally.

Two Auto Caravans

The rally committee has been busy arranging for two auto caravans to San Mateo. The first, which will join in a San Mateo parade and rally at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, October 27, will be under the direction of Lee Scarlett, AMS prexy, while Berns will be in charge of the second caravan which will descend on San Mateo in the neighborhood of 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, October 28.

Immediately after the college lads and lassies have taken part in the Friday night festivities, they are expected to adjourn to the Devonshire Country Club for the semi-annual AMS Barn dance.

The Saturday afternoon group will, of course, head for the game.

Asked for a comment on last week's activities, Berns said, "the co-operation and spirit at last week's rally and game was swell. It looks like we're finally waking up. Let's keep up the good work and root our team on to a championship."

Schmale, Berns Plan Trip

Jack Schmale, college press agent, revealed that he has been working with Berns on a proposed excursion to Modesto for the Pirate game on November 17.

The plans are as yet incomplete, and it is not yet decided whether or not the locals will go by train or bus. College opinion, however, seems to sway toward a train excursion such as was had last year to Sacramento.

The rally will close at 3:10. Classes following will be shortened to 35 minutes, with a five minute passing period between classes, J. Paul Mohr, registrar, announced.

'Rams, Let's Have a Debate (P.S.)—You Submit the Question'—California

Varsity debaters from the University of California have "proposed," a debate with the college team for Wednesday, November 1, at 7:30 p.m.

College debaters have been asked to submit a question for discussion, and to appear for dinner in the California debate office at 6 p.m. Debate coach Lloyd D. Luckmann said that college debaters would probably propose the question next week.

Freshman debaters at the University of California recently challenged college debaters to an informal, nondecisional debate on the question, Resolved, That the working class should support the government in case of war.

This question was turned down by the college team because debaters held it non-debatable. As yet the Freshman debaters have not answered the college's refusal.

Luckmann returned to his alma mater, the University of San Francisco, and debated on an alumni team against the San Francisco varsity in the season's opener last night in the University's little theater.

Neutrality was the subject of the debate and the alumni team upheld the affirmative with Jack O'Dea, '32 and Dick O'Connor, '33 completing the alumni team. The University of San Francisco formerly topped the Coast in intercollegiate debating.

Dance . . . . It's Haunted

Ghosts to Rule AMS Terpsichorean Fest on Devonshire Cliffs Friday

Weird decorations will turn the Devonshire Country Club, high atop San Carlos hills, into a haunted castle next Friday for the annual AMS Halloween dance, according to Lee Scarlett, AMS president.

"Although the orchestra for the affair has already been chosen it is being kept as a surprise until the dance," Scarlett said.

The dance is to be a costume affair and cowboy jeans and loud shirts will prevail.

"A date bureau has been set up by the cooperative council for those who are unable to get their own dates," Scarlett continued.

All women who wish dates should see either Muriel Nolan or Dorothy Trood. Men should see Lee Scarlett or Ray Berns. This should be done before Wednesday.

"The dance will begin at 9 p.m. and admission will be one student card per couple," Scarlett said.

Club Advisory Board Discusses Idea of Acting As Welfare Council; No Decision as Yet Reached

Plans for adding to the function of the Club Advisory Board by using it as a student welfare group in addition to its other duties were discussed at the board meeting yesterday, but no final decision on the matter was forthcoming.

The change which would necessitate an amendment to the Associated Students' constitution, specifying that the club group would take charge of affairs vital to the students.

The board was selected for this service because it was felt that the group reaches a greater majority of students than any other organization within the college.

At the meeting held yesterday, President A. J. Cloud addressed the group. Al Williams, chairman of the Judicial Committee also spoke. Williams explained to organization members the reason of inaugurating a welfare body and outlined the duties the job would entail.

Approval of the idea would be the first step to be taken before the idea becomes a reality. Other formalities will be the passage by the student Executive Council, followed by an amendment to the Associated Student's constitution.

On Tuesday, October 24 at 2:30 p.m. Jack H. Lund, head of the Student Welfare Board at the University of California will speak before the Executive Council to explain the success of the venture at U.C., and to give students of this institution an idea of how the welfare group should act.

It Sounds Fishy To Us, But . . .

Believe it or not, this is a true fish story. It all began one day last week when one of Joseph Williams' geography classes was discussing fish. Bill Hoffman, college golfer and wise cracker extraordinary was extolling to the class at large his ability as an Izaak Walton protege. Naturally, being sceptical of fish stories (aren't we all?) Williams scoffed at poor Bill.

Lo and behold, a few days later a neatly wrapped, rather odorous bundle on Williams desk. Being a cagey individual, Professor Williams refused to touch the parcel while a Guardsman reporter and photographer were in the vicinity.

Succumbing finally to his curiosity he opened the package to find a great big, beautiful sea bass, coyly staring him in the face, a gift from angler Hoffmann.

Guest Speaker

Ex-U. C. Welfare Council Chairman Will Address Executive Council

Next week's regular meeting time for the college executive council will be devoted to a special address by Jack H. Lund, former chairman of the University of California Welfare Council, announced Associated Students President Elmer Hubacher.

The purpose of the address as explained by Hubacher is to give to the executive council and interested students a first-hand report of the duties and functions of a welfare council, the formation of which has been suggested for the college.

Lund is expected to give an outline of the various duties that a welfare council could be expected to undertake. If it is then felt that a council or committee of this type could be of material advantage to the college, steps will be taken for its formation.

Already suggested as a possible group to be incorporated as a special welfare council is the Club Advisory Board, considered to be a representative body of the college's students. To investigate the possibilities of employing this group should a council be formed, Harold Hoffman, president of the Club Advisory Board was appointed a committee of one with instructions to report back his findings in the matter to the executive council. As of the last meeting of the council, Hoffman's report was not yet forthcoming, but will be completed for presentation by the council's next regular meeting.

This next business meeting will be held on Thursday of next week at the usual time and place, 2:30 p.m. in room 261 at Galileo High School.

San Mateo Invitation

From the president of the Asociated Students of the San Mateo Junior College a letter was received and read at the meeting of the executive council, inviting all students of the college to pre-game festivities at the campus site of the San Mateo college on the evening of Friday, October 27, at 7:30 p.m., the evening being that directly preceding the San Mateo-San Francisco game.

Full participation will be largely impossible because of the confliction of dates, October 27 being the evening of the Associated Men Students' dance at the Devonshire Country Club. However, a good-will gesture was deemed advisable, and Hubacher appointed Lee Scarlett, president of the AMS, as a committee of one to investigate the possibility of at least partial participation before the dance, probably in the form of a number of entries in the car-parade proposed by the letter.

State Rally Letter

Quoted below is a letter from J. Robert Sweeney, president of the Associated Students of San Francisco State College, which was received by the executive council last week:

October 9th, 1939

Dear Student Body President:

On behalf of the San Francisco State College Student Body, I invite the San Francisco Junior College to a big celebration to be held on Wednesday afternoon, November 1st at the site of our new campus at Lake Merced.

Afternoon classes here at the College will be excused for the occasion, and a big joint rally for the football game on Friday night between the two colleges is planned.

The President of your Associated Men Students has already been contacted and if you will get in touch with him he can tell you what has been planned. Would appreciate it if you would contact me as soon as possible and give your views on the matter.

The Associated Student Body is looking foward to meeting the J. C. Student Body on November 1st.

Sincerely,

Bob Sweeney.

To meet with a similar group from State, a committee composed of Hubacher, Bill Frantz, Lee Scarlett, and Ray Berns was appointed. The joint committee will meet within the next few days to make arrangements for participation.

WAA WILL HOLD INITIAL INTERSECTIONAL PLAY DAY; OFFICIALS CHOOSEN

Women athletes of the college will set the pace for intercollegiate play days tomorrow at 9:15 o'clock at the Palace of Fine Arts when approximately ten Northern California junior colleges will compete in archery and tennis tournaments.

The local college, first to hold a play day in the current year, will inaugurate the first intersectional playday in its history, with the exception of the tourney held on Treasure Island early last spring.

WAA Leaders To Officiate

From eight to ten tennis courts will be in use with an additional two for archery. Former WAA members and leaders will assist the present members and physical education majors in officiating. Included in the list will be Dorothy Canavan, Rema Corbett Margaret Wormell, Marion Dickie, Jean Kelly, Patricia McKenna, and Ann Heash.

The expected line-up for tennis singles and doubles competition as announced by Bertha Keller, association adviser, at the time The Guardsman went to press, will be Lucille Jacke, and Estelle Meridian, singles; Louise Hinterman, and Rosamund Paterson and Helen Godman and Astrid Rogenes, doubles.

Archery Match Scheduled

Archers will shoot a Junior Columbia Match, consisting of 24 arrows at 40 yards, 24 arrows at 30 yards, and 24 arrows at 20 yards. Participating for the locals will be Thursa Scott, Priscilla Finley, Dorothy Nelson, and Alma Koopman.

College officials and hostesses will wear distinguishing ribbons of the traditional college—red and white colors. Box lunches, at 25 cents, will be served in picnic style.

According to Miss Keller, the faculty members from the various colleges will also join the playday activities.

40 Potential Pilots Chosen For Aeronautics Course; To Get College Credit

Preliminary selection of forty students for the new aeronautics course has been made by Captain George Richards, college director of civilian pilot training.

"Ground school classes will be arranged next week, and will be timed for the convenience of the majority of the students. Regular college credit will be given for the course, however we are not sure of the exact number of units as yet," Captain Richards said.

Although only 30 students can be trained, 40 have been selected because it is felt that at least ten will be eliminated either by the flight physical examination or by the ground-school work. Final selections will be made within a week.

All students selected are requested to report to Captain Richards tomorrow, Saturday, October 21 at 9 a.m. in Room 151 at Galileo for an important meeting. It is urgent that everyone attend.

A list of the students selected will be posted today in the Registrar's office, Room 262 at Galileo, and in the office at Powell Street.

Data . . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
AMS Barn Dance	Devonshire	October 27
Game — Rams vs. San Mateo	San Mateo	October 28
Ram — State Rally	Lake Merced	November 1
Game — Rams vs. S. F. State	Seals Stadium	November 3
S. F. State Dance	State Gym	November 3
Game—Rams vs. Los Angeles	Seals Stadium	November 10

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1939 No. 9

BILL FRANTZ ..... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser ..... Business Adviser
Joan Nourse ..... Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross ..... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ..... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat ..... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli ..... Women's Editor
Edmund Wurtzel ..... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop ..... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, John Hansen, George Jensen, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Radical Propaganda Now Flooding Nation Must Be Combatted With Intelligence; Common Sense Needed In Coping With Problem

PROPAGANDA has always been a time-worn subject, discussed and re-discussed especially during the past few weeks in the metropolitan newspapers throughout the nation.

It has more recently tended to confine itself only with propaganda for or against war.

There is however another type of propaganda that has momentarily been forgotten. It is the type that deals with radical or irrational attempts to change the present existing form of government.

Propaganda In College

College students are perhaps to be flattered, for it is within the universities and colleges of the country that the most active and violent battles of propaganda are being waged. Of course upon closer examination it is found that the reason for this is that college students are considered just old enough to comprehend the wild ideas able to see them through the mature eyes of experience.

It is the firm opinion of many that these groups, imbued with a desire to change a democracy into some other form of government, be expelled from the nation on the grounds that if they don't like the way it is being run, they can leave. Humorously enough these groups when assailed by intelligent-thinking citizens are the first to demand the rights of a democratic people and object that their freedom of speech is being curtailed.

Changes Way of Thinking

The object of propaganda is to influence the individual to a way of thinking different from that which he is normally accustomed. It is to a certain extent successful because persons who are under its influence do not stop to think but go blindly ahead believing in something that is not at all practical or even remotely possible. Unfortunately many of us are prone to dash headlong into things without first asking a few questions to ascertain the validity of the subject under discussion.

Intelligence Required

The easiest way to combat the subversive propaganda that seeks to destroy rather than build is to delve into its inner workings by asking a few simple questions such as "What seems to be wrong with our present government? Has this theory you want tested ever been tried and proven successful in any other country?"

The most deadly enemy of propaganda is intelligence. Weak, idealistic or utopian theories cannot possibly stand up under intelligent examination. Therefore the simplest and still the most powerful way of proving the incorrectness of this revolutionary type of propaganda is education, intelligence, and most of all good common sense.

Leonard Gross.

Presidential Notes

By Elmer Hubacher

IN REPLY to the letter in last week's Guardsman, we wish to make this fact plain to everyone; the judicial committee is an organization composed of students whose primary duty is to try disciplinary cases pertaining to students. It is not a group which is trying "to drum up business," but a committee whose function is similar to that of a student court.

Because of the judicial committee's not wanting to act as an investigating body, there has been a subsidiary committee appointed composed of five members of the faculty. It will be the duty of this body to investigate ways and means of bringing cases before the judicial committee.

It might be appropriate at this time to compliment Dorothy Trood, and her social committee for the fine dances we have had this semester. Also, we would like to compliment Ray Berns and his rally committee for the smooth rally they put on for the student body last Friday.

We think that the college spirit around here is improving. However, we have a long way to go. Our team will go through the rest of the conference games just as it did last Friday night if we, the students, back it up as we did then. Let's keep this in mind. We still have two more conference games to play.

Several students have brought up the idea of having a swimming party for the entire student body to be held at one of the local plunges. What do you think?

...in TROOD ings

By Dot

LAST week, Elmer Hubacher and Art McLain were talking about cars in general, when Elmer brought up the fact that his little model had excellent pick-up power. Fast thinking Art spoke up and said, "You bet it has a PICK-UP power." We all thought it was funny, and if you don't get it, just come around and we'll be glad to explain.

Everyone around school has been noticing Alice Kahn's shoes. No, they're not extra big (5), but they're always so nice and clean.

ALICE OBLIGES

Well, we were so envious that our courage came a-runnin' and we went and asked Alice to tell us all about it. She's awfully nice and seemed to be delighted to give us her recipe. Get a hard brush and brush the dust off; then buy a ten-cent can of talcum powder at the Red Front Gift Shoppe and sprinkle it over the shoes. (Well, isn't that ducky, you say you just spilled the powder all over your navy blue skirt?) It isn't time to stop yet, for the next job is to take a clean cloth and pat the powder over the shoes. To make the soles white, use any liquid cleaning fluid, and presto! Don't those shoes look wonderful.

Why did that green suit attract so many women in Union Square last week?

Speaking of hats (we just can't help it) did you all notice the one (?????) Florence Hansen was wearing at the High Freshman Dance? It really was a corker!!! And Muriel Nolan's golden harvest at wrist and neck, really devastating. Elmer Hubacher blushing over the fact that the orchestra played Happy Birthday . . . Adele Kuhn bringing out her luscious blonde beauty in that gorgeous new black velvet. Simply stunning Adele!

Lee Scarlett tells us the only place you can take a blanket and a young lady without being questioned about it, is to a football game. Is that absolutely true, Lee????

HERE IT IS, JEAN

Jean Collins wanted to know what one had to do to get her name in this column and we told her that she was too nice to keep out. Jean says that she has awfully nice brown eyes, but we also think that she is a smart lady of fashions and is always right up to the minute in both college and date clothes. A huge smile always greets her friends because Jean has that regular tooth paste ad smile.

Why this sudden craze with some of the gals to go around wearing braids? It's tantalizing to some of the fellows who would love to give a yank to hear these misses let out dainty little squeaks, and then would pull again to hear something even worse than a mere peep. Ah, it's to bad more of the gals don't wear braids; it's really quite an innovation.

But braids aren't as bad as some of the latest hair-do's sponsored by some of the well-meaning hair stylists.

Why not get started on an original costume for the AMS Barn Dance October 27. Something that's really different. The fellows usually wear jeans and some outlandish shirt and the gal wears a cotton dress. There are just loads of different ideas for a barn dance costume.

Old Home Week . . . Just like old times when Florence Murphy came visiting this week, and looking quite snappy in a brown outfit.

The . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

AT THE "Mountain College" the College Players of the University of San Francisco and the San Francisco College for Women, recently gave a splendid performance of the Pulitzer Prize"-winning play, Our Town. Because the narrator of the play did such an excellent bit of acting, there was no need of any scenery. For that matter, all of the action turned in such sincere performances that the audience was able to rely on its imagination entirely.

In the third and last act, however, the actors failed to match their achievements in the preceding scenes. The last act was a morbid one, which took place in a graveyard, from which emanated the thoughts of the dead who were buried there.

Our Town gives a cross-section of American life as it was in the early part of the twentieth century. The first act begins with a birth and presents the problems of childhood and adolescence. The second act deals with the "ups and downs" of love and marriage, while the last act makes one ponder on death and what, if anything, follows.

Because they were so nice to us last week we again imposed on Sherlock Clay's record department and listened to some more discs. Artie Shaw's record I Surrender Dear, although not the best Shaw record is better than we have heard in a long time. An innovation in Shaw's style enters into this study in-wax in that the pianist is featured in part of the piece. Although his style sounds like a steal from Count Basey, it cannot be held against him, because it was executed so well.

On the list of the Book of the Month Club is The Web and the Rock by Thomas Wolfe. The Web and the Rock is about a small town boy who journeys to New York where he fails to find fame and fortune, but does find love. This love story is a story of life as it is in modern America. We have no doubt about the author's sincerity in writing this exaggerated satire on American life among the Joneses, however, we do not like the author's style. A story which should and could be about 300 pages long is dragged out over 600. One has to wade through a long boring account about every little detail in order to pick up the thread of the story.

. . . while thinking . . .

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

A FABLE past and present: Once upon a time there lived a shepherd. To enliven his quiet existence the shepherd occasionally pretended he saw a wolf and cried for help. The village farmers became aroused, armed themselves and came running to the defense of the sheep, only to find that the shepherd had alarmed them falsely. To get back in the good graces of the villagers, he solemnly promised never to repeat his offense. The shepherd did not keep his word however, and continued to fool the townspeople.

Then one day a real wolf came along and the frightened shepherd yelled loudly for help, but none came, for the farmers were sure that it was another falsehood. So the wolf ate the shepherd and all of his sheep.

* * *

Once upon a time there lived a dictator. To enliven his existence the dictator occasionally pretended his country was in danger so he sent his armies to conquer the smaller countries near him. The larger nations became aroused, armed themselves and prepared to defend the little countries. To get back in the good graces of the larger powers, he solemnly promised never to repeat his offense. The dictator didn't keep his word however, and continued to fool the bigger nations.

Then one day the country the dictator ruled was really in danger because the other powerful nations became angry at being fooled and went to war to help the little countries.

Realizing he had made a mistake the dictator asked for peace, but the other nations didn't believe he would keep his word. So they continued the war and destroyed the dictator and many of his people.

The moral of this story is twofold being either: Give a man enough rope and he'll hang himself, or: You can fool some of the people some of the time but none of the people all of the time.

* * *

NATIONAL

WE SEE where a United States Senator from Minnesota last week urged that this country seize British possessions in the Caribbean Sea, especially the Bahamas Islands in payment for the war debts.

Doesn't it seem as if there were enough seizures taking place in Europe and Asia without America joining in?

Not only that, but it would look as if the United States were deliberately taking advantage of British preoccupation over World War II to put a knife in England's back. Such an act would make the American eagle somewhat akin to the vulture.

* * *

ENTHUSIASTICALLY endorsing the new streamlined American Army, the civilian population of the nation has responded to the call for volunteers to increase the Army, more wholeheartedly than at any other peace-time during the history of the United States.

Perhaps this is due to the simplification of drill by the new regulations. In any event it is making possible the dream of American military officials since the days of the revolution, an adequate standing army backed by a plentiful force of reserves.

* * *

CITY

ONCE again San Francisco's Community Chest has launched its annual drive to secure funds for the needy citizens of this city.

Little more need be said. We can do our share with the rest, and give those persons more unfortunate than ourselves a chance to get an even break out of life.

Introduction Needed

By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Beautiful Women Sorely Neglected; Beauty a Hindrance

● "BIG SHOTS" NEED DATES

Editor, The Guardsman:

I am writing the following in behalf of the so-called "big shot" girls. We are the girls who are supposed to be too popular, too good looking for the average boy to take to a school function. As a result we are neglected by everyone and many times have to sit at home while a school function is in progress.

Just because a girl is popular or very good looking doesn't mean that she has a date. On the contrary that of the collee do not think popular girls are "too good for them." You underestimate the college man's ego. Furthermore, if a girl hasn't the ability to secure "dates" she is not popular! And don't be so sure that "Miss Beautiful" would be glad to date anyone who asks her.

A reliable dating bureau might be the answer to the problem.

● SYSTEM AT FAULT

Editor, The Guardsman:

Demands for the strict enfocement of the honor system and for commitee investigation of the system recently laters is so much sham and should be treated as such. Those who harp on an unimpeachable honor system fit loosely in the category of reformers and are in danger of getting God's armchair turned into the proverbial hot seat. No man should possess honesty; it should be an ever-present accepted virtue.

When the honor system fails to work then 90 per cent of the blame belongs, not with the students, but, with the educational system itself. the system that demands constant memorization of useless material; a system that requires a definite mark, or a student must forfeit his chosen work, for the time at least; the system that exacts high grades in alleged "broadening subjects." When

(Continued on page 4, column 2)

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

WHEN the Rams played Sacramento last year at Sacramento they were greeted by the Capitol City rooting section, band, and rally car. The greeting was topped off by a parade to the State Building Square. It certainly made the Ram rooters feel at home.

When the Sacramento Panthers played the Rams at San Francisco this year they were not greeted, they were not paraded and they were defeated. To top it off the Sacramento rooters brought along a band plus eighteen drum majorettes. They also brought along the Northern California Junior Birdmen who sailed paper airplanes from the rooting section during the second half.

Sacramento went to a lot of expense to cart out these various and sundry individuals to entertain the college. Even though they did steal our banner last year they were entitled to some sort of hospitality.

They even went so far as to invite the college rooters to the Palace Hotel to dance as the guests of the Sacramento Junior College after the game. So hundreds of fellows and girls of college age blocked the hotel lobby for an hour or two groups of toxedoed, top-hatted dandies squirmed through the grimy crowd to make their way into the ballroom. There was no dancing.

We quote the Bible: "An eye for an eye; a tooth for a tooth." It served us right—we were pretty rotten hosts!

* * *

ONE-MAN RALLY COMMITTEE

Ray Berns turned out a pip of a rally last week—practically single handed. That means that there are 24 dead-heads on the Rally Committee. You don't have to take our advice, Ray, but you can astign those glory hounds to the Morticlan's Society. They can use people like that.

* * *

Between the halves of the game last Friday, Harold Hoffman seized the opportunity to become a hero. He rescued the "downs_box" from those frivolous frat pledges. By the way the initiates marched by the Sacramento drum majorettes and claim that the girls' physiognomies were not so beautiful as their physiologies.

* * *

Willie Blackfield, here for his fifth semester, is our choice for the college's all-around athlete. He played basketball, baseball, and showed his interest in almost every other form of athletics available. Now he is out for football. He has pants, pads, and shoes—but no jersey. That makes him about half a football player now.

* * *

DATE BUREAU NEEDED?

Four bashful boys asked a young lady of the college to try to fix them up for dates for that dance last week. This week several of the popular girls complained that they had to stay home on account of not having a date for that same dance. Could it be that the boys are afraid of popular girls? Or do they take it for granted that popular girls at college always have dates? Some problem.

shots at RAMdom . . .

By Isadore Maloff

RUMORS that an Embalmer's Club is to be formed here soon are currently being aired about the college. We are led to comment that at a time when so many of our clubs are quite negligently lax in their activities, it will be something of a novelty to have an organization that will bravely and gravely dig in and work on its various undertakings.

* * *

PRESSING BUSINESS

From an early press release we learn that the University of California, with the largest football turnout of all Pacific Coast colleges will use about 21,000 yards of tape and 75,000 yards of gauze this season. We doubt whether such generous yardage can help to soothe the terrible headache that must be nestling in the "bald" of Stub Allison because of an extremely mediocre football team. If the team could only make the yardage on the field that they do on their wounds, Stub might have a team with which to work.

* * *

NOT THE TYPE

Found unconscious on a Budapest street, Ferenc Szabo, a printer, when revived told police that he had set in type the name and address of his faithless sweetheart and then swallowed the whole thing—57 letters, two commas, and a semicolon—with a pint of mild poison as a chaser—Time Magazine.

In gutter desperation, he may have wanted to make himself the type of a lover his faithless sweetheart desired.

SNAKES ALIVE!

What little faith we have in women is strengthened by that San Diego State College coed who found a two-foot snake crawling up the seat in which she was sitting. Not the least bit startled, this virile femme calmly opened her purse and stuffed the inviting snake into it, without giving voice to the slightest shriek . . . May be she had experience in putting other types of snakes in their places.

* * *

FROM BAD TO VERSE

Here's a little poem we had the honor of reciting before President Roosevelt—was elected.

My love has flew,
Her did me dirt
Me did not know
Her was a flirt.

To they in love
Let I forbid
Lest they be doed
Like I been did.

* * *

Things about college girls we never knew 'till now: The average coed wears out nine pairs of silk stockings a quarter at an average cost of 79 cents a pair. Since there are 700 women at this institution, 6300 pairs of stockings a semester are worn by them. Total cost of such adornment is $4,977 . . . What a business opportunity for some enterprising student.

GUM STUFF

The average gum-chewing coed creates enough force in masticating her cud in one year to raise 19,584 tons one foot in the air (Ain't it amazing?) For verification or further particulars consult the Bureau of Weights and Standards at Washington, D. C.

A venerable old landlady had a B car and in a venerable tone of voice inquired, "Does this car stop at the beach?"

"Sure hope so," laconically replied the laconic conductor, "If it don't there's sure gonna be a helleva splash."

* * *

From the El Centro Junior College Warrior comes this cleverly concocted contribution: (Title our own.)

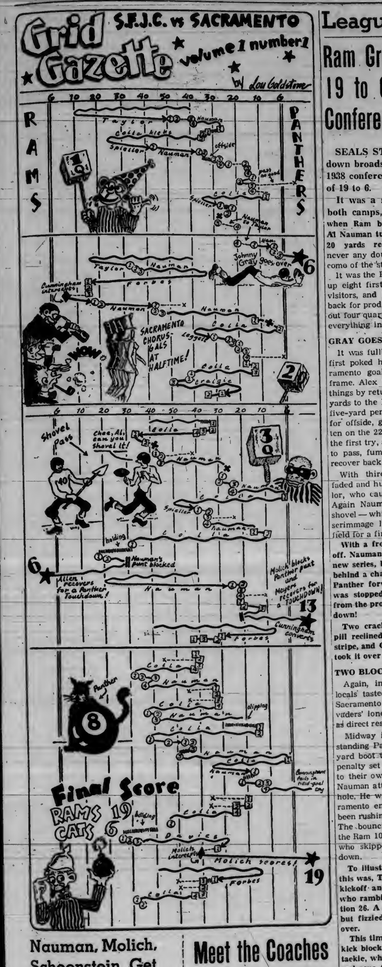
ALL THAT GLITTERS IS NOT GOLD

Two ladies gay met a boy one day.
His legs were briar-scratched;
His clothes were blue, but a nut brown hue,
Marked the place where his pants had patch.
"Why didn't you patch with a color to match?"
They chuckled, "Why not in blue?"
"Come, don't be coy, my blue-brown boy,
Speak out!" and they laughed with glee;
And he blushed rose-red, while he bashfully said:
"That ain't a patch; THAT'S ME!"

* * *

Famous last words department:

Sophomore girls will kindly refrain from swearing.



* * *

Truthfulness in advertising is generally considered an admirable quality but it seemed as though the El Capitan Theater was going to extremes when the lights spelling the "pita" part of its name on the marquee burned out last Tuesday evening.

Women Archers, Net Stars Vie Saturday; Watch Their Speed

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

First Police Gazette Award Goes To Ram Pigskinners This Week

League Win

Ram Gridders Smash Sacramento, 19 to 6, in Spectacular Game; Conference Title Hopes Take Rise

SEALS STADIUM, Oct. 13—Unleashing a decisive three-touchdown broadside, the Rams tonight blew the Sacramento Panthers, 1938 conference champs, clean out of this old ball park by a count of 19 to 6.

It was a spectacular game, loaded with potential dynamite in both camps, but from the opening moments of the first quarter, when Ram backs Herb Taylor and Al Nauman turned in runs of 42 and 20 yards respectively, there was never any doubt as to the final outcome of the struggle.

It was the Rams all the way, piling up eight first downs to two for the visitors, and blasting a heavier line back for prodigious yardage throughout four quarters that saw practically everything in the book occur.

GRAY GOES OVER

It was fullback Johnny Gray who first poled his nose across the Sacramento goal, early in the second frame. Alex "Lefty" Spieller started things by returning Colla's punt eight yards to the Panther 27. This, plus a five-yard penalty on the northerners for offside, gave the Rams first and ten on the 22. But Taylor lost one on the first try, and Nauman, attempting to pass, fumbled and was lucky to recover back on the 29.

With third coming up, Nauman faded and hurled over center to Taylor, who caught the ball on the 20. Again Nauman passed—this time a shovel—which Taylor took on the scrimmage line and escorted downfield for a first down on the 14.

With a fresh start, the Rams were off. Nauman, on the first play of the new series, boomed down the middle behind a charging line that lifted the Panther forwards off their feet. He was stopped just four yards away from the promised land. Another first down!

Two cracks by Nauman, and the pill reclined a foot from the double stripe, and Gray, on the next plunge, took it over for six points.

TWO BLOCKED KICKS

Again, in the third quarter, the locals tasted blood—but not before Sacramento had clicked up the Invaders' only score. Both scores came as direct results of blocked punts.

Midway in the period, Colla, outstanding Panther back, got off a 60-yard boot to the Ram 30. A holding penalty set the college gridders back to their own 17, and from this point Nauman attempted to kick out of the hole. He was smothered by the Sacramento ends and tackles, who had been rushing dangerously all evening. The bouncing ball was snagged, on the Ram 10, by Allen, Panther guard, who skipped across for the touchdown.

To illustrate what kind of a game this was, Taylor received the ensuing kickoff and reversed it to Nauman, who rambled 54 yards to the opposition 36. A drive started at this point, but fizzled. Then the Panthers took over.

This time it was Colla who had his kick blocked, and it was Meyer, Ram tackle, who fell on the pigskin in the end zone for a touchdown. This time Cunningham split the uprights for the extra point.

MOLICH INTERCEPTS

Third and final Ram touchdown was an outright gift. Desperate in the fourth quarter, the Panthers unleashed a barrage of wild passes. It was a foregone conclusion that one would, sooner or later, be intercepted. Jim Molich did the dirty work, clamping his mitts on an errant heave and skating 40 yards down the sidelines for a score. On this particular play, Herb Taylor added to his laurels for the evening by knocking the last defender from Molich's path.

This game showed a number of things. It showed that the Rams are beginning to function smoothly as a coordinated unit. It showed also that the Rams somehow lack the vital punch that gains yards where yards are needed. The score tonight was 19 to 6; it should have been 26 to 6, and those hypothetical touchdowns should have come not from blocked punts and intercepted passes, but from the numerous drives that fizzled out before reaching the goal line.

The Rams continue, though, to show the same aggressiveness that gave Pasadena a memorable scare and presented the Cal Frosh with one of their toughest games.

Fortified by an extra week of rest, the Rams can look forward with confidence to San Mateo—and the conference crown.

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

Tom "Atlas" Wilson, shinkicking mentor, says, "This year's soccer squad is the best we've had here in a long time—it really is. The boys are practicing for the first time in history."

All of which gladdens our heart, and it's sure swell of the fellows, Tom, but what'd they do before, take time out for tea?

You've probably heard it rumored about that we have a team that is a football team. Perhaps these rumors are confirmed after the swell victory over Sacramento, but just in case there are still some doubts, glance at these news items:

Pasadena Chronicle: "Looking at the game from an unprejudiced point of view, our Bull dogs were outgained, outfought, and outcharged by a fighting San Francisco team. The center of the line, led by Mel Chickazola, broke through constantly to stop our plays, and the deception on their reverses and spinners was wonderful!"

San Francisco Examiner: "Today, the California Frosh ran rampant over Santa Ana Junior College, reportedly the strongest jayvee squad in Southern California, 26 to 0."

We lost to both Pasadena and the California Frosh, yes, but one, undefeated in 20 starts, admitted our superiority, and the other is reputedly one of the strongest frosh teams in Golden Bear history.

Kendo, the Japanese form of fencing, is fast becoming a favorite pastime at the college. Under the supervision of a Japanese professor who is said to be one of the best in the kendo fens, the local enthusiasts are becoming well-versed in the fundamentals of the sport. Did we say sport? You can call it that if you like, but basically the other fellow over the head (or getting bashed) with a sword is a long time—it really is. The boys are practicing for the first time in history."

All of which gladdens our heart, and it's sure swell of the fellows, Tom, but what'd they do before, take time out for tea?

You've probably heard it rumored about that we have a team that is a football team. Perhaps these rumors are confirmed after the swell victory over Sacramento, but just in case there are still some doubts, glance at these news items:

Pasadena Chronicle: "Looking at the game from an unprejudiced point of view, our Bull dogs were outgained, outfought, and outcharged by a fighting San Francisco team. The center of the line, led by Mel Chickazola, broke through constantly to stop our plays, and the deception on their reverses and spinners was wonderful!"

San Francisco Examiner: "Today, the California Frosh ran rampant over Santa Ana Junior College, reportedly the strongest jayvee squad in Southern California, 26 to 0."

We lost to both Pasadena and the California Frosh, yes, but one, undefeated in 20 starts, admitted our superiority, and the other is reputedly one of the strongest frosh teams in Golden Bear history.

Kendo, the Japanese form of fencing, is fast becoming a favorite pastime at the college. Under the supervision of a Japanese professor who is said to be one of the best in the kendo fens, the local enthusiasts are becoming well-versed in the fundamentals

Berns Notes Rise Of Soccer Team; Keeps Slinging It

Nauman, Molich, Schoenstein Get Police Gazette!

Ring the bells! Call the wagon! It's here!

That's right! The first weekly presentation of the Police Gazette to deserving athletes.

In collaboration with the Grid Gazette, which is presented for the first time on this page today, The Guardsman Sports outdoes itself in giving away—absolutely free—not one, but three copies of the Flatfoot Journal.

Gather 'round, ye innocent bystanders . . . we're off!

Al Nauman—Workhorse of the Ram offense, showed his stuff against the Panthers in the kicking department as well as by carrying the porker. Played a top game, and didn't try to run back any kicks from his own two yard line.

Bob Schoenstein—Bangup game at tackle. Did you hear opposition creak when Bob socked 'em? A steadfast bulwark on defense; trail-blazer when the Rams have the ball.

Jim Molich—Sudden death to opposition end sweeps. Played a smart game all the way. Opportunist extraordinary. Blocked a kick, and intercepted a pass for the final touchdown.

Winners please note: This here Police Gazette is the goods. Call for your prize in the The Guardsman office (WJ) at Galileo. Happy day!

Meet the Coaches

LEE EISAN

Lee Eisan, "little Napoleon" of the physical education department, is head coach of the varsity football squad.

A graduate of Polytechnic High School, Eisan was one of the most outstanding pigskin stars ever to perform at the Sunset institution.

During the years 1924 and 1925, Lee played quarterback for the San Francisco Olympic Club.

Eisan figured prominently in the club's win over the famous University of California "wonder team." The club's win was the first scored over California in several seasons.

Lee enrolled at California in 1926 and played four years of football for the Golden Bears.

In both 1928 and 1929, Eisan was placed on the third-string all-American team.

Before taking over the reins this season as head football coach, Eisan tutored the backs on the football squad and was varsity baseball mentor.

Eisan was one of the ten players fundamentals has shown itself in the blocking and tackling displayed by this year's football team.

Eisan was one of the ten players who chased Roy Riegels 70 yards when he made that famous "wrong way" gallop.

Particle Sports Shorts

THE WORMS-EYE VIEW

PASS SNAGGER

Jim Molich, end and co-captain of the Ram football squad, has an enviable record so far this season. Jim has scored three touchdowns. All of them came on passes. In the Pierce game, undisputed U.S.F. Frosh, Molich took long passes from Al Nauman to cross the enemy goal. In the contest with Sacramento, the flankman intercepted a Panther throw and ran it back 40 yards for a tally. Besides this, Molich has blocked a punt and booted a conversion or so.

Berns Notes Rise Of Soccer Team; Keeps Slinging It

The intention of table tennis brings to mind the fact that a tourney will be held in the near future open to both men and women. For an exhibition on how the game should not be played, drop in and watch us some Friday afternoon. That poor little white spheroid receipts for an awful beating what with us stepping on it, cursing at it, and generally trying to do it harm. Merciless, that's what we are.

Word reaches us that too many people have been congregating in our rooting section at the past few games. With such a howling mass of humanity confronting him, your pool reporter (you know who), can do naught but lead yells. Now then, we have a plan whereby the voice of the yell leader (you know who), will not be strained, and, instead of gathering in one huge group, the students can break up into delegations of two and sit in scattered parts of the stadium for the purpose, yes, that's what we said, for the purpose.

Our plan is just this. At the next game recordings will be made of our yells. The games following, when the team needs bolstering, the yells will be played over the P.A. system, and the yell leader (you know who), will just go through the motions. In the interims, he can take a snooze, feed his palate, and generally prepare himself for the celebration following the game. About the duos? Ha, ha, imagination, sonny, imagination. Sensationally simple, is it not?

Tourney NCIC Tourney Tomorrow Features Tennis, Archery

Eleven colleges are expected to participate in the Northern California Intercollegiate Conference meet on October 21.

The tournament, which will include archery and tennis matches, convenes tomorrow morning at 9 a.m., in the Palace of Fine Arts.

"There will be doubles and singles matches in tennis," announced Lucille Jacke, W.A.A. president, this week. "The archers will fire a Columbia round."

This will be the first of the W.A.A. intercollegiate sports days, held from October through December, and culminating in the Tourney Week banquet.

Later events, according to Miss Jacke, will be a badminton tournament, to be held on November 4 at San Mateo, and a special W.A.A. play day at the start of the basketball season, on December 1.

Bowlers Hit Stride Under Amori's Lead; College Matches Seen

Joe Amori's bowling classes are now in full swing! Composed of a total of 60 students, four classes, Monday to Thursday, are currently being held.

Working with beginner and advanced groups, Amori is taking considerable notice of some outstanding prospects.

To date, the bowling instructor has made favorable comments on the potentialities of such bowlers as Piasco, Bacigalupi and Maslach.

Trials for the keglers are held at the bowling hall, located at Jones and Golden Gate Avenue.

Tentative meets have already been scheduled with San Mateo J. C., Menlo J. C. and Modesto J. C.

Intramural Rifleers Seeking Touch Football Game; Challenge Issued to Societies

Continuing the tradition of paving the way in the field of intramural sports, the college Rifle Club this week announced that it would seek football matches with other student bodies within the institution.

According to Charles North, Rifle Club president, the games would be played with six-man teams, and will proceed under the official touch-tackle rules.

"We would like to contract games with several other clubs" North inferred. "Invitations are being sent to the Beta Phi Beta Society, the Tri Epsilon Society, and the Pick and Hammer Club."

The games, it was revealed, would take place on Saturday or Sunday mornings, probably at Galileo Field.

"Galileo was kind enough to let us have the use of their field last year," North said, "and we have hopes that they may let us stage a few repeat performances."

Last fall the Rifle Club, then under the sponsorship of Captain James Shuches, prominent college instructor, inaugurated six-man intramural football by staging a contest with ex-Rifleers, a group of former club members who have left the college in search of greener pastures.

"The outcome of that game," North recounted, with visible pride, "was a 51 to 6 victory for the Rifle Club."

The sharpshooter prexy then revealed that many of the stars of the 1938 win have now joined the "has-been" ranks. Among these are Bill Gibson, Hank Cavagnolo, and others.

The Rifle Club expects to play the ex-Rifleers in the final encounter—the "big game"—of their current schedule.

Dates for the coming games will be fixed as soon as acceptance has been indicated by the organizations challenged.

WOMEN'S . . . Sports Parade

By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

The Queen of Hearts
Now loves the Knave
The King
Doesn't play ping-pong.

And you'll be out in the cold, too, if you don't get "step" to the news that ping-pong has invaded the college. Sign-ups start today and will continue for two weeks—and while we're about it you might as well know the worst—

It's to be co-educational and when you go to sign up, all you men grab yo' padnah, and gals get right in front! After two weeks of practice they'll cut loose with a tournament. Winners will be chosen upon a basis of eliminations. First time in the history of the college, too, that pingpong has been included in the women's sports parade.

* * *

San Mateo seems to be in for a thorough "black-out" Friday, October 28. The local yokels will descend en masse bringing not only our illustrious football team BUT a group of women athletes.

The coeds have been invited to participate in a badminton play-day and after their strenuous exercise they will swim and then lunch. Sounds good, doesn't it?

* * *

A misunderstanding in regard to schedules has set the WAA golf club on its ear. All the girls who have signed up for the sport are requested to see Jane Young, golf manager, as soon as possible, in order to get the mess straightened out.

Tentative plans are for practice on certain Saturdays on city golf courses.

* * *

With the Northern California Intercollegiate Tennis and Archery Sports Day coming up tomorrow, the tennis stars are on a rampage tightening for the six upper places in order to represent the local college.

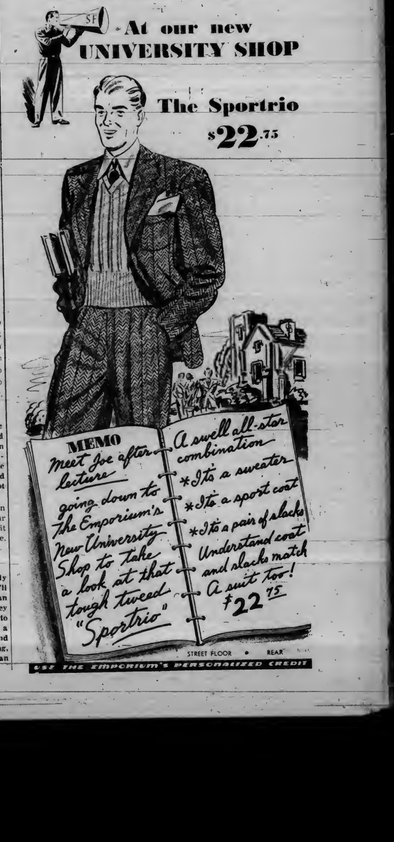
In the singles competition, Lucille Jacke, Estelle Mouridian, Helen Godman, and Barbara Moynihan are vieing for top honors. Miss Godman, incidentally, is last year's singles champion.

Doubles competitions find Louise Hintermann and Rosamund Putterson in the battle front.

* * *

Archery, you will be pleased to hear, is swinging along at a great speed. There is however, more room for players if they desire to enroll. In fact, WAA clubs are still open to women students that would like to enroll for an extra-curricular activity.

* * *



With an eye to the faculty, we stood and watched William K. and Mrs. Mayo in a game of badminton with Bertha Mae Keller, WAA adviser. How they played For awhile those birdies were flying so fast and furiously that your correspondent got dizzy. (no cracks.)

Also in the course of the afternoon we noticed that the sun at the far side of the gym was so strong that it was hard for the contestants to see. Something should be done, we say!

* * *

Just to show you that there's really some spirit in this club business, we'll illustrate. It seems that one Jean Kelly lost, misplaced, or lent the key to her locker, and she wasn't able to get at her tennis shoes. Without a word the young lady trotted around the tennis court in sox and swung, we hear from authority, a mean racket. Orchids to Kelly.

The Emporium
MARKET OPPOSITE POWELL • EXBROOK 4400 • SAN FRANCISCO

SEE THE EMPORIUM'S PERSONALIZED CREDIT

Hotel

Representatives From Bay Region Hotels Selected

Final selection of students to represent Bay area hotels on the campus was announced this week by Stirling Silver, hotel and restaurant division student coordinator of the newly formed Hotel Campus Representative committee.

This organization, sponsored by the Hotel and Restaurant Division is designed to coordinate representation of hotels on the campus in order more adequately to acquaint students with the entertainment facilities of the hotels.

"We feel that the coordination of this committee will be of considerable advantage to groups or persons interested in availing themselves of the facilities of the many fine hotels in San Francisco. Especially it will be of value to such groups as the college Social Committee, to college clubs and organizations planning dinners or dances, to private parties of students wishing to celebrate some occasion, and especially to individual students themselves in the process of acquiring the 'hotel habit'," said Silver.

To Inform Students

"This committee," Silver added, "will be prepared to give any information required by organizations planning affairs, including complete rate scales for private party and meeting rooms, private dancing and dining rooms, rates, sizes and accommodations of ball rooms for large affairs, and rates for public dining and dancing."

The committee proper, made up of the representatives of the various hotels, will act as link between students and student organizations and the hotel managements.

Hotels Made Selections

The selection of representatives was made by the submission of applications to the Hotel Division through the office of the Dean. From these applications recommendations of two or three each were made to the hotels cooperating in the scheme, and the hotel managements made the final selections.

Ice Skating Group To Form College Team; Elects Leaders Today

Unanimously in favor of forming a regular junior college ice-skating team, the local skaters will vote today for club officers.

Possibility that the Winterland rink would contact San Francisco State College and other colleges in the Bay Region to encourage competition in the form of figure skating contests, was made known Wednesday by Joseph Williams, skate instructor.

Definite rates for Friday sessions at 2:30, 25 cents with skates and 40 cents without, have been decided upon, Williams also said. For other sessions students will be admitted for 30 cents with skates and 55 cents without.

Ice-skating too, has come in for its share of champions with Murray Galbraith and William Hart, figure skaters, enrolled.

Galbraith holds first place in the National Junior Figure skating competitions and third in the National novice skating conference.

Hart is second-placer in the Pacific Coast figure skating conference and runner up for the Pacific Coast Junior Championship.

There is a strong possibility that Hart and Galbraith will do some exhibition skating for the ice-skating classes sometime during the course of the semester. Since they are limited to three appearances a season, no specific date can be made.

STANLEY'S
LUNCHES DINNERS
FOUNTAIN SERVICE
Corner Steiner and Sutter
Near Girls High

DEAN BROWNE . . .
will you say to your boys who need help in purchasing a typewriter to see—
H. J. (Bert) HASTINGS
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
891 Market St. Phone SUtter 4794

Justice

Judical Committee Rules on Offenders Of Honor System

In a meeting held early this week, the Judiciary Committee, under the leadership of chairman Al Williams, "sat" on cases accused of violating the honor code during examinations.

Twelve offenders were brought before the committee, and, in the words of Williams, "Action was taken."

The students were caught cheating during the examinations by instructors who have signified their intention of handing over future offenders to the committee for judgment.

Williams said, "As in the past, the Judiciary Committee will continue to regulate and control any dishonesty that may take place during tests and exams."

It was also disclosed by Williams that the formation and work of the investigating committee, instigated for the purpose of upholding the honor code, has been going ahead with amazing rapidity.

At the next meeting of the committee, which will be held early next week, another offender of the honor code will be brought before the student judiciary body.

Low Sophs Meet, Discuss December Dinner Dance

Low sophomores met last week and discussed plans for the class dinner dance under the chairmanship of President Art Pomares.

The dance is tentatively scheduled for Friday, December 15 at either the Palace Hotel or the Lake Merritt Hotel in Oakland. Glen Gray will be at the Palace while the Lake Merritt will feature Joe Luke.

Committees were formed and will report their findings to the sophomore class in the near future.

Committee members are Mary Miller, location; Art Pomares, attendance; Pete Aydalotte and Jay Wright, publicity.

"Last semester the class dinner dance was attended by almost one hundred couples. This semester we would like our dance even more successful," Pomares said.

(Continued from page 2)

moving into medical school is attendant upon whether or not a certain examination is passed and when the answer to a minor question will make that difference and when that answer is available by cheating—whose fault is it?

It is a safe assumption to say that at least one third of the present American educators have cheated on examinations. People in other professions have also cheated in college examinations and it is foolish to draw comparisons between cheating in school examinations and cheating in later years.

Let every man measure the worth of honesty in his own terms for it is he who ultimately must answer.

Rex Valpreda.

Radio Address

(Continued from page 1)

and background of radio broadcasting technique and radio script writing. Miss Weller announced that there will be no production work for the classes until November. In the meantime students will be instructed in the writing technique adapted to the special field of radio work.

Murphy . . Fair Liked Him

By John Hansen

Another success story from the rolls of the college alumni was registered recently when Eddie Murphy, former student, led his 12-piece orchestra before the largest crowd ever assembled in the Music Hall on Treasure Island. More than 50,000 people jammed the doorways, and even before the band started to play the doors had to be shut to the public. Quite an accomplishment, considering that Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw, Kay Kayser, and other notables played at the Music Hall before him.

This action alone is a tribute to a young man, who in less than three years from his first appearance on Russian River has gone high up the ladder of success. In those three years Eddie and his orchestra have played at all the big hotels in San Francisco, at Capitola, and at the Cocoanut Grove in Manteca.

His outfit is the youngest radio band on the West Coast. Murphy himself being the oldest at 22. Other members range from 18 to 21, and are still attending this college.

Murphy attributes a great deal of his success to the music training he received in the college. When asked if he intended to continue with his education, Murphy said, that as long as he was so successful now, and since he intends to make this his lifelong work, it would not be necessary to return to college at this time.

Club Activities

● Alpha Phi Omega . . . Business meeting, October 24. Place to be posted on Powell bulletin board.

● Army and Navy . . . Formal initiation, October 26, at 8 o'clock, at the Rex Restaurant.

● Astronomy Club . . . Every Monday evening from 7 to 9 p. m., in the Galileo observatory.

● Beta Phi Beta . . . Speaker on October 23 at 8 o'clock. Place to be posted on Powell bulletin board.

● Block S.F. . . . Business meeting, October 25, at 7:30 in Room 458 at Galileo. Future plans will be discussed.

● Beta Tau . . . Formal initiation, October 21, 7:30, at the Palace Hotel.

● Forestry Club . . . Camping trip, October 29, Sonora mountains.

● Forum . . . Discussion, October 31, 8 o'clock, at 716 Valencia.

● Home Economics Association . . . Tea, honoring the HEA classes, to be held October 20, at 3:30, at 3047 Divisadero.

● Hotel-Restaurant . . . Informal discussion, October 24, at the home of Terry Sandelin.

● Italian Club . . . 2 o'clock, Friday, Room 405, Powell Bldg. Business.

● Japanese . . . Skating Party, November 3, at 10:30 p.m.; Rollerotorium, Ocean, near Fillmore.

● Music . . . Business and program, October 25, at 3529 Emerson Street, Oakland.

● Newman . . . Reverend John Meehan of the University of Switzerland will speak; also pictures and a Halloween party, October 30. Place to be posted on the bulletin board.

● Omicron Phi Pi . . . Initiation, October 23, 7:30, at 295 Urbano.

● Phi Beta Rho . . . Hay ride, tonight, at Woodside.

● Phys. Ed. Maj. . . . Business and discussion, October 25, at 4:20, in the Galileo Cafe.

● Pi Mu Gamma . . . Dr. Ashworth will speak on "History of Embalming," October 26, 7:30, 450 Sutter, 18th floor.

● Phi Alpha Omega . . . District dinner meeting, October 27, 7:30, at San Jose.

Civil Service Commission Convenes in City; Conlan, Leuenberger Attend

Students of the college civil service courses held the center of the stage this week at the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada in the Fairmont Hotel.

Dr. Howard T. McKinley, San Francisco Civil Service Commissioner characterized the college course as 'the greatest forward step yet taken in the field of public education."

The college courses prepare students in police training, bookkeeping, machine operating, and secretarial civil service positions.

Louis Conlan, faculty member, addressed the convention and spoke on the merit system. Harold Leuenberger also represented the faculty at the convention.

It is reported that photographs of the students now taking civil courses are being arranged by Mozelle Millikin, instructor in the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division.

ATTENTION!
Have you tried the special . . .
STUDENT PLATE LUNCHEON
at 25 cents
Served from 12:45 to 2:20 P.M.
IN YOUR OWN CAFETERIA
GALILEO HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

St. Peter and the Bull

By JEAN McGREGOR

Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones started gently as he felt the cool and welcome breeze toy with caressing fingers at his tight black curls. He slowly opened his eyes and looked around him. His eyes opened wider and wider as he took in his surroundings. What had happened? It couldn't be—and yet the more he stared the more he was inclined to believe that it was—Heaven! Yes, indeed! There was no mistake those golden stairs and pearly gate. Again he felt the soft breeze and looked upward to see two huge fans wafted back and forth by tall, handsome, colored boys like himself. Ah, how good it felt. Jones lay back and stared contentedly at the fleecy white clouds drifting lazily across the azure sky toward a pearly horizon streaked with the salt rosy tints of sunset. Suddenly a shadow passed over his face, shutting out some of his reverie. Jones raised his head instantly, sat bolt upright and scrambled to his feet as he saw before him St. Peter's beaming face. In deep ringing tones St. Peter began to speak.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones, you have come to us here in Heaven and are now one of us. We want you to be happy, Brother Jones, so come with me."

With these words St. Peter took him by the hand and led him through the streets to the sound of a trumpet, the musical notes of which rang out loud and clear in the still air. They came presently to a beautiful garden where a table was loaded down with delicious food, so dear to the heart of Brother Jones. St. Peter laid out a huge share and turned to him.

"Here is more than enough. You probably will not even eat all this share but whatever you do don't take more from the table, as each is given his share from it. Goodbye."

Brother Jones thanked him and sat down to his feast. Slowly but steadily he ate and ate until the last delicious pork chop and juicy watermelon was devoured. Oh, how full he felt but the rich, cold watermelons on the other table looked so delightfully tempting. Should he or should he not take another one? He could not resist. As he raised it to his mouth the sun suddenly seemed to enter the portals of night, the rosy streaks faded, and the sky darkened to black velvet. Startled, he jumped his feet and tried to look about him. Everywhere was this blackness which like a curtain had suddenly dropped over him. What was he to do? Where was he to go? He started walking rapidly, increasing his pace as his panic grew until he was running like a scared rabbit, his long legs pumping like pistons. He could not see where he was going or what was before him but he was too frightened to stop. All at once he seemed to shoot off into space. Down, down he hurtled like a plummet into a black abyss of nothing. After a time his dropping became slower until he was turning over and over slowly and easily. As he sank gently to a firm footing his mind became easier, his tensed muscles relaxed and his panic began to disappear. About the time when he was becoming perplexed rather than frightened he heard a noise nearby. The scene was suddenly lighted by a reddish glare and before him he saw not Satan as he had expected—but, of all things, Ferdinand the Bull. Ferdinand snorted and pawed the ground, his horns gleaming wickedly in the reddish light. Brother Jones began to retreat a step at a time. Faster, faster, faster, he went as Ferdinand advanced towards him. Then came the charge. The bull roared at him and sped toward him with the speed of an express train. As his horns connected with a vital spot Brother Jones felt a rain of blows on his head and the scene faded. He blinked and opened his eyes to the bright afternoon sunlight and the rows of cotton.

"This sleepin' in the fields doesn't get the cotton picked," declared Mammy Jones, using her stick to advantage.

Jones made a mental note to go to the movies and see "Ferdinand the Bull." The only trouble was that it would be just his luck to go to a personal performance.

Excursion to Lick Observatory Planned Tomorrow by Students

Uder the auspices of the college Astronomical Society, all astronomy students and there friends are invited to attend an excursion to the Lick Observatory, atop Mt. Hamilton, tomorrow.

The trip will be made by means of automobiles, groups of students riding in a given car and sharing expenses. There are no eating facilities on the mountain so it is advisable that each person taking the trip bring along sandwiches, or buy dinner at San Jose, group leaders said.

All persons going on the trip will meet in front of the main branch of the public library, McAllister and Larkin streets, at 3:30 p.m.

Students will leave the observatory for home about 9:30 or 10 p.m.

All those desirous of making the journey are requested to notify Louis Berman, college instructor of astronomy.

ROOS
"Brashy Tweed"
THE GREAT COLLEGE SUIT OF THIS YEAR!
COPIES OF FINE SCOTCH TWEEDS IN BRITISH LOUNGE MODELS THAT WEAR WELL AND KEEP THEIR SHAPE.
$30
Roos Bros
MARKET AT STOCKTON

Glen Gray and the Casa Loma Orchestra
WITH PEE WEE HUNT AND KENNY SARGENT
OPENS OCT. 26th!
The Palace Hotel
SAN FRANCISCO
JOIN THE "DANCE PARADE" OF AMERICA'S FINEST ORCHESTRAS
CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVES
MARY FRANCES MALONE..FR 6372
BILL O'NEILL.....RA 4000
LEE SCARLETT.....GR 1808

Ram's Horn

Students of the college civil service courses held the center of the stage this week at the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada in the Fairmont Hotel.

Dr. Howard T. McKinley, San Francisco Civil Service Commissioner characterized the college course as 'the greatest forward step yet taken in the field of public education."

The college courses prepare students in police training, bookkeeping, machine operating, and secretarial civil service positions.

Louis Conlan, faculty member, addressed the convention and spoke on the merit system. Harold Leuenberger also represented the faculty at the convention.

It is reported that photographs of the students now taking civil courses are being arranged by Mozelle Millikin, instructor in the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
The Guardsman
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE
Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1939 No. 8

Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940

Meeting

Navy Day Assembly 11 o'clock

Today is Navy Day!

Celebrated annually in honor of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, who was born October 27, 1858, the college will hold a special assembly in the lecture hall at 11 o'clock this morning featuring as guest speaker, Commander Frank M. Harris, U.S.N.

Formerly a graduate of the University of California and veteran of the U.S. Navy during the World War, Harris will speak on the subject, Recent Naval Trends, with reference to the United States' work in coastal defense and the upholding of the Monroe Doctrine. President Cloud will introduce the speaker.

Adding to the celebration, Lowell High School will be represented by its colorful band.

Navy Day has in the past been known for its recognition of the importance of the U.S. battle-fleet, which 365 days a year patrols both east and west coasts of North and South America.

The assembly will be sponsored by the Army-Navy Club," announced Harold Steele, club representative, "we hope to show the college just how much value and service we can offer to the college, especially in these war-neurotic times."

The Army-Navy Club has been noted in the past for its patriotic exhibitions. The club's faculty adviser, Fred C. Moreland, has constantly been the main cog in its affairs, and has assisted with the arrangements of today's Navy Day assembly.

Reason for Navy Day being in honor of "old Teddy" is due to the prominent naval part he played many years ago. At that time, the red, white and blue fleet was relatively stagnant in its affairs.

Farsighted "Teddy", then President of the United States and commander-in-chief of the Navy felt it his part to see to it that the Navy take an unprecedented part in its active affairs. He wanted it so that the American continent should be protected and defended by the "strongest Navy, second only to England".

Out of his own pocket, it has been said, he financed a trans-oceanic voyage for a number of U.S. battleships (one way). Without funds to return, "Teddy", with his well-known humor, had to seek funds from Congress for the stranded fleet. He was strongly a pro-Navy man.

That is why "Teddy" has been

(Continued on page 4)

Military Science Class To Visit Fort Funston

An opportunity to see the coast artillery guns in action will be afforded members of the college military science class on the morning of November 1, when they will be conducted on a field trip to Fort Funston by James S. Hughes, military science instructor, and Major Philip F. Biehl, army instructor with the 250th Division of the Coast Artillery.

Students will meet at the National Guard Armory at eight o'clock. From these they will be driven to Fort Funston in army reconnaissance cars.

Exposition Fountains, Statues Could Be Used For New Campus

With the new Balboa Park campus now at the half way mark on its road to completion, the acquisition of several pieces of Exposition art work to grace the finished campus would without doubt be a welcome prize.

Disposal of the many fountains, statues, and murals on the Island rest in the hands of a special commission appointed by Mayor Angelo J. Rossi.

C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, along with Archibald J. Cloud, president of the college, last Monday, went to the Exposition to investigate the college's chances of obtaining art work from there.

Work most likely to be acquired is the dolphin fountain now standing in the rotunda of the San Francisco Building and two large murals from the Argentine Building.

If acquired the dolphin fountain will occupy a prominent place in the immediate foreground of the main building, overlooking Phelan Avenue.

President Cloud said there was a reasonable chance to obtain these objects If the students will evidence sufficient interest and enthusiasm over them. Suggestion from students as to statuary at the Fair that might be suitable for the new campus would be welcome, President Cloud added.

Assignment of the various art work will, of course, depend on the duration of the Fair, but from all indications the Fair will close permanently on October 28. Decisions, therefore, on the recipients of statuary and murals will be made shortly, and prompt action must be taken by the college.

Model for Rent

In the early part of the semester one of the college art classes was interrupted by an eccentric character who intruded upon the Bohemian scene. A young man, his body arrayed in an old, ill-matching suit of clothing, his face lost in a long, dark beard, his head covered by a dilapidated hat, and with an empty milk bottle in his hand, offered to pose for the drawing class. The droll would-be-model was refused, but his amusing instrusion was welcomed by the students as an enjoyable break in a monotonous scholastic day.

Plans Submitted for Low Sophomore Dance Bids

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon Julie Bradshaw and Warren Nelsen submitted plans for bids for the Associated Students' dance to be held sometime toward the end of the term.

The Low Sophomore dance was discussed and reports were given by various committees on the findings, the place has not been definitely decided on but the date is tentatively scheduled for Friday, December 15.

Art Pomares announced that a meeting would be held soon to make plans in preparation for next semester.

Mayor Reenacts Scene Of 1937

Pictured to left is the scene in 1937 when Mayor Angelo J. Rossi officially began the construction of the new campus at Baltoa Park. President Archibald J. Cloud stands next to him.

Next Wednesday the Mayor will once again officiate at another ground breaking ceremony, that of San Francisco State at Lake Merced. The wielding of the shovel this time will mark the beginning of construction of another campus in the same area as the future junior college. The radius of one mile will separate the two institutions.

NYA Administrator, Cloud Will Speak at Semester's First J. C. Council Meet

"Problems of Youth" will be the theme on which Robert Wayne Burns NYA Administrator of the State of California, will speak at the first meeting of the Junior College Council at the YMCA the evening of October 30.

President Archibald J. Cloud will also speak to the group. His subject will be "The Present Problems Facing the Junior College". Music will be provided by one of the college mens glee club.

Claude Shull, president of the NYA CHIEF

Robert Wayne Burns

group will preside at the meeting which will be held at the central YMCA at 8:00 o'clock Monday, October 30.

Purpose of the council's meetings is to further civic and community interest in student problems in the junior college field.

Faculty members, students, and friends of the college compose the council which is similar in purpose to Parent-Teacher organizations.

Aeronautics Ground School Will Begin Soon; 46 Tyro Pilots Enrolled In Class

Ground school classes which began last Tuesday are being held every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in room E at 58 Sutter Street at 8:00 o'clock in the morning.

"There will be a total of eight units of credit given for the year's work. Three units will be given for this semester because of the late starting time; however, five units will be given next semester making the total of eight," announced Captain George Richards, director of pilot training.

A preliminary selection of 46 students has been made including one woman. The final selection of 30 students will be made from this list within a week's time.

"There will be four hours a week of ground school which will include History of the Air, Civil Air Regulations, Navigation, Meteorology, and Principals of Flight. In addition there will be an hour and a half of flight training a week to be given in half hour periods," Captain Richards revealed. "The flying is scheduled to start in about three weeks or as soon as the final selection has been made and we receive approval from Washington."

HEA Elections in Room 317 at Galileo Today

All members of the Home Economics Association are advised to do their voting for this semester's officers in Room 317 at Galileo High School this afternoon, warned Claire Cuneo, HEA adviser.

Ex-Council

Lund Outlines Duties, Advantages Of Welfare Group

Speaking before the college executive council last Tuesday, Jack H. Lund, former chairman of the University of California Welfare Council, outlined the duties and advantages of a special welfare group.

Lund was invited to speak in order that the members of the executive council might receive at first hand all available information before coming to any decision on recommending the formation of a welfare committee and consequently necessary changes in the Associated Students' constitution.

As defined by Lund, duties of such a group would fall into three major categories. Firstly, the investigation of possible solutions to problems affecting the welfare of the college; secondly, to initiate without the necessity of previous instructions from the executive council research into such conditions as might present hitherto unrecognized problems; thirdly, to use their organization and ability as a means to administer special drives and campaigns undertaken by the college.

Advisory Capacity

"It must be understood that a welfare council fulfilling the duties outlined for it acts only in an advisory manner. It has no actual administrative power, but rather performs its functions by discovering and investigating problems, and then turning the results of its research over to the executive council in the form of a recommendation for action. It will then devolve upon the executive group to carry out its administrative powers to remedy the defects," stressed Lund.

"Further," he continued, "I have found from my own experience that the best way to have an efficient welfare group is to have an able group of students composing it, students who are capable of working together as a body, and well equipped with the two prime factors needed for a job of this sort, initiative and resourcefulness. In order to get together such a group I have found that the appointive rather than the elective method is much the most satisfactory. The chairman of the group should be appointed by the student body president, and the other members, about ten has been found to be an efficient number, appointed upon the recommendation of the chairman from among a group of volunteers.

Full Time Job

"Neither the chairman nor the members of the welfare council should be too actively engaged in other student activities, for a welfare committeeman's job is an almost full time one, calling for all of his or her energies."

It was explained that a welfare council should meet as a group at least once a week, preferably a day or two after the regular meeting of the executive council, in order that any problems arising there could be taken under consideration almost immediately. Sub-committees detailed to handle specific assignments could meet as required.

Among the assignments which the University of California welfare group carried out during Lund's term of office were the conducting of polls to determine student opinion of campus problems, the mediation of disputes between such organizations as the band and the associated students, the administration of a drive to provide a fund for loan purposes for needy students, the determination of eligibility regulations governing student elections, the coordination of social affairs between the various camps of the University, assistance in the organization of the entering freshman class, and aid and assistance in the conducting of student dances.

"Although some of the above listed problems are not applicable to the junior college, many of them are, and there are probably numerous other problems peculiar to this college which a welfare council would be of material aid in solving," concluded Lund.

Lund's presence was secured through the cooperation of Alden W. Smith of the college faculty who was president of the U.C. Associated Students at the time Lund was welfare council chairman.

Military Men

Between the halves of the game with Los Angeles City College, November 10, the 250th Coast Artillery band and color guard will perform.

The color guard will be composed of students of the college who are regular members of the coast artillery and in line for reserve commission.

The performance of the military unit is made possible through the courtesy of Captain James S. Hughes, the college Military Science instructor and Colonel David P. Hardy of the San Francisco school department and Regimental Commander of the 250th Coast Artillery.

President Cloud Returns From Conference, Reveals Importance of Jr. College

Attending a meeting of the Junior College Conference Commission, last week, Archibald J. Cloud, president of the college, brought back some pertinent facts relating to junior colleges.

The University of California has conducted some investigations into the work done by transfers from various junior colleges to their institutions. They found that the work done by junior college transfers was every bit as good as that done by their so-called "native students" or students who have come to California as freshmen.

It was found that the number of juniors at California far exceeded the number of freshmen, testifying to the large number of junior college transfers.

Discussion at the meeting largely concerned the correlation of the junior college program to that of the university.

Also attending the meeting was Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, along with several other important members of the California faculty and executive board.

Semi-Annual AMS Barn Dance Tonight At Devonshire; S.F. State Invites College To Rally Before Game

Rally Men's Jig

Unless opposition in the form of faculty intervention appears to put a "damper on his hopes," Ray Berns, college yell-leader, expects to put on a short rally for the State game next Thursday.

Because of the joint rally to be held by the two colleges at Lake Merced the preceding day, it has been decreed by the faculty administration that an official rally in the Galileo auditorium on Thursday next is out!

15 Minute Rally

Berns hopes, however, to have either a fifteen minute affair around noon-time at the Powell Street campus, or a court rally at Galileo of the same duration before the 2:30 o'clock classes next Thursday.

The State rally committee has issued an invitation to the students of this college to attend a dance in the State gymnasium immediately after the game. A junior college student body card will afford one reduced admission rate.

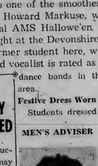
On tap for this weekend are two automobile caravans both scheduled for San Mateo.

San Mateans Rally Also

The peninsula college is holding a parade and rally tonight honoring tomorrow's game.

Lee Scarlett, AMS head, is in charge of tonight's group. All those attending the barn dance are asked to join in the parade and rally from whence they may adjourn to the Devonshire Club. Meeting time is 6:45 p.m., and the place—Nineteenth Avenue and Sloat Blvd.

Caravan at 1 P.M.



The second caravan, and, according to Berns, the most important one, will set forth from Nineteenth and Sloat tomorrow at 1 p.m., bound for the football classic with the Bulldogs.

"We have made arrangements with San Mateo to have a rooting section reserved for our students. Let's get in the spirit of the affair, drag out our jalopies, decorate them with red and white bunting, and have a rooting, tooting peninsula-bound procession. Don't forget this game is for the championship, so let's all be there," said Berns.

Dancing to one of the smoothest bands in the city, that of Howard Markuse, will be featured at the annual AMS Hallowe'en Barn Dance to be held tonight at the Devonshire Country Club. Markuse, former student here, with his 12 piece orchestra and vocalist is rated as one of the best dance bands in the San Francisco area.

Festive Dress Worn

Students dressed in festive attire, consisting of cowboy jeans and loud shirts, will invade the beautiful country club nestled in the San Carlos hills and transform the place into a hilarious Hallowe'en party.

MEN'S ADVISER

Joe Amori

"One student card per couple is all that is required for entrance to the affair and it also entitles them to refreshments, the nature of which is being held as a surprise until this evening," said Lee Scarlett, AMS president. "An identification committee will be at the door so students are warned not to lend their cards. If this is done the cards will be taken up and the lenders will be punished."

A parade is to be held in San Mateo this evening before the dance to celebrate the game between this college and San Mateo Junior College that is being held tomorrow afternoon. Everyone wishing to participate is requested to meet Lee Scarlett in front of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in San Mateo at 7:30 tonight. After the dance a special surprise will be given to all participants in the parade.

The decorating committee, Ray Berns, Sterling Silver, Ken Pasqualette, Tony Manov, and Mel Jacobs, have worked hard all week to transform the country club into a haunted castle to add an atmosphere of mystery to the occasion.

A meeting of the Associated Men Students was held after the rally yesterday to make final plans for the dance and discuss plans for events to be held later on in the semester.

Harold Hoffman, Club Advisory Board president and campus representative for the Emporium University Shop announced that he will award a sport shirt from the Emporium to the owner of the best decorated car in the San Mateo parade.

STATE COLLEGE TO HOLD GROUND BREAKING RALLY WEDNESDAY, LAKE MERCED

Marking the beginning of construction of a second college in what may in the future be termed "College City", San Francisco State, will hold ground breaking ceremonies at the site of its future campus at Lake Merced, next Wednesday afternoon, November 1.

Beginning of the State campus coincides with the construction of the new buildings for this college. Already more than half completed, the Balboa Park site will be the first college ready for occupancy in the new area. It will be followed soon after by the completion of the new State College.

It is expected that after both colleges have become permanently settled in their new quarters, a more friendly rivalry will exist.

San Francisco State has extended a cordial invitation to all students of this college who are free Wednesday afternoon, to come to Lake Merced and take part in the festivities.

Although the ground breaking ceremonies and a housecoming day for State alumni feature the program, a joint pep rally will be held in honor of the gridiron clash between the Gators and the Rams the following Friday night at Seals Stadium.

Bob Sweeney, president of the Associated Students at State, and a Gator rally committee, have conferred with a committee from this college composed of Associated Students prexy, Elmer Hubacher, Head Yell-Leader Ray Berns, Lee Scarlett, president of the A.M.S., and Bill Frantz, Guardsman Editor. Through the meeting of these groups a program for the day has been prepared.

The ceremonies will begin at approximately 12:30 p.m. There will be speeches by local civic dignitaries and the presidents of the respective colleges. Immediately after the official ceremonies have been completed, a huge pep rally will be held which will be started by the cheerleaders of the two colleges who will lead their respective groups in yells and songs.

A diversified program of entertainment has been arranged. Participants will then be invited to a buffet luncheon provided by State.

After lunch, a program of field events, featuring races, games, and contests has been scheduled.

Police Training Students Visit County Prison

Police training students visited the San Francisco city and county jail last Tuesday afternoon under the direction of their instructor Harold Leuenberger. Arrangements for the trip were made by Sheriff Dan Murphy and students were taken through the entire prison.

Leuenberger explained that the students were particularly interested in the methods of handling the prisoners. San Francisco's recreational facilities for the inmates were also examined by the group.

Trips to other points of police training interest will be taken by the group in the future.

Devonshire Road

For the benefit of newcomers to the college and also those persons who couldn't find the Devonshire Country Club last semester, the directions are as follows: Take El Camino Real (Highway 101) to the main intersection of San Carlos. Turn right at the Mobiloil gasoline station and continue up the road until reaching a fork. Take the left hand fork to the dance.

Data . . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
AMS Barn Dance	Devonshire	Tonight
Game — Rams vs. San Mateo	San Mateo	October 28
Rally — State Rally	Lake Merced	November 1
Game — Rams vs. S. F. State	Seals Stadium	November 3
S. F. State Dance	State Gym	November 3
Game — Rams vs. Los Angeles	Seals Stadium	November 10
Tri-College Night	Palace Hotel	November 10

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1939 No. 8

BILL FRANTZ ..... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser ..... Business Adviser
Joan Nourse ..... Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross ..... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ..... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat ..... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Sports Editor
Lucrezia Antonicelli ..... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ..... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop ..... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Kay Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Welcker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

STATE COLLEGE ADOPTS GOOD NEIGHBOR ATTITUDE; DROPS 'RIVALRY' BY INVITING STUDENTS TO GROUND BREAKING CEREMONIES

FRIENDSHIP after five years of athletic and scholastic competition!

Other "traditional rivals" trespass on one another's grounds in order to commit malicious mischief during the week preceding their "Big Game". The college and its most formidable opponent, San Francisco State College, will carry on their respective pre-game activities with a spirit of sharing one another's good fortune.

On top of the news that the construction of our buildings is progressing more rapidly than ever, State received the news of the groundbreaking for its new location. The State campus will be in the vicinity of our campus.

The Associated Students of the State College have invited the entire student body of our institution to share in its good luck next week at the ground breaking ceremonies. After the game the students of the college are invited to the State College dance to be held in their gym. Athletic rivalry does not interfere with scholastic friendship.

There stands the first step toward a good neighbor policy. An ideal situation between "traditional rivals".

Welfare Council Proposed to Remedy Existing Faults in Student Government; Students to Vote on Issue in Near Future

COMING to the aid of a student government harassed by a lack of precedence in dealing with certain types of student problems, Jack H. Lund, former University of California Welfare Council chairman informed the executive council of his experiences in welfare committee activity.

To establish such a council in the college, Lund remarked that the group should be necessarily composed of persons who can work together smoothly, be willing to put forth their time and energy in the best interests of the student government, and have the mental qualifications necessary for investigating problems concerning their fellow students.

HIGH HONOR

To a person interested in serving the college, membership on such a committee is the highest honor he can receive. Because the committee is appointive, it is possible to choose intelligent, responsible students to serve on the council. Many capable students of the college never have a chance to demonstrate their abilities to serve. Some are defeated for an elective office while others refuse to place themselves before the student body to be chosen to represent them. Here is the ideal solution for the defeated but capable candidates.

HOLDS INVESTIGATIONS

Although the council hasn't administrative duties it carries on the investigations necessary for the executive council to draw its own conclusions.

An organized, intelligent committee of several students is required for an emergency—the Welfare Council answers that description and does the work with a minimum of friction. Its value is immeasurable. The Welfare Council could have handled any of the executive council's problems this semester in an efficient manner.

To have this valuable committee in the college it will be necessary to make a change in the present Associated Students' Constitution. As soon as the particulars for the formation of the council have been decided, students of the college will be called to a business meeting to vote upon it.

. . . while thinking . . .
By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

CURRENTLY featured in a London newspaper is a cartoon severely upbraidling the United States for remaining out of the present war.

The author of the cartoon expresses the feeling that this nation should have declared war on Germany no later than a week after the Allies did. Waxing sarcastic, the cartoon scornfully comments that it took America three years to enter the last war, and that this nation evidently hasn't learned through past experience.

We beg to contradict that opinion. We did learn a lesson from the last war. The quicker the Allies realize that the United States is regarding World War II as strictly a European conflict, the better off they will be. It is most definitely their war and they are entirely welcome to it.

* * *

INTERESTING revelations: Pet phrase of Communists both here and abroad is "There is not one unemployed member of the Communist Party in Russia."

The interesting part comes in when it is discovered that only two and one-half million people in Russia are members of the party. With a population of approximately 185,000,000 we wonder how the other 155,500,000 exist?

* * *

RUMORS that the famed Rome-Berlin axis is due to split up soon have become more prevalent as the days pass.

With things in Europe shaping up as they are, it seems quite likely that this rumor will be confirmed, especially since it is a definitely established fact that the Italian people as a whole are opposed to Nazi Germany. There never has been a great deal of love lost between the two peoples, regardless of what diplomats would have you believe, and the recent German pact with Soviet Russia has not helped this feeling.

* * *

THE French are currently honoring a woman who has 38 men in her family, including sons, grandsons and sons-in-law serving in the army.

It is reported that the government will honor her with a medal.

It makes us wonder how long it will be before she begins receiving official letters fringed with black or perhaps another medal, awarded posthumously to one of her sons.

* * *

NATIONAL

THE long awaited purge of undesirable elements within the United States has finally begun.

Last week's indictment of Earl Browder, general secretary of the American Communist Party is only the first of a long list of offenders to be brought before the courts.

It has always been our contention that contrary to popular belief, the American government has not been asleep all this time, but instead has been secretly investigating the activities of these groups, waiting for conclusive proof before acting.

Now the proof is prepared and we fully expect the government to launch a decisive drive to rid the nation of these subversive groups that have been lulled into a false sense of security.

* * *

STATE

THE grim stone walls of Terminal Island in San Pedro will open November ninth to release into organized society, one of the most famous of American criminals, Al Capone.

Once the greatest czar of gangdom, Capone is now a shattered man, broken in health and spirit, the penalty he paid for breaking the law.

Indeed an object lesson to anyone considering a life of crime.

* * *

EXPOSITION

MOST perplexing riddle before San Franciscans during the past few weeks has been whether the Golden Gate International Exposition will open again in 1940.

Although at the time of this writing, no decision has been reached, we wish to go on record as predicting that the Fair will operate during the months of May, June, July and August of next year.

Reason for this opinion which may result in making this columnist look exceedingly ridiculous, is that reliable sources have informed us many of the concessionaires have already signed contracts for another year. It is our opinion that the advancement of the closing date of October 29 was merely a ballyhoo stunt to get the crowds to Treasure Island, and also a safeguard against the unpredictable weather prevalent in the Bay area this time of year.

Of the total amount of taxes paid in 1938 by the railroads, 77.4 per cent went to local and state government.

in TROOD ings
By Dot

"IF"—what an interesting word, and Hazel Rawson Cades has made the most of it, to describe the woman of today. According to Miss Cades there are two types—either You're Sugar or You're Spice. Of course this doesn't apply to all women throughout the world, but if two or more "IF'S" fit you, you'll know your number.

SWEET SUGAR

Now let's look and see if you belong to the SUGAR class. Do you blush easily when spoken to, and are you timid about new styles? You are—well you're definitely sugar.

But if you wear black well and are not afraid of red accents, and you are young and sun-tanned, then you can belong to the Spice class of Fall 1939.

Oh, you want to know what else you can be when you're in the Sugar category. Can you wear pink or blue well? Answer this one honestly—Are you a real blonde? and are you always taken for a junior-miss?

Ah, what's this? You want to know if all the sophisticated women are in the Spice class. Definitely not, because there are many sweet, demure women who don't slump and have good facial bones, and look just right in well-tailored clothes. You can't be too fat because it wouldn't be fair, and you're a mistress of the art of mascara.

NATURAL COLOR

Those young "GALS" in the Sugar class are most annoying—they want to know what else they do that classifies them as Sugar. Well, you're not very good at putting on your make-up, but you have just loads and loads of natural color, so make-up in general shouldn't bother you very much. You love to have your best friends have garden parties because you just dote on wearing garden party-clothes.

Lecture three for the Spice Class —your coiffure is soigne, and you're not too blonde. And of course you can wear any of the hats they're showing this year—just as long as you don't wear them around the local campus.

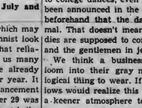
Don't you know which group you belong to yet? It certainly is about time—either you're very slow or you don't really know or care.



All right, we're back to the Sugar class and you have little hands, and you'd like people to think you do not wear make-up, and when you get presents you prefer toilet water to perfume, and you look very sweet and demure with all those intricate curls, and to top all this YOU LOOK LIKE QUEEN ELIZABETH.

SPICY SPARKS

After this feature, young ladies of the Spice Class, you are excused for the year. You look your best in rachel face powder and you have a well-shaped mouth. Those nails that belong to you are long and beautiful and that camellia skin is the talk of the town, honestly it's luscious. And last, but not least, you are the ones that ends out SPARKLING.

Now, don't go and get all excited just because you think you can wear red hats or you look just right in well-tailored clothes. Perhaps you can fool the public and not wear a bit of make-up, or you love to wear garden clothes. It all depends—on one occasion you might be classed in the Sugary Class and then turn around and that night be in the Spice Class.

Oh, well, let's not worry about it because one can get too involved with the topic, and we still haven't quite figured out what class we belong in.

COME LIKE A MAN

Editor, The Guardsman:

Some friends of mine and I were wondering why some fellows come dressed in sports shirts, minus ties, to college dances, even though it has been announced in the college paper beforehand that the dance is informal. That doesn't mean that the ladies are supposed to come in anklets and the gentlemen in jeans or cords.

We think a business suit would loom into their gray matter as the logical thing to wear. If only the fellows would realize this it would lend a keener atmosphere to the dances.

The "400"

Cheering the Team
By Marion MacKillop

The Spectator . . .
By JANET FELLOWS

AS usual, Micky Rooney's latest picture, Babes In Arms is excellent entertainment. Babes In Arms is not a great dramatic picture, nor is it the best musical comedy. It is merely good fun for all who see it.

Here and there in the picture is a poignant scene between Rooney and other members of the cast, and Rooney never fails to execute his play practically perfectly.

JUDY EXCELS

Judy Garland does not let us down, either. Of course one is completely enamored to just listen to Judy sing, but when her superb acting and her enjoyable dancing talent is thrown in for good measure, who can complain?

The story of Babes In Arms is built up around Mickey Moran (Rooney), whose parents are old-time vaudeville actors. The old-time troupers try to stage a comeback, but cannot succeed. Mickey and the other children of the actors write and produce their own musical comedy, Babes In Arms, which is a gigantic success. The picture ends with a bit of American propaganda in its thrilling finale.

TEARS AND CHEERS

Charles Winninger, Rooney's father in the picture, is of course splendid as the forgotten trouper of better pre-talkie years.

The comedy must not be overlooked either, however. It is not the dialogue that is so funny, but the way Rooney presents the dialogue that calls forth the vociferous laughter.

The Rooney imitations of Clark Gable, Lionel Barrymore, and Franklin D. Roosevelt were extremely good.

On the same program was Television Spy, a thrilling mystery story of foreign intrigue and spies who try to capture the secret plans of a television machine that can pick up a picture thousands of miles away, and would be invaluable in time of war. Of course the heroes, the Los Angeles police force, arrive in time and the story ends with a television romance, but it was fine while it lasted.

It has always been our desire to comment on the apparent stereotyped form of the second rate or "B" pictures. Television Spy was typical, being another run of the mill melodrama appealing only to the imagination.

It is really a crime to place such motion pictures before the eyes of a gullible public. It would be different if there were any substance to these attempts at drama, but as is obvious to most intelligent persons, there is absolutely none.

It is not our intention or purpose deliberately to malign the motion picture business, for it is one of the nation's foremost industries. There is no doubt that some of the finest dramas ever seen have come from Hollywood. The opposite however, can also be claimed, that Hollywood has succeeded in giving millions of theater-goers some of the worst examples of screen fare.

Cabbages & Kings
By Blue Pencil Bill

"ONE can tell winter approaches for it gets later earlier." Which reminds us—59 days till Christmas.

A LITTLE SECRET

Young ladies of the college, as a rule, do nothing out of the ordinary. They attend classes, look pretty, and primp for dances. However, one young lady has done something out of the ordinary, for yesterday we received this note:

Blue Pencil Bill:

If a certain dark-haired bespectacled young lady (name omitted) doesn't come across with last week's blackmail, a certain "Sug" is going to give a certain "bisquit brown, blonde" gentleman the lowdown on a certain southern gentleman.—But certainly!"

Ah intrigue, intrigue.

SUCCESS STORY

The "superabundance of alumni haunting the portals of the college's borrowed buildings brings to mind this father and son scene.

Father: "Why don't you get out and find a job? When I was your age I was working for $3 a week in a store, and at the end of five years I owned that store."

Son: "You can't do that nowadays, Dad—they've got cash registers."

* * *

It's just about time this semester the Low Frosh were put wise to the fact that they are members of the AMS or AWS, according to their sex.

When we were a Low Freshman we wanted to know whom you paid your dues to in order to join the Men's Club. How amazed we were to find ourself a member without having to sign any papers. Our amazement gave way to disgust when it was revealed that the AMS activities were cared for by Joe Amori, the faculty adviser and one or two of the elected officers.

The dance at Devonshire tonight is another example of a small group of interested fellows assisting Joe Amori and the elected officers.

We remove our hat to you Joe, Lee Scarlett, Hugh Ryan, Bobby Owens, and Ken Pasquinelli.

WEATHER BUREAU DEPT.

The hill-billies were lying on the floor around the fire, their shooting irons laid away, and the corn squeezings within reach when one of them spoke up:

"Is it rainin' out?"

"I don't know," replied another prostrate figure.

"Well, git up an' look," insisted the first speaker.

"Aw, leave the perspected one, sleepily, "call the dawg in an' see if he's wet."

* * *

INTELLECTUAL BURLESQUE

What a blow to intellectualism! Tuesday morning we rode past the Geary Theater and saw a long line of intelligent-looking customers standing under a huge sign advertising "A Night At The Moulin Rouge" 95¢ of the Cast Girls!!". We looked carefully—not a man in the line. It's not human nature, we thought. Then we saw an inconspicuous poster announcing that a Town Crier Forum would take place at the theater that morning. Tsk, tsk, what a beautiful feature story it would have made.

shots at RAMdom . . .
By Isadore Maloff

SOMEONE played a mean trick on us several days ago and we're still fighting mad. We don't like to accuse anyone in this institution of maliciously stealing lunches, but it surely appears as though certain students are stealing lunch pilfering are being harbored within our midsts.

It was only last Tuesday at noontime that we hurried down to the study hall to partake of our lunch, our mouth watering for the delicious repast our mother had prepared. We had only to glance at the depleted paper bag to sense that something was amiss(ing). A more thorough investigation disclosed that while we had diligently been attending classes, someone had taken two French donuts, (as only our mother can make them), two bananas, (and everyone knows how dear bananas are this season), and an orange from the sack containing our lunch meant for us. The thief, (and if the person who committed this crime happens to read this we hope he relishes being labelled a thief) had thoughtfully and rather graciously left us one bologne sandwich on a hard roll (total value $.05) while he had wantonly consumed the choicer morsels of our lunch.

NOT ONLY VICTIM

This is not the first time we have been the victim of such foul play We were willing to forgive and forget when such an incident first happened to us several weeks ago, but a repeat performance is just two, too much. Nor are we the only one to be so treated. Numerous complaints of lunch pilfering in the study hall have been brought to our attention.

We doubt whether anyone attending this college is so down and out that he must rummage through other students' lunches so that he may sustain himself. Furthermore, if such a condition does exist, why the silence from college health authority?

When it comes to sheer perfection our mother turns out one of the best lunches that any student ever took to school. She is far too good a lunch maker to waste her talents on some—(censored)—crook who makes a business of robbing the choicer portions of our lunch. Personally, we like our lunches intact, exactly the same as our mother packed them with her own lily white hands. (Thanks to Ivory). We don't appreciate anyone paying over something that was originally meant for us.

NEEDS A SOLUTION

What would the college authorities have us do? Place poisoned donuts in our lunches in an effort to apprehend the guilty, bring our lunch in a padlocked lunchbox sealing it with cement to the study hall chairs at the same time carrying blow torches with which to secure it when we so desire; or go hungry as many of us are now doing because of this very situation??

The reasons advanced for lack of place in which to store lunches seem pitiful enough. It seems that the Powell Street Building belongs to someone who would not appreciate the little room adjacent to the checking booth being reserved for keeping lunches alone.

What we demand is an intelligent solution of this problem without relying on that standby answer for years, "It won't be long now until—".

* * *

'OOMPH' VS. 'YUMPIH'

Lusciously lavish Lana Turner, formerly of Washington High School, and now making good in a big way as a movie actress, appears to be offering Ann "oomph" Sheridan stiff competition with her recent billing as movieland "yumph" girl. While the Sheridan girl has a wow of a sweater something which appeals to those who like their women mildly mysterious, Lana recently remodeled version of Miss Turner apparently boasts enough "yumph" to completely turn a man's head.

* * *

BUT VIRILELY

J. G. O'Brien, whose manly figure merits the attention of quite a few onlookers on the beaches seems to make somewhat a business of endorsements. Mr. O'Brien's perfectly proportioned likenesses have been gracing the gaily magazine advertisements of Charles Atlas, dealer in manly bodies, for considerable time as a "come on" for those puny individuals who would crave the body beautiful.

And now we see that this same O'Brien has written a letter of appreciation to a newly launched physical culture studio on Sutter Street. The style O'Brien's business sense seems to be as highly developed as his body but at a time when we're trying to build up our sluggish system by choosing between Carter's L. L. P. and Heman Atlas' dynamic tension course, it all becomes very, very confusing.

Get in on That Ram Caravan to San Mateo; Meets at 1 Tomorrow

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Soccer Is Going On; See the Rams Meet San Jose State!

WOMEN'S . . . Sports Parade
By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

HERE AND THERE IN LOCAL COMPETITIONS

Ye Guardsman's sports ed gives Police Gazettes to outstanding footballers—we can hardly do that, but we can and do offer congratulations and salutations to the Ramette athletes who participated in Saturday's archery and tennis meet for their splendid performance, individually and collectively.

Nine colleges competed bringing the number of contestants up to the hundred mark. For the first intersectional meet this college has held and as a starter for the current semester, the locals have set a precedent that will be hard to beat and equally as hard to equal.

To Emily De Young, hostess chairman for the tourney, goes an orchid (whichever is rarest)—in fact, a whole armful of orchids (literally speaking, of course). Hers were the hands that fashioned the ribbons the women of the college wore for identification purposes.

Lou Jacke, WAA prexy who was so enthusiastic about the merits of her various committees that she finally ran out of praises, also comes in for her share of Huzzahs.

ODDS AND ENDS IN OUR WORLD OF SPORTS

Rifleers, college rumor has it, will soon (if they haven't already) apply for admission into the San Francisco Rifle Association. There's no stopping these women once they've started, is there?

Hockey-ites (hm-m) not content to stage one play-day, alone, will march to Funston field, November 11 and again November 18 to engage in stick-crossing tactics with S. F. State. The outcome of the war is expected to make local history.

As our learned friend and colleague, Leonard Gross (of While Thinking fame?), you know I would have it, International Russia enters the picture now as folk-terpsichoreans take active measures to finagle frivolous fundamentals in the art of dancing out of the Russian Dance hall.

Volleyball players have separated into two teams—one, the "Volleyteens" under the captaincy of Jean Wallace, the other, the "Smackeroos" under Ruth Weiman...With names like those! Well . . . were hoping for the best! The class as a whole has challenged the faculty to a "thrilleroo" at 2:30 October 25.

RANDOM NOTES ABOUT CLUBS YOU'VE ENTERED

To the head of the class this week goes Joseph Williams, ice-skate instructor, with his mimeographed sheets on the art of ice-skate. They're numbered lessons 1-2-3-4, and each contains a lesson for the day. Instructor Williams expects you to use your initiative but he's not averse to a word or two of warning. On each lesson is the caution: If you start to fall relax and sink to the ice—then you'll find how soft it really is—(the ice, we mean).

Have you heard the sad story about the local sport-lassies who, after piling the box lunches for the tourney in the only available car found themselves without sitting or standing room, however cramped?

With date bureaus springing up all around the college, table tennis isn't to be left behind—starting Friday, Barbara Smith, bureau chairman, will provide partners for tennisers that don't have mates.

HE'S NO LADY

Murray Galbraith is NOT a woman—but definitely! He is, however, enrolled in the ice-skating class which is co-educational, and therefore, open to comment here. Galbraith is a champ ice-skater—in fact, he is such a rabid skate fan that he overlooked removing his ice-skates from a Los Angeles bound car. Now "the champ" sits morosely gazing at the calendar as Friday afternoon Ice classes skate by waiting for his frantic telegrams to bring results.

RAMblings
By RAY BERNS

Berns Trots Out the Dead Past; Reviews Hypothetical Future

BIG GAME TOMORROW

Looking ahead, we find that there is a month crammed chuck full of athletic activity before us. The contests will be supplemented by carvans, excursions, and entertainment.

Tomorrow is the championship game with San Mateo. When we say championship game, we don't mean perhaps. Sacramento may be counted out of title contention. Modesto and San Mateo, our two remaining opponents, met at Modesto last week-end with the peninsulans emerging victorious, 20 to 7.

An auto caravan led by the student leaders will make the jaunt and it is suggested that all who have jallopies and can make the journey, join the caravan.

TRADITIONAL RIVALS

Next Friday night is that traditional battle with our cross-city rivals, San Francisco State.

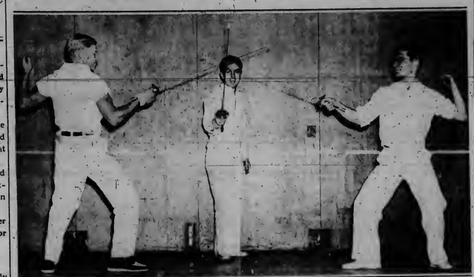
State hasn't been doing any too well on the gridiron this year, but we have a sneaking suspicion that the team will be fired up for the contest. A first string halfback in the lineup, by the way, is that elusive youngster, Johnny Verducci. Johnny was the outstanding back at this institution last year and it will be interesting to note how our present crop stacks up.

The week following the State encounter, Los Angeles City College, our oldest football rival, invades our metropolis. Gridiron relations have been on the upgrade since the inception of this institution. Los Angeles, in fact, was the first team we ever played. The game was scheduled before the faculty was chosen.

Los Angeles won that first game which was played in a driving rainstorm before a handful of adherents at Seals Stadium. Both teams were kicking and waiting for the breaks. In the fourth quarter, Los Angeles was the recipient of a gift touchdown. One of our backs let the ball squirm out of his arms and it went straight into the arms of an Angeleno who sweated to a touchdown. Since the opening of the series, each team has won two, so this looks like the deciding game.

The rally committee is preparing to meet the southerners when they arrive in the city and we have an idea that it would be a swell gesture if as many of the students as possible turned out and helped the committee give the visiting lads a rousing welcome.

While on the subject of caravans and welcomes, it might not be amiss to mention the fact that plans for our Modesto invasion on Friday night, November 17, are going ahead rapidly.



There is still a slight doubt in the minds of the excursion leaders as to whether we should go by train or bus. Jack Schmale, college press agent, and yours truly, have been soliciting opinions as to how we should go, and if any have any ideas, don't be afraid to approach us and let us in on them. Current opinion seems to favor the train although bus is not quite as expensive. More on that later.

* * *

Personal Note:

That swell fellow, outstanding athlete, and last year's high soph prexy, Floyd Lawrence, has gone and done it. Yes siree, last week Floyd tied the marital knot with Eve Patton, also one of our former student. Congrats to both you and Eve, Floydie boy!

'Foiled Again!' Coised The Villyun

Honor must be satisfied, and satisfied it will be as Harold Carpenter (left) squares off against his opponent, Silvio Besozzo, and Robert Dodd holds the arch of foils. These students are enrolled in Verret Weber's co-educational fencing class, find a dull school day enlivened by a little bout under the admiring eyes of the co-eds. Not so admiring was the camera eye which caught the fencers posing a little too much, reflected a not too perfect form.

Rifleer B Squad Beats Poly; Hits Trust Next Week

Participation has been started by the college rifle teams in competition with the Polytechnic High School rifleers and in the Metropolitan Indoor Championships.

The college's second team eked out a five point victory over the high school's first team, 883 to 878. The college's first team, competing in four man shooting, shot in the indoor matches held at the National Guard Armory last Sunday.

The match, sponsored by the Oakland Rifle League, was entered by teams from the Olympic Club, and other major clubs of the Bay area.

The team will hold its first league match on Thursday, November 2, with the American Trust. This year, the Ram rifleers have advanced one step in league caliber, now in a Class B league of competition. Other teams represented in this league include Southern Pacific, the Mission Rifle Club, the Independent Rifle Club, and American Legion Post 429.

The scores of the matches are given below. Results of the indoor match will not be known until this week-end.

Metropolitan Indoor Champions
100 Yards, Prone, 20 Shots

Templeton	197
Minium	194
Davy	194
North	196
Humphrey	182
	785

S.F.I.C. 2nd Team

Alberton	182
Price	179
Humber	176
Uyeda	172
Hewitt	173
	883

Polytechnic 1st Team

Reichert	185
Buchenmeyer	172
Allen	171
Dund	178
Bedford	172
	878

It's True! Swim Team Meets At Last, Organizes

Initial meeting of members of the college aquatic team was held last Tuesday at Galileo.

Presided over by Russell Sweet, Ram mentor, matters discussed pertained to the schedules of future aquatic events which were in hope of being held.

SWIM SQUAD COULD BE

"Among the more important subjects considered were possibilities of the Rams having a regular swim squad, a water polo outfit, or both.

However, it was decided that only through investigation of instructor's hours, student time, and finances to say nothing of the use of a swimming pool, could swim events be definitely fixed.

Although the attendance of the group was comparatively small, Sweet is voiced the opinion that expectancy of a "full fledged" group was at hand.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Next meeting of the team was undecided, but Sweet mentioned that it would be held soon and announced beforehand.

Appointment of a special group for the purpose of determining what would be for the best of the swimming squad was immediately made as soon as the meeting got under way.

"It requires a lot of work and thought to organize a good college outfit. That's what we intend to do," Sweet said.

He also voiced the opinion that the result of the Rams having an aquatic team would yield considerable significance as to the "potentialities of the Balboa Park institution having its own pool."

Past Ring Kings To Try Comeback In A.M.S. Fights

Former college champions will try again to earn their boxing crowns in the Men's Club fights this November.

Bob Raine, 169 pound title holder, announced this week that he was planning entrance into both, his old division, of which he was champion last fall and the heavyweight class.

Jack Weicker, former 159 pound champ, will attempt to regain that crown, which he lost to Eddie Romley last spring.

One of the champions from last year, Allen Larson, will defend his 149 pound crown, which he won by two vicious knockouts in the first rounds of his battles. Larson will also try to make the weight for the 139 pound title.

In the meantime, Jack Gaddy's and Joe Amori's boxing class are advancing in their knowledge of the art, and will be well represented this year.

Seattle's Dick Barrett and Hal Turpin were the first two Coast League pitchers to chalk up twenty victories this season.

Jim Thorpe, Carlisle, scored 198 points during the 1912 season—the collegiate record for points.

Ice Skimmers Elect Big Shots; Go to Work on Club Constitution

Definitely forming a junior college skating club, college skaters met last Friday and elected Fred Quandt, President; Margaret Meeder, Vice President; Patricia McKenna, Secretary; Walter Wodden, Treasurer.

A committee of two, June Manning and Frank Dennison, were appointed to draw up a constitution for the club. Although it is not yet complete it is expected that the constitution will be ready in a short time.

Skaters are now on their third lesson. According to Joseph Williams, instructor, they are progressing slowly but surely.

Ski Club Asks Charter; Maps Tentative Plans

Petition to become a chartered club of the college was filed last week by the new Skiing group, which has been organized by Instructor Alden Smith and Bob Orr, student member.

Since initiation, membership of the skiiers has increased rapidly. It was announced that there are now 22 men and 8 women who hope to soon become regular participants of ski events.

It has been noted that most of the Ski enthusiasts own their own skis. However, others have obtained group rates for the purpose of borrowing a set of skis which cost anywhere in the way of $5 to $30.

Some of the larger state universities and colleges have adopted skiing as a "fun sport", principally because of the numerous trips and excursions.

Not to be outdone, the local Ski group has made several tentative plans.

Erling Jacobson, popular member of the college ski class said recently that he thought skiing would soon become one of the more popular sports within the college.

"If the petition for our organization into a club is chartered, trips and intra-club meets will probably be best a matter of time," Jacobson said.

Rams Battle San Mateo Tomorrow Afternoon; Outcome May Decide Conference Championship Of '39

Tomorrow afternoon the conference football championship for 1939 will be decided. Tomorrow afternoon the Rams meet San Mateo Junior College on San Mateo's home field. Time of the kickoff is 2 p.m.; importance of the contest is such that both teams will probably throw everything they've got, shooting the works without reservation in an all-or-nothing gamble.

Indians Smear Ram Shinkickers In 5 to 1 Rampage

That soccer, as played by the Stanford Indian, was more than the Rams could cope with was demonstrated last Saturday afternoon when Coach Tom Wilson's Ram shinkickers were given the works by a 5 to 1 score.

It was a beautifully played game, especially from the Stanford point of view. Even Coach Wilson was compelled to admit that the Rams had played against the smoothest opponent to date.

REGULARS OUT

Minus five of their regulars, because of unsatisfactory midterm results, the Rams were forced to employ a partially new unit against the Indians. It seemed that their most valuable man, the goalie, was sorely missed, as the score indicates.

However, Wilson remained satisfied with the local team's work. Coming through again for the Rams was Marty Georgian, fullback, who had the distinction of scoring the lone goal for his team.

It was a long 35 yard free kick that swerved cleanly between the posts during a busy second half which saw Stanford start accumulating three goals. Its two obtained in the opener made a total of five markers.

Taking into consideration the fact that the average height of the Indian forward was 6 feet in comparison with a mere 5 foot 5 inch Ram line, the defeat was not a disgrace.

Hugh Ryan, team manager and publicity agent, expressed his sympathy for the losers when he said: "Those big Stanford boys even outweighed our men 45 pounds per athlete."

WEATHER FINE

The weather during the contest, which was played at the Beach Chalet (take car No. 7) was ideal.

Official of the contest was Harry Post, ex-soccer star who made a name for himself a few years ago when he received Coast honors.

Present standings show that the Rams in the Junior College League are tied for first place with San Mateo.

It's an entirely different story in the Major College Conference. Standings here have the Wilsonites down in fourth place.

SAN JOSE STATE GAME

With the hope of getting back his five soccer stars who have been placed under temporary ineligibility because of grade deficiencies, Coach Tom Wilson of the Rams will send a confident squad into the oncoming tilt with San Jose State.

In the game tomorrow at the Beach Chalet, Wilson's men will be up against a team that held the California Bears to a 1 to 1 tie last week.

Called the fastest soccer outfit in the Bay area, the State men are expected to make things as tough as they possibly can.

"It will require the finest we've got to beat these boys," commented Wilson, "and we're looking forward to a tough contest."

Gals Shoot Works; Win Doubles, Singles Matches In Nine-College Tourney

Last Saturday, women athletes of the college showed the results of intensive coaching when in competition with nine other Northern California colleges, the locals came through with wins in the second singles finals and the first doubles final with scores of 6-4 and 7-5.

Estelle Mouridian took the singles match and Louise Hintermann and Astrid Rogenes were doubles winners.

Ram Keglers Smash San Mateo; Amori's Men Impressive in Opener

Scoring an impressive victory in their debut, Coach Joe Amori's Ram pinsmashers defeated a San Mateo Junior College team in a bowling match on the peninsula alleys last Monday night, 2501 to 2403.

High series for the evening was turned in by Mel Bachagalupi, Ram Kegler, who bowled a neat 564. "Bach" also contributed high game with 320.

Tom Keene was the only San Mateo to bowl over 500, hitting 551.

A return clash between the two squads will be held on the local alleys in the near future.

Local Scores:

Bachagalupi	564
Papaiefro	457
Maslach	438
Riordan	537
Guinasso	505

Sports Shorts
THE WORMS-EYE VIEW

Speaking of football, the highest score ever run up on the American gridiron was a 222 to 0 count of Georgia Tech over Cumberland in the days of 'way back. The slaughter, incidentally, lasted only three quarters, due to the fall of night.

A story is told of the massacre. It seems that once Cumberland actually got the ball, but the halfback fumbled. "Hey," he yelled to one of his teammates, "pick up the ball!" The teammate looked around at the big charging Tech linemen, and replied: "Pick it up yourself; you dropped it!"

Two weeks ago today, the Rams went out and won their first conference victory (and, incidentally, their second contest of the season) in walloping the Sacramento Panthers by a 19 to 6 count.

One week ago today, San Mateo went out and won its first conference victory in upsetting the favored Modesto Pirates to the tune of 20 to 7.

And that's why tomorrow's battle should determine on whose head the conference crown will rest in commemoration of a victorious 1939 season.

Will Decide Championship

Tonight, San Francisco and San Mateo are running neck and neck in the league standings, each having captured its initial battle to start with a batting average of 1000.

Tomorrow night, one of these teams will have triumphed in its second conference clash. That team will be highly favored to win the third and final tussle and annex the championship. At worst, it will be assured of a tie for honors.

All this provided, of course, that the Rams and San Mateo do not end up in a deadlock.

Mid-season Form

As, the victory over Sacramento demonstrated, the college footballers are entering the second phase of standard pigskin evolution. "Mid-season form" or "November play" are perhaps better descriptive terms for the seemingly sudden development that makes good ball clubs look great alone about the fourth or fifth game of the year. In this instance, it's merely the growing confidence and ease of action with which the Rams, an ably coached team with great potentialities, are hitting their stride for the games that really count.

There have been shiftings, minor in nature, of the team personnel. Taylor showed up very well in the first string combination. Meyer proved himself at tackle; as did Carignani at his new guard spot. It has been unnecessary to come out with any "shake-ups". A lineup expected to be identical with that starting the Sacramento game, will enter the lists tomorrow against San Mateo.

The opposition is certain to be formidable, having scored on land and through the air against Modesto. Both outfits want the championship badly, and both are pointing for this game. The fireworks, remember, begin at San Mateo at 2 p.m.

Previous record for the season shows the San Mateans to be a potent force indeed. In their opening game, they lost to S. F. State by a score of 12 to 18. This shows a good offense, which can, though being defeated, tally two touchdowns against a strong opponent.

In the next game, San Mateo beat Stockton Junior College, 15 to 0. Then the penninulans met and wallopped

Conference Standings:

Team	G	W	L	T	Pts.	Opp.
S.F.J.C.	1	1	0	0	19	6
S.M.J.C.	1	1	0	0	20	7
Sacto.	1	0	1	0	6	19
Modesto	1	0	1	0	7	20

the San Jose State Frosh, 19 to 6. No further comment is needed on this game; it speaks for itself.

Finally, last Friday, Modesto fell by a 20 to 7 count. So the Rams can't afford to underrate San Mateo. It will probably be the best game of the season, tomorrow afternoon, for both teams . . . and the toughest.

Starting for the Rams will be essentially the same lineup that began the Sacramento contest: Gray and Molich at ends; Meyers and Schoenstein at tackles; Carignani and Leong at guards; Mattson at center.

In the backfield will be Nauman and Gray at quarter and full, respectively, and Spieller and Taylor at halves.

San Mateo fields the following starting lineup: Lee and Wallen, ends; Huff and Markovits, tackles; Gaspar and Wisnom, guards; Adler, center; Curti, quarter; Huff, full; Roblin and DeLong, halves.

Club Activities

- Alpha Gamma Sigma . . . Watch the bulletin board.
- Alpha Phi Omega . . . Business, November 7 at 2371-29th Avenue.
- Astronomy . . . Every Monday evening from 7, to 9 in the Galileo Observatory.
- Beta Phi . . . Tennis, every Monday. This meeting to be at the Parkside Tennis Club.
- Chinese . . . Business, October 27, 8:00 at the YWCA, tower room. Members are requested to come as inter-collegiate dance bids will be distributed.
- French . . . The organization has been withdrawn from the club advisory board, but interested members of French classes are asked to see Edwin Cranston or Helen Kelly.
- Music . . . Program, November 2, at 3529 Emerson Stggt, Oakland.
- Phi Beta Rho . . . Business, November 2, 7:30 at 2425-21st Avenue.
- Pi Mu Gamma . . . Speaker, November 2 at 450 Sutter, 18th floor.
- Pick and Hammer . . . "Gems and Gem Cutting" by Dr. Forrestier, 172 Lunada Court, Monday, October 30, 8:30.
- Forum . . . Business and Discussion, October 31, at 716 Valencia.
- Japanese . . . Skating party, November 3, 10:30 p.m. at the Rollerstorium, Ocean near Fillmore.
- Italian . . . Business, October 27, 2:00 Powell, room 405.

Registrar's Office Reveals 85 Students Eligible for Graduation This Semester

Word comes from the registrar's office that petitions for graduation have been checked and that 85 candidates have been found eligible for graduation next January.

The list is final, but approval is subject to the satisfactory completion of each student's current program," said Mary B. Perry of the registrar's office.

Candidates are as follows:

Barbara Ainsworth, Georgette Allan, Paul Allen, Virginia Allen, George Amberg, Gyda Andersen.

Marie Biaggi, Willard Blackfield, Kathryn Bowman, William Brady.

Lorraine Calcagno, Adrian Carignani, R. Davis Carter, Marion Cassovia, Russell Casinella, Katherine Chan, Ruth Chin, Robert Cohn, Phillip Corin, Mildred Cosmo, George Cotterill, Jr.

A. Raymond Davis, Jr., Bernice deMartini, Moryuki Egusa, Betty Ellis.

John Finn, Norwood Forte, Elmer Freeman, Mary Fruciano, Evelyn Fuse, Marvin Georgian.

Ruth Hacke, Myra Harding, Yukio Hashiguchi, Robert Hatch, Joseph Hlidick, Jr., Helen Huber.

Gwendolyn Ino, Samuel Isaac, Albert Kanzaki, Frances Kosta, Adele Kuhn.

Allen Larson, Herbert Lear, Jr., Allan M. Lee, George Limteo, Geraldine Lorenz, Harold Lund.

Waldo MacDermott, Robert McGuire, Robert McMaster, Nyia Mahlstedt, Isadore Malotf, Leroy Mann, Claudie Marturet, George Maulsch, Masayoshi Matsuda, Daniel Mattrocce, John Moisan, Anatole Moskolenko.

Ben Papapietro, Kenneth Pasquinetti, Carol Pickering, Sylvia Rogenes, Arthur Rosenbrock, Eleanor Ruffino.

Pearl Sansom, Herman Simon, Arthur Smith, Jr., Hugh Smith, George Stewart, Ian Stoddart, Alvin Stolowitz, Gerald Sullivan.

Jack VanZandt, Frank Verducci, Thomas Vizzard, Peter Ward, Charles Watts, John Weicker, Shirley White, Rosalind Woo, Avery Woodward, Jr., Goro Yamamoto, Albert Young.

The average haul of freight in this country was 357 miles in 1938, compared with 337.42 miles in the preceding year.

A. W. S.

Muriel Nolan Model For AWS Fashion Show Tea

Frances Shoup, director of personnel at Livingston Brothers, today revealed that one of the models for the forthcoming AWS fashion show and tea, to be held November 14, will be Muriel Nolan, president of the Associated Women Students.

"We thought it would be a good idea to have a student of the college model along with one of the young women we will bring from the store," declared Miss Shoup, "and we selected Miss Nolan because she is the most logical person to represent the women of your college at all times."

"The question arose what do you want to see at this fashion show. I talked it over with Miss Nolan, Miss Van Dyke and Claire Cuneo, of the Home Economics Association, and we thought it would be a good idea if all the women in the college submitted a paper on what they would like to see," continued Miss Shoup.

Women Should Submit Ideas

"AWS members should submit ideas on the importance of clothing, by that we mean the way they rate clothing in their own personal wardrobe; types of clothing they want to see, street, school, evening, dinners, and formal clothing; color combinations that are important for the fall season; should a woman in college have a fur coat, if so what would be the logical fur to purchase; and the most important question, how much can you budget for your clothing during the semester?"

Answers to these questions should be submitted to Dorothy Trood, member of The Guardsman staff, who will be taking these answers and any other question on fashion by Wednesday of next week. November 1, Miss Nolan said. Miss Trood will be at Powell Street in the mornings and Galileo High School in the afternoons.

Business Leader To Speak

"We will also be honored by the presence of Mrs. M. N. Tavetkoff, manager of the Better Business Bureau, who will give a short talk before the fashion show. Mrs. Tavetkoff has had a vast amount of experience in the business world and will be of interest to all the women of the college," remarked Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

Women who will be assisting at the tea are Marian Murphy, Borghild Thorsen, Marjorie Lawson, Barbara Walsh, Gyda Anderson, Thursa Scott, Alice Otersen, Imelda Kenna, Jane Scott, Ruby Klistoff, Barbara Brown, Jean Arnold, Dorothy Martin, Helen Mackey, Dorothy Trood, and Mary Healy.

Health Attitudes Tests Given, Won't Affect Grades

Health Attitude Tests have been recently added to the college list of tests to discover the student's health attitudes and practices.

In the near future the college psychology department hopes to give these tests at the beginning of a hygiene course and then upon the completion of the course the test will be given again to find out what the student has learned and if any of his opinions have changed. Harold Leuenberger, psychology instructor, said.

These facts will have no effect whatsoever on a student's grade in Hygiene. Every student enrolled in a Physical Education class is required to take the test.

STANLEY'S
LUNCHES DINNERS
FOUNTAIN SERVICE
Corner Steiner and Sutter
Near Girls High

Civil Service Men Instruct

Seen above are prominent members of the Civil Service Commission and students who attended the convention of the Commission held here last week. Standing from left to right are: Louis Conlan, instructor from the college; W. L. Henderson, secretary, San Francisco Civil Service Commission; Roger Willis, college student; Ismar Baruch, Washington, D.C. Civil Service Commission; Fred Reuthers, college student.

Seated are Dr. Howard M. McKinley, Commissioner, S.F. Civil Service Commission; Gloria Miller, member of college, and Jean Chesley, student of the college.

COLLEGE COMPTROLLER TO SPEAK BEFORE CLUB ADVISORY BOARD MEETING NEXT THURSDAY

Meeting on November 2, the Club Advisory Board will have as its speaker Ward Nichols, college comptroller, who will discuss relations between the bank and the students.

Welfare Board Discussed

Discussion at the meeting will be on the Student Welfare Board and its relation to the Club Advisory Board.

Clubs which have not turned in their petitions at the last board meeting will not have the status of a chartered club of the college and therefore will have publicity revoked.

To prevent this, application for renewal of charter should be obtained from Harold Hoffman, president of the board, or Robert Schlesinger, vice-president.

The immediate filling out of these applications would prevent the loss of the renewal.

On the bulletin board at Powell Street will be posted the room in which the board is to meet on Thursday at 1 o'clock.

Hope To Improve Attendance

Attendance at the meeting of the board has not been very good, and the presidents of all the clubs of the college are urged to have a representative present at the coming meeting. Harold Hoffman, president, said, "To have the clubs an active part of the advisory board, representatives from each organization should attend each meeting to know what the board is doing and to relate the business of the meeting to the clubs."

During the meeting there will be discussion of possibility of the board acting as a student welfare group. How the welfare group should function was told by Jack H. Lund, former head of the Student Welfare Board at the University of California, at the Executive Council on Tuesday, October 24.

Adventurer Talks

Tuesday, October 31, at 12:10, Rm. G, 58 Sutter Street, Arthur Gore, an adventurous young man, will give an informal talk on a two thousand mile journey which he and his cousins made on the Arctic Ocean, packing all their food with them, and whenever necessary carrying their canoes on their back, shooting rapids, and obtaining many other thrilling experiences along the way.

"Students of the college are invited to attend the talk, which I am sure will be very interesting," said Paul McKelvey, office diction instructor.

LOBELL'S Recreation
341 STOCKTON
(near Sutter)
TABLE TENNIS ARCHERY GAMES
½ Rate on Table Tennis to Students from 1:00 to 7:00
FOUNTAIN LUNCH

DEAN BROWNE . . .
will you say to your boys who need help in purchasing a typewriter to see
R. L. (Bert) HASTINGS
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
581 Market St. Phone SUter 4734

College A Capella Choir Increases Repertoire For November Engagements

Until November the college A Capella Choir will not give any programs. For the present the choir is learning and increasing its repertoire.

"This semester we have the most interesting program the choir has ever had," said Flossita Badger, choir instructor. "Those who remember the negro spiritual, "Listen to Lambs" will be glad to know the choir has another spiritual that is very much like "Listen to Lambs", and just as beautiful. The new spiritual is "Sinner, Please Don't Let the Harvest Pass" by Montague. "Sinner, Please Don't Let the Harvest Pass" is interesting because of its dramatic crescendos and decrescendos, the haunting quality of the melody, and the vivid harmony."

Navy Day

(Continued from page 1)

known as the Father of the United States Navy."

This year, Navy Day is additionally memorable because it marks the 164th Anniversary of the founding of the U.S. Navy by the historical Continental Congress.

"Light, Kid?"

By NYLA MAHLSTEDT

Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents a series of interesting attempts at literature by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandys, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. Short stories will be signed, autobiographies will be published anonymously.

The shrill scream of a fire siren caused Sears to quicken his pace. Another fire! In no time Sears had become a part of the excited crowd gathered in front of an old frame building being demolished by lapping flames. Sears' attention was withdrawn from the fire to the antics of a boy who seemingly shared the excitement with the utmost pleasure. The boy's eyes met with those of Sears and his eyes flashed as he spoke.

"Some blaze ain't it, mister, but it ain't nothing compared to the one on Fifth and Everett that burned last Tuesday. Did'ya get to see it?"

Sears muttered something back, but the boy paid no attention as he watched the fire engine drive off. As the crowd diminished, Sears became aware of the cold night air. He noticed that the young boy had stuffed his bare hands deep into the pockets of his jacket. Sears started to run but on second thought he called over to the boy.

"Say young fella, how would you like to join me in a cup of coffee and a waffle?"

In no time the two were conversing over the steaming food. The boy did most of the talking. While Sears was listening he produced a package of cigarettes but he fumbled about for some matches.

"Got a light, kid?"

"Sure mister." With this the boy tossed several kitchen matches on the table.

"Smoke, kid?"

"No thanks."

Sears sat in silence as he puffed his cigarette then something happened . . . he had dropped something which the boy retrieved but as he placed the object on the table the boy's body stiffened. Then in a flash he made a bee line for the door." Sears was one ahead of him and soon had the boy in hand.

"Well, firebug, we finally caught you."

The boy was already sobbing his confessions. In his hands was the object which had revealed his guilt. It was the shining silver star of a police agent.

College Honor Graduate Receives U.C. Scholarship

John Matjasich, member of the college Alpha Gamma Sigma chapter, was the recipient of a scholarship to the University of California, it was learned last week.

Election of officers for the scholarship society was concluded last week and the following are the officers for the semester: Charles North, president; Virginia Lee Allen, vice president, and Willard Blackfield, secretary.

Alice Cooper, faculty adviser, revealed that club pins will be available at the Galileo bank until Wednesday, November 15.

Judicial Group Ready For Next Midterm Period

Although the Judicial Committee was idle last week, Al Williams, chairman, revealed that plans have been going ahead for combatting cheating during the next midterm examinations.

"Midterms start in two weeks. By that time, recommendations will have been given to the administration concerning new methods of stopping cheating. These methods will probably not include the honor system!"

The next meeting of the Committee will be held early next week.

ROLLER SKATING
BURKE ROLLA-WAY
2350 Geary Blvd. (near Baker)
Phone Fillmore 9664
SPECIAL PRICES
TO PRIVATE PARTIES

Requirements For Entering Radio Field Listed For College Writers By NBC Program Director

Students who wish to enter the field of radio production should major in speech, journalism, and radio script writing, advised Glenn R. Dolberg, program director for the San Francisco offices of the National Broadcasting Company last Friday.

The occasion was his lecture given for the benefit of the interested members of the college and Marie Vellerl's radio workshop classes at 58 Sutter Street.

The radio production field has now advanced to the point where college graduates may hold even the small, unimportant jobs, such as that of page-boy, Dolberg revealed. However, this ruling is in effect because these same page boys are to advance in their positions and educated men are needed to fill these responsible jobs.

"We find," said Dolberg, "that nearly all our men in the production field, announcers, directors, masters-of-ceremony and the like, need additional training before advancement. The training we give them is the same as that taught by Miss Weller in her script writing classes.

"Radio script writing, a foreign language, speech, journalism, and English should be taken by the would-be program director. The use of all these courses is practical in nearly all the positions in production. The manager of any small station, especially, must be gifted in these fields, and those with considerable experience in small stations are desired in even the larger networks.

"There are many problems in sound-effects and program selection and direction which confront the director of a radio program. In the emergencies which occur so often on a radio show, the training and education of the directors are vital to the carrying on of the program."

In answer to the often asked question, "How does one break into radio?" Dolberg replied, "One does not break into a radio job. The stations employ their help much as any business organization does. The best system seems to be to go to college, get a degree, and then knock at the doors of all the stations."

All Salinas Junior College students are asked to be on the lookout for a typical Junior college boy and girl for the La Beata contest which will be held soon.

"Especially For You"
TODAY ONLY
30c Lunch For 25c
GALILEO CAFETERIA
12:45 - 2:20

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .
Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.
509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600
Remington Rand, Inc.

you really don't want to "FLUNK"
Do You?
Your midterms are easy if you see your course outlines of the following subjects . . .

CHEMISTRY	HISTORY	POLITICAL SCIENCE
PHYSICS	ZOOLOGY	ANATOMY
BACTERIOLOGY	BIOLOGY	AMERICAN GOV'T
ENGLISH	BOTANY	PSYCHOLOGY
SHAKESPEARE	STATISTICS	LANGUAGES
GEOLOGY	ECONOMICS

AND MANY OTHERS
J. C. Student Store
518 POWELL

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
The Guardsman
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE
Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940
Vol. IX FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1939 No. 9

RAMS VS GATORS SEALS TONIGHT

Administration

Pacific Coast Registrars Meet November 12

Registrars from all over the Pacific Coast will convene here November 12 for a three day convention and get together, announced Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar. This event, the Fourteenth Annual Convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Collegiate Registrars, will be attended by representatives of colleges and universities from as far away as Montana and Idaho.

The association, of which Miss Learnard is secretary, meets for the extension of more progressive methods in the technique of registration, and for a better understanding of inter-institutional relations.

Drake Headquarters

Members will meet most of the time at the Sir Francis Drake hotel, while one meeting will be held at the Cathay House in Chinatown. In addition to these meetings and luncheons, a tour of San Francisco and Bay Area educational institutions has been planned for the afternoon of Tuesday, November 14.

Joseph P. Nourse, superintendent of schools in San Francisco, will welcome the delegates at the first business meeting, which will be held on Monday, November 13, at the Sir Francis Drake.

Officers of the association, in addition to Miss Learnard include the following: John A. Anderson, president, Pasadena Junior College; Dean Newhouse, first vice-president, University of Washington; Doris Dosier, second vice-president, Mills College; Elizabeth A. Prior, treasurer, Yakima Valley Junior College; (June 1, 1938 to May 31, 1938); George E. Dotson, treasurer, San Diego State College; (June 1, 1938 to May 31, 1940).

College Debaters To Meet USF Team And State Shortly

College debaters will meet the University of San Francisco freshman team in a debate scheduled for November 30 at 3:30 p.m., in Room 462 at Galileo High School. "Resolved, That the United States Should Repeal the Arms Embrago," is the question to be argued, and each college will be represented by a three-man team. Lloyd D. Luckman, debate coach, has not named the college team as yet.

Phi Delta Kappa, National Debating Society, has released its annual question: "Resolved, That the United States Should Follow a Policy of Strict (Economic and Military) Isolation Towards All Nations Outside of the Western Hemisphere Engaged in Armed International or Civil Conflict." San Francisco State will argue this question with the college debaters in the near future.

Preparations are still going on for a debate between the college and the University of California freshmen and varsity teams.

Anyone may attend the debates participated in by the college.

Future Pilots

Capt. Richards Selects 30 Students For Civil Aeronautics Course: Two Women Appointed To Coveted Spots

Of the 30 students selected for the new college aeronautics course two are women, Helen Crienkovich and Cecilia Steinberg, Captain George Richards, aeronautics instructor, announced.

Classes have been scheduled and instruction has begun. Classroom instruction is being held at 8 o'clock in the morning, Monday through Thursday, in Room E at 58 Sutter Street. Actual flight instruction is scheduled to begin November 10 at San Francisco Municipal Airport. Two 125 horsepower Fleet planes and one 65 horsepower Luscombe will be for the instruction. Students will probably receive six half-hour lessons for the first four weeks. After that one-hour instruction periods three times a week will be given.

Richards Thanks Applicants

Captain Richards expressed his thanks to those applicants for their interest and help in the program and regretted that they could not be selected for the course. "This does not mean that they cannot fly commercially," Richards said. "Disqualifications were made for poor scholastic records, temperaments, and physical disability, mostly defective eyesight.

"This course, which lasts a year, gives eight units of credit, three this semester and five next," Richards revealed. "More applications are needed in case some of the students selected are unable to continue with the course. Those applying and qualifying will attend the ground school classes and receive full credit for their work."

Minimum requirements for ground school work are as follows:

History of Aviation, 2 class hours; Civil Air Regulations, 1 class hours; Navigation, 15 class hours; Meteorology, 15 class hours; Parachutes, 1 class hour; Aircraft and Theory of Flight, 15 class hours; Engines, 5 class hours; Instruments, 5 class hours; Radio Uses and Forms, 2 class hours.

These are the minimum government requirements for Civil Aeronautics instruction, but the course, if time permits, will cover twice as much material.

Students completing the training will be qualified to hold private flying licenses. The air training program, of which the college course is a portion, is the result of the "air preparedness" policy which President Roosevelt advocated as an effort to increase the potential air strength of the nation.

Richards' selection list is as follows:

Robert Benson, William Buchanan, Edward M. Calestini, Thomas Caswell, Gerald Cardona, Glen Coats, Donald L. Clark, Helen Crienkovich, Harry R. Davis, Craig Fitzpatrick, Norwood N. Forte, Robert F. Foye, Leroy H. Grau, William J. Gerlir, Jack P. Gioso, Victor R. Lagersen, Harry G. Lund, Eugene A. Powell, Robert J. Raine, Fitch Robertson, Raymond E. Seuffert, Harold G. Shook, Cecilia Steinberg, Wallace E. Stuhr, Henry Suerstadt, Stanley W. Tobiason, Werner C. Von Berckefeld, Jay E. Wright, Walter R. Zimbeck.

Those students who have been selected to take the ground school instruction until one of the enrollees cannot continue with his studies are known as stand-ins and are as follows:

Elwood Wallace Anderson, Fred M. Fulstone, Joseph Popovic, and Norman A. Vogel.

Ex. Council

Constitutional Revision To OK Welfare Council

First results of the address last week of Jack H. Lund, former University of California Welfare Council was the announcement by the college executive council that drafts of a revised Associated Students' constitution would be prepared during the Christmas holidays for presentation to the students.

Purpose of the revision is to make possible the inclusion of a welfare council in the college, impossible to initiate at the moment because of constitutional limitations. Following the vacation, the new constitution will either be adopted or refused by the student body as whole, adoption in this instance being significant of student desire for the formation of a council modeled along the lines of the one now functioning at the University of California.

President's Trophy Planned

Appointed to study the eligibility requirements to be taken into consideration when granting the newly donated President Cloud's trophy to the outstanding student of the college each year was a special committee composed of William Frantz, editor of The Guardsman, Murielle Grenelle, secretary of the Associated Students, and Ray Berns, college yell leader.

Qualifications at present are tentatively as follows: a scholarship requirement of at least a C average, a service requirement of at least one semester on the executive council, and an activity requirement of an award of a block letter or a circle block.

"We do not feel that these requirements are as liberal as they might be, and therefore will take up the consideration of other means of determining eligibility. In addition, we will consider the possibility of awarding a medal to the winner of the trophy, inasmuch as the trophy itself will remain in the custody of the college," Miss Grenelle said.

Nominations Group Investigated

Another investigation committee was appointed composed of Harold Hoffman, Dorothy Trood and Lucille Jacke, for the purpose of sounding student reaction to a proposed nominations committee to be constituted each semester to make nominations for student office.

COLLEGE OFFICIALS BUSY INVESTIGATING CHANCES OF AQUISITION OF ART PIECES

That the Balboa campus may realize a share of Exposition art work, college officials are diligently investigating any angle which might lead to the acquisition of a mural or piece of statuary for the campus.

C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, has written to James Goldhart, who is in charge of the Argentine Government's participation at the Exposition, requesting that the college be considered when the two large murals in the Argentine Building are disposed of.

Murals Are Acceptable

The murals were found to be quite acceptable for college use by a committee from the college consisting of Registrar J. Paul Mohr, Richard M. Allman, college art instructor who passed artistic judgment on the murals, and Albert H. Larsen, assistant architect for the Balboa campus.

Officials are now awaiting an answer from Goldhart.

Trophies on the Balboa campus has been proceeding rapidly, especially in the science unit where workers are now several weeks ahead of schedule. It is estimated by the building superintendent that the science unit will be "closed in" by January 1, that is, the roof and side walls will be completed to the point that workers may start on the interior construction of the building.

Allman Exhibit Featured At Palace Of Legion Of Honor Until November 5

Richard M. Allman, college art instructor, is now exhibiting a group of 13 watercolors at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor.

The greater part of the painting are landscapes dealing with the San Francisco Bay Region, however one abstract study, entitled Football Pageant, is included. Several of Allman's watercolors, Violet Farm, Water Tank, and Truck Farm, portraying representative bay region scenes, have been touring the United States to appear in various exhibitions.

Allman is an active member in many art associations throughout the country and has participated in numerous showings in the United States. His murals have won him recognition and prizes.

A prominent San Francisco artist himself, Allman has studied under several noteworthy local artist, among them Maynard Dixon, famed bay region painter.

The watercolors will be on display at the Legion of Honor until Sunday, November 5.

Next Student Body Dance Set For December First At Palace Gold Room

Still undecided as to what orchestra will be secured for the dance honoring the Low Sophomore class, the social committee, under chairman Dorothy Trood, is going ahead rapidly with its other plans for the dance. The date for the dance has been set for December 1 and the event will take place from 9 o'clock until midnight.

Bids have not been decided upon yet," said Miss Trood, "but we hope to have that cleared up by the end of this week. The orchestras we are considering are Ernest Heckscher, Les Smith, and Eddie Murphy, former student of the college."

Rivals

College Joins State In Ground Breaking Ceremonies, Rally

Surrounded by a blanket of fog, students of this college last Wednesday joined with the student body of San Francisco State College in celebrating the ground breaking ceremonies for that institution held at Lake Merced.

Principal speaker from the college was Dean Edwin C. Browne. Other speakers were C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education; Alexander C. Roberts, president of San Francisco State; State Senator John Shelley; and dignitaries from the various groups that were instrumental in getting a new campus for State college.

Representing this college, a group of some 50 students turned out in honor State. The delegation, led by Associated Student's President Elmer Elubacher included other student body officers and representatives from The Guardsman, and organizations.

After the usual number of speeches, interspersed with selections from the State band and A Capella Choir, a joint rally between the two student bodies was held.

Various singing and dancing acts from both colleges were featured.

Displaying an unusual enthusiasm, students from the college participated in the cheers led by yell leader Ray Berns to such an extent that they almost overpowered the much larger group of rooters from the rival campus.

"It was unfortunate that the weather was so poor, since it scared away many of the students who had previously signified their intentions of attending," Berns said.

Because such pre-game enthusiasm was displayed, authorities from both institutions expect a large crowd at the annual football battle between the two institutions this evening.

Low Sophs Get Orrin Tucker At Mark Hopkins

Definitely planned for Wednesday, November 22, at the Mark Hopkins Hotel, San Francisco, the Low Sophomores will sponsor Junior College night.

Orrin Tucker will play, and be host to the college students on that evening. It is a week-night because Thanksgiving holidays will be near, and classes will not meet the next day.

The price of admission to this affair is $2.18 a couple, which will include cover charge and Coca-Colas for each student, according to Art Pomares, president of the class.

At the beginning of the semester the Low Sophs made tentative plans for a dinner and dance to be held in Berkeley, but further plans were not completed. Continued work on the part of the class officers made it possible for the class to hold the coming event at the Mark Hopkins.

Details on the affair will appear next Friday, and President Pomares emphasized the fact that all students of the college are invited to participate in the coming event, as it is planned to call it "Junior College Night" sponsored by the Low Sophomores.

S. F. State's Golden Tide Favored Over College Gridsters In Traditional Football Classic

Rams and Alligators, longtime cross-town rivals, renew their traditional competition tonight at Seals Stadium. The kickoff is scheduled for 8:15 p.m., sharp.

Concentrating all their gridiron wiles, Rams and Gators will be gunning for each other's hides this evening. This game, the big seasonal blowout for friend and foe, will herald a unanimous attempt to salvage what honor and glory remains in the dregs of a couple of none too successful football seasons.

Aside from the rivalry of the two local institutions, there is another feud, a cantankerous gripe of long standing, that will come to the fore when Red and White collides with Purple and Gold.

It is the resumption of hostilities between the opposing coaches, Lee Eisan and Dick Boyle will be facing each other on the field of pigskin carnage again, after a lapse of years.

Elsan, Boyle Feud

Elsan, Ram mentor for the first time, this year, used to be one of the leading lights for the Golden Bears of Cal in the palmy days of one incomplete pass without penalty and Roy Riegels' wrong-way run. He saw plenty of Dick Boyle, current State master mind, who played considerable ivory, which will make a grand corp of five cheer leaders to spur the rooting section on.

Dance After Game

Issuing an invitation to all students of this college to attend, Sigma Alpha Eta, State honor society, announces that it will hold its semi-annual scholarship dance in the State gym immediately following the Ram-Gator gridiron clash.

Dick Lotter, former trumpeter with Gene Krupa, and his union band will furnish the music.

Admission will be 25 cents for those holding either a State or a local student body card, and 35 cents without a student body card.

Meanwhile, preparations have been going on in conjunction with the presentation of the next rally which will take place on Thursday, November 16.

The rally, which will honor the Modesto game and trip, is expected to feature two outstanding radio personalities in addition to the local college talent.

Modesto Trip Planned

Plans for the Modesto excursion have now passed the formative stage and are pretty definitely set according to Jack Schmale, college publicity impressario.

ROPED OFF CHEER SECTION AT GAME TONIGHT; DANCE AT STATE AFTER GAME

Seething with activity because of the State-Ram traditional and the Modesto trip, the rally committee under Ray Berns made announcements for the student body at large.

"We are going to have an organized rooting section for our traditional football fracas with State tonight at Seals Stadium," revealed Ray Berns, college yell king.

Former head yell leaders Hughie Waltz and Bill Kennedy, will be on hand to assist Berns and his two assistants, Pete Adylotte and Bill Mensing, which will make a grand corp of five cheer leaders to spur the rooting section on.

Dance After Game

Issuing an invitation to all students of this college to attend, Sigma Alpha Eta, State honor society, announces that it will hold its semi-annual scholarship dance in the State gym immediately following the Ram-Gator gridiron clash.

Dick Lotter, former trumpeter with Gene Krupa, and his union band will furnish the music.

Admission will be 25 cents for those holding either a State or a local student body card, and 35 cents without a student body card.

Meanwhile, preparations have been going on in conjunction with the presentation of the next rally which will take place on Thursday, November 16.

The rally, which will honor the Modesto game and trip, is expected to feature two outstanding radio personalities in addition to the local college talent.

Modesto Trip Planned

Plans for the Modesto excursion have now passed the formative stage and are pretty definitely set according to Jack Schmale, college publicity impressario.

Student Pacific Relations Institute Sponsors Essay Contest, Conference

Importance of student discussion groups will be the subject of an essay contest sponsored by the Student Institute of Pacific Relations for its 14th annual conference. Entries are to be from 1000 to 1500 words in length and must be submitted not later than November 13 to Thomas Tillberry, 1912 33rd Avenue, Oakland.

One full scholarship, including all expenses, to the Fourteenth Annual Conference of the Institute will be awarded the winner of the contest. The winning essay on each campus will be awarded a partial scholarship to the conference.

All papers will be adjudged by members of the faculty at Stanford, California, San Francisco State, San Francisco Junior College, and Mills.

These annual conferences by the institute are student-run discussion groups designed to give the student a chance to find out what his fellows at other schools think on affairs of interest in the Pacific area, and to air his own views on the subject. Because of its uniqueness it has received the support of many college professors and others interested in furthering intellectual pursuits.

Two members of the Board of Directors of the institute, Thomas W. Tillberry and Dorothy Pilgrim, are former students of the college.

In a letter to The Guardsman, Tillberry expressed the hope that the college would continue to play the active part in this year's conference that it has evidenced in the past two years.

No Hearse Needed - Ram Out To Make A Purse Of Alligator Skin

By MALOFF

It's mouth a gaping cavern,
An evil glint in it's eye,
The snorting alligator,
Seems about to make Ram pie.

But above those sawed off hind legs,
Behind those triple chins,
Lies massive power aplenty,
To send the Gator to it's kins.

When all the fuss is over,
The Gator won't need a hearse,
For from its grizzled, mangy hide,
We'll make a souvenir purse.

Data . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
Game — Rams vs. S. F. State	Seals Stadium	November 3
S. F. State Dance	State Gym	November 3
Game—Rams vs. Los Angeles	Seals Stadium	November 10
Tri-College Night	Palace Hotel	November 10
Fathers-Sons Night	Lick School	November 14
Game—Rams vs. Modesto	Modesto	November 17
Train Excursion	Modesto	November 17
Low Soph J.C. Night	Mark Hopkins	November 22

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1939 No. 9

BILL FRANTZ .... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser — Joan Nourse
Business Adviser — Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross .... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff .... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat .... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone .... Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli .... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch .... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop .... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Fire Prevention Head Disclaims Rumors On Purpose Of Fire Escape; Urges Frequent Everyday Use To Relieve Evident Congestion

OCCUPATION of the University of California Extension Building never fails to produce an abundance of complaints against the college. As usual, Tom O'Neill is held responsible for the actions of the students.

The occasion for the present complaint is the fact that several students of the college have been using the fire escape in the alley for a stairway. This condition was brought to O'Neill's attention by a member of the building maintenance staff this week. It was said that there is a law which prohibits the use of the fire escape as a stairway.

We telephoned the San Francisco Fire Department to ask information about such a law. The party at the Fire Department said, "Fire Prevention Bureau—Butler speaking." We asked Mr. Butler to quote the ordinance which prohibits the use of the fire escape as a stairway. Butler quoted the law and commented, "That means if the fire escape is directly connected to a hallway it is perfectly legal to use it to get to the ground floor. In fact it is a good habit in your case. If more persons would use their fire escapes occasionally, there would be less confusion during fire drills. If a person uses his fire escape he would have no trouble finding it in case of a real emergency, like a fire or earthquake." Furthermore it relieves congestion on the main stairway.

When there are more than a thousand students who have to use a stairway too narrow for five persons shoulder to shoulder, and a hallway too narrow for three persons some students would be justified in using another means to get out of the building.

We shudder to think of what might happen in a real emergency if the students in the building were unfamiliar with the fire escape. We agree heartily with Mr. Butler, who is an authority on fire prevention—let the students use the fire escapes to reach the ground floor—the end of each class period is an emergency in the Powell Street Building!

American Education Week Shows Need For Speaker's Committee Within College

BEGINNING Sunday, November 5, San Francisco will observe American Education Week. The observance is a gesture by the public toward the schools and a participation by the schools toward the community. Several of the service clubs and fraternal organizations have invited student speakers to give short talks on American Education before their membership. This service demonstrates the need for a Speakers Committee within the college. The Speakers Bureau can be incorporated within the Welfare Council idea.

Presidential Notes

By Elmer Hubacher

IT HAS been brought to our attention by different students that in the past at San Francisco Junior College certain factions have been controlling student elections. More often than not, these minorities have nominated and elected persons who have proved themselves intelligent, capable, and able leaders. These persons have also been approved by the student body at large. The officers have been worthy and successful both as organizers and leaders. However, we wonder whether it is truly a democratic organization if we let these minorities control our elections.

Four years ago our institution was founded with a total enrollment of 1,400 students. We have increased our enrollment until we now number 2,400. With our growth we have also increased our expenditures until now we spend approximately $24,000 a year. Is it fair that this expenditure should be in the hands of a minority group? We think not. But the question is, how can the situation be rectified?

Perhaps the installation of a "nomination committee" would solve the problem. Such a committee would function thusly: The president of the student body would appoint a committee of ten persons at the beginning of each semester. This committee would meet and discuss each member of the student body by going through the files in the registrar's office. Finally, through the process of elimination two candidates for each student body office would be selected and placed on the ballot.

The nomination committee itself presents to us some problems. First, the members of the committee constitute a minority. This is the very thing we are trying to get away from. Second, on what qualifications would a potential student body officer be nominated. The answer to the first is this: The members of the student body selected to serve on this committee, shall be, through established tradition, above reproach and thoroughly conscious of the obligation under which they are serving. The latter can be answered thusly: there shall be four qualifications that have to be met by the potential student body officer. They are as follows: Ability, scholastic achievements, service, and character.

Under such a system we are merely transferring minority control from some organized or fraternal group to a select body of unbiased students, whose primary outlook will be for the good of the college. This, in our minds, is an important difference.

Perhaps, the nomination committee is a good plan. However, as we have set it down it is incomplete. We feel that it is highly commendable and worthy trying out. It has been used in colleges similar to this for many years and has been highly successful.

We are not trying to dominate the political situation, but merely trying to work out a means whereby we can have a more democratic form of student government.

in TROOD ings

By Dot

"WITH a root and a toot and I guess I'll shoot, not a gun but my lariat," cried young Johnny Finn of the college, grinning from ear to ear and swinging a mean looking rope. He certainly could twirl that piece of string, and it proved very entertaining during intermission, until someone wanted to jump rope and then everyone had a good time. That was really fancy rope work Johnny, even if you couldn't jump the rope afterward.

Who was that inquisitive gentleman who went around snapping pictures when people weren't looking? He got some good ones of that group that was sitting on the floor during an intermission and it's too bad the camera couldn't take sound and record some of the old songs that outfit was trying to sing.

And did anyone notice the loud shirts that were worn by certain members of this institution? Well, each one who happened to be running around in one of these sateen affairs tried to out-brag one another by saying that his was the best because the buttons were larger, or "my shirt has white edging down the front and yours hasn't, so there," such goings on over a shirt.

The refreshments really made a hit with everyone, even the sugary donuts. It was remarkable how fast the food disappeared after the notice was out that it could be had. Ah, sweet mystery, it's amazing how young folk consume food at any hour of the day.

SANDYS SURPRISES

Goodness sakes alive, we're still seeing shirts. Did anyone happen to catch a glimpse of the one Edward Sandys, of the English department, had on. It would have made the bull run if there had been a bull, and if the bull could have distinguished the color, but as such, bulls are color blind, and this is getting too involved.

Old friends of the college that attended the AMS barn dance included last semester's AMS prexy Dave Johnson, who was dressed gay cowboy style accompanied by Bob (Joe College) Fex, all decked out as local sheriff or something or other, shooting his .45 whenever he pleased and at whom he pleased. And dancing around was Miriam Dunne Alpers and Husband Harrison. Miriam was vice-president last semester and AWS prexy one year ago. Incidentally, she was the founder of the famous tea dansants held at the end of each semester. Those were just a few of the alumni list that attended.

AROUND AND ABOUT

And, pray tell us, who was the young gentleman who stood before the bandstand oggle-eyed at the soft-throated voice of the young brunette vocalist? It was really hearbreaking.

It might have been warm the other night, but nevertheless those two Camp Fire girls tried their best to build a fire in the center of the floor, and met with little success. Better take some more lessons from the Indians!

Guess the eclipse proved profitable to many last Friday night, for it was a sure way of getting outside to view the stars!

The Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

SAN FRANCISCO'S entertainment world is especially blessed this season. The local hotels are trying to out-do each other in presenting their patrons with the country's better bands. The theater-goers will see such well-known stage celebrities as the Lunts and Katharine Cornell. At the opera this season have been and will be New York's finest concert and opera singers. The movies? Gone With the Wind will be here any month now! (We hope.)

Up "high atop Nob Hill" in the Peacock Court of the Mark Hopkins Orrin Tucker and his superb orchestra are sweetly swinging for the "dine and dancers," romantically adding to the already amorous atmosphere.

Main attractions in the Tucker orchestra is, of course, Wee Bonnie Baker. Bonnie is the sweetest little bit of feminine pulchritude that San Francisco eyes have gazed upon in many, many moons!

Ann Sheridan might have "oomph," but when the tiny Miss Baker coyly warbles, she puts much more than "oomph" into it! Bonnie's singing really does things to the men who are listening, while too many of the women vainly try to imitate her. After hearing Bonnie sing Billy and Oh, Johnny, one feels only pity for other vocalists who attempt these numbers. Miss Baker has brought a new type of singing to swing and the innovation has rapidly and surprisingly become popular.

Bonnie Baker's latest record, Stop, It's Wonderful, is even better than Billy and Oh, Johnny, which were best sellers in the record libraries. Orrin Tucker's orchestration lends just the right background for the slightly daring ditty. Miss Baker's build-up for the whispered, It's Wonderful—(sigh) is really something!

While Orrin Tucker's orchestra was entertaining the film celebrities at Hollywood's Cocoanut Grove, three major studios gave Bonnie Baker screen tests. Her appearance was most

(Continued on page 4, column 6)

. . . while thinking . . .

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

AUTHORATIVE reports from Mexico reveal that the land of mananas has become a hotbed of political intrigue, much of it being directed at the United States.

It seems that the Germans are once again resorting to the tactics they used in World War I, deliberately attempting to create a breach between this country and Mexico.

Some people never learn. It looks as if the Third Reich is no exception. Although it is possible that Mexico may be to a certain extent influenced by the German propaganda, the Mexicans probably realize that their well being and safety lie not with the Nazis but with the United States.

* * *

ITALY last week celebrated the 18th anniversary of Fascism in that country.

Perhaps it should be added that the occasion also was a tribute to Benito Mussolini, for he is the man responsible for making a success of the Fascist government of Italy.

Although Fascism and its environs are frowned upon by many Americans, it is only fair to give the devil his due.

There is no doubt that Italy has prospered a great deal during the past years. Whether this could have been accomplished under any other form of government is a matter open for discussion. The fact remains however, that the Italians are doing all right, which just goes to show that any form of government that is fundamentally sound can be successful if not carried too far.

* * *

NATIONAL

THERE is a possibility that the Allies will seize upon the incident of the capture of the American ship, City of Flint, to try to convince millions of Americans that the Germans are a bunch of cruel, merciless envoys of Satan.

If such propaganda becomes evident it might be well to remember that the Nazi raider Deutchsland was within the rights of international law when she seized the American vessel. The law, incidentally, states that contraband materials may be seized, and that if 50 per cent of the cargo is contraband, the ship itself is liable to seizure.

We must remember that there is a war going on in Europe and it is just as fair for the Germans to prevent materials reaching the Allies as it is for the British and French to blockade Germany.

Therefore the City of Flint episode should not cause anyone to froth at the mouth for it is but one of the many sacrifices a neutral country has to make during wartime.

* * *

SECRETARY of War Harry H. Woodring in a recent address before the National Guard association reiterated the promises of President Roosevelt that this nation would stay at home during World War II.

He said, "Every man and every dollar necessary for the defense of America, but not one man, one dollar to fight the wars of other nations."

A great statement. Much better than the one that says, "The Allies will fight the war to the last American dollar and the last American man."

* * *

CITY

UNLESS our memory fails us, a few months back some of the more important politicians of San Francisco made the statement that there would be no mud slinging during the 1940 pre-election period.

Perhaps their too idealistic vows were lost in the excitement of running for office. At any rate, the election is at least as vicious if not more so than previous city elections.

It is too much to expect that the politicians tone down their slanderous attacks because they have been going on since the world began, and men are no different today than they ever were.

It is very interesting to watch an election from the sidelines and attempt to discover which side is the more adept at mudslinging.

Any way you look at it, politics is a dirty business. We wonder who will hold the title of "most accomplished politician in San Francisco" this year?

Ramming The Gator

By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Patriotism Easily Molded; Writer Says Public Duped

• TWO IN LOVE TOGETHER
Editor, The Guardsman:

A school just moved to the fog-belt said,
"Gee, but it's quiet, it's almost dead!"
"Be quiet yourself," another one groaned,
"I'm stuck here, too," and then they moaned.

Till the following day, when the fog bog broke,
And the guys and the gals came through the smoke,
To see their fog-draped halls of fate—
With one marked "Rams" and the other one "State."

Bob Mason

• MELODRAMA OR PATRIOTISM
Editor, The Guardsman:

At all the movies now there is flashed a loudly colored drawing on the screen—Lincoln (very poorly drawn), stern and rugged; behind him the Stars and Stripes. A resonant voice entones "living in this glorious country of ours—" Then follows the pledge of allegiance, Old Glory waves dramatically for a moment before giving way to Donald Duck.

On the whole, audiences seem to be just a bit self-conscious about applauding, though occasionally there is one which gets nicely worked up and enthusiastic. Why this reticence?

(Continued on page 4, column 3)

shots at RAMdom

. . . By Isadore Maloff

EVIDENCE that "the old college try" is not a thing of the distant past is clearly indicated by the following clipping taken from the San Francisco Chronicle of October 25.

"Two San Francisco Junior College boys, who tried to swim from Washington Park, Alameda, to Treasure Island, were forced ashore near the site of the new Naval Station in Alameda yesterday.

"Arthur Pomares, 19, 1441 Fourth Avenue, Oakland, went ashore with his companion, George Retalas, 21, 3936 Hanley Drive, Oakland, when the latter was seized with cramps a miles and a half from the starting point.

"The boys, who said they tried the stunt for school publicity, towed inflated inner tubes behind them as a safety precaution."

Sorry you didn't quite make a go of it, George and Art, but as they so aptly say on the tennis courts, you certainly made a "nice try."

FACULTY FOOLISHNESS

Just the other morning while dashing up the Powell Street steps whom should we bump into but Rankin Roseleaf—the typical freshman shirking his way through college.

"What's your Ross?" we asked him severly although knowing full well that we were the one at fault. A dark Cloud hovered over the massive brow of Rankin as he struggled mightily to recover his scattered senses.

"Eisan in a hurry," he finally replied as he sought a means of escape.

"Well, now isn't that Sweet" we smirked in a cynically sarcastic tone. "Say, you're going to be late for class anyway. Why not cut this class and we have a morning snack with us at Carrol's. Let's Perry the axe and be friends. We're sorry for every word we Uttered about you in our column several weeks ago. Come on, we'll stake you to a bite."

While such an offer may appear very Noble of us at this time, we of course had our reasons for taking such action. (No, not that.) However, it seemed as though Rankin's brain was struck in some far off Marshlands as it took several moments for him to reCooperate from our invitation. But seeing that he couldn't elude us he finally Gavin.

"Why yes, of Goss if you insist," accepted Rankin.

The waitress was a beautiful lass with Stouped shoulders who tried hard to please us. Said she, "We have nice sea Bass, Ralston cerceal, straw-Perrys, Green peas, Williams' potato chips, Hobbs' batteries, Smith Brother's cough drops, Browne bread, Dr. Wells' soda pop, Van Camp's baked beans, Sweet potatoes, Marshmallow sundaes, Badger furs, Wilson golf balls, Sherwin Williams Shullack—(they recently added to their stock.)

"Have Hughes got Italian Maggetti—I mean 'spaghetti?'" inquired Rankin lapsing back to the vernacular. "And how much is a slice Perham?"

"Listen, Mr." answered the peeved waitress, "I work here eight hours a day trying to Ecke out a living and don't think you can raise Cain with me and get away with it. I've read you the entire menu, what Mohr do you want?"

Foreseeing his answer we intervened by kicking Rankin in the shins. We thought the meal quite appealing but evidently Rankin thought otherwise for he soon called back the waitress.

"Say, some Sandys in the spinach. It's getting in my right Moeller," complained Mr. Roseleaf.

"I'm going to Rue this day as long as I live," swore the exasperated waitress. So saying she Turneround, took Rankin's spinach and passed it on to the Porter for him to dump into the Sewell. (Chinese for sewer.)

Rankin returned the compliment with a look we thought would surely Keller. Suddenly he glanced up at Clark.

"It's Berginning to get late. I can't eat any Amor(i) anyway."

Taking out a Finney for the meal, we gave the waitress a Nicholls tip, pocketed the change and prepared to accompany Rankin to class. As we walked out into Sutter Street, a long line of sleek, 1940 Redfords were parading up the street, each one driven by an immaculately dressed Nourse-man.

"Well, I'll be a great Dayne," ejaculated the amazed Rankin. "Sure is a Messer Sweet cars. And the drivers all look like real Troupers but they're probably terrible Parkers.

Look, there's the Mayor in that last car. (Imagine Rossi in a Ford—heh-heh.) He took off his hat Revealing that fine head of hair. And sitting beside him are Mrs. Havenner Henderson. That lady over there started to Booher—I'll bet Rossi's Herman. That Rossi is supposed to be Allman, at least that's what his re-election propaganda Clayms."

Abruptly Rankin cut off his speech and gazed at the clock in the window of the nearby Mueller and Boltened for his class before we could stop him. We had wanted so badly to talk to him so as to get material for this column.

Golly, we guess in the long run we were (Ger)stung for the worst part of the bargain.

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

More than 12,000 persons made applications for employment at The Emporium last year. Applications are being received this year at the rate of 50 each day. Christmas approaches rapidly and those part-time jobs will be hard to get. Heh, heh, heh. (Kill that guy!)

Miss Gohn, of the faculty, however, will do her darnedest to place as many students as possible.

OVERHEARD

Two well-groomed young ladies stand on the Powell Street steps. Students coming to and from classes rub shoulders with these girls but fail to joust them off the steps.

We walk up behind them to request that they carry on their tete-a-tete on the sidewalk. They were discussing a fellow they had each dated.

Said the blonde girl, "Isn't he marvelous, though. He has that muscular but military bearing—he must have graduated from West Point."

"No, kiddo," replied the other girl, cynically, "—Inspiration Point."

Needless to say we were too far gone to disturb them.

* * *

It is mid-semester now, the Fair is closed, and vacation is too far away to start saving. If we only had the change we would become a playboy and enjoy music. The kind we mean is the kind Freddy Martin plays at the St. Francis, Orrin Tucker at the Mark, Glen Gray gives at the Palace, and Carl Ravassa toots at the Sir Francis Drake.

PING PONG PUNKS

The girls won't feel so happy about their table tennis tournament if they allow male students to enter the tourney. We will lay 6, 2, and even, that one of three fellows will cop the ping pong title.

First, there's curly haired Al Shemano, who is willing to show his medals as runner-up for the City Table Tennis championship in 1937 and 1938. Then there are Ray Berns, yell leader and tennis player extraordinary, and Joe Cohen, who is about as capable a player as Shemano.

Remember the good old days when girl athletes were the most photographed personalities in the college. Now the most photographed, publicized girl on the extended campus is politicianess-socialite Muriel Nolan. There's one person who gets by on her looks.

BATTLE OF CENTURY

Silly as it sounds, the following actually happened in Alden Smith's speech class this week.

Bespectacled, ex-president of the student body, Frank Verducci stood before the class, and with the utmost of poise delivered his speech.

Bob Hunt, in the rear of the room, was practicing for Hallowe'en and contorted his features with the utmost of tenacity.

Bob's facial contortions were visible only to Frank at the front of the class. Frank lost his poise, stuttered, forgot his speech, and took his seat.

For 20 minutes Frank sat, eyes downcast, and contemplated. At the end of the period Frank walked up to the front of the class, removed his glasses and—laid them gently on Smith's desk—and like a bat out of Hades made for Bob Hunt in the rear of the room. Frank drew blood with his left.

Willy Latz was ready to separate them but when he saw blood and remembered his light colored slacks were just cleaned, he stepped back chagrined. Mr. Smith heard the noise, and unmindful of his new shirt, swam through a river of scarlet and dragged the loser off to safety.

After cleaning the gore off their respective persons Frank and Bob sheepishly alopogized to each other—then to Smith.

When Smith asked Verducci why he had attacked Bob so viciously, Frank replied, "Well, he stuck his tongue out at me."

Joe Amori, upon hearing the particulars of the college's first "Battle of the Century" limited his comment to two words—"Infantile, Infantile."

A poem is proposed to commemorate the occasion.

Cut his lip,
Rip his jaw,
S.F. Junior High,
Raw, raw, raw.

It's Big Game Night; The Rams Demand Attendance Of Fans; Kickoff At 8:15

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Remember The Hardworking Lambs; They Meet State Goofs In Prelim At 6:15

Rams Battle State In Big Game

Annual Classic Will Renew Old Rivalry

Game Starts 8:15 Tonight at Seals Stadium; Rams Seek to Save Season By Walloping Gators; Passes Seen

It's Big Game night tonight. The Rams are bumping into the Alligators of San Francisco State, at 8:15 p.m., on the artificially sunkist greensward of Seals Stadium.

Sure, its the Big Game. You can sense it almost instinctively by the electric tension that tingles in the ether. Your nose knows as it captures the gentle aromatic incense emanating from the cluttered, clinging ivy that encompasses the tradition-girded edifice of Ram-Gator athletic relations.

IT'S GATORS, 2 TO 1

Among the wagering gentry, the odds on tonight's fiesta are 2 to 1 on Dick Boyle's pigskin minstrels, who have not crossed an enemy goal in their last four starts. Neither contestant has a particularly impressive record for the season to date, the Rams having tallied 52 points to 48 for the opposition, and the Gators standing with 50 digits as against 51 on the red side of the ledger.

The fight, though, is expected to be bitter all the way. There are bones to be picked this evening, and the opposing gridiron delegations are in the right mood to do justice to the serious nature of the clambake.

Still dizzy from last Saturday's inexplicable dunking at the hands of an unimpressive San Mateo outfit, Lee Eisan's Rams are going to try again this time with the intention of ending their marches in paydirt rather than five yards south of the same. And the Gator's appetite should be whetted, considering that the colossal "On to Cal Poly" balloon burst harmlessly in a fruitless 0 to 0 tie, a week ago. This marks the fourth consecutive pointless game for the Staters, and the local wolves are saying that it's about time.

INJURY PROBLEM

Ever since the season's beginning, the Gators have bemoaned the fate that persistently laid low their brightest grid luminaries. Chad Reade, big shot of State's Rockne style brigade, is practically a one-man team. As Reade goes, so go the Gators. During the period in which State was on a touchdown fast, Reade was on the sick list. He will be in harness tonight. Also scheduled to abandon their figurative crutches are Dave Schiller, Bud Chandler, and Johnny Verducci (one-time Ram), Gator halfbacks, Bill Stein, full; and Jim Lowrie, quarter.

Two of the most dependable Ram footballers, namely: Al Nauman and Herb Taylor, were recipients of the works in the San Mateo tussle. Nauman will play in his usual quarterback spot tonight. Taylor, according to Eisan, is out of the contest.

Otherwise, both squads are at full strength for the game.

PASSING FORECAST

Pre-game dope indicates that State will try passes to break the Ram's defensive back. Only once this season, in the California Frosh game, has an opponent scored aerially upon the college eleven, although recent memory serves to remind that a cleverly executed "screen-pass" was indirectly responsible for the solitary touchdown in last week's encounter.

Not too much can be said for the Ram's pass defense, but again, the offensive machinations displayed when Eisan's men take to the stratosphere are really something to watch. Throughout the year, Al Nauman has been flipping accurate shovels to Taylor and Spieller with telling effect. In each of the first two games, Nauman shunted long (if somewhat prayerful) passes down the field to Jim Molich for touchdowns. And now the passing arms of Johnny Gray and Leo Leggett have come into prominence.

If passing be the order of the evening, the Rams should be able to match the Gators completion for completion. Last week the locals threw 21 and completed 11 out of that number, which mounts up to a fair average.

HISTORY REPEATS?

There is something about this Ram-Gator clash that makes the blood boil in a solid sort of way. Perhaps it's the fact that, although the first meeting of the two teams resulted in a 32 to 12 victory for the Rams, State has since held the edge. Last year's whitewashing is still remembered, and no doubt provides another incentive for seeking a season-salvaging win tonight over the boys from South of the Slot.

RAM-GATOR STARTING LINEUPS

S.F.J.C.	Position	State
F. Gray	LER	Lorbeer
Meyers	LTR	Fairbanks
Carignani	LGR	Swarmack
Mattson	C	Gittens
Leong	RGL	deGhataldi
Schoenstein	RTL	Roher
Molich	REL	Melier
Nauman	Q	Lowrie
Spieller	LHR	Schiller
Cunningham	RHL	Reade
J. Gray	F	Stein

Rams Outplay San Mateo But Lose Title Chance 7-0; Still Chance Of Tie For Crown

San Mateo, Oct. 28—Figure this one out for yourself. Today the Rams met San Mateo in what was probably the decisive game of the conference championship race. The Rams piled up a grand total of 276 yards from scrimmage and passes to 140 for the enemy. The Rams ran up and down the field for 15 first downs as against San Mateo's 4. The Rams completed 11 out of 21 forward passes while San Mateo was gathering 1 out of 4. In other words, the Rams kicked San Mateo all over the field. But when the game ended, the scoreboard read: San Mateo 7, San Francisco 0.

Chance Remains

So the league crown goes glimmering. There still remains the possibility of a tie for honors—on the supposition that the Rams defeat Modesto in the seasonal finale on November 17, and the San Mateans drop their tilt with Sacramento.

The latter eventuality is quite probable, for, frankly speaking, San Mateo is rotten. The failure of the Rams to win the peninsula tussle is directly traceable to two varieties of mistakes—offensive and defensive. The former stopped the college gridmen cold when the dust of the San Mateo goal-line was tickling their toes, and the latter permitted the southerners to capitalize on their single scoring opportunity of the ball game.

It was a Ram football contest. The locals completely dominated play throughout, save for those few brief minutes in which the pitifully impotent San Mateans cracked the ice for the touchdown of the afternoon.

Two Drives

In the opening moments of play, the first time the Rams gained possession of the ball, they reeled off five successive first downs to march from their own 20 to the Bulldog 9. In this drive of 71 yards, Nauman riddled the enemy tackles and threw shovel passes to Herb Taylor for huge gains, but failed to connect on a throw when it was fourth and three on the San Mateo nine.

Stopping this first march, the Bulldogs immediately kicked out, and a holding penalty cut short Spieller's return, placing the ball on the Ram 48. Again, from this point, the locals swung into action. A first down was chalked up when San Mateo interfered with the intended receiver of one of fullback Johnny Gray's passes on the Bulldog 38. After one play at center, Leggett hurled to Taylor for another first down on the opposition 27. Gray hit at guard for three, and little Leggett, squirming and twisting, showed his stuff in cutting back through right tackle for 14 yards to the Bulldog 10.

And here's where the second drive failed. First, Leggett tossed a short one to Dave Cunningham on the 8, then took the ball to wheel off left tackle to the 5. With third down coming up, it looked like a cinch. But Leggett hesitated, waiting for a hole to open, and was smeared back on the 9. Last chance, and an attempted tricky lateral play, developing off of a spinner, was fumbled, and recovered by San Mateo on the Bulldog 16.

Break Wins Game

So much for the Ram threats . . . although, again in the third period, Nauman turned in a ramble around end, with beautiful blocking, that carried 29 yards to the Bulldog 29. A shovel pass to Cunningham went to the 14, but on last down Gray passed incomplete.

It was a see-saw battle most of the time, with the Rams, looking like the proverbial Warner team, setting the world on fire between the two 20 yard stripes, but bogging abruptly when the chips were down.

The break that decided the ball game came midway in the third quarter. San Mateo punted from its own 18, and the mistake which Coach Lee Eisan was afraid of happened. It was a high, soaring kick that was heading down close to the local goal. Spieller, playing safety, stood on his own three yard line and caught the ball, instead of letting it land and roll over the goal. He started back, and headed into a swarm of Bulldogs coming in fast to cover. Down he went on the Ram 9.

That was the worst hole the San Franciscans had been in all day, but to make it even better, someone was caught in the act of clipping, and the Rams were penalized to the limit of the law . . . their own one yard line.

Full Screen Pass

So there it was. Nauman booted out, and Bulldog Roblin returned the pill 10 to the local 30. Roblin was caught for a two yard loss on the first down, but on the next play rifled a flat pass to Curti, who, surrounded by a "screen" of his own teammates, cut in to the center of the field and scooted all the way to the Ram seven. On this play, Curti's interference, already formed around him when he received the pass, mowed down the Ram secondary like a scythe mowing wheat. Curti was caught from behind, only narrowly prevented from going all the way.

Not that it mattered, for three plays later, Roblin smacked through center from the 1 yard line and poked his nose over the goal line for six points. Curti stepped back for the conversion try and split the uprights for a perfect ringer.

Too Late

After that, the locals got their mitts on the ball twice: once on their 3, and once on their 40. It was too late to do anything about the score. The game ended as Leggett slipped a 6 yard shovel pass to Cunningham which carried to within 10 yards of midfield.

Those Rams were clicking splendidly in the first half. In fact, they seemed to wear themselves out making yardage. And the sun was plenty hot . . . hard on both squads. This may have had something to do with the final outcome, but no alibis are valid in the present case. Paradoxically, the Rams were helpless in the final two periods, as compared with their apparent strength early in the game. They had a clean shot at the conference crown . . . and missed.

It's State next Friday night at Seals Stadium, and another defeat—according to the dope-bucket. Then comes Los Angeles City College on November 10. Final game of the 1939 season is a conference tilt, on November 17, with Modesto.

There is still at least a chance for the Rams to earn a tie in the conference rating. That is, IF Sacramento wallops San Mateo, and IF San Francisco gets over Modesto. In other words . . . IF.

Rifle Team Given Official Circle Block Recognition

Official recognition has finally been given to the plea for awards for members of the Rifle and Pistol team, the college's newest minor sport group.

At a meeting in Dean Browne's office held last Wednesday, members of the Men's Athletic Council decided that circle "SF's" would be issued to the team at the termination of each spring semester.

Russell Sweet, MAC faculty adviser, made it clear that awards would be given to 10 members, annually, who "shall have received the highest accumulative point average during that period."

"It is important to note," said Sweet, "that points will be counted from competition with only certain teams, as practice meets are not to be recognized in the matter of award points."

Since there actually exists no Rifle and Pistol Conference, a definite list of teams will be regarded as "letter teams."

Charles North, team captain, was asked to choose a manager for the riflers.

Captain McFarland, rifle coach, was glad to hear that his men will be eligible for awards. He commented favorably upon the work of the Men's Athletic Council.

"Now we'll have something to aim for," remarked McFarland smilingly.

Now awaiting approval of the Executive Council, the minor sport will have its title placed in the college constitution.

Also in the constitution will be listed the method of award.

Mermen Bemoan Lack Of College Pool; Fix Sked

Arranging a schedule is no fun for swimmers without a regular pool. That is the belief of Russell Sweet, local swim mentor, who has shed many a worry for the want of a water tank.

Sweet has been on the constant vigil for a pool for quite some time. He made it known that one of the more important aspects of organizing an aquatic squad is to have a "nice tank of water."

"I realize that without a pool, fellows who would like to swim will not always see me. What can be done? Find a pool, that's all!"

Difficulty also, without a pool, is seen in the almost futile effort to make out a satisfactory schedule for the swimmers.

More a matter of convention, than ethics, it has been and remains one of sportdom's golden rules to play tit for tat in scheduling.

Hence, it is noticeable that if Sweet's swimming bunch are to hold a meet with some club or college outfit, they in righteousness should play host to some other team in order to even up matters.

Last week while a meeting was held to discuss future matters, Sweet appointed Bob Cohn swim manager.

Cohn and Sweet have spent the last few days trying to make out a competent schedule.

Although tentative, announcement came that they were working on the attempt to hold competition with P.A.L. high schools, junior colleges, frosh teams and certain club squads.

Skiers To Meet Soon; Bob Ogg Leads New Group

If the weather will permit, Bob Ogg, winter sports representative, and Ski Club leader, plans that the college skiers will hold an important meeting next Thursday evening, 8:30 p.m., at 2651 Filbert Street.

At the meeting will be discussed the subject of trips and meet.

With intentions of engaging in early season practice, Ogg has made many plans which he hopes will come into effect. The regular ski months are December to March.

Ogg has found it necessary to make a revisal of the tentative trip-plans which were found to have been weak.

Still pending is the group's charter to become a recognized college club. The Club Advisory Board is expected to give its final approval soon, however.

To make the "snowshoe swishers" more strongly united, officers have now been appointed. President-elect is Bob Ogg; Earling Jacobson, secretary; and Vernon Estey, treasurer.

Instructor Alden Smith, co-organizer of the skiers and adviser, said that the work of the winter sport enthusiasts was progressing with utmost rapidity.

Formerly a skier at the University of California, Smith said, "Our unity is fine. If the members continue to work together, as at present, we should without a doubt get a lot out of the efforts we have put into making skiing a real, strong winter sports group."

Stars Show as College Tourney Netplay Continues

Tournament play for the college tennis championships has advanced to the quarter-finals, but is temporarily at a standstill because the Palace of Fine Arts, stamping grounds of the Ram netmen, is being used to house the beverage show. In consequence, tennis classes are meeting at Funston Field without getting in any tennis

Rated as the men to beat in the finals of the doubles matches are Ray Berns and Bill Madamba, veterans of last semester's high-ranking team. Opposed to them will probably be Jack Hare and Henry Yim, who show the next best form in team play.

Berns and Madamba also hog the spotlight in the singles play, as they will probably collide in the finals. Opposed to them in the quarter-finals are, respectively, Chet Meade, former Balboa High School ace and Fred Castaneda, experienced sophomore. However, there is always a chance of any of these stars being knocked over in the semi-finals by their little-known opponents.

Casaba Scrimmage Starts November 20 For Jayvees; Probable Games Slated

Right around the corner of the sports calendar lies the game of basketball. About to start practice soon, Coach Tom Wilson's little brothers of the varsity squad, the junior varsity, will be scrapping away to win games.

Wilson has asked that all lightweight hoop men sign up with Hugh Ryan, student manager, or with himself no later than November 10.

"We hope to start basketball practice by November 20," Wilson stated. "If the men sign up on time, we'll be able to choose our first and second teams more easily."

It has been pointed out that Wilson will receive men who are ineligible to make the regular varsity outfit.

Practice will probably be, as in the past, between the hours of 12:30 and 2 p.m.

Probable tilts will be with such teams as the Cal frosh, Napa high school, Visitation Valley team, Santa Rosa and many San Francisco high school clubs.

Last year's junior varsity college squad provided many thrills for those who attended the basketball tilts.

Used for playing the preliminary games, junior varsity battles have often proved more exciting than the varsity competition.

Wilson has planned to try to duplicate last year's feats.

A schedule will be printed in The Guardsman as soon as it has been completed.

WOMEN'S . . . Sports Parade

By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

Here and There in Local Competitions

Last Saturday, (oh, woeful day!) badminteers traveled to San Mateo for a co-educational badminton playday. The locals captured one singles match and one doubles match. Tomorrow, November 4, women players will journey to Burlingame High School to play again with San Mateo. This time, the group is expected to number sixteen, half of which will compete in doubles matches, the other half in singles. Following the games they'll swim and lunch.

Table tennis, which has had a large turn-out, will hold its first matches Friday the third. A call for a few more women to complete the dual sign-ups went out from Bertha Keller, WAA adviser, Tuesday. Hear ye! Hear ye!

Under competitions too, comes the long-awaited news that Tourney Week, the college's women's classic, is almost upon us. Tentative plans are for intra-mural competitions from December 7 to 14.

Announcement came Monday that it is possible the Tourney Week Banquet would be moved from the original December 14 date to December 13.

As you know (if you don't, consult page .... of the college handbook, remember?) Tourney week is the final round-up of the women's sports, seven days crammed full of final sports matches, the horseshow, playdays, the carnival, and the before-mentioned banquet when winners are announced and awards given out. The WAA council, composed of association officers and club managers are already buzzing around making plans for a gala week. Come one, come all!

Since the members of the WAA golf club are fairly new at the sport, a Novice Tourney for putters, open to any junior college woman, will be held during Tourney Week. Something new, something good. Get in touch with Jane Young, club manager, if you want to participate in the tournament.

Random Notes About Clubs You've Entered

Since the college women's gym is no longer a mere dream, WAA's face the wonderful reality of planning an athletic program for the new building. More fun!

Council members have planned a bicycle ride around the Marina here in town, and across the Golden Gate Bridge. The exact date is indefinite but bikes will be rented at the Texaco gas station on Marina Blvd.

We have it from those "in the know" that this year's crop of Freshmen women in volleyball show unusual athletic ability and a spirit that rises above the old maxim "Frosh are to be seen, not heard!" Makes one feel good to hear things like that.

Tennis and archery classes which have been meeting at the Powell Street building for chalk talks because the Palace of Fine Arts has been taken over for a beverage show, will trot back to the Palace beginning November 7. WAA tenniseers, however, will wait until Saturday, November 11 before swinging their rackets again.

From Bertha Keller comes the news that WAA golfers will be given special practice periods next semester that (quote) instruction and competition preparatory to participation on municipal golf courses will be possible. (unquote.)

Riding enthusiasts have been practicing in the more-or-less dark as far as publicity is concerned. Today, though, they burst into print as shining meteors (but shining!) with the news that they are going through their strides, preparing jumps and special techniques for the Tourney Week Horseshow. From what we've heard, this horse show threatens to break into a regular wild west affair. Now all we need is Homer Holcomb and it'd be almost as good as the Livermore Rodeo ("Best in the West"—plug.)

Ice-skating is still, by far, the college's most popular extra-curricular. It's not too late to join, so why not visit Winterland some Friday afternoon at 2:30 and let yourself be inveigled into skimming over the ice—or, if you prefer—"breaking the ice."

Confidentially, that is, just between you and you and you, WAA has a couple of songbirds that visit the camp when someone calls for entertainment. They are Barbara Smith and Priscilla Finley. And are they good!

Wilson's Ram Shinkickers Come, See, Are Conquered; Match With San Jose Is Dropped By 4 To 0 Count; Ineligibility Hurts

Receipting for a 4 to 0 defeat at the hands of San Jose State's shinkickers at Beach Chalet field last Saturday, Coach Tom Wilson's Ram soccerites dropped a notch further in the league standings and are now resting comfortably (or uncomfortably) in sixth place.

Once again, the locals were deprived of the services of five first-string men, declared ineligible at the end of the last midterm, and the result was spotty team-work.

San Jose scored two goals in the first half against a Ram team that was performing admirably. Those two goals were earned. In the second half, however, the local squad fell apart and presented the Spartans with two "gift" goals.

Wilson's lads had but two chances to score in the entire game. Both opportunities came early in the first half but were missed by over-anxious Ram forwards.

As has been the case in previous games, lack of teamwork, and a weak backfield defense proved disastrous for the locals. In direct contrast, San Jose played as one man, and defense was impenetrable. Ram forwards were unable to get behind the Spartan defense and were constantly thwarted by alert and crafty State fullbacks.

Jimmy Fahn, ex-Ram star, was the outstanding man on the field for San Jose, while Bob Singh, playing in a game for the first time in his life, turned in a sterling performance for the locals at the goalie position.

On Monday next, Wilson's lads take on San Francisco State at Roberts Field at 4 o'clock.

This is the first year that State has had a soccer team but, from all reports, it has an outstanding squad that is raring to go, and a red-hot battle should ensue.

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

Upsets Of The Week Gripe Berns; More Hack From The Bonnet

Cornell upsets Ohio State! Portland (dear old P.U.) upsets St. Mary's! And, horror of horrors, San Mateo upsets San Francisco.

The yardage favored the locals four to one; first downs were fifteen to four in favor of the Rams, but San Mateo had seven points and the Rams had none. That's the payoff.

We're still for that team all the way. Win, lose, or draw, it's our squad and we're going to back it, but something must be radically wrong when a squad moves like a champion in midfield and bogs down near the goal line.

Three times we were inside the Bulldog's twenty yard line and three times we were repulsed. It just doesn't seem right. Something will have to be done. We know, we'll offer our services.

Down at the Fox Theater on Saturday nights, they have community singing. As this is football season, naturally college songs are the rage. Thus, we have an interesting study in psychology. Stanford, Santa Clara, St. Mary's, and U.S.C. all get nice hands but when California is flashed on the screen, the house nearly comes down. Very interesting. Perhaps California should keep on losing games.

'Tis rather early to start chattering about the casaba sport, but Coach "Dutch" Conlan is already getting to work on the varsity basketball squad. "Dutch" really has his work cut out for him this year what with the loss of last year's entire squad.

Willie Blackfield, diminutive, sharpshooting forward of last year's outfit, is still in college but will be ineligible, having competed for two years. Blackfield, it is said, will cavort for Tom Wilson's jayvee's next year. What with Blackfield sparking the team and a number of veterans returning to grace the fold, it would not occasion surprise if Wilson's lads were to shape up a mite better than Conlan's. Maybe!

Tonight is the traditional battle with State. So let's all get out there and support that team. Last week for that titular encounter with San Mateo, a handful of Ram supporters, approximately 50, were present. Setting the quota for tonight, we find that a home game with a cross-city rival should draw about 1,000.

Campus Curriculum

Civil Service Commissioner Wolfe Endorses Course Given By College

Thursday, October 26, faculty members of the Civil Service department, together with members of the college Administrative staff, and Civil Service Commissioner Harry K. Wolfe, held a luncheon meeting at the Fraternity Club of the Palace Hotel.

During the meeting, Commissioner Wolfe stressed the fact that the college course is the only training course which will receive the endorsement of the Civil Service Commission.

Among those present were President Archibald J. Cloud, Paul J. Mohr, J. Graham Sullivan, Dean Edwin C. Browne, Joseph A. Amori, John E. Booher, all of the Administration. Harold W. Lauenberger, Louis G. Conlan, Captain Arthur Layne, Captain Fred MacFarland and Lloyd D. Luckmann were of the Civil Service Department.

As a result of this meeting, it was pointed out that the college Civil Service course is to have firm adherence to the philosophy of training the students for career service, rather than coaching them for Civil Service examinations.

There are 10,000 occupations on the municipal Civil Service list, and there are two different types of training. The college Hotel Management course is the vocational type, and the courses in Police Training and the prospective Firemen's course is the other type of training, Civil Service instructors explained. At the present time there are broader occupations which involve administrative techniques and leadership. For one group there is a specialized faculty while the other requires an academic faculty.

"We hope to be able to erect a new type of public servant into the Municipal Services," remarked Luckmann of the Civil Service faculty.

NYA Timeslips Due Today; Possible New Jobs Open To Students

All NYA timesheets for the month of October must be in to Tom O'Neill, NYA timekeeper, at Powell street not later than 2 p.m. today if students expect to receive credit for the month's work.

"There are still some students on the waiting list. If these students are still interested in NYA help they should see me frequently, so if any job happens to be available, and there are some at the present time, they will be ready for it," E. H. Redford, NYA director warned. "If students do not return, it will be assumed that they are no longer interested."

At the waiting list is small there is room for more appliearts. Any student wishing an NYA job should contact Redford in room 728, P. G. & E. Building, as soon as possible.

AMS Inaugurates Father, Son Night November 14

Joseph A. Amori, faculty adviser for the Associated Men's Students, announced this week that plans have been tentatively made for a Father-and-Son's Night. The event, first of its kind in the history of the college, is set for November 14 (Tuesday) at James Lick School.

The object, says Amori, is "to promote a better understanding of the common problems found in the educational level of the junior college, and for the parent to get acquainted with the faculty.

"We plan to present an organized program of activities: entertainment, boxing, wrestling, fencing, kendo, music, yells, and refreshments. Each father will bring his son and if the student's father is out of town, he will be accompanied by a faculty member," Amori said.

Business Instructor To Aid Vacation Job Seekers

Students who are desirous of getting a temporary job this Christmas vacation at the local department stores should get in touch with Virginia Gohn, business instructor. Last year 12,000 persons put in applications at one of San Francisco's department stores for employment. This year applications are being placed at the rate of 50 a day.

"Christmas is almost here and part time jobs are becoming more scarce every day," warned Miss Gohn. "Women who wish to apply for jobs should be fairly tall, and must have a black dress for their work in the stores." For more information students should get in touch with Miss Gohn immediately.

STANLEY'S
LUNCHES DINNERS
FOUNTAIN SERVICE
Corner Steiner and Sutter
Near Girls High

CLUB ADVISORY BOARD NEXT MEETING OFFERS BANK SYSTEM ADDRESS

On November 16, at 1 p.m. in Room 206 at Powell Street, the Club Advisory Board will hold another meeting, at which Ward Nichols, comptroller may speak. Nichols was expected to attend the last board meeting and discuss the relationship of the banking system of the junior college and the clubs, but could not.

Harold Hoffman, president of the board remarked that the number of representatives present at the last meeting was larger, but that the board still lacks co-operation from the clubs.

Hoffman implied "All clubs shouldn't sit back and let the college activities roll by without saying something, either a suggestion which could benefit the college as a whole or something which could help the rest of the clubs along."

Clubs which have still not filed their applications for renewal of charters should send a representative to the meeting or else contact the president, or vice-president, Robert Schleinger to get the proper blanks to fill out, for until this is done the club loses its status of affiliation with the college.

College Club Activities

● Alpha Phi Omega . . . Plans to visit a peanut factory will be completed on November 14, at 2371 29th Avenue.

● Beta Phi . . . Business and social meeting to be held November 6 at 8 p.m. at Parkside tennis club.

● Beta Tau . . . Initiation and pictures, November 13, 8 p.m. at 1450 Chestnut.

● Chinese . . . A few bids are still available at 25 cents. See the officers of the organization.

● Newman . . . Father Meehan will speak and illustrate with pictures on November 6 at 8 p.m. at St. Mary's Cathedral.

● Omicron Phi Pi . . . Business, November 6, 295 Urbano.

● Peace . . . Speaker, November 6, 8:00 p.m. at 830 Hyde.

● Phi Beta Rho . . . Business meeting November 5, Cecelia Avenue. Active members only.

● Phys. Ed. Rec. Maj. . . . Business meeting November 8. Place, indefinite.

● Phi Alpha Omega . . . Business meeting, November 6, watch the bulletin board.

● Rifle and Pistol . . . Visit to Fort Mason, November 12, 10 a.m.

● Astronomy . . . Business meeting, November 6, Galileo Observatory.

● Tri Epsilon . . . Business meeting, November 6, 8:00 p.m., at Parkwood.

● Block Society . . . Initiation, banquet, December 13; Block awards rally Friday, January 12.

● Forestry . . . Reunion past and present members; watch bulletin board.

Arnold Chapin To Sing At Registrar's Convention

Arnold Chapin, member of the college A Cappella Choir, will represent the college at the College Registrar's Convention on November 13. Chapin has not yet decided what his solo will be. Well known as a piano accompanist, Chapin did not consider singing until he entered the college several semesters ago, where, under the training of Flonita Badger, choir instructor, it was discovered that Chapin had an excellent tenor voice.

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .
Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.
509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600
Remington Rand, Inc.

Audition

By JERRY FISHER

Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents a series of interesting attempts at literature by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandzy, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities: a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. Short stories will be signed, autobiographies will be published anonymously.

Characters:

Liza Teel—a young girl in distress.

Alfred Galliatzo—famed maestro of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Scene: Washington Bridge in New York.

Time: Midnight.

Setting: A large cross section of a bridge with the massive railing on the farther side. Thick mist clings to its gigantic members and translucent lights are faintly to be seen sending a ghostly light penetrating into the darkness.

Suddenly out of the gloom from the left enters Liza Teel, a young ethereal looking girl of about twenty-five with bright hair which adds a fairy-like quality to her finely chisled lecturer. She walks hesitatingly and glances furtively about in a frightened manner. Finally she stops a faltering movement she takes a step toward the railing and then, as if having made a decision, her next four quick steps bring her to the railing, which she stops through with little difficulty. Standing on the outer edge, she poises herself, as another figure enters from the right.

Alfred Galliatzo is a man between fifty-five and sixty. He wears a rich, fur trimmed overcoat, a distinguished hat and carries a smart cane. His whole appearance is one of luxuriousness, and it can be seen from walk and manner, he is not one to be trifled with. His aspect is slightly blase. Upon sighting the girl in her dramatic attitude, he stops short.

(Alfredo Galliatzo speaks.)

Galliatzo: (bruscquely) Young lady!

Liza clutches at the railing, startled, and turns staring at the gentleman in speechless amazement.)

Galliatzo: (Clearing his throat apologetically, continues his monologue in a measured tone.) May I inquire why you are so intent upon taking a bath at this ungodly hour?

Liza: (Trembling now with frightened rage regains her speech somewhat and whispers hoarsely.) You—you meddler! How dare you interfere!

Galliatzo: (In a faintly bored tone.) Was I meddling? I didn't mean to. I'm just curious. (Slight pause.) You Americans are queer people. Really. I don't think you'd like the water at all—once you got into it. Rather cold, isn't it, for this time of night?

(Liza stares incredibly at the stranger during this speech and her expression becomes frozen.)

Liza: (In a threatening voice) Who asked advice from you? I shall do as I like.

Galliatzo: (Blandly) Don't most young ladies? Go right ahead, please don't let me stop you, only I'm such an infernally curious person, you might satisfy it before you dive off.

(Liza is slowly losing her nerve, for her heroic jump overboard doesn't seem such a cinch as she hears the water rushing by. Quick little glances over her shoulder signify this.)

Liza: (In a quick rasping voice:) Very well—you want to know so I'll tell you.

(She slips back under the railing and takes a step toward him. She begins her speech vehemently but the last words end in a short sob.)

Liza: I wanted to be an opera singer. I've dreamed about it all my life. Oh, laugh if you wish—they all do!

Galliatzo: (Bows apologetically.) My dear, I assure you I hadn't the slightest desire to laugh at you. It just all seems such an amusing coincidence.

(Liza puts her hands on slim hips and attacks him in heated speech.)

Liza: Amusing is it? Oh there were lots like you—that's why I went to get away from it all—away from jibes and thrusts from your sort. (She scans him scornfully from head to foot and continues rapidly.)

Liza: You can afford to laugh—you are probably laughing at every poor soul struggling for existence.

(Her voice becomes softer as she continues.)

Liza: There was a time when I had faith in humanity and it was then that I studied voice and sang in the little choir back home. (Pause.) When I decided to come to New York where I could get my chance.

(Liza's voice loses its dreamy quality as her mind reverts back to her present situation, and with a shuddering sigh at bitter memories and a firm resolve she once again slips through the rail.)

(Galliatzo steps forward quickly and taps his cane sharply upon the bridge and speaks.)

Galliatzo: (Firmly) One moment young lady!

(Liza again turns toward him, her face disfigured with emotional strain.)

Galliatzo: (His voice warm with sincerity.) It seems you picked the right bridge. You (slight pause) I am Alfredo Galliatzo. (He prolfers her a card to prove his identity.)

(A long pause follows while Liza stares unbelieving at the extended card and from this to his face, which now becomes faintly familiar to her.)

Liza: (Wonderingly) W-why, of course that's who you are (lower) I've seen your picture many times (She proceeds stumblingly apologetic) I—I am sorry Maestro Galliatzo for not having recognized you before. I'm—Liza Teel. (She breathes a sigh and eyes Galliatzo incredibly.)

Galliatzo: (Crisply.) Well, here is your chance young woman—you may have an audition right now. Stand where you are and give out. What do you know?

Liza: (Breathlessly.) I-How about "One Fine Day"

—Butterfly!

Galliatzo: (Brusquely.) As good as any other. Let's have it.

(Liza takes a deep breath and standing where she is, grips the railing from the other side and begins to sing.)

(Galliatzo stands upright as her voice fills the night air. Occasionally he shifts his position, while Liza now entirely at ease, sings freely. Ten minutes later Liza finishes her song and stands waiting expectantly.)

(Galliatzo takes a few steps forward, raises his cane and gently but firmly pushes Liza over the side of the bridge. A loud splash is heard, and Galliatzo walks languidly on, to the left exit as THE CURTAIN FALLS

Ram's Horn

(Continued from page 2)

For one thing, people have been educated away from such patriotism. Since 1918, schools have preached the futility of flag waving and the wars that seem to go with it. Lincoln, along with the rest of the national heroes, has been consistently debunked. Common sense and pacification were made fetishes. Then about two or three years ago, the powers-that-be decided to about face.

Say though, that the peril is real, that there is a boogerman. The situation is still a disquieting parallel to 1918. If that war was stupid and foolish, if it was cleverly engineered and the people duped, what can be said of this war of 1939?

People appear to realize all this. "Keep America out of war" has become the watchword of the United States. Yet, something is wrong somewhere. In the same breath people are saying "democracy must be preserved, we are its guardians!"

Confused.

ATTENTION!
Junior College Students
STUDENT PLATE LUNCHEON
AT 25 CENTS
Served from 12:45 to 2:20 p.m.
GALILEO HIGH SCHOOL CAFETERIA

"WE'RE OLD PALS TOGETHER!"
U.S.F. S.F.J.C. S.F. STATE
TRI NIGHT
NOVEMBER 10th
Dance to the music of
Glen Gray and the Casa Loma ORCHESTRA
THE PALACE HOTEL
CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVES
Mary Frances Malone ..... FR 4372
Bill O'Neill ..... RA 4900
Lee Scarlett ..... GR 1806

Student Activity

Nolan Invites Women Students To Fashion Tea November 14

Second in a series of teas to be given this semester by the Associated Women Students will be held Tuesday afternoon, November 14, at the Century Club, Sutter and Franklin Streets, from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock.

"All of the women in the college are invited to come," reminded Muriel Nolan, AWS president. "This should be a good opportunity for the freshmen women to become better acquainted with the functions of the organization, for in a few semesters they will be leading the Associated Women Students in similar affairs." Women who are graduating from the senior and private high schools have also been invited to this tea.

In acceptance of an extended invitation, Frances Shoup, well known style commentator, and Virginia Van Dyke, Miss Shoup's assistant, have consented to furnish a complete fashion review, to include present modes and glimpses of the future creations for the college girl.

Nolan Will Model

"We have asked Muriel Nolan, your AWS president, to be one of the models for the fashion show, and we are also bringing one of the models from the store," reminded Miss Shoup.

Mrs. M. C. Tavetkoff, manager of the Better Business Bureau, has been invited to give a short talk before the fashion show. Mrs. Tavetkoff has had a vast amount of experience in the business world and will be of interest to all the women of the college, Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser, said.

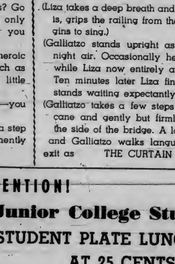
During past semesters, the AWS teas have been outstanding for their large attendance, and, as is agreed by everyone who has attended them, the entertainment and speeches have been very interesting.

All women students who have been invited to serve as hostesses for the AWS tea, are requested by Miss Nolan to meet in Room 212 at the Galileo building Tuesday afternoon, November 7 at 2:15 o'clock for an important meeting.

Assisting Miss Nolan in planning the occasion are Marion MacKillop, Margaret Meader, and Gloria Miller.

ALICE COOPER POETRY BOOK PUBLISHED IN REVISED EDITION

Revised and enlarged more completely to fit its title, Poems of Today, a compilation of verse gathered by Alice Cooper of the college faculty has just been received from the publishers.



This volume, the eighth which Miss Cooper has had published, is widely used as a high school text not only in the bay area but throughout the United States and even in Australia and the Far East. "One of our Chinese students at the college told me that Poems of Today was the first book he was given to read when learning English in his native China," said Miss Cooper.

The object of the book as designated by Miss Cooper is to increase interest in poetry among high school students. To this end she first gathered together a large selection of appropriate poetry in 1924, which was published under the title of Poems of Today. Fifteen years later Miss Cooper felt that in order that the book be truly representative of today's poetry it should be revised, with the result that many works of young poets have been included in the place of poetry no longer appropriate to the spirit of the times.

Spectalor

(Continued from page 2)

pleasing and her singing was splendid, but alas, the winsome Bonnie was too, too far distant. The family was not lacking but the quantity was so Bonnie still sings with an orchestra, and as long as she stays in San Francisco no one in this vicinity can complain.

ZELAN TREATED
All-Sports Jacket
$5.95
FOR THE CAMPUS!
FOR THE SNOW!
FOR ANYWHERE
(Barring formal occasions)
ZELAN IS WATER REPELLENT
Roos Bros
MARKET AT STOCKTON

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
The Guardsman
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE
Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940
Vol. IX FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1939 No. 10

City Plays Host

Pacific Coast Registrars Meet At Drake Hotel Sunday Night

San Francisco is ready to play host to an expected 85 collegiate registrars from the Pacific Coast who will descend on the city this Sunday night. The registrars, here for their fourteenth annual convention, have a full program laid out for their stay here on Sunday night and on Monday and Tuesday, according to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar here, and secretary of the group.

On their arrival Sunday night, an informal reception and social hour has been arranged at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel. Monday morning the convention opens, presided over by President John A. Anderson, of Pasadena Junior College.

Superintendent of Schools Joseph P. Nourse will give a welcome address to the visitors, and then a discussion of inter-institional relationships will follow, under the leadership of Doctor F. C. Wilcox, Director of Admissions and Personnel, Redlands University.

Officers To Be Elected

Later in the morning new officers will be elected for the 1939-1940 year, followed by luncheon at the Sir Francis Drake. After lunch, a discussion will be held, the topic to be that of student guidance.

Doris Dozier of Mills College, who is second vice-president of the association, will preside. The annual dinner will be given at 7 o'clock that night, at the Sir Francis Drake once more.

On Tuesday, the final day of the convention, Treasurer George E. Dotson of San Diego State College will preside over a discussion of registrar's office techniques. Dr. Karl M. Cowdery, associate registrar of Stanford University, will lead the discussion.

Luncheon Tour Planned

Luncheon that day will be held at the Cathay House in Chinatown, after which a tour will be made of the city and of Bay Area educational institutions.

The convention will then be officially over, but a good number of registrars will probably stay over to see the city from a more personal viewpoint.

College Classes Aid

The college is contributing to the convention by the making of corsages and the baking of cakes for the visitors. Miss Learnard said. The cake will be baked by the Hotel and Restaurant Division, and the corsage-making class will prepare fresh corsages on Monday morning.

J. Paul Mohr, college registrar, is acting as committeeman for the convention.

HEA Elects Officers; Initiation November 13

The semester's officers of the Home Economic Association are Barbara Smith, president; Suzanne Richardson, secretary; and Marion Shrick, treasurer.

Monday, November 13, the HEA will initiate new members at a get-together and dinner at Sigmund Stern Grove, Sloat Boulevard and 19th Avenue, reached by No. 17 car to the end of the line.

What A Thrill!

Glen Gray, famed orchestra leader captivates his interviewer, Janet Fellows, with his soft voice and ready wit. Gray is featured at Tri-College Fellows, with his soft voice and ready wit. Gray is featured at Tri-College Night tonight at the Palace Hotel; Miss Fellows is featured on page two of The Guardsman today.

Gift

Australian Pacific Area Map At Fair Offered To College

Offered this week to the college if requisite arrangements can be made was the huge relief map of the Pacific Area which has been on display in the Australian Pavilion at the Fair.

The offer was made by Arthur H. O'Connor, manager of the Australian National Travel Association and Australian Commissioner to the Fair. O'Connor, accompanied by Dean Edwin C. Browne and a Guardsman reporter visited the exhibit this week in order to determine the possibility of using it in the new building if necessary permission of the Board of Education is granted.

The map itself is 24 feet by 34 feet, made of painted plyboard in large sections. It includes an area bounded in the east by San Francisco, in the west by Central China, and extends from the North Pacific to the southernmost tip of Australia in a vertical direction. Principal shipping and railroad lines, time zones, and the international date line are all marked by electric and neon lights which would be replaced by painted lines in the event that the map was secured for the college.

After viewing the map, Dean Browne said, "A map such as this is of inestimable value from an educational point of view. Visual education is the latest trend, and I can think of nothing that would be of more service to the college's courses in geography, history and economics than a map such as this, to say nothing of its decorative value for our new buildings. We are very greatful to Mr. O'Connor and the Australian government for their kind offer, and assuming official permission for the transfer can be obtained, we will make every effort to avail ourselves of it.

"The difficulty at the moment is largely one of finding sufficient wall space for so large a piece of work, but I intend to check the building plans with the Registrar to see if such space is available."

Irrespective of whether or not the Fair opens next year, the Australian Building will be dismantled soon, as the war-pressed Australian government does not intend to continue participation.

Junior College Night Sponsored By Low Sophs At Mark Hopkins, Nov. 22

Completion of plans for the dance sponsored by the Low Soph Class are now under way; the dance is to be held at the Akeve Room of Peacock Court of the Mark Hopkins Hotel, on November 22.

All students of the college may attend this event but reservations must be made by contacting the officers of the class.

Meeting with Orrin Tucker on Tuesday, November 7, the officers of the class made all the final arrangements for the evening. Tables in Alcove Court will be arranged in a group for the students from the college.

The price of admission will include cover charge and refreshments for each student.

EX-COUNCIL JESTERS LOAF, DOODLE, PLAY WHILE ADVISER'S AWAY

Even more unconcerned than usual, because of the absence of faculty adviser Alden Smith, the executive council's regular meeting this week was highlighted by the usual reports of standing committees and the equally usual reports of special committees.

All reports submitted were accepted without question or discussion, passed unanimously, and either pigeon-holed or passed "upstairs" for administrative action in a dutiful manner.

Included in the latter classification was the report of Al Williams' joint student-faculty (faculty, five; students, one) committee to investigate cheating. The four typewritten pages of the report were read by Williams, found little or no attention from an executive council more concerned with the pressing problem of dividing up a number of complimentary passes to a Sherlock Holmes play sent to the council by the Theatre Group of the University of San Francisco. Only time that Williams managed to hold his hearers' undivided attention was upon the occasion of such bright sidelights on the honor system as "It seems that as far as the honor system is concerned, the professors have the honor and the students have the system."

Also received was a report of the committee appointed to study the question of awarding an annual trophy to the college's outstanding student. The five minute rendition of this report can be summed up as, "No decision as yet."

Early fears that the council would not be able to transact business because of a lack of a quorum were dispelled when all of the five absentee members put in their appearances before (though in some instances just before) the close of the meeting.

The motion to adjourn was beautifully rendered by Vice-president Dorothy Trood, only flaw in the performance being Harold Hoffman's ungentlemanly appropriation of Muriel Nolan's time-honored perogative of seconding anything that Miss Trood moves. Disregarding the hurt feelings of Miss Nolan, who had as custom specified remained silent during the whole meeting in order to save breath for her magnificent finale, the council approved the motion without opposition, and in so doing maintained the proud reputation of not having defeated a single motion presented to them this semester.

Success Story

BY JANET FELLOWS

In the little village of Roanoke, Illinois, a high school kid named Glen Gray got a group of his friends together and started an orchestra called Spike's Jazz Band. Spike's band played for all of the local socials just for the fun of it. Larger orchestras in neighboring towns discovered Spike's talent for the saxophone and the clarinet and soon Gray was playing for many bands.

Ambitious to be an engineer Gray entered Illinois Wesleyan. After a year of college, however, finances forced Gray to quit school. "I hustled freight in the daytime and played with orchestras every night. Finally I decided to give music my full time for two years, and then if I didn't like it I would hunt for another job," said Gray. (P. S. He stuek to music!)

A few years later Gray joined the band he now leads. The first important engagement was at the Casa Loma Hotel in Toronto, Canada. From the Casa Loma Hotel the band took its name. When the original leader left Gray took over the leadership

(Continued on page 4, column 6)

Women

AWS Tea, Fashion Show To Be Held Next Thursday

Highlighted by a sneak-preview of the latest fashions, the Associated Women Students' style show and tea will be held next Tuesday, November 14, at the Century Club, Franklin and Sutter streets.

In a final announcement and reminder, Muriel Nolan, AWS president, repeated the time of the affair, for the benefit of those who are planning to attend. The show and tea will last from 3:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

All college women are invited to attend and see Francis Shoup, well-known style commentator furnish the extravaganza, which will include

Will Model

MURIEL NOLAN

glimpses of future creations for the college girl.

Miss Shoup revealed that among the models presented will be none other than Muriel Nolan herself.

Also on the program are Mrs. M. C. Tavetkoff, manager of the Better Business Bureau, who will give a short address on Business before the fashion show.

Mrs. Tavetkoff has had a vast amount of experience in the business world and will be of interest to all women of the college, revealed Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

Hostesses assisting Miss Nolan include Margaret Meader, vice-president; Gloria Miller, secretary; Marion MacKillop, treasurer, and Dorothy Trood, Muriel Grenelle, Dorothy Mills, Marian Murphy, Marjorie Lowson, Barbara Walsh, Joy Anna Mack, Gyda Anderson, Thurna Scott, Barbara Smith, Mary Miller, Ruby Klistoff, Helen Hansen, Jane Scott, June Manning, and others.

Among members of the faculty and guests who have been invited to attend are President and Mrs. A. J. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Nourse, Mrs. Henry Morris, Mary Jane Learnard, Claire Cuneo, Bertha Keller, Verrel Weber, Joan Nourse, Jennet Henderson, Eileen Rue, and Margaret Brennan.

Entertainment

Football Rally For Modesto Game Next Thursday

With the Modesto excursion as its theme, the last big football rally of the semester will be held in the Galileo Auditorium next Thursday afternoon at 2:20 p.m., under the direction of Ray Berns, college yell-leader.

Expected to appear are a well-known radio personality and local talent that will include a singer, a pianist, an accordianist, and a skit.

Will Feature Skit

The skit, if presented, will feature some of the outstanding characters in the college and will ballyhoo the Modesto trip.

With Jack Schmale, college pressman, and Berns working on final preparations, it appears that the trip is definitely on.

The "Ram Special" will leave the Ferry Building at 4 o'clock next Friday afternoon and arrive in Modesto at approximately 7 o'clock. The locals will leave the valley town at 12 midnight and arrive in San Francisco at 3 a.m. on Saturday morning.

170 Quota

Schmale warns that a quota of 170 students is necessary before the Southern Pacific will sanction the special train. Tickets may be secured at room 200 at Galileo High School any afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Tickets are $2.10.

A college "testing" quota of 110 tickets has been set. In the event that such an amount is not sold by 4:30 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon, the train jaunt will be called off and a bus excursion instituted in its stead.

Once again, the locals will have a roped-off rooting section for tonight's football classic with Los Angeles City College.

Roped Off Section.

The section will be decorated with red and white crepe paper and the yell-leaders will again have a public address system.

"Our rooting section was certainly swell at the State game. We had plenty of spirit and pep, and the students backed that team all the way. Let's not let down now. I'll see you all at that game tonight, and again next week at Modesto." Berns said.

After Rally Meeting

J. Paul Mohr, registrar, has requested that all men students remain seated immediately following the rally.

He will discuss the formation of forming auxiliary committees for the forth-coming Father-and-Sons' Night, an Associated Men Students' affair.

The Dean Says:

Commenting upon the spirit shown by the rooting section last week, Dean Browne recently said, "The spirit and attendance at the football game between the Junior College and San Francisco State was most heartening."

Browne, looking toward the future, said that following tonight's contest with Los Angeles Junior College, the teams would be entertained at an inter-college banquet.

Winner of the game shall be presented with a large silver trophy, by Captain Robert A. Roos, he mentioned.

Applications Still Being Accepted For Part Time Work During Christmas Vacation; Qualifications Listed By Gohn

Applications for Christmas employment in downtown department stores are still being taken by Virginia Gohn, business instructor. For sales work, women should be rather tall and must wear a black dress. Women who are not tall enough for sales work may be placed in the package wrapping department.

"There was a large response to the announcement that applications were being taken, so it is advisable for women who are interested to get in touch with me immediately," said Miss Gohn. "I am at 58 Sutter Street on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 11 o'clock and on Tuesday and Thursdays at 12 o'clock."

Members of the retail merchandising class which Miss Gohn also instructs, have 15 hours of class work a week and at least 15 hours of work in one of the local department stores. Besides learning and getting experience the students are paid 40 cents an hour at the least. These students work afternoons on Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays, and all day on Saturday.

Last semester, out of a class of 14, three students returned to college. All of the rest have been placed in good positions in San Francisco's leading stores.

The students get experience in the stock rooms, marking goods, behind counters, and in the selling departments.

Students have to have at least a C average in college work to get into the class. Miss Gohn interviews each student first and only takes the most desirable.

"We would like to see all the students who are planning to enroll in retail merchandising next semester before the close of the present semester. All those who are interested should see Miss Gohn or myself as soon as possible," said F. Grant Marsh, head of the business department.

Assembly Today

Symposium On American Freedom In Lecture Hall This Morning

As part of the college's contribution to American Education Week, several members of the faculty will present a symposium on the theme, American Freedom, to students of the college at 10 a.m. this morning in the Lecture Hall of the Powell Street Building.

Archibald J. Cloud, president of the college, will act as chairman of the symposium. Instructors scheduled to speak thus far are Robert J. Parker, John Gerstung, F. Grant Marsh, all of the history department, and Louis G. Conlan and Lloyd D. Luckmann, both of the civil service department.

They will discuss the basic elements dealing with the structure of American freedom, covering especially the various phases of the Bill of Rights as they apply to American education.

Several other members of the faculty have given talks to outside clubs in view of this being American Education Week.

Early this week Dr. Franklin C. Sewell, political science instructor, spoke before a meeting of the Mission Kiwanis Club.

Alden W. Smith, mathematics instructor, and Charles H. McKeram, music instructor, spoke to the San Francisco Round-Table group yesterday on American education.

INSURANCE COURSES PREPARE STUDENT FOR PLACEMENT IN BUSINESS

Proclaiming the college semi-professional courses as an excellent step toward business education, F. D. Van Stralen, of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company placed his seal of approval on W. C. Marsh's insurance program this week.

Van Stralen was one of the consulting engineers in the planning of the insurance curriculum. He is a member of the Life Underwriter's College.

"The insurance courses as offered by your college," Van Stralen commented, "are excellent opportunities for persons who wish to prepare themselves for this important financial institution.

F. D. VAN STRALEN

"In the past the American public used life insurance only for the protection of their beneficiaries. Now they have come to the point where the institution of life insurance is used as the major vehicle to accumulate funds to provide incomes. Passage of the Social Security Act has done much to direct the attention of the people toward the value of regular monthly incomes. Through the use of the annuity principle life insurance companies can bolster one's income to a point of financial independence."

Van Stralen encouraged students enrolled in the insurance division because it is the only college course in San Francisco preparing students for employment in life insurance.

Sales and clerical departments of the main insurance companies are constantly selecting young men and women for positions in their organizations. The preliminary training and experience in the insurance courses at San Francisco Junior College should result in their receiving preferential treatment among those who apply for these positions," he concluded.

Only Six Days Remain To Enter Pacific Relations Student Essay Contest

Only six more days remain for students to mail in entries for the essay contest now being held by the Student Institute of Pacific Relations.

The subject of the essay is to be The Importance of Student Discussion Groups. Participants in the contest will be drawn from the junior colleges and colleges in the Bay Area and part of Northern California.

One full scholarship, including all expenses, to the Fourteenth Annual Conference of the institute will be awarded the winner of the competition. The winning essay on each

Men's Club Father-Son Night Definitely Set For Wednesday, Dec. 6

Definite date of the Associated Men's Students Father-and-Son Night was set recently by Joseph Amori, adviser, for Wednesday, December 6, 1939.

To be held for the first time in the college's history, the Father-and-Son Night will feature a full-course dinner. It is believed that the Galileo cafeteria will be used as the gathering hall.

"Four hundred dinners will probably be served to the many fathers and sons who are expected to attend," announced Amori. He stated that no definite plans, as yet, had been fixed in relation to expenses.

The Hotel and Restaurant Division will handle the food preparation aspect of the dinner according to Lee Seprlett, AMS prexy and member of the Restaurant Division.

Seprlett at present is working on a plan to have as featured guests on Father-and-Son Night, many prominent business men from the industrial centers of the Bay Area.

"We hope to hear there, many speeches and discourses from the dis-

(Continued on page 4, column 1)

Dramatics Class Begins Rehearsals; Performances To Be Given In December

Though handicapped by the lack of stage facilities, the class in acting, Speech 20b, under the direction of Ruth Jensen Somers, began rehearsals last week on three one-act plays.

The Sweetmeat Game, a verse play with the scene laid in San Francisco's old Chinatown has in its cast Ben Papapietro as the Chinese husband, Lucia Loyola as the Chinese wife, and Earl Pereira as the blind son.

Wisdom Teeth, a comedy, has been cast with Camille Cindrotte as the aunt, Richard French as the nephew, Margaret Meader as the girl, and Barbara Ainsworth as the office attendant.

The Finger of God, by Percival Wilde includes Audrey Fellesen as the girl and Thomas Redmond as the man.

Plans for giving the Associated Students opportunity for seeing these plays are being made, with performances probably to be given in December, Mrs. Somers indicated.

Data . . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
Game—Rams vs. Los Angeles	Seals Stadium	Tonight
Tri-College Night	Palace Hotel	Tonight
Fathers-Sons Night	Lick School	November 14
Game—Rams vs. Modesto	Modesto	November 17
Train Excursion	Modesto	November 17
Low Soph J.C. Night	Mark Hopkins	November 22
Low Soph Dance	Palace	December 1

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1939 No. 10

BILL FRANTZ .... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser — Joan Nourse
Business Adviser — Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross .... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff .... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat .... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone .... Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli .... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch .... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop .... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

United States Held Reservoir Of Hope And Security As Armistice Day Brings Memories Of War's Horrors

ARMISTICE DAY this year carries as much meaning to the American people as it did in the years immediately following World War I.

In those years following the signing of the armistice, business houses declared holidays. Those who had lost menfolk attended ceremonies and Armistice Day parades drew huge crowds. In a few years Armistice Day lost its importance because the memory of the war was fading.

This year, however, Armistice Day memories return to the minds of the American people—for there is another war of the same dimensions as in 1914 and young men of military age carefully scan the news to see whether they will be drawn into the argument as their fathers were two decades ago.

The American Educational Policies Commission recognizing this reawaking of the memories of the last war, last month published a booklet stating its point of view. We quote from the commission's publication.

"The declaration of war by several European nations confronts American education with certain new conditions and problems . . . Whether or not the declared war evolves into large-scale combat, a struggle has been initiated which is likely to continue in one form or another for a considerable period. Whatever form that struggle may take, it will certainly influence American education and the problems discussed will remain of urgent concern to the American people. American education is preparing for a day of peace.

"These who are commissioned by society in the service of education should be the last to capitulate to the forces of hatred, greed, and fear. With the darkness of war falling upon half the world, the United States becomes more than ever a reservoir of hope for a humane and democratic order among men. When peace comes again, as it must, the people of the United States ought to be prepared to play their part — sanely, bravely, and generously, in the process of rebuilding a world order from which the threat of war and violence may be removed. Those who are to fulfill that mission can approach their task best if their hands are unstained by blood, their spirits uncorroded by hatred, and their minds uncrippled by months of wartime regimentation."

—American Education and the War in Europe Educational Policies Commission.

in TROOD ings
By Dot

FOR they are jolly good fellows, for they are jolly good fellows, for they are jolly good fellows, no this isn't a typing test, but these words might have been sung by the students of the college last week at the ground-breaking exercises for the new State college. Such enthusiasm that poured forth from the delegation attending, headed by Dean Edwin C. Browne, was really overwhelming.

Some absent-minded person casually remarked to the crowd at large, "I think there's a woodpecker over at that tree," but in reality it was only the knocking of various knees that was heard by this individual who strangely enough was bundled up to keep out the fog and chill.

To cite one case that showed enthusiasm from the crowd of delegates from the college—every time a photographer wanted to take a picture of some outstanding member of State holding the shovel, this delegation would surround the place marked off and nine times out of ten there would be about two State people. After all, the college representatives only wanted to enhance the attraction of the picture.

Just one more word about the ground-breaking exercises, and that is a word of congratulation to Dean Browne on his excellent speech, and the way the delegation cheered and clapped for a good five minutes after he had finished. Thanks for getting a few words in there about the new buildings out at Balboa Park, Dean.

HERE'S THE LATEST

It must have been the weather, because it isn't spring, that caused so many people to turn out poetry by the bushel last month, and here is the latest one penned by blonde Alice Kahm:

I see'd a 'litle bird
A-sittin' on a fence
Him were chirpin' crazy like
As if him haves no sense
Him perked hims 'litle haid
An' singed a 'litle song
Hims practicin' for Major Bowes
So him won't get no gong.

Oh me, and some folks call it poetry. Enough is enough, for we were told that this young lady has a scrapbook which is full of this kind of poetry (?).

THE REAL STUFF

Since Nelson Eddy Lear (Herb Lear) and Jeanette MacDonald (Anita Casey) sang "Will You Remember?" at the last rally, they have caused something of a sensation. They were invited to sing the same song at a rally given by State and the audience seemed a little skeptical of light operatic numbers, but nevertheless decided to be polite and listen. Were they surprised! and how, for they hadn't expected such singing and the applause that rang out from the crowd was amazing. Congratulations, Herb and Anita, you did yourselves proud, and also honored the college with your talents.

We're not crazy, we just read the newspapers and for proof, here are some of the movies that are being featured this week. You Can't Get Away With Murder, cried The Boy Friend, for When Tomorrow Comes The Arizona Legion will have the Inside Story.

Flip Retorts of 1910:

"Nobody home but the fire and it's out."

The . . . Spectator
By JANET FELLOWS

IT IS difficult to read Louis Bromfield's novel, The Rains Came, without comparing it with the motion picture. Although the picture was not superior to other class "A" pictures it was an amazingly splendid production when one considers the mediocre quality of novel.

The Rains Came takes place in Ranchipur, a small state in vast India. The "Enlightened Despots" of Ranchipur, the Maharajah and Maharini, are in the midst of a long and hard struggle to carry out the "Great India Dream." To modernize Ranchipur into a healthy, prosperous, and educated state the rulers have to eliminate the caste system, the religious strife, the racial differences, and the ancient superstitions. Nature aids the fight with an earthquake, which destroys the untouchable quarters, and a pest hole for diseases, which breaks the dam, causing a subversive flood. Following the earthquake are the torrential rain storms.

Caught in Ranchipur when the rains came were England's Lord and Lady Esketh. Lord Esketh symbolizes the evils of capitalism, the malady of the western world. His wife, Lady Esketh, a capricious woman, is a personification of the depravity of the West. Tom Ransom, another Englishman, is an escapist who has fled to India where he seeks refuge from the ills of Europe. In India Ransome leads a worthless life spent in a state of perpetual partial inebriation.

MANY CHARACTERS

The American missionary's wife, Mrs. Simon, is the town's social climber, and her paramount ambition is to marry off her daughter, Fern, to some eligible Englishman stranded in Ranchipur. Mr. and Mrs. Smiley, also American missionaries, are more concerned with educating the untouchables than in spreading the Baptist faith. They are, in reality, better Christians than the over-religious Mr. Simon.

Major Safti, the Oxford-educated Indian doctor, and his capable Scotch nurse, Miss MacDaid, are unselfish members of Ranchipur's citizenry who share the India Dream and spend their benevolent lives trying to cleanse Ranchipur in order to abolish the breeding places of the dread fevers that sweep over India. The two old maid school teachers from England are also helping the rulers of Ranchipur to carry out their program of enlightenment.

Ransom, Lady Esketh, Miss Dirks (one of the old maids), and Fern Simon are unhappy people who are seeking the reason for their existence. The earthquake shakes them out of their almost living death and shows them the way to happiness. For some the angry visitation of nature means death. Their lives, however, are not incomplete, because before death arrives each person has discovered the secret of living, and because of this new found formula for life, the characters are able to meet death peacefully and willingly.

In The Rains Came Louis Bromfield has attempted too much, and therefore his novel cannot accomplish what he hoped. He can find only hopeless evil and decay in the western civilization. On the other hand, backward India is merely asleep, but soon she will awake, and as the mighty country arises she will throw off her yoke, the English who are exploiting her.

TOO INVOLVED

Although The Rains Came is not too long in the number of pages, it is too long in material and quality. There are so many persons in the novel, and each character's story must be told. The reader becomes lost in the labyrinth of narration about all the people of Ranchipur, and soon loses interest in the main story. Added to this are the oft repeated evils that encourage India's sleeping sickness and tortured dreams, the evils of the primitive and superstitious religions, the race prejudice, the caste system, the ignorance, the lethargy of the people, the filth, the overgrown country, the oppressive weather, and the exploitation of the British.

NOTHING ACCOMPLISHED

Besides all this, Bromfield tries to bring out the conflict within each individual. He adds his political and religious views. He cites all the evils of the world and of civilized men and women. He crowds so much into one novel that he cannot devote enough energy to one problem, and therefore accomplishes nothing. The Rains Came was not only monotonous—it was also a useless story that had great possibilities, but failed to achieve worthiness somewhere along the way.

Cinchtime
By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Lifetime Athletic Passes Condemned Unfair, Expensive

● ABOLISH LIFETIME PASSES
Editor, The Guardsman:

Although I can testify, having seen all the home games this year, that the college football team has had a successful season from the standpoint of athletic achievement, I understand that the sport is responsible for a mounting deficit on the budget.

No college can long continue to support football with funds that rightfully should be given to, and would be better spent in the pursuance of, the numerous other student activities which are of interest to wide sections of the student body.

Yet it seems that the college is attempting to do just this.

There is no justification, legal or moral, for the diversion of money to support an activity which cannot pay its own way.

None of us want to see football abolished in the college. Therefore the question is: How can we net a more satisfactory paid gate at our games.

There is one particular item affecting the college athletic receipts that could and should be eliminated for the good of the institution as a whole.

It is the established practice of awarding lifetime passes to athletic participants. These passes entitle the holders to witness all sporting events sponsored by the college, ad infinitum. As a result, large numbers of the people attending our football games are non-paying guests.

How can the college justify the awarding of these passes when their recipients have done nothing but participate in athletics, whose expenses, in turn, sapped the student body mass by drawing heavily on funds which were given under pressure of near-coercion, and which, in all events, should be used to give the greatest good to the greatest number?

And why should the athlete be given preference in this mater over the outstanding scholar or the student who diverts his energies to other student activities which are equally—if not more—beneficial to the college?

And why should accredited student body card holders, who have slapped their four dollars on the line, be forced to witness a sport—which is supposedly played for fun—bite huge

(Continued on page 4, column 3).

Cabbages & Kings
By Blue Pencil Bill

TWO of the college's fair young things were waiting for the "F" car early this week when a supercharged Ford slowed up and the fellow in it said, "Oh, pardon me. I thought you girls were good looking." —Then drove away at the next "Go" signal.

These women at football games! A fellow takes a girl to see the college trounce its opponent. He is enthusiastic about his team; she is enthusiastic about fall fashions. He leaps to his feet on those long gainers and yells with ecstacy as his team scores. She?—well, we'll cite some examples.

. . . It's fourth down, Cunningham is back in punt formation, he boots a long, high spiral and the linemen get down to cover the ball as it bounces further downfield away from any possible return by the safety man.—She said, "Why are those boys watching the ball bounce 'up and down?" . . .

. . . The opposing fullback smashes through the line, past the secondary and is brought down by the safety man after a gain of twenty yards. On the next play he tosses a thirty-five yarder to our ten where an alert back intercepts and with clever blocking returns the ball about forty yards.—She said, "Football fields are so long. I'll bet the players get so tired!" . . .

—But the dame who takes the cake was that stately blond. Her boy friend went to a lot of trouble to seat her in the Press Box so that she could have the benefit of expert observation. The quarter was packed with long runs and sensational passes and the b.f. was really enjoying the game. He turned to her—and imagine his amazement when he found her busily KNITTING! (Believe it or not)

What has come over the Sports Editor lately? It used to be that "Lucky Louie" was a character not unlike K. Pasqualette, who traipsed around the college unshaven and carelessly adorned. But came that lucky day—a woman entered Louie's life and now he shaves at least four times per week, dresses like a toff and carries a big smile from his left ear to his right. Now see what you can do for Kenneth!

In 1638, when Harvard was endowed, an unidentified undergraduate who had flunked his first set of midterms sat down to contemplate his misfortune. He blossomed forth with this parody on the 23rd psalm. The prof is my shepherd; I shall not pass; He maketh me to lie down at all hours of the morning. He leadeth me through intricate mazes for his name's sake. Yea, when I walk through the valley of the shadow of failure, I shall fear all evil, for thou art there awaiting me. Thy red pencil and thy grade book, they frighten me, Thou preparest a cinch notice for me in the presence of all mine enemies. Thou annointest my head with discouragement. My cup is too much for me to drink. Surely my college record shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in my parent's doghouse forever and ever. Amen.

shots at RAMdom
By Isadore Maloff

ALTHOUGH we don't like to remind our readers of things unpleasant, you may be interested to know that:
It's just about time for you to meet,
The mailman while he's on your beat,
As once again the news comes out,
That in no more than just about,
A couple of days there are going to be,
Sent to all of you not scholarly—
Cinch notices!

* * * *

SHORT SHOTS

Was it the righteous hand of censorship or merely good advertising that prompted a small theatre on Market Street to advertise "Hedy Lamarr in Ecstacy and Selected Shorts?" Sounds as though there has been some tampering done with the film since the last time we sa-heard of it.

One of the best rackets from a lucrative standpoint we've heard of in some time was successfully worked last Halloween night. Groups of boys and girls formed into bands in a modified version of what is called the protective agency. For a slight fee they promised to spare the neighborhood businessman's windows from any markings. Any storekeeper who waxed indignant and declared that these young hoodlums couldn't soft-soap him, soon knew better when he found his windows in that very condition.

* * *

While we're on the subject of money we've often wondered who collects the pennies thrown on the stage during recent rallies. Not that we are demanding a full explanation, but someone must be reaping a fortune. A fortune—no less.

We think it mildly amusing that the name of a radio announcer on one of the larger networks is Harry Hokum . . . Down on Bush and Kearny streets there's a business enterprise which has the title, "Al Williams' Physical Culture Studio." What's this, a sideline for our 'Al'? . . . And as long as we're dealing with names, someone pointed out that the name of a Chinese laundry at Sutter and Van Ness streets is Sum Wo. Business, we take it, is not so good.

If you're one who appreciates novel advertisements on the pages of the magazines you read, glance at those zippy adds of the Talon Company extolling the merits of zippers on trousers for men. . . . Some day when you're in a humorous mood, drag out your Junior High School Annual and take a look at that ridiculous picture of yourself. It's sure a laugh-getter and memory bringerbacker.

* * *

SIMPLE SERMON

Apropos the little verse one Bob Mason sent to the Ram's Horn in last week's issue we are somewhat in accord, but remember Bob that being:
S tuck way out in the worst
F og belt section of the city
J ust isn't our idea of a spot for a
C ollege, either. But after all, we

S hould not kick but rather should
F ace the new college with real
J oy in our hearts. At least we
C an have a place to call home.

* * * *

Pome
or
Why The Guys We Voted For Weren't Elected

We read all the advertisements,
And propaganda stuff,
Listened on the radio,
To all the latest guff,
But when the time, it came to vote

You know whom we were for?
It was the guy who didn't
Dump his literature at our door.

SACKS OR SOCKS

Any one of our men who trek out to Galileo High in the midafternoons can comment with considerable enthusiasm on the delectability of the high school girls. Of late, however, complaints of poor taste in dress on the part of these girls have been aired about. (2:05 o'clock) Chief source of complaint can be traced to those longish, hideously colored stockings with which the Galileo Gals are currently covering up their gorgeous gams. (Note: Editor says to explain that "gams" mean "legs." Didn't believe us when we told him everyone knew meaning of word.)

While not claiming to be an authority on women's dress, legs covered up by these stockings remind us of fingernail polish on toe nails—covering up the natural beauty, and all that, y'know.

The Young Men's Appreciation of Womenly Beauty Club has pleaded with us to urge all Galileo women immediately to discard such adornment.

When Rankin Roseleaf, president of the organization was asked his opinion of the sacky legs, he opined "They're better — naturally." Of course, his statement is a direct steal from the slogan of the Pall Mall (pronounced Pall Mall) cigarette people, but then who are we to argue with our own president?

Probably it makes little difference to the girls what we think of their encased legs. But with the recent fluffs in the hair, sweaters buttoned up the back, and long stockings, it really looks as though there are more styles to the Galilean.

While Thinking . . .
By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

BRINGING the American public a welcome change in reading fare, the newspapers of the nation last week announced that strained relations between the United States and Japan may soon disappear.

United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew bluntly informed the Japanese that relations between the two powers would continue to be cool unless Japan respected American rights in China.

Grew declared that American public opinion resented interference with American activities in China. He cited the instances of American property damaged by Japanese bombings in China, alleging Japanese restriction of American trade in China, and general interference with American business transactions.

It was reported that the Japanese government, faced with the expiration of the American-Japanese trade treaty next January, looked with favor upon the settlement of differences between the two countries.

No doubt Japan feels that it would be wise to remain on friendly terms with the United States, now that she no longer has Germany to rely upon.

Termination of trade with Japan would be a severe economic loss for the Far East nation and it appears as if the Nipponese are glad they can appease this country with such little loss of face.

* * *

NAZI Germany last week hinted that she may soon resort to an unrestricted submarine warfare campaign similar to that of 1917.

Perhaps she will, but we doubt very strongly if she will deliberately do much damage to American shipping.

The Nazis are at present engaged in a war they would like very much to end. It is inconceivable to believe that with the odds on her losing the war already very strong, she will further endanger her already precarious position by incurring the wrath of the United States.

* * *

NATIONAL

GREATEST single victory for the Roosevelt Administration was the revision of the American Neutrality Act recently approved by Congress.

Terminating one of the most interesting battles ever fought in the Senate and House, the new law prevents all American ships from entering the war zone and provides for a strict cash and carry basis between the United States and the nations at war.

Expected to keep the nation out of the present conflict the measure will soon prove its worth.

It should at least prevent another Lusitania incident.

COLLEGE

THE campus was last week the recipient of a visit from Roger Nash Baldwin, National Director of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Baldwin spoke at an assembly in the lecture hall on the subject of War and Democracy.

Noted as a champion of the Bill of Rights, Baldwin gave an interesting and highly enlightening address.

Claiming that Socialism and Communism are but idealistic dreams, he predicted that the war would not end with any one side emerging victorious but that the result would be international order.

Baldwin is of the opinion that in time there will come to be a United States of Europe, instead of many different countries with their own governments and defenses such as now exists.

The speaker was welcome in the college at a time when everyone's thoughts are turning toward war. His informal style and ready humor were somewhat reminiscent of the great American humorist, Will Rogers.

It would be a great step forward in the educating of American youth if such speakers could explain more often some of the phases of the present world in which we live.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Last Game Of The Year At Seals Tonite; Rams Meet Los Angeles C. C.

Colorful Pageant Due As National Guard Puts On Pre-Game Exhibition

Sky Bombs Blast State 19-0!

Nauman Passes Gators Dizzy; Air Show Clicks For Long Scoring Runs

SEALS STADIUM, Nov. 3—Pardon the whoops and hollers that ring against the empty bleachers of this darkened ball park tonight. Forgive the self-satisfied guffaws that echo along the concrete-lined underpass as the Big Game crowd of 5,000 ebbs into the street. There is a reason for the gaiety and mirth.

It's a wake over the reptilian array of State College, which goes down, this misty evening, to a snappy 19 to 0 mashing at the hands of a surprisingly devastating Ram outfit.

That State is the Ram's most bitter antagonist makes this victory all the more delectable. That tonight's is the first college gridiron win over the Gators since the initial contest of the traditional series serves only to add to the sweetness of the cup which Eisan's men down with gusto.

GRANDSTAND STUFF

Furthermore, this game demonstrates why football is America's autumnal king. It is the most spectacular and downright hair-raising contest the Rams have played all season long. It is spectacular because the Rams are playing to the stands tonight; at least that seems the only explanation.

What else can you call it when three stinging passes in succession lead to the first college touchdown, with Al Nauman socking over the last two yards. And then, twelve minutes later, when Nauman zips a bullet pass to Jim Molich, the latter scampering down the sidelines 40 yards for the second tally. As if this isn't enough, only two minutes elapse before Nauman is at it again, batting a short shovel flip to Dave Cunningham, who leaps like a jackrabbit through a gaping hole in the Gater left side, whirls to the sideline, and loafs some 57 yards for the third and final score of the evening.

These plays look as if Coach Lee Eisan has marked out the diagrams on the turf, for each man fulfills his assignment to perfection, and the rest is merely a matter of the ball carrier following his nose.

WAKE UP AFTER HALF

For the first thirty minutes of the game, the Rams are listless, unable to do anything worthy of mention. Lee Eisan starts a team of shock-troops, who hold the Gators on strictly even terms, even, in fact, keeping an advantage. But as the second quarter begins, in bounces the first string varsity, which combination succeeds in looking very, very bad. With brilliant Chad Reade sweeping the flanks and flipping passes, State rolls, and the halftime gun finds Reade potting empties at the Ram goal-posts from his vantage point on the eleven yard line.

In the second half it is a different story. State gets the ball on the kickoff, fiddles for three downs, and punts to Spieller, who prances back 22 yards to the Gator 48. On the first succeeding play, Al Nauman drops back and fires a flat pass to Moisan for a first down on the 35. Three plays later he repeats the performance, this time for a 13-yard gain to the 16 yard line. Nauman can't gain at tackle, so he fades again, and slings one directly over center, hitting end Jim Molich on the 2-yard line. It is a hot ball, and Molich makes a difficult catch surrounded by the entire State secondary.

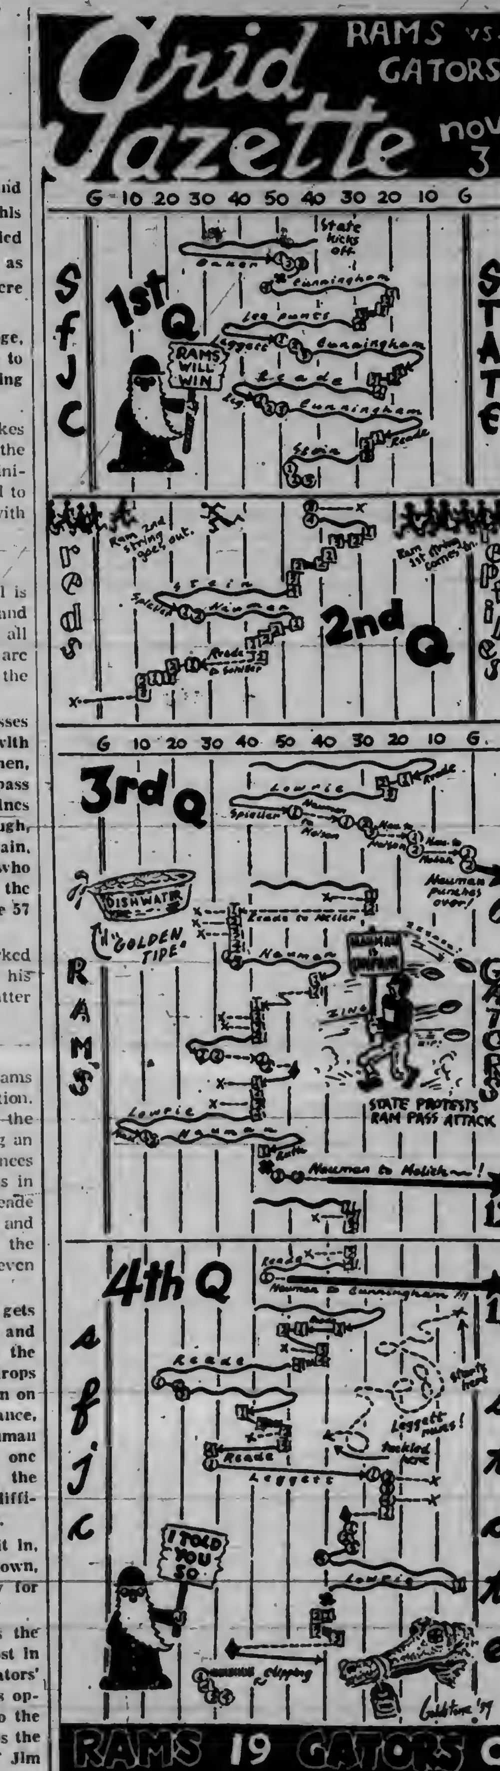
With two yards to go, and four plays to make it in, Nauman hits to the one-foot line. Then, on second down, he cracks center for the score. Cunningham's try for point is wide. But this is only the beginning.

Only twelve minutes elapse before State drops the pigskin, and it is fallen upon by a Ram who is lost in the shuffle. With a first down, by virtue of the Gators' error, on the college 46, the bombing crew resumes operations. A crack at the line nets over midfield to the State 49. This time Nauman drops back and rockets the oval straight over center into the waiting paws of Jim Molich, who cuts to his left and, hotly pursued, races 40 yards to paydirt. Cunningham again misses the uprights, but it no longer matters, for twelve points is more than enough to beat Chad Reade—and Reade is State.

PERFECT PLAY SCORES

For the third time this evening, Schoenstein kicks off for the Rams. After the Gators have run a couple of plays, the gun pops ending the third quarter. The teams change goals and play resumes. An incomplete pass, and the Gators punt, downing the ball on the Ram 43.

If ever there was a perfect play, it is the one that follows. Nauman takes the ball from center, steps back to pass; Cunningham, swinging around from his wing-back spot, cuts toward the open highway that is being carved at the State left tackle; Nauman flips the pigskin and Cunningham, receiving behind the scrimmage line, zips for the sideline and goes the distance . . . 57 yards. Not a hand touches him on the way. The blocking is perfect. The play is a coach's dream.



That ends the scoring for the evening, but not the thrills. In the final period Leo Leggett runs State wacky on a 45-yard hop-skip-and-jump that just misses becoming another touchdown. On the Gator side of the fence it is all Reade. He is amazing. Once, attempting to get away a pass, he is cornered 15 yards behind his line of scrimmage, but twists and squirms and zig-zags his way for a 35-yard gainer, ad lib.

BATTING AVERAGE

It is State that's pass-slappy tonight. The purple-shirted backs are hurling the ball in all directions, but seldom connecting. The passing average of the Rams, on the other hand, is maintained at the happy medium it has hit all season.

This evening's show furnishes ample remuneration for the 1938 drubbing; in fact, turns the tables by an identical score. And in this second half, the Rams look good enough to lick any team they have played, or are likely to play this year.

Only two games remain. Los Angeles City College traipses into the village next Friday eve, and Modesto is host to the Rams on the following week. But the odds are against another game that will rate with tonight's contest for sheer football.

Ram-Gator Dope Bucket

	S.F.J.C.	State
1st downs, scrimmage	1	4
1st downs, passes	4	3
1st downs, penalties	0	0
Total 1st downs	5	7
Yardage gained, scrimmage	108	101
Yardage lost, scrimmage	18	31
Yardage gained, passes	157	73
Yardage lost, passes	0	0
Total yardage gained	247	143
Passes attempted	10	20
Completed	6	5
Incompleted	3	13
Intercepted	1	2
Passing average	.600	.250
Yards lost, penalties	25	15

Scoring: S.F.J.C.—Touchdowns, Nauman, Molich, Cunningham; P.A.T., Moisan (pass from Nauman).

Jayvee 'Pink' Hoopsters Signing Up; Wilson Appoints Hugh Ryan Manager

Planning to commence practice on the first of next month, Coach Tom Wilson is now signing in all men eligible for junior varsity basketball competition.

Hoping for early signing in, Wilson made it known that Hugh Ryan would probably take over manager duties for the ensuing semester.

At present, Wilson is working over the practice schedule which he hopes to have completed by next week.

To date, approximately eight men have signed up with Wilson and the manager. Anticipated turn-out is expected to shoot up to about 40 within the next few days.

The team will use the same type of uniform in games as it did last year. For obtaining basketball equipment, it is advisable to consult Manager Ryan or the basketball coach.

RAMS MEET LACC

Red Rifleers Sock Trust Team In 1st Win; Make Hi Score

Ram Rifleers came through in grand fashion last Thursday when the squad out-aimed the American Trust Company for its first Golden Gate Bridge League win.

The score was 920 to 872.

Tied for high point honors were two college men, Al Templeton and Louie Davy, both sharpshooters.

It was the first match of the season for the college team and the point average was remarkably high.

Held in the Galileo Armory, the competition lasted for two hours. The locals were the first to shoot at the targets.

The match consisted of five shots in each of the following four positions: Standing, kneeling, sitting and prone.

Captain McFarland was pleased with the showing of his shooters. He commented, "They did better than usual for an initial match. I hope they don't slacken during the season. It's getting so, that I really can't say just who'll be high point man."

Practice Counts

Reason for the victory according to McFarland was in the persistent practice the men have.

"They always seem to be out there in the Armory strengthening out their form," he said.

The next match the rifleers have will be with the Independent Rifle team. It will be staged in the Galileo Armory, November 14, at 7 p.m.

S.F.J.C.—920: C. A. North, 183; A. Templeton, 186; G. Humphrey, 183; D. Minium, 182; L. H. Davy, 186. Amer. Trust Co.—872: W. Noble, 185; A. Wilson, 174; F. Birkman, 171; W. Knight, 168; B. Wilson, 174.

Pi Mu Gammas, Rifle Club Gridders Fight 6-6 Tie

In the first game of what it is hoped will develop into a round-robin intramural schedule, the Rifle Club and Pi Mu Gamma Society played to a 6 to 6 tie, last Sunday, in a touch-tackle football match.

Both teams scored on long pass plays, the pre-meds connecting in the third quarter, the sharpshooters in the final period.

Lambs Lucky; Eke Out Scoreless Tie With Gator Goofs

Although the scoreboard read at the final gun, goose-egg to goose-egg, the Ram-Alligator reserve pigskin tilt proved a thriller as a preliminary to the varsity battle last Friday night.

Featuring everything but a legalized score, the ludicrous spectacle brought cheers and guffaws from a crowd of 150 attendants who witnessed two games for the price of one.

Made up of men who had but four days practice, the Lambs were digging in all the time. They threatened the Staters only twice; for most of the time the Alligators seemed ominously near the Ram goal.

Facts and figures showed that the locals were outplayed in all departments of the game. State reserves picked up about twice as much yardage, completed twice as many passes and had twice as much bad luck.

Late in the final quarter, one of the alert Alligators snagged a Ram pass and sprinted 50 yards for a touchdown but dirty work by a teammate nullified the score.

Early in the second stanza, the Staters narrowly missed a score when an attempted field goal sailed five feet wide of the cross-bars.

A strange incident which caused many laughs occurred near the end of the struggle. Tackled by an opponent, a Ram back's helmet sailed up in the air and was firmly snatched by a State player who ran 15 yards goalward before realizing what he had in his arms.

Coached by Tempie Davis and "Tex" Taylor, the Ram reserves with but the few days practice they mustered did well to eke out a scoreless tie.

State's advantage lay principally in its reserves. The Rams had only half as many team members.

Men who showed class in spots for the locals were Peewee Anderson and Louis Vasquez, backs. At the end position, Jim Cassidy was continually in on the defensive plays.

One of the biggest changes in American intercollegiate football came in 1895 when the rule requiring five men on the offensive line of scrimmage was put into effect, thus discouraging the use of "mass momentum" and "flying wedge" plays.

Spectacular Battle Tonight At Seals

Rams, Hot From State Slaughter, Face Los Angeles Invaders With Confidence; Aerial Carnival Set

For the last time this year, the arc-lights of Seals Stadium will beam down tonight on the Ram Pigskin Legion. Cavorting on the well-worn turf, the crimson shirted collegians clash with Los Angeles City College's highly touted grid eleven. The contest begins at 8:15 p.m.

In common with most of the Ram games this season, tonight's fracas will be another grudge-fight. Last year, down at Los Angeles, whose football officials are hailed far and wide as being near-sighted lemons, the college varsity got hooked for a 13 to 7 defeat. In that contest the City College had fifteen men on the field.

Rated as weaker than Pasadena Junior College, the L.A.C.C. outfit faces a rejuvenated Ram squadron this evening. Throughout the season, the local gridders have turned in a very favorable performance as compared with last year's holocaust, and, with the decrepit Alligator nicely shellacked for a cocktail, intend to end up the season in a blaze of glory—at the expense of the Southerners and Modesto.

Los Angeles' crew holds, at present, second place in the Southern California Junior College Conference. Its schedule has included such teams as the U.C.L.A. and U.S.C. frosh, the latter contest being dropped by the score of 20 to 0.

ANOTHER PASS ATTACK

For the nth time, an opponent blows into town with a "deadly passing attack" to run up against the Rams, whose aerial torpedoes last week flashed to shunt San Francisco State into oblivion.

Star pass-snagging ends for the invaders are Captain Art McHolland and Chet Maeda. On the heaving end are quarterback Lou Duarte and half Tom Teraji.

The remainder of the Los Angeles backfield consists of Herman Borkin and Bob Taylor, operating at halfback and full, respectively.

In the line, at tackles, are Bob North and Bill Cheever; at guards, Ed Cartwright and Marvin Lettvin; at center, Bob Panagis.

For the Rams, Coach Lee Eisan will probably start the regular first string lineup, which is at full strength except for Herb "Tex" Taylor, who is out for the season with a couple of broken wrists.

Festivities are expected to include a roaring aerial battle. From consideration of past performances, the Rams may be expected to toss fewer passes than the Angelenos, but perhaps connect with a higher percentage.

Al Nauman will be in there again, flinging them at Molich, Moisan, and Cunningham.

Yes, the Rams are hot. For the first time in 1939, they gained a really satisfying win last week when they sank State. If City College exhibits any weakness on pass defense, the Rams may be expected to grab full advantage.

A last reminder: The game starts at 8:15 tonight, at Seals Stadium. For those of you who will not be accompanying the team to Modesto for the season's finale, November 17, this is the last football game of 1939. It will be a good one. To add to the color of the occasion, the National Guard is staging a pre-game ceremony which will include flag presentation by a color-guard made up of Guard members who are students of the college.

So come . . . and come early.

RAM-L.A.C.C. STARTING LINEUPS

S.F.J.C.	Position	L.A.C.C.
F. Gray	LER	McHolland
Meyers	LTR	Korth
Carignani	LGR	Cartwright
Mattson	C	Panagis
Leong	RGL	Lettvin
Schoenstein	RTL	Cheever
Molich	REL	Maeda
Nauman	Q	Duarte
Spieller	LHR	Borkin
Cunningham	RHL	Teraji
J. Gray	F	Taylor

RAMblings
By RAY BERNS

Berns Can't Take It On The Ice; Eisan's Pep Talk Fires Rams To Win

Last reports from Modesto reveal that the valley town is throwing up fortifications in preparation for the Ram avalanche expected to descend upon that village in the neighborhood of 7 p.m. next Friday.

Approximately 250 to 300 local lads and lassies are expected to make the jaunt on the "Ram Special" which will include an observation car and a dancing car.

At 12 p.m. the Rams will start the merry homeward trek. Merry isn't the word for it. The details, however, will not be published here. For further information, question a veteran of last year's Sacramento debacle.

Interesting to note is the fact that Johnny Gray, hard-plunging fullback, and Herb Taylor, high-stepping, passing-catching halfback, were on the bench during last Friday's game with State because of injuries. George Jensen and Johnny Moisan took over admirably, but there's no telling what might have happened had Gray and Taylor been in there.

HEY! THAT'S SUBSIDIZATION!

The locals haven't lost a tennis match to State since the institution of the net rivalry beween the two colleges, and, according to Coach Tom Wilson, "we don't want to start now".

Chances for a Ram victory over the Gators next year appear rather slim, however, what with Hal Wagner and Eddie Amark, ex-Rams, performing for State.

Wagner and Amark are, without a doubt, one of the outstanding young doubles teams in the nation.

Unless Wilson distributes lollypops and ice cream cones in lavish quantities and thereby entices a few lads like Bobby Riggs into the college, it looks like the local netsters are in for a shellacking.

An idea was advanced that defeat could be avoided if State wasn't placed on the schedule. That would sure be great! Admirable, admirable. Perhaps the lads should play high schools, or even junior high schools. Yes, they should—not!

WOMEN'S RIGHTS CONGRESS

Co-educational sports such as rifle, archery, badminton, table tennis, and ice-skating are becoming more and more popular at the college.

Ice-skating, is, at the present, at the top of the popularity heap.

On Friday afternoons, the locals may be seen skimming over the ice at Winterland.

With some people it's ice-skating. With others (including the writer) it's ice-skidding. Many can't seem to make those old blades go where they want them to. At the end of a session, the old wardrobe needs a wringing out. Seems as if some spend more time on the ice(take it any way you like) than off.

DOC EISAN TELLS 'EM

Lee Eisan, football mentor, is definitely a master of psychology.

The first half defensive showing of the team in the State encounter wasn't too good. Eisan made sure that the situation would be remedied in the second half by telling the fellows that the entire next week (this week) would be spent in tackling and blocking practice unless they showed some life. Off the defensive play of the second half, one may say that the squad wasn't any too much in favor of spending an entire week on fundamentals.

WOMEN'S . . . Sports Parade
By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

Moaning and groaning
And weeping aloud
The college riflettes
Were wrapped in a shroud(?)
Till along came Jacke
And behind her she towed
Marin J. C. by cracky!

Silly? Of course. And inadequate. But its true 'cause the local women gunners were in a dither; no women's rifle association in the city—no competition (in the form of rifle clubs, we mean)—nobody to shoot against—in other words, no nothing! And then? Then San Mateo Junior College came along with an invitation to an intersectional badminton playday (don't go away, we're still on the rifle subject), and prexy Jacke uncovered the information that Marin Junior College has a rifle team, too. Oh, joy! So what? So the locals will meet the Marin Rifle Club for a match during Tourney Week.

* * * *

Hockey-ites have decided that its about time they came in for their share of the sport light, too, so here they are.

Tomorrow, Saturday, they'll cross sticks with State at Funston Field. The date was originally set for November 18, but because of a conflict in State College's playday dates, they will play tomorrow.

As members of the Northern California Hockey Association (hmm) they will participate in the hockey meet to be held in Berkeley, December 1. Allied members are given demonstration matches and then the women play.

College riders will travel to Sacramento this Sunday to ride with the Sacramento junior collegians. On December 3, the Sacramentans will return the visit. They will ride, swim at the Fairmont Plunge, and then have a Chinese dinner at the home of Peace Alvarez, riding club manager.

* * * *

Table Tennisers, now with an enrollment of six and eight couples will have a Round Robin instead of the usual eliminations tournament. By the way, that Date Bureau which sprang up to accommodate un-dated males and females is doing a par excellence business.

* * * *

On Mondays and Fridays during the rest of November, future basketball stars will practice at 4:15 after the volleyball classes.

Between classes basketballs will be available for those who wish to perfect their aim. Basketeers will meet Marin on December first for the first tilt of the basketball season.

With the addition of Priscilla Finely, WAA songbird, who has been chosen as the WAA yell-leader, to the list of executives in the association, the WAAers' constitution will have to be revised. The committee for the new draft will be composed of Alma Koopman, Barbara Smith, Astrid Rogenes, and Marjorie Radke.

The duties for the new cheerleader will be to choose her assistant, take charge of all entertainment for social functions, and lead songs as well as yells. Some work!

Campus Club Crier

● Alpha Phi Omega . . . Business, November 14, 8 p.m., 2371 29th Avenue.
● Astronomical . . . Business meeting, November 13, Galileo Observatory.
● Beta Phi Beta . . . Informal initiation, Parkside Tennis Club, November 13, 8 p.m.
● Beta Tau . . . Business meeting, November 13, 8 p.m., 1450 Chestnut Street.
● Block SF . . . Initiation banquet, December 13.
● Foresters Fraternity . . . Important business and social meeting Monday night, 7:30 p.m., Room 357, Galileo.
● Forum . . . Discussion of The Violation of American Rights on the High Seas, November 15, 8 p.m., 678 37th Avenue.
● Home Economics Association . . . Initiation and installation of officers at a picnic dinner, November 13, 4:30 p.m., Sigmund Stern Grove at 19th Avenue and Sloat Boulevard.
● Japanese . . . Watch the bulletin board for a meeting next week.
● Lambda Chi . . . Mother and daughter dinner, November 14, 7:30 p.m., 80 Justin Drive.
● Music . . . Business and program, November 14, 101 Cervantes, Apartment 206.
● Newman . . . Business meeting with speaker William J. Murphy, chief deputy, banking department of the State of California, November 20, St. Mary's Cathedral, 8 p.m.
● Omicron Phi Pi . . . Business, November 13, 295 Urbano.
● Phi Beta Rho . . . Business, November 16, 7:30 p.m., 865 Faxton Avenue.
● Phi Alpha Omega . . . Business, November 20, 8 p.m., 1441 4th Avenue, Oakland.
● Pick and Hammer . . . Discussion of field trip plans and National Bank color pictures, November 13, 170 Lunada Court.
● Rifle and Pistol . . . Hayride and weenie bake, November 24, 9 p.m., at Woodside.

A. M. S.

(Continued from page 1)

tinguished and professional men who will be present," said Scarlett.

"It would really be great if the fellows who come with their dads would get acquainted with the outstanding business men we are planning to have attend," he continued.

Entertainment will most likely include boxing and wrestling matches. If some members of the Kendo team can be contacted, the Father-and-Son Night may have something in the manner of a variety show.

Aside from the traditional AMS Barn Dance, which was held but a few weeks ago, this program may be a serious contender in ranking in first place esteem as an annual AMS affair.

Both Scarlett and Amori, who have worked hard upon the planning of the program, hold high hopes that the attendance will be satisfactory.

Students desiring additional information concerning this affair may get specific information by consulting Scarlett and Amori.

Similar "socials" have been successfully presented by junior colleges located in Southern California.

It is felt by Amori that such a new presentation will go far in making the college more prominent in the eyes of the public. The new program will also give many of the fathers a chance to view the conditions which exist in the San Francisco institution.

Danny's First Business

By OLIVE BEEDE

Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents a series of interesting attempts at literature by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandys, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. Short stories will be signed, autobiographies will be published anonymously.

Daily visits to the gun shop on Jones Street convinced Danny that he would soon have to find work in order to earn enough money to buy the gun of his dreams, a .22 caliber rifle, as his parents objected to his use of a firearm.

It was a hot day and Danny sat propped against the side of the woodshed doodeling in the moist dirt with an old rusty nail and pondering over what kind of a business he should enter. He already had a paper route and they were never profitable enough. One could hardly afford a matinee and a soda once a week on the income from a paper route, not alone buy a gun.

He thought about mowing lawns, but still they were an awful lot of work. Finally after much mental activity, Danny got an idea that seemed worthwhile. He would be a bootblack and in no time would have enough to make a down payment on that much desired firearm.

This promising young magnate saved for weeks; sacrificing his matinees, sodas and even mowed two lawns in order to amass enough capital to buy his polish, brushes, and all the other paraphernalia that goes with a well-equipped bootblack stand. Now he was ready to step forth and take his place in the world of business.

His venture proved successful and it was soon on the upward trend. His shoe shine concern was bringing in money and in another week or two he would be able to lay a pocketfull of jingling silver on the counter of the gun shop and make his first payment on that shining rifle.

"Shoe shine mister—shoe shine? Only a nickle sir—best job in town for a nickle," the young business genius implored of everyone who passed by.

Then one bright day when Dan was in his happier mood, disaster fell. From out of nowhere a thunderbolt struck; that thunderbolt was in the person of his pop, who passing by, happened to notice that his son and heir was shining shoes like any common urchin of the streets. Dan's dad was infuriated, and grabbed his son by the ear with one hand and his shoe box with the other, and there on a downtown street in San Francisco a young man's dreams of someday possessing a shining rifle crumbled.

Pilot Ground School Classes Now Four Times A Week; Actual Flying Begins Soon

With ground school classes under way four times a week and flying scheduled to start within a fortnight, the college aeronautics course is off literally to a flying start.

"The class has finished with the study of the history of aviation and is now delving into the theory of flight," Captain George Richards, college flight director, revealed.

The class is not limited to those chosen for the flying training, but anyone is invited to attend the classes and may receive three credits for the course. Classes are held Monday through Thursday in Room E at 58 Sutter Street at 8 a.m.

Although the flight instructors have not yet been announced, it is known that the flight training will be held at San Francisco Municipal Airport. Instruction will probably be given in six half-hour periods a week for at least the first 12 flight hours.

Tuberculin Test Available To College Students At Department Of Health

In response to student inquiries arising from the showing of hygiene films last week, Terry H. Dearborn, college health coordinator, revealed that the tuberculin skin test is available to interested college students without charge through the Department of Public Health, 101 Grove Street, on Saturday mornings from 9 to 10 o'clock.

The tuberculin test is a simple skin test for detecting those who may need special protection against tuberculosis. Those students who may have such symptoms as a constant tired feeling, loss of weight, loss of appetite, afternoon temperature, persistent cough or spitting of blood, though these do not necessarily indicate tuberculosis, should be particularly interested in taking advantage of this opportunity, Dearborn said.

Dearborn also advised that students who wish to receive the tuberculin test obtain the required parent consent blanks and further information from either Dr. Alice M. Potter in the women's gymnasium, or Dr. R. Dufficy Friedlander or Miss Sohl in Room 201, Galileo, between 3 and 5 o'clock daily, except Wednesdays.

Faculty Association Studies Additional Vocational Courses

Vocational courses meeting the needs of students not intending to continue their schooling at a higher institution, will be discussed at the first and following meetings of the curriculum committee headed by J. Graham Sullivan, and a part of the Faculty Association.

The first of eight consecutive meetings of the committee will be held November 16, in the faculty cafe at Galileo at 5:45 p.m. The meetings will be preceded by a dinner, the discussion to begin at 6:45, Sullivan said.

Recommendations of the committee will be drawn up and presented to the administration for consideration.

A faculty men's golf tournament has been tentatively planned for November 13, it was revealed by Joseph Amori, co-chairman of the Faculty Association's social committee.

The tournament will be held at Ingleside golf course and is open to all faculty men. Chief contenders thus far are Louis Conlan, Dick Allman, Russell Sweet, Grant Marsh and Ward Nichols, all of whom are now getting in condition for the competition. A trophy of some sort will be procured, Amori assured.

Plans for the women's social calendar include out of town rides for their evening horseback riding class. Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, urges all faculty women and faculty wives to join the class, held every Wednesday evening at the Stanyan Street stables. Canters along the beach and Golden Gate Park are part of the class assignments.

Ram's Horn

(Continued from page 1)

chunks out of student funds, while the athletes themselves are exempted for life from the tax which is levied on everyone else.

Lifetime passes to any particular stratum of the graduate student body are inconsistent with the ideal of democracy of which students and educators alike are always preaching. The practice is unjust, and should be abolished at once.

With this thorn out of our side, we will be able to give the vast majority of students a decent, even break. It will also bring in a greater proportion of paid admissions at the games.

Cash Customer.

Student Debater To Refute "Grapes of Wrath" Over Agricultural Problem

Refutation of the California-Grapes-of-Wrath article which appears in the current Reader's Digest has been undertaken by college student David Spencer who claims that anyone reading the article is given the impression that California's agricultural problem is a light one and that John Steinbeck has exaggerated for fiction's sake.

Spencer has made an extensive study of the migratory problem and has lived in Visalia for five years. During that time he worked as a picker in the fields.

Frank F. Taylor, the author of the Digest article, is said by Spencer to be a writer whose record points to anti-labor points of view. Taylor is a newspaperman who was, at one time, advertising manager for the Yosemite Transportation System and who authored such books as California—Land of Homes, Grand Canyon Country, and The Rainbow Canyons.

According to Spencer, Taylor states that the average migratory worker's family is composed of four and eight-tenths people and that with $400 earned yearly from picking, plus $400 from state relief, the family has a yearly income of $800. Brookings Institute gives $1500 per year as the "rock-bottom decent" living wage for a family of three.

"Admittedly," Spencer says, "California pays higher wages than other agricultural states, but, it still is very far from a living wage and families are not eligible for state relief until they have established one year's residence in the state." Spencer added that from purely personal experience he had rarely come across workers who earned as much as Taylor's article suggests. Spencer cited examples of workers striking for more than their customary 10 cents an hour.

There are 13 migratory camps that Taylor mentions as being run by the Farm Security Administration to "take care of the workers." These camps combined can care for only 11,700 people and there are 285,000 migratory workers in the state.

Spencer continued with the assertion that health officers often provided the necessary excuse that vigilantes and other officers needed to come in and clean-up and burn out camps of striking workers.

Taking free hospital treatment is a humiliating thing, according to Spencer, who explains that every applicant for hospitalization must strip completely, have his clothes fumigated, be fingerprinted, and wait around for some time with nothing but a "sack" over him. "You are treated more like a criminal than a sick person," says Spencer.

German Magazines Slip Through British Blockade To Reach Campus Library

Though Germany is at war and England has blockaded all her ports, the college library is still able to procure German books and periodicals.

One magazine of German origin to which the library has subscribed, keeps arriving month after month, war or no war. An explanation offered by Librarian Francis J. Colligan is, that though blockaded, Germany must slip some of its goods through to Italy. Then it is carried to this country by Italian ships.

Club Board Dance At Century Club December Ninth

To be held at the Century Club on December 9, the plans for the social organization's dance are being completed by the committee for restricted social organizations.

Bids for the dance have been priced at $1.25. The orchestra for the affair is still undecided, according to Harold Hoffman, president of the Club Advisory Board.

Elections for officers of the Club Advisory Board will be taking place soon, and members of the board are asked to consider candidates for the offices. Representatives of the clubs to the board who are in good standing are to be given consideration. Candidates are nominated and elected by the board.

According to an official report from James S. Hughes, sponsor of the board, the old clubs that are officially recognized and in good standing are as follows:

Rifle and Pistol Club, Hotel and Restaurant Management Society, Tri Epsilon, Foresters' Fraternity, Phi Beta Rho, Pi Mu Gamma, Music Club, Home Economics Association, Army and Navy Club, Newman Club, Physical Education and Recreation Majors Club, Astronomy Club, Pick and Hammer, Japanese Students' Club, Peace Society, Women's Service Society, Beta Tau, Chinese Students' Club, Alpha Phi Omega, Forum Club, Block Society.

Old clubs that are suspended from recognition as chartered clubs are as follows: Alpha Delta Epsion, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Beta Phi, George Washington Society, Iota Chi, Lambda Chi, Le Cercle Francais, Omicron Phi Pi, Tarbuth Society, Chess Club.

Charters will be issued to six new clubs in the Spring, if the present status is continued. Applications of these clubs have been approved for Fall, 1939-40. They are Phi Rho Pi, Phi Alpha Omega, Alpha Lambda Chi, Ski Club, Skating Club and the Nu Upsilon Sigma.

On November 16, at 1 p.m., in Room 206, at Powell Street, the board will hold its next meeting.

Essay Contest

(Continued from page 1)

campus will be awarded a partial scholarship to the conference.

Archibald J. Cloud, president of the college, also expressed his hope that students will interest themselves in the Institute work.

These conferences are held each year for the purpose of giving students an opportunity to meet with each other and discuss problems relating to the Pacific area.

In the past, delegates to the conference have been chosen by each college and their expenses paid by the college. This year delegates will be chosen competitively by means of the essay contest.

"The importance of friendly relations with the people of the Pacific region cannot be stressed too much," said President Cloud. "A fuller knowledge of the Pacific countries is especially valuable to us living in San Francisco, since San Francisco commerce is largely dependent on Pacific trade," he added.

Date of the conference has been set for November 23, and will continue from Thursday night to Sunday night.

Entries are to be from 1,000 to 1,500 words in length and must be submitted not later than November 13 to Thomas Tillberry, 1912 33rd Avenue, Oakland.

Tri-Night Leaders

Betty DeVoe (State), Bob Sweeny (State), Mary Frances Malone (J. C.), Bill O'Neill (J. C.), and Charles White (U. S. F.).

Glen Gray Interview

(Continued from page 1)

of the band, but he still played sax, until just recently when the orchestra decided he should devote his full time to leading.

This weekend the Casa Loma Orchestra will celebrate its tenth anniversary and eleven of the sixteen members of the present orchestra were with the original band.

Built like an All-American tackle, Gray stands a good six feet, five inches tall, weighs about 225 pounds, and walks with that swinging stride that casually characterizes the athlete. Distinguished grey hairs, lightly sprinkled at the temples, improve the appearance of his dark, wavy hair, while a black mustache shadows his ready smile, that shouts personality—plus!

When asked how he liked San Francisco, Gray replied, "The people of San Francisco are remarkably discriminating, and because of this we were anxious to play here. This is our first engagement in San Francisco, and we have been more than satisfied with the reception San Francisco has given us. I can honestly say," Gray went on, "that we have had a larger consistent reception here than at any place we have played.

"We like to play for colleges better than hotels or dance halls. This is partly sentiment, I suppose," supposed Gray. "You see, our first big break in the East was when we played for a Princeton dance."

The Casa Loma Orchestra has been working under a new system. Instead of the leader paying the members, they have incorporated the band and the shareholders get dividends instead of salaries. "Other bands have tried this but have not been successful. We like it much better this way. We probably all work harder and co-operate more than we would otherwise," Gray told us.

According to Gray, swing is definitely slipping into oblivion. "College students seem to prefer the sweet music to the jitterbug type. We'd rather play smooth music than the fast stuff. That legend about orchestras having a jam session after playing sweet music all night is purely publicity. Which brings up another publicity gag. The slang musicians are supposed to use is in reality only used by the dancers. We get a big kick out of the names we're supposed to use in reference to our instruments. As for swing, it is merely jazz glamorized in order to sell an orchestra."

As Lee Scarlett, representative from the Palace Hotel, said, "Glen Gray is one of the pleasantest people I have ever worked with." We agree with Scarlett. Gray is not only pleasant, he has personality, good looks, and is not ostentatious, even though he leads one of the best bands in the country.

"WE'RE OLD PALS TOGETHER!"

TRI NIGHT
TONIGHT
Dance to the music of
Glen Gray and the Casa Loma ORCHESTRA
THE PALACE HOTEL
CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVES
Mary Frances Malone PR 4372
Bill O'Neill RA 4000
Lee Scarlett GR 1806

ROLLER SKATING
BURKE ROLLA-WAY
2350 Geary Blvd. (near Baker)
Phone FIllmore 9664
SPECIAL PRICES
TO PRIVATE PARTIES

See us for Special Bargains

New Royal Portables with carrying cases, standard keyboards with back spacers and every typing facility.
Manufacturing price — $44.50
OUR PRICE $33.50
Easy Payments—"Trade Ins" Accepted
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. HASTINGS
591 MARKET ST. SUTTER 4734

STANLEY'S
LUNCHES — DINNERS
FOUNTAIN SERVICE
Corner Steiner and Sutter
Near Girls High

will play and be host for the LOW SOPHOMORE CLASS
when they sponsor
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE NIGHT
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 22, 1939
For reservations:
Mary Miller PRospect 6394
Art Pomares GLenc't 9346
hotel MARK HOPKINS
GEO D SMITH Gen Mgr

The Emporium
MARKET OPPOSITE POWELL : EXBROOK 6800 : SAN FRANCISCO

At our new UNIVERSITY SHOP

MEMO
Will have to put the heat on room-mate
He's borrowed my
SWEATER — $5-
SHIRT — $2-
TIE — $1-
$8.00
That sweater is made of import yarn pull-over with sleeves — $5-
The Barrymore shirt with 4½" collar, oxford cloth & trimmed to fit waist $2-
The Tie, best one I've got, gives a neat knot $1.00 got em all at The Emporium's New University Shop.

STREET FLOOR • REAR
USE THE EMPORIUM'S PERSONALIZED CREDIT

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940

Vol. IX FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1939 No. 11

Campus Curriculum Booms

Paint Technology Course To Be Added To College Studies Soon

In order to crystallize plans for the organization of a new course in paint technology within the college, approximately 50 representatives of paint, lacquer, and varnish industries in the Bay Region and members of the college faculty will meet at a dinner this evening in the college cafeteria at the Galileo building.

Walter D. Forbes of the chemistry department has been most active for the past six months in fostering interest in such a course among prominent men in the paint industry and in working over necessary preliminary details.

Begins Next Semester

The course is expected to be opened to students next semester. It will be a two-year semi-professional course, and will deal with the technical and manufacturing aspects of the paint industry.

"During the past several months, while contacts were being made with the various paint companies and allied industries, so much interest was shown by all the parties concerned that the success of the course and satisfactory placement for its graduates is virtually assured," said Forbes.

One of the principle aims of the meeting tonight will be the formulation of a course curriculum, valuable suggestions for which have already been made by technical experts of the industry.

"A number of technical men in this area have repeatedly expressed the belief that a course incorporating even the major suggestions which have already been made concerning the subject matter of the course will offer unusual opportunities for young men who wish to make permanent connections with the industry," said Forbes.

City Paint Center

"Most San Franciscans are probably unaware of the importance of this industry in the Bay area or of the fact that San Francisco is the most important paint manufacturing center in the entire West and is second to but a few manufacturing centers in the United States," Forbes continued.

Forbes believes that the college will soon become the top ranking institution of the country in the training of semi-professional paint technicians.

This course will be added to the increasing number of semi-professional courses now offered by the college.

"Only a few colleges in the United States offer instruction in this subject," Forbes said, "and strangely enough the most successful course is now given in a relatively small agricultural college in a state where no paints or paint products are manufactured.

STUDENT SCHOLARSHIP AWARD STUDIED AT EX. COUNCIL SESSION

Chief item for consideration by the Executive council this week was the proposed annual award to the college's outstanding student, the details of which had been worked out by a special committee under the chairmanship of Bill Frantz.

Original plan proposed by the committee called for the purchase of a perpetual trophy to be retained by the college, on which would be inscribed annually the name of the year's outstanding student. The student would receive an individual medal.

Under the committee's original plan, the "man of the year" would be chosen by a joint committee of three students and three faculty members, the award itself to be presented on the basis of ability, service and character.

Following the presentation of the plan, the council went into a committee of the whole, Hubacher relinquishing the chair to vice-president Dorothy Trood. From the discussion that followed, various changes were evolved, with the result that the plan as finally approved and forwarded to the administration embodies the following points:

The idea of a trophy was abandoned in favor of a perpetual plaque on which would be inscribed the names of not one student, but of the outstanding man and woman student of the year, the winning man to be provided with a key; the woman to receive a medal.

The choice of the winner of the award would be delegated to a special faculty committee of five, appointed by President Archibald J. Cloud, the idea of student representation thereon being abandoned because of the expected difficulty of finding students eligible for the committee who would not be almost automatically eligible for the award itself.

A request for an extension of time before delivery of its report was granted Club Advisory Board President Harold Hoffman's committee to investigate the possibility of a nomination committee.

C. A. B.

Club Advisory Board To Nominate Officers Nov. 30

Nominations of officers will take place on November 30 at 1 p.m., room 206, at Powell Street, at the next Club Advisory Board meeting.

To be a candidate for office for the coming semester, the constitution of the board requires that one must have been a member in good standing for one semester previous to his nomination.

Election Next Month

After the nominations at this meeting, the board offers the opportunity for the rest of the members of the board to become acquainted with the candidates. Elections of the officers will take place two weeks after the meeting on November 30.

Representatives from all the clubs in the college are urged to attend this coming meeting because of the important business on hand, and to be sure that the officers for the board next semester will be best suited and able for the task that confronts them, according to Harold Hoffman, president of the board.

"There are only a few more meetings left this semester, and the attendance of the representatives is needed to make the election of next semesters' officers a success," stated Hoffman.

A Capella Choir Plays Repeat Performance For Kiwanis, November 22

On November 22 the college A Capella Choir will sing for the Kiwanis Club of San Francisco at its luncheon in the Fairmont Hotel.

"Last spring we sang for the Kiwanis group and they liked us so much they asked us to sing for them again next spring. A short time ago they asked us to sing for them this semester, too," said Flossita Badger, choir instructor.

Because they have had so many requests for a home performance the choir will present a Christmas program on the afternoon of December 14 in the Galileo auditorium. Three years ago the choir gave a Christmas performance for the students of this college and they have had many requests for a return engagement, but because in previous semesters finals have always come just before Christmas the choir could not arrange a home appearance.

"We have not decided on our program yet," said Miss Badger, "but we do know that it will consist partly of Christmas music."

"Besides the choir, the men's chorus will sing, and there will be some solo and group numbers also," Bob Powles, choir manager, said.

College Night Next Wednesday At Mark Hopkins

Reservations for the Junior College Night dance at the Hotel Mark Hopkins on Wednesday, November 22, should be made definitely by or before Tuesday, November 21, announced low soph president Arthur Pomares.

Low Sophs Sponsors

Sponsored by the Low Sophomore class, the dance will be held at the Peacock Court.

Guests who have been invited to attend this affair are President Archibald J. Cloud, Dean Edwin C. Browne, Edward E. Sandys, Verrel Weber, and Nelson A. Wells.

By telephoning Arthur Pomares, GLencourt 9346, or Mary Miller, PRospect 6394, reservations may be made. The price of admission is $2.18 per couple.

Tables In Alcove

Tables at the Alcove in Peacock Court will be arranged in a group for the students from the college.

All students may attend this event but must make reservations through the officers, Pomares, president, and Miller, vice-president.

Orrin Tucker will be host to the college by announcing the Junior College Night, and dedicating numbers sung by Bonnie Baker to the men students, Tucker himself dedicating his songs to the women.

At the beginning of the semester the Low Sophs made tentative plans for a dinner and dance to be held in Berkeley, but further plans were not completed. Continued work on the part of the class officers made it possible

(Continued on page 4, column 1)

Meet Orrin Tucker Folks!

Planning a gay time "atop beautiful Nob Hill", the officers of the Low Sophomore class are shown here meeting with Orrin Tucker to complete arrangements for the Low Sophomore sponsored Junior College Night to be held at the Mark Hopkins next Wednesday night. From left to right are Mary Miller, Julie Bradshaw, President Art Pomares, and Alice Kahm. Seated at the piano is the genial host of the evening, Orrin Tucker.

That's Our Basement

Editor's Note: The new college building at Balboa Park is rising steadily, and completion is expected by the end of next semester. Rooms and hallways are taking shape and one can almost sense the appearance of the finished structure. President A. J. Cloud and J. Paul Mohr nod approval as they observe the floor plans. Leonard Gross, managing editor of The Guardsman, presents below the first in a series of descriptions of the buildings from the plans "The Chief" and Mohr hold.

By LEONARD GROSS

Since it is customary in America to start from the bottom and work up, first part of the building to be scrutinized is, naturally, the basement.

Most important section of the basement to students of the college will be the cafeteria which covers a good percentage of one side of the floor.

It is divided into a main cafeteria, a serving space, a faculty cafeteria, and a kitchen where members of the college Hotel and Restaurant Division will prepare appetizing food for the patrons.

Next to the cafeteria, and in the center of the basement, are the boiler room, the storage rooms, the service rooms, and the electrician's rooms. For the sake of efficiency, the controls of the entire building are conveniently concentrated in the center section of the floor.

On the other side of the building controls is a modern, complete in every detail, rifle range so that the college rifle teams may continue to win championships.

Next to the range is a photographic suite containing several dark rooms, an enlarging room and everything else necessary for students learning the technique of photography.

Following the trend toward practical training, the remaining section of the basement houses an electrical engineering laboratory, a mechanical engineering laboratory (machine shop), a radio engineering laboratory, a geology and geography laboratory and several washrooms.

It seems that it was originally intended that the basement would be empty, but administration officials began tinkering with the plans and the above is the result.

All sections in the new building, including those in the basement, will be completely modern and up to date, in their own way indicative of "the world to come."

Thanksgiving Day Important As Ever Regardless Of When, How Celebrated

Whether celebrated on one day or another, Thanksgiving this year means considerably more than it has in the past. With so many countries engaged in warfare, we have much for which to be thankful.

Such was the attitude taken by the city supervisors and instructors of the college as they endorsed and commended a "Thanksgiving for America Celebration" to be held in this city during the Thanksgiving holidays.

"Democracy," they said, "is being savagely attacked throughout the world today. Even in our own country, whole sections of our populations are being ceaselessly bombarded with anti-democratic propaganda from abroad.

"There is no holiday of the entire year more suitable for affording local and national utterance to our basic American ideals than Thanksgiving—the day above all others when we Americans have, since 1621, paused annually in grateful rededication.

"On the American continent, we still cherish the inalienable rights which are set forth in our Constitution and which no longer exists in many countries today, where freedom of speech, religious tolerance, freedom of press, and political equality have been destroyed.

"We Americans, of every race, class and creed, are actually blessed with a degree of political, economic and social good-fortune, which is unparalleled elsewhere in the world."

Classes Wednesday

Refused an extra day in which to sharpen their appetites for the Thursday turkey feast, students must attend their classes next Wednesday as previously scheduled. Despite rumors to the contrary, all Wednesday classes will convene. Thursday and Friday will be set aside for feasting. Because of the holiday, the next issue of The Guardsman will appear Friday, December 1.

Tradition Bites The Dust: Helen Crashes Club

By LU ANTONICELLI

She's done it again! Yessir, Helen Crlenkovich has broken another precedent. The only woman ever awarded a block letter at the local college, she will now invade the hitherto impregnable (impregnable to women, anyway) portals of the Olympic Club pool to give a diving exhibition Friday, November 24.

Helen Crlenkovich

Miss Crlenkovich will be the featured performer on a program of comedy racing stunts, and a florescent water parade.

Not since 1915, when Dorothy Becker, then reigning diving queen gave an exhibition in the Olympic Club pool has a member of the fair sex been permitted to swim or dive in the waters of the finest pool in the West.

It's true that several girls did manage to sneak a swim in the forbidden waters, but it resulted in the expulsion of the Olympic Club members who were responsible.

That was 20 years ago. Today, however, custom steps aside, and Helen Crlenkovich of the remarkable diving ability, will step into the Olympic Club spotlight to give an exhibition of diving.

An invitation to tour South America with the best United States swimmers from December 15 to February 5 was extended Miss Crlenkovich recently, but Helen turned the trip down because even a world champion has to study!

Valley Invasion Begins

Modesto Bus Excursion Leaves Galileo At 4 p.m.

Descending upon the little town of Modesto, 200 valiant rooters will cheer the efforts of the college football team tonight.

Because of lack of accommodations, the excursion will be made by bus instead of train as previously scheduled. The bus will leave from in front of the Galileo building at 4 p.m. this afternoon.

Students will arrive in the valley city at 6:30 p.m., take time out to eat dinner, and then travel to the football stadium for the game. Leaving Modesto at midnight the buses will carry the voyagers back to San Francisco by 2 a.m. Saturday. Students living in the east bay will be dropped off on the way home.

Final Game Tonight

The game tonight marks the final league encounter for this semester and officially closes the college football season.

As San Mateo has already clinched the conference title, the outcome of the game will not have any bearing on the championship, but will decide whether or not the locals land a second place.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the excursion are selling for $1.60 a round trip. Students who paid for the train trip may receive a refund of 50 cents at either the Powell street book store or the Galileo bank.

It is estimated that there will be three busloads of students making the trip.

Ray Berns, college yell leader announced that there will be a roped off red and white rooting section at the game.

The bus excursion is under the joint sponsorship of Jack Schmale, college publicity man, and Berns.

AUSTRALIAN RELIEF MAP REGRETFULLY REFUSED BY COLLEGE AUTHORITIES

Hope that the college might acquire the spacious relief map of the Pacific Basin Area that has been on display at the Australian Pavilion at the Fair was dispelled this week by word from Dean Edwin C. Browne and Registrar J. Paul Mohr that the map could not be accommodated at the Balboa campus because of insufficient wall space.

Last week the map was offered to the college by Arthur H. O'Connor, manager of the Australian National Travel Association, and representative of the Australian government at the Fair.

It was regretted by college officials that the map could not be used by the college.

"We are very sorry," said Dean Browne, "that the college is unable to make use of such a fine piece of work; it would have made a splendid gift for the college.

"We sincerely appreciate the generous offer of Mr. O'Connor and the Australian government, and were it not for the discrepancy between the map and wall space we would have been only too glad to accept their offer."

Les Smith's Orchestra To Play For Low Soph Dance At Palace December 1

With the acquisition of Les Smith and his orchestra, the Social Committee has completed the last detail for the dance in honor of the Low Sophomore class on December 1.

The hop will be held in the Gold Room of the Palace Hotel from 9 until 12 o'clock.

"This dance is not to be confused with the Low Sophomore dance which will be held at the Mark Hopkins Hotel. That is strictly a class affair," Dorothy Trood, committee chairman, said.

Only Short Time Remains To File Applications For Christmas Work

Students who want to work during Christmas vacation and have not yet applied for employment should apply through Virginia Gohn at once.

Miss Gohn is placing students rapidly and there is little time left to apply. "It is getting more difficult to find work as Christmas draws near. Women who want to do department store work should see me immediately," warned Miss Gohn, instructor for the college retail merchandising class.

All students who are planning to take retail merchandising next semester should see Miss Gohn or F. Grant Marsh, chairman of the business department, as soon as possible for an interview. Students must have a C average or better in college work before they are admitted to this class. Placement for graduates of this course is 100 per cent, because of the high qualifications and the rigid training of these students.

College Students Invited To Attend Lectures On Business Insurance

Students interested in insurance are invited to attend the fall lectures, given by the San Francisco Brokers' Exchange, on Monday nights from 5:15 to 6 p.m. in the Insurance Exchange Building on the second floor, in the assembly room.

"There are four more lectures scheduled," said William C. Marsh, insurance instructor for the college. "There were nine students who attended the last lecture and each claimed that he gained a great deal of knowledge from the lecture," Marsh said.

Marsh would like to see sometime this semester all students who are planning to take the insurance course next semester. "There is a growing demand for more young men in insurance. Students must have at least a C average in college and a B average is preferred. The executives of the insurance companies pay attention to the grades, now, so a high grade is not only an advantage, it is almost a necessity," Marsh emphasized.

"The insurance business calls for a highly technical knowledge of business, finance, and law. Therefore insurance students must be of better than average intelligence. We want balanced men, not geniuses," said Marsh, "but we must demand extremely good students."

Century Club Inter-Social Dance December 16

Sponsored by the Committee on Restricted Social Organizations, a repeat of last semester's Inter-Fraternities-Sororities Dance will be held at the Century Club on Saturday evening, December 16.

With the affair open to all college students regardless of whether or not they are members of fraternities or sororities, those students in charge of plans disclosed that bids are now on sale and may be obtained from any sorority or fraternity member at a cost of $1.25 per couple.

Data . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
Game—Rams vs. Modesto	Modesto	Tonight
Train Excursion	Modesto	Tonight
Low Soph J.C. Night	Mark Hopkins	November 22
Low Soph Dance	Palace	December 1
Father-Son Night	Indefinite	December 7
Inter-Frat Dance	Century Club	December 16

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1939 No. 11

BILL FRANTZ....EDITOR

Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse — Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross....Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff....Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat....Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone....Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli....Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch....Business Manager
Marion MacKillop....Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manaio, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Welcker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Dean Browne Pays Tribute To Youths Who Fought To Preserve Ideals Of Democracy

LAST week at the Los Angeles City College game Dean Edwin C. Browne stood before the microphone and presented to the assembled rooters the speech below. To young men and women of college age, the words he uttered in his sincere and thoughtful manner caused realization of the importance of Armistice Day this year.

The 250th Coast Artillery Band marched onto the field—the colors, carried by college members of the 250th, followed. The khaki clad soldiers in the audience rose en masse—the college student audience followed—then the Dean spoke:

"Twenty-one years ago the flower of American manhood bravely brought to its end a cruel war that had cost the lives of seven million young men. Americans did not fight for glory. They did not fight for land, for markets, for gold. They fought for a spiritual principle . . . for the American dream that is democracy. They fought to make a world in which children could play unafraid, in which mothers might sleep sweetly . . . their sons secure. They fought for a world of work and honor . . . where each man could worship God in his own way . . . where the good of each was the good of all. Twenty-one years ago this week they finished their job.

* * * *

"Tonight we honor you . . . you more than 115,000 who did not return. We remember you . . . this Armistice Day. Above your holy dust we have raised temples of remembrance. Beside your unknown dust living soldiers keep ceaseless vigil. Above it burns a flame that never dies. We do not forget you this Armistice Day, when all the world seems mad. We have something . . . rare . . . indestructible . . . that did not die when you fell. It is the spirit that is American democracy. It is the faith by which we live . . . knowing . . . that the more fully we live for it, the farther lies the need that ever we should die for it.

* * * *

"We rise . . . WE RISE . . . who are gathered here in tribute to our hero dead—known and unknown—to say with reverent silence the thoughts too deep for words."

The bugle then blew Taps.

We take this opportunity to thank Col. David P. Hardy and Capt. James A. Hughes for their cooperation in bringing the 250th Coast Artillery to perform during the halves of the game.

Map Offer Refused; Lack Of Wall Space

THE Pacific Area map the Australian National Travel Association offered to the college was politely refused this week. Reason offered was the lack of a wall area large enough to accommodate such a map. The map is 24 feet by 34 feet.

We thank the Australian government and Arthur H. O'Connor in particular for their kind offer. Dean Edwin C. Browne has already expressed the thanks of the administration to Mr. O'Connor and the Australian National Travel Association.

in TROOD ings
By Dot

MEN have the funny idea that every time we gals get-together, we have a regular bull session on Tom, Dick and Harry, but that's not altogether the truth.

It is true that men do get into the conversations at times, and one of the most interesting discussions is "what type is your man?" Mademoiselle gives us an excellent article—TIPS ON TRAILING YOUR TRUE LOVE. First of all, the analysis, then the re-agent, and finally, the acid test . . . love, of course, being all a matter of chemistry.

There are eight types listed, and after looking these various gentlemen over, we have tried to figure out which is who and who is which. It is very funny when one has figured out what type a certain individual is, and it is even funnier to see how many of these types are attending college.

INTELLECTUAL TYPE

HE IS AN INTELLECTUAL (and this is the whole thing in a nutshell for a certain campus fellow)—serious and brilliant. Caustic and critical. More interested in his mind than his emotions, but scratch the scholar and you'll find a wealth of wit.

He'll look at you as though you were a theorem, consider you a problem in genetics and talk to you as if you were a classroom.

YOU ARE . . . AMUSED WITH THE WORLD. If you have a brain, exercise it. If you haven't, listen and learn. You can't convince him of anything—but go ahead and try. He likes challenge. And be honest. He'll drop you quickly if you read only the blurbs on the book-jacket covers. Learn from him—and learn to listen.

Never call him up unless you have something important to say and don't interrupt his private concentration camp. Dress to suit yourself but make him look at you. His aloofness is not distaste; it's preoccupation, and every so often shake him out of it.

Well, ladies, if you have an intellectual man or you know one, think this over and see if you don't agree with Mademoiselle.

And now if you can stand another type, there's another young man around college that could certainly be typed as:

SENTIMENTALISTS

A SENTIMENTALIST — for he is charming and gallant. He idealizes women and his room is filled with family pictures (don't quote us on this statement, but the magazine says so). He has a soap outlook—thinks the world is 99 and 44/100 per cent pure.

YOU ARE . . . FLOTSAM BUT NOT JETSAM—tossed on the waves of life, but still smiling. Be intelligently serious, but not too intellectual. Nudge the conversation toward love and truth and honor. And learn to listen.

And when he phones, propose a day in the country or an evening at home. Bake a cake—or tell him you did. Talk about your cheerful childhood—and blush if you can. Do you know him now?

Then there is the athlete, a smoothie, a business man, a lone wolf, a big man on campus, and the artist. There is so much to say on each of these gentlemen that it would take just ages and ages to talk about each of them, so if you don't know the intellectual or the sentimental kind, perhaps we could tell you all about one of the other fellows some other time.

The . . . Spectator
By JANET FELLOWS

The Taming of the Shrew comes to San Francisco in all its glorious merriment, starring Broadway's most frolicsome team, The Lunts. It has often been said that one cannot appreciate Shakespearean dialogue without seeing the accompanying action; it should be added that one cannot even appreciate the presentation of the Shrew unless he has seen The Lunts in action!

PLAY A HIT

The most accurate method of measuring a play's success is doubtlessly the reaction of the audience. With their usual biase attitude, San Francisco's First Nighters settled down in answer to the first curtain call on opening night with a now-try-to-entertain-me attitude. As soon as the induction got under way, however, one could almost hear the audience relax and from then on actors and audience alike forgot themselves in their enthusiastic enjoyment of the Bard's lightest and daffiest comedy. (The audience waited impatiently for the second curtain call.)

Except for the interruption in the first act (a formally dressed couple of San Francisco's "high society" arrived late. Their seats were in the first row, and when Lunt spied the man and women leisurely walking down the aisle so late in the first act he stopped in the midst of his lines, waited for the couple to be seated, stepped to the front of the stage, and after an exaggerated bow to the offenders he again stepped into his role as the dashing cavalier!) the play went off smoothly, if one can call the nonsensical horseplay that goes on on the Curran stage this week smooth!

SHREW NOT STREAMLINED

Critics have credited Alfred Lunt's and Lynn Fontanne's Shrew production with being streamlined. It does appear to be modernized, but paradoxically, the Lunts have traveled back through the years to the sixteenth century and presented Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew as they are sure he would have presented it. Indeed, if Shakespeare were alive today he would probably have been the most spell-bound member of the audience! The boisterous rough-housing and the awkward scene changes are certainly not akin to the suavity of modern dramatic productions.

As for the stars of the play, when Lunt cracks his whip the whole audience trembles, when Miss Fontanne bangs furniture all over the stage the audience almost cringes — in other words, the Lunts have done a thorough job with their spirited (to say the least) parts. The Lunts are not the only ones in the cast, however, for the audience is delighted by such well-known actors as Richard Whorf, Edith King, S. Thomas Gomez, Francis Compton, Sydney Greenstreet, Albert Carroll, and a host of others, to say nothing of the mischievous midgets, the gay horses, the acrobats, the dancers, and the singers.

The character part of Christopher Sly has long been a by-word to Shakespearean enthusiasts particularly interested in the comedy element. Probably no American audience, probably no audience since the sixteenth century, has seen so outstanding a development of the part as the Lunts devised for their version of the Shrew.

Contributing greatly to the success of the present interpretation of Christopher Sly are, of course, the physical properties. The modern theater, taking as it does the audience away from the stage where a part of it sat in Shakespearean days, takes Christopher Sly to a box beside the stage where his enjoyment of the scene but enhances that of the audience.

As a result, the audience, be it an alert audience, keeps one corner of its eye on Christopher, a Christopher who slumbers when drama is at its height, who awakens to urge the players on, or swings on the canopy-bars to contribute to the ribald comedy.

If anyone could steal the show from the Lunts, and let it be clearly understood that such would be impossible in the Shrew, Christopher Sly would be that person.

FUN FOR ALL

Even those who dislike Shakespeare will have a hilariously enjoyable evening of entertainment, and might come away thinking that Shakespeare is not something that only the intelligentsia can enjoy, for the Shrew has no thought behind it nor anything that should make it difficult to understand. Shakespeare wrote the Shrew in a hurry for the sole purpose of entertaining the ribald society of Elizabethan England. Because there is little beauty or thought in the lines of this play of the Bard's many wonder how it has come down with such immortals as Hamlet and Romeo and Juliet, but immortal it is, and after the Lunt's dramatization it shall never be forgotten by those who saw it.

On To Modesto
By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Today's Suggestion: Let's Have A Band And Majorette, Too

● WE LACK SOMETHING

Editor, The Guardsman:

A few weeks ago when Sacramento Junior College came here to play us in football they brought their band along, they also brought a whole line of majorettes. Two weeks ago when we played State they brought their band. They also brought a handful of majorettes (a very nice handful, too). Last week when we played Los Angeles City College they, or we (or somebody) brought the army along. The army brought their band (no majorettes).

Now besides Sacramento, State and the army there are many other bands. The University of California has a band (again no majorettes, however they had Rosemary Lane last Saturday), Orrin Tucker has a band (He doesn't need any majorettes, he has Bonnie Baker, lucky devil), Mickey Rooney even has a band (I don't think he has any majorettes either but he has several assorted blondes, brunettes and redheads, so I guess he could get some if he wanted).

Now the point I am trying to get over is that we don't have any band, Rosemary Lane, Bonnie Baker, or majorettes. We don't even have a drum major. In fact if you want to come right down to it we don't even have a drum (now you've got to admit that is a hell'va note).

If we get a band it doesn't have to be a good band it just has to be loud. They teach us in psychology that all persons are born with two fears, the fear of falling and the fear of a loud noise. We can't go around pushing the opposing team off high places but we sure can scare !-! out of them with our band.

If we can't have a band can we have at least one majorette? She could strut down the field between halves in front of a cart of some sort with a phonograph on it. I guess we could get a record of martial music like "I Love a Parade" or "Music Maestro, Please." This season perhaps an even more appropriate tune would be "I Was Lucky" dedicated to the entire team.

Viola Cornet

* * *

● COMES A SUGGESTION

Editor, the Guardsman:

The women of this college have previously stated that they have had trouble securing dates. Actually, it is their own fault. If the women of this college would cooperate when we fellows are low financially, and show a little more appreciation, they would undoubtedly succeed in enjoying more dates.

In this end we suggest a "Sadie Hawkins Day," whereby the women will have the exhalted privilege of selecting their dates and also paying for the evening. (Assistant Editor's note: We never knew there was a charge for the evening.)

We hope that this suggestion will lead to a better understanding among the men and women of our college.

Respectfully submitted,
Hope Hansen, Faith Rhode, and Charity Shultz.

Editor's Note: Can't you wait until next year?

Cabbages & Kings
By Blue Pencil Bill

WE DEDICATE

the first portion of the column to those students who have been elected to Associated Students' offices. They knew what they were letting themselves in for!

A few of them merely wanted to be "big shots," but most of them knew of the duties of the offices and were willing to serve. This semester they have been confronted with many problems — serious problems — and solved each satisfactorily. They have been subject to criticism on several occasions but after each "burnup" they returned to work with the same sincerity as before.

That is why we dedicate the first portion of the column to those students this week.

* * *

ONE MEMBER

of this semester's executive council wasn't such a "big shot" last semester. But he had the will-to-power plus a fairly mediocre orchestra.

He wanted to play for the High Frosh Hop and entered the ex-council meeting for the express purpose of steering the bid his way. He sat in the rear of the room whispering a little speech to himself—just waiting for the social committee to make its report.

He smiled inwardly for he knew what he wanted to say and he knew the arguments he'd present would be hard to combat. Then—hurriedly he arose and slid through the rear door. He returned just as hurriedly a few minutes later, took his seat and thought about his speech again. His chin dropped to his ankles when the meeting ended without a social committee report.

You see, the report was made while our hero was finishing his unfinished business.

* * *

THIS PORTION

of the column is dedicated to those students who have displayed their talents before a conglomeration of legal class-cutters at the Galileo rallies. The bouquets, however, should go to James Reinhold Berns, rally committee chairman and head yell leader.

Before we forget (as is the custom of this cruel world), there is a young gentleman who puts forth a great deal of effort without the slightest degree of recognition in return. It doesn't disturb him because he enjoys doing the work. The work is producing those professional looking signs that appear every so often on the Powell Street bulletin board—and the gent's name is Pete Aydalotte.

* * *

TOPS IN

lunchtime entertainment this week is Bill Quandt's imitation of Kate Smith's interpretation of MacKillop's impersonation of the Ritz Brothers' rendition of Bonnie Baker singing "Oh, Johnny."

AND WHILE

we're on the subject of lunchtime entertainment, we could mention the lad who brings his portable radio with his lunch to Union Square. It's not a bad idea—the cuties eat lunch with him because they like music with their meals. Yes, fellows, bring your radio and get acquainted.

The average journey of a railroad passenger other than commuters in 1938 was 81.2 miles compared with 71.9 in 1928.

While Thinking . . .
By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

EVER since the beginning of the present overseas fracas, rumors of impending attacks have been flowing freely from the tongues of diplomats on each side. At any rate there has been no major offensive launched on either side as yet.

We are of the opinion that there will be no great attack or attempted advance until spring arrives. Climatic conditions in England, France, and Germany are at their very worst from now until the latter part of February, and it is rather a difficult task to do any advancing in the rain, the cold, and the fog. Needless to say, airplanes, which are no doubt the most potent factor in any advance, are forced to remain on the ground during the poor weather.

* * *

REMEMBER Pitcairn Island, where the British mutineers fleeing from the tyranny of Captain Bligh beached H.M.S. Bounty and developed their settlement?

That happened a good many years ago but today the inhabitants of Pitcairn Island are again in the news. Only contact maintained by the villagers with the outside world was the periodical visits of the British mail ship bringing supplies and mail from the mother country.

Last week, this source of information ceased. The British Admiralty ordered all English ships to stay out of the Pacific for fear of being sunk by a marauding German sea raider.

So the mail for the far off inhabitants of tiny Pitcairn Islands lies gathering dust in the corner of some post office, forgotten until the war is over.

* * *

NATIONAL

MOST recent innovation to simplify tactics is the perfection of a portable radio-telephone that a soldier may carry upon his back and talk with another soldier, similarly equipped at a distance of three or four miles.

Imagine how convenient it would be during a lull in the firing to exchange the latest jokes with your buddies.

STATE

THE attempt to recall Governor Culbert L. Olson for denouncing the Ham and Eggs pension plan is getting but little support throughout California, proving that there are still some intelligent people left.

How the Thirty Thursday backers have the audacity even to suggest the recall of the governor is beyond us. After the overwhelming defeat of the issue during the last election, it is evident that the plan is not wanted by the majority.

It is unfortunate that there are so many hard-headed persons who are sure everyone else is wrong, and insist upon believing in such idealistic and completely ridiculous schemes.

Evidently those persons do not realize that the recall threat will backfire and perceptibly increase the popularity of Governor Olson, at the same time decreasing the already doubtful popularity of the latest old age pension plan.

CITY

PRIVATE sources last week revealed the formation of an organization devoted to combatting the propaganda of the many subversive elements throughout the United States.

Still in an embryonic state and as yet unnamed, the group will attempt to point out the advantage of American democracy as it now exists, over the ideas of the more radical elements in the nation.

Composed of energetic young American business men, the only qualification for membership in the organization is constructive intelligence. There are no race or color restrictions.

We sincerely hope that this group may attain its purpose and gradually become a nation-wide organization of loyal Americans interested in preserving what we are pleased to call democracy.

shots at RAMdom . . .
By Isadore Maloff

IN ALL the lengthy years of our scholastic career, we have enrolled in considerable number of English courses, each one presenting a different method of approach to the problem of proper English usage. In each of the courses we have noticed, not without considerable amusement, a certain set procedure that appears to be recognized as quite the proper thing by all English instructors.

Usually "sprung" in the first or second midterm periods, and primarily intended to "feel out" the individualistic writing tendencies of each student, the instructor will naively order all students to take out a blank sheet of paper, a sharpened pencil and quite simply "to write."

"Write on any subject matter you wish" he instructs with an air of detached superiority as he leans back in his comfortable swivel chair thereby dismissing any further discussion on the matter.

DEEP DESPAIR

And, like so many other "suckers" caught unawares by the abruptness of the assignments, "we wrote." But not before we would sit there in a hard seat with pencil in mouth and vacuum in brain struggling for an elusive idea. After much pencil chewing and paper eschewing we finally applied that axiom about following the line of least resistence, a left over from our high school physics. Like so many others we decided that the easiest way out would be to tell the teacher about "that glorious vacation we had last summer."

"Last summer," we began intimately, "we went to Russian River. We certainly had a wonderful time. It was so nice being able to swim every day. Most of the time it was hot. We would go swimming every day to escape the heat. It sure is beautiful up there . . . "

If ever we were exasperated with our own talents it was when these little masterpieces would be returned graded "D" (they gave us half a point for our efforts which was damn nice of them) and neatly marked in the upper right hand corner of the first page, "You need more training in fundamentals of English."

But the years passed on, as is their quaint custom and we were slowly but surely beginning to "get wise to ourselves."

"The next time we enroll in an English course," we confided in ourselves, "we're going to trip up the instructor. In the past the teachers who read our essays were probably so fed up with reading of the "glorious times" his students had in their summer vacations in comparison with his own drab existence that he unleashed his pent up fury on us merely because we were more frank. Well, no more of that for us. Next time we'll write something different. Different!", —we decided, at the same time banging our fist on the table so as to convince ourselves that we would be acting wisely in taking such drastic action.

That "next time" came last week when we received just such an assignment.

As we sat there writing our own theme we noticed by glancing around the room that most students seemed to be stumped for ideas, leading us to the conclusion that they must have been writing of their summer vacations.

We noted that the instructor, following the custom of the great majority of his clan was leaning back in his swivel chair, dangling both legs with reckless abandon and in all probability absorbed in vivid memories of his last summer's vacation.

We assured ourselves that his mood would change just as soon as he read accounts of the "real" times his students had on their summer vacations.

Imagine our surprise when our latest effort was returned. Emblazoned at the very top of the page in deep red letters was the grade "D". Trouble with these English teachers is that they claim to dislike overdone topics but discourage originality. Oh yes, the title of our recent flop was "A Glorious WINTER Vacation."

On To Modesto! Pigskin Excursion For Last Game Leaves Today At 4 P.M.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Complete Schedule For Women's Tourney Week Is Given In Ramettes

Rams Battle Modesto In Gridiron Climax!

Nauman Tosses Rams To 6 To 0 Win Over Los Angeles; Miracle Passes Save Hard Pressed Reds

Seals Stadium, Nov. 10—Lightning struck twice tonight! Twin bolts, one as brilliant as the other, crashed from the misty sky only seconds apart, and burned into the zealously guarded endzone of the Los Angeles City College gridiron greats.

The first bolt of lightning was a dud, though it had five thousand spectators on their toes, gaping at the artistry and finesse with which it had been launched; the second, unlike its ill-fated predecessor, drove home, stunning the Southerners and branding them with a 6 to 0 defeat at the hands of Lee Eisan's Rams.

Or, to phrase it more aptly, from the fingertips of Al Nauman, college backfield ace, into the paws of Frannie Gray, end and co-captain of the local eleven.

For it was Nauman who hurled, and Gray who received, the two telling passes. And they were both perfectly executed plays. . . . in fact, the same play, worked twice in succession.

Here's how it happened: Late in the first quarter, the Rams were ensconced on the Los Angeles 8-yard line. They had reached that point on a drive which had its inception when Jim Molich grabbed a Cub pass out of the ozone and escorted it some 27 yards to the visitors' own 36. With fourth down at hand, and the opponent's goal 8 yards away, Nauman took the ball for a pass. He dropped back behind good blocking, hesitated, and let fly. The pigskin soared diagonally across the field to the far sideline, into the lefthand corner of the end zone, where Gray, having eluded the defense in that sector, received with open arms.

It looked like a touchdown . . . but is wasn't. The Rams had been offside. So the play was disallowed, and the ball moved five yards back, to the Cub 13.

Fourth down again, and there seemed little chance that the locals could repeat, but again Nauman took the ball and faded. Again he lofted a pass high and to the far sideline. Again Frannie Gray slipped by the Cub secondary, and for the second time in the course of as many plays, clutched the pill over his shoulder to ring the bell for a big six.

It was astounding. But it was true.

And the Rams had won another ball game.

It made no difference that throughout the rest of the game—especially in the second half — the Angelenos outgained and outplayed Eisan's outfit. It didn't matter that during the third and final periods, the Cubs were habitually camped on the Ram doorstep, awaiting only a break to force entrance and tie up the count.

The locals capitalized on their big opportunity of the evening, and in doing so won their second contest in a row, incidentally blanking the opposition for the second consecutive time.

Again, in the second frame, the Rams had a chance when Borkin, Cub safety, was hit hard and persuaded to fumble as he attempted to pick up a Nauman punt that rolled dead on the Los Angeles 3-yard line. Two or three Rams recovered the pill on the spot.

It looked like the clinching score was about to unfold, but Jensen, on the first play of the series, had a bad pass from center bounced off his noggin and fumbled in return. Los Angeles recovered on its own 2.

Following shortly this last episode, the locals ploughed to the Cub 23, and Dave Cunningham settled back to try for a field goal. The play, however, developed into a razzle-dazzle fluke that lost 11 yards and possession of the ball.

A clipping penalty on the Rams at the start of the third quarter placed them on their own 18-yard line . . . a hole from which they found it difficult to extricate themselves, and, once they had turned the trick, the Southerners came roaring back on the consistently fine running and spotty brilliant passing of left half Hoisch to the local 7-yard line. Here a holding penalty set them back to the 21, and the drive died to the tune of three incomplete tosses and a desperate end sweep.

Time and again the Cubs drove into Ram territory, only to be held when they reached over the 10-yard line. The end play on these occasions was something to watch, as the Cubs' wide flank plays were spilled by the alert work of the Ram wingmen with the support of a fast-moving secondary.

In the third quarter, after being hurled back from the Ram 8-yard line, the visitors whirled to the 4, and with first down at that point, fumbled, Jim Molich pouncing on the ball on the Ram 6.

Throughout the last period, play was confined to midfield, the Rams playing safe and holding the invaders at bay, protecting their slim lead, while the Cubs passed and passed in desperation.

A few poor passes from center and some sloppy ball-handling made the Rams look bad tonight, but Los Angeles earned its statistical edge. They outplayed the locals by a conclusive margin. It was a good game, and what it lacked in fireworks it made up in solid football.

Yes, the Rams won . . . but they were hard pressed in doing it. They had to shake down two lightning bolts to turn the trick.

Yardstick—Cubs vs. Rams

	S.F.J.C.	L.A.C.C.
1st downs, scrimmage	3	6
1st downs, passes	1	3
1st downs, penalties	0	0
Total 1st downs	4	9
Yardage gained, scrimmage	79	175
Yardage lost, scrimmage	42	20
Yardage gained, passes	26	51
Yardage lost, passes	2	0
Total yardage gained	61	206
Passes attempted	8	23
Completed	6	3
Incompleted	2	17
Intercepted	0	3
Passing average	.750	.129
Yards lost, penalties	30	35

Scoring: S.F.J.C.—Touchdown, F. Gray

Hoop Schedule Completed As Practice Starts

Revealing that next season's schedule has been completed, Louis "Dutch" Conlan, college casaba mentor, announced that basketball practice will start officially on next Monday afternoon in the Galileo gymnasium at 3:30 p.m.

"I'd like to have everybody that's had any experience, try out. We lost last year's entire squad and, consequently, there will be plenty of room for new-comers," Conlan said.

First glance at the schedule, a tough one no matter how you look at it, shows that the loss of last year's group will be keenly felt.

All-conference men Willie Blackfield, Hal Fischer, Al Opalinski, and Ed Curcio, to mention a few, will be among the missing when practice starts Monday.

The season gets under way at Modesto on January 4, 5 and 6 with the playing off of the junior college tourney.

Teams from all over the state enter the tournament which is played on an elimination basis.

Last year, the Rams had not hit their stride and, after walloping Salinas, 61 to 30, in the opening encounter, lost to Modesto, eventual winner, in the quarter-finals.

Interesting to note is the fact that games with San Francisco State, the local's arch rival, will be played on two successive nights, Thursday and Friday, January 11 and 12.

The conference schedule has been revamped and the outlying junior colleges, Yuba, Placer, Sacramento, and Modesto have been consolidated into one conference along with San Mateo, Salinas, Marin, Menlo, Santa Rosa, and San Francisco.

But one game, however, will be played by the Rams against Santa Rosa, Yuba, Placer, Salinas, and Menlo, while the locals will take on the other members of the conference in a home and home agreement.

Pi Mu Gamma Wins Game

With the aid of an effective passing combination — Schiesinger to Smirnoff — the Pi Mu Gammas outlasted the Iota Chis by a count of 32 to 25 in touch-tackle football.

The game, played last Sunday, found the pre-med aerial show collecting every touchdown. It was the second in the current intramural series inaugurated recently when the same Pi Mu Gammas played the college Rifle Club to a 6-6 tie.

Star for Iota Chi in the losing battle was Temple Davies, well-known Ram pigskinner.

Turn The Camera This Way

"Nauman makes three yards at right tackle," announces Martin Hill, the Man Behind the Mike, as this candid shot is snapped by Guardsman photographer Art McLain.

The scene is laid in the press-box high atop Seals Stadium; the time is the night of November 10; the principals are watching the Ram-L.A.C.C. football game unfold down on the field.

Hill, who handles the public-address announcements at Ram home games, has seen only local wins all season long. His services, which add immeasurably to the enjoyment of the game, are provided through the courtesy of the Associated Oil Company.

Hill, flanked by his assistants who "spotted" plays and recorded them respectively, shortly after this shot was taken, released the microphone to Dean Edwin C. Browne, who delivered an impressive address in commemoration of Armistice Day. (See editorial, page 2.)

Hotshots Hit 921 To Nose Mission In Second Victory

History was made by Captain Fred C. McFarland's Ram Riflemen last week when an all-time high score was set by members Charles North, George Humphrey, Art Templeton, Max Pierce and Don Minium.

They shot a total of 921, just one point more than the favored Mission Rifle and Pistol Club did, in winning its second straight match.

Previous all-time high had been made a week ago by the Rams at 920 points. At that time, the American Trust Company was the victim of the college marksmen.

Overjoyed, Captain McFarland commented, "They've surprised me as well as everybody else. It's going to be mighty hard to improve on a score that high."

Possibility that the team might actually shoot as high as 928 at midseason seemed by McFarland to be extremely remote . . . "but not impossible." In beating the Mission Club squad, the Ram team again did the unexpected. For the Missionites had been made Golden Gate Bridge League favorites, the locals rating third.

The victory placed the college men up not only in league standing with two victories but made them known as well as being the "squad to beat," according to McFarland.

Advantages were all with the Missioners, they not only played host to McFarland's men, but had the opportunity to use special magnifying scopes attached to their rifles making it much easier to spot the center of the target.

The range was fifty feet, shots being made under the normal specified conditions: Prone, sitting, kneeling, and offhand positions used.

Most improved Ram sharpshooter, the records show, was Max Pierce. Until the Mission victory, he was considered to be a regular second stringer. His average has risen to 185, upping his chance of remaining on the first team.

Praise was issued to Harold Baix, member of the Mission Rifle Club, who earned high-point honors with a total of 191.

With two victories under their belts, it seemed probable that the Ram shooters would continue to bring honors to the college.

Bill Gibson, rifle team captain last semester, thought that the sharpshooters performed wonderfully.

"I think they'll shoot 10 points higher in the future," he remarked. "Not only that but they're after that trophy again."

With consistency throughout the season, the Ram riflemen will be hard to beat.

Results of the match were as follows: S.F.J.C. — 921 — North, 183; Humphrey, 186; Templeton, 185; Pierce, 185; and Minium, 182. Mission —920 — Batix, 191; Anderson, 183; Swent, 184; Van Heckel, 181; and Bunds, 181.

Modesto Wallops Red Soccerites By 2-0 To Cop Crown

San Mateo's growling Bulldogs, not content with eliminating San Francisco from titular football contention, added the Ram's scalp to their victory list in another field of athletic endeavor at San Mateo last Saturday.

With defeat supposedly staring them in the face, the Bulldogs mustered enough strength to score two fourth-quarter goals while holding the locals scoreless, winning the junior college soccer championship, 2 to 0.

The Rams outfought, outplayed, and generally shoved the peninsulans around the field only to suffer a heart-breaking defeat.

And so it was last Saturday, as Tom Wilson's local brigade of shinkickers threw away chance after chance to make seemingly easy goals.

The peninsula aggregation, set back on its heels the afternoon long, made a quick thrust at the Ram goal and scored the bucket that spelled victory.

Javrosky, local fullback, had been pulled out of position, and a San Mateo forward eased across the winning tally.

But the peninsulans had tasted blood and were not to be denied.

And once again, the Bulldogs caught a usually alert San Francisco defense napping and sewed the game up with another score.

Meet Pirates In Last Football Tilt Of 1939; Victory May Bring Tie For Conference Pigskin Honors

With the pop of the final gun at Modesto, tonight, the curtain rings down on the college football season of 1939. The occasion will hail the conclusion of Lee Eisan's first year as head coach of the gridders; it will commemorate the final blow of the most capable pigskin outfit ever to parade under the Ram banner.

But the crying towels are not yet in order. This evening's clash is an important one. As the last game of the season, it may prove to be one of the best. The Rams, having won are, nevertheless, still in the running their home games and lost the others, for at least a tie in the conference rankings, and the team, accompanied by a swarm of loyal rooters, is embarking for Modesto with the intention of sharing in the pie.

The Pirates, who incidentally came down to San Francisco last year and knocked the locals out of possible deadlock for honors, are thus far running neck and neck with the Reds in the ratings. Each team has won one, and lost one conference game.

San Mateo, on the other hand, is leading the league with two victories having licked Rams and Modesto. And here's the catch. San Mateo still must scrap it out with Sacramento, which occupies the cellar berth, having dropped two out of two.

If Sacramento upsets San Mateo, and the Rams whip the Pirates, the conference will be thrown into a tie for first place with San Mateo.

So there is still hope.

For tonight's tilt, at Modesto, the locals are handicapped by the loss of several key players and the poor condition of others.

Adrian Carignani, star tackle who has played 100 per cent football all season long, is suffering from an ankle injury. He may see action tonight, but it is doubtful whether he will be able to turn in his usual hard-hitting game.

Leo Leggett, local speed-burner who has broken away for long gallops in recent contests, is reported out of action.

Al Nauman is fixed up with a bruised rib. Regardless, he will be in there as usual, punching the line and throwing strikes at Molich, Frannie Gray, Molson and any other eligible pass receiver.

Those are just a few of the names on the sick list, enumerated to convey an idea of what the Rams are up against tonight.

Not only are strong running games boasted by both Rams and Pirates, but a passing duel of some magnitude seems in the offing. The various local combinations, with Al Nauman on the pitching end, have maintained a phenomenal average all season, and will undoubtedly keep the banner flying in this respect.

So it's hail and farewell to football this evening when the Rams blow into Modesto—and perhaps into a tie for the laurels of 1939.

Skiing Enthusiasts Make More Plans; Take 'Dry' Practice In Training

"Dry skiing," which is to the skiing enthusiast what spring training is to the football player, was the enthusiastically discussed subject of the college Ski Club in a meeting held on the evening of Thursday, November 9. Group entrance into the skiing class being held by the San Francisco Examiner was planned, and accepted.

More discussion was devoted to the projected snow trip during the week of December 15-20, and a survey trip at the end of this month. Included in the group taking the survey trip will be Bob Ogg, president of the club, and Earling Jacobsen, along with a few other members.

The club, consisting of about 20 college men and women, will meet again in the East Bay on November 30. Adviser Alden Smith urges meanwhile that students who are interested in winter sports contact him or any members and join the organization.

Co-Ed Sharpshooters Seek Entry Into Rifle League; Hold Tryouts For Women

Captained by their newly elected leader, Marion Shrick, the recently formed Woman's Rifle Team is now holding tryouts for the squad.

Aim of the team is to place first in the Women's Section at the State Gallery Championships, it was learned.

All women interested are invited to try out. Practice is held at the Galileo rifle range, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:30 to 5:30 o'clock.

Now trying out for the team are Margaret Yeager, Mary Healy, Mary Rowan, Katherine Hastings, Mary Ferris, Betty Biaggi, Eileen Kendall, and Irene Gruenebaum.

Intercollegiate baseball had its formal inception in 1879, when Princeton, Amherst, Brown and Dartmouth formed the first college diamond circuit.

RAMblings . . . .
by Ray Berns

Heigh ho, heigh ho, and it's off to play we go—"Modesto, here we come."

That's the chant of the Ram delegation scheduled to leave this afternoon for the valley town.

The Rams and Ramettes are going along to back the team, and, in addition, expect to have a rip-roaring time.

* * * *

After the Los Angeles game the balance of opinion amongst the coaches, players, and ardent followers was "We were outplayed for the first time this season."

And these old eyes which have followed the locals in every game are inclined to agree.

Throughout the entire season we've been outplaying other teams and because of bad breaks have ended up on the wrong side of the score four time. It seemed as if we were finally due for a break and last Friday night we received one.

Glancing back over the season's statistics, we find, to date, that we've won four games, beating Placer, Sacramento, State, and Los Angeles, and lost four, bowing before the USF frosh, Cal frosh, Pasadena, and San Mateo.

We've scored 77 points as against 48 for the opposition, and the yardage and first downs are overwhelmingly in favor of the locals.

Read a few nice bits about "Dutch" Conlan, varsity casaba mentor, in the local papers last week.

Seems as if the local columnists are finally finding out that Conlan is just about the best football official around these or any other parts.

One of the scriveners said that Conlan handled the boys on the field like a top sergeant and was in complete control of the game at all times.

* * * *

St. Mary's has gone and done it again. For the nth time this season the Gaels have out-firstdowned, outyardaged, and generally outplayed opponents only to lose the game. Last Sunday USF took advantage of the Moraga Valley relief project to score a 7-0 victory.

The Gaels started Santa Clara on the victory path, gave little Portland a reputation, helped Dayton along, and probably made the job of "Duke" Malley, USF's coach and a swell guy, secure for another year.

What we can't figure out is why the Gaels didn't give Gonzaga and California a break. Especially California. Poor "Stub" Allison could have used a victory.

* * * *

Personals: Al Nauman, Bob Schoenstein, Mel Chickazola, Hal Corbett are all suffering from injuries received in the L.A. game . . . Gil Johanneson paid the country a visit last weekend.

RAMettes . . . .
by Lu Antonicelli

People love surprises, don't they? Well, here's the surprise that will surprise you into really being surprised (if you get what we mean).

Ever since the WAA was founded here in the college, the Tourney Week Banquet has been held in the Galileo cafeteria, prepared by the Hotel Restaurant Management (plug).

This year, in keeping with the streamlined policy of president Lucille Jacke, and her co-affairs (streamlined too, in case you're interested), the traditionally strictly WAA member banquet will be scrapped and a new one in the form of a mother-daughter affair, moved to a restaurant, will take its place. Add an invitation to all the women of the college, whether WAA member or not, and there you have it—A mother-daughter banquet on Wednesday, December 13, with admission open to all femmes in the college.

Aren't you overwhelmed? We are. The price of the dinner (a minor matter, we assure you), hasn't been set yet, but give them time! Right now, in charge of the letter-writing committee, is Alma Koopman, and Alma is busily wearing out the keys on her typewriter, getting the forms for the letters of invitation out for the mothers.

18 DAYS TO GO!

Advance notes on Tourney Week: As the schedule stands now, the local women athletes will wind up a semester of sports with a calendar somewhat as follows:

Dec. 6—Tourney Week starts; archery competitions.

Dec. 8—Horseshow: co-ed, badminton tourney with State.

Dec. 9—Tennis (first team winners—singles and doubles): rifle match with Marin.

Dec. 12—Rifle between WAA rifleers and class gunners; hockey—Frosh vs. Sophs.

Of course, the above schedule is incomplete but it gives you an idea of what to expect from Dec. 6 til 13. You'll know what's going on when you see some of your ordinarily sane fellow classmates flexing muscles, squinting at some invisible object, practicing stances and in general acting like football players warming up before the bench in preparation to going into a game to salvage the honor of their alma mater. Funny? Oh, my word!

"Itty" notes of BIG importance: State College took the local hockey team for a ride last Saturday to the tune of 1-0 . . . only calamity of the whole day was a black eye donated one of the locals . . . A dunking party is on the schedule for council members at Bertha Keller's house, after their bicycle ride tomorrow. . . . Basketball is fixing to get into shape with the various members of the teams starting individual clubs . . . First basketball playday for the locals will be Dec. 1 when they tangle with Marin Junior College . . .

At Saturday's hockey game, incidentally, Priscilla Finely, now WAA yell leader made her first appearance . . . Priscilla really put those yells over . . . The enthusiasm of the crowd helped too, though . . . All you have to do now, is keep that pep up, after all, there's still plenty of time for exercising your yelling voices what with Tourney Week and all . . . Ice-skaters, rumor hath it, will have a Big Show. Tentatively scheduled for Tourney Week, the plans for the icer's party sounds good . . . Did you know that the Ski Club is open to women too? . . . Oh, my goodness (we forgot that "dunking party" as Miss Keller's will have Physical Ed majors, too . . . (okay, Scott?)

REMINDER: Don't forget that the Tourney Week banquet this year will be open to mothers and daughters, so start talking your mother into a swell dinner and entertainment.

Men's Club Activities

Plans For AMS Farther And Son Night Undergo Radical Change; Definite Decision Expected Soon

Because of unforeseen circumstances, a change of plans has come into being relative to the proposed affair which the Associated Men Students have planned to hold.

Originally, Father and Son night was scheduled to take place inside the Galileo cafe—with a big dinner, etc.

However, through weaknesses of the conditions which prevailed, it was found that a complete new idea had to be evolved for the improvement of the coming Father and Son Night program.

Program Planned

According to Joseph Amori, A.M.S. advisor, the new schedule from all aspects not only looks more appealing but will eventually prove to be a finer program than the previously proposed one.

"What's more—the night will probably be free to guests," said Amori. Below are some of the highlights of the program Amori and his assistants are working on:

First of all, Father and Son Night will be held in a private hall, not located at the time of this writing. The date tentatively has been set for Thursday evening, December 7.

The program will commence with a panel discussion in which three well-known students and their fathers will participate. Amori will act as honorary chairman.

Dean Browne will discuss problems related to college students. Among these, it was learned from Amori, are everyday occurrences such as students borrowing their family automobile, borrowing money from the head of the family for dates, explanation of clinch notices, and other father-son relationships which are likely to exist during college life years.

Asked to attend the A.M.S. presentation was Major Howard H. Cloud, U. S. Quartermaster Corps, stationed at the Presidio. Al Williams, student at the college and active member in college government, will, with his father, engage in discussion.

Sullivan to Speak

Expected to speak on vocation courses of the college is Graham Sullivan, Hotel-Restaurant instructor. He will explain to the group what the college is doing in the line of vocational work.

Speakers representing industry will lecture on what industry wants from college students, as well as the present status of work and employment conditions.

Entertainment is expected to include Kendo, a Japanese sport that went over in grand style at the college number earlier in the semester. Also, school songs are scheduled to be sung.

Band Planned

Amori is working on a plan for obtaining a four-piece band. He has furthermore asked Maxine Turner, college honor student, to tap dance with Dean Browne's piano music in the background.

It has been suggested that all men students wishing to attend the A.M.S. party should sign up with Hugh Ryan, Al Williams, Leland Scarlett, or the bank at Galileo, and state whether or not his father will attend.

During the following days and on through the Thanksgiving weekend, A.M.S. officers will work with Amori on "new angles" for Father and Son Night.

Plans Made By Skaters To Enter Ice Exhibition; Winterland Will Be Site

Whipping into action early this week on plans for a mammoth Figure Skating Exhibition, skate club members have tentatively scheduled the affair for December 9 from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock at the Winterland Ice Rink.

According to Joseph Williams, skate instructor, highlights of the afternoon will be figure skating exhibitions by Murray Galbraith and William Hart, providing the United States Figure Skating Association gives the skaters permission to appear.

Galbraith is national junior figure skating champion and Hart is second-placer in the national novice figure skating list. As members of the Figure Skating Association, Galbraith and Hart are allowed only three exhibition performances a season. Since they have already made two appearances this semester, whether or not they will exhibit for the skate club rests upon the decision of the committee.

"In addition to the champs expected appearance there will be a couples' skating contest with prizes awarded the best team. We expect too, to put on several comedy acts," Williams said.

"Following the exhibition there will be an hour and a half for skating. We extend a cordial invitation to the local collegians to come out, watch, and then skate," Fred Quandt, club president, declared.

Although the rest of the plans for the exhibition are not complete and the above merely tentative; rumor has it that refreshments will be served free by the rink management.

Sweet Lauds Recent Hygiene Movie; Students Quizzed

Recent showing of health films in the Powell Street study hall was commented upon last Wednesday by Russell Sweet, physical education director and instructor in hygiene.

Student evaluation sheets were distributed by Terry Dearborn, health director, to the numerous hygiene students who jammed the study hall. Sweet answered questions by the students after the showing of the pictures.

If the showing of the pictures gave the audience a clearer understanding of disease prevention, believed Sweet, it undoubtedly shall have been worth the efforts taken by Dearborn to make it possible.

Pictures of a similar sort are almost certain to appear again soon, was Sweet's opinion.

NYA officials from the Los Angeles and San Francisco areas inspected the college recently, according to R. H. Redford, NYA director here.

Kalle

By ELMER FREEMAN

Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents a series of interesting attempts at literature by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandry, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. Short stories will be signed, autobiographies will be published anonymously.

Watching Kallé walk down a dirt road rutted deep from wagon wheels and hardened by the summer sun makes you feel as though he were part of all this. His pants and shirt are the color of the dirt upon which he trods; he has been wearing these same clothes for years. Neighboring farmers often give Kallé old clothes, better than his own, but he still prefers his, even if the others are better, for old clothes to Kallé only mean more liquor, and that is what he trades all his earthly possessions to obtain.

On Sunday Kallé is religious; his religion is the bottle. For years on this day he has never failed to get drunk. In the morning he arises early, climbs into his old pants and shirt and is off over the hill. He usually ends up trodding through some vineyard which leads to a drink, or maybe even a whole bottle. Watching his forlorn figure trod down the narrow aisles of a vineyard is a sight not easily forgotten. His oversized pants flapping from the jerks of his short, outward steps gives the appearance that he is dragging something. One Sunday night Kallé was found in a winery which a neighboring farmer had accidently left open. He had overindulged to such an extent that his grave had been, literally speaking, "dug," but to the amazement of all, he was back on his feet in a week.

"Kallé has lived on a little mountain farm for twenty-five years and has never been to town which is only fifteen miles away. His boss, or rather the farmer with whom he lives, goes to town once a week and buys all the provisions needed.

Kallé was probably at one time a seaman because of his long, narrow leather belt which has the appearance of being more functional than ornamental. This type of belt was typical of Scandinavian seamen. After years of sailing upon the high seas, many sailors would eventually acquire large stomachs, thereby creating a use for extra long thin belts. Sometimes a rope was used, but Kallé, with a stomach more civilized in appearance, used a belt.

Kallé's face is rugged and weatherbeaten and the color of the wine he drinks, although it is certainly not lacking in character. His jaws are constantly working in a circular motion; he is probably sucking on his false teeth. When given tobacco, Kallé smokes his pipe which can always be found in his right front pants' pocket. This pocket is reserved especially for his pipe. There are no bulges in his pants from articles being carried in them as they are just one big bulge all over due to their largeness of size.

Kallé is not all bum nor all laziness, for often the ring of his axe, the echo of his voice, and the sound of a lumber sled sliding along a hard dirt road on its wooden runners can be heard up in the timber line. It is a beautiful sight to see Kallé bringing wood down from the hills. He runs alongside the lumber sled keeping it upright and at the same time guides a horse by the use of a pair of reins excessive in length.

I know many people but none are ever pictured in my mind like Kallé. He is a symbol of the mountains he loves. He is my friend.

More Credits Sought For Military Science Class; Hughes Is Optimistic

That students of the military drill class may receive additional units of credits for their work, was the possibility voiced this week by James S. Hughes, military science instructor.

"Students are now drilling two nights a week at the California National Guard armory instead of once a week as prescribed in the course," Hughes said, "and it is only fair that they receive extra credit for their work."

As the course now stands, students are credited with one-half a unit each semester for two hours of drill per week.

Hughes plans to confer with Registrar J. Paul Mohr this following week on whether or not additional credit will be allowed.

All Is Well Says Captain Richards; Students To Fly In About Two Weeks

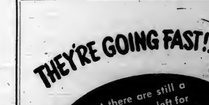
With the ground school class under the direction of Captain George Richards, college flight director, well under way and flying scheduled to start within two weeks the college aeronautics course is breezing along in fine style.

"All the flying instructors are undergoing training in military and government methods of student training," Captain Richards revealed. "As soon as the instructors have finished the required training course, flying will begin."

Although there have been only 30 students selected for actual flight training there are several others taking the ground school course and receiving three units of credit.

"I wish to thank everyone for the interest shown in the course and for the attention given it," Richards said.

ROLLER SKATING
BURKE ROLLA-WAY
2350 Geary Blvd. (near Baker)
Phone Fillmore 9064
SPECIAL PRICES
TO PRIVATE PARTIES



See us for Special Bargains

New Royal Portables with carrying cases, standard keyboards with back spacers and every typing facility.

Manufacturing price — $44.50
OUR PRICE $33.50
Easy Payments—Trade Ins" Accepted
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. HASTINGS
591 MARKET ST. SUTTER 4734

THEY'RE GOING FAST!...

...but there are still a few good tables left for BIG GAME NIGHT
NOVEMBER 25
Dance to the music of
Glen Gray and the Casa Loma ORCHESTRA
$5.00 per person includes dinner, couvert and tax. Dancing until 2.
THE PALACE HOTEL

CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVES
Mary Frances Malone ..... PR 4372
Bill O'Neill ..... RA 4000
Lee Scarlett ..... GR 1806

"Beanery" Meals Unsafe Declares Dearborn, Eat In College Cafeteria

That students who eat lunch in cheap eating places (beaneries) are in danger of getting meals which are unsanitary and bad from a health standpoint is the opinion of college health co-ordinator, Terry Dearborn.

Students are cautioned by Dearborn against the typical beanery meal composed of some type of soda water, a candy bar, and perhaps a hot dog. Dearborn also point out the danger of eating in a great hurry and habitually eating the same type of beanery meal.

"College students are advised by Dearborn to take advantage of the service offered by the practical side of the Hotel and Restaurant Division which serves well-balanced meals to students, beginning at 12:45 daily.

"The Blue Plate Special, available in the cafeteria for 25 cents and prepared under the direction of expert dieticians and cooks, presents a balanced meal containing all vitamins, including those which assist in preventing respiratory infections," said Dearborn.

Seekers Of NYA Work Urged To Report More Frequently

All students on the NYA waiting list are requested to report frequently to Edward H. Redford, college NYA director. If they do not report they will automatically be dropped from the list.

"Although two-thirds of the semester is completed there are still a few jobs, open and students are still being placed," Redford announced.

Time sheets are not due till December 2 but students are reminded that they are to be kept up to date at all times and filled in to the minute.

Coach Louis Conlan says:
"Balanced diet is all important to the football player—why not for the average student?"
We feel that the ideal menu is offered in the Blue Plate Lunch served daily for 25 cents
Galileo Cafeteria

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .
Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.
509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600
Remington Rand, Inc.

Campus Club Crier

- Astronomy . . . Business and social, November 20, 7 o'clock at the Galileo Observatory.
- Beta Phi . . . Formal-banquet, plans tentative.
- Beta Tau . . . Business and social, November 27, 8 o'clock, Oakland.
- Block SF . . . Initiation banquet, December 13, to be given after the initiation ceremonies at the Rex Restaurant.
- Forestry . . . Semi-annual dinner dance, December 16, 8 o'clock, at Lake Merrit Hotel — business and social meeting, November 22, 3:30 o'clock, in Room 362 at Galileo.
- Music . . . Business and program, November 17, 101 Cervantes, Apartment 206.
- Newman . . . Business meeting with speaker William J. Murphy, chief deputy, banking department of the State of California, November 20, St. Mary's Cathedral, 8 p.m.
- Phi Beta Rho . . . Mothers and daughters tea, November 26, 2222 15th Avenue.
- Phi Alpha Omega . . . Business, November 20, 8 p.m., 1441 4th Avenue, Oakland.
- Phys. Ed. Rec. Maj. . . . Bicycle and breakfast party, November 18, 8 a.m., Marina district. Those interested in going should see Bertha Keller today.
- Rifle and Pistol . . . Hayride and weenie bake, November 24, 6 p.m., at Woodside.
- Women's Service Society . . . Meeting November 27. Watch the bulletin board for further announcements.

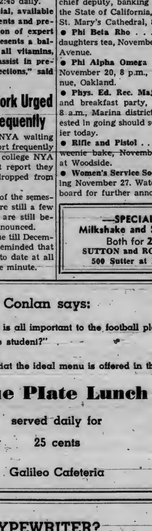
—SPECIAL—
Milkshake and Sandwich
Both for 25c
SUTTON and ROWLAND
500 Sutter at Powell

Convention

Joe Amori Travels To Health Meet At Pomona

To represent the college at the annual meeting of the American Student Health Association held at Pomona during the Thanksgiving weekend will be Joseph A. Amori, college hygiene professor.

Chosen from the college by Dr. J. J. Brown and Dr. Oliver Byrd of Stanford University, Amori will discuss the following two topics: (1) The testing program in health education in junior colleges; and (2) The subject matter content of a personal hygiene course in relation to sex education.



Convention members will be representatives from most of the junior colleges throughout the state. Other problems to be mentioned will all concern the welfare of the college student.

Known for his wide knowledge in sex education problems, Amori will take notes on information which may be helpful to hygiene students of the college. He has made previous efforts to present an informal course dealing solely with the complex problems involved in sex education.

"Actually," Amori said, "students have constantly shown their want for more information dealing with social problems in living."

Admitting his desire to lend verbal assistance in the form of lectures, Amori made known that he'd like to aid solution of student problems.

ROOS
College men choose
BRITISH LOUNGE MODEL
Suits
FOR MORE FREEDOM
FOR SMARTER STYLING FOR GREATER COMFORT

BRITISH LOUNGE MODEL SUITS ARE EXCLUSIVE WITH
ROOS. BRASHY TWEEDS $30
...OTHER BLM SUITS $40
Roos Bros
MARKET AT STOCKTON

Forensics

Debaters Prime For Battle With USF Frosh November 30

Diction and tempo are being stressed for debate students as an aid for the coming argument with the freshman team of the University of San Francisco to be held in Room 462 of Galileo High School on November 30 at 3:30 o'clock.

Lloyd Luckmann, debate coach, has not selected his three-man team that will meet the Dons on the question; Resolved, That the United States should follow a policy of strict (economic and military) isolation toward all nations outside of the western hemisphere engaged in armed international or civil conflict.

Luckmann has only two veteran debaters whom he might place on this semester's team, Eleanor Coy and Bob Cohn. Apart from those two he can choose from among Howard Latcher, Dave Spencer, Janet Fellows, Isaac Abrahms, or Catherine Crotts.

The debate will be such that debaters may interrupt one another during opposing speeches and ask questions pertinent to the speech being given.

College students are invited to attend the debate.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
The Guardsman
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE
Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940

Vol. IX FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1939 No. 12

A. M. S.

Tickets On Sale For Father, Sons Night, Dec. 12

Deputizing 20 men to sell tickets to the Fathers-Sons Night banquet on December 12, Lee Scarlett, Associated Men Students' president set forth his plan of gaining business contacts for Men's Club members.

Purchasers will wear the tickets on their lapels. There is a space on the ticket where the student will write his name, thus facilitating introductions at the banquet.

Students Invite Fathers

Students are asked to invite their fathers to the banquet, which will feature a discussion by Dean Browne, Al Williams, and Williams' father, on father-son relationships which are likely to exist during the college years.

Effort within the college has been extensively made by the faculty as well as the sponsors to further the program.

"We are grateful to the faculty for their intentions of backing the Fathers-Sons night 100 per cent," Scarlett said.

Business men from all fields and professions will attend the gathering. They will represent such organizations as the Fraternity Club, the Knights of the Round Table, and the Chamber of Commerce. All together, it is expected that there will be approximately 50 business men there.

Location Selected

The location of the program has been definitely selected. After discussing the possibilities of three halls, Scarlett and Adviser Joseph Amori chose the Scottish Rite Auditorium.

Scarlett expressed hope that all students will bring their fathers. However, students will be admitted alone if this is impossible.

He later advised that while tickets were being sold it would be advisable for purchasers to name the profession in which their fathers are engaged, which profession the student himself is particularly interested in, and finally whether or not the father will be able to accompany the student.

Plans are being made to seat certain business men with students of corresponding interest at the same tables.

Price for admission has been set at 50 cents.

Dinners will be prepared for all by members of the Hotel-Restaurant Division.

College Ice Carnival

Pictured above are Phyllis Simmons and Wiley Burnett, two prominent members of the college ice skating group. They will be one of the many couples entered in the couples' contest to be held in conjunction with the Ice Skating carnival at Winterland rink, December 9.

Skating Club Plans Winterland Follies December 9 Featuring Couple's Contest

Sponsored by the college Ice Skating Club, an ice skating carnival reputedly rivaling the famed Ice Follies, will be staged at the Winterland Skating Rink, Steiner and Post streets, on Saturday, December 9, at 5:15 p.m.

Stars of the show, according to Joseph Williams, adviser to the group, will be Bill Hart and Murray Galbraith. Both these men have been in national competition, have many awards for figure skating skill, and are recognized as among the best amateurs in the country.

Accomplished skaters, these two men will perform what may seem the impossible and are contemplating several comic skits. In addition to these stars members of the club will participate in couples skating, and will appear in other acts on the evening's program.

The Women's Athletic Association, working with the club in its undertaking has invited Santa Rosa Junior College to compete in the couple's skating, besides contributing several feminine skaters of note to the evening's performance.

Tickets now being sold by Tom O'Neill, the Galileo Bank, the Powell Street Book Store, and individual members of the ice skating club are of two types. Fifty-cent tickets will entitle the purchaser to view the entire show and also to participate in one and a half hours of skating following the exhibition. For those who wish only to view the extravaganza, 25-cent tickets can be acquired from the aforementioned sources.

Admission is not limited to students alone. Although Williams would like to have as high a representation of students as possible present, he pointed out that the show will be open to the general public.

Excepting the actual Ice Follies staged here several months ago, Williams said, "I sincerely doubt if a show such as we shall put on has ever been attempted here. We have two of the finest amateur skaters in Galbraith and Hart, and aided by some of the excellent figure skaters in our club, we hope to put on a show that can really rival the famed Follies."

Having secured exclusive rental rights of the rink from 5:15 to 7:30 p.m., there will be plenty of time for the exhibition and the general skating period which is to follow the show.

Williams urged any woman who knows how to ice skate and would like to participate in the show to see him immediately as there is a need for women figure skating partners.

Borrie Hyman, Guardsman Reporter, Wins Pacific Relations Essay Contest

Winner of the first award in the essay contest recently held among bay area college students by the Student Institute of Pacific Relations was a student of this college, Borrie Hyman.

An all-expense scholarship to the 14th Annual Conference of the Institute, to be held at International Hall in Berkeley, December 1, 2, 3, was the first award. Partial scholarships were given to individual winners from each college participating.

In the past, delegates to the annual conference were chosen by each college and their expenses paid by the college. This year delegates have been chosen competitively by means of the essay contest.

These conferences are held each year for the purpose of giving students an opportunity to meet with one another and discuss problems relating to the Pacific area.

Home Economics Association To Hold Christmas Party

"Plans are now being made for the semi-annual Home Economics Association Christmas party, which will be held at my home in Oakland some time this month," announced Barbara Smith, president.

"The date of the party will be announced some time next week," concluded Miss Smith.

Nearness Of Election Time Gives Rise To Speculation; Reporter Lists Who's Who In College Politics

By LEONARD GROSS

With the election time drawing near it becomes necessary to dust off the crystal ball and peer into the future. As always, the future is interesting especially when it concerns those who are going to be the big shots of student politics next semester.

As yet nothing more concrete than rumors have filled the air, but even so, many wild speculations as to who will be what, have been advanced.

This article is an attempt to separate the wild rumors from the false ones and present the most probable to the voting students.

Most important post in any college is, of course, President of the Associated Students. Retiring prexy Elmer Hubacher will return next semester but has announced however that he will not run for re-election.

Candidates for the post thus far appear to be Harold Hoffman, president of the Club Advisory Board; Lee Scarlett, AMS head, and Al Williams, chairman of the college judicial committee.

The history, background and qualifications of these men, any one of whom could well qualify as a student president, will be presented later in the semester by The Guardsman.

The position of vice-president, usually and traditionally held by a woman, will prove to be one of the most hotly contested battles of the entire election.

Likely candidates for this post are Muriel Grenelle, hard working, efficient secretary of the Associated Students, and Muriel Nolan, head of the AWS. Both women are popular in the college and well equipped to hold the position.

The office of secretary of the Associated Students, probably the most under-publicized and yet the toughest job of them all, will probably fall to either Florence Hansen, popular college student, or Margaret Meader, vice-president of the AWS.

The head yell leader job, important because of the rallies that have to be planned and put on, may likely fall once again to Ray Berns who has proven himself so competent this semester. Others who may run are Pete Adajolotte, present assistant yell leader, and possibly Arthur Pomares, last semester's cheer leader.

Well, there we are, the probable candidates for political office next semester. Look them over. Think them over.

Gift

French Indo-China Donates Maps, Books To College

Acknowledgement and appreciation of a gift to the college of maps, posters, and booklets by the management of the French Indo-China exhibit at the Exposition was expressed by the foreign language department of the college this week.

This gift is quite timely, as the language department is considering offering cultural courses relating to life in foreign countries in the near future," said Edwin A. Cranston, chairman of the modern language department.

"In connection with the course on France, this informational material on French Indo-China should prove interesting and helpful to the student. French Indo-China, with its population of about 22,000,000, is a very important part of France's colonial empire," continued Cranston.

These cultural courses will not require a knowledge of the language which, as planned, will be well adapted to the needs and interests of the average junior college student.

Introduced Next Semester

One of these new courses is being introduced next semester as Language 51. It is designed to be an aid to the student who intends to start the study of some foreign language, and will be devoted largely to a study of the principles of sentence formation common to English and foreign languages.

"Other courses that may be offered in the near future include courses in elementary conversation, and a study of the masterpieces of European literature," said Cranston.

"Suggestions from the students in regard to these or other foreign language offerings will be welcomed by language instructors," Cranston added.

Government Chooses Flight Instructors For Campus Aeronautics Course

Flight operators have been chosen and approved by government authorities at Washington, D. C., and as soon as the contracts are signed and returned to Washington, flying will start, according ot Captain George Richards, college flight director.

The flight plan as it now stands is as follows: 30 students will be given instruction by Civilian Flyers Inc., in a 125-horsepower Fleet airplane and a 65-horsepower Luscombe. The other 10 students will be trained by the Lyons Air Service in a Piper Cub of 50 horsepower," Captain Richards announced.

Both operators are located at San Francisco Airport.

"We were unable to start flying as soon as we expected because of the multitude of details that had to be ironed out and the vast amount of work involved. However the volume of activity is bound to be stepped up considerably within the next few weeks, as the final administrative details are smoothed out," Captain Richards said.

All students are expected to make frequent trips to the airports to familiarize themselves with the different types of aircraft.

Building Construction Still Several Weeks Ahead Of Schedule

Progress on the Balboa campus is proceeding satisfactorily, and construction work is still several weeks ahead of schedule, reports President Archibald J. Cloud.

President Cloud, who is keeping in close touch with building progress, states construction officials have informed him that the building should be ready for occupancy in the early summer of next year.

On a recent visit to the campus, President Cloud was impressed by the modernity and efficient arrangement of the laboratories of the science building.

"They will be outfitted with the latest types of laboratory equipment," said President Cloud, "and the lighting plan is such that the classrooms will receive a maximum of outside light at all times."

Road work and landscaping of the grounds is now moving speedily added President Cloud.

Government

Nominations Group Plan Voted Down By Ex-Council

Executive Council activities during the past two weeks have included setting of the Nominations Committee question, considerable progress in the establishment of the Welfare Council and a decision in the matter of an annual award to students.

Harold Hofman's special committee, appointed to investigate the possibility and advantages of a nominations committee to prepare slates for student elections, turned in a negative report after several weeks of study. Correspondence with other colleges disclosed several systems for the appointment and conduct of such a group, but none seemed practical.

"We feel," commented Hofman in making his report, "that the proper persons to form such a committee are usually the type of student who would make good officers, thus a nominations committee would have to look among its own members for officer material, and such a situation would naturally be subject to much objection.

"In addition, a nominations committee would in no way serve to answer a point raised by many students, that the college is in the hands of a minority. A nominations committee to select candidates for office would still 'leave a minority in a strategic position. Therefore, the committee recommends that the idea of a nominations group be abandoned."

The introduction of a welfare council along the lines suggested by former U. C. Welfare Council Chairman Jack Lund in his address to the executive council some weeks ago has been approved and a committee complete with chairman will be suggested to the council for their approval next week.

All NYA Students Must See Redford

All college students at present on the rolls of the National Youth Administration should report to Edward H. Redford, NYA director no later than December 15.

This announcement from the NYA office was of importance because it is desired to check the work of NYA students and possibly make more room for others now on the waiting list.

"It is of utmost importance that NYA workers see me personally," Redford said.

Redford further mentioned that students who fail within the given date to pay a visit to his office in Room 726, P.G.&E. building will automatically be dropped from the rolls.

The NYA office is open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday.

Present NYA members are advised to turn in their time-slips for this month to Tom O'Neill this morning as December 1, usually the date, falls on a Sunday.

College Students Will Attend National Guard Camp Later This Month

Practical field training in artillery maneuvering will be afforded eight members of the military science class when they join with the 250th Coast Artillery to take part in the annual encampment of the California National Guard this month.

Camp McQuaide, near Watsonville, is the location of the camp, and each student will remain there one week.

Learning to set up and take down the large 155 mm. guns will claim most of the student's time, said James S. Hughes, military science instructor.

"This is a big job," said Hughes, "and it usually takes the fellows from three to six hours to set the guns up ready to fire. It includes unloading the equipment and ammunition, assembling the guns, orienting the path of the projectile, and numerous other details."

The students will also be instructed in night firing, Hughes added.

Those scheduled to attend the camp from the college are Stanley Doughty, Robert Hawes, Robert Raine, John Proctor, Ralph Bucher, W. M. Noble, Ezra Morgan and John Stanmann.

Swing With Smith

Active Low Sophomore Class To Be Honored Tonight When College Dances At Palace Hotel

Dancing to the melodic music of Les Smith and his orchestra, students of the college will attend the third class dance of the semester tonight.

Held in the Gold room of the Palace hotel, the affair will honor the Low Sophomore class and will mark the final student activity under the direction of the college Social Committee, according to Dorothy Trood, committee chairman.

Dancing will be from 9 until 12 o'clock. The dance itself will be semi-formal, featuring blue and white bids.

Although the dance is in honor of the Low Sophomore class, all students of the college are invited to attend. Miss Trood advised that admission would be one student body card or a couple.

On the heels of the above announcement, Dean Edwin C. Browne warned that there would be an identification committee at the door to confiscate all student cards that were loaned or borrowed. All offenders will be brought before the judiciary committee and their student body cards will be confiscated, he said.

With the exception of the Sophomore formal, which will be held January 5, this will be the last Associated Student dance of the semester. Gold Room Taken

This is the first dance in a year and a half to be held in the Gold Room of the Palace hotel. The reason, according to Miss Trood, was that accommodations were not thought to be large enough. Inspection revealed otherwise, however. Miss Trood thus concluded, "Because we have the accommodations we expect all the local collegians to turn out for the dance."

RALLY COMMITTEE FINISHES SUCCESSFUL SEMESTER; TURNS OVER JOB TO OTHERS

Because the Modesto funfest was the last football rally of the semester, the work of the rally committee for this semester has been completed, revealed Ray Berns, college yell leader.

"Two and possibly three assemblies remain on the schedule for the remainder of the semester, but all will be in hands other than those of the rally committee.

Associated Students' President Elmer Hubacher will preside over the nomination assembly which will be held on Wednesday, January 3, while the combined Block rally and installation assembly, to be held the second week in January, will be under the charge of the Block Society.

In the event that there is a High Sophomore rally, it will be conducted by the committee in charge of High Sophomore week.

Commenting upon the activities of the past semester, Berns said, "I should like to take this opportunity to thank the students for the fine spirit and cooperation we received at the games and the rallies."

Members of the rally committee, chairmaned by Berns, were Pete Aydaiotte, Bill Mowry, Jack Schmale, Tony Manov, Frank Verduccl, Hugh Ryan, Bob Owen, Lee Scarlett, Elmer Hubacher, Mal Jacobs, Bill O'Neil, Louis Delare, Willie Latz, Ken Pasqualetti, Hal Hoffman, Jean Kelly, Dolores Dixon, Virginia Pearson, Adele Kuhn, Dorothy Trood, Muriel Nolan, Muriel Grenelle, Margo Meader and Jean Chesley.

Restricted Social Groups To Hold Semi-Formal At Century Club Dec. 16

With the Century Club as the scene, a semi-formal dance under the sponsorship of the Committee of Restricted Social Organizations of the Advisory Club Board will be held Saturday night, December 16.

At present, bids are being sold only to members of the restricted social clubs within the college, but there is a possibility that the sale of bids will be opened to the entire student body soon.

Bids can be obtained from Muriel Nolan, Bud Emts, Art McLain, Shirley White, Adele Kuhn, or Claude Heiwig for $1.25.

The Century Club is located at Sutter and Franklin streets. Dancing will be from 9 to 12 p.m.

Three orchestras are at present being considered by the committee for this affair. Orchestras under consideration are those led by Warren Rinegen, Les Smith and Frank Wells.

A Capella Choir Changes Date Of Christmas Program

Date of the home performance of the college A Capella choir scheduled for December 14 in the Galileo Auditorium has been changed to December 12, authoritative sources revealed today.

The program will be dedicated to Christmas and will feature Christmas music.

Psychologist Risks Life; Claims Women Are Weaker Sex Within College

Women are still the weaker sex (in number anyway), according to the latest report submitted on the college's enrollment by Harold W. Leuenberger, of the college psychology and research department.

Statistics prove that since the beginning of the college there have always been more men than women, and at the present time the ratio is two-to-one. At the college's origin there were roughly six men to four women, and this ratio has been increasing all the time, Leuenberger said.

Total enrollment in the college has increased steadily since its beginning and the semester represents a 61 per cent increase over the opening semester of Fall, 1935, said Leuenberger, and increases during the last four semesters are particularly marked.

Relative proportions of students enrolled in the college and from outside the city shows a marked increase in out-of-city students since the first semester, added Leuenberger, and also a marked increase among San Francisco residents during the last three semesters.

Class enrollments were divided into two groups, academic, often termed "four-year college preparatory"; and terminal, or class enrollments in those courses designed for students who will complete their formal education in the junior college.

Statistics of the report prove that there has been a tendency toward the academic type of enrollment since the beginning, and an increase each semester.

Data . . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
Low Soph Dance	Palace	Tonight
Ice Carnival	Winterland	December 9
Father-Son Night	Scottish Rite	December 12
Inter-Frat Dance	Century Club	December 16
New Year's Eve	Anywhere	Midnight
AWS Tea Dansant	Century Club	January 4
Soph Formal	Indefinite	January 5

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1939 No. 12

BILL FRANTZ ... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse — Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross ... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat ... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone ... Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli ... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop ... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Traditional College Atmosphere Now Being Built; Present Student Leaders Plant First Ivy Sprigs

WE ARE attending a young institution. There is a lack of tradition which is common among young institutions. Sometimes the students are resentful because there is no ivy upon our walls—because there are few precedents to follow. Sometimes there is a lack of social co-operation among the students—the unity called "college spirit" is often missing.

True, ivy-covered walls and traditions impress and fill the student with an air of belonging to something sacred. But the ivy and traditions were not always there. There had to be a beginning and someone had to plant the ivy. In that beginning lies our role—builders of the young institution and planters of the ivy.

It was Frank Verducci, in the spring of 1939, who originated the idea of the Outstanding Student Award. The executive council this semester, under President Elmer Hubacher, has carried Verducci's plan into effect, and has planted a sprig of ivy and created a tradition.

The award consists of a permanent plaque, names of the outstanding students to be inscribed upon it. The man will receive a key and the woman a pin. The awards are to be presented during the commencement exercises.

President Archibald J. Cloud will appoint a committee, composed of faculty members, to judge candidates for the award. They will base their decisions on service to the college and ability and character as evidenced by leadership and attested to by fellow students and instructors.

Another sprig of ivy was planted this semester by Lee Scarlett, president of the Associated Men Students, in his Fathers-Sons Night which will be held December 12. Still another tradition is created by Lucille Jacke, WAA president of the Mothers-Daughters Sports Banquet to be held in January.

It is a greater honor to be the leader than the follower.

The . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

THERE are so many new records down at Sherman and Clay's that it is difficult to choose those upon which to comment. Glen Miller's arrangement of Blue Rain, Johnny Mercer's latest, is a superb orchestration of an average song.

Speaking of Glen Miller's orchestration, Kent Jorgensen, a student of this college, has answered our query, how does Miller get his individual quality in his arrangement, which was asked in a former issue? Jorgensen explains, "Miller's stylization is unique in that the fourth tenor and clarinet carry the melody an octave apart, while the two altos and the second tenor fill in the harmony between the fourth tenor and clarinet." (Thank you Mr. Jorgensen.)

This evidently gives that mellow, haunting quality so predominant in Glen Miller's recordings. A good example of this tone can be found in Speaking of Heaven. This piece has a distinctive rhythm that subtly pounds through the listener, like the stirring quality of the drums in a military band. The down beat accents the time while the melody is carried on by tenor and clarinet.

Blue Rain and Speaking of Heaven are excellent as far as the orchestration goes, but, through no fault of Ray Eberle, the vocalist, the lyrics are not so "hot." However, Bless You, another of Miller's new records, is better in the vocal than in the orchestration, and the orchestration is "plenty good."

It is difficult to decide whether Glen Gray or Glen Miller has the better smooth band. The Casa Loma orchestra's new disc, Tumbling Tumble Weeds, with Kenny Sargent singing the vocal leaves his listeners spellbound. This latest Gray recording is just as good, if not better, than Sunrise Serenade, and that should be enough said!

Which brings to mind—this is the Casa Loma orchestra's last week at the Palace Hotel, and San Francisco certainly hates to say goodbye to such a swell organization, "But we'll be back next year," Gray promises. By the way, congratulations to you, Mr. Gray, on the arrival of that new son. See you next year.

Bing Crosby and the Andrews Sisters have made a sensationally popular new record, Yodeling Jive, which is rapidly climbing to the top in popularity. On the back of the same disc, however, is a sad excuse for a popular song, namely, Ciribiribin. Before Crosby and the Andrews Sisters took this lovely ballad and swung it, the well-known Italian song, Ciribiribin was beautiful—now it is just a mediocre swing arrangement. It is too bad the contemporary musicians have to ruin so thoroughly something as fine as the Ciribiribin. The modern arrangements of the Beautiful Blue Danube and Softly As In a Morning Sunrise, to name two, were bad enough, but this latest tops them all off for horrible music, and if Mischa Auer will pardon us, may we borrow his phrase, because it expresses our opinion so completely.

While Thinking

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

MOST ironic incident of World War II thus far has been the case of the British liner Sirdhana.

The Sirdhana, three miles out of Singapore, mistakenly entered the British mine field, exploded and sank within 15 minutes, many lives being lost.

Upon investigation of the incident in a military court of inquiry it was revealed that the Sirdhana could have been saved by firing a warning shot from the battery overlooking the harbor. Reason for not doing so was that the battery commander couldn't fire without orders from the fire commander who in turn could not give the order to fire without permission from the port war station.

It seems to us that this is carrying discipline a trifle too far. We wonder if the Singapore port war station has in turn to wire the British Admiralty before they could save their countrymen's lives?

• • •

SPEAKING of Britain it looks as if she is getting the worst of the war so far. German submarines and mines are creating consternation and havoc among the English.

Before we are inclined to pity the British, however, let us recall the old, old saying that reads: "Britain loses every battle but the last one."

There may be something to that so don't go selling the Britons short as yet.

• • •

IT LOOKS as if the Russian military machine is all primed to take over the peace-loving nation of Finland.

The Soviet has close to a million troops massed on the Finnish border and last week did its best to create the first of a probable series of border incidents to justify her attack.

If the Russians do invade Finland we are very much afraid that nothing can be done about it. The small Finnish army could not possibly withstand the onslaught of Russian might and she will find no support in England or France who already appear to have their hands full.

Let us hope the Russians change their plans and leave the Finns alone. Most Americans cherish a friendly feeling for little Finland. They at least pay their debts, which is more than can be said for some of the larger nations overseas.

• • •

NATIONAL

APPEARING almost out of place and yet grimly foreboding are the anti-aircraft guns now being placed about New York.

Firing 30 shells a minute these guns are the latest thing in aircraft defense and would prove most formidable if New York were ever attacked, which isn't such a far-fetched idea, believe it or not.

It brings that fracas in Europe a little closer to home, doesn't it?

• • •

FRITZ (I was framed) Kuhn should be nominated as the American??? most beyond the proverbial eight ball.

Even if proved innocent of the present charges that he misused funds of the Nazi American Bund, he still has to go on trial again on two charges of embezzlement.

Aptly termed a public nuisance by New York's district attorney, Thomas Dewey, he will have to do a lot more than shout "Heil Hitler" to wiggle out of those charges.

• • •

CITY

ALTHOUGH it is part of our policy to refrain from discussing labor disputes, we can hardly help but mention the fact that if strikes in San Francisco do not become a little less frequent, this city will resemble Seattle. There will be but little business for anyone and San Francisco will no longer remain one of the most important ports in the nation.

It is not for us to say who is right and who is wrong in these disputes of which the ship clerks strike is the most recent.

We do feel, however, that above all, these incessant quarrels should cease for the good of the citizens of San Francisco.

• • •

SERVING to keep the city's reading public in a perpetual dither of curiosity have been the ever contrasting reports as to the fate of Treasure Island for 1940.

It is our opinion that the men behind the Fair for '40 plan could do a great deal to relieve the monotony by announcing that the Exposition will run again next year. They are going to come to this eventually so they might as well get it off their chests.

Maybe we're wrong (and it wouldn't be the first time either) but this constant haggling back and forth over the matter appears to be a lot of superfluous hot air.

It is still our opinion (for whatever it's worth) that the Fair will open next summer, and further, that such a decision was made a long time ago by certain important persons connected with the enterprise.

It's A Date

By Marion MacKillop

RAM'S HORN

Cheating Tolerated; Authorities Neglect Public Revelation

Editor, The Guardsman:

The other day, during a lecture period, I reached into my binder and brought forth a Blue Book that had been returned to me a few days before. Idly scanning the neat, well-written pages I noted with pride the grade emblazoned at the top. Turning to the front cover, I eyed with satisfaction my sprawling signature. Running my eye slowly up the page I stopped short, my startled eye encountered, instead of the usual "Dishonesty is not tolerated by the Students of this College," a small design of a book!

My surprise slowly changed to dismay then to anger, my mind ran rampant. If dishonesty is tolerated by the students of this college why hadn't I been notified? Why had I been allowed to rack my poor tortured brain in an effort to answer all questions honestly when the answers could be easily found in my book, or notes, or by looking at my neighbor's paper?

At least the instructor could have announced beforehand that dishonesty is tolerated and to prepare ourselves accordingly.

Then the question entered my mind that if the students and instructors tolerated dishonesty then it would cease to be dishonesty, would't it? Or would it?

Then I thought, do the instructors tolerate it? Or don't they care?

These questions are flooding my mind, my whole life may be affected. Won't someone endeavor to answer these questions for me?

HONEST MOE.

Editor's Note:

The fact that the generally accepted criteria of personal conduct in taking examinations cannot be enforced does not in any way alter the ethical aspects of the problem. If honesty is to be regarded as an individual trait and developed purely out of reasons of self respect and moral discipline, then the actions of others who have no regard for those principles should not be allowed in any way to alter or influence your outlook.

On the other hand, if you would rather inflict upon yourself the mental unrest accruing from the knowledge that you have employed universally condemned methods in order to obtain a grade, then your complaint has no bearing on the deplorable situation which unfortunately exists.

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

HOW TO

live alone and like it was demonstrated last week when Dean Browne and J. Graham Sullivan visited the bachelor quarters of the San Francisco Junior College Residence Club. The dean, in the role of investigator, was interested in the methods used by the four gentlemen to keep up their standard of living. Posted conspicuously upon the wall was the answer. It read:

WE THE UNDERSIGNED

agree that we will abide by the following rules and see that all fines are paid by all breakers, residents or visitors, from this twenty-first day of September, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine.

1. All pennies must be deposited in the club bank at the close of the day before retiring.

2. Unnecessary noisemakers will be fined five cents.

3. Rings left in bath tub. Leavers will be fined ten cents.

4. Persons leaving lights on unnecessarily will be fined one cent.

Rules for visitors.

A. Must deposit all pennies in club bank upon entering our humble abode.

B. All persons arriving at dinner time and partaking of our most delicious, tasty morsels must contribute fifteen cents (15c) toward expenses. Except Terry Sandelin who must pay 20c. Guests asked by one or more of the residents are exempt from this charge but it will be paid by said residents.

C. Rules 2 and 3 apply also to guests.

Robert H. Klingler.
Karl M. Munson.
Harry Alfred Green.
Sterling Silver.

• • •

NEWS THAT

Bob Fex, former student body president had received a job in Washington, D. C., reached us this week. We can picture him puffing contentedly on a two-bitter now telling the Capitol City correspondents how local boy makes good.

• • •

WE QUOTE FROM

Gene D'Accardo's column in last month's Modesto Collegian. "During a recent newsreel, we saw filmed the mass production of Croix de Guerres by the French Government. A symbol of heroic endeavor; an object of distinction representing bravery in action, the Croix is being turned out by the carload to adorn the chests of the potential brave. . . .

". . . Somehow it was so disillusioning. Like meeting your favorite movie siren in person only to find she has freckles and a cosmetic complexion. We always had the idea that medals were made by sacred hands. We thought of red-eyed women and grim-lipped men taking time and thought over the solemnity, the symbolism of each individual medal. Instead we find soulless machines stamping down into meaningless metal, the results to be scooped up by the shovelful and carried away by the crateful. . . ."

Not a very pleasant thought to an idealist.

• • •

NOW THAT

the season is finished and the team has received its plaudits it would be a beautiful gesture to commend Art Rosenbrock and the rest of the managers of the football team for their unselfish efforts during the semester. So, to Don Tobin, Louie Vasquez, Hal Frazier, George Hickson, and waterboy Johnny Baries thanks for doing the dirty work.

• • •

IT IS AMAZING

the number of people who come to the "Big City" for the first time and celebrate by taking a suite of rooms in a large first class hostelry. They then imitate their favorite motion picture star and do as they have seen done in society pictures. Our friend, the desk clerk, revealed the inner secret.

"Room Service" phone is rung and the big-time farmer says, "Send up an order of crepe suzettes. Yeah, I want 'em right now." "Yes, sir," answers the clerk, and orders the chef to "step on it." The food is delivered to our big-time farmer who usually glances at them and telephones the clerk to complain, "Hey, these ain't crepe suzettes, are they? They're only hot cakes fried in whiskey." And more than once is an omelet returned because the farmer has seen that they are only eggs.

• • •

COMMENTING ON

the Ice Skating club's coming extravaganza, Lou Goldstone, well-known cheap-skate said, "Figure eights will be the evening's specialty. The skaters will go around more curves than a sorority house bathtub." Now that Mr. Goldstone is ashamed of his standing as a cheap-skate, we take it back. For subtle humor please contact Maloff, Rosenblat, Goldstone and Untermoto.

shots at RAMdom

By Isadore Maloff

ALWAYS eager to learn of human interest material accruing from the drab events of our daily college life, we were rather startled to hear that the members of the Hotel and Restaurant Division had last week witnessed a bedmaking demonstration! Since bedmaking is a highly skilled art, and one that should be of interest to all types and classes of people, we thought our two readers might be interested in gaining some pointers on this vital subject. So thinking, we hied over to the Hotel Division office where genial Lee Scarlett explained the finer points of the demonstration.

It appears that one day last week, Mr. Tremaine Loud, manager of the Hotel California brought his champion bedmaker, Mrs. Minnie Moore (no relation to Dinty) to explain said finer points to would-be bedmakers of the Hotel Division.

WELL QUALIFIED

Mrs. Moore was well qualified to be the demonstrator as on Hotel Day at Treasure Island she had secured first prize for making the neatest, most practical bed in the shortest time. Since she had accomplished this feat in open competition with maids from all the better nearby hotels, Mrs. Moore rightfully earned the title of Bay Region Champion Bedmaker, a highly-coveted honor.

Securing an extra bed from the sick room at Galileo, Mrs. Moore revealed that there are four important points in the proper making of a bed. First point is to anchor the sheets down so securely that no matter how the sleeper fidgets, he cannot kick the blankets from the bed. Secondly, the better hotels such as the Hotel Californian, use a third sheet to insert between the two ordinary sheets and the blanket, so that at no time does any part of the sleeper touch the blankets, thus making for extra sanitation. Thirdly, a pad is put over the mattress to insure proper comfort at all times. Lastly, the pillow should be so enclosed in the slip that it cannot come apart should the occupant of the bed get a tendency to use the pillow for a punching bag.

A few days after this highly informative demonstration, so Lee informs us, our own Dean Browne and J. Graham Sullivan, desirous of learning what results, if any, had come from Mrs. Moore's exemplifications, visited the respective bachelor apartments of students Terry Sandelin, Bill Lewis, Sam Ray, Sterling Silver (100% pure), Tom Duffy, and Lee Scarlett. In each case, shockingly enough, they found the beds in complete disarray. Grading these men "D--" for their bedmaking abilities, the two investigators nevertheless enjoyed the free refreshments served them. All of which simply proves that even though our students may not be beducated, they are at least social.

OUR OWN VERSION

Personally, we are rather inclined to pooh-pooh modern methods of bedmaking. This summer it was our privilege to attend the National Guard camp at San Luis Obispo where we picked up our own version of the art.

We slept in what is commonly known as a three-season bed—no springs. Usually lax in making our bed until inspection time rolled around, we would laze in it for the greater part of the day and then hurriedly smooth out the sheets (?) when inspection time came. This was only to make sure that all such foreign matter as cracker crumbs or stray Bolsheviks were fully removed. With particular emphasis on the Bolsheviks. For no matter what Dorothy Parker says, we'd rather sleep with a couple of crumbs than with a couple of bums!

Not knowing how to make a bed as proficiently as Mrs. Moore, the covers would usually fall onto the floor in the wee hours of the morn. Thus, more often than not, we usually awoke to find ourselves covered only with a blanket of fog. However, sleeping on hay is like the football star who loses his true love—it results in a broken back. (All right, don't laugh. Who cares?)

JUST DUST

Dust under the bed has always been a dirty problem, but at camp we were never allowed to let it accumulate. At which point, we suppose this is the proper place to tell the one about the old maid who stopped sweeping under her bed when she heard that man was made of dust!

Providing you've read this far, you should now know of at least two methods of bedmaking—that method used by the National Guards and that method practiced by such outstanding hostelries as the centrally-located Hotel California, where Mr. Loud and Mrs. Moore assure the utmost in comfort, at rates beginning as low as $3.00 a day and up with bath, garage, and radio.

And if all this gets by exactly as written without the beditor bediting our copy, we sincerely hope that everyone who reads this account will have added to his beducation and will honestly try to make his bed bedder.

InTROODings . . .

By Dot

WELL, well! Those descriptions of certain gentlemen gave everyone a bad time trying to figure out who was who, but there is one more that all you women should know and that is the ATHLETE.

He's as strong as an ox and often as dumb. But brave! Plenty of bright white teeth and a ready smile. He wants a girl just like the girl who married dear old dad.

YOU ARE NO BIT of fluff. Feminine, yes, but not so fragile that you'll collapse with a bear hug. You need vim, vigor, and vitality. Come-hither looks and false eyelashes are out. Even if he hasn't much to say, learn to listen.

With Tips On Trailing Your Man, by Joan Younger, and Know Your Man, by Elizabeth Woodward, the girls of the present day should do all right, so keep on reading and we'll tell you a little about the LOUD AND LIVELY CUTUP.

This little gent is full of tricks and wisecracks, and dotes on limelight. He's the life of every party, and you won't have any trouble bringing him out of his shell—he's already out.

Just wear your brightest smile, laugh at his antics occasionally and hope that your good manners will tone him down and keep him from embarrassing you in public. One doesn't fall in love with this lad because he is too SOCIAL.

BROTHER LOVE

Have you ever known the type that loves you like a brother? Well, if you have or if you haven't, we're going to tip you off on some of his peculiarities.

You can probably talk to him about anything and everything. He'll take you—or anyone else—any place you want to go, and if you decide to stay at home instead, you'll have just as good a time. He'll tell you his secrets, and wail about his lost loves. He'll razz your new hat, and cheer you when you make social blunders, and believe it or not, he'll even run errands for your mother. Being a boy's best friend is an exalted status in life.

And then there's the young man who is three leaps ahead of you. This fellow seems to take your breath away, because apparently he has been everywhere and done everything—and the little gal is expected to keep up with his rapid pace.

The only way to keep from showing him that you're impressed by his speed is to be matter-of-fact and non-chalant about his escapades. You've been places and done things too in your day—but you don't advertise.

HUMANLY PERFECT

Ah, now here comes the HUMAN—BUT PERFECT. Occasionally you meet a boy whose line is fast and smooth, who treats you like a lady, who can dance like a million and talk to you about sophisticated things like pictures and swing. Dating him amounts to stars in your hair.

He's not a sissy—so hang on to him! It may take all the lines you know. You'll probably have to read books, devour newspapers and magazines, and think for the first time in your life. But it's worth it because you'll probably see him often.

Of course there are many other gentlemen that we haven't attempted to tell you about. There is the man of action, and the one you adore from afar. You like his looks, you see him around—but he never sees you. And your worship is in vain. What about the fellow that belongs to someone else? Well, what about him? That's enough on men for this issue at least, but there are some people who can go on and on for hours on the subject of MEN.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

BLOODY BUT UNBOWED

THE FOOTBALL SEASON . . . IN A NUTSHELL

On The Record

Of the 1939 grid wars, when the curtain fell on November 17, was a so-so entry for the Rams. Out of a nine-game schedule, the college eleven split exactly even, winning four, losing four, and tying one. The impersonal figures do not take into consideration the circumstances under which these contests were decided, and although the 50 per cent record is not a bad one, it does not do justice to what is undoubtedly the best football team in the college's history. In order to keep the books straight, The Guardsman Sports presents this after-season roundup of the Rambling Rams, 1939 edition.

From The First

Scrimmages, it was evident that the college had a team, and not a hero with ten stooges. Throughout the season, Eisan's astutely coached outfit upset applecarts (including their own a couple of times) and showed the effect of clever organization by making a superior showing in every game, win or lose. Victories, with the exception of one, were most decisive. Defeats, with the exception of one, were the result of mental and physical lapses rather than enemy superiority. The single tie was an end-of-the-season affair, and directly attributable to the breaks.

In Condensed Form

Here's the dope: 20, Placer 0 in the season's opener. Nauman skirts end for a tally, passes 49 yards to Molich for another as Mountaineers are smothered. Carignani blocks punt and recovers for final score. A slow game, marred by ragged play and penalties. 7, U.S.F. Frosh 14 as Rams, leading 7 to 0 on Nauman's 35-yard heave to Molich, throw caution to winds in final quarter, permitting Dons to capitalize on pass interception and fumble. Russo, Calavero star for Hilltoppers, gain plenty of yards but no points until Rams open the door. 6, Pasadena 7 in the Rose Bowl. And how the Rams fought. Outplaying and outcharging the Bulldogs, the locals give away touchdown on an end-zone fumble and then come back to score themselves, but the conversion is no good. Could be called a moral victory if Rams needed 'em. Johnny Gray goes over, showing power at full. 0, Cal. Frosh 14 in a shut-out. But not 14 points worth. Reds held up well against Cal. army, fumbling when near opponent's goal. Jurkovich breezed 72 yards for first Berkeley score. Then Rams folded in fourth, allowing another touchdown (on a pass) and a last minute safety. 19, Sacramento 6 and happy days again. After three straight lickings, college morale proves unaffected in a wild and woolly one. Both teams scored on blocked punts, and Gray hit paydirt again for the initial six. End Jim Molich snags Panther flat pass in final period and hauls it 40 yards to ring the bell. Rams all the way. 0, San Mateo 7 after a week's intermission. It's pitiful. Rams kick the peninsulans all over the peninsula, only to bog down inches from the goal. San Mateo has one chance in the fourth, and makes the most of it. 19, S. F. State 0! Ah! The Gator is torn to little shreds in a game that provides the season's most spectacular fireworks. After Nauman gathers first blood on a line plunge, he passes for two more touchdowns within a space of two minutes. 57 and 49-yard razzle-dazzlers to Cunningham and Molich smash State. Ram aerials at peak form for the season. Nothing to it. 6, Los Angeles C. C. 0 in a contest that finds the locals outplayed by a powerful and resourceful southern crew. Touchdown collected on beautiful pass play from Nauman to Frannie Gray. 7, Modesto 7 and so long 'till 1940. Johnny Gray hits the goal-line for the Rams, who then fumble deep in their own territory to let the Pirates even the count.

Paradox Plus

Might have been a fitting motto for the Rams, who, lacking consistency on the scoreboard, if not in general performance, hit top and bottom alternately like a crisis wheat market. This can be attributed to the inexperience of the outfit, which loses only five veterans, thus presaging a championship squad for 1940. In short, the scores recorded do not match the quality of play exhibited.

Passing Notice

Must be given the Ram aerial show, which more than once this season confounded opponents. A glance at the statistical resume contained in this roundup will give the exact figures, which are remarkable. Shovel passes, working behind fast-forming interference, gained consistently against every opponent, while the long ones have connected in a percentage well above the average. Al Nauman proved that he knows the art of pitching, as anyone who saw the State and L.A.C.C. games will avow.

In The Line

Was brains as well as brawn. For vicious, smart play on both offense and defense, Chicazola, Leong, Schoenstein and Carignani stood out all year. At the end slots, Jim Molich and Frannie Gray did their stuff with unexcelled vigor. These linemen, constituting the backbone of the team, always held the opposition at bay barring the intervention of breaks, are responsible for the Ram's record for 1939—a record that for stamina and guts has yet to be equalled.

The Yardstick

For 1939, a composite statistical analysis of all nine games, is here presented. Figures are often misleading, and the team with the edge in yardage is not always the victor. Still, here is the vest-pocket survey of the ebb and flow of Ram gridiron fortunes:

	Yds. Gained		Net	First Downs				Passes				Pass
	Scr.	Pass.	Tot.	Scr.	Pass.	Pen.	Tot.	Att.	Comp.	Inc.	Int.	Ave.
Rams	112	57	154	6	0	0	6	7	3	4	0	.430
Placer	85	63	102	6	2	0	8	14	4	9	0	.285
Rams	61	49	93	2	0	0	2	8	3	3	2	.375
U.S.F.	181	0	146	10	0	0	10	6	0	4	2	.000
Rams	83	68	98	4	3	1	8	17	8	6	3	.406
Pasadena	85	77	123	1	4	0	5	14	7	5	2	.500
Rams	60	60	99	2	2	0	4	13	8	4	1	.565
California	188	53	121	4	2	0	6	9	4	5	0	.444
Rams	158	39	172	6	1	0	7	12	6	6	0	.500
Sacramento	62	0	24	2	0	0	2	9	0	7	2	.000
Rams	161	116	276	9	5	1	15	21	11	9	1	.523
San Mateo	115	25	140	3	1	0	4	4	1	3	0	.250
Rams	108	157	247	1	4	0	5	10	6	3	1	.600
State	101	73	143	4	3	0	7	20	5	13	2	.250
Rams	37	24	61	3	1	0	4	8	6	2	0	.750
L.A.C.C.	155	51	206	6	3	0	9	23	3	17	3	.130
Rams	76	64	118	3	1	0	4	19	9	9	1	.473
Modesto	88	5	71	2	0	0	2	11	1	9	1	.091
Totals—
Rams	865	634	1318	36	17	2	55	115	60	46	9	.516
Opponents	1060	347	1076	38	15	0	53	110	25	72	12	.227

Ram Scorers:

Molich—4 TD, 3 PAT—27 pts; J. Gray—3 TD—18 pts; Nauman—2 TD—12 pts; Cunningham—1 TD, 2 PAT—8 pts; Meyers—1 TD—6 pts; Carignani—1 TD—6 pts; F. Gray—1 TD—6 pts; Molson—1 PAT—1 pt.

Coming Events Cast Shadows . . . .

And as if to substantiate the old proverb, the menacing shadow of the Ram rifleers falls boldly across the college sports calendar.

Handwriting on the wall? Perhaps. For the sharpshooters are riding high, smashing old records of long standing in their race for association honors.

Coached by Captain Fred McFarland, and starring brilliant new arrivals as well as old stand-bys, the rifleers look forward with confidence to a long, tough lineup of opponents still to be met.

In three successive starts, this semester, the team, under the captaincy of Charles North, has rung up three conclusive wins.

If the high scoring spree is maintained, claim McFarland and North, the Rams stand a good chance of placing right up there in the final ratings.

RAM GRIDDERS TIE MODESTO, 7 TO 7, IN FINAL GAME; NAUMAN PASS SETS UP SCORE

MODESTO, Nov. 17—Gaining a slight edge on the "Seals Stadium Jinx," which has seen them win all 1939 home games but drop four out of four out-of-town contests, the Rams tonight ended their gridiron season by fighting to a 7 to 7 tie with Modesto, on the Pirates' home field.

It was a case of home-team luck vs. visitor's over-confidence.

The Rams, though plugging all the time, seemed to be far from the alert bunch that mowed down the State Alligators nearly a month ago.

Although there had been numerous injuries, the Ram line looked good at times. Nevertheless, Modesto men gave the forward wall constant trouble. Guard Mel Chicazola, however, was a stand out. His sharp tackling and ferocious blocking was noticeable. He was in on almost every play.

Stopped On Ground

Al Nauman, passing sensation, was stopped cold on the ground but kept his sharp-shooting reputation intact by completing nine of his tosses for a total gain of 64 yards.

The Rams were the first to cross enemy pay dirt. It happened in the initial quarter, and from the looks of things, San Francisco rooters thought it would be a runaway.

After a couple of first quarter punt exchanges, Nauman, by far outdistancing the opposition with his high spirals, put Eisan's men with the pigskin on the Pirate 40-yard line.

Nauman on first down made a yard through center. Then the favorite Ram scoring play clicked. It was a perfectly spotted pass, Nauman to Molson, which went for 33 yards and a first down deep in enemy territory.

Gray Scores

The final six yards were eaten up by Johnny Gray's smash through left tackle . . . and up went the referee's arms. The important seventh point came from the experienced toe of Co-captain Jimmy Molich. Coach Lee Eisan immediately sent in an avalanche of substitutes to take over.

Later on, toward the final minutes of the second period, the Rams threatened dangerously. Down to the Pirate 25-yard line they went, twice, but no further. Nauman's passes were hurriedly thrown and inaccurate.

Fumble-itis, in three-fold form, doomed the San Franciscans during the second half. Taking the ball on their 20-yard mark, the Rams—via the fumble route—marched backwards.

After a second fumble, the Pirates took possession on the local's five. August Hildebrand, a tall lanky guy, took three plays to smack over for the Modesto score.

Silence dominated as the try-for-point was being made. A roar from the Pirate stands told the final story. The score became seven . . . apiece.

Modesto men played inspired ball thereafter. Coach Eisan's fatigued footballers were seemingly disheartened by that sudden onslaught.

With the aid of their opposition's third fumble, the Bucs kept the Rams pretty well bottled up for the rest of the third stanza.

Nice Kick

A beautiful 78-yard boot from the foot of Modesto's Harold Anderson set the Rams down on their own two-foot line to start the final quarter. They managed to gain back plenty of yardage in the ensuing minutes, but the objective of the Ram offense went unattained.

Modesto spent the last five minutes taking all the time in the world with the football, and there was nothing more to be done.

The gun ended the fray with the hosts in possession of the ball.

The game was played cleanly; injuries were very few; good sportsmanship was displayed throughout.

Snow Shortage Delays Ski Plans; Scout Foray Seen

Total lack of any snowfall to date seems to have doomed the college skiers to a late start in partaking of the thrilling winter sport, according to Earling Jacobsen, vice-president of the newly formed skiing group.

The club, which is composed of about 20 interested men and women students, has been planning to go en masse to snow country during the Christmas vacation, but as a result of informal meetings it was decided that a trek to the Sierras had best not be made until snow satisfactory for skiing could be obtained.

However, Jacobsen revealed, a trip to snow might be made by himself, Alden Smith, the club's faculty advisor, Bob Ogg, club president, and possibly another member of the group.

"We have several prospective locations," said Jacobsen. "The choice seems to rest between Norden, which is near Donner Pass, and Baxter, California. We'll make the trip some time during the week between Christmas and New Years.

"However, if it doesn't snow, we'll probably go up anyway, just to get the chance to see the country and make arrangements for the group. It's bound to snow sometime this winter, and we can be fairly sure of getting in some sport over some of the holidays next spring."

Police Shoot Lions Today

Members of the Police Training class will hold their initial rifle meet with a representative team from Galileo high school in the Armory at 2:30 this afternoon.

Unable to handle a rifle adequately previous to the present semester, it may well prove interesting to make notice of the results of the contest.

Instructed by Captain McFarland, whose rifle teams have made great strides, the police members stand an even chance to win the match.

Previous to this match, the Ram cops have made technical rifle handling improvements by leaps and bounds admitted McFarland.

Sad Soccer Season Concluded With Win Over Menlo; Hoists Rams From Cellar

Climaxing a season marked by the loss of key men through injuries and scholastic difficulties, Coach Tom Wilson's Ram soccerites scored a 1 to 0 win over Menlo in the final league encounter for both teams.

The victory gave the locals a second place in the junior college standings and enabled them to advance a notch from sixth to fifth place in the Northern California Intercollegiate League.

Hero of the contest was Jack O'Leary, substitute wingman, who has seen little or no action previous to the fracas with the peninsulans.

Late in the third period of play, O'Leary feinted the Menlo goalie out of position and sent through an unguarded goal with what proved to be the winning tally.

Wilson's lads were, once again, minus the services of three first string shinkickers.

George Theodus, forward, and Pete Javrosky, fullback, were ineligible because of scholastic difficulties, while "Frenchy" Schieder, brilliant halfback, was on the shelf with a leg injury.

Leading local scorer for the season was Theodus with the amazing total of four buckets.

The season in its entirety was disastrous from a local point of view in that the junior college title, usually won by the Rams, was gathered in by San Mateo.

Hugh Ryan, manager, publicity director, and water boy of the team, attributes the failure to a weak backfield defense which was pierced time and again by opposing forward walls.

Expected to field a strong outfit at the outset of the schedule, the Rams were plagued, as previously stated, by a number of major misfortunes which laid low over half of the entire team.

Unless new material is acquired, prospects for next year are exceedingly dark.

Third Win Chalked Up As Rifleers Down Independents

Ram sharpshooters found their mark last week in the Galileo Armory. Victim of the locals were the visiting members of the Independent Rifle team. This is the rifle squad's third consecutive victory.

Winning by an overwhelming score, the Ram squad gave open notice that it will not be a setup for any conference and non-conference rifle teams in the bay area.

Such men as Chuck North, team captain; George Humphrey, Al Templeton, Don Minium, Louis Davy, and Myron Pierce have given to Captain McFarland a group, now placed as leading contenders of the Golden Gate Bridge League.

After winning their first two matches with sky-high scores, the Ram rifleers eased up a bit and dropped about 10 points against the Independents. High man of the match was husky Humphrey who silently shot 186 out of a possible 200.

The Independents with a full squad of eight men could not seem to find their shooting eye. Their score was exceptionally low but they all tried hard.

Lasting one hour and twenty minutes, the match proved to be extremely uneventful. Because practically every shooting match is held in the identical manner (positions: prone, sitting, off-hand, and kneeling) there is good reason to say this.

As accidents are about nil, happening once in a coon's age, the matches can be safely watched by the public.

McFarland has said that anyone wishing to see a match in the Armory is welcome. As McFarland can be located in Powell Street study hall, those desiring to inquire about matches and practice meets might well see him.

Charles North

Rifle Captain

Basketball Near; Conlan Releases Varsity Schedule

Basketball practice will become serious business next Monday with the cutting of the squad to approximately 20 players according to Louis "Dutch" Conlan, college casaba mentor.

During the past week, a group of from 40 to 50 candidates tried out for the team and displayed their talents before the watchful eye of Conlan who must develop a squad composed entirely of new men.

Wilson's squad will be limited this year to freshmen for the first time in the history of the college in an experiment expected to disclose whether or not jayvee training is sufficient for inexperienced hoop artists.

First game on the varsity schedule will be played on December 15 in the Galileo gymnasium against the strong Domestic Laundry team, composed of former college stars.

The varsity schedule follows:

January
4, 5, 6—J. C. tourney ... Modesto
8—California (2nds) ... Berkeley
11—S. F. State ... Kezar
12—S. F. State ... Kezar
16—Athens Club ... Athens
19—Italian Athletic Club ... Galileo
26—Menlo ... Menlo
27—Salinas ... Salinas

February
2—Placer ... Placer
3—Yuba ... Yuba
9—Santa Rosa ... Kezar
10—Marin ... Kezar
13—Marin ... Marin
16—Sacramento ... Sacramento
20—Modesto ... Modesto

March
1—Sacramento ... Kezar
2—Modesto ... Kezar
8—San Mateo ... Kezar
9—San Mateo ... San Mateo

RAMettes. . . .

by Lu Antonicelli

Another week to go, and then—"comes a rainstorm—comes a snowstorm"—comes whatever—COMES TOURNEY WEEK!

Ever since the beginning of the semester WAA officials with Bertha Keiler, association adviser, have been working steadily to make the current Tourney Week competitions and banquet bigger and better. Now as the time draws near, the entire group has whipped into a flurry of enthusiasm, and hard work, and we do mean work!

High-lighting the week of events will be the previously announced deviation from tradition—the Mother-Daughter banquet, on December 13. Price will be 50 cents, will include dinner at the New Tivoli restaurant, and varied entertainment.

• • •

SOME MORE STREAMLINING

WAA will beat everyone to the punch this year when the Association will issue a handbook with the new spring program all worked out. We don't like to boast, but WE THINK (we do, occasionally, you know), that it's a honey of an idea.

• • •

The Tourney WEEK sked as it appears in the program reads as follows:

December 6, 3:30 p.m.—Archery novelty shoot at Palace of Fine Arts.
December 7, 6:30 p.m.—Rifle shoot at Galileo Armory.
December 7, 3:30 p.m.—Fencing bouts at Galileo Gym.
December 8, 2:30 p.m.—Badminton and Table Tennis at Galileo Gym.
December 8, 7:30 p.m.—Horse Show at San Francisco Riding Academy.
December 9, 9:30 a.m.—Tennis finals at Palace of Fine Arts.
December 9, 5:00 p.m.—Ice Skating Club Carnival at Winterland.
December 9, 10:00 a.m.—Rifle shoot at Galileo Armory.
December 11, 3:15 p.m.—Volleyball at Galileo Gym.
December 12, 11:15 a.m.—Hockey at Funston Field.
December 12, 12:30 p.m.—Open swim and Water games at Y.W.C.A. pool.
December 13, 12:15 p.m.—Golf-putting finals at Funston Field.

And there you have it. Incidentally, all the sporting events are open to the general public, men, women, and faculty. So, fellows, why not go out and see your favorite girl-friend exhibit her prowess in the competitions.

LITTLE NOTES OF BIG IMPORTANCE:

Co-sponsor of the stupendous, exciting sequel to the Ice Follies (the Ice Skating Club Carnival, to you), is the WAA. The association has invited Santa Rosa to compete in the contests against the locals. Is that fair to the Santa Rosans, we ask you—So, they've revised the WAA constitution have they, and all it needs is the approval of club members to become effective? Well, all we can say, is that the WAA members you saw drooping around school Monday weren't that way from a hearty Thanksgiving but from working all day Saturday to straighten out the tangled mess that was the former constitution. Nice going! . . . Hockey-ites have started intra-mural competitions (as have most of the other clubs). Their first game, Reds against Whites, ended in a one to nothing score with the Reds taking the honor.

RAMblings. . . .

by Ray Berns

Modesto short story—The Rams came, the Rams saw, and————.
Modesto echoings—Show me the way to go home,————.
Modesto memories————.

Football season was here, was here, was here, but is gone, is gone, is finished. And so it is that we bid adieu to what was, in our estimation, the greatest gridiron gang ever to don the red and white of San Francisco.

MORALE WAS HIGH

Make no mistake, this year's team was no wonder club. It won four, lost four, and tied one for a .500 batting average. What impressed us most, however, was the morale of the outfit. Local scriveners are blabbing about the fine morale over at California, but the spirit was no finer than that displayed by the local lads throughout the season.

In the face of three undeserved, heart-breaking defeats at the outset of the year, Lee Eisan's football babies came roaring back to garner three wins and a tie out of the last five contests.

SIX COME BACK

Perhaps the most amazing fact is that the majority of the lads are back next year. Only five out of this year's entire outfit will leave.

Ends Jimmy Molich and Franny Gray, tackles Bob Schoenstein and Adrian Carignani, and Mel Chickazola, guard, are those who will depart.

The wings will be taken care of by second team members Jim Molina and Jim Hagen, with George Meyers, Harding Leong, and Clark Johnson all returning to take up where the other three lads left off.

It will be in the backfield, of course, that Eisan will be superbly fortified. All of this year's able-bodied backfield speedsters will return, and, with a year of junior college competition under their belts, should be the most devastating group of grass cutters ever to parade on a junior college gridiron.

ALL-STAR LINE-UP

It has been the custom with us in the past to clutter up this column with all-star teams of some type. We are going to forego that procedure this year, however, not because we wish to save space, but because there is no need for naming one.

When a team runs through a conference as the Rams did, there's only one thing to do, and so, without further ado, we name the entire local squad as our all-star team.

Although we have practically closed the subject, and have tried to do homage to all by not singling out individuals, there sticks in our mind the exploits of that swell passing combine, Al Nauman to Jimmy Molich.

SOMETHIN' TO YELL ABOUT

For the past six or seven weeks supporters of California's Golden Bears didn't have much to cheer about when the name was flashed on the screen during the Saturday night community singing sessions at the Fox Theater. It certainly gladdened our naturally sympathetic hearts, therefore, when California beat Stanford last Saturday and gave their followers something to cheer about. The lads and lassies took a new lease on life and gave vent to yells that they had been suppressing for weeks.

Presidential Notes

By ELMER HUBACHER

IN SETTING down the essential factors necessary for a winning football team, the quality of team spirit would certainly be first. This one basic ingredient means the difference between a poor team and a great one.

We had the best team in the league. We should, and in our estimation, would have won the conference if the members of the student body had displayed just a pinch of this so-called "Spirit" when we met San Mateo.

However, there is no use crying over spilt milk. To the members of the Ram eleven for '39 we're proud of you—NICE GOING.

• • •

A few weeks ago, because we felt a more democratic form of student government was possible, we offered to you students the idea of a "commission committee." We presented a rough draft of the proposed committee with the idea that it might stimulate some thought on the part of some individuals.

Along this same vein a special committee was appointed in the Ex-Council to look into this matter. A thorough investigation was made by this special committee, which reported back and recommended that we dispense with the idea for the present. The committee felt there was no definite need for its creation this semester, and that the student elections were not in the hands of a minority. The Ex-Council voted to accept these recommendations as set down.

• • •

We feel as do others, that there is something definitely lacking in our student government program. This is particularly noticeable in our Ex-Council meetings. We continually have to appoint special committees for this, and special committees for that. There are many large as well as small problems around and about our college, that need the attention of the college. This group could do many things such as, help entering frosh, regulating student elections, assisting at rallies, conducting polls of student opinion, and raising money. A typical job for an organization such as this, would have been the handling of the junior college bond campaign.

We feel the formation of the Welfare Council would solve the problem. Such a council would function thusly: the president of the student body would appoint a chairman to the group, the other members, about 10, would be appointed upon the recommendation of the chairman from a group of volunteers. The members selected should have these two qualities, initiative and resourcefulness.

The duties of the group would fall into three categories: First, the investigation of possible solution to problems affecting the welfare of the college. Second, to initiate investigation of their own accord, into hitherto unrecognized problems. Third, to use their organization and ability as a means to conduct special drives and campaigns undertaken by the college.

The council would act strictly in an advisory manner. It would have no administrative power, but would, as a result of investigation, turn over recommendations to the Ex-Council as to what action should be taken.

Under this system we are improving and fulfilling the primary aim of a democratic student government.

• • •

It is not too early to start thinking about next semester's student officers. Remember this, the college will be in the hands of those students whom you select to represent you. Therefore, choose candidates you will be proud of. We feel an oft-quoted maxim would well apply here—"A word to the wise is sufficient."

Art Students To Show Water Colors Of Local Scenes

Students of the college art classes are now preparing a group of water colors for exhibition in the near future at one of the down-town department stores, according to Richard Allman, college art instructor.

The paintings will consist largely of outdoor San Francisco scenes.

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .

Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.

509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600

Remington Rand, Inc.

Faculty Meets With Paint Men; Discuss New Course

Considered wholly successful by all parties concerned was the dinner held in the college cafeteria on the 17th of last month at which representatives of Western paint, lacquer, and varnish industries met with faculty members to discuss the formation of a new course in paint technology soon to be offered by the college.

Those business men present included leading officials of the Golden Gate Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, which is sponsoring the new course, and a number of prominent technical experts from the staffs of the largest paint manufacturers in the West.

President Archibald J. Cloud, also present at the dinner, commented on the successful quality of the meeting.

"We even had difficulty in ending the meeting, the men were so interested in the discussion," remarked President Cloud.

Walter D. Forbes emphasized the desire of the college to be of service to the community by means of the many educational projects and the determination of the faculty to do everything in its power to train its students in those fields which offer satisfactory placement after graduation.

For the past six months, Forbes has been acting as a coordinator in bringing together various business men who would be able to aid the college in organizing the paint course.

Expected to be opened to students next semester, the course will deal with the technical and manufacturing aspects of the paint industry.

Alice Cooper To Preside At National Council Discussion In Los Angeles

Los Angeles City College will be the setting for a convention of the National Council of Teachers of English in a meeting to be held this December. Dr. Alice C. Cooper, instructor of the college, will preside over one of the discussions, whose subject is The Classics Have a Place in Life.

"Notice should be paid to the wording of this topic," said Dr. Cooper. "We do not ask if the classics are important in these modern times; we state that they are."

Dr. Cooper is known by the students of the college and by fellow faculty members as a lover of the classics.

Speakers at the convention will include Dr. Mildred Struble, University of Southern California; Professor Harden Craig, Stanford University, and Dr. Howard Eggleson, California Institute of Technology.

Free Vacation Offered Two Hotel Division Students

Two members of the college Hotel and Restaurant division are going on a free one-week vacation during the Easter holidays.

This fact was revealed by Hotel Division heads last week as it became known that the division was visited by two prominent Los Angeles hotel managers who made the generous offer.

The persons who inspected the department were P. G. Morris, manager of the Hotel Clark in Los Angeles, and his assistant.

Two students will be selected from the Hotel Division, probably by Coordinator J. Graham Sullivan to make the trip and reside at the Hotel Clark during their stay.

Debate With USF Postponed; 'Lucky' Indicates Luckmann

Debate scheduled between this college and the University of San Francisco freshmen has been indefinitely postponed, announced Lloyd D. Luckmann, debate coach, yesterday.

The debate was to have been this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

"Postponement seems to favor the college to a certain degree, because two of our veteran debaters, Rena Corbett and Barbara Smith, will be eligible to debate against the Dons when the affair occurs," Luckmann said.

Campus Club Crier

● Army-Navy . . . Tour of Post, and plane inspection at Hamilton Field, weenie roast on Mt. Tamalpais, Sunday, December 3 at 9 a.m.

● Astronomy . . . Business and social meeting December 4, 7:30 p.m., in the Galileo Observatory.

● Beta Phi . . . Football game with the Forestry Fraternity in a six-man touch-touchdown game, December 3 in the Marina at 1:30 o'clock.

● Beta Tau . . . Business meeting December 12 at 8 p.m. Place to be posted on the Powell Street bulletin board.

● Block SF . . . Initiation at Powell Street in the morning and Galileo in the afternoon, December 13. Banquet at 6:30 at the Rex Restaurant.

● Tri-Epsilon . . . Business meeting December 4, 8 p.m., at the Parkwood Cafe, 21st and Irving.

● Forestry . . . Social meeting December 8, 7:30 p.m., 319 Bayby Avenue. Informal dance, December 16, 9:30 p.m., at the Merritt Hotel, Oakland.

● Forum . . . Panel discussion on What is the true function of a University? December 5, 8 p.m., Place to be posted on the bulletin board.

● Lambda Chi . . . Barn dance, December 14 at Sigmund Stern Grove, 19th Avenue and Sloat Boulevard, 2:30 p.m.

● Music . . . Reception of new members and business meeting, December 8, 693 Spruce Street, Oakland.

● Newspaper . . . Business meeting and Christmas tree party, December 18, 8 p.m., at St. Mary's Cathedral.

● Omicron Phi Pi . . . Meeting and dance, reunion with chapters in other universities, December 8, 8 p.m., at 295 Urbano.

● Peace Society . . . Discuss rally, December 4. Place to be posted on the bulletin board.

● Phi Beta Rho . . . Informal dance, December 2, 8 p.m., at the Rod and Gun Club.

● Phys. Ed. Rec. Maj. . . . Watch bulletin board for announcement.

● Pi Mu Gamma . . . Banquet December 2, at the Hot-n-Tot Club.

● Phi Alpha Omega . . . Mothers and Sons night, 8 p.m., at the Hot-n-Tot Club, date to be posted on the bulletin board.

● W.S.S. . . . Business meeting, December 4, 7:30 p.m., at 358 Sutter Street.

● Alpha Gamma Sigma . . . Pins are available to those members who desire them.

● Alpha Delta Epsilon . . . Costume ball some time after Christmas, in the Army-Navy Club at the Fairmont Hotel. The dance will be open to members only.

● Nu Epsilon Sigma . . . Business and educational meeting, December 6, 7:30 p.m. Watch the bulletin board for the place. This is a new society, membership open to all pre-nursing students. Faculty sponsor is Manfred Mueller.

● Hotel & Restaurant Society . . . Discussion December 5. Speaker, Kent Morriss, catering manager of Pan-American Airways.

Forum Club To Discuss Problems Of University

To discuss The True Function of a University, the Forum Club will hold its next meeting Tuesday evening, December 5, at 2685 Union Street.

Hostess for the evening will be Dorothy Mercer, one of the sponsors of the organization, who has spent the past year studying educational conditions in Europe.

Instead of the usual debate before general discussion, the club has decided to hold a panel discussion featuring six speakers. They will briefly discuss the different aspects of the university topic.

Scheduled to speak are Carol Pickering, Ruth Reabach, Sol Lipitz, James Shoth, Paula Levick and Audrey Freilson.

"Anyone interested is welcome to attend and express his ideas and opinions on the subject," announced Miss Pickering, chairman.

Unhappy Hero . . .

By SELMA ANN VAWTER

... Editor's Note: The Guardsman herewith presents a series of interesting attempts at literature by your fellow students through the cooperation of Edward Sandys, college English instructor. If they amuse, if they reveal a sympathetic personality, they serve their purpose. There are possibilities in a new short story favorite, a Saroyan perhaps, may be discovered. Short stories will be signed, autobiographist will be published anonymously.

"I've got to snap out of it," Bruce thought. "If I don't get hold of myself, I'll soon have a beautiful case of the screaming-meanies." Looking around the room, he mused, "What more can one ask?" There wasn't anything in the way of material possessions that he could think of at the moment that he wanted. "And that's just the trouble," he told himself, "I'll lose all of my ambition sitting around like this."

Yet, Bruce was unhappy. Nothing could ever replace Judy. He could easily recall every feature of her face. Any minute, he half expected to look up and see her coming into the room. That was what was the outstanding quality of Judy. Her poise, her graciousness. Such mature qualities were unusual in a creature of her age.

His brooding eyes swept the room. How bare it all seemed without Judy's gaiety to light it! And there on the mantel lay that useless medal; which was his reward.

The brilliant summer sun glinted through the window-panes, and outside the bay lay unruffled in its whole sweep out to sea. Yep, it sure looks peaceful! Just watching it soothes you. That's just it . . . it takes you by surprise. You don't realize how baleful it really is, until it's too late. It all happened so swiftly. He had been sitting right here that miserable afternoon. Seeing Jim walking with Judy down the path to the boat, he had run out of the house to go with them. But when he had bolted out of the door and hailed him, he had been told to go back.

"I'm sorry," Jim said firmly, "You sneaked out of the house last night after I'd told you that you couldn't leave the premises. Well, you must be punished for that, and I guess this will do all right for your penance."

That was the trouble with Jim; always acting paternal. That "master-of-the-house" stuff he always pulled was a rather childish outlook when you came right down to it. Maybe things would have been different if Jim had forgotten about it then, and allowed Bruce to go with them. But instead, he was left to moon on the pier; left to watch them sail out on the bay. All the notice he got was a gay wave from Jim, as he tillered the boat into the channel. Bruce then took to watching the clouds scudding across the bright sky, and to dreaming traitorous and vengeful thoughts. Would running away from home be a positive way to impress his importance upon them?

When next he looked, he couldn't see the sloop for a minute. They couldn't have rounded the point yet! Where was that proud sail? Oh! By the five-headed Cerebus, they've capsized! Now, Bruce was in the water, swimming hysterically toward them . . . toward that miserable hull that wallowed drunkenly. Racing against time and heavy currents was nothing new to Bruce. He had done this many times. But now, he was fighting another enemy . . . Death. He must save them; but how could he, one creature, tow both Jim and Judy ashore. It had never been done before. The odds were a hundred-to-one against him, but he must take that chance.

By the time he reached them, Judy was nowhere in sight; but there was Jim, clutching at the sleek hull and wailing wildly for Judy. Spotting Bruce churning doggedly toward him, Jim cried, "My arm . . . I can't move it! And I can't see Judy!"

Neither could Bruce, and there was no time to search for her. Jim had to be pulled to shore before his arm, which was probably broken, made him faint. Taking hold of Jim's collar, Bruce slowly and carefully towed him, to the pier; all the while, trying to still his fears for Judy. Nobody could have saved Judy, they whispered afterwards. The boom had knocked her cold. She would never know what happened.

They had made quite a fuss over him for saving Jim. Then came the medal. But what good would that do? It couldn't bring her back. How ironical the inscription on it must sound. He hadn't read it, but he knew what it said. What those things always said.

And that other inscription; the one over Judy's grave. How meager it was! How foolish men were to attempt to epitomize all the riot of emotion brought on by death in futile words! Two pitifully ineffectual bits of engraving, one in metal, the other in stone, were all that Bruce had to remind him of Judy the fair.

FOR HEROISM (it read)
TO ROBERT THE BRUCE
German Shepherd
WHO SAVED HIS MASTER, JIM O'CONNELL FROM DEATH BY DROWNING

. . . and . . .

Requiescit in pace
JUDITH, of the HOUSE of BRUCE
German Shepherd
April, 1935 . . . July, 1939

Alpha Gamma Sigma Life Members May Obtain Honor Pins At Galileo

Life members of the Alpha Gamma Sigma, junior college scholastic fraternity, may call for their pins at the bank at Galileo, according to Dr. Alice C. Cooper.

Dr. Cooper, English instructor at the college and a member of the National Council of Teachers of English, urges that all students eligible for membership in this group apply either to her or Mary Jane Learnard in the registrar's office.

Eligibility as a temporary member is obtained by the students who make 30 grade points an average of physical education in a semester. It is necessary to sustain this average to remain a member. Permanent membership requires three semesters of temporary membership and an average of 2.3 grade points on 60 units of work.

Registrars To Meet Soon On California Campus

Registrars and counselors from Northern California will meet a week from this Saturday, December 9, in their fall conference at the University of California. This conference is held by the Northern California Guidance Association, of which J. Paul Mohr, registrar here, is vice-president. One of the subjects of discussion will be "The responsibility of the counselor to the home and the community." The convention will be held at the Life Science Building on the Berkeley campus.

BOLLER SKATING
BURKE ROLLA-WAY
2350 Geary Blvd. (near Baker)
Phone FIllmore 0664
SPECIAL PRICES
TO PRIVATE PARTIES

See us for Special Bargains

New Royal Portables with carrying cases, standard keyboards with back spacers and every typing facility.

Manufacturing price — $44.50
OUR PRICE $33.50
Easy Payments—"Trade Ins" Accepted

San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. HASTINGS
591 MARKET ST. SUTTER 4734

LUNCH?—

5c

in your cafeteria at Galileo buys

1/3 of a quart of milk
or any one of the following items

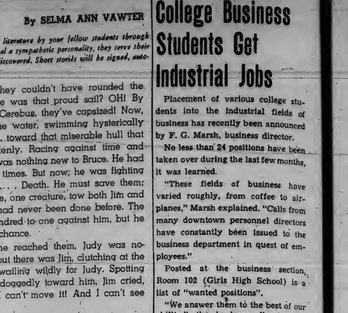
fruit juice, sandwich, soup, hot dog, hamburger, salad, dessert

Election Of CAB Officers Set For December 14

Election of officers of the Club Advisory Board will take place December 14 at Powell Street, group leaders said this week.

Nominations of candidates were held at the last board meeting, and members of the board were asked to take into consideration the possible officers for next semester, and report to the next meeting to vote.



"There are only a few more meetings left this semester, and the attendance of the representatives is needed to make the election of next semester's officers a success," warned Harold Hoffman, board president.

Women Students Will Hold Tea Dansant In January

Next Associated Women Students' affair will be held the first week of January, revealed Muriel Nolan, AWS president.

"This will be a tea dansant in honor of the High Sophomore class, but everyone in the college is cordially invited," Miss Nolan said.

ROOS

ZELAN TREATED
All-Sports Jacket
$5.95
FOR THE CAMPUS!
FOR THE SNOW!
FOR ANYWHERE
(Barring formal occasions)
ZELAN IS WATER REPELLENT
Roos Bros
MARKET AT STOCKTON

College Business Students Get Industrial Jobs

Placement of various college students into the industrial fields of business has recently been announced by F. G. Marsh, business director.

No less than 24 positions have been taken over during the last few months, it was learned.

"These fields of business have varied roughly, from coffee to airplanes," Marsh explained. "Calls from many downtown personnel directors have constantly been issued to the business department in quest of employees."

Posted at the business section, Room 102 (Girls High School) is a list of "wanted positions".

"We answer them to the best of our ability," the business director remarked.

Announcement of the following positions recently obtained by business students were made by the department.

Success loomed optimistically for ex-business student Mary Beard, who having taken over the position of selling-clerk in the Ranleigh Shop at 1. Magnin & Co., won first prize for high sales in a recent sales contest.

Others placed in full time positions now, are George Gaedtke, San Francisco Playground Director; Emogene DuBose, stock and selling at Hale Brothers; June Dunnigan, Maryland Casualty Co.; Lily Meyer, Pacific Gas & Electric Co.; Virginia Loeb, Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co.; Leah Bloom, American Utilities Co.; Delores Listin, East Bay Municipal District; Virginia Howell, Pan-American Airways; Martha Tahja, Hills Bros. Coffee Co.; Juanita Vickery, San Francisco Boy's Club; Ruth Selby, selling blouses in Livingston Bros.

In Ohlo State University students have been fined $4700 in the last four years. If the police can get it, they're better than most of us poor humans.

Lobell's Recreation
341 STOCKTON
(Near Sutter)
Table Tennis - Archery - Games
Fountain Lunch

Radio Broadcasting Course May Be Included In College Curriculum Next Semester

Possibility of next semester's college curriculum including a five-unit course in radio broadcasting with three hours weekly devoted to class work in the KSFO studios at the Palace Hotel has been voiced by Marie Weller, college radio instructor.

Miss Weller explained that the course would probably come under the speech department and would deal with all types of problems facing radio producers. In addition to three hours of work in the KSFO studios there will be two hours of work on the college campus and students will be taught program production with emphasis on actual writing, broadcasting, cutting, timing, balance and casting.

Students will not only be given the Columbia Broadcasting System studios as a workshop, but will have the opportunity to broadcast from the station on Saturday mornings and at other times when the station log permits.

Dramatics, sports, music, news commentaries and many other types of programs will be produced, according to Miss Weller.

Entrance in the course will be by permission of the instructor and the class will be limited to 15 or 20 stu-

(Continued on page 4, column 1)

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Out Of Many, One At Balboa
Park In 1940

Vol. IX FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1939 No. 13

Women's Activities

Tourney Week Close Matches AMS; Mother-Daughter Dinner Planned

By LUCRETIA ANTONICELLI

Striking a new note in being "different," the local women athletes will climax their semi-annual Tourney Week activities with a Mother-Daughter banquet Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

A definite innovation, the banquet, which was formerly held in the Galileo cafeteria at noon, will take place at the new Tivoli Restaurant, 1438 Grant Avenue.

Tickets are being sold by the varsity WAA members for 50 cents a person.

Featured will be the presentation of block awards to outstanding women athletes. The first awards will be given by Lucille Jacke, WAA president, and the highest available award, the white blazer, will be presented by Bertha Keller, association adviser.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Ruth Adams, youthful member of the Lowell High School faculty. Miss Adams, an ardent sports enthusiast, will present a short talk on "Sports Yesterday and Today."

Entertainment in the form of duets by Barbara Smith and her mother, and Priscilla Finely and her mother, in addition to individual dances by the folk dancing class and the tap dancing class, under the direction of Laurine Bergin, dance instructor, will highlight the evening.

As special guests, the Women's Athletic Association has invited Dean and Mrs. Browne, Margaret Dougherty, Dr. Alice Potter, Captain and Mrs. Fred McFarland, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams.

For those whose mothers are unable to attend, foster mothers have been adopted. Bertha Keller, WAA adviser, will have as her adopted daughters pro tem, June and Irene Schunicht; Verrel Faber will adopt Polly Trenk, and Laurine Bergin will foster Marion Dickie.

SWEETHEART CONTEST SETS PACE FOR SOPHOMORE WEEK NEXT JANUARY

With the college sweetheart contest as its main attraction, a tentative program has been set for Sophomore Week running from Tuesday, January 2 through Friday, January 5, revealed Bill O'Neill, high soph prexy.

The sweetheart contest, which, last semester, was limited to members of the sophomore class, is open to any woman of the college.

Two organizations, Phi Beta Rho and Alpha Phi Omega, have already declared their intentions of entering Dolores Dixon and Roby Klisto, respectively. Muriel Grenelle, Associated Students' secretary, has also signified her intentions of entering.

Entries may be submitted to O'Neill, Wilton Lutz, Adele Kuhn, or Ray Berns and must be in before 3:30 p.m., Thursday, December 14.

Ballots will be distributed to students as they enter the Galileo Auditorium on Wednesday, January 3, for the first event on the week's program, the nomination assembly which will present next semester's prospective student officers.

Immediately after the assembly, the committee in charge of Sophomore Week will meet, count the votes and determine the college sweetheart.

On Thursday, the winner will be presented to the students at the AWS tea dansant.

"Sophomore Week will be rounded out on Friday evening with the holding of the semi-annual Soph Formal. The location and orchestra have not been selected as yet, but the announcements will be made in a forthcoming issue of The Guardsman," concluded O'Neill.

AWS To Honor High Soph Class At Tea Dansant

Associated Women Students will honor the High Sophomore class with a tea dansant, January 4, from four until six o'clock at the Century Club, according to Muriel Nolan, AWS president. The current tea dansant was decided upon because of repeated requests for more functions of this type.

"Admission will be the usual student body card a couple," Miss Nolan said.

Although an orchestra has not yet been secured, other arrangements and plans are rapidly being completed.

This will be the third tea dansant to be sponsored by the women's organization. The idea was started during the Fall 1938 semester and the succeeding dansants have attracted a large percentage of the college men and women.

Ex. Board

Council Considers Welfare Group; Award Plan Held

With the end of the semester approaching rapidly, the executive council has been concentrating its efforts on winding up unfinished business.

A special committee composed of Frank Verducci, Alden Thorogood, Al Williams, Harold Hoffman, and Associated Students' President Elmer Hubacher, has been appointed to make an outline of organization for

All students of the college desirous of running for student body or student organizational office are warned that nomination petitions must be submitted on or before Friday, December 15.

Quoting from article IV, sections 2 and 3 of the Associated Students Constitution, the following regulations cover nominations procedure:

"In order to be nominated, candidates must present a petition signed by no less than 75 members of the association.

"A student must be enrolled for a minimum of 12 units and must have maintained a "C" average in all work during the semester in which he is a candidate."

Petitions may be secured from the office of Dean Edwin C. Browne today and during the coming week.

the proposed Welfare Council. The report of this committee is expected to be ready for presentation to the executive council by January 2, the date of the council's first meeting next year.

It is the measure as outlined receives the approval of the council at that time, it will probably be presented to the student body in the form of a constitutional amendment at the nominations rally on the following day, January 3, Hubacher revealed.

Further action on the question of a yearly "President's Award" to the outstanding man and woman student of the college was delayed in view of a letter received by President Cloud from the Board of Education. In the letter it was expressed that the board did not feel that sufficient details of the scheme had been brought to its attention, and requested further information.

By direction of President Hubacher, the secretary was instructed to write a letter to the board embodying the required data, and action relative to the award will be suspended until final approval is granted.

Social Organizations' Dance Cancelled; No Funds

Because sufficient funds could not be secured, representatives of the college Restricted Social Organizations have been compelled to cancel the dance to have been held December 16.

At a recent meeting held at the home of Muriel Nolan, member of the college, it was found that anticipated funds were not available and that nothing could be done. Miss Nolan said that funds already collected would shortly be returned.

Everybody Skate!

Women's Athletic Association members cooperate with the Ice Skating Club to sponsor a carnival at Winterland tomorrow evening. Tickets are now available.

College Ice Follies Loom Success; Hart, Galbraith Lead Exhibition

That the ice skating exhibition and carnival being held tomorrow evening at Winterland under the joint auspices of the college Ice Skating Club, and the Women's Athletic Association will be a huge success was predicted by Joseph E. Williams, faculty adviser to the skaters.

The warm response so far shown to the undertaking had been so encouraging as to justify such an opinion, Williams said.

Scheduled to start at 5:15 p.m., the show will star Bill Hart and Murray Galbraith, students of the college and members of the San Francisco Figure Skating Club. Also featured are such accomplished skaters as John McAtee, Fred Quandt and Frank Dennison. Feminine figure skaters include Dorothy and Lucille Jacke, Marion Dickie and Phyllis Simmons.

Free Skating

The exhibition proper, is slated to last some 40 minutes, and will be followed by an hour and a half of free skating open to the general public.

Tickets entitling the holder to view the exhibition and to participate in the public skating period are but 50 cents. This price includes rental of skates. For those who wish only to vie w the exhibitions, 25 cent tickets are available. Both types of tickets can be obtained from Tom O'Neill at the college Powell Street Extension Office, the Powell Street Book Store, or from those in charge of the Galilee Bank.

Varied Program

The Winterland Ice Skating Rink is centrally located and within easy reach from any part of the city. The "1," "2," "A," "22" and "B" cars will take one directly to the rink.

The complete program follows:

1. Fourteen Step
   Lucille Jacke, Marion Dickie
2. Free Style Exhibit
   William Hart
3. Solo Event
   John McAtee
4. Comedy Act
   Fred Quandt, Frank Dennison
5. School Figures
   Phyllis Simmons, Dorothy Jacke
6. Free Style Exhibit
   Murray Galbraith
7. Couples Contest
8. Men's Race
9. Everybody Skate

College May Be Renamed As Request Goes To Board

A resolution to change this institution's name to San Francisco City College will be acted upon by the Board of Education in their regular meeting next Tuesday.

The plan, originating with The Guardsman and the college Faculty Association, and endorsed by President A. J. Cloud and Joseph P. Nourse, Superintendent of Schools, is being developed in line with the college expansion program keynoted by the construction of the Balboa Park campus.

Commenting on the move, Lloyd D. Luckmann, Faculty Association president, expressed approval of the proposed new name.

Luckman said, "The substitution of City College for the present name would undoubtedly give a clearer identity to the institution as a college."

Dean Browne Urges Banquet Attendance

Dean Edwin C. Browne recently urged that, "It is very desirable that there be a large attendance at the coming Father-Son Night as it is hoped that this is the beginning of a tradition which will open the way for many new opportunities and accomplishments.

"It is to be hoped that all the men of the faculty will be able to attend and sponsor some college student whose father is not able to be present."

He also said, "All candidates for student body offices who have not consulted either my office or President Elmer Hubacher about the qualifications of their respective offices should do so as soon as possible as the deadline for candidates' petitions is next week."

Reporter Inspects First Floor Plan Of New Building; Notes Advantages

By LEN GROSS

Having nicely polished off the basement floor of the new college building it is only appropriate that we ascend the broad main staircase and inspect the first floor of the Balboa Park edifice.

Composed mostly of classrooms and administration offices, the floor features quarters for the Associated Student officers and a Publications division for reporters and editors of The Guardsman.

Science Lecture Rooms

The extreme ends of the long building contain science lecture rooms, stepped to give the appearance of a theater.

Next to the lecture room at the extreme left end of the hall are the offices of the Associated Students. This announcement will no doubt serve to provide an incentive for persons to run for student office in the future.

Traveling on down the hall we pass a stairway, Home Economics laboratories, and classrooms. On the other side of the main entrance is the office of President A. J. Cloud, Dean Edwin C. Browne, and Registrar J. Paul Mohr. On the other side of the chief administrative offices are more classrooms, a stairway and next to the extreme right lecture room is the office of the Publications department where hectic reporters will pound their typewriters furiously in an attempt to make the deadline.

College Broadcasting Station

Going down the right wing of the floor we find classrooms and a small radio broadcasting room. Lining the other side of the hall are some faculty offices, the center stairway, and more faculty offices. Next door is a physics classroom, and around the corner from the darkroom is a physics laboratory.

Next in line are sewing and art rooms, more faculty offices and the extreme right wing of the building is taken up entirely with classrooms.

Thus we have the first floor of the new campus. Further issues of The Guardsman will deal with the remaining floors and the two gymnasiums.

Carols Highlight Choir Program Tuesday

Pictured above are some of the college students who will sing for the Christmas party to be held on December 12. Standing—from left to right are: Anita Welt, Betty Patterson, Patricia Keefer, Dorothy Mills, and Jeannette Livingstone.

In collaboration with the Men's Chorus, the A Capella Choir will give a performance on December 12 at 3:30 o'clock in the Galileo Auditorium. Friends and parents of students are invited to attend this Christmas program. Well known music critics in San Francisco will also be guests of the choir.

Among the numbers to be sung by the choir will be Bach's Gloria in Excelsis Deo, Glory to God in the Highest, Kapylow's Heavenly Light, and I Dream of Jeanne by Stephen Foster.

"The Choir is in excellent condition," said Bob Powles, choir manager. "We have sung for the Kiwanis and Lions Clubs recently and received heart-warming congratulations from our audiences."

The performance on next Tuesday will be the first time the choir has sung a Christmas program for three years, and the first time it has sung for the students of this college in more than a year.

Men's Activities

AMS Banquet For Fathers Nears; Program Details Set

Pop and me are going to eat!

With that slogan as the theme, the Associated Men Students, under the leadership of Adviser Joe Amori and Lee Scarlett, AMS prexy, will present Father-Son Night at the Scottish Rite Auditorium, Sutter and Van Ness, next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock.

It will mark the initial attempt on the part of the AMS to present an activity of this sort. Purpose of the event according to Amori is to bring a closer relationship and understanding between the father, the son, and the college.

Having worked out an interesting program, Amori and Scarlett have now placed tickets on sale for the affair. According to latest reports, sales are being made as expected.

Cloud to Speak

The program will begin with a special greeting to be given by President Archibald J. Cloud. A dinner prepared by the college Hotel-Restaurant Division will be served.

Following the serving of the meal, a panel discussion on the subject of father-son relations, including economic, educational and guiding aspects will be held. To speak in this discussion will be both honorary visitors and former student members of the college.

Representing distinguished men in the panel discussion will be Henry Grant, director of the Family Relations Center, San Francisco; Reverend Earle Smith, member of the Governor's Committee for Investigation of the State Penal Institutions, and Dean Charles S. Morris, president of San Mateo Junior College.

Former students who have been selected as speakers are Eugene Blumenthal, former Student Association prexy here; Howard Cloud, son of Major Cloud, United States Army. Third student speaker was unnamed by Amori.

Al Williams Chairman

Allen Williams, former AMS head, ex-yell leader and head of the college judicial committee will act as chairman of the panel.

Discussion of college vocational courses and their relation to present industry wants will be made by Graham Sullivan, head of the Hotel-Restaurant Division. Alma E. Roth, president of the San Francisco Employer's Association will talk about what industry today desires from college students.

Student problems as seen through the eyes of Dean Edwin C. Browne, will be discussed briefly.

Kendo Featured

Recreation will be headed by the popular Japanese sport, Kendo. Also expected in the line of entertainment at the banquet, announced Joe Amori, is music by Jack Gardiner's orchestra, a performance by a magician, and

(Continued on page 4, column 3)

Alpha Gamma Sigma Head To Attend Pasadena Meet

Representing the college in the semi-annual honor society conference in Pasadena will be Alice C. Cooper, faculty adviser of the Alpha Gamma Sigma organization. Scheduled for a two-day conference during the Christmas vacation, 32 advisers of the colleges in California will discuss plans for their organizations during the coming semester.

Scholarships, which amount to $4,000, for members of the honor societies will be arranged, and plans for a location for next spring's conference will be discussed, said Miss Cooper.

Recalling the interesting experiences of the college's playing host on Treasure Island to the 32 colleges during April of this year, Miss Cooper is again looking forward to attending the conference, which she presided over last semester.

Aeronautics Students Will Take To Air After Holidays

Arrangements are being made for aeronautics students to begin flying immediately after the Christmas holidays, according to Captain George Richards, college flight director.

"Although we are ready to start flying right away we shall wait until the first of the year, because some of the students are planning to work during the Christmas vacation and will be unable to fly during that time," Captain Richards revealed.

Some students of other colleges that have completed a year's training and received their private pilot's certificates are receiving advanced training in planes of 125 horsepower and more. Although there is no official notice yet, there is a good chance that students of this college who show exceptional ability will receive the same advanced training at the end of the elementary course.

"It is quite possible," Captain Richards said, "that the next elementary course beginning next fall we will have facilities for training about twice as many students as are being trained at the present time."

Guardsman Rests Until Next Year; Soph Issue Scheduled

This is the last issue of The Guardsman this year. The next will be a special "Soph Week" issue Tuesday, January 2, 1940, to be followed by the regular issue on Friday, January 5, 1940.

Replete with news and features on the Nomination Rally, Election and Formal the "Soph Week" edition will present highlights of the most important week of the fall semester.

Data . . . . for Dating

Occasion	Place	Date
Ice Carnival	Winterland	December 9
Father-Son Night	Scottish Rite	December 12
New Year's Eve	Anywhere	Midnight
AWS Tea Dansant	Century Club	January 4
Soph Formal	Indefinite	January 5

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1939 No. 13

BILL FRANTZ ..... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse — Business Adviser Edward H. Rodford

Leonard Gross ..... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ..... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblat ..... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Sports Editor
Lucrella Antonicelli ..... Women's Editor
Edmund Wenech ..... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop ..... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Welcker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Lack Of Space Prohibits Printing Of Many News Stories; Items With Most Appeal, Interest, And Timeliness Used

THERE is a staff of student reporters publishing The Guardsman and it is part of their job to write what appears therein. The business of the editorial staff is to decide what is news and what is not news, and to select what is to be printed on that basis.

Students on The Guardsman editorial staff have received training along the lines of selection of news. They are taught that there are four fundamentals upon which an editor bases his selection. They are importance, significance, timeliness, and interest. They are not what some one person says "nobody reads" or "everybody reads."

Therefore, whenever anyone has reason to think that a reporter covering his beat has slipped up merely because the story which might publicize a particular activity or organization did not appear in The Guardsman that week, it would be well to remember it is the EDITOR and his STAFF who decided which stories were to be published and which were not.

There is need for a group such as an editorial staff, trained in the selection of news, to determine what should go into a paper. Selection of the news based on importance and significance depends upon the universality of the news, which, in this case applies to the 2400 students comprising the student body. The factors of timeliness and interest are the bases for the editorial staff's decision that coverage of a past event must of necessity be displaced by news of a future event.

We would enjoy having space to print all the information that is turned in, knowing that it appeals to some or all of the student association, but, The Guardsman having only four pages of seven columns each, it is all but impossible.

There is a limit, and a limit necessarily means there must be a choice of news to fill the limited space. We do not hesitate to thank those who have shown enough interest in The Guardsman to make intelligent criticism.

Attend Father-Son Banquet To Make Needed Contacts

YOUNG men upon graduating from high school find that they are not prepared for employment except in the fields which are already over-crowded. Many go to college to prepare themselves for employment in a specialized field or merely to do something useful until such time as there will be a demand for their services. But even a young men fail to take into consideration that a goodly majority of the positions are gained through contacts. One doesn't simply ask for a job and receive it. The young man finds that he receives employment because he can supply the demand.

Members of the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division supply a demand for trained men in their specialized field. J. Graham Sullivan, their coordinator, knows where there is the demand and supplies a Hotel Division student to fill the order.

Why hadn't the rest of the men students of the college an opportunity like those students in the Hotel Division? That was the thought in the mind of Lee Scarlett who was elected to the office of AMS president. And this is what he is attempting to do: Give to all the men students the opportunity for making contacts with business men who can create a demand for the students' services. That is the thought behind the Father-Son Night the Men's Club is sponsoring next week.

It would be well to take advantage of the opportunity afforded by the idea. Buy your ticket to the event. At any rate, don't miss it.

Presidential Notes

"All good things must come to an end." This phrase well expresses our sentiments at the time of this writing. To put it mildly we were a little surprised and sorry, when upon consulting our calendar we discovered that, excluding Christmas vacation, there are but three weeks of school left. The fall semester of '39 is fast drawing to a close.

We were just becoming accustomed to our professors, those early classes, the Friday night galas, rallies, the different class dances, rides to Galileo and the many things that go to make up the life of a typical Junior College student, and so we were a bit taken back when we paused to think that in a few weeks all this would end.

A few words to the students who are planning to run for Associated Student offices for next semester . . .

Nomination petitions have to be handed to Dean Browne at the latest by next Friday. These can be secured from him. They should include your grades and the signatures of 75 or more members of the student body.

Those of you who are elected to fill these offices, will, if you have not already, have to enroll in Poli. Sci. 82 at the beginning of next semester. This is a two-unit course. One meeting of which is the executive council, the other lecture is devoted to student government.

The nomination rally is to be held on Wednesday, January 3; the elections will be held two days later. As those of you who were here last semester remember, the amendment to the constitution concerning "electioneering" was defeated, so any and all types of campaigning are permitted.

We feel that at this time it would be wise to give coming Father and Son Night a big plug. This event is being sponsored by the A.M.S. under the leadership of Lee Scarlett and Al Williams. It fulfills a three-fold purpose.

First, you get two dinners for the price of one. Second, you have an opportunity to meet prominent business men and hear from them methods for securing positions in the business world. Third, the panel discussion will be of pertinent interest to every fellow in the college. Any one of these three things should be inducement enough. Tickets can be secured from student salesmen about the school.

Let's really support this function as the committee in charge have has worked very hard at it and they have a fine program arranged. It will be one of the outstanding events of this semester.

The . . . . Spectator

By JANET FELLOWS

THE buzz of The Red Bumble Bee, starring Leo Carrillo at the Curran, lacked animation while its sting was like a vaccination that failed to "take." Carrillo, one of Hollywood's and formerly Broadway's most vivacious and spirited actors, fails to put that old vim, vigor, and vitality into the role of California's, famous bad man, Joaquin Murieta, the Robin Hood of El Dorado. Little blame can be placed on Carrillo, however, for his dialogue had no more to it than did the flimsy plot.

The Red Bumble Bee is the fictitious story of Lola Montez, "oomph" girl of the nineteenth century, and the daring villain Joaquin Murieta. There is no historical authenticity in the play. Although Murieta and Lola Montez lived in California, they never met. Robert Craig, the author, imagines what might have happened had these two notorious persons known each other back in the rootin', tootin', shootin' days of California's colorful past when men were men, and so were women—almost!

FEMININE STAR BURNS OUT

Lola Montez, among the last of the rugged individualists, is primarily a gold digger, and the theme of the play is the villain and the vamp trying to outwit each other—she to get his money or the reward on his head and he to diplomatically (?) persuade her not to get either.

Tamara Geva, as Lola, did not live up to her reputation as a splendid actress. Instead, her accent made her difficult to understand, her dramatization lacked warmth and sincerity, and her gestures were embarrassingly awkward. Although her part was not excellent, she could and should have done much better than she did. If only her acting had matched her beauty, the audience would have seen an outstanding performance.

Barlowe Borland, as Lola's Scotch husband, puts a little fire into one of the best (although small) parts in the play. Borland, as the miserly little Scotchman, called forth most of the laughs from an only politely interested audience.

CARRILLO DOES BEST

Because Carrillo is very popular in San Francisco he will be assured an attentive audience at the Curran this week. Carrillo did all anyone could do with such a weak role.

It should be remembered however, that Robert Craig, the author, is still a young man in his twenties, and his play writing does show talent but also lack of experience. Although Craig has written five or six other plays, The Red Bumble Bee is the first to be produced. The directing, designing, producing and some of the acting is good, but the play itself is of poor quality.

PLAY HAS POSSIBILITIES

It is easy to see what the author had in mind, but when two characters with the temper, with morals (or lack of them), and daring of Joaquin and Lola meet, there should be an explosion. The interest Carrillo and Miss Geva come to an explosion is a few mild shots from blank cartridges.

Carrillo's Mexican accent and his charming personality help to liven up an otherwise dull evening as does Borland's Scotch brogue.

Other actors in the cast were Davison Clark, Henry Hall, Nenette Vallon, Albert Morin and Joe Figueroa. The settings were designed by Kate Drain, the play was staged by Clifford Brooke and presented by Luther Greene and James Struthers.

The Red Bumble Bee does have possibilities, and by the time it reaches New York perhaps Miss Geva will have her accent more understandable and her actions more graceful. We hope Craig will improve the dialogue and put a little more TNT into it—it certainly needs it!

While Thinking

By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

JOE and Adolf had always hated and feared each other. Adolf wrote a famous book and in it he told the world just what he thought of Joe. Joe didn't write a book but he told the world what he thought of Adolf anyway.

This went on for some time and the followers of both men spent many hours telling all who would listen about the sins of the opposite faction until it became a generally accepted fact that Joe and Adolf were deadly enemies.

Then one day Adolf had a brainstorm (or so he thought) and made friends with Joe. In return for this friendship Adolf offered Joe part of some land that he didn't own in the first place. So Joe and Adolf became friends, but instead of waiting for his gift of land, Joe decided to help Adolf steal it and at the same time grab a bigger piece of land than Adolf had intended to give him.

This didn't please Adolf but there wasn't much he could do about it because he was in the midst of a fight with some of his neighbors because they accused him of stealing this land. So Adolf started fighting with his neighbors over the land while Joe, who had the best part of the land anyway, sat back and laughed at his friend Adolf.

Just about this time it began to sink through Adolf's thick skull that Joe wasn't as dumb as he had supposed, and he began to be a little sorry that he had ever made friends with him. He still couldn't do anything however, because he was too busy ducking the blows of the people he was fighting with.

While all this was going on, Joe just laughed and bided his time, refusing to help his friend Adolf.

While everyone was busy fighting Adolf, Joe dreamed up an imaginary onslaught against himself by a small inoffensive fellow who wouldn't hurt a fly. Claiming the little fellow picked on him, he attacked the poor defenseless soul with all his fury and began to steal his land also.

With everyone else busy fighting Adolf, Joe had a pretty easy time of it and the battle was merely healthy exercise.

By this time poor Adolf realized that he had been outsmarted by his friend Joe and began to worry about Joe pushing him over next. Which left the situation all primed for another double cross.

Joe, who had quietly bided his time for many years was now in the ideal position of letting everyone fight himself silly, while he remained fresh and powerful, ready to find whom everyone was too tired out to resist.

* * *

NATIONAL

HEAD communist Earl Browder spoke last week at Yale University on the subject "America and the War."

United Press reports state that he was booed and jeered during his talk and narrowly escaped being mobbed when leaving the campus.

While this is a very concrete example of intolerance in the United States, one can hardly blame the youths of Yale for giving Browder such a hard time. It must be quite a strain on a person to listen to radio reports concerning the merciless bombardment of Helsinki, and then hear radical Browder comment on "Russia's success in maintaining peace with the world."

It should prove very interesting and no doubt highly amusing to li-

(Continued on page 4, column 2)

RAM'S ...HORN

● CHARGES PARTISANSHIP

Editor, The Guardsman:

As a constant reader of The Guardsman, I have always been under the impression that the paper was run on non-partisan basis and did not air or view personal opinions of staff members. Rumor has it of late that the paper is partisan to certain candidates and "big shots" in the school. Is this fair to those unfortunate people whom you (The Guardsman staff) do not personally care for?

All I ask is that everyone be given an equal chance.

SHIRLEY WHITE,

An Observing Reader.

Editor's Note—Miss White, you sign yourself "An Observing Reader." You claim, furthermore, that as a constant reader you have observed that the paper is run on a non-partisan basis. Then you take "rumor's" word for it that The Guardsman is partisan, instead of trusting your own observations. Tsk, tsk! All we ask is that you give your judgment an equal chance with "rumor."

Knock 'Em Dead by Lou Goldstone

InTROODings . . . By Dot

STOP that you evil-eyed...women! We knew you'd be looking for some more gossip on the poor male species, so we decided to prope our way into the inner self of the would-be defenseless woman, and give you a few highlights on the subject.

There are definite types of you gals, and what's more no two of you are alike in anything no matter what anyone says. We've figured out certain types that attend the college, and for the present just sit down and see if you are the OUTDOOR GIRL, a CLINGING VINE, or THE INDEPENDENT TYPE.

Now the Outdoor Girl is typical in most colleges and she is a lover of the big out-of-doors world. Her sports include golf, tennis, horseback riding, ping-pong, swimming, etc., and all other sports which might be listed—ARE her meat. She looks grand in sports clothes and it's more fun to entertain her on the tennis court than dancing at the Ritz. She's a swell sport and a good egg about everything.

DOESN'T LIKE MEN

And to you, Mr. Man—she hasn't much interest in you, in fact, she hardly notices you. She can often outplay the opposite sex, and just dotes on it. Fellows usually look upon her as the little sister type.

Ah, yes. You are interested in Miss Clinging Vine—beware of this young lady (?) because sometimes looks are deceiving. Miss CV is usually taken for the demure type, but that's how she gets her man.

Miss Clinging Vine looks out for number one, and if she flutters her eyelashes long enough, can usually snag any soft male within 50 feet. She dresses with exquisite taste, and depends upon her friends for help.

Warning to the Unsuspecting Male —watch out for those phoney faints. You know, when she sprains her ankle and can't walk and then passes out. Take care Mr. Man because butter will melt in her mouth when she wants something.

What! You didn't know there was the INDEPENDENT TYPE? Look around you for a minute—there she is. You don't see her? Well, that's too bad, but keep reading and you'll find out, maybe.

BE WARY OF HER

This gal is sometimes half and half; independent and intellectual, but don't let that bother you. She doesn't have any trouble making friends; she is accomplished in sports, arts, and can do anything that she starts out to do.

Her life doesn't depend upon the stronger sex, but when it does, watch out, because she's as choosey about the poor male as he is in picking out accessories for his pride and joy—the automobile.

We've been told by an independent that this type sometimes bites her nose to spite her face.

Mr. Male—this independent gal demands a MAN. One that is interested in the things she likes. The kind that is just as particular about clothes as she is (and is she particular!). A well-educated fellow is a prerequisite, and one that isn't afraid to talk to other people, a good mixer and not a wallflower.

Do you know any of these types Mr. Man? You do, well keep it quiet and let the bulletin board roll on for there are more and interesting types to come.

shots at RAMdom By Isadore Maloff

THOSE of you who sometimes glance over the want ad section of your daily newspaper in hopes of coming upon something away from the usual, must have garnered a chuckle or so from the following excerpts of an advertisement appearing last week in one of the local dailies.

Evidently the author has evaluated his qualities without over-stimulating his imagination, for he begins by saying:

"IRRESPONSIBLE young gentleman consider position with firm capable of guaranteeing adequate remittance."

He lists as his assets:

"ALERT at all times for easier way to do things.

"BRAINY, psychiatrists disagree, diagnoses range from 'mental genius' to 'nincompoop.'

"CREDIT, nonexistent.

"DUMB, haven't starved yet.

"EFFICIENCY, always engage capable assistants.

"FARSIGHTEDNESS, having turned the corner of prosperity, am inclined to dislike apples.

"GENIUS, think second psychiatrist slightly prejudiced."

Clinching his account of his virtues by giving credit where credit is due, he concludes, "Due to wife's insistence will give responsible offers serious consideration."

We don't know the gent who composed this eye-attracting ad. Furthermore, we have no real desire to meet up with him as we just can't tolerate anyone who brazenly states that he "is inclined to dislike apples."

APPLE SAUCE

At a time such as this when all the Sebastapol "apple growers are so hard-up what with millions of housewives giving up apple sauce in favor of Jello and other synthetic products and with Safeway stores having to help out the poor farmers with "apple sale weeks" to get rid of the surplus, it seems to us that anyone who doesn't like apples is downright undemocratic.

Besides this complaint, the author of the ad has committed one of the worst journalistic errors when he says "due to" instead of "because of"—surely an unpardonable sin. And though everyone gets the gist of his point that his wife is behind it all and maybe went so far as to write the ad herself, then by such action she too must be a little behind—in her English composition, that is.

JUST JEALOUS

But what's the use of trying to find fault? It pains us terribly to admit it, but we might as well confess that we're jealous of the writer because he no doubt will receive hundreds of employment offers in answer, while we, in our only attempt at ad writing, reap nothing in return.

Our ad of three lines at $4.9 per line was no different from hundreds of others while the ad we have bothered to reprint shows a wealth of originality, and therein lies the big difference.

Somehow, we always do things in the established way. Like the bricklayer who climbed Mt. Tamalpais walking backwards, we invariably do our work the hard way. But whether or not you approve of the author's method of approach, you'll probably agree with us when we say, "There is a man who will go far in life."

"Yeh?" We suppose some critic will dryly query, "Which way?"

* * *

NOTES ON THE NEWS

Columbus (O.), Dec. 2 — (AP) — A bat soaring about the stage as he was singing an encore last night failed to ruffle John Charles Thomas, baritone. Thomas and his accompanist, Carroll Hollister, trapped the bat in the wings.—S. F. Examiner.

Well, we suppose the wings are a vital a part of a bat's body as any other portion, but it was lucky for Thomas that no S.P.C.A. officials were there to witness such wanton destruction.

By virtue of his direct hit, Mr. Thomas, we would have you know, is now batting 1000.

Had a radio microphone only been transmitting the struggle, we suppose Mr. Thomas after the rout could have pantingly announced to the world, "It was a great bat—tle, ma, but I won."

Cabbages & Kings

By Blue Pencil Bill

A SCENE IN

Dean Browne's office.

The Dean is seated at his desk holding a conference with Dorothy Trood, Associated Students' vice-president, when Mort Steiner, bass player in Les Smith's orchestra, enters.

"We'd like to play your college song at the Low Soph dance this Friday, sir. Have you a copy of the music here?" asks Mort.

"Sorry, son," answers the Dean, "there never was a manuscript of the college song. Can you take it by ear?"

"Sure!" replies musician Mort as he draws a clef on paper. Miss Trood and Dean Browne join in song to give the musician a vague idea of how the song should sound. Mort winces at Dot's shrill soprano and motions for the Dean to come with him.

THEY LEAVE DOT'S

voluble vocality and head for the women's gym where they blush their way through a conglomeration of athletic females to the piano near the wall. There the Dean straddles a wooden horse and picks out the notes to the song for Mort.

Now the question arises; Did Jack Schmale, author of the song, write a manuscript or has the song merely been passed along by ear with only Dean Browne having the tune in his memory? What a tradition that makes!

* * *

ORGANIZATIONS OF

the college are really coming to life this month what with a super-colossal Ice Skating Extravaganza, Tourney Week, and the Ski Club trip. Now we find that the college is running into a hoity-toity Horse Show tonight at 7:30. The Misses Grenelle, Hansen, MacKillop, Markowitz and company, under the direction of Mrs. Bergin, will demonstrate how to ride side-saddle with one hand. Miss Hansen, a very superior horsewoman, will ride with only one foot in the stirrup, holding a lorgnette.

* * *

STREET SCENE AT

Seventh and Howard.

An eight-year-old tough is walking down the street with his hands in his pockets. He squints at an open grating and shoots a stream of licorice between his teeth. Then a rock bounces by him. He looks to see who his friend is then picks up the rock and narrowly misses his playmate.

He feels a hand on his shoulder and turns around to find another starring him in the face. "What's the big idea throwing rocks back at dat kid, Jimmy? Ye should have called me, instead."

"Why call you—you can't hit the side of a barn!"

* * *

FRIENDS OF

Lyle Schultz, the Southern California glamour boy want us to say a few good words about him. Not wishing to appear prejudiced we asked a mutual friend to say something for about him. This is what we got: "Lyle is a good head—with teeth and ears!"

RAMettes . . by Lu Antonicelli

EXCERPTS FROM THE WOMEN'S SPORTS PARADES OF YESTERYEAR

Here's one that tickled us:

Tourney Week, oh Tourney Week,
You come but once a semester
Thank God.

Which means that after writing steadily about Tourney Week from 6 o'clock to 11 o'clock and then faced with turning out a column, thoughts revert to (Ah, you guessed it) Tourney Week! Already "squirrely" after chasing not butterflies but flitting WAA managers and INSTRUCTORS and taking countless figurative blows on the chin for not arranging SPORTS PICTURES SOONER, the evening's work has had the effect of practically convincing us that we're not Lu Antonicelli at all, but Walter Winchell.

FAMOUS FIRST

Here's one for the books; the first paragraph in the first Women's Sports Parade of Ye Guardsman:

"Our sports program this semester compares favorably with any college of similar size—a large statement considering that SFJC is just a little over a year old. The activities offered last semester were adequately varied; but they have been augmented for the fall semester by three new sports, swimming, fencing and volleyball, and extra sections of riding, dancing and archery. Even the non-athletically inclined should find in the impressive array at least two of interest!"

VERBAL SYMPHONY

This one doesn't apply to Tourney Week and it's rather an off time of the year, but it's cute:

Shafts of sunlight filter through the dirty windows of the room. Outside is heard the crisp "Hike" of the ROTC at work.

The deep bass voice of Carl Stough, business instructor, mingles in the afternoon languor with the shrill soprano of his assistant in a duet of car tickets, bankbooks and letters.

The dreamy chattering of typewriters smites the ears. It is spring. But the Women's Sports Parade must go on. Unfortunately.

MORE OF THE SAME WRITER

The zero hour has come! Tourney Week is here! At all locations, the college is bombarded by a fusillade of WAA activity.

There have been finals in badminton, in golf, and in tennis. The ice skating class staged a party last Friday (we bet it can't compare with the Fall '39 edition).

The horse show, swimming exhibition, rifle match, tennis mixed doubles finals, exhibition basketball game, and semi-annual banquet are yet to come. (So is ours, but what a vast difference, me lassies—ours is streamlined!) Yes, everyone is very, very busy these days. (You're telling us!)

AND THE TOURNEY WEEK OF '36

Big news just now is Tourney Week, the gala windup of the third WAA season. This organization is one of the most active in the college and its semi-annual festival should incite much enthusiasm among the co-eds. Tourney Week deserves your support—plan to attend as many events as possible.

THE SPRING '39 COLUMNS

Tourney Week is officially ended with a banquet. Each semester the banquet committee chooses a theme. For the first banquet, at which the organization had just set out, the theme was Embarkation.

At the second banquet, the WAA searched for the ideals of the Women's Athletic Association; The Hunt was the theme.

The third banquet had Time Marched On as the theme; the fourth, International Friendship; last semester's theme was Co-educational Sports, and the men of the school were invited.

COMES FALL '39 AND

Yeah, yeah, it's Tourney Week again! And if, by now, you don't think that this Tourney Week is going to be bigger and better than ever before you're no friend of ours. Just glance over the schedule, cast your eye on the program, and then prepare to enjoy yourself during one of the most spectacular, breath-taking sports weeks of the entire college history. And don't say we didn't tell you so!

RAMblings . . by Ray Berns

BERNS GETS BRAINSTORM

Many of you will remember the High Sophomore picnic instituted last semester by the class prexy, Floyd Lawrence.

Bill O'Neil, present sophomore dictator, add the committee in charge of Sophomore week (which, by the way, will be from Tuesday, January 2 through Friday, January 5) decided that a picnic would be inappropriate this semester in view of the fact that unfavorable weather conditions are likely to exist.

It has been suggested by the committee that perhaps a field day would be a likely substitute for the picnic.

That's all very interesting, but what intrigues us most is that the same difficulties (the weather, clowns) would probably exist.

If Mr. O'Neil and company insist on having their field day anyway, all we can do is offer some of the ideas which originate in the gray matter (what there is of it) circulating in a dizzy fashion inside of that receptacle sometimes referred to as a head.

In short, dearhearts, we have a plan, in fact, we might even go so far as to say that we have two plans. Are you listening, Mr. O'Neil, you are—good.

LOOKY HYAR, LOOKY HYAR!

Not so very long ago (seven days to be exact), one Mr. So and So, the head of the Olympic Games Committee, decreed that the Games would not be held in Finland because there is a misunderstanding existing between Finland and the Russians. Ah ha, the plot thickens.

The Finns and a national group called the Russians. Ah ha, the plot thickens.

Now that the situation is clear in all of our minds (well, it is, isn't it?), we shall go ahead and disclose what we are about to tell you.

Let's put in our bid for the Games and call them the High Sophomore field day. There it's off our chest!

Think of it. Right here in San Francisco on the Galileo field which has the unbelievable seating capacity of 500, we could stage, pardon, the High Sophomores could stage a huge athletic carnival.

The Chinese and Japanese, Russians and Finns, Germans and French, not to mention the English, would drop their guns and come arunnin' to engage in the extra-special, super- colossal athletic show of all times. Or would they?

ONE BROMO, PLEASE

The Committee is planning to hold the field day on Tuesday, January 2. With that fact in mind, therefore we present the second of our stupendous ideas.

Let's not have a field day. Instead, let's just call January 2 "Recuperation Day" and let it go at that. 'Nuff said.

SMALL STUFF

A rather informal six-man football team league has sprung up among the fraternities which promises to lead into intramural athletic competition the fraternities which promises to lead into intramural athletic competition

Should prove very funny to watch the Block Society act as ushers at the WAA Horse Show tonight at the San Francisco Academy. If we remember correctly, the lads did a fine job at the last one.

Jayvee Hoopmen Collide With Saint Dominic's In Season Opener Tonight

Tonight is opening night for Coach Tom Wilson's junior varsity basketballers. Opponents of the locals will be St. Dominic's who will start as short-enders in the Galileo gymnasium.

Having cut his team down to 24 men, Wilson has been working on the final selection of a first, second and third team.

Favored to break into the starting lineup are the veterans Hugh Ryan, Bobby Owens, George Oshida and Jim Troni. Also likely to receive a chance to start is Jack Genesy, veteran hooputer from Modesto.

The Ram lightweights have sparkled in practice during the past two weeks.

Announced Wilson, "My boys look promising and from the confidence in their showing in practice, I expect to see them win a majority of the games in which they play."

Games scheduled to be played next week by the junior varsity squad were given by Wilson as follows:

Dec. 12	Balboa at Balboa
Dec. 14	Sacred Heart at Marina
	Junior High
Dec. 15	Langeudorff at Galileo
Dec. 16	Marin Dell at Galileo

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Hey Look Fellas! It's The WAA Follies!

GALS STRESS BEAUTY, BRAWN FOR TOURNEY WEEK BLOW-OFF!

Femmes Caught Red-Handed In Tourney Week Preview

And the Guardsman Candid Camera Eye (sometimes candid and sometimes not) flashed sneak shots of the proud beauties who will do their stuff this week and next for the glory of good old WAA.

Priming their deadly barbs in the shot at left are, left to right, Rose Pan, Margaret Chappel, Nellie Harju, Bob Lorimer, Lee Kerfoot and Mark McDonough.

This mixed group is a contingent of the archery battalion which will perform in one of the week's many events.

Shown in the center photo is Jean Kelly, in the act of taking a healthy whack at the inoffensive tennis pill. Tennis, both table and legitimate, is highlighted in the Tourney Week exhibitions.

On the far right, Lee Kerfoot, Shirley White, Thurza Scott and Bob Lorimer point with justifiable pride to one of the novelty targets designed for the arrow-slingers. The big bulls-eyes are decorated with weird, strange and most unusual beasties that should produce astigmatism in the uninitiated marksman.

Leather-Pushers

AMS Fight Date Set; Crowns Again At Stake

Former ringmen of the college will collide with up and coming new arrivals in the college leather-slinging tournament, to be held in January.

The date has been tentatively set by Joe Amori, Men's Club adviser, as Wednesday, January 10, 1940. This date has been picked because it seems at this time to be the most convenient, scheduled events. Scene of the battles will be the Verdi Club, where the bouts were held last semester.

Coppers Working Out

Amori's future cops are working out at the Galileo gym on Mondays and Wednesdays as a class, and with Jack Gobar's class on Tuesdays and Thursdays. These boys, tall and rangy, with long reaches, and working hard, seem to be doing all they can in the up more of the fundamentals which they have fairly thoroughly mastered so far. When the fights roll around these boys should be in top shape and should have a good amount of ability.

In Amori's class, there are four or five boys who seem to have enough ability to enter the tournament with a reasonable amount of success. Among these are George Talcedo, 139-pound division, and Stanley Gertz, 159-pound division, and Roy Davis, Stanley Gertz and Ray Dorn, 160-pound class.

Five Experienced Pugs

Facing these men, will be the topranking members of Jack Gaddy's boxing class and four men who have had a rich experience in boxing in the college. At 149 pounds is the short but dynamic Allen Larson, last year's champion. At 159 pounds Jack Welcker will fight in his fourth attempt at the crown. Bob Raine, tall 169 and 170-pound champion of a year ago, will make another bid at a crown or two. Supplementing these former crown wearers will be Bob Engemann, campaigner for the 149-pound championships a year ago. He will try again for the same crown this tournament.

With the material that is being worked out in Gaddy's classes, and these other leather slingers, the bouts should produce a maximum of thrills and excitement along with exhibition of boxing skill never seen before in the tournaments held by the college.

Amori said, "This year should see a record turnout in crowds and in fighters. I urge all those men in the college who either wish to fight or work out to come around to any of the classes. There's always room for a few extra in the gym."

Big Tent

Here's The Dope On Tourney Week

Table Tennis	Dec. 8— 2:30 p.m.	Galileo Gym
Horse Show	Dec. 8— 7:30 p.m.	S. F. Riding Academy
Tennis Finals	Dec. 9— 9:30 a.m.	Palace of Fine Arts
Ice Skating Carnival	Dec. 9— 5:15 p.m.	Winterland Ice Rink
Rifle	Dec. 9—10:00 a.m.	Galileo Armory
Volleyball	Dec. 11— 3:15 p.m.	Galileo Gym
Hockey	Dec. 12—12:30 p.m.	YWCA Pool
Golf-Putting Finals	Dec. 13—12:15 p.m.	Funston Field

Fourth Win In Row As Riflеers Down American Legion

San Rifleers rolled over American Legion Post 429 last Thursday in a victory that seemed impossible.

The final result of the match, held in the Galileo Armory, read 899 to 893 in favor of the locals.

Although the score does not appear to be very close, it was nevertheless surprising that Captain McFarland's sharpshooters were victorious, for their opponents were far below their normal marksmanship.

Had any member of Post 429 been "hot" in his aim, defeat would certainly have come to the Ram shirtmen. Strange as it may seem, the locals have shot lower and lower in each of the succeeding four matches held, yet have managed to emerge Art Templeton, 180; Don Minium.

Expected Defeat

McFarland announced previous to the rifle meet that he had expected his team to witness its first defeat, as the Legion Post is composed of a number of reliable rifle-shifflers.

It turned out differently.

Shooting distance was 50 feet as usual; the regular four positions, prone, sitting, kneeling, and off-hand, were used.

It is generally believed that the rather low score can be attributed to the fact that these two top teams, Legion Post 429 and S.F.J.C., were each conscious of its opposition's high rating. Thus, both squads were tense during the match, as the score shows.

High Scorers

Two men, however, had good evenings in the Armory. For the college, George Humphery rang up 185 points; for the visitors, Fred Schelter shot a high 187.

As McFarland later explained, "It was a match of surprises."

Final surprise was seen in the lack of ease which has customarily prevailed in rifle matches held at the Armory.

Results of the Ram-Legion target war appear as follows:

S.F.J.C.—George Humphery, 185; Art Templeton, 180; Don Minium, 184; Louis Davy, 175; and Myron Pierce, 175.

LEGION POST 429—R. Rush,174; L. Marco, 176; W. Seymour, 181; C. Heanzy, 174; and F. Schelter, 187.

Conlan's Casaba Artists Hit First Practice Till; Wide Open Race For Spots

First serious practice of the season for Coach "Dutch" Conlan's varsity basketballers was held at Kezar yesterday when the local lads cavorted the University of San Francisco varsity squad in a scrimmage session.

The scrimmage but reaffirmed the pre-season dope that the local crew of cage-tossers will bost no outstanding stars, but will be a team playing as one man.

It seems, at present, that the most noticeable weakness is the guard positions.

Reps Available

Although the battle for all positions is wide open, the team, which was cut to 20 last Monday, contains the following hoop artists who have previously made reputations: Joe Johns, Modesto transfer; Mario Salacone, forward from last year's harvest, and "Red" Kerwin, formerly of Sacred Heart and the St. Mary's frosh, at the guard spots; forwards Clary Richards and Sid Kevich of Poly, and all-city lightweight Jack McCarthy of Lowell, and centers Bob Jensen and Jack Kuhn.

—Because of the fact that competition for all spots will be keen, a high team morale and spirit is expected.

The first real test for Conlan's men will take place in the Galileo gymnasium on Friday, December 15, when the Rams will meet, and, it is hoped, defeat, the New Domestic French Laundry team.

Conscription Call Issued By Basketball Goofs; Ryan Gives Lowdown On Sked

Launching its activity with an initial turnout of 25 men, the Junior Varsity Basketeer squad starts its pre-season practice sessions this week.

Hugh Ryan, team manager, issued a call for reinforcements to face the rigorous schedule already partially contracted.

In addition to the traditional match with Stockton Junior College's lightweights, the Lambs have contests slated with the reserves of Menlo, Santa Rosa, Marin, and Modesto Junior Colleges, all on the home bill.

Out-of-town games are now being negotiated, among them a tour to Napa—and return.

WAA Chorines

Women Get Glamour For Athletic Carnival; Men on Spot As Gals Threaten: "We'll Slay 'Em"

Oomph is here. Spicing athletic output with femininity, the glamour-gals of the Women's Athletic Association this week present their semi-annual Sports Tourney.

This time it's different. The stodgy complacency of past years is abandoned, and the lipstick and mascara are elevated to their rightful place beside the bat, the racquet, the longbow, and the feather shaft.

Women's Athletic Awards Cited For Tourney Week Show

Women of the college who make the first or second teams of the Women's Athletic Association sports will be presented awards which represent their respective sports.

Provisions of the Association's Constitution name certain qualifications required of the student before she has fully earned the award.

These qualifications are: Scholarships rating of not less than a "C" average for the whole college course; good sportsmanship; superior playing ability for the first team; moderate playing ability for the second team; neat appearance; not more than two unexcused absences during the whole semester; objective standards should be set up in as many activities as is possible.

Triangles Given

Each individual making a first team for the first time shall be awarded a triangle chenille, with places for the small felt chenilles representing each sport. The triangle has places for six small triangular chenilles.

For students rating first or second teams, who have already received a large triangle, smaller triangle chenilles are given for the initial and subsequent times. The smaller awards are placed on the large triangle.

Highest Award

The white blazer with a circular emblem on the upper pocket and membership in the WAA Block Society is the highest prize an individual can be awarded. Women who receive these blazers are outstanding in their service to the interest of the association.

There are also certain qualifications which are the basis of this highest award: The student must have been on at least one first team and one second team in different sports during the whole college course; must have a scholarship rating of not less than a "C" average while attending the college; must be known for good sportsmanship, good posture, and neat appearance, plus service to and an interest in the Women's Athletic Association.

Gals Will Knock 'Em Dead

A streamlined floor-show — with muscles thrown in — Tourney Week now features the college chorines in a series of snappy performances designed to knock 'em dead.

First, there's badminton. Scrapping the usual eliminations tournament, they've adopted a new idea: The Pyramid. Finals will be played off this week and two demonstration matches, students versus faculty, will be presented.

Then there's archery — and have they struck a new line! Instead of the usual circular targets, college artists have been busy making targets in the forms of animals with all the gorgeous colors of the college course; good sportsmanship; superior playing ability for the first team; moderate playing ability for the second team; neat appearance; not more than two unexcused absences during the whole semester; objective standards should be set up in as many activities as is possible.

Triangles Given

Each individual making a first team for the first time shall be awarded a triangle chenille, with places for the small felt chenilles representing each sport. The triangle has places for six small triangular chenilles.

For students rating first or second teams, who have already received a large triangle, smaller triangle chenilles are given for the initial and subsequent times. The smaller awards are placed on the large triangle.

Highest Award

The white blazer with a circular emblem on the upper pocket and membership in the WAA Block Society is the highest prize an individual can be awarded. Women who receive these blazers are outstanding in their service to the interest of the association.

There are also certain qualifications which are the basis of this highest award: The student must have been on at least one first team and one second team in different sports during the whole college course; must have a scholarship rating of not less than a "C" average while attending the college; must be known for good sportsmanship, good posture, and neat appearance, plus service to and an interest in the Women's Athletic Association.

The volleyball team has challenged Balboa High School to a game on December 11. Although the losers in games with the Faculty, WAA Council, and Physical Education majors, the volleyteers show promise of putting up a good fight against the Lady Buccaneers.

If you read the first two paragraphs and you must have, you'll know that Tourney Week has gone feminine in a big way. But that doesn't mean that there won't be lively competition and hair-raising thrills, because the above mentioned sports are only a few of the activities on the schedule, which leaves a lot to be expected. It's going to be fast, furious, and GIRLIFUL, so come out and watch those competitions.

Not As Easy As It Looks

Ski Club members look forward to snow, such as is shown above, to try out their sand dune practice. Indications are that the club will travel to Norden during Christmas vacation, meanwhile they will hear Bill Klein, ski artist at their next meeting, Tuesday evening.

College Ski Club Ready To Begin Work; Travels To Snow After Christmas

Rolling rapidly with plans made definitely for their snow trip, the college Ski Club has been picking up momentum like a skier on a fast slope in a schuhli race.

As things stand now, there are close to 30 members in the club, including two popular women on the campus, Janet Fellows, Guardsman reporter and columnist, and Murielle Grenelle, secretary of the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College, and other college women.

The style angle to this sport seems to have as important an effect on its followers as the sporting angle. Helen Van Fossen, style commentator on the Oakland Tribune, was present at the meeting held on Thursday, November 30 at Bob Ogg's home in Oakland. Alden Smith, faculty advisor of the group, gave instruction to the members on exercises designed to strengthen and limber up the knees and ankles, pointing out the use of the body in different skiing practices.

Heavy snowfall last week was enthusiastically received by the group, who are going practically en masse to Norden over Christmas vacation. Norden is near Donner Summit and is a well-liked location of snow-eaters. The group will go by automobile, leaving the day after Christmas, and returning on New Year's Day. Some of the group may return after a few days, but the majority will stay. Smith will be taking a carload and the members will provide several more automobiles for transportation. Both men and women students will go, so there should be a jolly time, according to Ogg, president of the group. Although some of the men contemplated sleeping six men to a room, it was pointed out that the manners of the Pasadena high jinx would not carry over to the ski trip.

The club has been fortunate enough to obtain the time and advice of Bill Klein, whose picture appears above, for its next meeting, which will be held at the home of Janet Fellows, 1140 Oakland Avenue, at 8:00 o'clock, Tuesday, December 12. Klein is a well-known international ski champion. San Francisco members who wish to attend should contact either Hugh Smith at the college or phone Erling Jacobsen, club secretary, at WAlnut 5511.

Club Advisory Board Elects New Leaders

Meeting for the purpose of electing next semester's officers, the Club Advisory Board held its last meeting of the semester yesterday in Room 206 at 1 o'clock.

This semester's president, Harold Hoffman, presided at the meeting for the last time. It was a closed meeting for representatives of the clubs, who are members of the board.

Candidates for office of the board are as follows: President, Alden Thorogood and Donn Norden; vice-president, Robert Schlesinger and Lyba Mackie; secretary-treasurer, Helen Du Bois and Burton Whines.

Radio Broadcasting

(Continued from page 1)

dents, if Miss Weller's present plans materialize.

Final decision on the inclusion of the radio course in the college curriculum this semester will be made by President A. J. Cloud and Registrar J. Paul Mohr. This decision will not be made until after Christmas.

FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE — FALL 1939

Classes	Day	Date	Hour
8:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday	Jan. 15	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*8:00 o'clock—T-Th.	Friday	Jan. 19	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
9:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Friday	Jan. 19	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
9:00 o'clock—T-Th.	Tuesday	Jan. 16	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
10:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Wednesday	Jan. 17	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*10:00 o'clock—T-Th.	Thursday	Jan. 18	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
11:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Thursday	Jan. 18	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
11:00 o'clock—T-Th.	Tuesday	Jan. 23	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
12:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday	Jan. 22	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
12:00 o'clock—T-Th.	Wednesday	Jan. 24	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*1:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Tuesday	Jan. 16	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
*1:00 o'clock—T-Th.	Monday	Jan. 22	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday	Jan. 15	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock—T-Th.	Wednesday	Jan. 17	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Tuesday	Jan. 23	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock—T-Th.	Wednesday	Jan. 24	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.

All classes meet in regular rooms for examination with the exception of those meeting at Powell Street which are marked with an asterisk. They will meet at Galileo High School in rooms to be listed later.

Afternoon examinations held at 58 Sutter Street and at Girls High School will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. instead of from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. A special schedule will be issued by the Department of Business Education.

All classes beginning at 8:10 or 8:30 a.m. are scheduled for examination with 8 o'clock classes. This regulation follows for each succeeding hour. Examinations are scheduled for the hour of the lecture period, not the labortory or conference period.

While Thinking

(Continued from page 2)

ten to the Communist explanation of the Russian march into Finland.

CITY

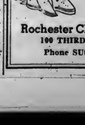
WELL; well, judging from recent events it looks as if the Golden Gate International Exposition crossed us up.

It is quite a disillusionment to discover that your supposedly reliable sources are a bit cockeyed to say the least.

During the course of writing what should now be termed "Wild Thinking" we have made many predictions. None however turned out as badly as the one concerning the Fair for '40.

We have always adhered to the famous saying, "I'd rather be right than President," but at the rate we're going it looks as if we will be neither.

Don't misunderstand, this is not an attempt to excuse the faux pas. We were caught flatfooted and there is no denying it.



To the readers of this column how-ever, we can but request that they retain their probably somewhat dampened loyalty with the hope that it won't happen again.

Student Archers Entertain S.F. State In Contest

Local archers played host to State college Wednesday at a novelty archery shoot. Targets were animal cartoons painted in the tastiest, most outrageous colors to be had.

Rifleties expecting to shoot against Marin were disappointed this week to learn that the Marin rifle team would not be able to compete against them because the Marin team is not an organized club; rather, a group of girls who shoot for their own pleasure.

Be ready for the SOPH FORMAL January 5, 1939

Will Baron has a stock of brand new Tuxedos in single and double breasted styles. Look your best for a rental fee of completely equipped.

$2.50

Rochester Clothing Co.
100 THIRD STREET
Phone SUtter 9810

Police Students See Films, Learn Detection Methods

Films showing the San Francisco Police Academy set-up and the traffic safety problem were run off for police training students last Tuesday in the Extension Building by Herbert Herzenberg, examiner for the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

Three films were shown—the first two dealt with the methods of modern crime detection and apprehension, and physical, target, and first aid training for police students.

Herzenberg prefaced the showing of the third film on traffic safety by explaining that the policeman of today must be prepared not only to enforce the traffic laws but to educate the public on matters of safety.

Herzenberg also made it known that the Department of Motor Vehicles would be willing to show its films to any group interested in traffic safety. Persons interested in this offer should get in touch with Herbert Herzenberg at 160 Van Ness Avenue South.

AMS Banquet

(Continued from page 1)

an approriate reading for the occasion by a faculty member.

It was emphasized by Scarlett that students who are unable to bring their fathers may sit in along with one of many business men present.

Also mentioned by Scarlett, who will act as master of ceremonies, was the hope of full cooperation from the numerous Associated Men Students by attending the banquet.

"HELLO EVERYBODY... LOPEZ SPEAKING!"

ANOTHER HIT IN THE DANCE PARADE OF AMERICA'S FINEST ORCHESTRAS!

VINCENT LOPEZ and his orchestra Opens Dec. 8th

THE PALACE HOTEL

Campus Representatives . . . Mary Frances Malone, PR 4372; Bill O'Neill, RA 4000; Lee Scarlett, GR 1806

Campus Club Crier

● Alpha Gamma Sigma . . . Pins are in the bank at Galileo for those students who ordered them.

● Astronomy . . . Business and social meeting, December 11, 7:30-9 p.m. in the Galileo Observatory.

● Beta Phi Beta . . . Business meeting at the Parkside Tennis Club, December 11.

● Beta Tau . . . Grand prestentation meeting and election of officers for next semester, December 12 at 5548 Carlton Street. Formal Grand Presentation dance at Sir Francis Drake, December 28, 9:30. Pledge meeting, informal, December 17. Place is as yet undecided.

● Block SF . . . Initiation at Powell Street in the morning and Galileo in the afternoon, Banquet at 6:30, Rex Restaurant.

● Epsilon, Epsilon, Epsilon . . . Election of officers, December 18, 8 p.m., Parkwood. Formal initiation for San Mateo chapter, December 14, 8 p.m., Sigmund Stern Grove, 19th Avenue and Sloat Blvd. New Year's Party, January, location tentative.

● Forestry . . . Social meeting, December 8, 7:30 at 319 Bexby Avenue. Informal dance, December 16, 8:30 at the Merritt Hotel, Oakland.

● Forum . . . Discussion, Do We Have Freedom of the Press and Should We Have Freedom of the Press?, January 4 at 2143 16th Ave.

● Iota Chi . . . Dinner dance, Friday, December 8, 8:30, Dawn Club.

● Lambda Chi . . . Barn dance, December 16, Sigmund Stern Grove, 19th Avenue and Sloat Blvd. Dinner dance, December 29, St. Francis Hotel.

● Music . . . Reception of new members and business meeting, December 8, 693 Spruce Street, Oakland.

● Newman . . . Christmas Tree party, December 18, 8:30 at St. Mary's Cathedral. Special entertainment. Members are requested to bring guests.

● Omicron Phi Pi . . . Meeting and dance, reunion with chapters in other universities and colleges. December 8, 295 Urbano.

● Phi Beta Rho . . . Monkey Business, December 21, 7:30 at 657 Los Palmos Drive.

● Pick and Hammer . . . Discussion of Field trip and Finals are Over Party, December 11 at 170 Lunada Court.

● Rifle and Pistol . . . Business and discussion of plans for an end of semester party, December 14 at 4:30 in the Galileo Rifle Range.

WAA Announces Election Candidates; Results At Mother-Daughter Fete

Meeting twice for the purpose of choosing candidates for next semester's officers of the Women's Athletic Association, a committee of four nominated the following:

For president, Lyba Mackie and Thurza Scott; vice-president, Barbara Smith and Alma Koopman; secretary, Dorothy Nelson and Emily Deloung; treasurer, Barbara Gunn and Dorothy Behrman.

Committee Members

On the nominations committee for the women's organization were: Ruby Klistoff, Marion Dicke, Annette Schunick and Lucille Jacke. All are of past experience with the WAA. Miss Jacke is its present president.

Election of officers for the coming semester is taking place during Tourney Week, when votes may be cast by all women students of the college.

The committee chose these candidates for offices on their experience with the association, judged them on their scholastic standing, and their interest in the work they have done for the organization as a whole.

Freshman Chosen

One of the candidates for secretary, Emily Deloung, is the only Low Freshman chosen by the committee, the others are High Freshmen and Low Sophomores.

Results of the election of officers will be announced at the Mother-Daughter Tourney Week banquet of Wednesday evening, December 13.

James Pigg, Englands's great pugilist, won the first formal heavyweight title bout on record, from Ned Sutton, the Gravesend Pipemaker, in 1727, when he challenged Sutton at t'foll, backsword, cudgel and fist".

Stereoscope Comes From Attic; Aids Study

As the bustle has been rescued from oblivion, so has the stereoscope, that small forerunner of the motion picture with which Grandma entertained her favorite gentleman friend of a cold winter's evening.

The stereoscope, however, in its modernized form, unlike the bustle, serves an educational purpose. Evidence is present within the college in the embryology course of which Sue Waller Menke, recently returned from two years of study in Baltimore, is the instructor.

Embryology, to the newspaper reporter, is "that branch of biology which deals with the formation and development of organisms." To the scientist, who needs not to examine the dictionary, it is fundamental, and academically speaking, one of those studies required for advancement in the field.

After several years of meeting the obvious handicap of obtaining and preserving material for study, Dr. J. A. Long and Dr. Paul Burlingame, of the University of California, considered the long-forgotten stereoscope. There they found the solution to their problem.

Through the stereoscope, pictures become three-dimensional and students, benefitting from the latest form of visual education, learn their subject quickly and easily. The materials of learning can be used from one semester to the next, thus saving expense and technical preparation allowing the initial preparation of the sets of pictures.

Entitled atlases, two sets are used within the college embryology course, those of the rat and chicken, which sets show the development from the 1st to 18th day, and include some 200 pictures.

How do the students react to this new form of education? It's almost as entertaining as a movie, they say, and observers notice that they do not over-stress the "almost."

Kristian Benneche, above, college embryology student, uses the modernized stereoscope to study a stage in the development of a chicken.

Survey Of Vocational Training In Colleges Planned By Educators

To discuss plans for a possible survey of occupational opportunities existing for graduate college students, Joseph P. Nourse, superintendent of schools, conferred with a group of 25 representatives from local institutions last week.

Those present from the college were President Archibald J. Cloud and Coordinator J. Graham Sullivan.

"Mr. Nourse feels that the Bay Area offers a fine opportunity for vocational work, and he is interested in the semi-professional courses given at our college," President Cloud said.

"A survey of this kind, if carried out, might enable us to present even more vocational training courses than we now offer," President Cloud added.

Superintendent Nourse has recently returned from a conference in Chicago, at which time he observed the work carried on by eastern school systems.

A Capella Choir Breaks Into Big Time; Will Sing Over Nation Hookup

The college A Capella choir, directed by Flossita Badger, gets its big chance for fame when it sings Christmas Eve from the San Francisco Opera House over the National Broadcasting Company's coast-to-coast hookup.

Sponsored by the San Francisco News and NBC, this program of Christmas carols between 7 and 8 p.m., will also include selections by choral groups and NBC soloists.

Directed by Charles Dennis, director of music of the San Francisco School Department, the program will be recorded and then be played back over stations KPO and KGO at 10:30 p.m., the same evening.

Tentative selections to be sung are Christmas Pie, an old English carol, and O'Holy Night, arranged by Dudley Buck.

On December 19, at 6:15 p.m., the choir will present a Christmas program over station KGO.

Equestrians Show Gallop Finish In WAA Week Event

WAA equestrians will gallop home in the finish of an eventful semester Friday evening, December 8, at 7:30 o'clock, when they ride in the Women's Athletic Association Horse Show.

The show will take place at the San Francisco Riding Academy at Haight and Stanyan streets, and is open to the general public. There is no admission fee, so come one, come all, said Laurine Bergin, riding instructor.

Ring master will be Robert Vandenburg; ring mistress, Verrel Weber; judges, Erma Sigherd and Homer Thayle. Although it is not definitely known, there are expected to be several other judges.

Trophies for the show will be donated by the Women's Athletic Associaton of the college and by the owner of the Riding Academy.

In addition to the college students appearing in the show, participants from most of the high schools in the city will appear.

As has been done before, the college Block Society will usher with members of the Athletic Association.

NYA Students

All NYA students who have not already done so are reminded that they must see Edward H. Redford, college NYA director, no later than December 15.

Home Economics Group To Hold Christmas Party

Members of the college Home Economic Association will hold a Christmas party December 13 at 5350 Hillen Drive, Oakland, announced Barbara Smith, group president.

All members leaving directly from Galileo will meet at the college at 4:30 p.m., and take the train," Miss Smith said.

Everyone who is a member of the association is cordially invited.

How to Have A MERRY CHRISTMAS

1. Go to your book shelf and get all your old textbooks.
2. Take them to the Student store and sell them.
3. Go down and spend the money on Christmas presents.
4. Then you'll have a MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Your textbooks for this semester can be turned in now for the same amount as at the end of the semester.

Junior College Student Store
518 POWELL STREET

RECORD YOUR VOICE with JIMMY WALSH and his orchestra

A SPECIAL FEATURE ON FRIDAY NIGHTS ONLY

If you are a holder of a winning ticket you may have the privilege of making a recording with this famous orchestra. The record is yours as a souvenir. Tickets may be obtained at no charge from the males of Hotel

HOTEL MARK HOPKINS
GEO. D. SMITH - GENERAL MANAGER

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE GUARDSMAN"

—MRS. HILDA WATSON

Mrs. Watson, who directs student operation of the cafeteria at Galileo, says:

"Display advertising in The Guardsman, concurrent with health program launched by the physical education department, has developed a 25% increase in Junior College patronage in the cafeteria."

Men's Athletic Council Awards Block Letters For Football, Soccer

Acceptance of football and soccer awards was officially made last Monday during the Men's Athletic Council meeting held in the Dean's office.

Sending an award list to the executive council, the names of the eligibles were read and received approval from the council members present.

Awards to be given to team members who have administered valuable service are as follows:

Football: Jim Molteh, George Meyers, Ed Schoenstein, Harding Leong, Al Nauman, Fran Gray, Gil Johannessen, John Molson, John Gray, Dave Cunningham, Mel Chickosola, George Jensen, Vernon Alguado, Pete Matson, Ken Hagen, Alex Speller, Lee Leggett, Herb Taylor, and Bob Gratgite.

Soccer: Ted Theodus, Bill Chung, Walter Lorrie, Andrew Javotsky, Francis Schneeberger, Dan Mellugh, Henry Kreutymus, Dale Cunitte, Bob Owens, John Greig, Marvin Georgian, and John O'Leary.

Managers Art Rosembrock, John Bureis, and Hugh Ryan will receive awards because of their services performed.

A banquet for new Letter initiates, presented by the Block SF Society, will be held next Wednesday, December 13 at the Rex Restaurant, 491 Broadway. Dinner will begin at 6 p.m. and the initiation is expected, according to Block SF Leader Kenneth Pasqualette, to last at 8 p.m.

Serving on the initiation committee which has been appointed to assist Pasqualette in putting over a good show are Bob Schoenstein, Adrian Carignani, and Wilton Latz.

Pasqualette announced that all block men should attend the banquet because it is one of the highlights of the season for men who have won their letters.

It was learned that the Block Awards rally will be staged Friday, January 12.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940

Vol. IX TUESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1940 No. 14

HIGH SOPHS START GALA WEEK

Nominations Assembly Tomorrow Will Introduce Candidates; Put Constitution Changes To Students

Assembly

Brief speeches will be made tomorrow by candidates for student office at a Nominations Assembly at 2:30 p. m. in the Galileo auditorium.

Associated Students President Elmer Hubacher, who will preside, will introduce the newly nominated candidates.

Because there are many students running for President and Vice-President of the Student Association, addresses by them outlining their qualifications and future intentions (if elected) will be made as briefly as possible, it was learned.

Hubacher asked that all members of the college who own student cards attend the Nomination Rally.

Classes Dismissed

"We want to have the Auditorium packed tomorrow," he said. "Classes will be dismissed for an hour, after class attendance has been taken."

Three For President

Eager and ambitious men of the college seeking the Association presidency are Al Williams, Hal Hoffman, and Hugh Ryan.

Running for Vice-President are Muriel Grenelle and Muriel Nolan; for Secretary, Florence Hansen; for Associated Men Students offices Lyle Shultz, Bob Owens, president; Harold Unterberger, secretary.

Seeking the position of President of the Associated Women Students will be Marion MacKillop and Gloria Miller; Vice-President, Jean Chesler, and Jean Arnold; and Secretary, Dorothy Mills.

Running unopposed for reelection as yell-leader of the college is Ray Berns, who has held the position during the past semester. He assured of continuing in office because no candidates have filed against him.

Constitution

Important changes in the Associated Students' constitution will be submitted to the student body at a special assembly next week, announced President Elmer Hubacher. The changes will be introduced at today's nominations rally.

The changes will be in the form of two amendments, the first designed to introduce a Welfare Council, the second to make the course in Political Science 92, Student Governament, a prerequisite to candidacy for the office of Associated Student President instead of the present arrangement, wherein student body officers are required to take the course only after having been elected to office.

The proposal to formulate a Welfare Council designed to act as an investigating and advisory body has been in being since Jack Lund, a former Welfare Council Chairman at the University of California, delivered an address to the Executive Council on the subject. Since then a special committee of the Executive Council has been working to draw up a constitutional amendment embodying the ideas outlined by Lund.

At the time of writing the actual wording of the amendment had not been determined, but Hubacher announced that the intention of the amendment was to create a Welfare Council of ten, under a chairman appointed by the Associated Student President, four of the remaining members would be the several class presidents, the remainder to be chosen at large. The members of the council would serve for a term of one semester in the capacity of investigators, advisers, and general handymen for the hard-pressed Executive Council.

This amendment in its actual wording will be voted upon by the Executive Council at its meeting today, and if considered satisfactory by the council, will be finally presented as an amendment to the constitution.

The second amendment has already been recorded, presented to the council, and approved. Its wording is as follows: "Any student desiring to run for office as President of the Associated Students shall be required to have completed Political Science 92 with a grade of 'C' or better during or previous to the semester of his candidacy. Exceptions to this rule may be made by the Dean of Men with the approval of the Executive Council."

Original intention had been to present the amendments to the student body for vote at the special nominations assembly tomorrow, but this plan was abandoned because of the provision in the constitution making necessary the publication of The Guardsman of amendments at least one week before the time of voting.

Debaters To Go To Stockton For Fourth Annual Speech Tournament, Town-Meeting

College debaters will travel to Stockton on February 15 for a three day session of the Fourth Annual Junior College Speech Tournament featuring the first intercollegiate town meeting.

Lloyd Lamsmann, debate coach, plans to take eight to ten debaters to the meet, and the trip will be financed by the college student body.

There are four sections of the tournament, debate, oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and the intercollegiate town meeting. The debating, oratory and extemporaneous speaking events will be judged, and suitable trophies will be awarded to those who are winners.

Students eligible to enter the tournament are those who are registered in junior colleges and who have not graduated therefrom, freshmen and sophomores of four-year institutions, and any other undergraduate student who did not participate in an intercollegiate 'forensic contest prior to September, 1939.

Luckmann revealed that he plans to send Elinor Coy, Barbara Smith, Bill Hall, Howard Latcher, Rema Corbin, Janet Fellows, Tom Gordon, and Lou Goldstone to the meet, but he explained that he would probably add to that group.

The intercollegiate town meeting will be divided into seven parts to discuss national problems and will bring the results of their discussion to the tournament as a whole, where a definite decision will be made in relation to a policy which will best serve the interests of America. Main problem to be discussed is the question, What should be the foreign policy of the United States with respect to the war crisis in Europe?

The subject is considered to be not only appropiate because of its timeliness, but also because of the many viewpoints that may be held in regard to it present an ideal situation for a town-meeting type of program.

Soph Sweetheart

College Instructor Highly Praised For Research Work

For his astronomical observations and research work, Dr. Louis Berman, college astronomy instructor, has long been recognized by prominent astronomers, both in the United States and Europe.

Fairly recently he again attracted widespread attention by the publication of his investigations of the Galaxy or Milky Way.

The following paragraph, regarding Dr. Berman's latest work, is quoted from an article appearing in a recent issue of the San Francisco Classroom Teacher's Bulletin.

"Dr. Louis Berman of the Junior College, received international recognition recently from a number of scientists, including Sir Arthur Eddington, Bertil Lindblatt of Stockholm, and Prof. Henry Norris Russell of Princeton and Mt. Wilson observatories, for investigations on that complicated astronomical problem, The Rotation of the Galaxy, published as a Lick Observatory bulletin. The Scientific American also voted an article to the implication of Berman's work: a popular magazine referred to it as one of the outstanding contributions of the year; and modern textbooks quote his results."

Dr. Berman has been engaged in research work for the past ten years, and in the course of that time has produced a great many scientific papers which have been published in the bulletins of various astronomical societies, among them the Royal Astronomical Society of London.

At the present time he is studying double-stars with the aid of photographic plates from Lick Observatories.

Leaders Of Club Advisory Board Selected; Closer Cooperation Is Objective

Elected at the last meeting of the Club Advisory Board, Alden "Slim" Thorogood, president; Lyba Mackie, vice-president; and Burton Wines, secretary-treasurer, will head the board activities next semester.

According to a statement made by the new president, "The main objective is to have unity and closer co-operation between the board itself and the student Executive Council, plus the 100 per cent support of all the organized clubs of the college."

Thorogood also remarked that the board's purpose is not to act as a group to renew and judge petitions of the organizations such as a "rubber stamp group," but as an advisory board composed of representatives of the clubs for mutual relationship between each club.

For the restricted groups of the college, the board hopes to organize a unified pledging season, in which all groups will have a certain period during which all new members or pledges will be initiated.

The board will meet at regular two weeks intervals during the course of the next semester, working under a program designed to coordinate club activities. Previous boards have initiated inter-club dances, athletic competition, leaving a precedent of activity for the new board officers to match. "We feel certain that this coming semester will be one of continued progress towards our goal of club unity," said Thorogood.

Sweetheart Contest, AWS Tea Dansant And Formal Are Scheduled As Part Of Coming Sophomore Week Activities

Dansant

Vieing to capture the respective ballots of some two thousand voting students, three young women recognized as being among the outstanding "glamour girls" of the campus, have announced their intentions of competing for the regal role of Sophomore Sweetheart.

Feminine pulchritude will be at a premium as critical students with an eye on the respective merits of aspirants Dolores Dixon, Murielle Grenelle, and Ruby Klistoff, (alphabetically arranged for protection to the reporter), will select from this group the one candidate who meets most with their approval.

Contest Open To All

In past semesters the Sophomore Sweetheart was chosen only from the Sophomore ranks, but, cognizant of the beauty of the lower classmen, Bill O'Neil, High Sophomore president, has broken a precedent in lowering the barriers to include candidates from all classes.

Dolores Dixon is a representative of Phi Beta Rho, while Ruby Klistoff hails from the Alpha Phi Omega. Murielle Grenelle has been active in student affairs and is currently Associated Student Secretary.

Ballots will be given to each student card holder as he or she enters the Nomination Assembly tomorrow afternoon. A special committee appointed by O'Neil will then tabulate the votes. The winner of the contest will be announced at the Women's Tea Dansant this Thursday.

Formal

Mr. and Miss San Francisco Junior College, attired in formal garb, will swing and sway in the Banquet Room of Aquatic Park, located at the foot of Polk Street, from 9 'til 1 next Friday evening.

The occasion will be the semi-annual Soph Formal which is under the sponsorship of, and dedicated to, the graduating sophomores.

Maestro for the evening will be Gordon Burge, who will present a twelve piece orchestra and a girl vocalist.

Burge is well known in San Francisco society circles, having played for several dances given in honor of debutantes in particular, and the young set in general.

Bids, now on sale, are $1.25 per couple and may be purchased from Bill O'Neil, high soph president, Wilton Latz, Dolores Dixon, Adele Kuhn, Louis DeLare, Dorothy Trood, Elmer Hubacher, Ray Berns, and Tony Manov, members of the Sophomore Week committee.

Sweetheart

"Soph"—isticates will dance to the music of Larry Cannon, Thursday, January 4 at the Century Club, Sutter and Franklin Streets, from 4 to 6, revealed Muriel Nolan, president of the Associated Women Students and chairman of the tea dansant committee.

This will be the third tea dansant to be sponsored by the women's organization. The idea was started during the Fall semester, and the succeeding dansants have attracted a large percentage of the college men and women.

Admission By Card

Admission to the AWS affair will be the presentation of an Associated Student card by every student, for those attending individually, or one card for each couple.

Pineapple juice will be served this year instead of punch, and a variety of cookies and cake has been promised as intermission refreshments by Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

"I think that students will find this to be one of our most enjoyable social gatherings of the semester, especially since it's the climaxing event and the one for which we have had continued requests," she commented.

This semester the group decided to omit novel paper napkins, and the committee is working on an Hawaiian theme in conjunction with the pineapple juice, Miss Nolan said.

Special guests invited include President and Mrs. A. J. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Mohr, Mary Jane Learnard, Edna Denhart, Mary Perry, Eileen Ilse, Mabel Stone, Mae Pritchard, Marion Turner, Tom Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams, Verrel Weber, Alden Smith, Joan Nourse, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sundys, Bertha Keller, Evans Ekke, Claire Cuneo, Mabel Clay, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Agosti.

Prominent Hosts, Hostesses

Hosts include such prominent men as Elmer Hubacher, Ray Berns, Tony Manov, Wilton Latz, David Cunningham, Harold Hoffman, Lee Scarlett, Al Williams, Lyle Schulz, Bill Frantz, Dave LeBaron, Douglas Alexander Bill O'Neil, and Art Pomeroy.

Hostesses for the tea dansant include Marion MacKillop, Margaret Meuder, Claire Miller, Dorothy Trood, Muriel Grenelle, Helen Hansen, Dorothy Mills, Jean Steward, Grace Tatti, Jeanne Kelly, Lorraine Johnsen, Frances Koski, Pearl Brunton, Margaret Ward, Adele Kuhn, Anna Held, Jean Arnold, Virginia Barney, Lucille Jacke, Florence Hansen, Ruby Klistoff, Lyba Mackie, Helen DuBois, and Barbara R. Smith.

Business Students Work During Christmas Holidays

Twenty-five college students received employment during the Christmas holidays through Virginia Cohn, faculty business adviser. All students in the retail merchandising class also held positions during the vacation.

The junior division of the California State Employment Association has informed the business department of the college that there are many openings for employment for men and women under 21 years of age. There are permanent and temporary jobs available, and some employers are asking for inexperienced beginners in order to train their employees in their own way.

Radio Production Course Planned For Next Term

Script writing in advanced form will be added to next semester's college curriculum in the radio broadcasting division according to Marie Weller, college broadcasting instructor. Miss Weller explained that the course would include work in adaptations, children's programs, commercials, music committies, talks, sport programs, and news broadcasts.

The course will be known as Speech 32 and will be a follow-up course of Speech 31.

Approval of the new five unit course in radio broadcasting, announced before Christmas by Miss Weller, came from President A. J. Cloud who said that if the college time and schedule would permit such a course, the administration was favorable toward it and the course would probably come into being.

The five unit course is designed as a workshop course in broadcasting with three of the weekly five hours of class time being devoted to work in the KSFO studio at the Palace Hotel.

Stiff Battle For President Forseen As Three Candidates Begin Campaigns

Election Information

Pictured on the right are the three aspirants for the office of President of the Associated Students of the college.

Other candidates for Associated Student offices are Muriel Grenelle and Muriel Nolan for vice-president; Florence Hansen for Secretary; Lyle Schultz and Bob Owens for AMS president; Marion MacKillop and Gloria Miller for head of the AWS. (For more complete information on the candidates, see column one.)

Running unopposed for reelection as yell-leader of the college is Ray Berns, who has held the position during the past semester, is assured of continuing in office because no candidates have filed against him.

The college will go to the polls Friday, January 5. Voting machines will be installed at both Powell Street and Galileo to facilitate voting.

Elmer Hubacher, Associated Student's president, requested that all students make an effort to cast their ballot in the forthcoming election so that competent officers may be chosen.

An election committee composed of Hubacher, Dorothy Trood, vice-president of the Associated Students, Alden Thorogood, newly elected president of the Club Advisory Board, Lucille Jacke, president of the Women's Athletic Association, and Len Gross, managing editor of The Guardsman, will assist in the voting.

Only persons holding an Associated Student's card will be allowed to vote.

HAROLD HOFFMAN HUGH RYAN AL WILLIAMS

The Guardsman
The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX TUESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1940 No. 14

BILL FRANTZ ..... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser ..... Business Adviser
Joan Nourse ..... Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross ..... Managing Editor
Isadore Maloff ..... Assistant Editor
Daniel Rosenblatt ..... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli ..... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ..... Business Manager
Marlen MacKillop ..... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claims to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

This Semester's Election To Be Last One Before New Building Voids Ancient Excuses For Poor Turnout

TOMORROW afternoon candidates for student offices will be presented to the Associated Students. Each candidate will briefly outline his electoral platform.

In past elections representative voting has suffered because of the problem confronting the college as a whole—the scattering of college locations. This will again be true in the current election, although it will be the last time that such conditions will exist.

Outlined electoral platforms also suffer at the hands of the same problem. Whatever their value, whatever the sincerity of intention on the part of those elections, one more group of student officers must face the difficulty of gathering students together for concentrated and democratic action.

There is, however, another side to the problem. Assemblies such as those tomorrow are scheduled at times when every member of the Associated student organization could be present were he to make the effort and show his interest. It is, in short, the individual member's responsibility to participate in and assist the organization of the Associated Students. It would appear sometimes that perhaps not only the housing difficulties lie at the root of lack of interest.

Next fall this problem will not exist. Students will no longer have the stand-by'excuse to offer when one-fifth of the Associated Students turn out and vote. It might be well, then, to practice now, to attend the nominations rally tomorrow, to give considerate attention to the candidates for office, to hear what they propose, and then, to vote for those who will best fulfill the requirements of their offices, and best represent officially the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College.

Remaining Floors Of New Campus Described To Students

Roof To Feature Modern Astronomical Laboratory

By LEONARD GROSS

Going up! Having more or less thoroughly explored the basement and first floor of the new campus, we are about to ascend the second, third and fourth layers of the building.

The second floor is taken up mostly with chemistry laboratories, six in all. From the left end of the building down toward the center entrance, we find first a music room, then a physics laboratory lab. Following along the halls we find several storerooms, a lecture hall with stepped seats, classrooms, faculty offices, more chemistry labs, and more classrooms.

• • •

First thing that confronts one on inspection of floor number three is the dental assistant's laboratory. Other rooms on the floor are the business rooms, consisting of the accounting and typing departments and the various business machines. Also on the third floor are the biological science storerooms, physics and anatomy labs, classrooms, a library, a reserve book room, a botany lab, and a bacteriology lab. There are two zoology labs, more classrooms, and a landscape architecture laboratory.

• • •

There is really no fourth floor. It is rather a little rectangular section in the middle of the building which houses the observatory. Inside the observatory, college authorities plan to have a 12 inch refractor telescope. This 'scope will be 22 inches long. The observatory itself has a 26 foot copper sheathed dome.

This puts us at the highest tip of the new Balboa Park building. (If you don't believe us, just look around you.) Having explored the building from bottom to top, it is easy to realize that the permanent building will indeed be "one of the most modern and fully equipped institutions of its class in the entire nation."

Next week, your exploring reporter will present a preview of the two gymnasiums as they will appear when completed.

FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE — FALL 1939

Classes	Day	Hour
8:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday Jan. 15	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*8:00 o'clock—T-Th	Friday Jan. 19	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
9:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday Jan. 15	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
9:00 o'clock—T-Th	Tuesday Jan. 16	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
10:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Wednesday Jan. 17	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*10:00 o'clock—T-Th	Thursday Jan. 18	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
11:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Thursday Jan. 18	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
11:00 o'clock—T-Th	Tuesday Jan. 23	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
12:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday Jan. 22	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
12:00 o'clock—T-Th	Wednesday Jan. 24	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*1:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Tuesday Jan. 16	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
*1:00 o'clock—T-Th	Monday Jan. 22	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday Jan. 15	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock—T-Th	Wednesday Jan. 17	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Tuesday Jan. 23	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock—T-Th	Wednesday Jan. 24	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.

All classes meet in regular rooms for examination with the exception of those meeting at Powell Street which are marked with an asterisk. They will meet at Galileo High School in rooms to be listed later.

Afternoon examinations held at 58 Sutter Street and at Girls High School will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. instead of from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

A special schedule will be issued by the Department of Business Education.

All classes beginning at 8:10 or 8:30 a.m. are scheduled for examination with 8 o'clock classes. This regulation follows for each succeeding hour. Examinations are scheduled for the hour of the lecture period, not the laboratory or conference period.

Skiing Club Tries Out Straw-Skidding; Pushes New Membership Campaign

Newly chartered by the Club Advisory Board, the college skiing group met recently to plan future ski tours.

The snow-swishers are interested in dry-skiing, or skiing on straw, according to Bob Ogg, present president of the group.

"Straw-skiing is new out in this part of the country," says Ogg. "The skiing group at Stanford introduced it on the Coast about four years ago. Skiiers from the Bay Area need practice all the year round without having to take a 400 mile trip to the snow country. Straw, while of a different surface than snow, gives the same general effect as snow.

"Consequently, our novices and neophytes can easily become accustomed to the difficulties attending actual snow skiing when snow is at its best up in the mountains."

Smith, instructor in the college and adviser and co-organizer of the club, invited all members of the college, both men and women, who are interested in skiing to join.

Smith said, "The club now has 8 women enrolled in it. We would like this to become a real co-educational function, and I think it will from the way everyone co-operates."

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

BASKETBALL SEASON IS HYAR!

RAMS ENTER MODESTO TOURNEY

Six Down; Four To Go

Red Sharpshooters Smash Foe With All-Time High Score; Look Forward To League Championship

With an eye of an eagle, the aim of a lightning bolt, the confidence of progressive youth, the Ram rifle squad broke all precedent in defeating the American Trust Company by an amazing score of 941 to 894, in its sixth consecutive victory of the season.

This score set a new high for the locals; it was at least 20 points more than has been recorded since the establishment of the college.

Tops National Title Score

It was one of the highest scores made in Northern California with the use of iron rifle sights in recent years. That score could have easily won the National Collegiate Rifle Championship for the team last year, for the 1938 title was obtained by the University of California at approximately 30 points less than the significant score made by the Rams.

Led by Joe Davy, who garnered 192 points, the Rams made a walkaway of the match. Right behind Davey followed Al Templeton with a score of 191, then Captain Charles North with 190, Ed Box and George Humphrey each made 184.

Such a score as that seemed strange. It marked the first time the Rams have ever placed more than one man in the 190's.

Sixth Win In a Row

The glorious victory was the sixth in a row for college marksmen. It gave them an undisputed position of first place in the present standings of the Golden Gate Bridge League.

With a shooting distance of 75 feet, the match was held at the Golden Gate Club. As usual, the Ram sharpshooters made good use of their Springfield rifles. They shot twenty-twos at targets of about two inches in diameter.

Unbeatened

Having lost not a single match this fall, it seems highly probable that if the Ram riflers can continue to blast away at the targets with such accuracy, the college might well boast of one the few undefeated rifle teams on the Pacific Coast.

"My men have performed admirably so far," said Capt. Fred McFarland, rifle coach. "I expect to see them go through one of the most successful seasons we've ever had."

"High Morale"—McFarland

Praise was given by the rifle instructor to the whole rifle group. "Un-

Also, McFarland made known the fact that Templeton, with a six match average of 186, and Humphrey, with a 185, have administered great help in keeping the Ram score above the 900 point mark.

The defeat of the 159th infantry by a score of 923 to 903 on December 6th had marked the fifth in a row for McFarland's men.

Lead League

As the Ram-Trust company match was the sixth competitive league match for the collegiate sharpshooters, but four meets remain before the Golden Gate Bridge League championship is settled.

As the Rams have defeated every member-team of the Bridge League, McFarland feels that, barring an upset or two, the Rams should finish at the top.

Next On January 11

Next match for the Rams will be with the Independent Rifle Club on January 11th.

Records of the individual members of the college sharpshooters are as follows (1200 points would mark a perfect score): Al Templeton, 1113; George Humphrey, 1107; Charles North, 1100; Louis Davey, 1093; Dan Minium, 1087; John Pierce, 1052.

Goofs Split

Jayvee "Pinks" Edge Out Milkmen, Get Swamped By Balboa For Starter

Record of Tom Wilson's Junior Varsity basketball team in practice games stands now as one game won and one game lost.

Dumped badly by the fleet Balboa high school basketballers, 51-16, the Ram lightweights opened their practice season recently with a vulnerable defense and an offense which proved at times fairly ineffective.

All members of the team, a total of 16 men, used in the game as Wilson was seeking a possible combination with which an effective scoring unit could be found.

Kreutzman Big Gun

Only one man looking promising at that time was Henry Kreutzman, first year college student, who tanked 10 points.

Later, during the commencement of the Christmas vacation, Wilson's men met the Marin Dell milkmen on the Dalles court. Outcome of that game ended with a one point victory for the Rams, 33 to 32.

The game was won for the Rams in the final two seconds by Hank "Frank Merriwell" Kreutzman, who sank a 20 footer just before the gun popped.

That Man Again

Aside from the winning goal, Kreutzman had seven additional points to his credit. His passing and ball handling was sparkling throughout the game.

Wilson announced that Kreutzman was the first man starter in the opening conference game which will begin soon.

"The team showed much improvement in the Marin Dell battle", said Wilson.

Throughout the last two weeks the Jayvee Varsity basketballers have rapidly shown improvement in practice. With a little more "smoothing down"-Wilson believed just the Rams would be "raring to go".

Helen Crlenkovich On Way In Good-Will Tour To Argentine Republic

Helen Crlenkovich, America's outstanding exponent of the graceful art of fancy diving and number one woman of the college is now on her way to South America.

One of a group of American athletes sent on a good will tour to Argentina, Miss Crlenkovich is the only athlete on the Pacific Coast selected to make the trip.

The money for the journey was raised by the city of San Francisco.

Named as the champion woman diver of the United States after defeating all opponents last summer, Helen after returning from Argentina will begin training for her appearance in the 1940 Olympic Games.

The Fights

AMS Bouts Slated For January 10; Sluggers Ready

College students will flock to the Verdi Club on Wednesday, January 10th for the battles of the century, when the Associated Men Students will hold the college boxing championships.

All Bouts In One Night

The championships will be determined in one night, with Golden Gloves going to the final winners. Joe Amori will referee the bouts, as he has done in years past. Participants, according to Amori, will be feasted in a feed at some restaurant.

Specialty Fights Offered

"We have had several other boxers announce their intentions to enter," said Amori. "I have a special bout lined up with two Japanese students of the college.

"They weigh but 107 pounds each, and should show the spectators plenty of skill and speed.

"In addition, Frank Matsumoto and Al Williams will fight. Matsumoto will enter the 129's and Williams the 149's, against Allen Larsen.

"Both of these men have fought in other college tournaments. Williams being 149 champ two years ago."

Evald Larsen, Al Larsen's twin brother will make bid in the 139 pound class.

Everyone Invited

The fights will be free to all students and their guests.

The officers of the Men's Club and Amori expect a good crowd, but the hall will hold everyone easily.

Those who wish to participate are invited to enter. The gyms will be open for their training.

Refreshments will be served to all who attend.

RAMblings

By RAY BERNS

PICKS TOP OUTFIT

Now that the basketball season is in full swing, it seems that it's about time that we select what will be, in our humble opinion, the outstanding team in the junior college conference.

Although we are, at heart, strictly partisan, and would, therefore, like to state that the locals will be the champs, we must, nevertheless, be the unbiased newspaper man and report the facts.

According to the facts, the next and repeating champion of the coast division will be Marin.

VETERANS RETURNING

Four veterans are back from last year's title-grabbing outfit—all conference stars Bob Borelch and Ernie Allen, not to mention firststringers Ed Eorde and "Dutch" Boysen.

The payoff comes when one finds that the leading scorer of the squad to date is Dave Mariani, the only freshman on the squad.

Mariani, poor kid, is only averaging 18½ points per contest at this writing.

Incidentally, Tom Wilson's local jayvee eagers will meet, later in the season, Marin's second squad, the Rangers, who won a game a short time ago, 101 to 38.

Pathetic Note:—Two members of the local varsity, "Red" Kerwin and Joe Johns, guards, will be ineligible for our first four conference games. Add tale of woe:— Conlan's squad is without a single returning veteran from last year's team.

RAM TENNIS STOCK UP

Prospects for a net championship next semester have increased since the last report.

Tom Wilson, tennis mentor, reveals that three veterans are returning to form the nucleus of the squad while three new-comers will complete the team.

Wilson's outfits have achieved quite a record in winning the title three years running and a fourth consecutive championship would really be something.

Inexperienced Ram Five Will Participate In State-Wide Junior College Basketball Tourney

With Coach Louis "Dutch" Conlan at the helm, ten or twelve of the local cagaba tossers will journey to Modesto for the annual State junior college basketball tournament to be held this coming Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Defeated in the second round of the tourney last year by Modesto, the eventual winner, the Ram basketeers find prospects for improving upon that standing this season not too bright.

Old Stars Gone

Minus Opalinski, Curcio, Fischer, Blackfield, Nicco, Wolf, Bedroslan, and a few dozen other outstanding eagerz, Conlan will invade the valley town with an inexperienced team.

The theoretical first team, that is, the outfit that opened the game against the New Domestic Laundry, was composed of Tommy McCarthy, formerly of Lowell, and ex-Polytte Sid Kevich at forwards; center spot was held down by Ed Stayner, while Mario Salacone, up from last year's jayvee squad, and "Red" Cassidy held down the guard positions.

Subs Show Up

Replacements who showed to good advantage were "Red" Kerwin, St. Mary's transfer; Clary Richards, flashy forward from Poly; Ernie Smith, all county guard from Berkeley; Jim Kuhn, pivot man up from Wilson's team; Joe Johns, Modesto transfer, and Dave Cunningham.

Although no reports have been forthcoming from Conlan as to who will make the trip, the above mentioned players appear to be the most likely to go.

Leading Teams To Compete

All of the leading junior college hoop aggregations in the State will take part in the tourney which is somewhat in the nature of the State Teacher's Colleges' clinic held last week at San Jose.

The Modesto affair is not, however, as the San Jose clinic was, a round-robin, but is an elimination tournament.

Anywhere from sixteen to twenty teams participate in the tourney, necessitating a total of from four to five games for both the winner and the runner-up.

All-Star Outfit Chosen

At the conclusion of the three-day affair, coaches, players, and sports writers get together and choose an all-state junior college basketball team.

Hal Fischer, lanky guard, was the only local to garner a place on last year's all-tar outfit as he was placed on the second team.

Prelim Tussles

Hoopsters Drop Double Header Tilts In Initial Practices

Galileo Gym, Friday, December 15—Make no mistake, lads and lassies, San Francisco Junior College's varsity basketball team, 1940 edition, is no wonder outfit, but it's a squad which, nonetheless, will be hard to beat.

So much was borne out when Louis "Dutch" Conlan's Ram cagers met and were defeated by Howard Insurance Company, 40 to 30, and New Domestic Laundry, 34 to 32, here tonight.

Lose In Last Minute

In the second and feature game of the evening against the Laundry team, manned by such stalwarts as Al Opalinski and Hal Fischer of ex-Ram fame, six sturdy sons of Ramdom fought against superior manpower only to lose in the last fifteen seconds.

With six and one-half minutes of play remaining in the contest, the Ram stood at 31 all. Kotta, New Domestic forward, then dropped a thirty-footer to send the Washboys into the lead 34-32.

Kevich Almost Saves Game

For six minutes Conlan's lads rejoiced shot after shot in their anxiety to loot the count, but the break finally came in the last half minute of play when Sid Kevich, local forward who played sterling ball throughout the evening, broke away from his guard, took a short pass from Satcone, and sprinted down the court for a soft dash.

Kevich went under the basket for a set-up shot but was unable to connect as a Washboy draped his arms around the Ram forward's neck for which infraction of the rules our Mr. Kevich received two free shots.

Misses Free Throws

It might not be amiss to mention that the gun went off at this point and left Sid in quite a spot.

As evidenced by the final score, Kevich missed the foul throws which would have knotted the game.

Inspection Come From Behind

The local lads jumped into a slight lead at the outset of the game, or rather, we should say Kevich jumped into a slight lead as he potted three goals to send the Rams off to a six to two advantage. Thereafter, the half seesawed as first one team, then the other made a bucket.

Half time score favored the New Domestic outfit 15 to 13.

Fast Play In Second

In the second half, the complexion of the fracas remained the same, as both teams, moving in high gear and traveling at a terrific clip, traded buckets.

All six of the Ram participants, Kelch, Tommy McCarthy, Bob Stayner, Marion Salcone, Jim Cassidy, and "Red" Kerwin, were smooth on offense, and, when the rough spots are straightened out by Conlan, a good team may result.

Opener A Walkover

Howard's Insurance Company was in complete control of the first game at all times.

The local third and fourth stringers were dead game but didn't quite have the finesse to compete with the older and more experienced Insurance team.

Bright spots in the contest was the fine play of Bill Minnis, former Galileo player, at a guard spot and the scoring spree of Kerwin, who infested into the game at the opening of the second half, dropped in five goals in eight minutes.

THE STATISTICS

S. F. J. C. (32)	FG	FT	TP
McCarthy, f	4	1	9
Kevich, f	4	2	10
Stayner, c	2	1	5
Salacone, g	0	2	2
Cassidy, g	1	0	2
Kerwin, c	2	0	4
Totals	14	4	32
Domestic Laundry (34)	FG	FT	TP
Sullivan, f	0	0	0
Fischer, f	1	1	3
Opalinski, c	4	3	11
Pontacq, g	0	0	0
A. Anderson, g	0	0	0
Kotta, f	3	0	6
DeBischop, f	0	0	0
Fuetsch, c	3	0	6
Casselli, g	2	0	4
T. Anderson, g	0	0	0
Totals	14	6	34
S. F. J. C. (30)	FG	FT	TP
Janvien, f	0	0	0
Hulston, f	0	0	0
Basso, c	0	0	0
Minnus, g	1	1	3
Rankin, g	0	0	0
Pfhanl, f	0	1	2
Richards, f	3	1	7
Kerwin, f	6	0	12
Smith, g	1	0	2
Cunningham, g	0	0	0
Welch, g	0	0	0
Kuhn, c	0	1	1
Johns, g	2	0	4
Totals	13	4	30
Howard Insurance (40)	FG	FT	TP
L. Walters, f	5	0	10
P. Walters, f	5	3	13
Normand, c	1	1	3
Carpenter, g	3	0	6
Mason, g	2	0	4
Randall, f	1	2	4
Totals	17	6	40

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Vol. IX FRIDAY, JANUARY 5, 1940 No. 15

Out Of Many, One At Balboa Park In 1940

ELECTION! POLLS OPEN TODAY

Amendments

Rally To Decide On Constitution Change Friday

Four amendments to the Associated Students' Constitution will be voted on by the student body at a special assembly to be held at Galileo at 2:30 p.m. Friday, January 12.

J. Paul Mohr, Registrar of the college has announced that a rally will be called for that hour in order to permit the vote. "Four amendments to the constitution have been passed by the Executive Council, and will therefore be presented to the student body next week for the approval of the students," said Elmer Hubacher, President of the Associated Students.

The four amendments as announced by Hubacher are as follows:

"The President of the Associated Students shall give public notice of his intention to appoint the chairman and members of the Judicial Committee, the Social Committee, and the Welfare Council, at least one week previous to the time the appointments are made."

"Any student desiring to run for office as President of the Associated Students shall be required to have completed Political Science 92 with a grade of "C" or better during or previous to the semester of his candidacy."

"A Welfare Council is hereby installed as extra-curricular activity. The purpose of the Council is to make investigations, conduct drives, or to undertake any duties that concern the welfare of the college: either of their own accord or at the request of the President. The Welfare Council shall be composed of a chairman appointed by the President from the student body at large, of the four class presidents, the president of the Club Advisory Board, the chairman of the Judicial Committee, and four students to be appointed by the President from the student body at large. This committee shall be appointed within the first three weeks of the semester. A secretary shall be elected by the committee."

The fourth amendment will be a proposal to rescind Article V of the By-Laws of the Associated Students. The article in question reads as follows:

Allotment of Funds

1. The Music, Forensic, and Publication departments shall be allotted funds from the Associated Students budget.

2. The Alumni Association of the San Francisco Junior College shall be eligible to receive funds from the Associated Students.

Dance

Twelve Piece Band Featured At Soph Formal Tonight

Blue orchids, dazzling formals, and tuxedos will be the order of the evening when Mr. and Miss San Francisco Junior College will invade the palatial Marine Room of the Aquatic Park Casino for the semi-annual Soph Formal tonight.

Located at the foot of Polk Street, the Casino will echo with the soft music of Gordon Burdge and his twelve piece orchestra supplemented by a feminine vocalist.

Scene Popular

A popular dancing rendezvous and the scene of many University of California dances, Aquatic Park should prove a fine background for the smooth rhythms of Burdge who has played for many of the local Junior Leaguer's dances.

Dancing at the Formal, climax of the local social season, will be from 9 'til 1.

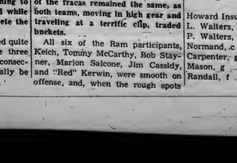
The affair will be dedicated to, and is in honor of the graduating high sophomores.

Attendance Urged

Bill O'Neil, High soph prexy, said, "we know that you will really enjoy the music of Gordon Burdge, and the Formal is the last dance of the semester. We would like to have as many as possible attend. Speaking for both myself and the sophomore committee, we feel that we can promise you a swell time."

Patrons and patronesses for the occasion will be President and Mrs. A. J. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Mohr, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham Sullivan, Miss Mary Jane Learned, Miss Margaret Donnelly, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Agosti, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Neill, Mr. Joseph Amori, and the class advisers, Miss Claire Cuneo, and Mr. John B. Ross.

Bids will be on sale today and may be obtained from O'Neil, Wilton Latz, Ray Berns, Elmer Hubacher, Dolores Dixon, Adele Kuhn, Dorothy Trood, Tony Manov, and Louise DeLaur, members of the sophomore committee.



NYA Students Asked To See Redford For Time Makeup

All NYA students who have not already done so must contact E. H. Redford, NYA director, before the end of the semester. This must be done whether or not students are returning to school next semester.

"Because of the holidays many students did not get all their hours in during December. If the student wishes these hours may be made up during the ensuing months providing the student does not work more than eight hours a day or fifty hours per month," Redford stated.

Students returning next semester who plan on continuing their NYA work are reminded that they must turn in their new schedule at the beginning of the semester.

Sophs Discuss Dance

Sophomores complete a busy social week tonight at the semi-annual Sophomore Formal. Week's activities were organized and directed by Sophomore Formal Week's activities were organized and directed by the committees pictured above, which committee sees its work culminate at the Aquatic Park Casino tonight. Left to right they are Lou Delaur, Dorothy Trood, Dolores Dixon, Elmer Hubacher, Adele Kuhn, Wilton Latz, and chairman Bill O'Neil.

Which One Do You Choose?

Harold Hoffman makes his bid for the presidency backed by his experience as head of the Club Advisory Board for the past two semesters. He has been a member of the executive council for two semesters. Hoffman is a pre-medical major and was president of the Pi Mu Gamma, pre-med society. This is his fourth semester in the college.

As Associated Men Students' Vice-President, Hugh Ryan's capability was proved when he took over the AMS Orientation Week during President Lee Scarlett's absence. He was captain of the junior varsity basketball team for the past two years and was a member of the Men's Athletic Council for two semesters. Ryan was also manager of the soccer team. This is Ryan's fourth semester in the college.

Al Williams is the present chairman of the college judiciary committee, and his past positions include AMS president and yell leader. This semester Williams made an investigation of the honor system and he was also instrumental in forming a Student Welfare Committee. The 149 lb. boxing championship once belonged to Williams. A psychology major, Al Williams is now in his fifth semester at the college.

AMS Completes Year With Bouts; Events Recalled

When the Associated Men Students present the annual pugilistic elimination championships, the male organization will bring to a semester packed with activity.

Recalled are such events as the AMS annual Barn Dance, the Hallowe'en spectacle which was regarded a hit by Leland Scarlett, Men Students' prexy and the men students of the college.

The presentation of Father-Son Night, held for the first time, at the Scottish Rite auditorium three weeks ago, was voiced by Scarlett as "something that the college may be proud of." Attendance at the Father-Son Night banquet at 150 lived up to expectations of the men who took efforts to make it a success.

Joe Amori, AMS adviser, said that much credit should be given to Al Williams, sophomore, for his work in making the banquet successful.

Asked whether the Father-Son Night will be a permanent AMS annual affair, Scarlett remarked that he hoped it would.

Rally To Be Held Next Friday At Galileo; Four Subjects To Be Featured

Scheduled for next Friday, January 12 a huge four part rally will be held in the Galileo Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. according to Registrar J. Paul Mohr, Dean Edwin C. Browne, and Elmer Hubacher, Associated Students' president.

The affair will be a combination Block SF Society Rally, Pre State basketball game rally, Amendment to the Constitution rally, and an introduction of next semester's officers.

The portion of the rally devoted to the Block Society will deal with the presenting of awards to prominent college athletes.

Important changes in the Associated Students' constitution will be submitted and include two amendments, the proposal to introduce a Welfare Council, the second to make the course in Political Science 92, Student Government, a prerequisite to candidacy for office of Associated Student President instead of the present arrangement wherein student body leaders are required to take the course only after having been elected to office.

Five New Courses To Be Inaugurated Into College Curriculum Next Semester

New courses will grace the college's curriculum next semester, according to Mary Jane Learned of the registrar's office. These new courses are the following:

Biology 11a and 11b for biology 11; Landscape Architecture 81a and 81b for LA 81 (Floral Shop);

Speech 25 in spring and fall semesters;

Speech 32 and Speech 33, advanced script and radio broadcasting respectively;

History 46b without prerequisite of History 46a;

A remedial course for students who have trouble in mastering foreign languages.

Special Guardsman On Registration Day

Students, as their purchase of Student's Association Card on January 30, will receive a special edition of The Guardsman, according to Bill Frantz, editor of the college paper.

"The edition will contain special news about registration, classes, Orientation Week, and additional information to facilitate registration for new students as well as returning college members," said Frantz.

News of changes during the period of final examinations and latest sport data will also be contained in the issue.

This will mark the first time an edition shall have been published at the time of registration.

It Would Have Been A Swell Rally But . . .

What's a day more or less, unless, of course, it's New Year's.

Some 500 students inspired to take their part in the coming student elections, and another 150 stragglers who aimed to make the Galileo balcony a haven of unrest, gathered last Wednesday to hear the candidates speak their pieces and incidently—but most incidently— to vote for the sophomore sweetheart.

But no. Something slipped. The rally, like the well known little gentleman, simply wasn't there. Scheduled for the Galileo auditorium three weeks ago, was voiced by Scarlett as "something that the college may be proud of." Attendance at the Father-Son Night banquet at 150 lived up to expectations of the men who took efforts to make it a success.

Joe Amori, AMS adviser, said that much credit should be given to Al Williams, sophomore, for his work in making the banquet successful.

Asked whether the Father-Son Night will be a permanent AMS annual affair, Scarlett remarked that he hoped it would.

Rally To Be Held Next Friday At Galileo; Four Subjects To Be Featured

Scheduled for next Friday, January 12 a huge four part rally will be held in the Galileo Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. according to Registrar J. Paul Mohr, Dean Edwin C. Browne, and Elmer Hubacher, Associated Students' president.

The affair will be a combination Block SF Society Rally, Pre State basketball game rally, Amendment to the Constitution rally, and an introduction of next semester's officers.

The portion of the rally devoted to the Block Society will deal with the presenting of awards to prominent college athletes.

Important changes in the Associated Students' constitution will be submitted and include two amendments, the proposal to introduce a Welfare Council, the second to make the course in Political Science 92, Student Government, a prerequisite to candidacy for office of Associated Student President instead of the present arrangement wherein student body leaders are required to take the course only after having been elected to office.

Five New Courses To Be Inaugurated Into College Curriculum Next Semester

New courses will grace the college's curriculum next semester, according to Mary Jane Learned of the registrar's office. These new courses are the following:

Biology 11a and 11b for biology 11; Landscape Architecture 81a and 81b for LA 81 (Floral Shop);

Speech 25 in spring and fall semesters;

Speech 32 and Speech 33, advanced script and radio broadcasting respectively;

History 46b without prerequisite of History 46a;

A remedial course for students who have trouble in mastering foreign languages.

High School Seniors Will Attend College Council Vocational Program

"Career Opportunities Through the Junior College," is the unusual program to be presented by the San Francisco Junior College Council on Wednesday evening, January 10, at the Central YMCA auditorium, 220 Golden Gate Avenue at 8:15 p.m. It is a program designed for mass vocational guidance of high school seniors and their parents.

Five outstanding instructors of the college will analyze various career opportunities, pointing out qualities needed for each and explaining principles that should guide selection of careers in different fields. Then they will discuss the various departments of the college, showing what results may be expected from each. All January and June high school graduates and their parents are invited to attend.

If students here have a brother or sister that is a high school senior, Claude A. Shull, president of the San Francisco Junior College Council, asks:

"Will you please pass this word on to the folks at home, and ask them to set aside Wednesday evening, for this purpose"?

Whether or not the high school senior plans to attend San Francisco Junior College next semester this meeting will help him choose and prepare for his career, Shull believes.

Dr. F. Grant Marsh, head of the business department, will cover the field of business; J. Graham Sullivan the hotel field; Louis Conlan, police and civil service; Lloyd Luckmann, courses leading to the university upper division, and John Ross, survey of courses leading to terminal work. All so opportunities in the fields of music and art will be discussed.

The Junior College A Capella Choir will sing and President Cloud will give the latest information concerning the new college building now being built in Balboa Park and the modern educational facilities to be offered.

The Junior College Council was organized several semesters ago by faculty and students for the purpose of sponsoring the interests of the college within the community.

Hoffman, Ryan, Williams Battle For President; Students Urged To Vote

Hang onto your hats folks, the last act in the great American masterpiece called students politics is about to take place.

In other words today is the day students of the college go to the polls and cast their ballots for the fellow or girl who gave them the glad hand most.

At the Powell Street building voting will be carried on by means of voting machines placed in the mezzanine floor near the checkroom. The polls will open at 9 a.m. and close at 1 p.m.

At Galileo machines will be in Room 150. The polls will be open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Voting at Girls High and 58 Sutter will be carried on by means of paper ballots.

Aspirants to the office of President of Associated Students are Harold Hoffman, retiring president of the Club Advisory Board, Al Williams, head of the college judicial committee and orgcinator of the proposed Welfare Council, and Hugh Ryan, present vice-president of the AMS.

Lee Scarlett, regarded as a sure candidate earlier in the semester, revealed that he would not seek the presidential office because of the pressure of his work with the Hotel Division next semester.

Other candidates for political office are as follows:

Vice-president, Muriel Grenelle, present secretary of the Associated Students, and Muriel Nolan, head of the AWS.

Secretary, Florence Hansen running unopposed.

President of the AMS, Lyle Schultz, prominent student leader, and Robert Owens, secretary of the AMS.

There is no candidate for the office of vice president of the AMS.

Treasurer of the AMS, Harold Unterberger running unopposed.

President of the AWS, Marion MacKillop, Guardsman staff artist and present vice-president of the women's organization, and Gloria Miller, head of the Women's Service Society.

Vice-president of the AWS, Jean Chesley, and Jean Arnold.

Secretary of the AWS, Dorothy Ann Cunning running unopposed.

Ray Berns, yell leader is running again for the same post he has so adequately filled this semester.

There they are. The students voted most likely to succeed in the grand old game of politics, otherwise known as back-slappers-deluxe.

One thing the college can be thankful for and rather proud of is that in contrast to state, city or national elections, there was no mudslinging during the recent campaign.

The light of ingenuity shines proudly above all others when the campaigns of the various candidates are glanced at. It can never be said that the students of this college were behind the door when ideas for making people sit up and take notice were handed out.

Whoever wins the election, it is safe to say that the actual victors were the students of the college who were literally bathed in a shower of lights, cigars, nail polish, etc.

In an address to all voters Elmer Hubacher, president of the Associated Students said, "We feel that it is the job of every student holding a student card to turn out and give his support to the most qualified candidate. I should also like to caution all students to bring their cards with them Friday as no one will be allowed to vote unless he has an Associated Students' card."

Dean Edwin C. Browne recently said in reference to today's elections, "I sincerely urge that every student cast a vote for every office. The prevalent practice among college is a small total vote in comparison with the registration. While this is to be regretted, all students are asked to exercise the time honored privilege of voting for the persons of their choice and urging their friends to vote."

The Guardsman

The Weekly Newspaper of the Associated Students of the San Francisco Junior College

Vol. IX FRIDAY, JANUARY 5, 1940 No. 15

Isadore Maloff .... Assistant Editor
Carol Pickering .... Reporter

BILL FRANTZ .... EDITOR
Editorial Adviser: Joan Nourse — Business Adviser: Edward H. Redford

Leonard Gross .... Managing Editor
Daniel Rosenblat .... Assistant Managing Editor
Louis Goldstone .... Sports Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli .... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch .... Business Manager
Marion MacKillop .... Staff Artist

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Ray Berns, Victoria Candido, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manalo, Carol Pickering, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF
Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

PHOTOGRAPHERS
Art McLain, Bill Quandt

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or College opinion All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Guardsman Staff Joins In Tribute As Assistant Editor Isadore Maloff Vacates Post With Graduation

WE bid a fond farewell to the shy, lanky, dark-haired Isadore Maloff, who has served as Assistant Editor and Feature Editor on The Guardsman during this semester. He is one of the finest humorists the college has known. His Shots At RAMdom contained material better than that in some magazines.

Maloff's rise to literary power reads somewhat like a correspondence school advertisement. His compositions have improved in the two short years he has been in the college from his English teacher's nightmare to the best in The Guardsman.

It is the privilege now of the graduating columnist to write the last editorial of the semester. It is also the privilege of the graduating columnist to write all and anything he wishes in his last column. That is, provided he keeps within the bounds of decency.

The Guardsman staff joins with the students of the college to wish Isadore Maloff the best of everything in the cold, cruel, hard workaday world he describes in his final column.

Graduating Class Reviews Happy Days In Retrospect; Foresees Brilliant Future In Store For College

IN a few short weeks some 75 students will receive their final degrees toward graduation from this college. Some, of this group, will go out into the business world; some will continue their educations at higher institutions; others will go into specialized fields.

Most of the friendships, sacred traditions, and mutual tastes, that each of these students has built up in these two short years are soon to be shattered. All of these to be broken by a simple graduation ceremony.

Though each individual member of the graduating class will go out on his own road to success; roads which may eventually become widely separated; all have some mutual bond that will hold them closely knit together no matter how widely physically apart.

Each of these graduates can proudly say that he was a graduate of this college while it was just emerging from its pioneering stage. He helped to build it. He helped to mould the traditions which in future years shall be even more stable, still better established.

In writing this as a member of the graduating class, we feel confident that we are expressing the views of the entire group when we say that our stay here has been most pleasant. After two years the things for which this institution stands, finds a cherished place in the heart that no graduation ceremony can tear from its lodging.

The turnover of students at this college is exceptionally large. But as one student drops out another enrolls. As one class graduates, a new group comes in. Those who shall take on from here may soon forget us. They shall be absorbed in building a still sounder foundation. But those who leave here now feel a tremendous loss at what is being left behind. That loss can be satisfied only by the realization of the great good that has come to them from their associations here and by the pleasant memories of the college that was.

As the curtains are about to close forever on our stay here, we see a new and brighter horizon opening for the college at its new setting in Balboa Park.

I. M.

Cabbages & Kings
By Blue Pencil Bill

THE LAST great flurry of student activity for the semester finds the various and sundry politicians digging up newer and phonier methods of getting votes. Chief examples are Hal Hoffman and Lyle Schultz. Hal announces himself as "Stable Head" on the samples of chewing gum he distributes while Lyle put on a direct mail campaign any advertising man would be proud of.

HOFFMAN'S ANNOUNCEMENT featuring himself as "Stable Head" has it's humble beginning in this equally humble column when we quoted Dean Browne's comment, "The Club Advisory Board is now under a stable head." The Dean meant Hoffman who had been elected president of the CAB.

Why Schultz put on the campaign we couldn't figure out—unless it might be that he wants to beat little Bobby Owens for AMS president.

* * *

THE FOLLOWING might have happened. At least that's what Jack Bruton of the USF Foghorn leads us to believe.

The street car was crowded and a young man stood where an attractive girl was seated. From time to time he stared at her out of the corner of his eye. She looked up and caught him after a while. He turned a deep scarlet, coughed, and said apologetically. "Pardon me, but you look like Helen Brown."

She gazed at him and answered sadly, "Yes, I know—but I look worse in white."

* * *

HAPPY THOUGHT of the day: It is leap year but we predict that there will be few "fifty-fifty" dates—the fellows will continue to foot the entire bill as usual.

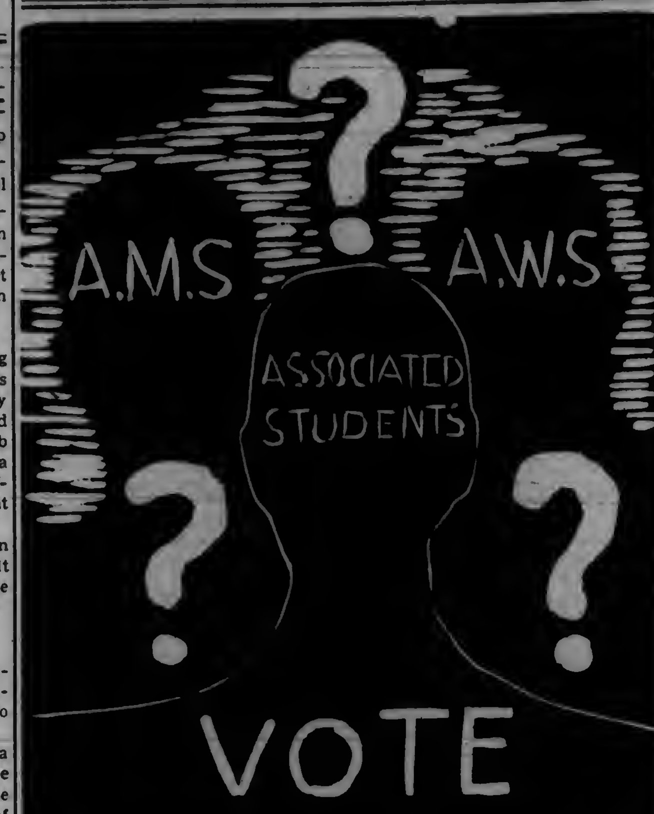
When she asks you out this year, be discreet. Ask her who's going to pay—but bring your mad money just in case.

While we're on this line of thought we might suggest one of the social events this semester be a Sadie Hawkins affair. How original, Bill!

IN ORDER that we keep peace within the college we are going to mention those politicos who are not depending on fancy campaign stunts to win the election for them. They are basketballer Hughie Ryan of the AMS and Al Williams, 149 pound boxer who led yells, headed the AMS and chairmanned the Judiciary Committee.

Then there are the beautiful blonde Muriels running for vice president, Grenelle and Nolan. We don't have to mention Flo Hansen's name because she is running for secretary unapposed and she is our friend anyway. We don't have to mention Ray Berns for the same reason and furthermore his work as yell leader this semester speaks for itself.



Now let's see—whom did we leave out? Marion MacKillop and Gloria Miller and Harold Unterberger and so forth. Please note that all names for competing positions are in alphabetical order.

LOOKING AT the roster of basketball players we find none of the familiar names that graced our former teams. All the characters have graduated or dropped out. The only old timer left is Willie Blackfield—and he's ineligible. O woe! O misery!

A PROFESSOR at a southern university has figured out that every time a college student cuts class, it costs him (the student) approximately $1.30.

Hm! If that's the case, then we're making $22.10 by merely going to school. And a 17-hour week at that! Not so bad for a single man, eh wot?

Go To The Polls
By Marion MacKillop

While Thinking
By Leonard Gross

FOREIGN

Military experts last week believed that the first large scale battle of the Russo-Finnish war was about to take place.

Russian veteran troops are being massed along the vital Leningrad-Viipuri railroad where active fighting is still in progress.

Is is of course difficult to attempt to analyze the outcome of a pending battle many miles away in a foreign land. We are inclined to believe that the pendulum of victory which has swung heavily toward the Finns during the past few weeks, will reverse itself this time.

Reason for this supposition is that the Russian troops who will be engaged in the battle are all veteran soldiers, not raw recruits. Then again, the overwhelming odds in men and the added force of bombing planes may turn the tide. It should also be noted that the Russians are this time fighting on their own soil, certainly a great incentive if there ever was one.

* * *

That war in Europe has so far consisted of vocal forays on the part of the leaders of the various countries engaged.

It is undoubtedly the most peaceful scrap so far that the world has ever witnessed.

It's a good thing we have such prominent hot air artists as Chamberlain, Daladier, Hitler, Goering and Gobbels to keep us from yawning.

* * *

NATIONAL

Congressional leaders of the Republican party (Remember them?) found themselves given a political hotfoot one day last week.

They received Roosevelt approved invitations to attend the annual Democratic Jackson day dinner.

Viewing the invitations with surprise and suspicion, the Republicans were uncertain as to just how to respond.

Some claimed that acceptance of the invitation would tend to indicate to the country that the Republicans were subservient to President Roosevelt's leadership, thus enhancing the chief executive's political stature.

Others felt that if the invitation were rejected they might be accused of adopting a petty attitude after the Democrats had made a gesture toward national unity.

* * *

STATE

Hollywood, known to millions of Americans as the home of the movie industry can also boast of the fact that it holds the second best Radio City in the nation.

During a recent trip South, this reporter was privileged to tour both the Columbia and National Broadcasting systems.

People don't realize just how big radio is unless they are able to actually see for themselves the process a program must go through before it reaches the audience.

Under the heading "Radio" this column beginning next week, will present a series of brief articles on the inner workings of the Hollywood Radio City.

The . . . Spectator
By JANET FELLOWS

There is an abundance of comedy at the Curran these first two weeks of the year, where the theater's outstanding actress, Katharine Cornell, is starring as Linda Esterbruch in No Time For Comedy. Miss Cornell's superb performance does not overshadow that of her leading man, Francis Lederer, who is acclaimed by no less than the late Czechoslovakia, Berlin, Broadway, and Hollywood, and who is magnificent as the moody playwrite, Gal Esterbruch. No Time For Comedy is a chapter out of the hectic between-plays life of the stoical and clever actress Linda Esterbruch, and her tempestous and temperamental husband, Gal.

Gai, seeking inspiration from the beautiful and intellectual Amanda Smith, nearly breaks up his marriage, but is saved by his tranquilly tolerant wife, just in time.

While Amanda and Gai are carrying on their profoundly intellectual rendezvous, Amanda's husband, Philo, the monotonously methodical banker, falls in love with Linda to such a degree that he not only becomes impulsive for the first time in his dreary life, but he also abandons his infallible routine for her. John Williams leaves nothing undone in his performance of the respectable (?) banker, nor does Margalo Gillmore fail to present an excellent characterization of the aesthetic and intellectual Mrs. Smith who loves to bring out the "latent talents" of interesting young men.

Gee Gee James, as the Esterbruch's colored maid, Clementine, nearly stole the limelight from the rest of the cast, however. She executed her part perfectly, with such ease and fluency that her humerous lines were always greeted with long and hilarious laughter—only the actions of Lederer seemed possibly to parallel the comedy of Gee Gee.

The versatile Miss Cornell, who three years ago stirred San Francisco audiences with her dramatic performance of Saint Joan, has returned to wipe away the poignant tears her 1937 production left and replace them with unforgettable laughter in 1940.

There is not a single flaw in this latest Cornell production. S. N. Behrman has supported a clever plot with charmingly witty, yet subtly thought-provoking dialogue, and then he has added to this some boldly risque lines which have all added up to a merry play that will suit any mood. Because the dialogue is clever and humorous it is impossible to describe the play, but it is easy to guarantee that everyone who sees No Time For Comedy will come away with a smiling face, still laughing at the funny quips yet pondering a little about life as it is today, in this war-torn world.

The splendid direction of No Time for Comedy is by Guthrie McClintic—one of Broadway's finest directors, and the expressive settings are by Jo Mei Mielziner. The other character in the cast is Tom Helmore, as Makepeace Lovell, who does very well as the "small-talk" play-boy friend of Linda. The color and style of the costumes personified the characters who wore them and carried out the mood of the scene. No Time for Comedy is definitely a SMASH HIT!

* * *

Earl Carroll's Vanities, a lavish production of music, laughter, and beautiful girls has one more night to go. The Vanities, straight from Hollywood, have had an extremely successful stay in San Francisco, and if it were not for its Broadway engagement, could pack 'em in for weeks to come. Carroll has brought entertainers from all over the world and billed them in one exquisite vaudeville, surpassing any production of this type that has been presented in the bay region in the past few years, including the Folies Bergere!!—and that's saying a lot!

Besides boasting of the 60 most beautiful girls in the world (which should satisfy almost anyone!), Carroll provides acrobats, comedians, musicians, and dancers—all are tops in their own field.

* * *

Eva Le Gallienne, another of Broadway's best actresses, has just completed an engagement in San Francisco. Miss Le Gallienne, as the bored Hedda, in Hedda Gabler presented an excellent characterization, but her supporting cast was too poor to make the play an outstanding success. The play is a Pulitzer Prize winner, which should speak for itself.

shots at RAMdom
. . . By Isadore Maloff

WITH a tear in our eye, a sob in our throat, and a hole in our sock, we take pen in hand and prepare to turn out this, our last column for the SFJC Guardsman. We're finding it rather difficult to realize that barring any conditions beyond our control such as flunking a couple of finals or suddenly meeting with our demise we shall soon be out on our own to cope with the problems of a cruel, hard, work-a-day world.

Because the editor has forbidden us to reminisce on our prolonged stay here or to bid fond farewells via the columns of the paper we have decided to answer the many requests of students who in past weeks have beseeched us to disclose the secrets of column writing.

Sometimes writing a column can be a most pleasant pastime like changing a flat tire in the rain or like ringing the neck of a consumptive pullet.

WRECKING A NECK

That last simile brings up a point that may be of interest.

We don't know if you've ever wrung the neck of a consumptive pullet but we assure you it's really great fun and quite simple to execute. Although systems of approach vary in some cases, we always perform this trick by closing our right hand over the diseased pullet's head, lifting the hen into the air, and then twirling in a circular motion like cranking a car.

With the neck acting as the axis, the body goes around in a beautiful circle while the head remains intact in our hand. All of which proves some kind of law we once learned in high school physics but have since forgotten. Because few farms can boast electric fans, this form of amusement is especially appropriate on hot days, as the revolving body creates a cooling breeze. The more revolutions per second the body completes, the more gratifying and oderous the breeze.

When sufficently cooled, we fling the dead hen away, watch it's muscular reactions for a moment, and then casually walk up to the farmhouse where our Aunt Agatha is usually engaged in baking corn meal muffins.

Mooching a hot muffin from her and a good book such as "Raising Chickens For Profit" from our Uncle Ulysses' book shelf, we then skip down to the alfalfa fields to lie in a pile of newly-mown alfalfa and muse on the vagaries of life.

Try it the neckst time you're down on the farm. (And we don't mean Stanford. The boys and girls down there are already well versed in the art of necking.)

But to get back to our original subject. You can see by the forgoing analogy that column writing is sometimes pleasant but at other times is as repulsing as stepping on a live snake or disposing of a mouse once you've caught it in a trap. Especially if the spring is so new that the catch eats its way half through the mangy mouse's body.

Whether or not a journalist's task as column writer will be pleasant depends on three things. Said factors being (1) kind of column he writes, (2) kind of dopes who read it, (3) if he has something better to do at the time of writing.

REVEALS ALL!

At the risk of being the recipient of physical mayhem we are going to disclose how some of our colleagues go about writing their columns. Take a column like Kenard Grossman's "Wild Thinking" for instance.

Twice a week through the courtesy of the Emerson Radio Corporation with models as low as $21.40 plus any city or state tax, Mr. Grossman listens to Elliot Roosevelt's inspiring talks via the airlanes. Once a week he parts with two-bits to gather in the latest news at Ellis Levy's Newsreel Theatre with selected shorts. With said impressions in mind, it is a comparatively simple matter to type out his views of the world on parade.

Or consider Juliette Bellows' "Spectacled Spectator" column. Juliette has only to go up to the manager of any big theatre in town and pipe up in that delightfully succulent voice of hers, "I'M Juliette Bellows, drama reviewer for the Guardsman", and right away the manager bows from the waist and invites her in. Just like that. As Miss Bellows eats her corn on the cob at a nearby restaurant after the show and ponders on what to write about this particular film she perhaps glances down at the piping hot corn reposing in the plate or unconsciously scratches the corn on the little toe of her left foot, and lo! comes it inspiration. The show, Miss Bellows' weekly column will reveal, was corny. Just like that.

MISS CLUDE INCLUDED

Then there is a column like Hotty Clude's "InCLUDEings" which includes all the latest dope on self-analysis and how to tell whether romantically you're as hot as a frying pan handle or cold as your dog Rover's nose in the wintertime. For her information Miss Clude makes good use of her own experience and also utilizes the pointers she gets from meeting The Right Kind Of People. Ain't it the Trood (th), Miss Clude?

Unlike these columnists we can rely on no such sources for our material. Our stuff comes partly from our own noggin, partly from such assorted magazines as "Ballyhoo", "1001 Jokes" and "Eye Opener", and partly from the boys at the gas station across the street who can always be relied upon if other methods fail.

To give you an idea of the type of joke we pick up at gas stations, we've bothered to forward this typical one:

Question: What did the drunken cigarette say to the bartender??

Answer: Shay, put me out before I make an ash of myself.

GETTING INSPIRED

Armed with such sure-fire laugh getters we buy a couple of cokes to cokes the jokes from our memory onto paper (get it?), sit ourselves at our typewriter, tune the radio to a station that plays recordings like Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and Verdi's "Aida", and then proceed to go into our super stupor.

As we gaze at the wall directly in front of us, the wallpaper seems to take on strange and fascinating designs. Indeed by squinting through the left eye and covering up the other with the tablespoon from which we've just consumed our daily dose of cod-liver oil, we can actually see the little man who wasn't there and all sorts of shapes and figures like Ann Southern and Dorothy Lamour.

Suddenly we become aware that our mother is shaking us gently by the shoulder and saying, "Sonny, you've fallen asleep at your work." Our mother always calls us "Sonny". She's quite affectionate.

So we mutter, "To h— with the d— column. We'll write it at school tomorrow."

COLUMN IN PRINT

Whoever said that tomorrow never comes ought to be shot. He's all wrong. We know. When the editor stands over us and bellows, "Where's your copy?", we know that tomorrow definitely has come. As it slowly dawns upon the editor that we haven't as yet written our column he flys into a rage, (we have the only editor who can fly), drags us to a typewriter and leers over us, while we type out the first thing that comes into our mind but never what we had been planning to write all week. And that's the way our column usually appears in the paper. . . Devoid of everything we had originally intended for it.

What's that? You'd still like to be a columnist? Why, you poor sap. Better you should want to be President.

But if you're desperate and out of work don't let us discourage you. Remember the words of the immortal sage Confucius; "Tis better to be hot columnist than shot Communist."

RAM'S ...HORN

Editor, The Guardsman:

Will someone kindly tell me the reason that we must be tortured throughout the Christmas vacation with the thought of finals?

Why couldn't things have been left as they were? Finish school in December and then we would have had the Holidays to relax and think of the semester as a good job well done, or a good job badly done, or a bad job badly done, or maybe not think of it at all.

Now don't get me wrong, I like

(Continued on page 4, column 6)

InTROODings . . .
By Dot

WE trust that everyone had an excellent time during the last few days, but at least one-fourth of the college lads and lassies worked either in a department store or for Uncle Sam and Mr. Farley.

"Gee, I sure was tired the first few nights when I came home from work, and some of the customers, wow, such demands," remarked one of these hardworking lassies. "I think the easiest customer is the young man buying something for the young lady and he lets the salesperson do all the thinking, finding and finally saying she'd like one herself." All this type needs is a gentle shove and he'll start buying right and left.

Then of course there is the scholarly type of gentleman who comes in and knows what he wants and won't take a substitute if he can't get what he's after. One gentleman in particular stands out in this young salesperson's memories of working. A big, blustering man full of business came striding up to me one morning and said in the loudest imaginable voice, "I'd like to see some cook books," yes sir, replies the young lady, here they are. "Well, I'll take the Boston Cook Book, no wait a minute, I'll take two of them, ought to get some good food from now on don't you think."

Well, these types are not very rare but again they are. And there is the woman that is buying books for the children next door and she doesn't want to spend more than fifty cents on each book but wants something with a good cover, easy print to read, and something of a new book. After going through the pile of books on the fifty cent table, she finally decides to take the one on top, no matter if the salesperson has used the best methods of salesmanship on her, it just doesn't seem to take.

"What? You still have something more to tell us," we politely asked the young lady. "Oh, my yes, I haven't told you about the motherly type who is so sweet and wants to know if we get very tired. You know the type—they tell you at 5 o'clock at night that you look as fresh as a daisy, and you feel like sinking through the floor." Well we did'nt want to hear any more, so we wandered on to other parts of town where other industrious people were wrapping packages quicker than a flash of the eye.

And then we remember the afternoon we went to buy Dad a present and the salesman tried to sell us everything in the house, cuff links to silk lounging robes. It was easy to get out of buying everything because it was a young man of the college giving the best salesmanship talk ever heard. Ah, me, and wasted on the likes of some people. Of course one can't forget those that slept till noon and then went out and saw the gang or played tennis, or went ice skating and just forgot all about philosophy, and the romance languages.

Fashion Fanny said: People who live in glass houses should dress in the dark. Unquote.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

A DOUBLE FEATURE, NO LESS!

BASKETBALL, FIGHTS SPLIT BILLING

Ram Hoopmen To Collide With Staters In Ancient Rivalry

With the clinic series at the Modesto tourney still hanging fire, Coach Dutch Conlan's Ram casaba artists are looking forward to the beginning of the regular season's long, tough grind.

The young Red team, inexperienced and jittery, but hard-fighting in its practice games, meets its first regular opponent on January 8. The game will be played at Berkeley, against the University of California second team. Little hope is held in local sporting circles for a Ram victory in this match, but the evening is expected to furnish valuable playing experience for Conlan's warriors.

Traditional Battles

Next in line on the schedule—and by far the most important to the Rams—is the series against San Francisco State, on January 11 and 12. Both games will be played at Kezar.

Having played since early December, the Staters will be backed in these forthcoming contests by a considerable edge in experience over the Reds, who are expected to be in the underdog spot in both tilts.

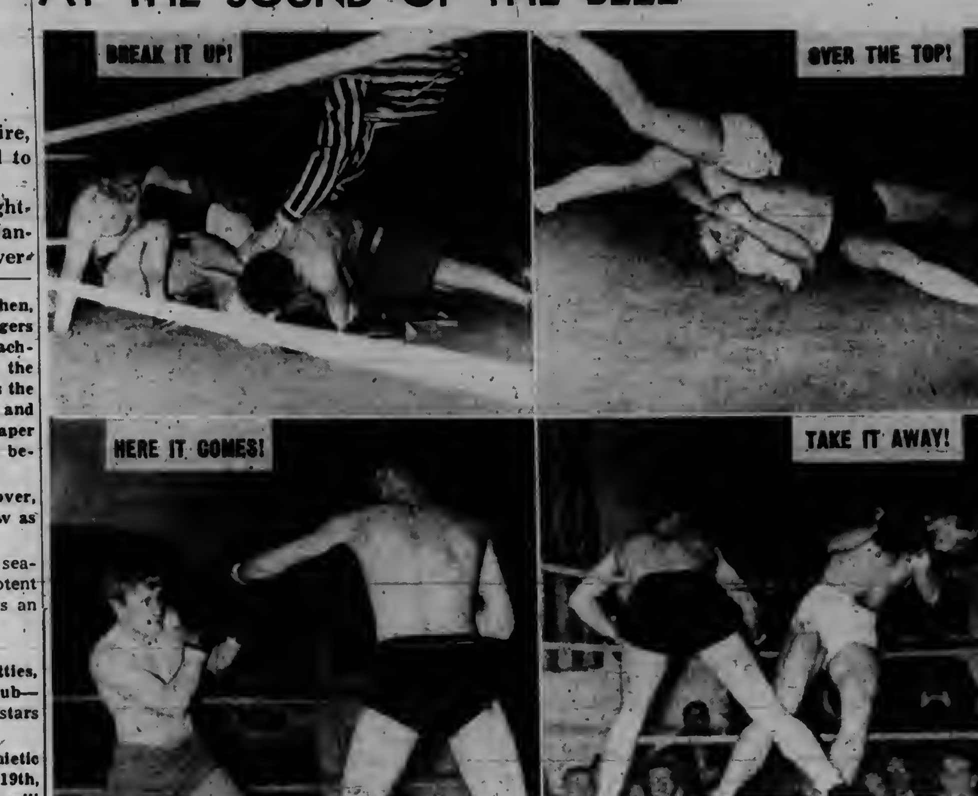
An impressive record was also piled up by Dan Farmer's hoopmen in the southern "clinic" in which the Gators participated. While dropping a couple of the twenty-minute games, the boys from the fog belt showed well, with such stars in their lineup as Loustalot, Collingwood, and Kerwin—all of them former Ram players.

These men will all see action against the locals on the 11th and 12th, and are expected to figure prominently in the State offensive.

The State-Ram games bring to mind the friction of last year, when, in order to save the first stringers for conference games, the Ram coach-staff played the entire game with the second team. A hot discussion was the result, followed by recriminations and a demand by the State newspaper that athletic relations be severed between the two colleges.

In the end, the troubles blew over, and Ram-Gator relations are now as placid as ever.

Advance publicity hails this season's Gator outfit as the most potent in the school's history, and talks an irresistible scoring attack.



Still Battling

Following the traditional battles, the Rams engage the Athens Club—an aggregation of former college stars—on January 16.

A game with the Italian Athletic Club is tentatively set for the 19th, but there is no certainty that it will come off.

And, to round out the first month of 1940, Menlo and Salinas play hosts to the Rams on January 26 and 27, respectively, in the first conference games.

AT THE SOUND OF THE BELL

It's AMS Fight Time again, and, in keeping with the spirit of the occasion, The Guardsman Sports presents, above, a series of selected action shots taken at past performances of the semi-annual saturnalia.

The pictures themselves are self-explanatory. They illustrate the color (see Amori's zebra shirt), the variety (see impromptu rassling bout in upper right), and yokel atmosphere (see haymaker at lower right) which are always part of the fights.

Next Tuesday, January 9, the collegiate pugilists are at it once more, offering a bigger and better show than ever.

The AMS Fights have always given the students the best: everything from thrills to bloody noses, thrills to concussions.

So don't take a chance of missing out on your share.

Right In The Old Buck-Buck-Bucket!

The old and sometimes honored rivalry between the Rams and Gators will be renewed on January 11 at Kezar Pavilion. In past games, the playing has been fast, the Gator furious.

Caught in the act in the above photo, is a precocious Stater tanking two points.

And next Thursday and Friday, the Gators are planning on tanking the Rams. The odds are all in favor of their doing so.

Ski Club Trip Fails Because Of Rain

As a dismal ending to an otherwise successful semester, the Ski Club's snow trip was rained under in the holiday deluges.

The expected and hoped-for Christmas snow refused to fall. Instead, Lake Tahoe, Norden, and the surrounding vicinity received snow-melting rains. However, some enthusiastic members did take a chance on going up to the Sierra Club at Norden and did get some skiing done before the rain of Thursday, December 28.

These members were Ray Davis, who skiied on the summit of Mount Rose near Lake Tahoe; Stanley Ward, who did a bit of snow flying on the slopes of the hills surrounding Tahoe; Helen Van Fossen; Alden Smith, club advisor; and Bob Ogg, president of the group.

Enjoyable Time

The group, with their guests, used four cars to make the trip. They all stayed at the Sierra Club and had a "highly enjoyable time in the clean, invigorating mountain air" according to Ogg. Members heard from Miss Pinky Smith, U.C. student skiier, and Bill Klein, a ranking Pacific Coast champion, on the practical side of using the wooden wings. Everyone enjoyed ice skating at the skating bowl of the luxurious Sugar Bowl Lodge at Norden.

"On the whole," said Ogg, "everyone enjoyed themselves. We are

(Continued on page 4, column 7)

Home Stretch

Rifleers Prep For Final Matches In Race For Title

Following its sixth consecutive League victory, the college Rifle team is taking a month rest, December 11 to January 11. During this length of time, members of the squad are getting into shape for their final four matches.

Captain Fred McFarland, team instructor, explained that the month layoff will be highly beneficial, inasmuch as shooting practice is not neglected.

Mission Biggest Worry

Beginning on January 11, the Ram Rifleers meet the Independent Rifle Club, a group that took a licking from the McFarlandites a couple of weeks ago. Chief worry of the squad, McFarland explained, is the match with the Mission Rifle and Pistol Club, an experienced aggregation, whose shooting average is tops in Golden Gate Bridge League Competition.

"If we can hurdle the Mission bunch," said McFarland, "I'm almost certain that we'll pull through the season without a defeat."

Opponents Favored

He showed that, notwithstanding the win of the Rams over the Mission men at the commencement of the winter rifle season, the "South of Market" sharpshooters are favored to win, when they face the locals.

It was recalled that when McFarland's men out-shot the Mission Club, both teams were worried. The final outcome of the match showed that the Rams won by a mere point.

The Last Two

Shooting their second match during the period of final exams, McFarland's men will meet the American Legion Post 429 on January 24. Termination of League competition will occur on the first day of February when the Rams and the 159th Infantry tangle.

Last Tuesday McFarland sent entrants to the University of California for the purpose of participating in the National Shoulder to Shoulder Team Championship to be held on March 30, 1940.

Schedule:

Rams vs. Independent Rifle Club—January 11, at California Hall; Mission Club vs. Rams—January 18, at Galileo high school Armory; Rams vs. Post 429—January 24, at Lowell high school; 159th Infantry vs. Rams—February 1, at Galileo High School Armory.

Leather Carnival At Verdi Club January 9; Amori Masterminds

Champions will perform next Tuesday night in the college's Hit Parade, the semi-annual AMS fights. The Verdi Club, scene of last semester's massacres, will once again be the locale of the battles.

Joe Amori, Men's Club mentor, has lined up a special bout for the enjoyment of the spectators, in the form of a fight between a couple of flyweights. Their names are to be announced, and will come as a surprise.

In addition, Amori said that an exhibition might be had between Mel Chicazola and some unselected opponent. Chicazola is a Golden Gloves champion and a college football player.

Ex-Champs Enter

Former college glove champions will be seen in action, when Al Larson, Jack Weicker, and Bob Raine, 149, 159, and 169 pound champs and ex-champs go into the ring in their efforts to add to their laurels.

Opposing these men will be the pick of the battlers from Joe Amori's and Jack Gaddy's classes of instruction in the manly art. Amori's boys will be in the higher weights, and are well trained in this sport. Jack Gaddy is sending in one or two of his boys who he can be fairly sure will give good account of themselves.

Tuesday Or Never!

Amori asked that all those students of the college who wished to participate see him before Tuesday, so that matches could be figured.

A further announcement by Amori concerned spectators: "This event should not be missed by anyone who can posibly make it. That goes for women too. The presence of a good-sized crowd will make these fights far more exciting, and who wouldn't fight better with the campus beauties watching him.

Boys Will Be Fed

As a further incentive to enter the fights, Amori said that participants would be given a feed at some restaurant, and as an added attraction for the spectator, refreshments of some sort would be served.

"All in all, we expect a big evening," concluded Amori. "All the AMS officers are working hard to make this a success. I don't see how they can fail."

Wilson's "Pink" Casabans Divide Pair; Meet State Goofs Next Week

Playing fair basketball as the holidays came to an end, Coach Tom Wilson's Junior Varsity Basketballers managed to split even in two interesting battles.

They gave the Napa high school varsity a sound shellacking to the tune of 34 to 23. It seemed that all men on the Ram squad did everything right. Passing, dribbling, underhand shots, feinting, speed—it all worked smoothly and brilliantly.

Bacigalupi High Man

Joe Bacigalupi, tricky forward, led his Junior Varsity team with ten points. The Junior Varsity B team eked out a win from the Napa lightweights in a thrilling preliminary tilt, 15 to 14. Highpointer was Al Rosenberg, local hoopster, who tanked 5 digits.

Defeat came to the college lightweights last Wednesday when a stubborn 130 pound unit struggled through a 16 to 12 victory in a game that was slow and insipid.

Two men were tied for high-point honors, which incidently, was only 4 digits apiece. Credited for tanking two field goals were Mike Spillane of Poly and Francis Cristman, college sophomore.

Ball handling by both teams was smooth but attempted shots were far and few. Not only that, but no one seemed to have an "eye" in the fray as the score proves.

Coming Up!

First league tilt will be played by the J.V'ers when they travel to Martinez soon with their big brothers, the Conlan men, to play the preliminary. Opponent will be the Alhambra Athletic Club.

Next Thursday and Friday, Wilson will send his men against the San Francisco State J.V. squad.

Selected to start against the Gators are the following: Charles Martin, guard; Russell Grote, guard; Bobby Owen, center; Eddie Bacigalupi, forward; and Hugh Ryan, forward.

State Offensive Experienced

It was learned that in practice, the Statesmen have proven quite effective in their offensive tactics. They are composed of a group of men who have all had previous experience.

Wilson stated that he would be highly pleased if his men can make an even break out of the double-header.

THE COLUMNISTS

RAMettes . . by Lu Antonicelli

HAPPY NEW YEAR

Start the New Year right, we always says, so—on into 1940 with, first, a rousing cheer for ex-prexy Lucille Jacke, and her co-officers, Marjorie Radke, Dorothy Nelson, and Helen Godman, who put the WAA on a streamlined basis last semester and ably carried it through to a smashingly successful finale. Orchids too, to Bertha Mae Keller who became the new college WAA adviser and learned the ropes with a minimum of time and a maximum of gratifying results.

And now as the new year beams on the world, we beam too—on a staff of new officers chosen to carry on the work of providing extra-curricular activities for the women of the college (athletically inclined). To incoming Spring WAA leaders, Thursa Scott, president; Alma Koopman, vice-president; Dorothy Nelson, re-elected secretary, and Dorothy Behrman, treasurer; goes our New Year wish (rather late, but the idea is good) for "smooth sailing" and an ever-increasing WAA membership. Enough of that.

* * * *

FALL '39 IN REVIEW

Before we start the 1940 column WAAambling (clever, no?) why not review last semester's WAA activities—as a tribute to the outgoing officers and an incentive to the incoming leaders. (Or is it just because we like to see what we've written?) Anyway, Fall '39 in retrospect:—

September—Vera Spencer, former WAA adviser and gym instructor married during the summer and left her advisorial position open. Bertha Keller, college gym instructor took over WAA managership.

Ice-skating is offered for the first time as a fall sport . . . WAA handbooks, covering every phase of the women's athletic association are offered for the first time . . . (quite a few "firsts" here) . . . Fort Mason lost the sound of thundering feet when college Robin Hoods retreated to the Palace of Fine Arts for instruction in archery (and it wasn't because of California's sunny skies—much) . . . Helen Crlenkovich performed at the WAA initiation ceremonies, which, incidentally, was the first deviation from WAA tradition, being held in the evening at the YWCA pool, followed by dinner . . . fall officers were installed and new members initiated . . . sports sign-ups closed with a larger enrollment than ever before . . . after much fussing and many delays fall sports finally got under way . . . volleyball, tennis, badminton and rifle predominant . . . ice-skating acquired an ever-growing popularity, skaters made plans for an ice-breaker . . . fencing and archery classes were slower than usual in getting started . . . 181 students (count 'em) were enrolled in WAA, men and women alike, by September 22, which is pretty much all right, don't you think? . . . elections for club managers began . . . Maxine Turner (in case you don't know, she's a drum-majorette) performed at the splash party . . . ice-skaters held their ice-breaker (no comments, puh-leeze) . . . and that takes care of September.

* * * *

TWO FOR THE SHOW

October—and we find the WAA off to a flying start—no less. The occasion was the beginning of intercollegiate playdays, and as we look back, we find that the local women athletes were way up there in front when it came to winning in competitions. The first contest was an archery and tennis meet in which nine colleges competed. It might be added that it was also the first intersectional meet this college has held.

Women marksmen applied for admission into the San Francisco Rifle Association—whatever came of that, anyway?

Hockey players staged two play-days with San Francisco State, Folk dancers went down to the Russian Dance Hall for instructions, and volleyball players separated into two teams named (we still can't get over those names) the Volleyteers and the Smackeroos. All in all, October saw quite a bit of action.

THREE TO GET READY

November—now the WAA is in full swing . . . already we see groups here and there with their heads together planning for you guess what—Tourney Week, of course! . . . a novice tourney for putters was initiated in the golf class . . . council members went for a bicycle ride, quite a long one, too, we've heard . . . Freshmen women, at this point, were pointed out to have an unusual athletic ability and great spirit . . . tennis and archery were postponed in favor of a beverage show at the PFA . . . college riders burst into print with the news that they were rarin' to go for Tourney Week . . . ice-skating still held the lead as the college's most popular sport . . . a date bureau came into being for Table Tennisers without partners . . . basketball practice was tentatively scheduled for Mondays and Fridays . . . a new office was formed—that of yell-leader, with Priscilla Finely doing the honors . . . the new office resulted in the necessity for a new constitution which was drawn up and recently adopted . . . Helen Crlenkovich crashed the Olympic Club pool . . . surprise of the semester was sprung about this time when the announcement came that the semi-annual Tourney Week banquet, usually held in the Galileo cafeteria would be changed into a mother-daughter affair to take place at a downtown restaurant . . . Tourney Week, a short time off, was rapidly taking shape . . . ice-skaters made plans for a big show to be held during Tourney Week . . . ice-skaters had their show . . . first basketball playday for the season came December 1. Which brings us to . . .

December—and the grand finale . . . another "first": the issuing of Handbooks before the end of the semester so that potential sportsters might line up a pleasing array of extra-curriculas . . . WAA invited Santa Rosa to compete in the ice-skating contests against the locals . . . Tourney Week arrived! . . . emphasis this year rested upon "oomph" (or so the paper claimed) Tourney Week as a whole was a great success . . . 131 mothers and daughters attended the Tourney Week banquet topping other years' most successful banquets by a large number . . . Blazers, the highest award a woman athlete may get at the college, were awarded ex-prexy Lucille Jacke, new president Thursa Scott, vice president Alma Koopman, and secretary Dorothy Nelson.

It was a successful year, yes, a very successful year. Amen.

RAMblings . . by Ray Berns

RAMS AT MODESTO

Well, our local hoop artists are up at Modesto this week end engaging in a few basketball games with junior colleges from other parts of the state.

If we didn't know how good the lads were up to the present writing, we certainly will when the casaba tourney is over.

Conlan's Ram hoopsters will meet, in the valley town circus, the outstanding teams in the state, and, although we don't expect the boys to come home with the championship, a fine showing is, we hope, in the offing.

NEYLAND COMMENT

What to us was perhaps one of the most pathetic statements we have ever seen appeared the other morning in one of the local dailies.

Coach Robert Neyland, in commenting upon the defeat of his Tennessee Volunters by the Southern California's mighty Trojans in the Rose Bowl, said, "We were beaten badly by a superior team. I want to congratulate Howard Jones and his staff for the fine team they have turned out."

In those two lines may be found all the heartbreak, disillusionment, and drama of a football team.

Gallant Tennesssee, unbeaten in two years and unscored on in fifteen games, bowed before the might of El Trojan in a contest that left no doubt as to the superiority of the victor.

Such was the might of the hordes of Troy that the Vols not only were unable to score but were scored upon twice.

A rather interesting little item appeared alongside of the Trojan-Tennessee story.

JUGBOWL GAME

It seems the Caledonia Prison Farm overwhelmed Central Prison, 30 to 0, in the annual North Carolina "Jugbowl" Game. Eight hundred spectators were present, five hundred of whom were prisoners.

What, you expect us to inject a little something in this column about the game in the form of a comment. Sorry, souls, but I'll have to disappoint you this time. Just couldn't think of anything to say.

Registration, Exam Data Listed

Warning came from Mary B. Perry of the registrar's office that those students who did not take entrance exams at the beginning of the semester would not receive credit for work done in college unless they make up these tests.

They will be able to take the tests which will be given to entering students on January 10 and 11. This is the last chance for such students to make good their work.

Students who are not going to return next semester and wish to obtain their grades for this semester's work should leave stamped, self-addressed envelopes, large enough to accommodate enrollment cards, at the registrar's office.

ENTRANCE TESTS—Galileo High School Cafeteria

I. Group I (Register January 31)
- A. Subject A Examination and Vocational Interest Test, Wednesday, January 10, 1:15 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.
- B. High School Content and College Aptitude Tests, Thursday, January 11, 11:15 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.

II. Group II (Register February 1)
- A. Subject A Examination and Vocational Interest Test, Monday, January 29, 9:00 a.m. to 12 m.
- B. High School Content and College Aptitude Tests, Tuesday, January 30, 9:00 a.m. to 12 m.

REGISTRATION—NEW STUDENTS—North Women's Gymnasium

I. Group I—Student who completed entrance examinations on January 10 and 11.
- A. Those whose last names begin with letters A to K inclusive Register Wednesday, January 31, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. in the North Women's Gymnasium.
- B. Those whose last names begin with letters L to Z inclusive Register Wednesday, January 31, 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. in the North Women's Gymnasium.

II. Group II—Students who completed entrance examinations on January 29 and 30 and all other entering students.
- A. Those whose last names begin with letters A to K inclusive Register Thursday, February 1, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. in the North Women's Gymnasium.
- B. Those whose last names begin with letters L to Z inclusive Register Thursday, February 1, 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. in the North Women's Gymnasium.

REGISTRATION—RETURNING STUDENTS—North Women's Gymnasium

I. Registration for students whose last names begin with letters A to E inclusive, Register Tuesday, January 30, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. in the North Women's Gymnasium.

II. Registration for students whose last names begin with letters F to K inclusive, Register Tuesday, January 30, 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

III. Registration for students whose last names begin with letters L to R inclusive, Register Monday, January 29, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

IV. Registration for students whose last names begin with letters S to Z inclusive, Register Monday, January 29, 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. in North Women's Gymnasium.

* * * *

Powell Street classes which will meet for their finals at Galileo are as follows:

Tuesday, Thursday 8 o'clock classes
Friday, January 19, 2:30-5:30 at Galileo

		Room
Botany 1a	Porter	356, 357
English 20	Cooper	206
Geography 5a	J. Williams	362, 363
History 4a (Sect. 1)	Bolton	458
History 4b	Gerstung	408
Hygiene 1	Elsan	306
Hygiene 1	Wilson	454
Hygiene 1	Dearborn	415
Hygiene 2	Bergin	207
Hygiene 2	Weber	413
Jurisprudence 1a	McKiernan	261
Mathematics 1b	Bass	153
Psychology 20 (Sect. 2)	Turner	205
Subject A	Perham	257

Tuesday, Thursday 10 o'clock classes
Thursday, January 18, 2:30-5:30 at Galileo

		Room
Economics 40	Zarchin	255
English 1a	Cooper	206
Home Economics 70a	Cuneo	317
Hygiene 1	Amori	356, 357
Music 3a	Badger	204
Philosophy 5a (Sect. 2)	Utter	261
Physical Education 51	Elsan	207
Political Science 115 (Sect. 1)	Hughes	458
Psychology 20 (Sect. 3)	Haley	203
Sociology 1b	Ross	355
Subject A	Culligan	362
Subject A	Mercer	411
Subject A	Bracher	362
Subject A	Brennan	362
Zoology 1b	Noble	314

Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Daily 1 o'clock classes
Tuesday, January 16, 2:30-5:30 at Galileo

		Room
Anthropology 1b	Hobbs	314
English 1a	Cooper	206
English 1a	Sandys	355
English 16a	Mercer	413
French A	Cranston	255
French C	Kelly	416
German A	Delfs	303
German D	Moeller	205
History 4a (Sect. 2)	Bolton	458
Italian C	Maggetti	403
Mathematics A	Smith	310
Mathematics B	Anderson	306
Mathematics 1a	Jacobs	250
Physical Science 17	Polissar	362, 363
Political Science 3a	Sewell	356, 357
Political Science 8a	Selig	203
Psychology 2	Leuenberger	316
Spanish B	Garibaldi	454
Spanish B	Misante	465
Speech 1a	Somers	207
Speech 1b	Hughes	414

Tuesday and Thursday 1 o'clock classes
Monday, January 22, 2:30-5:30 at Galileo

		Room
Biology 41	Menke	355
Economics 1a	Goss	362
English 19a	Gatley	206
English 55a	Redford	202
Geography 8a	McKiernan	207
History 45	Gerstung	261
Music 30a	Badger	204
Psychology 51	Horowitz	257
Psychology 55	Haley	203
Landscape Architecture	Herman	205

Acquisition

By JACK WESTLAKE

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Guardsman herewith presents the final story in a series of interesting attempts at literature by students of the college. The editor wishes to express to Edward Sandys, English instructor in the college, appreciation for his cooperation in making this feature possible.

In the year of our Lord 480, Clovis assumed the kingship of the Salian Franks. He, shortly thereafter, adopted Christianity in the form of the Roman Catholic Church. Clovis, like so many rulers before and after his time, had an insatiable desire for power. He extended his kingdom into that portion of the Roman Empire known as Gaul. The Roman Empire now at the height of its decline was ripe for invasion. Clovis, glutton that he was, plucked this luscious morsel, and tucked it safely under his scepter thereby founding the Frankish Empire.

Clovis was broadshouldered, and yet slender, the tallest and strongest man in the land. Piercing eyes under shaggy brows, the forehead wrinkled by great muscles, lips hiding the firm set of despotic rulers, face haggard—with hollows at the temples where the cheek bones protruded—all these in a body of dynamic energy made him every inch a leader. The softer curves of his body had long since disappeared to be replaced by muscles strong as steel. He had a ruthlessness of character which is best portrayed in his lust for land and power and the means, fair or foul, he employed to acquire them.

"Clovis to add to his glory must have the rival Franks, Ripuarian, under his control. The Ripuarians were led by a powerful tribal chieftan, and were not to be as easily annexed as Clovis hoped for.

One day, in the seventh year of the campaign against the Ripuarians, Lord Alfred, commander of the Army, burst into the tent where Clovis made his headquarters.

"Sire!", Lord Alfred flashed. "Your men grow weary of this battle and are becoming mutinous."

Clovis frowned, then spoke, "Because for I too am weary of this battle. Little I care for their petty troubles."

Lord Alfred nervously toying with his sword hilt started to speak. "But Sire — — —."

Clovis, who had his back to Lord Alfred, turned and said, "Enough. We hold a council of war tonight to decide the fate of my Army."

That night in the tent the general staff of officers had gathered. Clovis, Lord Alfred and Duke Mangrove, the advisor to the king, were also there. As the council got under way the babble of incessant affirmation in the true style of noble "Yes men" became audible. Duke Mangrove silenced this useless chatter by exclaiming, "My Lord, as we all know this campaign has been a fruitless one!"

Clovis angered by this observation but still respecting the advice of Mangrove, sarcastically said, "Dear Mangrove you have always given such wise council."

Duke Mangrove, with little regard for his King's evident displeasure, continued, "Would not the Ripuarians be more easily conquered by the removal of their Chieftain?"

Clovis in the magnanimity of conceit declared, "So it shall be done, for the glory of the Roman Catholic Church I swear that these barbarians shall be under my rule ere the moon wanes."

With this oath goading him on Clovis cudgelled his brain for a suitable plan. When at last the plan, like Minerva, sprang into being it was destined to be one of the most malicious acts in its concept and ultimate fulfillment to be noted in the annals of history.

The rival chieftain had a son, who was weak and easily influenced but who, nevertheless, had a strong desire to have power and personal achievement. He could get neither of these things from his own people because they would never elect him, as custom dictated, to be their chieftain.

Clovis, arch schemer, invited this boy to come to his court. The boy flattered by the invitation of such a powerful ruler as Clovis, accepted without hesitation.

The boy was shown all the pleasures to be had at such a large court, as Clovis then had. The weeks slipped by, and Clovis did nothing towards fulfilling his promise. One day when Clovis and the boy were strolling through the royal grounds Clovis turned to the boy and said, "Let's see son, you are about eighteen, the right age to marry my daughter and become one of the court."

The boy, overwhelmed, stammeringly replied, "I don't understand your generosity."

"Well boy," Clovis explained, "for the return o la very small favor on your part I shall make you a Duke, and give you my daughter's hand in marriage."

The boy glowing with anticipation exclaimed, "Anything Sire, you have but to name it and it shall be done."

Hiding his disgust in a frown, Clovis growled, "I want you to return to your home and kill your father."

The boy was speechless at this sudden cruel request. He found himself torn between his insatiable longing for fame and a rather cold feeling of filial pride and devotion. However the latter instinct was too weak to cope with the former, and the boy droned, "It shall be done my Lord."

The lad returned home to faithfully carry out his share of the bargain. With the blood of his father still wet on his hands he returned to Clovis for his reward. On hearing of the boy's return Clovis received him in the privacy of his personal chambers. Kneeling before Clovis the boy related his gruesome crime. He began his tale, "I waited until the court had retired and the castle was still throughout."

Clovis, feigning surprise, said, "Lad, what is this you tell me?"

"Sire," the boy frightened by the turn of affairs exclaimed, "you petitioned me to do this deed."

"Little I know about your ravings," countered Clovis.

"But my Lord," muttered the boy, "I killed my father for the reward you promised me."

Clovis, shocked by the revelation, knitted his brows in a tangled knot and shouted, "You did what?"

"I killed my father," cried the boy.

Clovis who throughout this entire interview had portrayed no recognition of the boy asked, "Why do you come with this tale to me?"

"But Sire," stammered the boy.

"Silence fiend, you killed your father, for that crime you shall be justly punished," thundered Clovis. "Who is your father, so I can set the payment of your crime at the right price?"

The boy losing control of his already insipid courage wailed, "He was chieftain of the Ripuarian Franks."

Clovis displaying unreserved disgust frowned, then spoke, "For this dastardly crime you too shall die." Clovis called the guard stationed at the door of his chamber and had the cringing wretch imprisoned.

The boy a few days later, completely divorced from his sanity by this betrayal, was hanged, the most despised criminal in the land, as Clovis reviled from the scriptures, "Thou shalt not kill."

Clovis, with no compunction, set foot on the land and peoples he had so cowardly conquered with but ten days remaining before the third setting of the moon.

Campus Club Crier

- Alpha Phi Omega . . . Luncheon, January 6, 12:30, at the Women's City Club.
- Astronomy . . . January 8, 7:30, at the Galileo Observatory.
- Beta Phi . . . Business, January 8, at 18th and Taraval.
- Block Society . . . Rally, January 12, 2:30 p.m., at Galileo Auditorium.
- Forum . . . Discussion, January 5, 8:00 p.m., at 2143 16th Avenue.
- Lambda Chi . . . Business, January 9, at 2418 35th Street.
- Omicron . . . See Bulletin Board.
- Phi Alpha Omega . . . (1) Social meeting, January 6, at 3208 25th Street. (2) Business meeting, January 8, 8:00 p.m., indefinite.
- Phi Beta Rho . . . Elections, January 7, 2:00 p.m., at 2217 Cecilia Street.
- Tri Epsilon . . . Banquet, January 29, indefinite.

200 At AWS Tea Gathering; Soph Sweetheart Attends

Two hundred students, a record crowd, attended yesterday's Associated Women Students tea dansant held in the Century Club according to Muriel Nolan, Association president.

Highlight of the day was the introduction of the college sweetheart who was presented with a bid to the Soph Formal by Bill O'Neil, president of the class.

Ram's Horn

(Continued from page 2)

school, I think school is lovely, I think my instructors are lovely (?) but a person can get too much of a good thing (now how do I mean that?)

Every time I went out during the vacation I was assailed with the thought that I should be home studying, and when I blew the dust off my books Tuesday morning my conscience pricked me so bad that I began to bleed internally.

Now that finals are almost upon us I find that I don't know a Damn thing (of course, I wouldn't have known anything anyway but at least the suspense would have been over).

Now, what I am trying to get at is this: Why should the state (I guess it was the state, I don't think it's important enough for Roosevelt to play with) change the semester around? After all this isn't Thanksgiving (far from it).

Cannot somone devise a plan to get us out of this dilemma.

Right Answers

Presidential Notes

By ELMER HUBACHER

"ALL good things must come to an end." This maxim well expresses our thoughts at the time of this writing, for we feel that having had the pleasure of serving as your president for this semester has been a "good thing."

We say this perhaps from a selfish viewpoint. We know that we as an individual have more than benefitted from this opportunity. Our only hope is that you the students have been satisfied.

To those persons who have felt that this semester has been a successful one, we can only say "thanks" as a humble token of our gratitude.

To all those individuals who have by their cooperation and service contributed to the success of this semester we give our deep and heartfelt thanks.

To our successor and the other members of his executive council, we sincerely tender our wholehearted wishes for a very successful and prosperous semester in office.

In closing we wish to leave with this thought, 1940 will be a year long to be remembered in the annals of the college. You students who will still be here will have the privilege of attending the college that will be —and we say this with a feeling of surety—the best on the Pacific Coast in every respect. The ensuing semester is to be an important one. Support your new officers, and we assure you, that your support will make for a Junior College that will be second to none.

Ski Story

(Continued from page 3)

sorry that circumstances and the weather caused a calling off of a mass movement of the club to the high altitudes, but we can hope for better breaks next semester. The best season for skiing in California is from January to the first week in March. We're lookink forward till that time."

Other members of the club found themselves sick, in other places of the State, and just pessimistic as to the presence of snow in the Sierras, explained Ogg. Erling Jacobsen, club secretary, went down to Long Beach and there had a try at dry-skiing on the sands of Southern California.

Ogg said that the group was planing to go up to the snow, if it exists, immediately after finals. According to Ogg, the skiing conditions then should be at their best.

A TUXEDO OR A TAILCOAT IS KNOWN BY THE ACCESSORIES IT KEEPS!
Studs Links Ties
Sox Gloves Scarfs
All authentically correct for every formal occasion!
Roos Bros
CALIFORNIA'S LEADING CLOTHIERS FOR 74 YEARS!
MARKET AT STOCKTON

FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE — FALL 1939

Classes	Day	Hour
8:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday Jan. 15	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*8:00 o'clock—T-Th	Friday Jan. 19	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
9:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Friday Jan. 19	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
9:00 o'clock—T-Th	Tuesday Jan. 16	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
10:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Wednesday Jan. 17	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*10:00 o'clock—T-Th	Thursday Jan. 18	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
11:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Thursday Jan. 18	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
11:00 o'clock—T-Th	Tuesday Jan. 23	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
12:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday Jan. 22	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
12:00 o'clock—T-Th	Wednesday Jan. 24	9:00 a.m.-12:00 m.
*1:00 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Tuesday Jan. 16	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
*1:00 o'clock—T-Th	Monday Jan. 22	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Monday Jan. 15	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
2:30 o'clock—T-Th	Wednesday Jan. 17	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock—M-W-F & Daily	Tuesday Jan. 23	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.
3:30 o'clock—T-Th	Wednesday Jan. 24	2:30 p.m.- 5:30 p.m.

All classes meet in regular rooms for examination with the exception of those meeting at Powell Street which are marked with an asterisk. They will meet at Galileo High School in rooms listed at left.

Afternoon examinations held at 58 Sutter Street and at Girls High School will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. instead of from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. A special schedule will be issued by the Department of Business Education.

All classes beginning at 8:10 or 8:30 a.m. are scheduled for examination with 8 o'clock classes. This regulation follows for each succeeding hour. Examinations are scheduled for the hour of the lecture period, not the laboratory or conference period.

The St. Louis Browns is the only major league team that has not won a pennant.

GUARANTEED TYPEWRITERS

All standard makes at Underwood and Royal Typewriters.
Closing out stock of Late Model Underwood and Royal Typewriters.
May be purchased on small monthly payments. Also New Portable typewriters at low as $29.75
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. Hastings
591 Market St. Phone SUtter 4734

YOU CAN SELL YOUR TEXTBOOKS NOW
The Junior College Student Store Pays You Cash

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
The Guardsman
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE
Vol. X MONDAY, JANUARY 29, 1940 No. 1

HEAVY REGISTRATION LOOMS

Shareholders And Dividends

By President A. J. Cloud

THE editor of The Guardsman has courteously invited me to use the columns of that excellent publication for a brief article, when the Spring semester (the college's tenth semester) begins. I am happy to accept the assignment, especially as it confers upon me the privilege of addressing former students and new arrivals alike, and of extending cordial greetings to the entire body.

In that vast, buzzing whirl known as the business world, the index to financial success, at least in the area of corporate business, is the dividend. When profits are secured, each shareholder is rewarded in proportion to his investment through the declaration of a dividend.

While this college is not operated for financial profit, nevertheless, in a very real sense, it has shareholders. The citizens of California in general and of San Francisco in particular, as represented by the Superintendent of Schools and the Board of Education, are shareholders, for they have liberally invested large sums to keep this college a "going concern". Parents and friends who have given assistance and encouragement, and who have exhibited good will and cooperation, are shareholders. Instructors are shareholders by virtue of the skill and knowledge they are contributing toward the realization of the aims and ideals of the institution.

The dividends accruing to this widely dispersed and deeply interested body of shareholders are not reckoned on the basis of capital invested, nor by estimating the time and effort put forth to create a plant or to establish and improve an organization, but strictly and wholly through measurement of the growth attained educationally by another group of shareholders—the student population. As the students, individually and collectively develop their intellectual and spiritual powers, under the beneficient influence of the college environment, so shall they, likewise, accumulate large returns on the investment for all other shareholders in the common enterprise.

"Noblesse oblige" was the motto inscribed on the coat-of-arms of a famous ancient family of France. Freely translated, it meant: opportunity carries with it responsibility. The students of this college now have the opportunity.

Board Of Ed Considering Parking Lot For New Campus

A committee of the Board of Education, it was revealed this week, is investigating the possibility of acquiring use of land adjacent to the Balboa Park campus, to be used by students and faculty for the parking of automobiles.

The group, the Committee on Physical Properties, headed by Hon. Richard E. Doyle, has yet to submit its recommendations to the board as a whole, but it is reported to be considering two alternative plans.

First of these courses of action would contemplate the segregation of a strip of land on the west flank of Phelan Avenue, directly across from the campus, for college use. Eventually, under this plan, Phelan Avenue would be widened on its western side.

Another possibility is that of the transfer of lands lying north of the campus and east of Phelan Avenue. This area at present is held by the Park Board.

Commenting on this latest move in the construction of the new campus, Pres. Archibald J. Cloud expressed the hope that the development of a parking lot would ultimately provide a methodical system of caretakers, watchmen, and ticket services for the student-body and faculty.

Such safeguards, Cloud said, are now in effect on the campi of U.C.L.A. and San Diego State.

In conjunction with the parking lot inquiry, The Guardsman announced this week that it will conduct a survey of the student-body during the current registration period to determine the percentage of students operating cars and anxious to avail themselves of the opportunity.

(Continued on page 4, column 6)

Last Minute Campus News

A symposium on extra curricular activities will be held for the benefit of freshman students Wednesday morning, February 14, in the Powell Street lecture hall, announced Al Williams, president of the Associated Students.

* * * *

All students desirous of serving on the Welfare, Judicial, Social, or Rally Committees should communicate with Al Williams, Muriel Grenelle, or Ray Berns. There will be an announcement on the Powell Street bulletin board concerning time and place of meeting of said committees. This information came from President Al Williams.

Amendments Students Vote For Three, Against One

Passage of several amendments to the Associated Students Constitution and defeat of one proposed amendment resulted from a meeting of the Associated Students on Friday, January 12.

Passed practically unanimously was an amendment inaugurating a student welfare council of ten members to undertake investigations and campaigns as an aid to the Executive Council.

Also passed without opposition was an amendment making mandatory the publication at least a week in advance of intention to appoint students to the various standing committees. The amendment is designed to give any student wishing to serve on the committees an opportunity to apply for an interview.

The third and final amendment passed by the meeting was one to strike from the constitution by-laws the Article V reading as follows:

"The Music, Forensics, and Publications departments shall be alloted funds from the Associated Students' budget.

2. The Alumni Association of the San Francisco Junior College shall be eligible to receive funds from the Associated Students.

"We consider this Article V quite superfluous, in view of the general provisions of the Constitution giving the Executive Council full power to allot Associated Students funds. For this reason we have urged its deletion from the constitution," said Associated Students President Al Williams.

Presidential Requirement Defeated

Defeated after much discussion, by a vote estimated at approximately three to two was the fourth proposed amendment. This amendment would have made compulsory completion of Political Science 92, a course in student government, for all candidates for the office of Associated Students president. The final vote indicated that student opinion did not favor such a compulsion, preferred to leave pre-requisites for presidential office as they stand.

At the same meeting a motion was passed unanimously awarding each incoming Executive Council member a charm indicating his membership thereon. The charms will be awarded at the introduction of the new Executive Council during the Orientation Week rally to be held Monday, February 12.

Sandys Declares Guardsman Story Contest Wide Open

With the cooperation of Edward E. Sandys of the English department, The Guardsman this semester, will continue to publish student literary efforts in the form of short stories and brief biographical material.

Formerly only manuscripts from the English writing classes were accepted, but this semester The Guardsman will welcome the work of any student within the college.

Manuscripts should be typewritten on one side of the paper only, double spaced, and signed by the author. They should be turned over either to Sandys or Thomas O'Neill at the Powell Street building.

Of the manuscripts submitted, Sandys will select several of the best and deliver them to The Guardsman editorial staff, which, in turn, will have final decision on those to be published.

Newly Chosen College Leaders

Pictured above are the newly elected student body officers. (See story below) From left to right they are: Top row, Florence Hansen, secretary of the Associated Students, Al Williams, president of the Associated Students, and Muriel Grenelle, vice-president of the Associated Students. Bottom row: Lyle Schultz, president of the Associated Men Students, Gloria Miller, president of the Associated Women Students, and Ray Berns, head yell leader.

These students constitute six members of the Executive Council, governing body of the college. Other members are Leonard Gress editor of The Guardsman, Alden Thorogood, president of the Club Advisory Board, a representative of the Women's Athletic Association, and a representative of the Men's Athletic Council.

Anticipate Enrollment Of 2600; Military Science, Radio Lab Courses Offered

REGISTRATION BULLETIN

The fall semester's registration of 2,400 is expected to be exceeded this spring by at least 200, making a record registration, "This figure," J. Paul Mohr, registrar, explained, "is based upon entrance examinations, general registration and the small number of graduates."

There will be a chance in the registration procedure. The sign-up sheet will be used for class roll call until Monday, February 12. The registration books are to be filed February 7, 8, and 9, with registration closing February 9.

On February 12, the instructors will check student registration cards and enrollment cards will be signed.

By BILL ALBERTSON

You are a semi-annual occurrence. You are frenzied, worried and don't know which way to turn. You have only a vague idea of what this college has to offer in the realm of education. In other words you are the typical Freshman.

Maybe you have a slight idea of what you want to be in life; maybe a doctor, a radio announcer, hotel chef, policeman or just a plain bum. Well there is a course here for any line you want, though becoming a bum is left up to you—more or less.

College preparatory courses are fairly variegated, and if you are within this group you will be straightened out when you meet your adviser during registration.

A series of courses are offered to those who have not found a major and are still hunting for one (relax girls, this is not a marriage bureau) and other persons interested in obtaining a varied background. If you plan to specialize or have a chosen field and desire to gain an acquaintance with the different aspects and practical applications in the fields of social science, applied science, or English, you will find these courses practical. Interest is centered on the solution of contemporary problems.

Are you interested in the trajectory of a projectile? Would you like to be a soldier and shoot off cannons? Then, THE ARMY WANTS YOU!

Military Requirements Listed

First, though, you have to fulfill the following pre-requisites: you must have completed three years of ROTC in high school, be at least eighteen years of age, a citizen of the United States and willing to join the 250th Coast Artillery of the National Guard. They furnish you with the big guns.

After you have completed the courses you will have what the army would call "the equivalent of the military knowledge qualifications necessary for appointment as Second Lieutenant, Coast Artillery," then, you can take your pick of either the National Guard of California or Coast Artillery Reserve, U.S.A.

So far you have not found anything that suits you. You came to school to prepare for a job. Something like Insurance, or perhaps Merchandising, or you think you'd like to marry Mamie and take care of an apartment house. There is a course in apartment house management. Also, there are a few fine courses in domestic science for Mamie. No more disguised sneaks in the form of biscuits. Ah, science!

Semi-Professional Courses Offered

These courses come under the heading of semi-professional, and are the answer to a frustrated employee's dream. They are designed to meet the many requests of the semi-professional industries and trades for graduates trained for work in their respective field. Included are Accounting, Stenography, Radio Engineering, Merchandising, Insurance, Landscape Architecture, Hotel Management and Operation, plus a new course titled Radio Workshop.

These programs lay equal stress upon the importance of practice and the importance of theory. In all, the student will receive practical experience and theoretical instruction. Cooperative arrangements have been made with employers so that students will receive practical business experience.

If you have a suppressed desire to play "Cops and Robbers," a psychologist would immediately tab you as a good prospect for the Police Training Courses offered by the college, providing you don't want to play the robber. You have to obtain clearance of your police record, above the average in physical condition, and be a citizen of the U.S. to gain entrance to the course.

The Police Training courses are designed to provide training in enforcement work in the San Francisco and the Bay counties and in the federal, state and county. As yet you haven't been interested.

You want comparative security in a world of change, yet insist on a chance of advancement. You want a decent amount of pay for a day's work and to be free from the worry that any minute you may be out hunting for another job. Fifty years ago they'd have told you you were full of hot air. But no, not today, for we have Civil Service.

Civil Service Preparation

The present size of the government machine and the complexity of its problems have made it necessary to obtain thoroughly trained young men and women of ability. Standards of employment in such fields have been materially raised. Students interested in specializing in such work as accounting, stenography, police work or any other work available in the curriculum in which the civil service presents opportunities for employment should take the civil service course subjects in addition to the subjects necessary in their specialized field.

These core subjects concern the various governmental agencies, the background and principal aims, functions, and ideals. An important phase of the program is to send selected students for part-time work into various governmental departments, thus giving an opportunity to get practical experience and to observe first hand the actual workings of public service agencies.

Gross Appointed Guardsman Editor For New Semester

Selected to fill the office of Editor of The Guardsman for the ensuing semester is Leonard Gross, former Managing Editor of the paper.

Appointed to places in the inner editorial sanctum, each with the title of Associate Editor, are Louis Goldstone of Sports Editor fame and Assistant Managing Editor Daniel Rosenblat. Retaining their former positions are Women's Editor Lucretia Antonelli, and Edmund Wunsch, whose official designation has been changed from Business Manager to Advertising Manager.

Probationary appointments as editorial assistants without specific title have been made in the cases of reporters Bill Hall and Borrie Hyman.

Join Collegiate Press

In an attempt to present the students of the college with more collegiate news, The Guardsman this month became a member of Associated Collegiate Press.

Associated Collegiate Press is a nation wide organization that works along the same lines as Associated Press, but differs in that it only gathers and interprets news from the colleges in the United States.

This news is then sent each week to the various colleges and universities that are members of A.C.P.

Williams Scores Sweep In Record Election; Grenelle Voted To Vice-Presidency

Rolling up a plurality of one hundred sixteen votes, Al Williams was elected to the Associated Student presidency, January 5, in heavy balloting that broke all previous records of college politics.

Williams, former judiciary committee chairman and past occupant of the AMS presidential and yell-king posts, as well as chief proponent of the newly adopted student welfare committee amendment, swept into office with 327 votes as against 211 and 130, respectively, for Hugh Ryan and Hal Hoffman, in a three-cornered race.

Speaking before a constitutional assembly on January 12, Williams reiterated his intention of initiating student reforms, and lauded his two opponents, assuring them of places in the government.

Other Officers

While Muriel Grenelle was capturing the vice-presidency with 343 votes to Muriel Nolan's 303, Florence Han-

(Continued on page 4, column 4)

Debate Becomes Extra-Curricular; Team Goes North

"This semester there will be no class and no units for debating," said Lloyd Luckmann, debating instructor for the college. "Debating will be an extra-curricular activity. We will have our meetings on either Tuesdays or Thursdays each week at 3:30 in the afternoon."

New students should see Luckmann the first of the month.

From February 15 through 17 the college debaters will take part in a Debater's Conference in Stockton, where the speakers will enter contests in extemporaneous speaking, debating, and panel discussions. Participants who were chosen from last year's debating group are Isaac Abrahams, Rema Corbit, Catherine Crots, Eleanor Coy, Janet Fellows, Howard Letcher, Louis Goldstone, Bill Hall, Dave Spencer, Irving Tilin, and Barbara Smith.

Class Elections Feb. 12 After Freshman Rally; Committeemen Needed

Class elections will be held Monday, January 12, announced Al Williams, president of the Associated Students.

All students who wish to run for some class office should file their intentions, with their name and the office for which they intend to run, with one of the members of the election committee on or before Wednesday, February 7, at 2:30 p.m.

Members of the election committee are Daniel Rosenblat, chairman, Alden Thorogood and Leonard Gross. The complete committee has not yet been chosen.

"Any other members of the student body who wish to serve on the election committee should communicate with me as soon as possible," said Rosenblat. "We are anxious for all students to take an active interest in class activities this semester, for in this way we will be able to have more class social affairs."

Orientation Week Scheduled For February 12 To 16 As Student Leaders Make Plans For Welcoming Freshmen

A.M.S.

All men students of the college, and especially new students, will be entertained at the traditional AMS Smoker to be held at the Sorosis Club, Thursday, February 15 at 8 p.m. announced Joe Amori, Associated Men Students adviser. He emphasized that the smoker is to be an informal get-together affair, and that everything is free with no restrictions on non-student body card holders.

"Free food" is the headline attraction of the smoker, and other features include films of Coast Conference football games, athletic exhibition, group singing, and a magic show.

Lyle Shultz, newly elected AMS president will act as master of ceremonies and will introduce the college student body president, Al Williams.

The Sorosis Club is located on Sutter between Powell and Mason Streets.

"Past AMS Smokers have proven to be the highlight of Orientation Week at least as far as the men are concerned," Shultz said. "We urge all men to attend as we have a fine program prepared."

A.W.S.

Scheduled for Thursday, February 15, is the semi-annual AWS tea honoring the freshmen women. A program will start the afternoon affair at 2:30 o'clock in the Galileo Auditorium, and tea will be served from 3:30 to 4:30 in gymnasium A, announced Gloria Miller, president.

Representatives from the Women's Athletic Association, Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, and the Home Economics Association will give brief talks on their groups to acquaint the new women with the organizations open to women of the college.

Introduction of the AWS officers to the assemblage will be a feature of the entertainment. Officers for the present semester are President, Gloria Miller; Vice-President, Jean Arnold; Secretary, Dorothy Mills, and Margaret Dougherty, adviser.

Open to all the women of the college, the purpose of the tea is to acquaint new women with the various social groups, sport associations and extra-curricular activities offered to all women of the college, as well as to meet on common ground and become acquainted with one another.

Social

Petite Muriel Grenelle, newly elected Vice-president and therefore, chairman of the social committee, swung into action on her duties for the spring semester this week. She announced that the Low Frosh dance would tentatively be held February 16, at the Fairmont Hotel, with music by Eddie Murphy of the Rio Del Mar Country Club.

Although definite plans for the rest of the semester have not yet been completed, Miss Grenelle said that tentative plans were for the introduction of floor-shows at the dances, and the possible swinging of an occasional dance to Metropolitan Oakland and a country club.

Miss Grenelle voiced the request that anyone interested in becoming a member of the social committee see her during this week as soon as possible, at the Powell Street building, where she expects to have an organizational meeting.

She concluded "I would appreciate any constructive suggestions for future dances, at this time."

The Guardsman

1939 Member 1940
Associated Collegiate Press

Published Weekly by the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College

Vol. X Monday, January 29, 1940 No. 1

LEONARD GROSS ..... EDITOR

Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse — Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Daniel Rosenblat ..... Associate Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Associate Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli ..... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ..... Advertising Manager
Marion MacKillop ..... Staff Artist
Joe Kurpieski ..... Photographer

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Ray Berns, Janet Fellows, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Borrie Hyman, Frances Manalo, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jack Weicker, Jay Wright
BUSINESS STAFF—Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or college oponion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Words Of Welcome And Explanation To New Students Orientation Week To Introduce Spring Semester

EVER since the beginning of the college, the main handicap when seeking learning has been the troublesome task of traveling from one building to another.

Many students who would otherwise have attended the college did not do so because of this difficulty.

The new students entering the portals of San Francisco Junior College this week are no doubt well prepared for this difficulty, since it has been bandied from mouth to mouth for five years until the task of attending the institution has taken on a gargantuan aspect.

Perhaps however, they are over prepared, for it is not really such a hardship as many would have prospective students believe.

A good percentage of the students only have to travel to two buildings a day, to morning classes at Powell Street or Girls High School, and to afternoon classes at Galileo High School.

It is felt by many that this matter of traveling to a different location in the afternoon does much to break the monotony of attending classes day in and day out. Some feel that the journeying refreshes and relaxes the mind so that it is a little more prepared for the afternoon grind.

Naturally, there is much more to be said in favor of a permanent building, but the fact remains that, as many great philosophers have said, "Things aren't really as bad as they seem."

The one thought that should be conveyed to the new freshmen is that they are no longer in a high school where their every move and action is carefully watched.

College brings with it a certain sense of responsibility that is not found in secondary institutions where the instructors do the thinking for the students.

Entering college puts one on his own. Whether one fails or succeeds depends entirely upon the individual.

It is the purpose of college not only to develop minds along serious and educational matters but to fit the student to occupy with ease a place in the social whirl of life.

Since this is so, it is advisable for all new students to start this week to meet people, make friends, and in short get used to the new way of things.

For this purpose, the semi-annual Freshman Orientation Week is sponsored by the college under the direction of the Social Committee, the Associated Women Students and the Associated Men Students.

To appreciate fully the advantages of college, it is almost necessary to mingle with fellow classmates at the various functions that are given from time to time.

Orientation Week is based on the idea of upper classmen meeting lower classmen in an informal and friendly manner. To carry out this idea, a program has been planned to please everyone. For the women, there is the AWS tea and reception; for the men, there is the AMS smoker and funfest; for all are the Low Freshman semi-formal dance, and the collegiate mixer.

The best way to begin a semester is with a loud bang. Orientation Week is that bang. Don't miss it.

Whole Hearted Interest In Class Elections Urged

NEXT week, the class elections will be held.

In the past these elections have always been more or less a neglected stepchild. The majority of the students have shown little or no interest in these elections, and consequently the attendance at the voting rooms has been very small.

Perhaps it would be wise to remember that the students who will be running for the various class offices are in reality the connecting link between the students at large and the college Executive Council.

It is their job to discover just what their classes want and present these demands to the council.

Since this is true, it seems that class officers are in reality a very integral part of student government.

Not only that, but the students who run for class office now may well be Associated Student officers some day. Class office positions are really the testing ground for future governing material.

This semester, the election of class officers promises to be one of the best ever held.

In the past it has been the custom to push through the elections in a bored manner in an attempt to get them over as soon as possible.

Next week, however, the various candidates will be introduced to their respective classes and the presidential candidates will give two minute addresses.

It is not necessary to rant and rave on the subject of attending class elections and voting for the most suitable candidate. That fact should be self evident to all.

Of course, it is also self evident that those who fail to show any interest in their class elections are hurting no one but themselves.

It is to the best advantage of everyone to vote for the best qualified student in his class. Failure to do so merely means that the class as a whole will suffer through lack of suitable leaders.

Fellows

. . . The Spectator

A NEW trend seems to be sweeping into the contemporary theater; the trend to present Shakespeare as it was originally written. Last fall San Francisco audiences were entertained by the Lunts' production of Taming of the Shrew—a production that "went beyond the enveloping dust to find the true and original Shakespearian manuscript." This year Maurice Evans presented Hamlet "in its entirety"—5 fleeting hours of the greatest entertainment in the English speaking world, for what better combination could there be than Shakespeare and Maurice Evans?

Maurice Evans' superlative performance was expected, but the excellence of the supporting cast was a welcome surprise.

Evans' Hamlet, besides being uncut, is also different in interpretation than any other production. Instead of a thin, pale, and melancholy lad, Hamlet is robust and healthy, although upset over his father's death. Some interpretations of Hamlet lead the audience to believe the 'melancholy Dane' to be mad but in the Evans production there is no doubt that Hamlet is a thoroughly sane young man whose insanity now and then is just an act.

Probably the most difficult part there is to play, barring none, is Ophelia's mad scene. Instead of shrieking and raving and driving the audience crazy too, Carmen Mathews interprets Ophelia's insanity in a wistful and distracted manner suited to a gentle lady of her birth and breeding. The sweet resonance of Miss Mathews' speaking and singing voice is just the kind of voice one would expect Ophelia to have, and as she dances about the stage so gracefully we are sure it is the best interpretation Ophelia could ever have possibly had.

The scene in which the King is trying to repent and pray was excellently done. Edwards managed to make the audience feel the struggle that was going on within himself to give up what he had coveted in order to avoid everlasting damnation.

As for Evans, it is difficult to pick out any one scene and say "this was his outstanding one" because Evans was outstanding throughout the entire play. Perhaps the scene we will long remember is the one in his mother's room when he holds up a mirror to her soul, when he pours out his heart to her and for the first time reveals to another human being the tortures he has been suffering. It was in this scene too, though, that Mady Christians was not quite as good as she could have been. Her lines were few and consequently her gestures were just a little overdone.

Evans' soliloquy, "to be, or not to be . . ." was beautifully done and following this the heart-breaking love scene when he renounces Ophelia, and —but this could go on forever.

For students who are going to take English 1B this play was of inestimable value. For students who have already taken English 1B this play must have surely given them the greatest joy they have ever received from the entertainment world. There is certainly no doubt that Maurice Evans is the greatest male actor in our times.

Going Up — By Marion MacKillop

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

Student Asks More Informal Dances; Stalin Reprimanded

Editor's note: The Rams Horn is the column in The Guardsman reserved exclusively for the students of the college. It is your column. If you have any suggestions, complaints, or criticisms of anything, here is the place to express them.

Deadline for all letters is Monday afternoon at 2:30. Letters may be left in The Guardsman box at either Powell Street or Galileo. All contributions must be signed by the writer. If, however, the writer wishes his name kept secret, he should indicate as much and the name will not be used.

● CHALLENGE REFUSED
Editor, The Guardsman:

I am a member of the great family of nicotine addicts. Since you are making one grand campus out at Balboa Park, have you made any accommodations for my adherents, etc.?

What have you done? Will the poor devils have to rush out between classes in all kinds of weather and drag on a wet weed?

What have you done?

Sincerely,
A Fag

Editor's note: To begin with, we are not making the campus. It is being done by strictly legal union workers. Secondly, it is not our place to do anything so why the accusing tone? We suggest you take the matter up with school authorities.

● HELP WANTED
Editor, The Guardsman:

I am an accredited student and am relying on you to give me some help for I am puzzled and a little bit scared. In fact, I am in a quandary.

You see, I never read any of the newspapers except the funnies, until just recently, when I started looking at the front page because they had some interesting headlines about the wars.

I began reading about the Russians in Finland, and about the U.S. Army war games at Monterey, and I started to get a little puzzled, and then I got worried.

The whole thing is this: I keep seeing where Mr. Stalin calls the Russian generals back home to Moscow after they get licked, and makes them stand against a wall and get shot. I don't think this is very considerate of Mr. Stalin, and here's where I get worried.

I wonder if Mr. Roosevelt is going to do the same thing. I sure hope not, because it would be a shame if Mr. Roosevelt sieced a firing squad on the general of the defending force, who got pushed around down at Monterey. After all, I think the poor fellow tried his best.

You are an influential newspaper, and I hope you will write a letter to Mr. Roosevelt or something, and tell him please not to do any shooting.

And also, if you have time, you might write to Mr. Stalin, and tell his please to lay off.

Soft-Hearted Joe

(Asst. Ed's Note—Dear Joe: Don't worry about our generals; they're safe. But your mind is troubled and needs a rest. We would suggest you read the People's World and Daily Worker, which are just as funny as the funnies, and which will inform you that Finland started the war, that there is no war, that the Russians have lost only 91.43 soldiers and no battles, and have killed and captured umpty-zillion Finnish aggressors.)

● LET'S BE INFORMED
Editor, The Guardsman:

Why don't we cut down on the number of semi-formal dances and throw several informal and sport dances around the Bay area? I realize that the class traditions as they are do not fall into this scheme, but needed changes should not be ignored if the activities of the college are not to become stale.

We less sophisticated fellows feel out of place "pushing around some babe dressed in a formal." Surely even the best of the so-called men about town on this campus sympathize with this point of view.

Incidentally, if class tradition is so important, how about school tradition? I refer to corsages. This tradition of "no corsages" has been broken so many times that it is pure dust. I think that some one of our numerous committees could do something about either maintaining it for the liberals or dropping it for the reactionaries. Then we'd all know where we stand.

Old Clothes Joe

Hall

. . . shots at RAMdom

IF you're reading this column then count yourself as part of the upper 10 per cent. Only the upper 10 per cent read this column. We put an "e" on the end of artist, we peddle smooth-paper subtleties, we breath through Kleenex when we're in the study hall, we eat dinner by candlelight with Beethoven's fifth Symphoney blaring at us from a Tribune coupon phonograph.

Occasionally we hang around the cigarette - smoking-coffee-drinking-backroom-redhots. Those are the students who call the Communists, "Commies" and the Socialists, "Yipsels". You can't say much about them; when they're well-fed they'll compromise with Roosevelt, and when they're starved they'll compromise with Bridges.

All right you upper 10 per cent, sniff with your fine aquiline noses, and we'll get down to the meat of this column.

A man walked out of the St. Francis Hotel yesterday. We know him. His name is Julius and he wears striped, double-breaster suits, and wing-tipped shoes. There is something fascinating in he way he speaks of three-zero money. Julius is a big advertising man who got his start by selling Wrigley's the slogan that, "More Wrigley gum is found underneath theatre seats than any other brand." But that's all right, Julius is kind to his mother and loves children.

Yearly New Yorker picks the best gags of that year and then publishes the results. The best all-time cartoon is allegedly the one which shows executives gathered in an excited manner around a DeMille bathtub, and the cartoon caption reading, "Consternation—the day a bar of soap sank at Procter and Gamble's."

This year maybe G. B. Shaw will get an award. Wasn't it Shaw who, when the collection plate was passed in church, merely looked at it and said, "Press".

One of the local sports was making his debut to the girl's family . . . He had decided on the snappy approach. "Well, . . . Hello Angel where's the old man and the old lady? Hmmm, you're little brother running the hatcheck concession tonight! Ah! That's the sort of dinner table I like to see! Gee, real butter . . . etc." P.S. This gentleman supplies fast lines for any social occasion.

Gross

. . . While Thinking

FOREIGN

OUR very aggravating English speaking cousins across the Atlantic seem to have one track minds.

If we recall correctly, the British in 1914 did their best to hinder American shipping even as they are doing today.

They got away with it then, but we aren't so sure they will get away with it this time. The temper of the people and the government today widely differs from that in 1914.

Many Americans are decidedly hostile to the British and at the same time are not pro-Nazi.

This time also, the majority of the nation is not under the mistaken impression that Britian is fighting for the cause of democracy. (At least we hope they're not).

As far as the seizing of U. S. mail is concerned, there is absolutely no excuse for it.

The British claim they are doing it to keep undesirable information from entering Germany. (In other words anti-British propaganda)

That still doesn't give them the right to rob the ships of a neutral nation.

If John Doe is walking down the street with a letter in his hand and Bill Jones sees the letter, thinks it might say something against him and steals the letter from Doe, does that make Bill Jones immune to arrest and imprisonment? (Or a sock in the jaw from John Doe?)

• • •

SAW a headline in a daily newspaper a few days ago that was decidedly humorous. It read: "Japan Indignant Over British Boarding of Asama Maru." The article went on to say that the Nipponese were highly offended because the English took some German sailors off their boat.

After two years or more of incidents with Japan, during which time almost every nation in the world had serious cause for complaint, the Japanese government has the colossal nerve to protest because the British did a perfectly legitimate thing and safeguarded their own interests.

It's a funny world, isn't it?

NATIONAL

THE United States is becoming quite adept at taking care of some of our more loyal Americans.

A few months ago Fritz Kuhn, America's number one, would-be Hitler was sent to prison for misuse of funds, and is now forced to do his goose-stepping and "Heiling" within the limited confines of Sing Sing prison courtyard.

Last week, American Communist leader Earl Browder was sent to jail for entering this country on a forged passport.

The aggravating part of the whole thing is that these two men, actually only penny ante crooks, have the audacity to stand up and shout against American democracy and attempt to make people believe they are getting a raw deal from the U. S. government.

• • •

J. EDGAR HOOVER, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation once made the statement that the United States could lay hands on any subversive group any time it became too unruly.

Hoover and his G-Men certainly proved they were right a few weeks ago when they nipped the Christian Front episode in the bud.

Next time anyone claims the U.S. is asleep on its feet, send him to Mr. Hoover.

CITY

IT is interesting to note the manner in which many San Franciscans have responded to the very serious war games staged by the Army and the Navy.

Usual comments were: "Looks like we are getting smart. We won't be caught unprepared this time." — "We'll show those palookas in Europe if they don't leave us alone".

Of course there was the usual complaint from the radical groups that the government was preparing to throw the men of the country to the gods of war, and that the taxpayers' money was being spent in amunition.

It is strictly a matter of opinion.

Hansen

. . . Campus Club Crier

ABOUT this time every year the clubs and social organizations of the college are arranging for officers and social events for the coming semester. Here is a list of a few of the clubs which have already elected their officers:

● Alpha Lambda Chi . . . President, Marian Miller; Vice-President, Marjorie Meader; Recording Secretary, Leona Doulphin; Corresponding Secretary, Jean Christiansen, and Treasurer, Jean Decker.

● Block SF Society . . . President, Daniel Baker; Vice-President, Bob Owens, and Secretary-Treasurer, David Cunningham.

● Beta Tau . . . President, Don Norden; Vice-President, Charles Sivils; Secretary, Burton Wines, and Treasurer, Claude Helwig.

● Newman Club . . . President, Bob Fex; Vice-President, Camille Condrotte; Treasurer, Jack O'Hallaran.

● Phi Alpha Omega . . . President, Warren Nelson, Vice-President, Tom Redman; Secretary-Treasurer, Slim Thorogood, and Sergeant of Arms, Temple Davies.

● Tri Epsilon . . . President, Frank Hospodarsky; Vice-President, Malcome Jacobs; Secretary, Ray Rhode, and Treasurer, Bob Dudley.

● Pi Mu Gamma . . . President, Howard Letcher; Vice-President, Bert Tuckey; Recording Secretary, Whitney Stephens; Corresponding Secretary, Winnifred Attwood, and Treasurer, Ruth Cohn.

● Rifle and Pistol Club . . . President, Russel Weeks; Vice-President, Lucille Jaeke; Secretary, Marion Murphy; Treasurer, George Humphrey, and Board of Control, Arthur Templeton and Charles North.

● Phi Beta Rho . . . President, Adele Kuhn; Vice-President, Dorothy Obernesser; Recording Secretary, Jeanne Kelly; Corresponding Secretary, Muriel Dodsworth, and Treasurer, Virginia Hubbert.

Already some of the organizations have meetings planned to start off the semester in a hurry. Here are a few of them:

● Tri Epsilon . . . Installation of officers at the Palace Hotel, January 29, at 8 p.m.

● Phi Beta Rho . . . Discussion of rushing activities, Thursday, February 1, 7:30, at 9th Avenue and Lake Street.

● Newman Club . . . Entertainment at St. Mary's Cathedral, February 5, at 8:15 p.m.

● Phi Alpha Omega . . . Installation of officers, February 5, Place indefinite.

● Beta Tau . . . Business meeting, Tuesday, February 6, 8 p.m. Place Indefinite.

● Pi Mu Gamma . . . Meetings every other Thursday, 450 Sutter Building.

● Astronomy Club . . . Meetings Mondays at Galileo Observatory, 7 to 9:30.

● Alpha Lambda Chi . . . Discussion of rushing activities, February 8, Marion Miller's home.

Dot

. . . inTROODings

AH, yes. A new regime in student government will reign over the college this semester, and we'll endeavor to give you a thumb nail sketch of each prominent officer.

Of course the president comes first, and those who have been around the college for a few semesters know what an energetic young fellow has been elected to the highest post in student government. Remember the colossal AMS barn dance which was held at Belmont Country Club a few semesters back— well, if you don't, we do, and it was a super success.

Yes, Al Williams was AMS prexy who had charge of this affair and many others. He was the capable chairman of the judiciary committee last semester, and was active on many other committees. Al has some good ideas worked out for the coming months, and you as the student body can do much to help him.

Now don't crowd around, because the lady is small and we don't want anything to happen. The little lady is blonde, petite Muriel Grenelle, vice-president, who will sponsor the collegiate dances this sprnig.

Florence Hansen, the young lady who ran unopposed for the office of secretary, is versatile in more ways than one. Florence is well-known for her riding ability, and was a blue ribbon winner at the horse show last month.

And here is our sketch of Cheerleader Ray Berns, who did such a grand job of putting pep into the students last semester. Ray has several ideas up his sleeve for the new year and they're bound to be good ones, so good luck Ray.

AMS prexy Lyle Schultz has been called the glamour boy from the southern part of the state, but Lyle says that isn't true, so we'll let you judge for yourselves. Prexy Schultz is comparatively new to the college, but he's a willing worker and very enthusiastic.

If you don't know Gloria Miller, AWS prexy, look for the young lady with the blond streak of hair in her dark tresses. Gloria was the hard working secretary of the Associated Women Students last semester, and is well-qualified to carry on with the duties of president.

And one mustn't forget Jean Arnold, tall brunette vice-president of AWS, and songbird Dorothy Mills, who is blonde and full of jokes. Dorothy is the new secretary for AWS. Then there is little Harold Unterberger (Untermoto) secretary for AMS, who ran unopposed.

THE COLUMNISTS

RAMblings . . by Ray Berns

BERNS CRYSTAL GAZES, EMERGES WITH SHINER

Another semester, another year is in store as we prepare to unfold the dire events, we fear, that are about to overtake our athletic teams.

Never before in the history of the college has the outlook been so black (come now, Ray, it can't be as bad as all that). Yeah, that's what you say.

"Dutch" Conlan's varsity basketball squad has dropped all of their practice games to date, and prospects for a victory in the future are not overly bright. So what? So it doesn't mean a thing except that now, more than ever, the students will have to display school spirit.

Pessimistic souls have, in the past, bemoaned the lack of spirit at this institution, and optimistic souls have attributed it to the fact that we do not have a central campus, and, that when we do, spirit will not be lacking.

We are afraid that we shall have to agree with both viewpoints, but it's also our pleasure to point out that the spirit displayed the past semester was just about the best we have ever had there.

GET A SOAP BOX, BERNS

In view of the fact that we will be on one campus next semester, it seems as if there's no time like the present to acquire spirit.

The varsity basketball team may have lost all its games and it may not be up to the par of teams of past years, sure, but win, lose, or draw, it's our team and it's up to us to back it up.

This semester, indeed, will reveal whether or not spirit is permeating RAMdom.

Let's show the cynics and scoffers—let's get out to the rallies and the games and back the basketball squad 100 percent.

Being a tennis nut, this next little item adds to the sad state of our already downtrodden heart.

THE DEBACLE IS COMING

'Tis sad to relate, but State, who, for seasons past, hasn't been able to secure so much as a single victory out of nine matches in the annual tennis encounter between the two colleges, will undoubtedly swamp the Ram netsters when the clash occurs.

For State, you see, possesses in Eddie Amark and Hal Wagner, the best intercollegiate doubles team in these United States.

Bob Peacock and Doug Imhoff, University of California duo who won the National Intercollegiate title last year, met and suffered a decisive defeat by Amark and Wagner in tournament play.

State also has, in Jack Witt, a nice fellow who held down No. 1 position last year and who should fit in very nicely at three or four for the Gators this season.

PEACE, BROTHER, PEACE

One would think we were trying to be a sage with all this editorializing about getting behind the teams, etc., but, if you don't mind and bear with us for one more little observation, we promise to cut it out for the rest of the semester and get into a more cheerful vein.

To the incoming freshmen:—For gosh sakes, you've been reading about the fact that the halcyon days of Ram athletics have passed for the time being and we are striving to get out of the rut, so get in there and pitch by going out for a team. Amen.

RAMettes . . by Lu Antonicelli

"Participation! Recreation! Inspiration!"

Although not "OFFICIAL" this columnist welcomes all you new women and all the returning women to the junior college.

Naturally, along with your regular studies you'll want to get in a little er-r relaxation—so, why not make the Women's Athletic Association your relaxation guide and sign up for tennis, swimming, hockey, golf, or any one of the other numerous sports offered by the organization for the benefit of the book-laden, page-weary, lecture-dulled Frosh of the current semester.

The Women's Athletic Association, one of the oldest in the college, is a streamlined (last semester) extra-curricular activity, and as a result has a wider variety of sports open to the sports minded young woman today than is usually found in a junior college.

All you have to do is participate in a sport, that is, join one of the clubs, make a point of regular attendance and play your best. That enables you to membership in the organization and eventually, to the gaining of a white block sweater.

SPLASH PARTY

The WAA has a splash-spread party, inaugurated last semester also, to which all the members new and old are invited. The idea combines the initiation of new members, the introduction of current WAA officers, and a general swim-for-all followed by dinner. The date for this semester's Splash-Spread affair is Wednesday, February 21 at the YWCA swimming pool.

The members, new and old, of the WAA are expected to attend the AWS rally at which time Thursa Scott, WAA president, will explain the purpose and plan of the organization.

JOIN A CLUB

Beginners are urged to sign up for sports as soon as possible. The time for instruction will be advised and arranged by the instructors. Sports have been arranged to make the scheduling possible and much easier. There are no dues and all equipment, with the exception of horseback riding, is provided free.

A warning goes with the above: All beginners are urged to attend the first meeting of their sports clubs as that is the day that managers will be nominated.

NEW PLANS

Among the new plans for the semester are a Novice card for practice for golfers at the Ingleside golf course . . . new intramural programs in basketball for intramural teams made up of the various clubs in the college . . . a roller-skating mixer, a bicycle ride and picnic, and a hike in the Marin Hills.

For an interesting sidelight we have the news that Physical Education majors have been asked to coach the various teams and officiate at them. Already Marian Dickey, Ruby Klistoff and Lucille Jacke have been signed up for this professional experience. Organize your teams now!

The WAA Spring Program for 1940 is as follows:

5:00, Galileo Gym; Baseball, Straw

Archery, Tuesday-Thursday, 1:20 to 2:00, Palace of Fine Arts.

Badminton, Friday, 3:00 to 5:00, Galileo Gym.

Baseball, Saturday, 10:00 to 11:00, Palace of Fine Arts.

Basketball, Monday - Wednesday, 3:15 to 3:45, Galileo South Gym; Monday-Wednesday, 3:15 to 3:45, Galileo North Gym.

Dance, Monday-Wednesday, 3:15 to 3:45, Galileo North Gym.

Fencing, Tuesday-Thursday, 4:15 to 4:45, Galileo North Gym.

Golf, Friday, 11:15 to 12:00, Funston Field.

Riding (Elementary), Friday, 1:00 to 2:20, Stanyan and Haight.

Riding (Intermediate), Friday, 2:30 to 3:50.

Riding (Advanced), Friday, 4:00 to 5:30.

Rifle (Elementary), Tuesday - Thursday, 4:30, Galileo Armory.

Rifle (Advanced), Tuesday-Thursday, 3:30, Galileo Armory.

Swimming, Monday - Wednesday, 1:30 to 2:00, YWCA Pool.

Skating (Elementary), Friday, 2:30, Winterland.

Skating (Advanced), Friday, 3:30, Winterland.

Tennis, Saturday, 11:00 to 12:30, Palace of Fine Arts.

And there's your schedule. Don't forget to sign up for an extra-curricular sport. Make the WAA your guide to better posture, better sportsmanship, and better living!

Basketball Box Score — To Date
S.F.J.C.	34	Pasadena J.C.	62
S.F.J.C.	24	Howard Insurance	34
S.F.J.C.	32	Domestic Laundry	34
S.F.J.C.	25	California 2nds	28
S.F.J.C.	34	Italian Athletic	45
S.F.J.C.	37	S.F. State	50
S.F.J.C.	30	S.F. State	56
Total Points	216	Total Points	309

Games Won—0; Lost—7; Batting Average—.000.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

THE CASABA CONFERENCE

RAM BASKETEERS INVADE NORTH

College Skiiers Consider Joining Statewide Union

Hopes for a successful college skiing season have hit a new high with an invitation to the college to join the California Collegiate Ski Union.

According to college Ski Club president Bob Ogg, the Ski Union is composed of leading Northern California universities, among them the University of California and Stanford. One other junior college, Placer, is a member of the group.

Would Vote On Ski Rules

Membership in the Union would entitle the college to a vote in the making of skiing rules and to the right to have individual meets with other colleges which have membership in the Union.

Another possibility of the college's organizing with other collegiate groups was revealed by Alden Smith, faculty adviser of the skiiers. Smith said that he had spoken with Oliver Kehrlein, ski editor of the San Francisco Examiner, concerning the organization of a junior college skiing conference. With all the junior colleges in the Bay area, a large, representative group could be organized.

Invitations Received

Invitations have been extended to the college for meets in February. The University of Nevada has invited the college to a meet on February 3 and 4 at Mt. Rose, Lake Tahoe. Salinas Junion College has also requested a contest with the Rams to be held at Pinecrest, California, in the middle of February.

Whether or not to accept these invitations will be decided at the next meeting of the college Skiing Club said Ogg.

This meeting will be held at Oggs' home in Berkeley, at 670 Creston Road, on the evening of February 1. The phone number is AShbury 9611, for those who wish to arrange for transportation to the meeting.

Baseball Prospects Dull; No Stars Are Discerned By Gaddy

Prospects are none to bright for the college this spring, at least so far as baseball activity is concerned.

Jack Gaddy, coach of the diamond boys, bemoans the fact that he has seen no sign of a veteran in college ball this past semester, and has heard no heartening rumors that transfers or prep stars will be flocking to the aid of the hapless Rams.

There are some prospects for the varsity nine, who have worked out this past semester at Funston Field. One of these boys, Martin Zernicke, was a minor sensation in a flock of sensations last spring, while pitching for George Washington High School, when he held one of his conference opponents to a one-hit game.

However, whether any of the fall training boys, or the last remaining veteran, Harry Aleo, return for another semester remains to be seen. Any man in the college who has or has not had experience in America's favorite pastime thus has a good chance to become a varsity player.

Such news, that the Rams may have no stars on the diamond this year, should not automatically bar them from a chance at the conference title. If good material is not forthcoming, teamwork and co-operation are still good assets, and can be developed by Coach Gaddy. As proof of this assumption, one has but to look at the record made by the Rams in football this past semester.

Sports Shorts

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Intercollegiate football — greatest crowd-attractor of all collegiate sports—closed its 1939-40 season in a grand sports banquet of bowl games—a year that hung up many new records of one sort or another.

Here are interesting facts and figures on the gridiron season just closed:

Field-goals and points after touchdown provided the margin of victory in 209 inter-collegiate pigskin battles. This is 60 more than last year.

There were 184 tie games in the season.

Attendance at college games rose one per cent over the previous season. Greatest gains were in the south (11 per cent) and in the Rocky Mountain area (19 per cent).

Faw Down Go Boom

Rifle Team Socked By Independents, Mission Club; Double Loss Negates Previous Record Of Six Victories

As it must to all teams—defeat came to the Ram riflemen recently in one-two fashion when the Independent Rifle Club and the Mission Rifle and Pistol Club decided to reverse previous losses at the hands of the Red squad.

Scoring a single point win, 900 to 899 over the Rams, the Independents had the distinction of becoming "number one iconoclast," according to Captain McFarland, rifle team coach.

North Standout

Standout of that match was the performance of Charlie North, Ram team-captain, who established a new college record at 193 out of a possible perfect 200.

After close tabulation of the Ram-Independent match, McFarland both smiled and frowned. He was happy over the achievement of North, but the defeat seemed to balance things up.

Mission Slaps Rams

The Mission Rifle and Pistol Club followed the Independent team with a highly scored 929 to 890 victory over McFarland's men.

The Mission squad was the first team to give the Rams a sound thrashing. The 39 point difference was alibied by the age of the participants.

Average age of the victors was estimated to have given them 10 years more rifle experience per man than the college shooters.

John Swent, member of the Mission squad, shot a brilliant 192 to grab high point match honors.

McFarland Fatalistic

McFarland announced after the Rams' second straight loss that he was "satisfied with the showing of the squad and that a defeat once in a while was to be expected."

Following are the results of the Ram-Mission match:

Mission—Christman, 181; Baix, 187; O'Leary, 185; Swent, 192; Bunds, 184.

Rams—Davy, 182; North, 181; Templeton, 180; Humphrey, 164; Conley, 183.

Bouts Held Success; Champions Retain Boxing Laurels

Crowned heads of all weight classes were successful in putting down their upstart opponents, January 9, in the semi-annual Associated Men Students' Fights.

The contests were staged at the Verdi Club, traditional locale of the events.

Joe Amori, physical education instructor, whose perennial responsibility it is to promote, manage, and referee the fights, expressed his satisfaction with the conduct of the show, which found little blood spilled and plenty of thrills dispensed.

"We announced beforehand that the fights would be well worth coming to see," Amori said, "and they were. We had a nice crowd, and I know that they enjoyed the events as much as I did."

The ring battles, as usual, were fast and clean, and followed each other smoothly, leaving no tedious gaps in the continuity of action.

In the 139 pound division, Frank Matsumoto cleaned up, to return later in the evening for a special exhibition bout. Allen Larsen walloped his way to victory in the 149 pound class. Jack Weicker and Bob Raine, both veteran college boxers, captured and retained the 159 and 169 pound championships, respectively.

A bout tentatively planned between Mel Chieazola, former Golden Gloves champ, and an unselected opponent, failed to materialize.

Amori, lacking judges, called upon two well qualified men: Ed Strehl and Harry Landers of Strehl, Olivier & Landers, printers and publishers.

The program was notable in that the referee had little cautioning to do, whereas in professional fights the referee is usually breaking clinches, and advising the opponents on various illegal punches.

These were well promoted fights and deserved the attendance of all.

Pink Basketeers Stopped By Clock As Premature Gun Gives State Goofs Victory, 27 To 25; Oshida Stars In 34 To 28 Revenge Drubbing Of Haight Street Club

"Confidentially I think we were gypped!"

Those were the words of Hugh Ryan, manager and player on the college junior varsity hoop team, uttered recently after a close battle in the first games, a double header, played against the San Francisco State Alligators.

The battle was won at Kezar by the Staters only after the game had been called to an abrupt end; the score read 27 to 25.

With five minutes left in the fray of the shortened game the referee halted the game because of the necessity for the varsity battle to start on scheduled time.

Halftime score was 16 to 15 in favor of the Ram's opponents.

Ryan Sorely Troubled

"There's no telling," said Ryan, "who might have won had the tilt been played out to previous agreed upon limits."

So irked were the Ram lightweights as a result of the setback in the shortened tilt, that a day later they came back to win a 34 to 28 battle after having led at halftime, 19 to 12.

The Haight Street Club was defeated as the ball was fed constantly to Otto Oshida who hawk-eyed 11 points through the net to lead the Rams to victory. Gilbert Johannessen followed his team-mate, Oshida, with 8 points to back up the locals.

"Give Me But Ten," Says Wilson; Sounds Tocsin For Volunteers In Net Wars; Two Veterans Come Back

Wanted! About ten men with promising tennis ability.

With the above slogan, Tom Wilson, instructor of tennis among other sports, is on the search for "good tennis material".

Wants To Repeat

Recalling last year's team with its line of victories, Wilson has made known that he hopes for a similar record during the forthcoming semester.

"There's no reason why we shouldn't have a squad as fine as last year's," said Wilson. "Certainly there are many fine netmen within the college."

Madamba, Berns Come Back

Wilson will be sure of two returning veterans who did yeoman work on the racquet team in 1939. They are Bill Madamba, classy olive skinned tenniser and Ray Berns, ex-Galileo tennis star.

At present there is no completed schedule but Wilson expects to have one in a week or two.

"Bring Your Own"—Wilson

Tennis classes will be held this semester on Tuesday and Thursday each week from 10 a.m. to 12 M. according to Coach Wilson, who mentioned that "men who wish to play tennis should bring their own racquets as there are none furnished at the college."

Placer, Yuba Await Onslaught Of Conlanmen; Ineligibility Submerges Local Hopefuls

Two red-hot basketball towns, Auburn and Yuba City, are eagerly awaiting the arrival of "Dutch" Conlan's local cagers who will play Placer and Yuba Junior Colleges on Friday and Saturday evenings, February 2 and 3, respectively, in conference contests.

Conlan is still minus the services of "Red" Kerwin and Joe Johns who will not be eligible until the Santa Rosa game on February 9.

Players who will probably make the trip include Richards, McCarthy, Pfahni, Basso, Staynor, Minnus, Genesy, Cunningham, and Cassidy.

Placer Rated High

In the first game on Friday night, the lads will do battle with the rugged Placer Mountaineers, a team that went to the semi-finals in the junior college tourney at Modesto and lost but by two points to Los Angeles City College, the eventual winner.

The Mountaineers, big and quick and boasting a fast-breaking offense and a close-guarding man-to-man defense must be accorded a substantial edge over Conlan's men.

Sparked by the Triano brothers, Al and George, at forward and guard, respectively, and a six foot four inch center, Placer is said to have one of the finest teams in its history.

Yuba Mystery To Rams

Little is known about Yuba, the Rams' Saturday night opponent, except that it too has a rugged, forcing squad that is expected to play havoc with opposing teams.

In the junior college tournament, the Yuba cagers gave a fine account of themselves before bowing out.

The following Friday, February 9, the Rams, having played their first four successive conference games against Menlo, Salinas, Placer and Yuba out of town, will return to their home court, Kezar Pavilion, to meet San Mateo.

State's Golden Tide Hands Rams Fancy Drubbings In Two Tilts; Local Hoopmen Submerged With Great Ease

In a cruel exhibition, San Francisco State's high-scoring cage machine walloped Louis "Dutch" Conlan's Rams, 50 to 37, and 56 to 30 on successive nights, Thursday and Friday, January 11, and 12, at Kezar Pavilion.

Given little or no chance at the outset of the series, the Rams, undermanned because of injuries and ineligibility, surprised by extending the highly favored Gators for 31 of the 40 minutes in the opening encounter, only to falter in the face of overwhelming manpower.

Sparked by Clary Richards, former Poly High flash, the locals left the Kezar hardwood trailing but by three points at halftime.

Rams Fold At Finish

Going into the last six minutes with State maintaining that three point lead, the scoreboard reading 39 to 36, the Conlanmen folded, and State rang up eleven points while the Rams tallied but one, and therin lies the story of the first game.

Heroes on the State side of the ledger included Tom Collingwood, lanky pivot man, who counted 15 points, and Ernie Loustalot who garnered nine at a forward spot.

Clever dribbling Richards was high-scorer for the Rams with eight, while Tommy McCarthy, graduate of Benny Neff's Lowell cage dynasty, tallied seven.

They Weren't Fooling

State, it seemed, was in no mood for fooling in the second contest, and, taking up its scoring spree where it had left off the night before, ran up an amazing total of points.

Displaying a fast-breaking offense calculated to split their opponents' defense wide open, Dan Farmer's purple and gold hoop artists ran the ragged Rams into the ground, the Gator's first string building up a 42 to 17 lead before Farmer inserted his reserves.

With their cohorts urging them on, imploring them to hit the fifty, yea, even the sixty mark, State's second string outscored the bewildered Rams, 14 to 13, in the closing stages of the game.

High scorers for State? You guessed it—those men Collingwood and Loustalot again with fourteen and sixteen points, respectfully.

And again it was Richards who led the Ram scoring, this time with thirteen points, while "Red" Kerwin, erratic but brilliant local forward, hit the hoop for nine.

Still In The Hole, Conlan's Ram Hoop-Artists Take 28 To 25 Licking From California Seconds; Beaten By Italian Athletic Club In Early Season Debacle

In two games played during the Christmas holidays, Coach "Dutch" Conlan's local basketeers bowed before the University of California second team, 28 to 25, and the Italian Athletic Club, 45 to 34, at Galileo gymnasium.

The Rams missed an opportunity to score their first win of the season in the California game as they led the Bears until the final two minutes only to let victory slip out of their grasp.

Kerwin High Scorer

"Red" Kerwin staged a one-man scoring show emerging from the fracas as Ram high-scorer with twelve points.

ved to be the deciding factors as the

Too much height and finesse proved to be the deciding factors as the Rams bowed before the Club team, reputedly one of the best in the bay-region.

For a few minutes in the second half, it appeared as if the locals would snatch a victory out of the fire as they scored eleven points in three minutes.

Leaving the floor trailing 10 to 20 at the halfway mark, the Conlanmen came back a rejuvenated squad and really poured it on to gain a 21-20 lead only to tire and drop the contest.

Sweet Sees Only Gloomy Sailing For Track; Urges Men To Take A Crack At It

According to Russell Sweet, college track and field instructor, the prospects for the 1940 edition of the Ram cinder-eaters are still a matter of conjecture.

"We have some up and coming prep stars available who seem to show signs of developing into first-class trackmen," Sweet said, "but we still have no assurance that we will be able to round out a complete outfit to represent the college."

The track mentor bemoaned the los incurred by graduation and transfers.

"I would like to see every man who can possibly make it turn out for track," Sweet announced. "We should be able to find some real talent in the college if the men will only come around and try out."

Gabby Hartnett, hustling manager of the Chicago Cubs equalled a major league record August 29 when he caught his 1,721st game with the Bruins.

Posture

Improvement Needed; Women Open Clinic

Inauguration a totally new idea in the college, the Posture Clinic offers a chance for those in need of supervision, or exercise rechecks, to avail themselves of expert advice. The clinic will be held Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon by Bertha Keller of the women's physical education department.

Those with posture needs may attend the special clinic for exercise and use it as a make-up period. Miss Keller promises to "streamline" the college co-ed and teach her to walk with ease and avoid the slouch, limp, and fatigue patterns. "Why be a human question mark when you can be an exclamation point?" she asked

This posture problem may apply to some men too, but the class is not co-educational. Joseph Amori's social dance class for beginners will be a help to some of the men of the college interested in moving with ease and grace.

Recently a posture test was conducted by Laurine Bergin, physical education instructor, which showed that very few women of the college have good posture.

According to Miss Keller, posture reflects the wrong impression to employers, instructors, friends and to yourself. She also stressed the fact that the time to start having good posture is now.

— SPECIAL —
Hamburger Sandwich
10c
Sandwich and Milkshake
both for 25c
Sutton and Rowland
500 SUTTER at POWELL

Quiz Results

Peace Society Releases Data On Poll Of Opinion

Results of a recent campus poll of student opinion conducted by the college Peace Society has produced the following results:

In answer to the question, "Who do you think is responsible for the present European War?" a total of 27 per cent indicated Hitler, 17 per cent the British Government, three per cent the French, while 47 per cent voted to brand all three governments responsible.

To the question whether or not America's entry into the war is inevitable, 28 per cent answered "yes" as opposed to a 72 per cent of "no".

A total of 77 per cent felt that uncontrolled war profiteering could eventually draw the United States into war, while 78 per cent held that the people of the United States should vote directly on whether or not the country should go to war.

The fifth question revealed that while 46 per cent of students polled would volunteer their services in the event of a war, a total of 64 per cent would not approve conscription.

National Verse Society To Hold Poetry Contest; Students Asked To Submit

College masters of lambics, rondeaus, and dactyls should quaff deeply of the crystal waters of Hippocrene in the next few weeks, for the intercollegiate Fellowship of Creative Arts sponsors for the thirteenth time its annual poetry competition.

Outstanding poetry entered will be published in the 13th Anthology of College Verse, this year to be edited by the Upsilon Alpha chapter of Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity of the University of Redlands, California.

Twenty dollars will be awarded the best poem submitted, ten dollars for the most outstanding sonnet, and ten dollars for the best poems on the following themes: War and Peace, Religion, Humor, Nature, and California.

The contest is open to the undergraduates of any college or junior college in California.

As many entries as desired may be submitted, but they are not to exceed 30 lines.

Manuscripts must be typed in duplicate and signed by the writer.

Closing day of the contest is February 20 and all work should be addressed to First the Blade, University of Redlands, California.

More detailed information may be obtained on the bulletin board at the Powell Street building.

ADVERTISING RATE:
1-50 inches ..... 70c an inch
51-150 inches ..... 60c an inch
151-up inches ..... 50c an inch

The Emporium
MARKET OPPOSITE POWELL : EXBROOK 6400 : SAN FRANCISCO

Army-Navy Club Aids Finn Relief; Asks Cooperation

First organization of the college to offer financial aid to a nation hardpressed by aggression, the Army and Navy Club this week elected, by unanimous vote, to undertake a collective contribution to the Finnish Relief Fund.

The decision was announced by Lou Goldstone, vice-president of the club, after a meeting which was highlighted by the installation of new officers.

"There was no debate, save that concerning the club quota, which has been tentatively set at ten dollars," Goldstone said. "We were all shocked and disgusted by this brutal and wanton aggression committed against a nation for whom we have the greatest respect and admiration, and we resolved to give what little support we could for the relief of the civilian population of that nation."

It was also reported that the Army and Navy Club will invite the cooperation of all other clubs of the college in the matter. According to the best advices, letters are being dispatched to the clubs, and the Army and Navy group will also initiate a campaign with the first meeting of the Club Advisory Board during the current semester.

The Army and Navy Club quota of ten dollars, according to Goldstone, is expected to be reached in the next two meetings of the organization.

Prominent Faculty Members To Speak At Institute

To explain "How the junior college meets the objectives of education," five members of the college faculty have been invited by Superintendent Joseph P. Nourse to participate in a panel discussion before the spring institute of the Certified Staff of the San Francisco Public Schools, meeting this morning in the War Memorial Opera House.

The speakers will develop their topics as they particularly apply to the junior college. Lloyd N. Luckman will speak on university parallels; John E. Ross, the general college; J. Graham Sullivan, vocational work; F. Grant Marsh, business education, and Louis G. Conlan, health, physical education, and recreation.

Gratitude for Superintendent Nourse's invitation to take part in the institute was expressed by the faculty members.

"The college feels highly complimented by Mr. Nourse's selection of speakers," commented President Archibald J. Cloud.

Also to speak this morning are Superintendent Nourse and Commissioner C. Harold Caulfield, newly re-elected president of the Board of Education.

PRESENTING

NICK STUART
AND HIS ORCHESTRA
Now Playing IN PEACOCK COURT — and
DOROTHY CHARLES & STONE · COLLINS
SUPER DANCING DUO — CONTINUE THEIR SENSATIONAL ENGAGEMENT
Hotel MARK HOPKINS
GEO. D. SMITH · GENERAL MANAGER

Employment

Record Perfect As Display Classes Work

One hundred per cent of its students employed during the last Christmas vacation is the unusually fine record achieved by the store display course under the instructorship of Teall L. Messer.

Reactions of the San Francisco department stores where the students worked were most favorable, Messer said. In fact, he added, many students were told they might return for permanent positions when they had completed their schooling.

Messer also disclosed that the colleges store display course is the only one of its kind in the West, and, so far as he knows, it is unique in junior college curricula over the United States.

A fully equipped laboratory at the Balboa campus where students may apply theories of store display technique is being planned now.

Messer is well qualified as a store display instructor, having formerly been associated with the Frank Maxwell Co., New York manufacturers of window display equipment, in whose service he acted as personal representative in Europe.

Vincent Lopez Plays Host To Students Of College

Celebrating the close of final examinations, the Palace Hotel last Wednesday, January 24, played host to many students of the college at a "San Francisco Junior College Night."

Highlight of the evening was the new dance step called "Put Your Little Foot There." The dance, introduced by Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, is done by two of his three vocalists.

After presenting the dance twice Wednesday night to give the spectators an idea of how it was done, a dance contest was held in which only students of the college could participate.

Vincent Lopez and his orchestra were also the originators of the "Knock, knock, who's there?" craze that swept the nation recently.

All Students On NYA Requested To See Redford

All NYA students are reminded that they must turn in their new program schedules to Edward H. Redford, NYA director, as soon as possible.

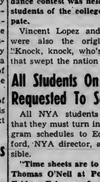
"Time sheets are to be turned in to Thomas O'Neil at Powell Street on Friday, February 2, at the third of the month falls on Saturday and there is no school," Redford announced.

New students desirous of getting on the NYA rolls should contact Redford on the seventh floor of the P. G. & E. Building on Sutter Street at the beginning of the semester.

Election Story

(Continued from page 1)

sen and Ray Berns stepped, unopposed, into the offices of secretary and yell-leader, respectively, with totals of 538 and 566.



In a close battle for Associated Men Students' president, Lyle Schultz polled 232 votes to edge out Bob Owens by a plurality of 29.

Under the circumstances, Owens will assume the office of AMS vice-president, as there was no candidate registered for that post.

For secretary, Harold Unterberger, unopposed, won in a landslide, chalking up 354 votes against none for the opposition.

Gloria Miller, former WSS head, defeated Marion MacKillop, by the margin of 125 to 77, for the office of president of the Associated Women Students, while Jean Arnold annexed the vice-presidency with 114 votes to Jean Chesley's 86.

Dorothy Mills, running for secretary of the women's organization, was unopposed, and polled 181 votes.

GUARANTEED TYPEWRITERS

Closing out stock of Late Model Underwood and Royal Typewriters.
May be purchased on small monthly payments. Also New Portable typewriters at low as $29.75
San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. Hastings
591 Market St. Phone SUtter 4734

Barnstormers

College Ice Stars Show Up In National Skate Scene; Hart, Galbraith Enter Yosemite Meet

Beginning the semester with the absence of two of its most important members, Murray Galbraith and William Hart, the ice skating class will meet for the first time this year on February 2 at 2:15 p.m. at Winterland Ice Rink.

Galbraith and Hart are participating as representatives of San Francisco in the Figure Skating competitions at Yosemite today. Later, possibly during the second week of February, Galbraith will compete in the National competitions at Cleveland, Ohio, according to Joseph Williams, skate instructor.

In addition to the two champions Galbraith who will compete with his brother in Cleveland; and Ed Bodell, who will be competing in the Novice Figure skating competitions.

Meeting To Elect

"The meeting at Winterland on February 2," Williams said, "will be primarily for the purpose of selecting new officers for the spring semester.

Saturday, January 27, the class held a get-together at the home of John McAtee where Galbraith and Hart were awarded blocks for their outstanding ability on the ice. The blocks, a white skate on a red background, are awarded outstanding skaters and successful contestants in ice-skating competitions. Also they may be bought for sixty-five cents, Williams said.

Included in the schedule of events for the ice skaters, it was announced, are tentative plans for competitions with other colleges. Letters will probably be sent to Santa Rosa Junior College and San Francisco State, among other colleges, asking them to compete with the college.

Williams issued an invitation to all the new students of the college to come out and try their luck on the ice. Prices are 25 cents with skates and 45 cents without, for those with student body cards. This applies to Friday afternoon sessions only, he warned.

WSS Book Exchange Opens Feb. 2 For Two Week Run; Cooperation Asked

For the benefit of students desiring to sell their books and for those wishing to buy books, the Women's Service Society will conduct a Book Exchange in Room 728 of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company building from 9 until 2 o'clock, beginning Friday, February 2 and continuing for possibly two weeks.

The purpose of the book exchange, according to Verrel Weber, WSS adviser, is to provide a place for students to sell their books or to buy books. It is conducted on a non-profit basis, all books being offered at the price asked by their owners.

The procedure for the Book Exchange is as follows: Any student wishing to sell a used textbook should bring it to the exchange. There he will file his name and address, together with the price he wants for the book. After the exchange has closed, he will come back, and if the book has been sold, receive his money.

Chicago Prexy Discusses Dropping Of Grid Activity

CHICAGO, ILL. (ACP) — Amid thunderous cheers of approval by the student body, the University of Chicago's President Robert Maynard Hutchins has delivered a vigorous indictment of football and an explanation of why the sport was dropped from the Midway campus' program.

"There is no doubt on the whole that football has been a major handicap to education in the United States," President Hutchins affirmed. "I think it is a good thing for the country to have one institution university discontinue football."

Continuing, President Huchins said: "Though football is a wonderful game for the spectator, it is not as good for the participant as many other sports. It is time-consuming, and the time is consumed just when the player ought to be devoting himself to the new courses begun with the opening of the academic year. Other sports develop cooperation, team spirit, sportsmanship and fair play just as well as football."

At a special student forum, only two out of about 30 students eligible to participate in the discussion opposed the discontinuance of football as an intercollegiate sport.

Sullivan Writes Article On Vocation For Magazine

That "youth can become economically efficient by acquiring specific training in knowledges and skills which will allow him to become an economic asset in society," was one of the main points brought out in a recently published article, Training for a Lifetime, by J. Graham Sullivan.

"It was at the request of Laura Byars, managing editor of the California Parent-Teacher magazine, that I wrote an article on educating the modern youth for their magazine," revealed Sullivan. This article is one of the many that Sullivan has written, others which have appeared in trade and restaurant magazines.

Sullivan is officially known as Coordinator of Educational Management, but also acts in the capacity of assistant to President Archibald J. Cloud. He was formerly coordinator of the Hotel and Restaurant Management division.

Princeton and Rutgers played the first intercollegiate football game in America, when these two teams met November 6, 1869.

Students!
YOUR TEXTBOOKS SELL FOR LESS at your
JUNIOR COLLEGE STUDENT STORE
We are here to save you money

SAN FRANCISCO J. C. STUDENT STORE
USED BOOKS
All Required Materials at Lowest Prices
Special British Tan Leather Binder $1.95 - $2.35
Engineering Equipment at School Prices
The Friendly Student Store
SAN FRANCISCO J.C. STUDENT STORE
518 Powell

Parking Space

(Continued from page 1)

selves of the facilities at the new campus.

President Cloud endorsed The Guardsman poll thoroughly, and requested cooperation in the mater from students and faculty.

"It will," Cloud contended, "make available a series of basic facts which should be of value in determining our policy in regard to the auto-parking service."

Gross While Thinking

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Vol. X FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1940 No. 2

Bulletin

See box at bottom of page one for last minute news concerning:
- FACULTY ADVISERS
- CLASS PRESIDENTS
- COMMITTEE MEMBERS

LOW FROSH WELCOMED

AWS To Hold Tea Thursday At Galileo; Men's Smoker Planned At Sorosis Club

Tea

All women of the college are cordially invited to attend a program and tea for the Freshman Women, to be given by the Associated Women Students, Thursday, February 15, in the Galileo Auditorium, announced Gloria Miller, president.

The program will be at 2:30, she also stated, and refreshments will be served in the gymnasium from 3:30 to 4:30.

Acquainting the new women with organizations open to women of the college will be representatives from the Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, the Women's Athletic Association, and the Home Economics Association. These representatives will give short talks on their subjects.

Entertainment will be furnished by students of the college. A duet will be sung by Barbara Smith and Priscilla Finley, and a solo will be sung by Dorothy Mills, AWS secretary. Flosita Badger, of the Music Department, will lead the women in singing the college hymn.

Also scheduled for the program is the introduction of new AWS officers. Gloria Miller will be introduced as president, Jean Arnold as vice-president, and Dorothy Mills as secretary. Margaret Dougherty will be introduced as adviser to the AWS.

According to Miss Miller, this will be a fine opportunity for the new women to become acquainted and find out about the activities open to them in the college.

Smoker

Claimed by its sponsors to surpass all previous smokers, is the traditional Associated Men Students' Smoker slated to be held again this year at the Sorosis Club, 36 Sutter Street, next Thursday at 8 o'clock.

Lyle Shultz, Associated Men Students prexy, announced all men students would be welcome.

"We also hope to have a lot of the new frosh at the Sorosis Club next Thursday, for it is in their honor that the Smoker is being held," declared Shultz.

"Past semesters have seen poor Smokers, fair Smokers, good Smokers, and very few swell Smokers," said Joseph A. Amori, AMS adviser. "Next Thursday we're going to attempt to add one more to that 'few' category," Amori promised.

Seekin a new high in Smoker attendance, Shultz remarked: "This Smoker has the inklings of a fine show, but the outcome of it in general depends solely upon the students themselves.

"Admission to the affair is, of course, free," said Shultz.

Enrollment Breaks Record; Subject A Exams For Late Registrants Tomorrow

Predictions of an enrollment of 2600 students last week by Registrar J. Paul Mohr, were obviously to be met today.

In the last issue of The Guardsman, Mohr said: "This figure is based upon entrance examinations, general registration and the small number of graduates." Today the closing enrollment finds the number gratifyingly close to Mohr's expectations.

Topping all records for the end of the first four days of registration was the number 2504. By Wednesday, February 7, the list had streaked to 2532 as the last days of registration drew near.

Classes were so filled that they have justified the legendary story about students sitting on the floor of lecture halls.

Tomorrow at 9 o'clock, Subject A examinations will be given in the Galileo cafeteria; on Saturday, February 17, at 9 o'clock late registrants will have their pictures taken, Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, announced.

In a statement issued Wednesday, Mohr said that all entering students should make an appointment for their health examinations, and requested that they report for the examination at the date and hour noted on the appointment sheet.

Mohr's statement came as a result of the complaint that many of the students were not appearing for their examinations, most of them going to classes instead.

Health examinations are conducted every afternoon except alternate Wednesdays, at 2:30 in Room 201 at Galileo High School. Dr. Alice Pottes is in charge, and appointments can be made in the Galileo North gym any afternoon, according to Laurine Bergin, gym instructor.

Officers Of Women's Business Group Elected

Linnen Forsberg was elected president, and Virginia Moreau, secretary-treasurer of the Associated Business Women's Club at the February 1 meeting which gathered for dinner at Elizabeth Inn, according to Margaret Flournoy, faculty adviser. The membership of the club is composed of alumni students who now hold positions in the business world.

Activities Hosts

Above are pictured Associated Men Students President Lyle Shultz and Associated Women Students President Gloria Miller, who will play host and hostess for their respective group's entertainments during Orientation Week.

Shultz will have charge of the Men's Smoker next Thursday night, and Miss Miller will handle the AWS Tea the same afternoon.

Both students will take part in the symposium, and the combined organizations of the AWS and AMS will sponsor the Collegiate Mixer.

Low Frosh Honored With Semi-Formal Friday Eve; Choose Fairmont Hotel

With the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel as the scene, the college will play host to the incoming students of the Low Freshman class, Friday, February 16, at a semi-formal dance to be given in their honor, announced Muriel Grenelle, vice-president of the Associated Students and chairman of the social committee.

Dancing will be from 9 to 12 to the music of Eddie Murphy and his orchestra. Murphy, a former student of the college, has played for several other college affairs and has been playing an engagement at Rio Del Mar for the past few weeks.

The dance is the first social affair sponsored by the social committee this semester, and officially closes Freshman Orientation Week.

"Admission to the dance will be one Associated Students card per couple," said Miss Grenelle.

"We are going to try an experiment at this first dance by not having any dance programs," revealed Miss Grenelle. "In the past, it has been the custom to give the student a dance program at the door, but it is really an unnecessary expense and we want to see the student's reaction," she continued.

All students are advised not to lend their student cards to any outsiders. An identification committee will be at the door, and any person presenting a borrowed card will have the card confiscated and the owner penalized. Confiscation of the card will mean that the offender will automatically be deprived of all Associated Student privileges for the remainder of the semester. This includes all future social affairs and athletic contests, Al Williams, Associated Students president warned.

Members of the faculty who will attend the affair are President and Mrs. A. J. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham Sullivan, Mary Jane Learnard, Margaret Dougherty, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Mohr.

Miss Grenelle also declared that anyone wishing to serve on the social committee for this semester should get in touch with her on Tuesday, February 13, from 2 to 3 o'clock in Room 211.

Super-Rally Slated For Monday; Frosh Symposium, Co-Ed Hop At Century Club Top Events In Week Of Social Action

Symposium

For the benefit of all new students, a symposium featuring addresses by several student leaders has been arranged by Associated Students President Al Williams, for Wednesday morning in the third floor lecture hall at Powell Street.

Speakers tentatively scheduled to appear on the symposium are Williams; Muriel Grenelle, vice-president of the Associated Students; Lyle Shultz, Associated Men Students president; Hugh Ryan, athletic manager, and Leonard Gross, editor of The Guardsman.

Chief concern of the speakers will be to acquaint entering students with the many extra-curricular activities about the college.

Further details and the exact time of the symposium will appear in next Tuesday's issue of The Guardsman.

Chinese Students Hold Lecture Hall Program In Honor Of Rice Bowl

To stimulate student interest in the forthcoming Rice Bowl Party, the Chinese Student Club yesterday presented an oriental spiced program replete with native music, dances, and decoration.

Outstanding numbers on the program included the Chinese YWCA Band, which captured top honors in band competition at the Fair last year; a Fashion Show, with Constance Wong as commentator; a Sword Dance by Bernice Poon; a Lion Dance by George and Henry Ong; a talk on Chinese characters by John Leong; and oriental music by the "Chick-Chock" boys.

The Chinese Rice Bowl Party, of which this program was a brief preview, will be held over February 9, 10, 11. Buttons admitting holders to many Chinatown attractions may be purchased from Chinese students and at various places about the city.

Also holding feature spots on the program were Edward E. Sandys, Chinese Club adviser, and Al Williams, president of the Associated Students.

All Chinese students were urged to wear native dress to classes today.

Terminal Survey Taken By Junior College Officers

Currently being undertaken by the American Association of Junior Colleges is a series of exploratory studies in the general field of terminal education in the junior college.

Such a survey will be of particular interest for this college, since its administrative officers are constantly working for the expansion and increase of the semi-professional or two-year terminal courses offered at the college.

The following statement issued by the association generally outlines its aims:

"About two-thirds of the 175,000 students enrolled in the junior college do not continue their formal education after leaving the college. The new study will be concerned particularly with courses and curricula of a semi-professional and cultural character designed to give this increasing body of young people greater economic competence and civic responsibility. There is increasing evidence that existing four-year colleges and universities are not organized adequately to meet the needs of a large part of this significant group."

The association's plan of action contemplates the investigation of a large proportion of junior colleges throughout the United States.

Mixer

Breaking the dancing ice for the spring semester will be the Collegiate Mixer—an innovation in college history — under the joint sponsorship of the Associated Women Students and the Associated Men Students, to be held on Tuesday, February 13, from 4 to 6 o'clock at the Century Club, announced Lyle Shultz, president of the AMS.

Students will dance with the music of Warren Ringen and his orchestra.

Refreshments will be served by hosts and hostesses chosen by Shultz and Gloria Miller, president of the AWS.

Conceived by Al Williams, president of the Associated Students, the Collegiate Mixer will be the first mutual dance given by the AMS and AWS.

"The Collegiate Mixer should serve to acquaint new students with the old students," commented Williams.

Other affairs planned to bring together new and old students are the AWS Tea and the AMS Smoker.

A welcome invitation to all students was extended by both Shultz and Miss Miller.

Expecting a large turnout for the mixer, Miss Miller commented on the fine number of students at previous dances, and expressed the hope that a new record would be attained at this one.

Rally

Under the joint direction of student president Al Williams and head yell-leader Ray Berns, an introduction assembly, first event on the Orientation Week program, will be held in the Galileo Auditorium at 2:30 o'clock next Monday afternoon.

The assembly, which will be held for the purpose of acquainting the students with administration, both faculty and student, and the pep program for the semester will be opened with the college fight song and the traditional San Francisco "Spellit" yell.

Administrative leaders to be presented by Williams include President A. J. Cloud, Registrar J. Paul Mohr, Dean Edwin C. Browne, and J. Graham Sullivan, coordinator of educational management.

Muriel Grenelle, vice-president of the Associated Students; Florence Hansen, secretary; Lyle Schultz, Associated Men's student prexy; Gloria Miller, Associated Women's student president; Len Gross, Guardsman Editor; Alden Thorogood, Club Advisory Board head; Dan Baker, Block Society leader, and Thurza Scott, Women's Athletic Association president, are among the leaders who will be introduced.

Short addresses will be given by the faculty speakers on the academic life of the college, while the student leaders will give a brief outline of extra-curricular activities.

Mimeographed sheets containing the college songs and yells will be passed out to those attending, and Berns will instruct the assembly in the procedure.

Berns has announced that a new and radical change will be made in the body and policy of the rally committee this semester.

The new plan calls for a nucleus of seven students, including Berns, the two assistant yell-leaders, Harold Hoffman, Ken Pasquarelli, and Frances Malone, and Gerry Ryan, to be supplemented by an as yet undetermined number of low freshmen.

At the present time, plans call for the injection of a rally commissioner into the student government setup at the new college next semester, and the entire work of the group will be to map out rally policy for future use.

Tryouts for assistant yell-leaders, who will be decided upon by the rally committee, will be held in the near future, announced Berns.

"All men in the college who have a yen to try out for yell-leader are welcome to do so. We'll announce at the rally Monday where and when the tryouts will be held, so all interested should try and attend," continued Berns.

First organized rooting section of the semester will be at the Santa Rosa and Marin games at Kezar tonight and tomorrow, according to the cheer-leader.

Last semester's assistants will be on hand to help lead the section.

Last Minute Campus News

NEW FACULTY ADVISERS APPOINTED

The administration has appointed John E. Ross as faculty adviser to the judiciary committee and Harold W. Leuenberger as faculty adviser to the welfare council, according to a statement by Associated Students President Al Williams.

ATTENTION, CLASS PRESIDENTS!

All class presidents, on their election, automatically become members of the social and welfare committees, announced President Williams.

TO POTENTIAL COMMITTEEMEN

All students desirous of serving either on the welfare council or the judicial committee should confer with Al Williams in Dean Edwin C. Browne's office during the following hours:
February 12, 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.
February 13, 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.
February 14, 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Election Results

(Continued from page 3)

election committee, and will have their names on the ballot, are as follows:

For the High Sophomore class:
President—Harold Hoffman, Arthur Pomarcs, Wilton Latz and Lee Scarlett.
Vice-President — Julia Bradshaw, Muriel Nolan and Margo Radke.
Secretary — Mildred Grey and Margo Meader.

For the Low Sophomore class:
President—Daniel McHugh, Harry Misthos and Nicolai Moffett.
Vice-President—Dolores Dixon.
Secretary—Jean Hauser and Muriel Dodsworth.

For the High Freshman class:
(Continued on page 4, column 5)

The Guardsman

Published Twice Weekly by the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College

1939 Member 1940 Associated Collegiate Press

Vol. X FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1940 No. 2

LEONARD GROSS .... EDITOR

Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse — Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Daniel Rosenblat .... Associate Editor
Louis Goldstone .... Associate Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli .... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch .... Advertising Manager
Marion MacKillop .... Staff Artist
Joe Kurpleski .... Photographer

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Nora Baker, Ray Berns, Eva Burkey, Patricia Cantwell, Elizabeth Cook, Betty Deming, Janet Fellows, Don Field, Harry Frister, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Doris Hermann, Kel Hori, Borrie Hyman, Dorothy Mills, Dorothy Trood
BUSINESS STAFF—Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or college oponion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Another "First" As Guardsman Prepares To Publish Two Issues Per Week; One On Tuesday, One Friday

WITH this semester The Guardsman makes history and presents to the students of the college two papers a week.

Through the earnest efforts of the finance committee under the leadership of President Al Williams, and the administration, sufficient funds have been given us for this purpose.

It is the intention of the staff to present a two page paper every Tuesday followed by a four page paper every Friday.

We shall attempt to incorporate into both issues the articles which will interest the readers most. Any suggestions will be gladly accepted and should be sent to the Ram's Horn.

Although the Tuesday issue will only be two pages, it is planned to incorporate within it, on a more condensed scale, the features that are found in Friday's paper.

In some circles, The Guardsman has the reputation of being an outstanding college newspaper on the Pacific Coast.

We hope to add to that reputation now that we are going to press twice weekly.

Philosophical Wanderings In The Realm Of Living

IN this tough, hard world about us, we are prone to adopt an air of blase sophistication to conceal our real feelings. The other day a very dear friend passed on this bit of philosophy. Perhaps it may strike a responding chord in your mind as it did in ours. It goes like this:

If you think you are beaten, you ARE
If you think that you dare not,—you DON'T
If you'd like to win, but think you can't
It's almost a cinch you WON'T.
If you THINK you'll lose,—You've LOST,
For out in the world you find
Success BEGINS with a fellow's will
It's all in your state of mind.

Full many a race is lost
Ere even a step is run,
And many a coward fails,
Ere even his work's begun.
Think big and your deeds will grow
THINK that you CAN—and you WILL
It's ALL in your state of mind.

If you THINK you're outclassed,—you ARE
You've got to think high to rise.
You've got to be sure of YOURSELF
Before you can win a prize
Life's battles don't always go
To the stronger or faster man,
But soon or late—the man who wins,
Is the fellow who THINKS he can.

Plans For Inter-College Dances With San Mateo Are Undertaken As A Means Of Bettering Relations

A PLAN which may succeed in bringing about closer and more friendly relations with fellow students down the peninsula at San Mateo Junior College, goes into effect a week from tonight.

The plan is simply a reciprocal trade agreement between the two colleges whereby students from San Mateo holding student body cards are admitted free to our dances, and students of this institution holding Associated Student cards are admitted to the San Mateo dances.

At the present time the social committees from each college are at work on the details of the agreement.

The only serious objection advanced against the project is the fact that our dances are pretty well crowded as it is without letting others in.

Although this is true, it must be remembered that there will not be a tremendous influx of San Mateo couples entering our dances any more than there will be a mob of San Franciscans descending upon the peninsula.

For those who do like to dance however, and are desirous of traveling to San Mateo occasionally, it will mean approximately ten dances per semester, the only price of admission being possession of an Associated Students card.

From the point of view of inter-relations with San Mateo it is to be hoped that this plan will succeed.

It may be necessary for the students of this college to carry the added weight of a few more couples at our dances this semester, so that the plan will be workable when we move into our new quarters in August.

Once we are in the new building, there is no doubt that the plan will be successful for the dances will be held in the gymnasiums. These gyms are among the largest on the Pacific Coast, almost equalling in size, those of the University of California.

Fellows

. . . The Spectator

GONE With the Wind, the picture for which everyone has been waiting, proved to be a pageant of photography, music, drama, suspense—in other words, everything that one could ask of a motion picture. Gone With the Wind embraces all the advantages the motion picture industry has to offer to its public. The picture, which was in technicolor, is 450,000 feet of the most exquisite photography the film industry has ever produced—that alone was worth the price of admission! After one leaves the theater he is bound to feel that here is the perfection for which Hollywood has been striving for the past decades; one feels he has seen all he could possibly ever see, as far as motion pictures are concerned, and if he never sees another one he will not be missing much.

Vivien Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara left little to be desired in her interpretation. In two scenes, however, her performance was a trifle weak; namely, in her last lines in the picture, when she says, ". . . tomorrow is another day," she overacts; and she also overacts in her last lines in the first half of the film, when she exclaims, ". . . as God is my witness, I'll never starve again!" In the beginning of the film Miss Leigh definitely has a Southern accent, but as the footage unreels the accent is forgotten, for the most part. Aside from this, Miss Leigh's Scarlett was The Scarlett.

Speaking of accents, Leslie Howard's is definitely British, without so much as a hint of a Southern drawl. This was perhaps for the best, though, for if Howard had attempted to change his pronunciation it might have been a catastrophe. As for Howard's acting, it was, as usual, quite good. In this writer's opinion, however, he was too robust for Margaret Mitchell's Ashley Wilkes.

Clark Gable was just as Margaret Mitchell must have meant her Rhett Butler to be.

Ona Munson as Belle Watling, Thomas Mitchell as Gerald O'Hara, Laura Hope Crews as Aunt "Pittypat," Carrol Nye as Frank Kennedy, and Butterfly McQueen as Prissy, were all excellent.

Olivia de Havilland as Melanie Hamilton was just about the best actress in the picture. It is difficult to choose between Miss de Havilland and Miss Leigh. In the book Melanie seemed almost repulsively sweet to us, but in the picture her kindness was modified. Miss de Havilland managed extremely well to interpret Melanie as physically weak, yet spiritually stronger than even the stalwart Scarlett.

The question most persons are asking is how much has Hollywood changed the story of Gone With the Wind. The answer is, not at all. Naturally, some of the characters have been omitted, as well as some of the scenes and much of the dialogue. For the most part, however, Hollywood has reproduced Miss Mitchell's novel just as it originally was. Even most of the dialogue was taken directly from the book.

Gone With the Wind is a masterpiece in motion pictures. It will be a long time before it can ever be even nearly equalled. It is impossible to describe the photographic beauty, the superb acting, the pathos, the suspense, the South's struggle, the oppressive Yankees, and—Hattie McDaniel as Mammy. Anyone who misses seeing Gone With the Wind will have missed seeing the greatest achievement the entire motion picture industry has ever made!

Traung, Advocate Of College, Dies

San Francisco this week paid homage to Police Commissioner Charles Traung, who died a few days ago in the St. Joseph's Hospital after a protracted illness.

Commissioner Traung, as a member of the city Recreation Commission, championed the cause of the college in the late fall of 1937 when the parcel of property held by the Recreation Commission was needed for full completion of the Balboa Campus.

This land question was one of the many problems that arose during the formative period of the campus.

It was largely through Commissioner Traung's influence that the Recreation Commission ultimately released the land, thus allowing for construction of the campus according to the original specification as set forth by Timothy L. Pfleuger, campus architect.

The main athletic field will occupy the land released by the Recreation Commission.

News Flash — By Marion MacKillop

Rosenblat

. . . With Malice Toward None

OF THE farcical aspects of modern democracy—and their name is legion—not one is so well calculated to draw the cynic's laughter as is the behavior of the English Parliament members during the present war.

Confronted by the twin fires of being in opposition yet loyal, in other words, of political loyalty to an almost war-dictatorship government on the one hand, and the loyalty that democracy demands to the interests of their constituents on the other hand, the Parliament members have almost without exception chosen the former.

It would require an infinitely fiercer Anglophobist than this writer to hold that England's democracy falls short of its name, or indeed is any the less practical than the common American or garden variety has shown itself to be upon occasion. Nevertheless, though avowedly writing with malice toward none, and prejudiced by a strain of English blood, yet restrain we cannot a pertinent snicker at the antics of "His Majesty's Loyal Opposition."

This sonorous title is bestowed with exemplary lack of discrimination upon whichever particular English political party is unfortunate enough to occupy the opposition seats on the wrong side of the electoral fence.

In times of comparative peace, the responsibility of remaining both loyal and in opposition appears to rest but lightly on the fashionably stooped shoulders of minority Parliamentarians, but, as it must to all men, comes the call to arms, and with it a profound change of heart.

Of a sudden, there appears a self-imposed censorship in Parliament, not only of word and deed, but even of thought. 'Twould be sacrilege, yea and treason, to question too closely the actions of the government. To appear curious of the economy, practicability, and efficiency of the war might perchance embarrass Mr. Chamberlain; would be the act of a cad. Nine-tenths of the cabinet are public school men, nine-tenths of the opposition are public school men. "Blood of my blood, flesh of my flesh, could I doubt the wisdom of thy every word and deed, ye who romped with me in childhood 'neath Eton's hallowed roof?"

Yet, for the sake of the opposition's title, appearances must be maintained, and some form of criticism indulged in, even if it be no more than the expression of a point of view just for the fun of it. A hastily called party caucus discovers that the 15-year-old son of the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, Sir Edmund Ironsides, has been allowed to tour the front lines.

A frock-coated gentleman of the opposition arises in the House. "I would ask his Majesty's Government to kindly explain this unusual privilege." The Government blushes, apologizes. Opposition has been served. Only truly discordant note rises when reporters ask little Edmund if, after seeing the army in action, he still wishes to join the navy. He does. Heresy.

A peculiar people, the English, capable of many follies, and probably capable of judging us with the same God-like and superior impartiality with which we judge them.

Hansen

. . . Campus Club Crier

ACTIVITIES in the fraternities and clubs in the college have picked up considerably within the last week.

● Army Navy Club . . . Tuesday, February 19, at 1249 Jones Street, 8 p.m.

Discussion of membership, which will be open to all members of the college interested.

● Astronomy Club . . . Meetings Monday evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock, at Galileo Observatory.

● Alpha Lambda Chi . . . Invitational pledge tea, to be given at 72 Fairfield Way, Saturday from 3:30 to 5 o'clock.

● Alpha Phi Omega . . . Sunday, February 11, from 3 to 5 o'clock, at the Century Club, a rush tea. This is also invitational.

● Beta Phi Beta . . . Invitational pledge party at the Parkside Tennis Club on Monday, February 12, at 8 o'clock.

● Block S. F. Society . . . Discussion of future plans for society during the semester, at Sorosis Club, February 13, at 7:30 p.m. Election of officers and committees will be held, and social plans will be decided upon, too.

● Forestry . . . Business meeting at Galileo, Room 362, at 5:30 o'clock, Wednesday, February 14.

● Beta Phi Beta . . . President, Stanley Tobias; Vice-President, Eugene Senter; Secretary, Bill Quandt; Treasurer, Roy Romey; Historian, John Stauman; Pledge Master, Bob Owens.

● Pick and Hammer . . . Several tentative field trips planned for the semester. Will be announced later.

● Pi Mu Gamma . . . Business meeting every other Thursday at 450 Sutter Street building.

● Rifle and Pistol Club . . . Dance and party at Sigmund Stern Grove, February 21 at 8 o'clock.

● Tri Epsilon . . . Party given by San Mateo Chapter of Tri Epsilon, at Merced Lake clubhouse, February 19 at 9 o'clock.

Business meeting for discussion of pledges on February 12 at 7:45.

Several more clubs and social groups have announced their officers.

● Alpha Phi Omega . . . President, Dorothy Trood; Vice-President, Vera Herndon; Recording Secretary, Loretta Egan; Corresponding Secretary, Lyba Mackie; Historian, Camille Condrotte; Treasurer, Mildred Grey.

● Army Navy Club . . . President, Rogers Black; Vice-President, Lou Goldstone; Secretary-Treasurer, Robert Walker.

● Pick and Hammer . . . President, Gus Waggeman; Vice-President, Anatole Moskalenko; Secretary-Treasurer, Emily de Iongh.

● Forestry . . . President, Clifford Marcus; Vice-President, Alfred Maffei; Secretary, John Cameron; Treasurer, Donald Yockey.

● Ski Club . . . President, Bob Ogg; Secretary, Erling Jacobsen; Treasurer, Bill Windler.

Hall

. . . shots at RAMdom

SOONER or later most everybody comes to Clunghega. This may be accounted for by the fact that Clunghega has the only sanitary facilities in 20 miles. At any rate, Clunghegites are typical farmers. It is significant, then, when one learns that such people have swapped their cry of "Where's the Sears Roebuck catalogue?" for the new "Where's the radio?"

Modern authors are wont to take radio in a different light from our Clunghega friends. Novelists create smart, intelligent savoire-fairites, and work on the assumption that to be looked up to, one must look down on. Such an assumption leads to the smart fiction characters (use words such as rococo, mnemotechnics, and "madrilene," travel with the Riviera crowd, etc.) sighing and saying, "Radio? . . . cheap, vulgar, entertainment medium."

It is distressing to think that literature has come into conflict with agriculture. Basically, the situation is that if you like jokes about the skunk who who went to church and sat in his own secular section, then you like radio If you like jokes on the order of, "Take one out of ten and what do you have? Pink toothbrush," then you do not favor radio. The entire situation is summed up by a writer who says that there are probably more skunks in Clunghega.

One local morning newspaper is straining itself to present news in a "homey" manner. Morning readers who pick up the edition read headlines which say, "Hitler Won't Even Talk To Poland" or "Russian War Nurse—She Tells How Men, Women Are Left To Die In The Cold." Such personalizing of headlines is like so much afternoon talk of old ladies. One reads this newspaper and finds himself shaking his head and saying, "Tch, tch, tch," or a reasonably accurate "lipsimile."

Mr. Cherbote Rantagne breezed into the office recently. We say "breezed." Rantagne came first and his hair was a windy second. "Things are going hands-down for me," he says, puffing on a 25-cent Egyptian special. Cherbote Rantagne was all excited about his newest publicity break. His plans call for a new conveyer-belt bakery producing thousands of loaves daily—untouched by human hand. Everything worked by gorillas.

Dot

. . . inTROODings

HEAR ye, hear ye, all who are about to become voters for a day next week. Never before in the history of the college has a woman run for the presidency of the high freshman class (or any other class, for that matter), and yet versatile and chic LORETTA EGAN is about to make her debut into the political sphere via president of the high frosh class.

It is our policy not to take sides in these political races, but we think the idea of a woman prexy is great, Loretta, so step right up and make yourself known to the student body.

Yes, and don't forget the other class elections, especially the race for high soph prexy with four well-known candidates in the running.

Registration always opens with funny incidents, and we were not the one to let this rare piece slip by. Lights! Camera! Action!

FOOTBALL STAR AND FAIR MAID
(Dramatis Personae)

Bob Schoenstein . . . Tackle for the Ram gridiron squad, Fall '39.

Dorothy Mills . . . Blonde, AWS secretary.

Act I
Scene I

Time and Place—Afternoon, one day at registration.

Dorothy—My, my, and you aren't coming back to college.

Bob—Nope, didn't figure on it.

Dorothy—You know, Bob, you'd make a good football player. Just the right size to play tackle.

Bob—Do you think I could make the team?

Dorothy—Oh, yes; have you ever played football?

Bob (burning a little)—I thought you said you went to all the games last year?

Dorothy—I did.

Bob—Well, you see it's like this. I played tackle on the team last year and . . .

Exit of Dorothy (What's-her-name) Mills. This stirring little incident puts Bob on the eligible list for the HB Club.

No, it wasn't the sun nor the glare of a neon light that blinded the eyes of the male contingent at registration the other day, but the blondeness of a young lady in blue. Never before were the young heros of the college so eager to help a young damsel (and a freshman, at that) with her program, or to assist her in any other way. 'Nough said on ??? for the present.

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN — One Student Objects, Another Lauds Guardsman

● BRITANNIA RULES THE WAVES
Editor, The Guardsman:

I have the honor to invite reference to the column While Thinking In the issue of The Guardsman dated January 29, in which you take exception to certain instances of removal from United States ships and examination by the British censorship authorities of American mail.

International law as recognized by all nations subscribing to the Hague Convention, gives immunity to mail under Article I of the Hague Convention 11. However, this immunity is enjoyed only by genuine postal correspondence, and a belligerent is therefore at liberty to examine mail bags and, if necessary, their contents in order to assure himself that they constitute such correspondence and not articles of a character such as contraband.

The question therefore becomes one of whether or not such material as could be transported by mail would under any circumstance constitute contraband and therefore be subject to seizure.

In the event that I should find it possible to present for inspection an official statement of the United States Government wherein the possibility of passage of contraband through the mails is recognized therein, then I believe that your position would become untenable, and a suitable retraction of your previous misleading and offensive statements relative to the integrity of the British Empire would be appropriately forthcoming.

With this end in view, I therefore respectfully draw to your attention the following extract from a note from the United States Government to His Majesty's Government, dated May 24, 1916:

"The Government of the United States is inclined to the opinion that the class of mail matter that includes stocks, bonds, coupons and similar securities is to be regarded as of the same nature as merchandise or other articles of property and subject to the same exercise of belligerent rights. Money orders, cheques, drafts, notes and other negotiable instruments which may pass as the equivalent of money are, it is considered, also to be classed as merchandise."

It is clear that in the case of merchandise His Majesty's Government is entitled to ascertain if it is contraband intended for the enemy or whether it possesses an innocent character, and it is impossible to decide whether a sealed letter does or does not contain such merchandise without opening it and ascertaining what the contents are.

Trusting that this will constitute satisfactory evidence to convince you of the legality of British action, and that you will see fit to acknowledge accordingly, I beg to remain,

Very respectfully yours,
A Canadian

Editor's Note: Upon investigation and advice from various sources we are inclined to think that our stand upon the British mails question was, to a certain extent, biased and incorrect.

We do not feel, however, that there is any necessity to proclaim our faith in British integrity, since we are entirely unconvinced on that score.

We would like to hear opinions from other students on this point.

● ● ●

● ORCHIDS
Editor, The Guardsman:

Being a new student in San Francisco Junior College, I wish to praise all those who have welcomed the incoming Freshman class.

The courteous and helpful manner in which we have been received in starting our first year in the university makes me proud to be a member of this college.

H. M. S. III

P. S. Here's to more of your fine editions of The Guardsman.

Ed.'s Note: We hope the rest of the Freshman class feel as you do. We will continue to present The Guardsman to the best of our ability. Thanks.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

RAMettes — by Lu Antonicelli

WAA ENROLLMENT HITS NEW HIGH!

With registration concluded and everyone settled in the groove (almost), we find that the Women's Athletic Association is still on the way to bigger and better achievements.

This semester so far has found 125 women enrolled in the WAA, with an all-high record of 192 different participations, which means that many of the WAA enrollees have signed up for one or more sports.

Only Monday we found a Freshman woman enrolled in four different sports—no less! Such energy of which these enterprising youngsters are possessed! We have yet, however, to find a collegienne enrolled in each of the major sports clubs listed—but perhaps that's too much to expect—there are only about 12!

Well they might, though, for in no other junior college is found such an exciting variety of extra-curricular sports.

Occupying the minds of the WAA leaders along with innumerable other things (sports sign-ups, club manager elections, etc.), is the forthcoming Splash-Spread party. Tentatively scheduled for February 28, the WAA season-opener will be in honor of the Low Frosh—initiation ceremonies, really. Old and new members of the WAA will gather at the YWCA pool for a general swim in which will be included water games, races and possibly exhibition diving. Last semester, at the splash-spread affair's introduction, Helen Crlenkovich, the college's popular diving mermaid, performed. Helen will be unavailable for the coming affair, unfortunately, since she is on a South American tour.

Tickets for the Splash party at 35 cents each will undoubtedly be on sale during the next week or so.

Committees in charge of the affair are: General chairman, Barbara Smith; Arrangements, Jeanne Arnold; Publicity, Betty Teter; Rearrangements, Jane Young; Entertainment, Peace Alvarez; Invitations, Rita Weiman; Hostess, Emily De Ioung; Swimming, Marian Dickey.

It was announced that anyone who would like to assist on any one of the various committees should get in touch with the women in charge.

SPORTS SHORTS

Tennis, as usual, leads the sport parade with an enrollment record of 35 . . . ice skating, which, of course, you know is co-educational, is still maintaining its standard as one of the college's most popular sports . . . horseback riders have already started planning on a date schedule that looks like the engagement book of the sweetheart of Sigma Chi—there are two dates booked for a horse show on May 4 at San Mateo, a trail riding plan for April 6 at Marin, and its own horse show tentatively scheduled for May 3 . . . Sacramento has invited the lady riders up there for a day . . . here, after a long time, the WAA is again highly represented. . . . WAA golf classes seem to have hit a snag, possibly because the hour for them is so inconvenient for the majority of the women . . . on the other hand, regular physical education golf classes have grown to such proportions that it has become necessary to order more golfing equipment.

For those of you interested, WAA golf classes are held at 11:15 on Fridays and are still open to enrollment . . . plans are under way for an early sectional playday in tennis and possibly archery, similar to the one held last fall (to those of you who weren't then members of our illustrious institution), the archery and tennis playday was attended by a number of colleges from northern California, all in competition; SFJC, incidentally, emerged the winner in several contests.

At the time of the present writing there is being held in the Palace of Fine Arts a California Indoor Tennis Tournament in which several of the members of Bertha Mae Keller's tennis classes are planning to participate . . . among the contestants will probably be Estelle Mouridian and Rema Corbitt, both tennis players of no little ability . . . interesting to note is the fact that with the increasingly large college enrollment has come a corresponding increase in the rolls of the WAA . . . signifies, no doubt, an ever enlarging group of healthy, clean-minded, strong-bodied, sports-loving scholars . . . at the Associated Women Students' rally on Thursday, WAA will turn out en masse to lend their support to the "Welcome Freshmen Women" campaign; WAA speaker will be Thursa Scott, current WAA president.

SPRING OFFICERS

It might be well at this point to introduce to the new members of the student body, the spring officers for the Women's Athletic Association. Initiated into office at the Tourney Week Banquet during December of last year were: President, Thursa Scott; vice-president, Alma Koopman; secretary, Dorothy Nelson; treasurer, Dorothy Behrmann.

GET YOUR FIGURE STRAIGHTENED HERE!

Conducting a posture clinic is another of these busy people's activities. The clinic, designed to correct the slump, the laden-with-books side stepper, the round-shouldered, and the many other posture defects so common to all of us, will start its invigorating work next week on Monday. Under the supervision of Bertha Mae Keller, association adviser, the posture clinic will try to cut down on the shrieks of dismay that emanate from anguished mothers and fathers when they see their beloved but oh-so-stooped! offspring waddle up the street. Good posture is the source of many triumphs; bad posture the cause of most miseries. O sorrow! O woe! So that's what's the matter with us! Thirty while we visit Miss Keller and her posture clinic!

RAMblings — by Ray Berns

Down through the ages, man's feeling toward his home has been one of love and tenderness.

No matter how far he may roam, what wide horizons he may seek, man will, inevitably, return to his home.

And so it is that the college rejoices at the return of her prodigal sons, Bob Fex, Dave Johnson, Treacy Slattery, Hughie Waite, and Stan Tobiason, who, unable to bear the pain of being separated from their beloved college, have returned for the nth semester.

Tis indeed heartening to realize that the college has such a pull on their heartstrings that they were unable to stay away.

The old adage, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder," has been demonstrated once again.

San Francisco Junior College welcomes you, Bob, Dave, Treacy, Hughie, and Stan—may you rise from the dust of your supposedly dead ashes, and, like a smouldering fire needing but fuel, reignite and place, once again, your names on the list of Ram immortals.

Though we've been bellyaching a great deal about the supposed impotency of this year's Ram basketball team, the Ram cagers, after seven straight practice losses, up and smote Salinas and Yuba in two of the four conference games to date.

Not a little of the team's success may be attributed to Vernon Genesy and Bob Staynor, high-scoring center and hard-working guard, respectively.

Genesy, a guard at the outset of the season, is the squad's leading scorer to date, having counted 43 points in four games, while Staynor has played a superb defensive game in addition to garnering his share of points.

Just to acquaint you with the names of the gentlemen in the men's physical education department, we herewith present for your approval their cognomens.

Chairman of the department is Louis "Dutch" Conlan, basketball and golf coach. Why they tacked the "Dutch" on him, we can't, for the life of us, understand.

Next is Russ "Rah Rah" Sweet, track mentor. Russ derives his sobriquet from the fact that he's continually urging the lads to give that old college try.

"Admiral" Jack Gaddy, present baseball coach, was once head man of the now non-existent Ram fleet (crew).

Football coach is Lee "Little Napoleon" Eisan, who has just completed his first season as grid mentor at this institution.

Last but not least is Tom "Atlas" Wilson, genial tennis, soccer, and junior varsity basketball instructor. Wilson once posed for a picture for this sheet holding up a soccer ball with one hand, hence the nickname.

The Newman Club showed some swell films of the 1939 California-St. Mary's grid classic at its meeting last Monday night. . . . Jack Gaddy is highly enthusiastic over Walt Gustavson, East Bay horsehide prospect, who has been hitting .650 in a semi-pro league. . . . Word from the Physical Education office indicates that intramural sports will be pursued with more intensity than ever this semester.

Track

Outlook Bad As Cindermen Fail To Return

Bad news in big lumps were gobbled up recently by those who heard from the mouth of Coach Russ Sweet that many valuable cindermen previously expected to compete for the Ram track team this semester are missing!

"They're not only missing," said Sweet, "but definitely not enrolled in the college."

Three so-called track aces who potentially would have brought loads of points for the local tracksters named among the missing are Bob McGuire, Wilbur Bartlett, and Ed Preston.

All have been known for their star performances and their track ability throughout the state.

Bob McGuire, who once as a 130-pound sprinter shattered the national prep record in the 100-yard dash at 9.8 seconds, was listed as "graduated."

McGuire would have been a cinch this year for first places in the 100-yard dash as well as the furlong, Sweet claimed.

Long distance honors would have gone to the college in many a meet, implied Sweet, if Ed Preston, miler, would have returned.

Instead, Preston has enrolled at the University of San Francisco.

He has been known for his sensational runs in the mile and two-mile events, having represented the Olympic Club a couple of years back. He was instrumental, then, in the defeat of the U. S. C. track team when the Olympic Club cindermen went south to give the almost unbeatable Trojans their first track setback in years.

Preston formerly attended Commerce High School.

The college also lost a marathon man in Wilbur Bartlett, young Negro, who dropped out last fall.

Like many others of his race, Bartlett has been bonored for his all-around ability, both in the field events and the cinder path.

Besides running the 100-yard dash for Commerce, where he went to high school a year ago, Bartlett was tops in the 200, the 440, the broad jump and high jump events; also, he was used profitably as an anchor man in the half-mile relay event for the Commerce Bulldogs.

With these three athletes on hand, Sweet felt that the Rams might have possessed one of the strongest junior college track squads in California.

"There's no use in crying over spilled milk," Sweet stated smilingly.

He plans to build up a "good" squad with the material available. Sweet advised that anyone interested in track and field events would be welcome for a tryout.

Junior Varsity Casaba Team Rolls Menlo, 34-16

Although still early in the semester, the college junior varsity basketball team has been consistently playing its matches, with lady luck countering in an elusive game of hide-and-seek.

Midseason Luck!

Last week, during the Menlo junior varsity game, the Lambs showed a spark of winning streak by defeating the peninsulans 34 to 16.

Without the aid of Captain Hugh Ryan and Bob Owen, the new forward wall consisting of forwards Ernie Haines and Ott Oshida with Ray Berns at center, fast-broke the hapless Menlo men.

Out to redeem themselves of the 15 point shellacking received by the Alhambra Alumni during their last tussle, the lambs will meet them tonight at 6:45 o'clock at the Kezar pavilion, in a preliminary to the Ram-Santa Rosa game.

The terrible men from Martinez are considered the toughest obstacle to the crown. This game, the first of the home town games, will be played as a preliminary to the varsity Santa Rosa game. Gates open at 6:30 p.m.

Probable starting line-ups will be Owens and Oshida at forwards, acting Captain Hugh Ryan at center, and Gjovenez and Kreutzman at the guard positions.

Saturday night, the Lambs will play the junior varsity team of Marin Junior College, instead of the Armstrong College of Oakland, as previously announced. As a return game, the college has been invited to Marin, the game to be played Tuesday, February 13. Starting line-ups will be the same as the above mentioned, Coach Tom Wilson announced.

"We have had a 'not-so-hot' beginning, but we are improving rapidly," Captain-Manager Hugh Ryan said. "We've still got a few more important games ahead, and I'm sure the team would be stimulated by the presence of rooters."

Conference Basketball Standings

TEAM	Won	Lost
Placer	4	0
Menlo	3	1
Santa Rosa	3	1
Marin	3	1
San Francisco	2	2
Modesto	1	1
San Mateo	1	3
Salinas	1	3
Sacramento	0	2
Yuba	0	4

Track Schedule-Spring 1940

Listed below is the 1940 conference Ram track schedule which has just been compiled by junior college officials:

DATE	MEET	PLACE
March 15-16	Interclass	Kezar
March 29	S.F. vs San Mateo	San Mateo
April 6	S.F. vs Santa Rosa	Santa Rosa
April 12	S.F., Menlo, and Marin	Kentfield
April 20	S.F. vs S.F. State	Kezar
April 27	Easter Vacation	Open
May 4	N.C.J.C. Conference	Modesto
May 18	Fresno Relays	Fresno
June 1	National J.C. Meet	Modesto

Coach Russell Sweet announced that practice meets would be held with educational institutions other than the ones listed above.

Baseball Schedule-Spring 1940

The 1940 league baseball schedule has been completed. Below are listed the ball games to be played by Jack Gaddy's ball-smashers.

DATE	GAME	PLACE
March 9	Marin vs. S. F.	San Francisco
March 16	Santa Rosa vs. S. F.	San Francisco
March 23	Open
March 30	S. F. vs. Salinas	Salinas
April 6	Menlo vs. S. F.	San Francisco
April 13	S. F. vs. Yuba	Yuba
April 20	Sacramento vs. S. F.	San Francisco
April 27	S. F. vs. Modesto	Modesto
May 11	Placer vs. S. F.	San Francisco
May 4	S. F. vs. San Mateo	San Mateo

Diving Champ Helen Crlenkovich Tours South America With U. S. Good Neighbor Group

Helen Crlenkovich, the college's foremost combine of beauty and athletic prowess, is now on her way to Argentina, the favorite dumping ground of Admiral Raeder's battle-wagons.

This is a good-will tour, and Helen is one of a number of outstanding young athletes who are making the jaunt for the purpose of propagating Cordell Hull's good-neighbor policy in the lands to the south.

With all Hispanic America suffering jumpy nerves as a result of joint British-German collaboration in playing tin checkers around the local beaches, rumor is rampant (though officially denied) that the amphibian performers will be called upon to patrol adjacent territorial waters for the duration.

Varsity Basketball Team Breaks Even; Defeats Salinas, Yuba, Loses To Menlo, Placer

Gaining an even break in four contests played to date, the local hoop artists are now resting in third place in the league standings.

Dutch Conlan's men were shellacked by Menlo, 56 to 40, in the opener, but came back to upset Salinas, 45 to 43, then dropped a one-sided 54 to 37 decision to Placer, the league leader, and scored a 27 to 15 victory over Yuba.

Sparked by Needham and Lathos, all-conference men from last season, who scored 12 and 10 points, respectively, the Menlo aggregation got the jump on the local team at the start and were in complete control of the game at all times.

On the following night, the Ram cagers, ired by their defeat, came back to whack in the Lettuce City team with Genesy and McCarthy pacing their team-mates with 12 and 11 points.

Staynor, Ram guard, played a sterling game and contributed eight points to the team total.

Invading the mountain regions the following weekend the Rams opened their series in Auburn City losing to Placer.

A couple of brothers Joe and Al Triano who play forward and guard, respectively, and a six foot six inch center, Lapp, proved too much for the Conlanmen.

Joe Triano poured 22 points through the hoop with Lapp contributing 13, while Al Triano proved a tower of strength on defense.

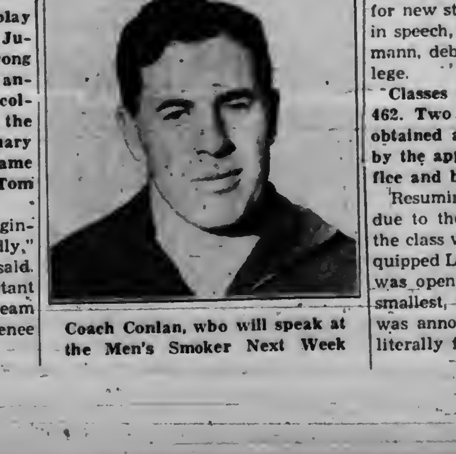
In the last of the four games, the Yuba contest, neither team seemed able to hit the hoop and the result was proved a rather dull affair.

Clary Richards, diminutive forward, tossed five shots through the basket to lead the locals in scoring, while an opponent named Strickland was high-scorer for the Yuba Mountaineers with a total of six points.

Coach Conlan To Speak On Rose Bowl Game

The man who officiated at the Rosebowl game last New Year's day will speak before an estimated 350 men at the Men's Smoker to be held next week.

Louis "Dutch" Conlan is the man. He acted as referee.



The game was the University of Southern California—Tennessee football classic.

At the smoker, Conlan will talk about football.

It has been rumored that Conlan will discuss some of the highlights of football that he's been acquainted with throughout his exciting career as a football player and gridiron official.

Conlan has officiated in many football battles during the past years. One of the highlighted contests of 1939—the Santa Clara vs. University of San Francisco game could well be the topic of part of Conlan's conversation as he was one of the four officials on the Kezar Stadium greensward when with a minute to go, Santa Clara recovered a University of San Francisco fumble and then scored what proved to be the winning touchdown of the game by the forward pass route.

DUTCH CONLAN

Coach Conlan, who will speak at the Men's Smoker Next Week

Debate Resurrected By Vox Pop; Credit To Be Allowed

Debating classes will be resumed for new students who wish two units in speech, announced Lloyd D. Luckmann, debating instructor of the college.

Classes will meet at 3:40 in Room 462. Two units in debating can be obtained at the end of the semester by the approval of the registrar's office and by the instructor.

Resuming of the debating class was due to the loud protest raised when the class was closed. "Ironic, isn't it?" quipped Luckmann. "While the course was open, the class was one of the smallest, but as soon as the course was announced as dropped, students literally flocked my gates."

Basketball

Rams Battle Santa Rosa Tonight; Meet Marin Tomorrow Night At Kezar Pavillion 8 o'clock

Deadlocked for second place in the league standings with three victories and one defeat apiece, Santa Rosa and Marin move into Kezar Pavilion to do battle with San Francisco's Ram basketball squad tonight and tomorrow night, resepctively.

Parading into Kezar this evening will be the team from Sonoma County, which, at the present time, is sailing high, wide and handsome after a victory over Marin, while the Mariners will invade the local pavilion tomorrow night determined to gain atonement for their setback by Santa Rosa.

No Fooling

In short, two country colleges are determined to fatten their conference records at the expense of "Dutch" Conlan's local lads.

Fly in the ointment, however, is the fact that the local eagers, flushed by two victories in conference competition and bolstered by new blood, are not in the mood for fooling.

New Men

Tommy McCarthy and Clary Richards, formerly of Lowell and Polytechnic, respectively, who have been holding down the forward positions to date, have been supplemented by Eddie Cerf, George Mosler, and Al Spieller.

Cerf gained all-city recognition at Lowell, while Mosler was at the same time, holding the spotlight at Mission.

Spieller, backfield mainstay on the football team last semester, formerly played basketball for Galileo.

Pre-Season Favorites

Little is known about the Santa Rosa squad except that it scored a one-point victory over Marin, pre-season favorites, a fact which should speak for itself.

The Sonoma team will present, however, a team composed of entirely new faces, having lost last year's entire squad by graduation.

The season record of Marin which plays the locals tomorrow night is very impressive.

Four Marin players, "Dutch" Boysen, Ed Forde, Bob Borcich, and Ernie Allen, are back from last year's coast division champions.

Borcich, considered one of the greatest pivot men ever to cavort at Marin, was the leading scorer of the team last season, while Ernie Allen, colored guard, was all-conference.

Freshman Star

The leading scorer of the team to date is not Borcich, not Allen, not Boysen, and not Forde, but, Dave Mariani, freshman forward.

From the above data one may expect one of the greatest Marin teams of all time, but, contrary to expectations, the season has not been too bright, and the Mariners, heavy favorites at the outset of the season, are now resting perilously in second place.

Starting Lineup

The sarting lineup for the Rams will probably be McCarthy and either Spieller or Richards at forwards with high-scoring Vernon Genesy at center and Bob Staynor and Bob Pfhaul at the guard spots.

Tonight and tomorrow night's games will mark the first home appearances of the locals.

The varsity contest starts promptly at 8 o'clock, with a preliminary featuring Tom Wilson's junior varsity at 6:45 o'clock.

Ski Club Elects Officers, Will Practice This Weekend At Norden

At a meeting held Thursday, February 1, the college skirunners elected the following as officers of their club for the new semester: president, Bob Ogg; secretary, Earling Jacobsen; treasurer, Bill Windeler.

Salinas Junior College has requested a meet in the near future to be held at Pinecrest. Preparation for this will be held this weekend at Norden, club officers said.

Also discussed at the meeting was the possibility of awarding blocks to members advancing from the novice class.

"There will probably be three gradings of proficiency," said Janet Fellows, "bordering the Sierra Club's ratings but so lowered as to include all of our members."

As soon as arrangements can be made a junior college conference will probably be formed. It will include most of the Northern California Junior colleges.

Members of the club's executive committee include Stan Ward, Monroe Gurvitz, Janet Fellows and Lu Antonicelli.

Though the club has a substantial membership anyone interested in learning to ski, or any experienced barrel-staver, is welcome to join. Further information can be had from any of the officers, Ogg said.

Rifleers Meet Montezuma In Post-Season Match

Because Captain McFarland's Ram riflers have completed their season of league competition, the sharpshooters will make a non-scheduled trip to San Rafael tomorrow morning.

There, they will shoot against representatives from the Montezuma school for boys.

Record of the Montezuma team was unobtainable, but McFarland feels that his riflemen will have little trouble in scoring a victory.

Riflemen expected to make the trip to Marin county are Chuck North, George Humphries, Louis Davy, Art Templeton, Dave Minium, and Myron Pierce.

They will take their own rifles along with them for the Montezuma match.

Gaddy Pins Hopes On New Crop Of Ball Players

Anxiously awaiting tryouts for the Ram baseball team, Coach Jack Gaddy announced last Wednesday that he expected a "new crop of ball-players to take a cut at the ball" for the college during the oncoming baseball season.

Graduated from the 1939 team were many baseball stars who had played for two years.

Gaddy expects to have on the returning list only two or three men who saw action last year.

As registration has not been completed, Gaddy was unable to announce who will see baseball action.

"One thing is definite," Gaddy mentioned, "and that is that the more men who turn out for our ball team, the finer the team will be."

Stars Next Fall!

Some of the possible football stars on the Rams side next fall might include one of the following singled for Lee Eisen's spring practice: Al Larrecou from the Stanford Frosh, Merle McFarlane formerly with the San Diego Frosh team, Eddie Cerf, all-city halfback from Lowell High; and Dick Wilson, back from Jefferson High.

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .

Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths, type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.

509 Market Street — Phone: DOuglas 8600

Remington Rand, Inc.

Finance

Biggest Budget Is Okehed By Exec. Council

Consideration and acceptance of the college budget for the spring semester of 1940, as set forth by the finance committee, was the chief order of business at last Tuesday's session of the Executive Council.

Budget expenditures for the spring semester, itemized under 35 classifications, total to the amount of $13,-333.05, leaving a reserve fund of $1,380.26.

Approved also by the council was the adoption of a definite financial policy, drawn up by the finance committee, which will be used as a standard policy in settling all disputes arising over financial matters, and which will be conducive to the smooth operation of all financial affairs in general.

"It became apparent that a firmly established policy in regard to finances would be vitally necessary if financial affairs were to function efficiently," the finance committee revealed in explaining the formulation of the policy.

A program committee to act in the capacity of overseer for all rallies, assemblies, lectures, and other student gatherings was later appointed by Williams.

Hal Hoffman, as chairman, Bill Williams, and Frank Hospardarsky were named to the committee.

To discuss the modification and clarification of various ambiguous or superfluous statements in the constitution, the council elected to devote 20 minutes of each future meeting for such consideration.

The text of the newly adopted financial policy is printed below.

Section I:

Any student body organization is eligible to receive funds from the student body fund. However, as a general policy, only councils provided for by the Associated Students constitution shall receive student body funds.

No budgeted funds may be expended beyond the allotted amounts without FIRST securing the approval of the Executive Council.

Section II:

All budget requests for the fall semester shall be handed in before the last day of the spring semester and vice versa.

Budget request forms shall be sent to the various organizations four weeks before the end of each semester.

Any organization desiring to secure money but who fails to enter a request, shall be budgeted money at the discretion of the financial committee subject to the approval of the Executive Council.

If any money be desired by any group, but said group has failed to submit a budget request, and the financial committee has failed to allocate money to said group, then only through special action of the Executive Council shall said group receive money.

Section III:

Requisitions must be secured for all purchases of goods or service. The requisition must be signed by the faculty adviser of the group requesting the requisition, the chairman of the student finance committee, and the comptroller.

Copies of the requisition shall go to the faculty adviser, the comptroller, and the executive secretary.

Any item purchased by anyone without a requisition shall be billed to the person contracting for it.

Section IV:

Rate of compensation for student services shall be determined by the dean of men, the student finance chairman and the comptroller.

Section V:

GENERAL POLICY: No student funds shall be expended for banquets except as in the WAA Tourney Week and the intersectional football game.

As a general policy, money shall be budgeted for the needs of the current semester only.

Forum To Go Into Print; Writers Urged To Meet

All college students interested in short story writing are urged by Dorothy Mercer, sponsor of the college's magazine club, The Forum, to attend Forum meetings.

While only tentative plans have as yet been made by the club's sponsors, it has been decided to print this issue of the semi-annual magazine. Even though this is a definite departure from the practice of past years, Miss Mercer said there will be no increase in price of the publication.

Fred Bracher, William Goss, and Evans Ecke are the other faculty sponsors of the club.

Ostrich Troodie Peeks At Comedian Jack Benny

As you probably know, the newest addition to the Jack Benny program which is heard every Sunday night is Trudie, a fictitious ostrich.

Curiosity got the better of Dorothy Trood, former vice-president of the Associated Students, and she wrote Mr. Benny a long letter explaining that her nickname was Troodie and asking him why he had chosen this particular name for the ostrich.

To this letter came a reply from Mr. Benny stating that the name of the script girl who worked on his latest picture, "Buck Benny Rides Again," is Trudie and that he thought that Trudie would be a good name for his newest pet. Mr. Benny also hoped that this explanation would satisfy everyone and that Miss Trood's popularity would increase.

Mr. Benny concluded his letter with good wishes for the student body of the college.

Miss Trood was so excited about receiving a letter from Mr. Benny that she went around in a daze for a week.

Dorothy Trood

Leonard Gross, Editor of The Guardsman, hoping to secure an interview with Mr. Benny and have him meet Miss Trood, talked with Mr. Benny's secretary for three minutes, only to find out that the secretary was Jack Benny. This was too much for Mr. Gross; he went into a coma and hasn't recovered yet.

WSS Book Exchange To Close February 14; Ice Skating Group To Elect New Officers

Tentative plans for the Women's Service Society, according to Verrell A. Weber, adviser, include a tea to be given for prospective members and later in the semester there is a possibility of a rummage sale. The sale will be held only if the need for one arises.

Members of this organization assisted during registration and at present, at the request of the Executive Council, are operating a book exchange in Room 728 of the P. G. & E. building. First day sales totaled more than $150.

Annette Schunick, president of WSS, emphasized that the cooperative spirit and the large number of students who made use of the exchange were responsible for its success.

Monday, February 12, students will receive money for books sold on presentation of numbered stubs.

Unsold books may be called for on Wednesday, February 14. The WSS will not be responsible for books left more than 30 days, and these unclaimed books will be sold.

The book exchange will have a separate room on the new campus at Balboa park.

Redford Calls For Skeds; Notes NYA Applicant Rise

Edward H. Redford, NYA director, urged that all NYA students turn in their new program schedules as soon as possible.

Office hours will be from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. in Room 726 of the Sutter Street P. G. & E. building, on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, announced Redford. He will also be at Galileo High School on Mondays from 1:30 to 5 in the afternoon.

"We've had some 300 applications for NYA this semester, a number exceeding all previous semesters," revealed Redford. Although the waiting list totals 100, Redford said, however, those who wish to apply for NYA employment need not be discouraged, because many students drop out as the semester gets under way.

Applicants for NYA must be American citizens not over 24 years of age and must really be in need of NYA assistance. Application blanks may be obtained in Room 211 at Galileo High School.

Williams Asks Interviews With Judicial Candidates

With the personnel of the college judiciary committee still unappointed, Associated Students President Al Williams announced that he was eager to interview prospective committee members.

This opportunity for interview is provided to students desirous of serving on the judiciary committee or any other standing committee, because of a recent amendment to the Associated Students Constitution which also makes mandatory the publication a week in advance of the intention to appoint student committees.

According to Williams the policy of the judiciary committee will be to correct rather than penalize the behavior of those students committing misdemeanors, but, as in the past, those students found guilty of lending their student body cards will be asked to forfeit them.

LOBELL'S RECREATION
341 Stockton near Sutter
Has installed two new POOL TABLES in addition to Table Tennis, Chess, and other games—Try the Economy
Fountain Lunch

ADVERTISING RATE:
1-50 inches ..... 70c an inch
51-150 inches ..... 60c an inch
151-up inches ..... 50c an inch

With Beverly Pasqualetti, college faculty member, in the position of assistant instructor, Joseph William's ice skate class moves into its second week of activity.

Pasqualetti, who is a well-known photographer, will photograph in technicolor the progress of the skaters, falls and all, in their progress from novice to champion.

Today's meeting at the Winterland rink will be for the purpose of electing officers for the current semester, Williams said.

In commenting on the new blocks very much in evidence about the college, Williams said that 30 blocks had been purchased by the members of the club and two blocks awarded—one each to Bill Hart and Murray Galbraith. Galbraith is now in Cleveland, Ohio, competing in the National Ice Skating championships.

The California State Figure Skating championships which were to have been held in Yosemite several weeks ago, were postponed because of rain and have been moved down to the Santa Rosa Ice rink, on February 23. Competing in the figure skating championships will be three representatives of the college: Ed Bedell, novice; Bill Hart, Junior, and Murray Galbraith, Senior.

Williams announced that plans are being made for an ice skating exhibition some time during April. However, at the present, there are not enough women in the ice club to provide partners for the intended student.

"I wish," he concluded, "that the women would come out and give the fellows a break."

For those with a soft spot in their heart for the ice class, rates are 25 cents with skates and 40 cents without.

These rates apply only to Friday afternoon sessions at 2:30 and to students with student body cards.

Vocational Periodicals Offered By SJC Library

In conjunction with Superintendent of Schools Joseph P. Nourse's current campaign to try to solve the unemployment problem of San Francisco youth, the college library, located above the book store, is offering for student disposal a variety of reading materials regarding vocations and employment opportunities.

According to Francis J. Colligan, library administrator, the information contained in the available periodicals will be recent and up-to-date.

Now available to students are the following magazines of general vocational interest: Vocational Trends, Monthly Labor Review, Occupations, Personnel Journal, Vocational Guidance Digest.

GUARANTEED TYPEWRITERS

Closing out stock of Late Model Underwood and Royal Typewriters.

May be purchased on small monthly payments. Also New Portable typewriters at low as $29.75

San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. Hastings
591 Market St. Phone SUtter 4734

A Capella Choir Membership Rises

Manager of the A Cappella Choir for the present semester is Bob Dudley, who sings in the bass section of the choir, announced Flossita Badger, director. Assisting Dudley is Marie Salomon, soprano. The office of treasurer is held by Barbara Smith, Miss Badger also announced.

"Owing to the extremely large sign-up for the choir, I will not be able to take all students into the choir," Miss Badger stated.

"Forty returning student members will be supplemented by about 25 new members," she said.

Miss Badger announced that the choir is limited to 65 because that's the number of gowns owned by the college.

Many fine voices have tried out for the choir, she said, and the names of those accepted will be announced shortly. "Last year's performances set a new high in our work, and we hope to surpass our record this semester," Miss Badger emphasized.

Miss Badger plans to form a mixed double-quartette from the members of the choir. Miss Badger also hopes to choose some of the best voices for duets and solos.

College Art To Show At Mills

Tentative plans have been made by the Alpha Delta Epsilon, college art society, to exhibit water-colors at Mills College some time in March, according to Marion McKillop, president. Other colleges will be competing in the exhibit, and a scholarship to Mills College will be awarded as first prize, Miss McKillop said.

HEA Outlines Policy; Holds First Meeting February 23

Activities of the Home Economics Association begin late this month with the first meeting of the club, which will be held February 23 at the home of its adviser, Claire Cuneo, 307 Divisadero, at 2:30. Chief business of this meeting will be the election of new officers.

"Because our president has not returned, I am calling the meeting to order," said Miss Cuneo, "and we hope to have a large group attend."

"The Home Economics Association," added Miss Cuneo, "is open to all students who have taken or are taking a home economics course, and limited to 20 outside students who would like to belong. Meetings are held monthly—one business meeting in Room 317 at Galileo, and one social meeting."

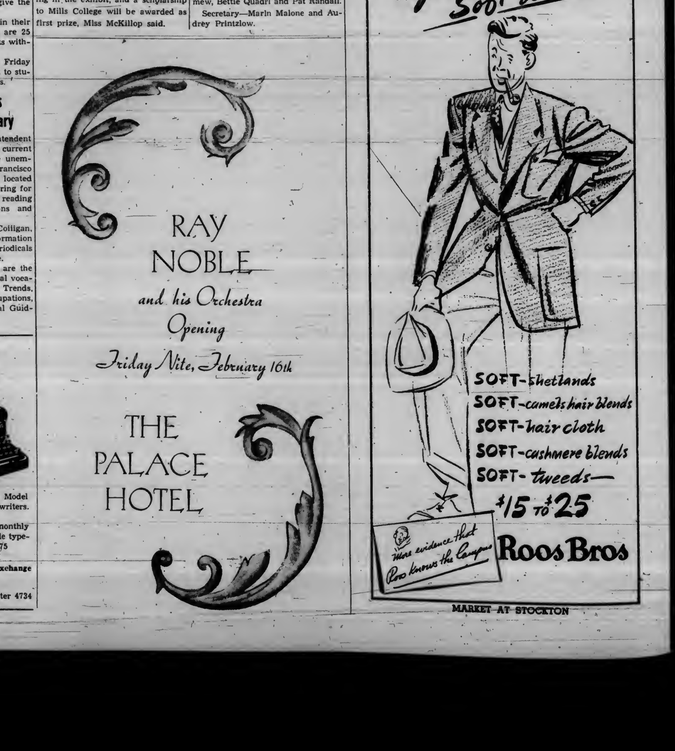
Referring to this month's meeting, Miss Cuneo added she would like to have those who wish to attend, to leave their names in Room 317 at the Galileo building.

Class Elections

(Continued from page 1)

President—Douglas Alexander, Loretta Egan and Leo Leggett.

Vice-President—Dorothy Mills.



Secretary — Jeanne Grenelle and Barbara Brown.

For the Low Freshman class:

President—Phillip Baril, Robert Klitzker, Robert Koenig and Edward Vigor.

Vice-President — Mary Bartholomew, Bettie Quadri and Pat Randall.

Secretary—Marin Malone and Audrey Printzlow.

Party

WAA Splashes At YWCA Feb. 28; Dinner Planned

Headlining Women's Athletic Association activities is the Splash Party to be held on February 28, at the Young Women's Christian Association, Powell and Mason Streets.

Thursa Scott, president, stated that swimming, water games, and exhibition diving would constitute the entertainment of the evening, after which dinner will be served upstairs.

Several exhibition divers are being considered, and the final choice will be announced later. Barbara Smith is general chairman. All women of the college are invited. Miss Scott urges all women students to go to this event and join the fun.

This semester has seen the largest turnout in the history of WAA. During the semester, some event such as a hike or roller-skating party is being planned for each month for all women students, promises Miss Scott. She also expressed her desire that all women who possibly can would come out.

Many interesting events are being planned and are listed in the WAA handbook, obtainable at time of signing up for activities, added Miss Scott. According to sign-ups, ice skating and tennis are this season's most popular sports.

Calendar of Special Events

As stated in WAA handbooks; follows:

Sign up for Sports—January 29 to February 9.

Rally for Women by the Associated Women Students.

Sports begin on Friday, February 9.

Nomination-Election of Managers—February 9 to 17.

Initiation-Splash Party-Spread — February 28 at YWCA.

Intercollegiate Sports Days

Coeducational Volleyball—March 30 at San Francisco State College.

Trail Riding — April 6 at Marin Junior College.

Horse Show—May 4 at San Mateo Junior College.

General-Sectional Sports Day—May 11 at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Tourney Week at San Francisco Junior College

Sports Finale and Banquet—May 2 to 8.

Club Board

Pres. Thorogood Convenes Initial Session Thursday

Under the leadership of its new president, Alden Thorogood, the Club Advisory Board will hold its first meeting of the semester, Tuesday, February 13, at 1 p.m. The room has not been selected yet but it will be in the Powell Street building.

"It will," said Thorogood, "probably be somewhere on the fourth floor."

This semester the Student Executive Council has allotted the board $550 to cover the expenses. The original allotment was for $500.

"The extra $50," Thorogood said, "will be used to publish a monthly club bulletin for all members which will inform them of the various activities being planned for the posted on the coming weeks."

Thorogood also stated that a social calendar will again be posted on the bulletin board near the check room.

The Club Advisory Board is an organization that sponsors new and small clubs. It is also the coordinating unit between the clubs.

Sullivan Lists Hotel Grads' Job Placements

Recent appointments and promotions of graduates from the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division of the college were announced by J. Graham Sullivan, former coordinator.

Don Sands is now storekeeper at the new Mannings' Coffee Shop on Market Street.

Jean Gahard has left Oregon for New York, advanced to the position of commissary manager of United Airlines. His headquarters is the New Yorker Hotel.

Clark Chittick is starting a new job as night auditor of the Hotel Indio, Indio, California. Clark's brother Bill is room clerk in the Hotel Valencia, La Jolla, California.

Collin Oveland, leaving San Justo Ranch, Santa Barbara, as assistant manager, has joined the staff of Hotel Del Coronado, Coronado Beach, taking a desk position.

Recently Louis Aber was promoted to the position of night manager and auditor at Hotel Whitcomb.

Cecil Bartlett is now second cook at the Fairmont Hospital in San Leandro, California.

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Vol. X TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1940 No. 3

Bulletin

See box at bottom of page one for last minute news concerning:

- REGISTRATION FIGURES
- STUDENT MANAGERS
- STUDENT LEAVES
- FROSH BUTTONS
- C.A.B. MEETING

Gross While Thinking

FOREIGN

A FEW days ago, the daily newspapers were featuring a story which intimated that Japan would drive all Americans out of China in answer to the trade treaty cancellation.

It seems that the Japanese are quite aggravated over the termination of the treaty and consider themselves highly insulted. Ironic, isn't it? We recall many incidents when the United States was insulted by Japan and got no redress other than the customary apology.

The Nipponese at this point remind us of a very bad little boy who has just been spanked and its retaliation matters dark, veiled threats as to his revenge.

• • •

GREAT BRITAIN seems to have pulled a very bad faux pas in executing two young Irish patriots last week.

The Irish are no slouches when it comes to getting angry and rebelling against unjust treatment.

Whether the punishment was unjust or not, is not the vital question of the moment. Whether the British were right in risking an internal upheaval at this time, remains to be seen.

It would seem that the English government could have exercised a little more tact and thus saved themselves an embarrassing and perhaps serious situation.

LATEST reports indicated that the Allies and the Germans are still coolly ensconced in their Maginot and Siegfried lines, playing cards, listening to the radio, and enjoying themselves in general.

If this situation in the so-called "war" exists much longer, we will be forced to delete the "R" and put "ww" before Sherman's famous statement.

• • •

NATIONAL

WE SEE the Christian Front plotters pleaded not guilty before a Federal judge last week.

With the evidence the FBI has secured against them, it appears likely that their plea will avail them nothing.

It is unfortunate that such persons can only be imprisoned for the short space of eight years.

We find it ironic to realize that those same men, if arrested in some foreign countries on the charge of plotting to overthrow the government, would be quickly put to death.

These men's lives will be saved by the laws of the same democracy they plotted to destroy.

• • •

FATHER COUGHLIN, the Michigan radio-priest, took a week's rest and spared the radio audience the trouble of turning the dial.

Unfortunately, Coughlin, who has viciously assailed almost everything and everyone in the United States, will be back on the air soon.

There is a name for persons who cower behind the robes of the church to rant and rave against their fellowmen, but at the present time we cannot think of one adequate to express our opinion. It would probably be censored, anyway.

• • •

CITY

THIS Thursday San Francisco will be the recipient of an air raid.

A phase of National Defense Week, which began yesterday, the city will be bombed by a squadron of army planes which will swoop down on the City Hall in a simulated air attack.

There's nothing like a war in Europe to make America national defense conscious.

• • •

THE San Francisco Police Department seems to be really cracking down on motorists who disobey the new parking regulations.

Charging the offenders a five-dollar fine, the department seems determined to teach the drivers of automobiles that laws were made to be enforced.

Of course, it may also be true that such laws are a little too rigorous.

Students of the college needn't worry much longer about getting a ticket for parking. Will have our own parking space at Balboa Park in a few months.

• • •

ALFRED DUFF COOPER, former British First Lord of the Admiralty arrived in town last week.

If we recall correctly Lord Cooper was the Briton who had good intentions but talked too much to suit his superiors.

As a result, he is now in the United States giving lectures, or in other words acting as a propaganda agent for the British government.

It's Leap Year, Valentines (Sigh)

By HARRY FRISTER

Inasmuch as this is Leap Year and tomorrow is Valentine's Day, it seems to be a good idea to give the boys and girls a hint about the importance of the day in olden times. Perhaps some one might be found for the quaint old customs.

Centuries ago, prior to the time Europe began to strain under the gloss of modern sophistication, Valentine's Day was a memorable one in the life of the people of that era, because it was the day Dan Cupid went on a rampage. The village church was the setting for the rambunctious Dan. On February 14 the belles of the hamlet would scribble their names on a piece of paper and drop it into a box in the church. Then the stronger sex would parade by and nonchalantly pick a name.

On the academic side, and in order to satisfy the pedants, it might be apropos to present a resume of the reasons why people still choose to call February 14 Valentine's Day. Saint Valentine was a Christian martyr who died in the third century on this day. This naturally gives rise to the idea that the day is named after him. Many people, however, prefer the explanation that the word is derived from a mispronunciation of the French word for saint, golatin. In a democracy such as ours, where freedom of thought is prevalent, you are allowed to have your ideas whence came the term Valentine's Day.

Military Science Classes To Meet At Guard Armory

Beginning this semester all military science classes will meet at the California National Guard Armory, James S. Hughes, military science instructor, disclosed this week.

"We believe this is a decided change for the better," Hughes said, "for we will now have at our immediate disposal the various guns and other pieces of military equipment of the armory. This we may effectively combine our theoretical and practical training."

For Thursday

Varied Events Offered By Men's And Women's Organizations This Thursday; Smoker, Tea Featured

A.W.S.

Especially for women students of the college will be the program and tea for freshman women, to be held in the Galileo auditorium on Thursday, February 15, according to Gloria Miller, president of Associated Women Students.

"I would like to emphasize the fact that all women, not only freshmen, are welcome," said Miss Miller.

The program, which begins at 2:30, will serve to introduce new women to college activities. Representatives from the Women's Athletic Association, Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, and the Home Economics Association will speak briefly on their respective activities.

As is the usual custom, AWS officers for the semester will be presented. They are Gloria Miller, president; Jean Arnold, vice-president; and a secretary as yet unchosen. Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser, will also be introduced.

Special entertainment will be provided by the students of the college. Despite the fact that Dorothy Mills, former AWS secretary, has left college, she will sing a solo. Barbara Smith and Priscilla Finley will blend their voices in a duet. Flossita Badger, music instructor, will direct the women in the college hymn.

Refreshments will be served after the program in the women's gymnasium; service will begin at 3:30 and last until 4:30.

Miss Miller expressed the desire that all women who are able to attend will do so.

A.M.S.

All aboard on the Associated Men Students' Special!

With a chick-chick-chick and a couple of toot-toots, the special will arrive at the Sorosis Club, 536 Sutter Street, Thursday evening, February 15.

There, 350 men from the college will get off the Rom Limited and see the AMS Smoker with all the trimmings and what have you.

AMS President Lyle Shultz and Joe Amori, adviser, will present a show dedicated mainly to new male members of the college.

Free-to all men students, a program of super-colossal, ultra-gigantic, dynamic entertainment is scheduled. If what Amori has said concerning the Smoker lives up to expectations, it will be a night of unprecedented tricks. Coming from Palo Alto, McGill has been known for his hypnotic and magical accomplishments.

The sports movies will consist of two 1936 Coast Conference football knockouts, USC-California, and Stanford-USC. 1936 was the year Washington represented the West in the Rose Bowl classic. The 1939 Santa Clara-U.S.F. football classic will also be shown.

Dean Edwin C. Browne will unleash his musical talents while leading the group in community singing, accompanied by Dan Lowe, student, at the piano.

Three guest speakers will be Louis "Dutch" Conlan, former Rose Bowl referee and college athletic director; Allen Williams, president of the Associated Students; and "Slim" Thorogood, Club Advisory Board leader.

Refreshments, including cocoa, pastry, and other stomach soothing food, will be prepared by the college Hotel Restaurant division.

Shultz, who will be master of ceremonies, announced: "We hope to see a big crowd of fellows out at the Sorosis Club Thursday night, as there will not be a dull moment."

He mentioned the fact that the Smoker, because of its informality, would be the finest place for all new men students to be introduced to one another.

Finn Relief Fund Starts; Clubs Respond Favorably

All chartered clubs of the college were invited, this week, to join with the Army and Navy Club in contributing to a fund for the relief of the civilian population of Finland, according to Capt. Fred C. McFarland, advisor to the service group.

"It is the first step in the organization of a Finnish Relief Fund," McFarland said, "which we hope will in time be expanded to include the whole college."

Letters of invitation were dispatched to the advisers of 35 student organizations, requesting them to inform the Army and Navy Club—by February 15—whether or not they are able to join in the drive. Clubs replying in the affirmative were further asked to set their own quota, to be reached by March 15, at which date the total contribution from all clubs will be forwarded to the Finnish Relief Fund headquarters in New York.

According to Lou Goldstone, Army and Navy Club vice-president, the campaign is meeting with success at its very outset.

"The response of the first two days is highly gratifying," Goldstone said, "and greater than we ever expected. We have already received announcements from several clubs of generous sums per."

Finance Head

Pictured above is Associated Student President Allen Williams, who acted as chairman of the finance committee. (See story below.)

H'OH COLLEGE BUDGET RELEASED; APPROVED BY EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

An itemized summary of the spring, 1940 budget was released this week by the finance committee. The budget, highest in college history, was approved officially by the Executive Council at its first meeting of the semester.

The budget is as follows:

EXPENDITURES
Track	$ 411.65
Baseball	715.00
Tennis	282.50
Golf	120.00
Spring Football	75.00
Light Weight Basketball	112.50
Varsity Basketball	610.00
Rally Committee	124.00
Debating	130.00
Club Advisory Board	550.00
WAA	329.00
Rentals	1,130.00
Previous Commitments	200.00
Handbooks	137.00
Comptroller	125.00
The Guardsman	2,225.00
Executive Council	200.00
Graduation Gowns	147.00
Dean's Funds	200.00
Medical Administration	100.00
Publicity	224.90
Graduation	880.00
Registrar	100.00
Miscellaneous	200.00
AWS	415.00
AMS	450.00
Internal Publicity	50.00
Forum Magazine	200.00
Social Committee	645.00
Awards	25.00
Soph Week	360.00
Rifle Team	190.00
Bowling	25.00
Executive Secretary	400.00
A Capella Choir	245.00
Total	$13,333.05
ESTIMATED INCOME
Dues	$ 9,200.00
Social	150.00
Gowns	175.00
Discounts	20.00
Advertising	500.00
Car Tickets	100.00
Athletics	300.00
Reserve	4,268.31
Total	$14,713.31
Balance In Reserve	$ 1,380.26

San Mateo In Dance Exchange With College

Hospitality and friendship have been the key words in the building of good-fellowship among students of the college. Thus, when members of the San Mateo Junior College approached Muriel Grenelle, chairman of the social committee and vice-president of the Associated Students, with the idea of exchanging dances, it was received as a compliment to the college.

It has been the custom with student bodies of other colleges to exchange dances and rallies, and in general have a spirit of friendly rivalry between the two groups.

This Friday, February 16, at the semi-annual Low Freshman semi-formal dance, the exchanging of dances will be inaugurated. San Mateo Junior College students will be admitted to the Freshman dance with one student body card per couple.

Attics will be ransacked and trunks will be dragged from the cellar, for an appropriate costume to wear to the Baby Dance San Mateo is sponsoring at its gymnasium, Saturday night, February 17. Students of the college are invited to the dance and will be admitted to it by showing one San Francisco Junior College student body card per couple.

For Today And Tomorrow

Freshman Orientation Week Swings Into Action With Collegiate Mixer Dance This Afternoon, Symposium On Student Government Tomorrow

Symposium

Designed to acquaint freshmen and other enterprising students with the various phases of student activities, an all-student symposium headed by Al Williams, Associated Students president, will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the third floor Lecture Hall at Powell Street.

"All freshmen may be excused from their 11 o'clock classes for this meeting, after reporting to their classes, and we trust a large number of students will be on hand," said Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

Representatives of the Associated Women Students, the Men's Athletic Council, the Women's Athletic Association, the Club Advisory Board, and the AMS will be on hand to explain the function of their particular organization.

Williams plans to discuss the role of student activities in government.

Other speakers tentatively scheduled to appear on the symposium are Muriel Greuelle, vice-president of the Associated Students; Lyle Shultz, Associated Men Students president; Hugh Ryan, athletic manager; Leonard Gross, editor of The Guardsman, and Alden Thorogood, president of Club Advisory Board.

This is the first symposium of its kind to be presented at the college. This is one of Williams' first acts fulfilling promises made in his election platform.

Speech Tournament To Be Held At C.O.P., Stockton

College of the Pacific campus in Stockton will be the location of the Fourth Annual Junior College Speech Tournament. Dates set are this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 15, 16 and 17.

This tournament is based on the concept that an adequate foreign policy for the United States must serve the sectional and economic interests which support it.

The College of the Pacific is following the tradition set out and has enlarged the program to the following groups:

Composing the Town Meeting group on pacifism will be Catherine Crotin and Janet Fellows, and Rema Corbett, who will debate the question: Resolved, that the United States should follow a policy of strict (economic and military) isolation toward all nations outside the Hemisphere engaged in armed international or civil conflict.

Representing the college in the oratorical contest will be Harold Zucker and Eleanor Roy, while the debate field will be handled by Bill Hall and Louis Gladstone.

Handling the extemporaneous group will be Isaac Abrahams, Irving Talen, Bill Hall, Lou Goldstone, Rema Corbit, Janet Fellows and David Hermann. The subject for both men and women will be, Democracy—Threats from Without and Within.

"Lloyd D. Luckmann has prepared for this meet since last semester, and enthusiastically exclaimed, "We hope the trip will be successfully accomplished, and bring back more laurels for the college."

Book Exchange Successful; Student Cooperation Good

Women's Service Society book exchange has been an unusual success this semester, according to Annette Schunick, president.

She expressed her thanks to the students for their cooperation.

Books were received during the first this semester instead of at the beginning of classes, and consequently students had more time to sell and purchase books through the exchange. A total of 213 students were served by the exchange, with 350 books handled and 269 of this number sold.

Students may call for money at the bank for books sold this week. Money may be received only on presentation of numbered stubs.

Unsold books may be called for on Wednesday, February 14, at the bank. These books will also be issued only on presentation of numbered stubs.

Closing date of the exchange, stated Miss Schunick, will be on Wednesday, February 14.

Mixer

Officially opening college dancing activities, the Associated Women Students and Associated Men Students will join forces in a Collegiate Mixer tea dance at the Century Club this afternoon. Dancing will be from 4 to 6 o'clock sharp.

Music for the affair will be provided by Warren Rhoden and his orchestra.

The purpose of the dance, according to Gloria Miller and Lyle Shultz, AWS and AMS presidents, respectively, is to offer to men and women students a chance to make friends at the college.

Refreshments will be served by hostesses and hosts chosen by Miss Miller and Shultz. The committee includes Dorothy Trood, Muriel Nolan, Muriel Greuelle, Florence Hansen, Virginia Pearson, Adele Kuhn, Mary Frances Malone, Loretta Egan, Grace Tait, Thurza Scott, Shirley White, Mary Miller, Gerry Ryan, Hal Hoffman, Bill O'Neill, Al Williams, Leo Gross, Ray Berns, Lee Scarlett, Bob Owen, Hugh Ryan, Art Pomares, Alden Thorogood, Ray Rhode, and Dan Baker.

Both Miss Miller and Shultz declared that the dance promises to be worth while, and they urged the students to drop out for the affair.

Liniment Prices Soar As Faculty Prepares For Game With Blockmen

By KEI ISORI

"So they think they have a chance? Ha!".

Such was Dean Edwin C. Browne's comment of the coming Block SF-Faculty game which is to be held from 1 to 2:20 p.m. at Galileo field next Friday afternoon.

This will be the eighth game, three of which were won by the blockmen and two by members of the faculty. Three other games were called off because of weeping skies.

"We have on the faculty some 20 men who have played semi-pro or professional baseball. Our lineup worry is not in the number of good players needed, but in the fact that we must choose players who will not embarrass too much the blockmen."

"I have been considering the pitching position," continued Browne, "but it depends upon the amount of work I get for me the week following. John Whiff Selig or Glenn Noble will probably alternate in pitching if I am unable.

Mr. Seliz, incidentally, has had experience playing ball for the Snohomish County Industrial League, making a name for himself as one of the star pitchers."

On the other end, representing the blockmen, Co-captain Mel Chicalola is quoted as saying: "We have a surprise lineup this semester. A couple of dark horses are being groomed especially for the game, but we shall announce them just before the game. Meanwhile, we are holding a secret practice, working out plays which we hope will 'fog' the faculty."

The topic of conversation in the faculty meetings as well as the Block SF gatherings is centered around the coming game. Meanwhile, in a survey of all the lineups it was noted that the sale of liniment had increased some 10 per cent.

CBS Provides Studio Facilities For Speech 33

One of the new courses offered this semester is Speech 33, an addition to the Radio Broadcasting Curriculum.

It is a practical course designed to give the student an opportunity to study the multiple problems confronting the radio producer. Every type of broadcast and the production problems of each will be studied.

Students will be given the opportunity to produce programs in the CBS studios, thus giving them practical experience in such matters as casting, timing, cutting and balancing.

The class is held five times a week: on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 58 Sutter Street and on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Studio.

Birdmen Set To Fly; Wait Word From Washington D.C.

With all physical examinations completed and insurance fees paid all that is keeping the College Aeronauts on the ground is the official word from the Civil Aeronautics Authority in Washington.

"A telegram was received the other day that the document was in the mail and it is expected momentarily," Captain George Richards, College director, announced.

The operators are ready and waiting, flight schedules are all made up and as soon as the word is received the program will go into action.

Honor Groups Will Meet At Glendale; Labor Discussed

College honor students will convene for the annual state-wide conference of Alpha Gamma Sigma chapters at Glendale this year as guest of the Glendale Junior College announced Alice C. Cooper, Alpha Gamma Sigma adviser.

Topic for discussion at the conference will be the California Labor Problems. The discussion will cover six different phases of the labor situation and will be open to everyone.

The college has been asked to send two delegates and one speaker. The subject for the speaker will be announced later.

As yet no definite decision has been reached as to how many new members will be admitted to the society.

Miss Cooper stated all those who have 30 grade points or more for last semester should watch for their names in the Honor Roll to appear in The Guardsman in the near future.

Officers for this semester have also been selected. Charles North, who is also president of the Rifle Club, was elected president. Virginia Allen and Willard Blackfield were elected to the heads of day-president and secretary-treasurer respectively.

Last Minute Campus News

REGISTRATION REACHES 2365

By Friday afternoon 2365 students had passed the registrar's desk. This amount falls slightly below the expected 2600 enrollment, but there was still a reasonable chance that the figure would be reached.

BASEBALL MANAGERS NEEDED

Two students well acquainted with the game of baseball who would like to serve as managers for the Ram baseball team, are advised to see Coach Jack Gaddy at once.

PROMINENT STUDENT OFFICER LEAVES SCHOOL

Dorothy Mills, secretary of the Associated Women Students, has left college to study music. A new AWS secretary will either be elected or appointed to fill the vacancy, announced Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser.

AMS PRESIDENT ASKS COOPERATION

Lyle Shultz, president of the Associated Men Students, indirected all freshmen to wear their "frosh" buttons all during Orientation Week.

"There will be no hazing of any sort," Shultz said. "We are merely desirous of helping new students to become acquainted with other students in the college."

CLUB BOARD MEETS TODAY

First meeting of the Club Advisory Board will be held today in Room 105, announced Alden Thorogood, group president.

The Guardsman

Published Twice Weekly by the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College

1939 Member 1940 Associated Collegiate Press

Vol. X TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1940 No. 3

LEONARD GROSS ..... EDITOR

Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse — Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Daniel Rosenblat ..... Associate Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Associate Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli ..... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ..... Advertising Manager
Marion MacKillop ..... Staff Artist
Joe Kurpieski ..... Photographer

REPORTERS
Bill Albertson, Nora Baker, Ray Berns, Eva Burkey, Patricia Cantwell, Elizabeth Cook, Betty Deming, Janet Fellows, Don Field, Harry Frister, Bill Hall, John Hansen, Doris Hermann, Kei Hori, Borrie Hyman, Dorothy Mills, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jay Wright
BUSINESS STAFF—Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or college oponion. All unsigned editorial are by the editor.

Goldstone
. . . Of Sound and Fury

THIS perennially shocked world vocalized its astonishment with rare alacrity when Soviet Russia's Redarmy bumbled into Finland. But why? Why was the world astonished? Certainly civilization was horrified at this nimble demonstration by the galaxy's leading exponent of peace and democracy; surely we were disgusted at the spectacle of Voroshilov's class-conscious mojiks liberating the downtrodden Finns from the yoke of capitalistic oppression. But again, where does the astonishment angle enter?

The world wasn't astonished when Hitler brought salvation to Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland, nor when Il Duce's crusaders carried the torch and castor-oil into darkest Africa. The world was horrified and disgusted then, but not astonshed, because wicked aggressors like Germany and Italy were expected to raise cain anyway.

So why all the astonishment when the Soviet Union, a peace-loving democracy which has a written constitution, extends its campaign for social uplift into politically-backward Finland?

It must be that the world sub-consciously accepted the infinitely prolonged belch of the Kremlin, to-wit: that the mighty invincible Redarmy would smash to tatters any invader of Soviet soil, but would never never war outside its own borders. That might account for the astonishment, except that History has a word to say in the matter.

Now there is no reason why the word of History should be accepted over the word of Comrade Stalin and the International Publishers, because History, having refused to negotiate with Saint Marx, is obviously a liar, a capitalistic fiction, and a vile provocateur—all rolled into a distinctly odiferous one.

Nevertheless, since the Soviet Union, by the terms of its noble document, sets a shining example of proletarian justice by allowing deviators from the party line a hearing before liquidation, History should be permitted to speak.

History says that the World Builders are unfortunately allergic to minding their own business, having been engaged in no less than fourteen wars outside their own territory in their twenty-three year span of national existance.

Significantly, perhaps, the Soviet Union's first recipient of Socialism on bayonet-point was Finland, in 1918.

It was a beneficient gesture designed to rectify the blunder of the Finnish electorate in sending a non-Socialist majority to the Finnish Diet. The liberation, begun in an apocalyptic frenzy of enthusiasm, petered out when a German division appeared on the scene in war-feathers.

In the winter of 1918-19, still intent on spreading peace and democracy, the Red army tried to show the light to Poland, Lithuania, Latvia and Esthonia, only to be recalled by widespread insurgency within the New Utopia. Again in 1920, the Soviet fought Poland. This time the Poles started it, and were routed by the Redarmy, which, with the foe on the run, refused to make a settlement, preferring to be hurled back from the gates of Warsaw and end up with much less favorable terms.

History further records that the Ukrainian State was invited to join the Soviet Union by 20,000 bayonets in 1919. Nationalist Georgia, Daghestan, Bokhara, all independent states, were given non-agression treaties by the Soviet before being overrun by the purveyors of good-will and the Manifesto. Outer Mongolia antedated Manchukuo as a puppet state when the valiant Redarmy took over in 1921, and China was treated to a dose of the Millennium in 1929. And three years ago, again, Sinkiang was subjected to a friendly barrage of bombs and poison-gas by the peace-loving Redarmy.

And now its Finland again. And everyone seemed so surprised.

History, being facile of tongue, rephrases our rhetorical question: "Why get excited? You see it's a perfectly natural function."

Frister
. . . The Spectator

In the whole world there was only one thing that George and Lennie wanted. They were certain to get it, too, but "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley."

All they wanted was a small parcel of land, with a ranch and an alfalfa field, and some rabbits—yes, rabbits, so that Lennie could tend them. All their plans went for naught, however, because of Lennie's passion for feeling soft, silky things, and because George, even though a bindle-stiff, had some honor.

Of Mice and Men is raw and powerful. In it, Director Lewis Milestone has observed an axiom long latent in the cinema capital, "speech is silver; silence is golden", and in so doing has created a masterpiece of pantomimic art. One is never awed as much as by silence. This is demonstrated most convincingly in the scene where the boss' son, Curley, a little guy who hates big guys, attacks the hulking, simple-witted Lennie. Even though he is being brutally beaten, Lennie hasn't sense enough to strike back until his pal, George, tells him to. So amid dead silence the mighty Lennie takes Curley's hand between his huge paws, and applies crushing power to his squeeze. Curley faints, now having where his hand had been a bloody mass of garbled flesh. The silence that follows conveys more than could any sound.

Lon Chaney, Jr., gives a performance that should rank among the top ten of the year. Simple, lovable Lennie, always doing a bad thing. Chaney endows his part with a simplicity of word and deed that makes it a far more sympathetic role than it would ordinarily be. Outstanding throughout the film, Chaney reaches his peak in the scene where he and Mae, Curley's wife, are in the barn. Mae asks him to feel her soft, silky hair. Lennie does, and then he does the bad thing. What had once been a live girl is now a very dead woman. In this scene, both Chaney and Betty Fields show how beautiful true artistry can be.

Burgess Meredith injects into the role of George a pathetic feeling that must be kindred to thousands of hobos the world over—the fear of loneliness. In the last scene especially, Meredith, in shooting Lennie to save him from lynching at the hands of the mob, conveys the scared feeling that all who have none to talk to have. Even Lennie was better than nothing. But Lennie is dead now, so there is nothing for George to do except turn himself over to the sheriff.

Unusual from start to finish, Of Mice and Men will linger in the hearts of those who viewed it because of its brutal frankness, its gentility, and its tender emotion. Tramps the world around will see in the film a true characterization of their trials and tribulations. Even though the film deals with life that is foreign to him, the film-goer feels the joys and sorrows of George and Lennie, and hopes that they get their little farm. At the end of the picture the public is saddened to learn that "the best laid schemes of mice and men . . . "

Hansen
. . . Club Crier

• Alpha Lambda Chi . . . Rush dinner on Wednesday, February 14, at 8 o'clock. It will be by invitation and have a Valentine's Day theme.

• Alpha Phi Omega . . . Initiation of pledges on February 20 at 8 o'clock at 3535 Fillmore Street.

February 22 at 10 a.m. a special sports event which is to be announced later.

• Army-Navy Club . . . Tuesday, February 19, at 1249 Jones Street for new students interested in joining the club.

• Astronomy Club . . . Meetings Monday evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock at Galileo Observatory.

• Beta Phi . . . Pledge nominations to be held by members at Parkside Tennis Club, at 19th Avenue and Taraval Street, at 8 o'clock on February 19.

• Beta Tau . . . Pledges' first meeting with members at 2442-27th Avenue on February 20, at 8 o'clock.

• Block SF Society . . . Tonight at the Sorosis Club at 7:30 p.m. the election of officials and committees for semester, and future social and business plans will be discussed.

• Forestry . . . Business meeting at Galileo, Room 362, at 5:30 o'clock, Wednesday, February 14.

• Newman Club . . . February 19, at 8 o'clock, at St. Mary's Cathedral. There will be a speaker besides a regular business meeting.

• Phi Beta Rho . . . Second rush tea which is invitational. To be held Sunday, February 25, from 2 till 5 o'clock at 650 Darien Way.

• Pi Mu Gamma . . . Business meeting every other Thursday at 450 Sutter Street.

• Rifle and Pistol Club . . . Dance and party at Sigmund Stern Grove, February 21, at 8 o'clock.

• Tri Epsilon . . . A pledge and member get-together on February 17. Place and times of meeting indefinite.

Rifleers Win Final League Match; Cop Second Place

Finishing its final league match in a blaze of glory, the college Rifle and Pistol team cinched a second place standing in the Golden Gate Bridge League by outshooting the 159th Infantry last Thursday evening in the Galileo Armory.

Back up in the 900's again, the Ram shooters gained a 903 to 869 victory over the Infantrymen after a long match that lasted an hour and 30 minutes.

Led by George Humphrey, college sophomore, the Rams seemed to have little trouble in finding their marks. Humphrey copped high-point honors for the evening with a total of 188 out of a possible perfect 200. It was the highest score made by Humphrey since the Ram rifleman began League competition early last November.

Notwithstanding the fact that Captain McFarland, local rifle instructor, had been called away at the last minute, the Rams handled themselves smoothly.

Final results of all member teams of the Golden Gate Bridge League will be published as soon as complete tabulations have been made by League officials.

Scores of individual participants of the match were:

SFJC—G. Humphrey, 188; C. North, 180; I. Coney, 185; E. Box, 176, and M. Pierce, 174.

159th Infantry—R. Walters, 174; A. Binder, 180; A. Schumacher, 173; G. Steiger, 172, and J. Covety, 170.

Forum Club To Discuss Freedom Of Press Friday

Having as its theme the freedom of the press, the first meeting of the Forum Club this semester will be held Friday, February 16, at 8 p.m. Adviser Fred Bracher's home, at 2611 Larkin, will be the scene of four addresses by club members on the subject dear to every newspaper.

Miriam Frazier, Helene DuBois, Sol Lipsitz, and Ray Valdez will speak.

Dorothy Mercer, also a Forum sponsor, requested that all students interested in the Forum magazine or in the subject to be discussed to attend the meeting.

As this will open 1940's Forum activities the meeting is a particularly important one.

THE GUARDSMAN SPORTS

Sink 'Em Team
By Marion MacKillop

Junior Hoopmen Knock Down Jefferson High 42-27; Bow To Alhambra Alumni In Varsity Preliminaries

Bowing to a superior team in every respect, the college jayvee team was handed a 52-37 "slap-in-the-pan" by the rangy Alhambra Alumni of Martinez Friday night in Kezar Pavilion.

Outplayed in all phases of "basketballery", the Lambs were rendered helpless by the skillful under-the-bucket ability, spectacular shots and one of the most clever ball handlers of jayvee league teams to be seen in the pavilion this season.

Inspired by a 103-16 win over a local club the evening before, the Alumni confidently invaded the court, and more than proved that they still hold claim to the crown.

Seven minutes of the first half and 10 points for the visitors were tallied before the Lambs began to score. Oshida ducked under a towering Alumni to score the first bucket. Martin got one free and Berns accounted for two more. Here the Wilsonmen were stopped cold. Buckets rained from nowhere into the Lamb hoop and at half-time the scoreboard read a sickening 28-16. In the second half the Lambs used a faster break to match the speedy Alumni. Offensive power improved slightly, the defense remained sloppy. The Alumni continually slipped through the hapless guards.

Most outstanding for the Lambs proved to be the versatile Ott Oshida, accounting for 14 of the 37 points, while Haines scored 11. Van Roan of the visitors led scoring honors with 18 points, Shelby and Jensen of Alhambra with 12 and 11 respectively, and Haines of the college with 11. Oshida continually harrassed the Alumni by ducking under the guards' arms to score.

"We were helpless under the basket because of their height," said Captain Ryan, "but we shall put up a better showing in the Marin game tonight," he concluded.

Out for revenge after being on the receiving end of a 20 point shellacking from Menlo, the College Lambs proved their ability by defeating Jefferson High of Daly City 46-27 on their own court.

Ironically, it was Jefferson who beat Balboa High of this city, who two weeks ago had drubbed the Lambs by some 20 points.

High point man for the locals was the diminutive Ott Oshida, leading the scoring with an incredible 21 points. Guard Tjovenos was next with nine points, and captain Ryan found the hoop four times for eight. Brisano of Jefferson lead in their scoring with 10 points.

Oshida started the scoring by tanking two points at the whistle. At half time the score read 28 to 9. Meanwhile, Martin of the locals had collected three personals.

The second half was spent on holding down the score and working slow plays. This slowed the game down considerably, but both teams collected 18 points each. Three times during the last half the Jeffmen sneaked through the Lamb defense to tally six points, this happening in the space of two minutes.

"The team must improve," said Tom Wilson, Lamb mentor, "in order to put a good showing in our next game with Alhambra. Our defense is still weak, and passing and shooting is not up to par. In fact, the team was somewhat disappointing." To this, Hugh Ryan added, "Jeff must have been off, but I think we've advanced pretty far, considering that only three of the regulars are back from last season, and the amount of practice being done. At the end of the season we should be somewhere near the top.

"Anyway, when we go to Marin tonight we expect to give them some stiff competition," Ryan concluded.

Baseball Squad Begins Practice At Funston

Seen during the week-end were 45 stalwart men of the college out at Funston Park occupying the baseball diamond on the northwest section of the grounds.

With a small crowd of 45, the students were engaged in the initial baseball practice session of the current semester.

On the pitcher's mound stood three players taking turns at tossing the ball down to the catcher 60 feet away.

"You don't throw the ball like that," commented Ram Coach Jack Gaddy. He borrowed the pellet and took a long wind-up. Then in slow motion, he demonstrated how the ball was to be thrown.

With instruction as described above, Gaddy on the first day out on the Funston grounds got over many pointers to the men who will bat for the Rams this season.

As usual during the opening days of baseball practice, numerous mistakes were made both on the offensive and defensive tactics. But Gaddy, who has a critical eye, missed not a one.

Sweet Satisfied As Trackmen Turn Out

Enrollment for the track and field team has brought a smile to the face of Russ Sweet, Ram mentor.

For, included recently in the list of enrollees for track are a group of athletes who have done well in past track competition.

Announcing that there were men for most positions, Sweet did not fail, however, to say that he'd welcome more men to try out for track.

Following are the names of the athletes who have signed up with Sweet for track: Keith Griswird, Ken Hagen, Kent Jorgensen, Frank Jurich, Jack McMercken, Ed Perry, Bob Paine, Dave Spardier, James Wagstaff, and Don White.

Griswird and Perry, veteran Ram vaulters, have done 12 feet 7 inches and 12 feet 6 inches, respectively. Ken Hagen has cleared 6 feet even in the high jump event, while Don White has come very close to a 50-second quarter-mile run.

More than 30,000,000 gallons of ice cream are consumed annually in the British Isles.

Ram Basketeers Tangle Tonight In Second Marin Encounter; Drop First Contest 24-17

'Tis revenge that "Dutch" Conlan's Ram cagers will be seeking when they tangle with the Marin Junior College hoop artists on the Mariner's court at Kentfield at 8 p.m. this evening.

For on Saturday night last, the lads from across the bay subdued the locals by a count of 24 to 17 at Kezar Pavilion and thereby jumped into a tie for first place in the league standings.

Tonight's battle, non-conference game between the two squads should be a thriller.

Opening for Marin at forwards will be Dave Mariani, only freshman on the first string, and "Dutch" Boysen, capable veteran.

Mariani, former San Rafael High player, who is taking junior college basketball in stride, is the team's leading scorer to date, while Boysen is an excellent ball-handler.

At center is Bob Borcich, all-conference last season, while Ernie Allen, colored flash who was also all-conference last year, will team up with Bob Abbot at the guard spots.

Eddie Cerf, former all-city lad from Lowell High, and Jim Kerwin, St. Mary's transfer, will start at forwards for the Rams with Al Spieller, Ram gridiron star; Clary Richards, tricky ex-Polyite, and Tommy McCarthy, also a graduate of Benny Neff's now bedraggled Lowell cage dynasty ready to spell the starting pair.

Vernon Genesy, who has been turning in one fine performance after another, will hold down the pivot position, while Bob Staynor, a fine tea player from Berkeley High, and George Mosier, late of Mission, will open at guards.

Conlan has capable guard replacements to insert, if necessary, in the persons of Joe Johns, Modesto transfer, and Bob Pfhanl.

Marin will be pointing for its fourth straight win over the locals, the San Francisco teams not having scored a victory over the Mariners since 1938.

Tom Wilson's junior varsity cagers will follow their "big brothers" and Marin and engage the Marin jayvees in a preliminary at 6:45 p.m.

Players making the trip will probably include Ryan, Owen, Oshida, Martin, Grote, Haines, Berns, Tjovanes, Johanneson, Kreutzman, Vasquez, Azarello, Christman, and Baccigalupi.

In the game Saturday night, Carlson's basketeers, through the goal tanking of Bob Borcich, pivot man and Dave Mariani, freshman forward, jumped into an eleven to one lead early in the contest and managed to maintain that lead despite a desperate last minute closing rush by San Francisco.

Rather amusing to the Marin contingent and decidedly griping to the Ram rooters was the fact that the Kentfield eagers, after grabbing that early lead, were content to start in their stalling tactics as early as the middle of the first half.

The halftime score was 15 to 6 in favor of Marin.

As the second half opened, both teams traded buckets. Marin finally forged into a commanding 21 to 15 lead with but three minutes to play.

At this stage of the game players on both squads were forced into numerous fouls which the Marin team put to good advantage.

Poor officiating helped mar the slow contest.

Only bright spot on the Ram side of the ledger was the sterling play of George Mosler, guard, who was rebounding superbly, and, in addition, tossed in six digits to lead the local scoring.

It was but the second game (Santa Rosa was the first) in which the new Ram combination featuring Kerwin, Mosler, and Cerf, competed.

Fisticuffs End Game; Cerf Leads Ram Five In 27-21 Win Over Santa Rosa

Marked by a fisticuffs encounter which threatened to develop into a free for all, San Francisco Junior College's varsity basketball team defeated a supposedly strong Santa Rosa team, 27 to 21, at Kezar Pavilion last Friday night.

With 30 seconds remaining in the game and the locals holding a six point lead, Bill Marshall, Santa Rosa forward, threw a few dozen rights at Ram player Vernon Genesy.

It seems as if the entire Santa Rosa squad, on edge with defeat staring it in the face, was unable to restrain itself and hurriedly entered the fray.

Not to be outdone in the matter of leather-throwing, the San Francisco squad rushed to the aid of Genesy.

Lloyd Leith and Jimmy Underhill, referees, quickly stepped in and stopped the melee, sending both teams to the showers with 30 seconds of playing time remaining.

As far as the game goes, the San Francisco team, fired by the inspired play of guard Bob Staynor, and the injection of new blood in the persons of Eddie Cerf and George Mosier, gave notice early in the contest of its intent to subdue the Sonoma county boys.

The scoring in the first half was even with Santa Rosa leaving the floor at halftime with a 13 to 11 lead. It was fairly evident to all present, however, that the locals were not to be held in check for long.

At the outset of the second half, the Conlanmen, on two quick buckets by Cerf and Richards and a free throw by Richards, jumped into a lead which they never relinquished.

To Bob Staynor, who was rebounding excellently and who was also adding a few points when needed, and to Eddie Cerf, who tossed 11 digits through the hoop, may go a great deal of the credit for the upset victory.

Dean Stresses Advantages Of Activities Program

Stressing the advantages of Associated Students card ownership, Dean Edwin C. Browne expressed the opinion that this college has a broader student activities program than that of any other junior college in the state.

Dean Browne said: "Advantages of the Associated Students card purchase are far greater this year than ever before. In addition to the standard athletic activities, additional provision has been made for an extension of our Guardsman which will now appear twice a week.

"Provision has also been made for material assistance to the Club Advisory Board, which, because of its representation of various active groups of student organizations, was deemed entitled to greater support in order that many more students shall receive benefits from their cards.

"Literary interest on the part of the students as expressed through the Forum, a semi-annual publication, has been given added encouragement by the Finance Committee budget for this semester.

"The dances given on both sides of the bay, and various Associated Women Students functions as well as the different Associated Men Students functions offer a splendid opportunity for broad social development and contacts.

"The Associated Students spends upwards of $12,000 each semester to provide outlets for the different interests of the various students."

Rental and equipment is provided in such activities as swimming, bowling, radio production, tennis, archery and baseball. Other activities receiving support include Soph Week, the rifle team, the golf team, and the rally committee.

When questioned as to the possibility of a further reduction of the price of the cards in the event of a larger enrollment, Dean Browne was unencouraging.

The expansion of college activities, he said, calls for more money and it would be impossible to say what size enrollment would be neded to offset this.

Varsity Hies To Sacramento Friday To Meet Panthers

With the cogs in his cage machine expected to work a bit smoother now that they have had a few games under their belt, Coach "Dutch" Conlan will hie his local basketeers off to Sacramento this Friday night to do battle with the Capital City boys.

Helping to bring up the rear in the conference standings, the Panthers are expected to be easy prey for the Ram basketballers.

The entire squad including Eddie Cerf, Tommy McCarthy, Clary Richards, Jim Kerwin, Vernon Genesy, Joe Johns, George Mosler, Bob Pfhanl, Al Spieller, Bill Dudman, and Bob Staynor, will probably make the trip.

The Guardsman

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Vol. X FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1940 No. 4

Bulletin

See box at bottom of page one for last minute news concerning:

• NEW WOMEN'S SECRETARY

• PALACE HOTEL COLLEGE NIGHT

Gross
While Thinking

FOREIGN

SOVIET RUSSIA claims to have made an appreciable dent in the Finnish Mannerheim line. It is of course impossible to know whether they are telling the truth or not.

According to the best theories of warfare, however, there should be some truth to the Russian statement.

Brave and courageous as the Finns undoubtedly are, it stands to reason that, faced with overwhelming odds there is bound to be a turn in the tide.

Although the Red army may in time conquer Finland because of her numerical superiority, don't count the Finns out as yet, for it will be a long and arduous battle.

* * *

DON'T be too surprised if you hear of some sabotage work in American airplane factories very soon.

There is hardly any doubt that the Nazis are sending spies into the United States from Mexico to hinder production on any machinery under construction for the Allies.

We recall that the last war revealed some very interesting things concerning German spies in Mexico, and their attempts to stir up a controversy with Great Britain and incite Mexican hatred against the United States.

There is an old saying that "There is nothing new under the sun." No doubt the Allies and the Germans adhere to that saying for their methods of trying to get America in this war are no different than those they used in 1914.

* * *

NATIONAL

BIGGEST news this week was that the Senate approved a loan of twenty million dollars to aid Finland and China.

Twenty millions is quite a sum to just nonchalantly toss to a friendly nation, but there is no denying that both countries are in dire need of money.

There will undoubtedly be violent repercussions from Russia and Japan over the loan as it will mean the prolonging of the Russo-Finnish, Sino-Japanese conflicts, with a possibility of defeat at the hands of the Finns and Chinese.

Considering Japan's past and present attitude toward the United States, and the undermining activities of the Communists in this country, the lending of money to honest and friendly nations who have been wantonly attacked seems entirely in order.

* * *

THE disgusting, rude and raucous manner in which the American Youth Congress conducted itself last week should serve as an object lesson on how not to act.

However right they may be (and we are not saying that they are) it is obvious that they have lost a great deal of the good will of the majority of the people by conducting themselves in such a disorderly manner.

It doesn't take any brains or ability to stand around and boo, hiss, or shout down someone with opposite views.

STATE

THE Assembly gave the smokers of the state a scare Wednesday. Bills designed to raise more than 11 million dollars in new revenue through a tax on cigarettes, cigars, and tobacco were brought before the body.

Luckily enough the Assembly voted down the bill at that time.

Unforunately there was not a quorum present which means that the bill will be discussed again.

Let us hope, however that it will be finally defeated or there will be a great many men and women in the state swearing off cigarettes and at the Assembly.

* * *

CITY

THE Boeing aircraft corporation a few days ago gave notice of intention to move their plant from the present quarters at Seattle to a new base in San Francisco.

Perhaps prosperity has arrived after all. Boeing is an important concern and their move may be followed by others.

* * *

IT LOOKS as if the San Francisco Fair is definitely going to be a success when it opens next May.

There have been plans for water follies similar to the Aquacade of the New York Fair presented by two different concerns. If the directors of the Exposition accept either one of the proposals, it will prove a great drawing card to many persons to return to San Francisco next year.

Baseball
Faculty Wizards Out To Retire Block SF Boys

Humor with a touch of light fantasy, a combination that can't be beaten is the promise made to the Associated Students who will attend the semi-annual baseball game between the Block SF and faculty.

The game, to be played in Galileo field this afternoon from 1 to 2:30, will be the eighth since the opening of the college in the Fall of '35. Three were won by the Block society in the Fall of '36, and the Springs of '38 and '39, two were claimed by the faculty, one in Spring of '36 and one in Fall of '37. The remaining three were claimed by the weather man.

Probable faculty line-up will be as follows:

rf. Graham Sullivan, coordinator of educational management.

cf. Edward E. Sandys, affectionately called "slugger".

lf. Manfred Mueller, an excellent pegger.

3d. Louis Berman, relief pitcher.

ss. Al Agosti, lead-off man and leading batter.

2d. Jack Gaddy, hero of the fall '38 game, tieing the game with his clout over cf.

1st. Dutch Conlan, spectacular is the word.

cf. Wee Lee Eisan, claims he can outhit anyone in the above lineup.

p. Dean Browne, out to blank the Blockmen.

c. "Jo-jo" Amori, always flashy with his No. 24 jersey.

For the Block SF, co-Captain Mel Chicazola announced the lineup to be as follows:

lf. Clark Johnson, new entry into the game, one of the dark "hosses."

cf. Will "Rubber-arm" Blackfield, possible relief pitcher.

rf. Mal Jacobs, heaviest hitter in last game.

sf. George Jones, late of St. Mary's, to try some of Slip's tricks in the ball game.

ss. Bob Owens and Hugh Ryan, to work as a team: Owens for the low ones, Ryan for the high ones.

3d. Elmer Hubacher, from leading student to leading batter.

2d. Ray Berns, steps from arm-swinging to bat-fanning.

1st. Dan Baker, best looking man on the team, in more ways than one.

p. "Slingin' Davie" Johnson — superb!

c. "Chic" Chicazola, catching representative of a "local jewelry store."

Bearded behemoth Ken Pasqualleti will be master of ceremonies and umpire. He is now home unearthing his ancestor's coat of mail. For an added precaution, all pop bottles must be checked at the gate, "Pasq" said.

After much blushing, with "Aw's" and "Shuckses," Chicazola announced that Van Woermer and Rodreguez is the company which he represents.

"The liniment is all gone," said Dean Browne, "so we are using rubbing alcohol or its equivalent. We are so engrossed in the game that some of us have actually left our homes to practice. We are out to win, and we shall—b'gad!"

Top Junior College Grads To Get Chicago U. Awards

As in past years, the School of Business of the University of Chicago plans again this year to award scholarships to several outstanding graduates of junior colleges, according to information received from President A. J. Cloud's office.

The awards will be made on the basis of merit as judged by the committee from the evidence submitted by the various candidates who will be selected by nomination by the deans of the junior colleges at which they completed their first two years of college work.

For several of those best qualified, the award will include full tuition for a year. Half-scholarships will also be available on the same basis.

Students thus nominated must submit information as follows, in order to receive consideration:

1 — Formal application (printed forms will be mailed on request); 2—official transcript of junior college work; 3—a small recent photograph; 4—letters from several teachers who are well acquainted with the student's work; and 5—a brief biographical sketch setting forth the student's plans and aims.

Balboa Park! Campus Ready Next Fall!

The new campus—some months yet from completion, but already in recognizable form and giving promise of the beauty that will make it an outstanding example of educational setting.

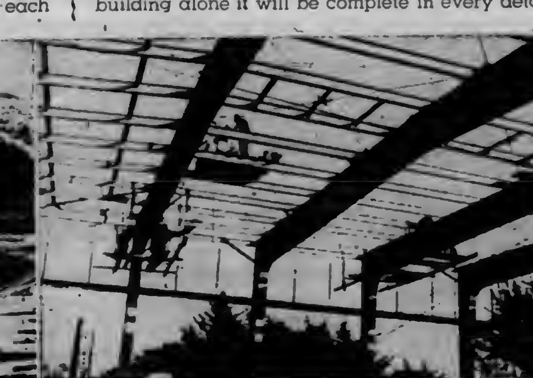
The approach from the main entrance on Phelan Street leads to the Science Building, designed to house the entire college until construction of further class-room buildings takes place. A little more glass in the windows, a dome to house the telescope to be mounted high above the main entrance, and the exterior will be a veritable replica of the artist's conception that all last semester tantalized the eyes of students in the masthead of The Guardsman.

Above the pillars, in letters two feet high, an inscription in stone, "The Truth Shall Make You Free", symbolizing the task of the sciences, to the study of which the building is dedicated.

The building is situated high on a slope with a broadly sweeping driveway connecting it with the street below. From the windows of even the ground floor, the expanse of view is almost unlimited, and on clear days the distant Farallone Islands are easily visible without the slightest aid of the telescope-to-be.

Entering the Science Building through the main doors, the illusion of near completeness is a little weakened. The rooms are only framework as yet, giving a clear view from one end of the building to another. However, an elevator is running, and workmen are busy underfoot, overhead, and all around.

In his office, President Archibald J. Cloud was remarking on the view to an old friend both of his and of the college since its earliest days, Principal William Drew of Mission High. When, a few moments later, the photograher stepped into the Dean's office next door, he found that always-busy Dean Edwin C. Browne had already deserted the little social group in the preceding picture and was hard at work.



Passing through the main building to the back, it is possible to get another and somewhat different view. Now the long single expanse that the front presented has given way to four protruding three-story wings.

This construction was decided upon in order to given as much window space as possible to laboratories in the rear portion of the Science Building. By means of these wings four rooms on each of the three floors, or a total of twelve rooms in all are given three-way natural lighting.

Nearly a million dollars has been expended on this single unit of the campus alone, irrespective of the additional cost of furnishing and laboratory equipment. As complete temporary housing for the entire college, it will be adequate; as a science building alone it will be complete in every detail.

Down the slope from the Science Building are the gyms, the women's gyms on the left and the men's on the right. On the face of the slope, plans call for the erection of two class room buildings and a stadium.

The women's gym, like the Science Building, has a completed appearance, but to date the men's gym is mostly girders as pictured to the right. Of a special construction designed to make unnecessary the use of pillars, it will allow an unbroken floor space large enough to permit the laying out of three complete basketball courts.

In the basement of this gym will be located the central heating plant from which will be piped heat to all the building units that are or will be situated on the 54 acres. Of the buildings scheduled for eventual construction, in addition to two class-room buildings, stadium and Administration Building already mentioned, are an auditorium, Art and Music buildings, a Library and a Student's Union.

A fitting setting for the motto "Ut Adolescentes Vitae Educantur", that youth may be educated to life.

Gold Room 'Til Midnight
Social Committee Throws Jig For Incoming Frosh At Fairmont Tonight; Murphy Makes Music

Tonight, the college will honor members of the Low Freshman class at a semi-formal dance to be held in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel, announced Muriel Grenelle, chairman of the social committee.

Dancing will be from 9 to 12 to the music of Eddie Murphy and his orchestra. Murphy, a former student of the college, has played for several other college affairs and has been playing an engagement at Rio Del Mar. He will start broadcasting on a coast-wide hook-up the first of March.

The dance is the first social affair sponsored by the social committee this semester, and officially closes Freshman Orientation week.

"Admission to the dance will be one Associated Student card per couple," said Miss Grenelle.

"We are going to try an experiment at this first dance by not having any dance programs," revealed Miss Grenelle. "In the past, it has been the custom to give the student a dance program at the door, but it is really an unnecessary expense and we want to see the student's reaction."

All students are advised not to lend their student cards to any outsiders. An identification committee will be at the door, and any person presenting a borrowed card will have the card confiscated and the owner penalized. Confiscation of the card will mean that the offender will automatically be deprived of all Associated Student privileges for the remainder of the semester. This includes all future social affairs and athletic contests, Al Williams, Associated Students president, warned.

Members of the faculty who will attend the affair are President and Mrs. A. J. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Mohr, Margaret Dougherty, and Mary Jane Learnard.

Miss Grenelle said that new members of the social committee are the class presidents: Art Pomares, high sophomore; Daniel McHugh, low sophomore; Leo Leggett, high freshman, and Robert Klitzker, low freshman. The two members chosen by interview from the student body at large are Henry Seaerstedt and George Tierney.

Pomares Wins Presidency In High Soph Elections; All Classes Vote Heavily

Class elections for the spring semester were held following the freshman-welcome rally last Monday.

Heaviest voting took place in the High Sophomore and Low Freshman classes, resulting in victory for Sophomore Art Pomares and Freshman Robert Klitzker.

The complete returns by classes are as follows:

High Sophomore class—President, Art Pomares; vice-president, Muriel Nolan; secretary, Marge Meader.

Low Sophomore class — President, Daniel McHugh; vice-president, Dolores Dixon; secretary, Muriel Dodsworth.

High Freshman class — President, Leo Leggett; vice-president, Anita Welt; secretary, Barbara Brown.

Low Freshman class — President, Robert Klitzker; vice-president, Mary Bartholomew; secretary, Marin Malone.

Presidents of the various classes will serve as members of the social committee and the welfare committee during the coming semester.

Club Advisory Board Votes To Accept Appropriation

Club Advisory Board activities got under way last Tuesday, under the executive leadership of Aiden Thorogood. When roll call was taken it was found that most of the organizations of the college were represented.

"It is imperative," said Thorogood, "that all representatives be present at all meetings."

Business discussion was opened by President Thorogood when he reviewed the activities of the Club Advisory Board.

Lyba Macky, vice-president, was called on to explain the systems of petitions. All clubs will have to sign petitions, and all new clubs must make out a special petition. All petitions should be placed in the CAB box in Thomas O'Neill's office at Powell Street by March 12.

Burton Wines, secretary, announced that a new system of notification would go into effect immediately. A committee of five will be appointed to notify all representatives by telephone as to where and when meetings are to be held.

A resolution was introduced by Thorogood which came from the student Executive Council, which was accepted unanimously. It stated that the use of the money allotted to the board had to be approved by the council first. The several clubs are to be divided into five cabinets, each to have $100 apiece. The cabinets were accepted as proposed.

A second resolution was introduced concerning the publishing of a club bulletin. The expenses are not to exceed $50. It was accepted, and Bob Schlesinger was appointed editor.

A motion, introduced by Louis Goldstone, for the establishment of a college committee to handle the Army and Navy Club's Finnish Relief Fund, was voted down.

College A Cappella Choir Largest In College Annals

Showing a growing interest in music on the part of students of the college, the largest number of students ever to try out for the college A Cappella Choir was auditioned by Flossita Badger, music instructor, during the past two weeks.

Miss Badger was enthusiastic over the quality as well as the quantity of the applicants.

"On the whole," she said, "this semester's material is quite superior to that of previous semesters."

Among those selected to become members of the regular choir were Walter Alpers, Ruth Berriesa, William Catran, Helen Culber, Alice De Quine, Dolores Dion, Muriel Grenelle, Frances Hastings, Lars Jacobsen, Barbara Lutzen, Jack Meyers, Harry Nicholson, Betty Rost, Henry Suerstedt, Daisy Tamaraz, Leon Terry, Owen Terry, Edmond Ticcoulat, and Akimasa Uyeda.

New alternates for the choir include Jeanne Arnold, Georgianna Bockriss, Grace Brenner, Frances Carnal, Helga Frederickson, and Clarice Giannini.

The choir has received bids for return engagements before the Kiwanis and the Lion's Club, and will probably perform before other local lodges, according to Miss Badger.

Last Minute Campus News

NEW AWS SECRETARY APPOINTED

Jean Chesley has been appointed to the office of secretary of the Associated Women Students to replace Dorothy Mills, who has left school. Miss Chesley ran against Jean Arnold for vice-president of the AWS in the Associated Student elections held in January.

* * * *

PALACE HOTEL TO BE SCENE OF COLLEGE NIGHT

A joint San Francisco-San Mateo Junior College Night will be held on Friday, March 8, in the Rose Room Bowl of the Palace Hotel. Price will be 2.07 per couple, including cover charge, coca colas and tax.

Dancing will be to Ray Noble and his orchestra.

The Guardsman

Published Twice Weekly by the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College.

Vol. X FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1940 No. 4

LEONARD GROSS .... EDITOR
Daniel Rosenblat .... Associate Editor
Louis Goldstone .... Associate Editor

Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse
Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Borrie Hyman .... News Editor
Bill Albertson .... Sports Editor
Bill Hall .... Feature Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli .... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch .... Advertising Manager
Marion MacKillop .... Staff Artist
Joe Kurpieski .... Photographer

REPORTERS
Willard Akers, Nora Baker, Ray Berns, Eva Burkey, Patricia Cantwell, Elizabeth Cook, Betty Deming, Janet Fellows, Harry Frister, John Hansen, Doris Hermann, Kei Hori, Mary Frances Malone, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF—Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

1939 Member 1940
Associated Collegiate Press

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or college oponion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Editor Questions United States Right To Condemn Russia For "Acts Of Aggression" On Finland

THERE has been a great deal of talk running rampant recently concerning the United States severing relations with Soviet Russia because of her attack upon Finland.

Although it is not the purpose herein to either attack or defend Russia's recent actions, it appears rather ridiculous to cut off diplomatic relations with the U.S.S.R.

In the first place nothing would be accomplished by so doing. If severing relations would mean the end of the Finnish campaign, it would be a different matter, but it doesn't. The Russians would only shrug their shoulder and laugh, or completely ignore the matter.

There is also the question as to whether the United States has the right to discriminate against Russia alone in the matter of diplomatic relations.

We don't recall any hue and cry raised about severing relations with Italy when Italy marched into Abyssinia. The Ethiopians couldn't fight back but the Finns can. When judged purely from the point of view of which constitutes the greatest aggression, the title easily goes to the Italians. Yet no one suggested we cease to recognize the existence of Fascist Italy.

There was also the matter of Japan's invasion of Manchuria and later on, China. The majority of the Chinese who were attacked and bombed couldn't fight back either. Did anyone suggest we turn thumbs down on Japan?

It is hypocritical to demand Russia's expulsion from the officially recognized nations of the world unless Italy and Japan are treated in a like manner.

This business of cursing Russia to the high heavens because it is a nation with a Communistic government is so much bologna. The Communists are no worse than the Fascists or the Socialists. They have just had a little more publicity, and it is childish to rant and rage at the Russians only because they are Communists.

These days, the simplest and most overworked method of venting disapproval is to brand the subject a "red".

No doubt there will be persons reading this article who will say just that concerning the author.

It's an easy way out when you can't think of any other way of expressing your disapproval.

The majority of Americans are fully aware of the fact that the present system of government in the United States, while not perfect is far better than any "ism" thought of to date.

When judging these "isms", however, it would be wise to remember that all are equally at fault. It is futile to attempt to chastise one and ignore the others.

Crowded Conditions In Extension Building Call For Cooperation And Consideration On Student's Part

THE college has approximately 2600 students enrolled this semester.

This means more people in the same cramped space which in recent years has held only 1800 comfortably.

This increase in student population has become particularly noticeable at the Powell Street location, where there is a continuous mass of students surging to and from classes.

The inconvenience in getting in and out of the Powell building is painfully apparent.

It need not be as bad as it is.

Student cooperation with each other and consideration for each other could do much toward alleviating a decidedly aggravating situation.

Next time you run into a friend on the front steps, why not move over to the side and let others go up and down?

And if you have a rendezvous with someone at the faculty table, how about changing it to the mezzanine floor so that the congestion on the first floor will be avoided.

It's easy enough to stop a minute and think before jamming up the stairs or doorways so that everyone is pushed and shoved and gets nowhere.

Why not try it? There is nothing to lose and quite a bit to gain.

Editor's note: The subject of the above editorial was suggested by student leader Hal Hoffman. If more students would pause a moment and think of ways to help the college, there would be no need for such editorials as these.

Fellows

. . . The Spectator

FROM the latest shipment of popular records down at Sherman & Clay's we have picked out the discs we liked best.

Billie Holiday and Her Orchestra

On the back of the well-known record Fine and Mellow is a satiracle dirge—Strange Fruit. This piece tells the grotesque story of dark bodies hanging from southern trees—strange fruit! Miss Holiday's mournful voice gives just the right touch to the sad fate of southern darkies. It has a plaintive quality that slides down underneath the skin and up the spinal column. Strange Fruit is banned in the South and on the radio—it evidently strikes too close to home. The piano accompaniment is by Sonny White, well known for outstanding keyboard accomplishments. The quality of Miss Holiday's orchestra has the necessary depth and mellow tone for such an orchestration.

• • •

Abe Lyman

Princess Poo-Poo-Ly Has Plenty of Pa-Pa-Ya (and she loves to give it away) is the latest Hawaiian number out. The lyrics are extremely suggestive, the melody is pleasantly lively, the vocalization by Rose Blane is vivid, and the orchestral arrangement swings along at a rapid tempo. Princess Poo-Poo-Ly etc., like Fine and Mellow, Strange Fruit, and The Man That Comes Around belongs in the class of novelty numbers and is not very suitable for dancing. Unless Princess Poo-Poo-Ly Has Plenty of Pa-Pa-Ya (and she loves to give it away) is banned from radio for some reason or another this columnist is willing to wager that it will become exceedingly popular.

• • •

Glen Miller and Tommy Dorsey

Among Glen Miller's latest recordings is The Sky Fell Down, with Ray Eberle doing the vocal. Perhaps we're prejudiced, because we like Glen Miller's and Tommy Dorsey's style best, but we liked this disc especially. Ray Eberle seems to improve with every record and now he is almost as good as Jack Leanord, and now and then he even surpasses Leanord.

Besides similarity of male vocalists Miller and Dorsey have similar styles of orchestration. Miller's orchestration is superior to Dorsey's however. The quality is smoother because the melody is played an octave apart with the harmony between. Dorsey's arrangement is far better than Miller's, however, which just about evens the score. Both orchestras have recorded Indian Summer and in this record it is easy to see the difference, as well as the similarity between them.

• • •

Dorsay's And So A Lover Is Blue is excellent. Leanord's vocalization in this disc is at its best. Leanord has the rare ability to get up on top of the notes and at the same time retain a depth that adds just the right finish to his lilting quality. By this mixture of lightness and weight Leanord manages to put into his lyrics more expression than do most popular vocalists. It is to this height that Ray Eberle is rapidly climbing and he is daily becoming stronger competition to Leanord.

Abraham Lincoln was noted for his honesty, but he did tell a lie once. At Gettysburg he said, "the world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here." This address will long be regarded as one of the masterpieces of American historical literature and the world can never fully forget it.

Batter Up

By Marion MacKillop

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN

Can't Stand Squeeze
Collapsible Pete
Wants More F's

Editor's note: The Rams Horn is the coulmn in The Guardsman reserved exclusively for the stndents of the college. It is your column. If you have any suggestions, complaints, or criticisms of anything, here is the place to express them.

Deadline for all letters is Monday afternoon at 2:30. Letters may be left in the Guardsman box at either Powell Street or Galileo. All contribntions must be signed by the writer. If, however, the writer wishes his name kept secret, he should indicate as much and the name will not be used.

Editor, The Guardsman:

An ugly rumor has reached my ears recently that the Municipal Railway has taken several cars off the F (Stockton Street) line. This, of course, tends to increase the number of passengers on each car.

Now, I go from Powell Street to Galileo three times a week, making a total of six trips a week (coming and going) and the concentrated crush is getting to be too much for me.

I use ear tickets (2½ cents a ride) so I don't mind the standing up so much, but the beating I take from people worming their way through the car has got me in such a state of mind that I instinctively duck whenever I glimpse an umbrella, even if it just passes me on the street.

If a little oil were poured into a car it would remind me of a can of sardines (some of the characters that get on seem to be pretty well oiled already). The other day when I got off I found a ball of yarn in my pocket that a little old lady had put there thinking it was her knitting bag.

It is physically impossible for me to take this beating much longer, I'm slowly being pounded to a pulp (I'm already on my third bottle of Sloan's liniment this semester), so you can readily see that something must be done. Jeepers Creepers, Bud, I'm getting to look more of a wreck than the street car conductors.

Sincerely,
Collapsible Pete

• DINGING THE GONG OF DOWNING STREET

Editor, The Guardsman:

"A Canadian" objects to offensive statements relative to the integrity of His Majesty's Government. That paradox, the gilt demo-oligarchy, Great Britain has integrity? Well, I'll let you decide. Remember integrity means, according to the old-fashioned definition, moral soundness or just plain honesty.

In the past His Majesty's Government has not been exactly honest, especially in furthering her economic weal. Such things as the conquest and exploitation of India, the fine treatment accorded its American colony, and other long dead acts of integrity were sonnd morally and perfectly honest. We won't mention the cause of the war of 1812. The small affair with China in which His Majesty's Government opened the doors of China for her goods, one of which—and the most important to her at the time in monetary valne—was opinm, was a matter of small consequence and lofty integrity.

All this might be pardoned if there had been a change in His Majesty's Government. But, in the last world war it simply and sweetly promised to four different countries practically the same slice of territory in return for entry into the war on the side of the Allies. Of course this may be excused as a lack of co-ordination in the time of war. Integrity in this case is not in the fact that none of the countries got the promised land, and none did, but that His Majesty's Government was willing to promise anything from soap chips to another people's land, and did.

Of course one conld not mention the non-payment of the war debt, for there are some who hold that we gave the money to His Majesty's Government.

There are people who hold that treaties and friendship of nations are things sacred. His Majesty's Government seems to think so too—to this extent: that when Germany declared war upon Poland, Great Britain Inc., went to the aid of France to protect and maintain the right and might of His Majesty's Government. That's funny, I thought they had an agreement with Poland? Oh well, it was only a small country anyway.

In my opinion, taking the British record at face value it is hardly better than the German or the Russian, but its integrity is saved by a good job of public relations. Superlative Albion!

Yours truly,
B. A.

Hall

. . . shots at RAMdom

THE only thing our high school class has done since graduation is put on weight. A few of the grads have shown promise at roller-skating in mail order houses, checker playing in the local intellectnal centers, and one fellow is devoting his life to collecting Confuscius sayings. In 2 per cent of the graduates the philoprogenitive quality is beginning to make its appearance. For the most part the alumni are content to express faith in the American family life and the opportunities it offers for education continuance.

So much for the past.

• • •

Harry Frister is a hack-writer who pounds out movie reviews for The Guardsman. Over an eight cent malt in the Coq de Blanc Tavern, Frister showed himself as a babe in the literary bullrushes by saying that Hedy Lamarr was no good, she couldn't act!

Frister, who has been observed many times through phoney eyeslits in wall portraits, writes his reviews and then waits impatiently for Harry Evan's Family Circle. Frister's comment that Miss Lamarr can't act is comparable to moaning because Don Budge can't sing. MGM have been dodos at handling their prize cutie but in due time Hedy will get a good pic. Signed, the Livermore-Hedy Lamarr - Single - Feature - Fan Club.

• • •

Students taking Eng. 1a in the sections where the Century Collegiate Handbook is used should note the letter on page 341. The handbook is designed as a guide for university students and the last model letter in the book is written by a student who applies for a job as a garage mechanic's assistant.

• • •

Occasionally one sees a fellow in a checkered suit, with straw hat, spats and a patent leather haircomb, but in general it can be said that vaudeville is dead. Vaudeville, however, represents a definite period in American humor. Philadelphia is still smarting under the vaudevillian remarks that dubbed the city as "a place to spend a week one Saturday night." Pittsburgh will never forget the gag sequence which found Harry asking Joe where Joe first saw the light of day. Joe wonld then say he was born in Pittsburgh but didn't see the light of day until he moved to Cleveland. Comedians worked in pairs and each was thoroughly familiar with the, "Motorman, do you stop at the Astor? No it's too expensive." "I have an uncle with one eye named Louie. Yeah, what does he call the other eye?" Ad infinitum.

My old man is writing mystery stories. Every night he comes home with a new murder plan. For the last seven weeks I have been acting as some twenty-five different corpses. Yesterday I was locked in the kitchen and the gas was turned on. I had nothing to worry about because my old man glued his face to the window and was all set to rush in as soon as I passed out. The object was to see which way the body would fall. A murder story writer in the house is annoying; he rakes the fire ashes every night; he taps for hollow walls, and someone has to taste his food before he takes it. I'm the apple of his eye. He has me groomed for a position as week-end detective The fellow who solves crimes at country mansions in three days.

Rosenblat

. . . With Malice Toward None

HISTORY has always vouched for a definite racial cousinship between English and Germanic peoples. Beyond douht, there have been occasions when neither party has heen overly proud of the relationship, nor anxious to puhlicize it, bnt hitherto neither has maintained the affrontry to deny it.

But if truth is the first casualty of war, then surely it is equally correct that history is the second. In evidence, regard the activities of the German propaganda machine, hehold Heinrich Himmler, a man whose incomparable record as chief of the Nazi Gestapo has given him the authority and the courage to call history a liar to its very face.

In an editorial in his newspaper, Das Schwarze Corps, Himmler has declared England to be a nation of "white Jews" and English Protestantism a modern version of the ancient Jewish law book. Further, the Nazi racial theorists have "abolished once and for all the school teacher's myth of ancestral Germanic ties between Germany and England. Experience has taught us that Latin peoples, yes, even peoples of distant Japan, are incomparably closer to us in their attitude toward life and their philosophy than our 'Germanic cousins' on the British Isles."

Insofar as Nazi attitude toward life is disregard for its value, and Nazi philosophy is the philosophy of Anschluss, Munich and blitzkreig, then the Italians and Japanese will suffer and the English gain hy this claim of relationship.

Further persual of the Himmler "scoop" brings to light the statement that "Germans honor Shakespeare as they would a German classical poet because the very qualities that they admire in him made him a poor example of an Englishman."

Now, whether or not Shakespeare was a poor example of an Englishman is a trifle academic, but the question of just how Hitler would honor Shakespeare is an intriguing one. "Punch", while treating the subject, suggested a posthumous award of the Iron Cross, 2nd class, for the writing of The Merchant of Venice. Perhaps even a greater honor would be the bestowing of an honorary "pure Aryan" status on Othello the Moor.

Be that as it may, it is to be hoped that the British Ministry of Information will not allow war hysteria to prompt an official agreement that history has calnmniously lied in attributing a common ancestry to Beethoven and Goethe, Shakespeare and Milton.

If they do, the greater the fools they are, but no greater fools than the German government, who by denial of the legality of their ancestors' relationship without being able to satisfactorily disprove its actuality, have voluntarily acknowledged the illegitimacy of their own status.

Dot

. . . inTROODings

AS we sit here with one eye open, and our body as stiff as a board (horseback riding), and try to pound ont a bit of nonsense about stuff, it is with wondering amazement that we figure out how people love to see their names in print.

Of course there is that certain 20 per cent who say one has to have pull with the editor, good standing with the columnist, and be a first cousin to the photographer.

Ah, well, that really isn't the way things stand. The dear ole editor is putting out a paper for the benefit of the entire student body, and by some hook or crook manages to get the most important news items in the paper.

A columnist leads the sad life, because so-called friends become clams when this haunting personality comes around and unless he is on his tiptoes and wide awake, interesting tidbits just never roll out from his typewriter.

"That's it—no a little more to the left please. How about lifting that skirt about a quarter of an inch—hold it." And there goes our cameraman. He is just about the most popular man on any staff when there is a group that just has to have a picture in the paper to send back home to Aunt Hattie or rich Uncle Jeff.

It's only natural for everyone to yearn to see his face staring out from a scramble of letters and printer's ink, and to have his friends call his attention to it. The cameraman would be only too happy to please these ladies and gentlemen, but his first job is to please the editor, and pictures cost money, or didn't you know.

People come to the college for the main purpose of learning something that will aid them later on in life, but they are overjoyed when there is a rally that will excuse them from class. When they get to the rally or assembly and start talking to Mary Jones about last night, or Pete Smith about the basketball game, and not paying any attention to the speaker, well it doesn't look like a college audience.

No, we don't expect you to sit prim and quiet like an old maid knitting, but at least show some courtesy and attention to the person on the stage. Act like college people and not like children in the sixth and seventh grade, who are just learning that siren whistle and have to practice on every speaker.

Hansen

. . . Campus Club Crier

• Alpha Phi Omega . . . Party for pledges on Tuesday, February 20, at 8 o'clock at 3535 Fillmore Street.

Thursday, February 22, at 10 a.m. a special sports event which is to be announced later.

• Army-Navy Club . . . February 19, 1249 Jones, action to be taken on petitions for new members.

• Astronomy Clnb . . . Meetings Monday evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock at Galileo Observatory.

• Beta Phi . . . Pledge nominations to be held by members at Parkside Tennis Club, at 19th Avenue and Taraval Street on Monday, February 19, at 8 o'cock.

• Beta Tan . . . Pedges first meeting with members at 2442 227th Avenue on February 20, at 8 o'cock.

Monday, February 27, at 7:30 o'cock a business meeting at 1133 Oakand Avenue in Piedmont.

• Newman Clnb . . . Monday, February 19, in St. Mar'ys Cathedral.

Sheriff Daniel C. Murphy speech on Catholic Action and the Labor Movement. Entire college invited.

• Phi Alpha Omega . . . Monday, February 19 a business meeting at 1190 Santa Clara Avenue in Alameda.

Wednesday, February 28 from 9 to 12 a pledge dance at Lake Temescal in Berkeley. Invitational.

• Phi Beta Rho . . . Second rush tea which is invitational. To be held Sunday, February 25, from 2 till 5 o'clock at 650 Darien Way.

• Ice Skating Club . . . Friday, February 16 at 3:30 o'clock, at Winterland. Discussion of membership and plans for semester social functions.

• Pi Mn Gamma . . . Business meeting every other Thursday at 450 Sutter Street.

• Rifle and Pistol Club . . . Dance and party at Sigmund Stern Grove, on Wednesday, February 21 at 8 o'clock. Members are inviting guests.

• Tri Epsilon . . . Pledge get-together on Saturday, February 17, at the St. Francis Hotel at 8 o'clock.

Monday, February 19, at 8 o'clock, a business meeting at 1288-4th Avenue. Discussion of acceptance of pledges.

• Peace Society . . . Meeting Thursday, February 15 at 1899 Green Street, take D car. Purpose: Election of officers.

• Nu Epsilon Sigma . . . Tea for new members on Saturday, February 17, at 1280-27th Avenue.

The Guardsman SPORTS

RAMS VS SACRAMENTO

RAMblings

by Ray Berns

EXCERPT FROM A MARIN PRESS RELEASE:

"Saturday night at Kezar the Mariners are going to make the Rams of San Francisco Junior College wonder just why they are in the league at all. The local lads still remember that two years ago the Frisco boys said that Marin was just in the conference for exercise."

We guess you have to hand it to the boys from across the bay in that they did carry out their boast; but, nonetheless, aside from the fact that it's poor English and, in addition, is biased, we just didn't go for that release on general principles.

BERNS GRIPED

Not so very long ago, a notice appeared in a local paper to the effect that the Marin junior varsity had walloped some poor, defenseless outfit, 101 to 38.

Naturally, when Tom Wilson's local Lambs took the floor they were a mite afraid of what was going to happen.

As it turned out, the final score was 52 to 37, and, had the Lambs got over their fear, it is quite possible that they might have won the game.

The point that we are driving at, however, the thing that really griped us is that the Marin second string varsity is the Marin junior varsity. Misrepresentation, that's what it is.

The first six men on the junior varsity team, Bill Rodgers, Lloyd Pederson, Jim Sharp, Jim Vincent, Angelo Colombo, and Harry Bakken, did naught hut leave the floor at the end of the jayvee game, change their uniforms, and trot out with the varsity.

What do we think of Marin? Some stuff!

And, incidentally, now that we're off on the faults of other colleges, and inasmuch as we're in a peevish mood, we have a bone to pick with Santa Rosa.

SANTA ROSANS PICK FIGHT

When the Santa Rosa players, deadlocked at the time for second place, stepped on the floor at Kezar last Friday, they displayed a very superior attitude. At the end of the contest, heaten into the ground by a better team, they started roughing it up plenty.

What do we think of Santa Rosa? Some stuff!

RAMettes

by Lu Antonicelli

What with one thing and another, WAA'ers have finally come to the conclusion that the election of club managers is a matter concerned with the club itself rather than the entire WAA membership. Which means that in the future, starting this week with election of the various nominees, managers will be voted upon by only those enrolled in the particular cluh.

In the past, the custom was to nominate a manager for each of the various sports, post the candidates' pictures along with their names at the voting desk and let the entire WAA enrollment vote for them. This, however, has been replaced with the system noted above.

Which will eliminate, without a doubt, the hit-and-miss method of voting wherein a woman would go to the polls and if she didn't know the person running for election, would invariably base her decision upon the candidate's photogenic quality, or what other people thought of her, rather than her own personal experience. Good idea, we think.

At the present, nominations for managers have been received from the Badminton, Tennis, Baseball and Ice Skating classes; the nominees being, respectively: Betty Teter, Barbara Smith, Emily De Ioung; Jane Frank, Rosamond Patterson; Blanche Noyes, Betty Lypschultz; and Lucille Jacke, Irene Greunebaum.

ELECTION RESULTS

Elections have been going on since February 9 and will continue nntil the 17th. Results, of course, will be announced at the Splash party which will be held at the YWCA pool on February 28.

From the little black book that Lyba Mackie carries around, comes the news that the Physical Education Majors club has elected its spring '40 officers. They are: President, Lyba Mackie; vice-president, Jane Young; secretary, Alma Koopman; and treasurer, Jeanne Arnold.

CLUB MEETINGS PLANNED

The club meetings are planned tentatively for second and fourth Wednesday afternoons, from 4:45 to 5:30 p.m.

This group, composed of all physical education majors, is concentrating now on officiating in baseball, basketball, and other organized team sports, and is making plans to receive helpful talks on the subject from local authorities in the officiating field. An example of this is the work done by various members of the club in officiating at different intramural affairs.

On the club's activity calendar is listed a barbecue later in the semester at Sigmund Stern Grove. The first meeting will be held Wednesday, February 14, at 4:45 in the South Library at Galileo.

After two weeks of practice, the intramural basketball teams will get started on a donble ronnd robin tournament. The pnrpose of the intramnral idea is to foster interclub competitions between the varions organizations of the college, social and independent women's groups. Finals will be played off Tonrney Week if there is a tie or decisive final round.

SIGN UP FOR BASKETBALL

Any organization or group of women physically elegible and interested in basketball may sign up. Games are played Mondays and Wednesdays at 4:15 to 4:45; and after regular basketball class practice on Fridays from 2:30 to 3.

San Mateo promises an early sectional basketball sports day, similar to the one held last semester.

There is a possibility that intramural baseball will be planned if the women continue their interest in sign-ups and come out Saturdays at 10 a.m. to the Yacht Club green, across from the Palace of Fine Arts.

Team sign-ups should be turned in by Monday, February 19, since practice begins this week on February 12.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS POPULAR

It is interesting to note that intramurals in all sports are popular at the Big Ten universities and colleges of the Midwest. There they have intramurals as preliminary games for interclass competitions; this holds especially true in team sports such as hockey, basketball, baseball, and sometimes swimming, tennis, archery, and golf.

College clubs already signed up for the intramural basbetball teams are: Pi Mu Gamma, which will be coached by Ruby Klistoff; Phi Beta Rho, coach, Marjorie Radke; Physical Education majors, coach, Lucille Jacke. Bertha Mae Keller, association adviser, expressed hopes that freshman-sophomore class teams, home economics majors and the new Women's Business club, sorority and independent women's groups will sign up.

FRESHMAN MEN INVITED

Miss Keller also stressed the fact that freshman men are welcome in the coeducational classes, archery, badminton, fencing, golf, riding, and various others.

Come on, you men, give the girls some competition!

AWARD COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Committees have been appointed to investigate the method used by the numerous colleges throughout the nation to find just what system the giving of awards in women's sports is based upon. Also appointed has been a committee to find out if there is not a way to award sweaters prior to blazers to first and second year women that have made only their triangle in a sport. This is one of the many innovations that the new year is bringing about in the Women's Athletic Association.

Sign-ups for tennis doubles elimination tournaments start Saturday morning, February 17 at the Palace of Fine Arts at 11 o'clock. Singles will start within a few weeks.

Baseball

Red Nine Proven In Practice Game With All-Stars

Yesterday at noon the Ram baseball team was to meet a group known as the All-Stars. It was warned that the All-Stars were not to be confused with any other club of the same name. "Any similiarity to teams living is purely not accident and the other club is resting on our laurals," said Leroy P. Dinkwoggen, manager of the team. "Furthermore," he continued, "I think I'll contact Landis on this matter." It seems that annually a group of the major league boys get together for a game, and one of the names used is similar to this club.

Though the results of the game are not known at this writing, Coach John Gaddy hoped to come through with a win. This game was merely a practice game in which Gaddy hoped to find a few more stars for this year's unit and to test the ones he already had.

The number of practices the Ram team had could have been counted on the fingers of one hand. In such few practices it was not easy to tell what kind of material was at hand. The new crop of hopefuls from the high schools, transfers and old team members had yet to he worked into a hall club with plenty of hustle. Gaddy hoped that the All-Star game wonld give the team the required experience.

Last year the team finished fifth in the conference, but many bad breaks kept them from doing better. The highlight of that season was a barnstorming trip to Los Angeles, the team playing games against Compton and Los Angeles junior colleges.

Trackmen Entering PAA; Noted Finn To Run

Serving on a committee this week—for the Pacific Coast Athletic Association—is Russ Sweet, Ram track coach. He is working jointly with other noted track executives on a program of the coming PAA indoor meet to be held in San Francisco soon.

Sweet is interested in the PAA indoor meet because he wants to enter his trackmen in it.

"We hope to have San Francisco entered among the various junior colleges that will perform in the PAA meet," said Sweet.

Should the Rams compete, they will have the distinction of performing on the same program as the noted Finn athlete, Makal, who has just come over from Europe to perform in various exhibitions for the purpose of earning money to aid his country.

Makal is a protege of the famed Paavo Nurmi, who is declared to have been the greatest distance runner of modern times, after making fame for himself in three Olympic Games.

Ski Club Goes To Norden; Practice For Coming Meet

Fast powder snow proved a boon to Alden Smith's college ski club last week-end, when they trekked to Norden for a practice session in preparation for a ski meet sponsored by the National Conference of Junior College Clubs at Cisco.

Included in the week-end snowfest were Bill Windeler, Monroe Gurvitz, Bobb Ogg, and Ray Davis. All novices showed great promise. Only casualty of the trip was a broken ski, incurred by Adviser Smith when he ran into a tree.

Bob Ogg, club president and skier, reversed the sitzmark process by sliding on his face down Beacon Hill, one of the fastest and iciest slopes in the region. Quite an unpleasant experience, he gave the reporter to understand.

Aside from the unpleasant aspects of the week-end, the skiers found the snow well packed and powdery, ideal conditions for practicing or running pure christles. This was especially true of Beacon and Signal hills and the Sugar Bowl, where the club did most of its practice work.

Ogg expressed hope that by March 1 the local club would be ready to participate in a meet with Salinas Junior College at Norden. Reservations for the trip and lodging will be available, he said.

Last night, for a change of scenery, the snow enthusiasts betook themselves to the Oakland Ice Rink for an evening of ice skating BUT—as members of the ski clnb commented—as Confucious say: "Frozen H_2O mnch harder than driven snow."

Ossie Bluge, infielder with the Washington Senators, has a job with the club as long as he cares to remain active in profesional baseball.

Jayvee Team

Pictured here are members of the Ram Jayvee team. Left to right, row one, Charles Martin, Hngh Ryan, manager-captain; Bob Owen, Thomas Tjovenos, and Russell Grote. Row two, Sheldon Glatt, Ott Oshida, Bob Barrett, Robert Obranovich, Don Mavor, and Ray Berns. Row three, Johannassen, James Halle and Lonis Vasques.

Rifle Team-Bridge League Scores Are Reviewed; Large Enrollment Points To Good AMS Fights

It took a fine, well-trained outfit like the Ram rifle and pistol shooters to cop a second place standing in the Golden Gate Bridge League.

Records of the men on the local team are proof to the statement made above. They show how regular certain men were in marksmanship from match to match. The records exemplify the fine training Captain McFarland has given to his rifle team.

Listed below are the results of the scores made by the Rams in Golden Gate League competition during the 1939-1940 season:

Match	Oppon'ts	SFJC
American Trust Co.	872	920
Mission Rifle Club	920	921
Independent Rifle Cluh	847	902
Amer. Legion Post 429	891	899
National Guard—159th	902	923
American Trust Co.	894	941
Independent Rifle Club	900	899
Mission Rifle Cluh	929	890
Amer. Legion Post 429	880	912
National Guard—159th	868	903

The results of the ten matches, listed, tell a story . . . . defeat came during the seventh match when the Independent Rifle team cleaned up and left McFarland's men stranded with a one-point deficit. The Mission Rifle Club, in the following match, beat the Rams badly. It was, however, the only clean cut loss McFarland's men can boast of.

The Ram team garnered an average of 911 points per match.

Captain McFarland believed that the score for ten matches was one of the highest ever made by members of the college. Computations showed that Charles "Chnck" North, team captain, shot the leading individual average—186.32 points per match.

He was followed closely by George Humphrey, who garnered an average of 185.83. Other averages showed that Art Templeton had 184.50; Joe Davy, 184.50; Don Minium (now out of college), 181.16; "Shad" Conley, 180.16; Ernest Box, 178; and Myron Pierce, 177.16.

With the college's largest boxing class r'arin' to go, Joe Amori, boxing instructor, has voiced his opinion why boxing remains to be one of the present day's "development sports."

"It is the aim of the class," announced Amori, "to develop the men of the college so that they may be able to defend themselves in case of an emergency.

"Boxing is not just a sport in which two men get together and slug each other for the fun of it, but one, moreover, in which an individual is able to learn the art of offensive and defensive tactics."

Amori voiced the opinion that because of such a large turnout for boxing, the AMS fights to be held later in the semester should prove to be extraordinary because of the choice of the "cream of the crop."

Boxing instructor since the commencement of the college, Amori has always taken an unusual amount of interest in pugilistic activities.

While attending college, Amori did a considerable amount of work in the field of amateur boxing.

During the past years, there have been many spectacular showings at the AMS fights. Probably the most versatile of all boxers was Maury Schwartz, who in April of '36 defeated Charlie Kremesec in the 175-pound division. In April, '37, "Tip" Hamilton won over Bill Camp by a technical knockout.

Amori considered this fight to be one of the finest he has ever seen.

The most interesting brawl, Amori said, came in the spring of '39 when the 129-pound medal was disputed by two men who claimed the title—Mutchen versus Baca. It is still referred to as the dizziest of contests.

TRACK NOTICE

Men who have track and field ability and who are interested in trying ont for the Ram team have been asked by Coach Russ Sweet to report to him as soon as possible at the Galileo gymnasium.

"I'd like to see a lot of track enthusiasts at the gymnasium (Galileo) office at 12 o'clock for I'm interested in track talent," said Sweet.

He annonnced that there was an opening for three managers as there are no managers here who served on the Ram squad last year.

Anyone who would like to serve as a manager for Sweet is advised to report to the track mentor today.

Tenniser Madamba Subdues Berns In School Singles

Tom Wilson's two standby racqueteers recently fought it out on a gentleman's basis. Bill Madamba and Ray Berns, the parties; the medium—tennis. In the finals Madamba took Berns 6-1, 6-3, 6-3. Berns evidently was not in good shape.

The duties of making a living, of leading yells, writing for newspapers, and organizing rallies took toll. Though Madamba tried it really was no match. Both plan more practice. They are to be teamed in a doubles match, the date of which will be announced at a future time.

Rams To Bowl Gonzaga In Telegraphic Match

Having lost most of his top bowlers by graduation, Joseph A. Amori, college bowling instructor, has to build this semester's team around three returning veterans—Bob Riordan, Jack Schmale, and Lynn Stockwell. Riordan, bowling an average of 185, will head the team.

The first match for the semester will be held in about two weeks. It is to be a telegraphic meet between Gonzaga University, of Spokane, Washington, and the college. As soon as a frame has been completed in Spokane, the results are flashed to San Francisco and the local stndents bowl their corresponding frame.

The team of five men will be chosen from high scoring pin-smashers in the beginning and advanced bowling classes. Students interested in the team should contact Amori as soon as possible.

Amori hopes to secure meets from local athletic clubs and colleges in the near future.

Galbraith Places In National Ice Meet

Murray Galbraith, noted college ice-skater, has won for himself a national championship.

With his brother in Cleveland, Murray copped second place to his kinsman, Sheldon Galbraith, in the national free style exhibit and also in the college's figure event early this month.

With the performance of Galbraith in the nationals, the college was again in the national news. Previous to feats of Murray Galbraith, Helen Crlenkovich rocked the nation with her marvelous diving ability.

Varsity Five Tangles Tonight With Sacramento; First In Series Of Two Tough Games

Conlan and Co. moves into the River City tonight to do battle with the Sacramento five. After losing one and winning one last weekend, the Ram is now on the war path loaded for "bar". Up in the tule belt "ole Sac" the panther awaits the raucous Ram. The opponents boast a closely knit team sparked by two stars in the guard and center position. This outfit is a finely co-ordinated group. Just as the Rams have received replacements at the beginning of the semester, so has Sacramento.

In other words this contest will be the irresistible force meeting the immovable object.

Though defeated by Marin last Saturday night the Rams showed improvement. The addition of former high school men and ineligibles gave the team the necessary strength and reserves. Spieller and Cerf proved the standouts of the recent additions.

It is mid-season in basketball and with six games behind them, at this writing, the Rams have won three and lost three. If the Ram is to rise from the mediocre, now is the time.

Marin is one of the colleges to gather a win over the Sacramento Solons by outplaying them 55 to 47. In that game Bob Borcich was injured in the initial tip-off, but Marin came on to win without its star.

This is the first game in two with Sacramento. This one will be played in Sacramento and the return game on March 1, will be played at Kezar Pavilion.

Lambs Lose Close Game To Marin; Wilson-men Thrown 33-32

Trailing by 10 points at half time, the college Lambs last Tuesday came to within a width of a shadow of tieing one of the most hotly contested basketball games played this season by the Wilsonmen.

Losing by a mere one point, 32 to 33, the team showed great improvement over their last encounter with Marin, played last Saturday at Kezar, when the locals took a 20 point loss.

The one point win is a point of dispute, however. The scorekeeper had disagreed with the number of tallies, but was dubiously cleared as a book mistake.

Mariners took the jump and scored the first bucket, but Oshida scored twice by a beautifully executed play. Using an effective zone defense for the first time, the Lambs checked the Mariners' advance, and neither team made much progress. With the score 15 all, Marin entered Rodgers and Bakken, both some 6 ft. 3 in. from the floor. With successive rebound tip-ins, the Mariners took a 27 to 17 lead.

The second half proved to be more hectic than the first. A double foul was called on Oshida and a Mariner, Oshida making his point. Martin was clipped and made his. Bobby Owen and Johannasen both had a few jumps. After the smoke cleared, and 10 minutes gone with it, the score read 25 to 28. Surging into the lead from here, the Mariners began to stall, but the Lambs, with Martin leading, broke through to score several times. During this tussle, Rodgers collected his third and fourth personal and was ousted from the game. Haines and Ryan both collected free throws.

Four minutes to go and six more points for a tie! The game now reached a point of high tension. Haines put in a free throw, Martin and Tjovenos tallied, and the score was 32 to 33 with three seconds to go and time out—Martin's ball. Craftily, Marin threw the ball high and far toward its own goal. A batted ball and the toot of the timer's horn sounded simultaneously and the game was over.

High point men were, Rodgers and Colombo of the home team with 12 and 11 respectively, and Haines, Martin and Oshida with seven each for the visitors.

Rain flooded roads or poor visibility failed to lower the spirit of the invading Lambs during the trip. They were out for a good fight and fulfilled their expectations. The new zone defense proved more effective than was expected, and Tom Wilson, Lamb mentor, intended to smooth down the rougher edges for the coming games.

The spacious gym was well filled with spectators, and their roars and boos mingled with the shower outside. Some of it even found its way onto the floor of the gym via leaky roof, and more than once a player slipped.

"There are no more games this week or next week in the city. We plan to play the College of Pacific's varsity next Friday," Coach Wilson announced.

Intra-Mural Sports Out; Conlan Seeks Substitute

"Dutch" Conlan, head of the college Physical Education department, announced that an Intra-mural sports program will not be held this semester because of the lack of facilities.

There will be organized, instead, a program in the form of competition. It will be promoted between the various teams in the physical education classes.

Basketball games are being held at the present time, and, when the weather gets better baseball games will take their place on the program of activities.

"We hope that, next semester, grouped together on a central campus with our own facilities, to be able to present to students an Intra-mural program," said Conlan.

Ram Revenge At Marin; Reds Swim To 42-38 Win

Revenge is sweet. The varsity basketballers know.

Playing on a slippery floor because of a leaky roof, the Rams won over the Mariners in a hectic 42 to 38 tussle, last Tuesday night. Predicted as a humdinger, and rightly proving to be so, the game was a series of scores, one after another. Boysen and Sharpe continually took long shots, while the Rams, Ed Cerf and Ernie Messler matched them point for point.

Claiming an early lead, the Mariners began to use the same tactics that allowed their win in their last game. Stalling to the point of boredom, Marin kept thescore to their advantage. The Rams shifted to a zone defense and the game continued on its merry way.

After 8 minutes had passed, Cerf of the locals had collected three goals and had forced Ernie Allen, Marin's all conference guard, to collect two personals. At quarter time, the score was deadlocked, 13-13.

Stayner was hacked hard by Baysen, and the Rams led 14-13. From here, the score was a nip and tuck affair. Sharpe tallied two, Borich two more, while the Rams were not exactly idle—Cerf, Genesy and Mossler tanked more than their share.

Clamping down of defense forced the Mariners to take long shots, but they proved to be good at that too. The half time score read 19-21. Cerf had acounted for eight, Borich of the Kentfield cagers nine.

Matching score for score in the second half, the Mariners began to stall. Time was running a winning game with the Rams, until Kirwan of Marin stole in for two buckets, and the score looked a litle more respectful. With three minutes to go, the Rams had tied the score with 38 all. The din in the spacious gym drowned out the thundering rain outside when Stayner, Ram guard dropped his free throw to put the locals in the lead. Meanwhile, Allen was ousted for personals.

Stayner collected another free one, Mosler and Richardo tallied and the Rams were comfortably winning with 10 seconds to play. Ironically, the Rams applied the Mariners' favorite game of stalling, and the game was won.

The forward wall of the Kentfield players accounted for 34 of their 38 points. Staynor got five for five in free throws for the Rams; Cerf and Mossler accounted for 10 each. Sharpe, Baysen, Borich each had three personals, and Allen was out.

Coach Louis "Dutch" Conlan smiled happily as he watched his almost all-freshmen team give the highly touted and experienced Mariners a beating. "A good game" was his happy reply when asked about the showing.

Tennis did not come from England as is the popular belief. The original game came from France and Italy. It was played on a court shaped like a hour-glass, a cork ball was used, and was hit by the hand.

Upswing

Business Courses Expanded; Lecture Given By Winger

Opportunities in foreign service for both men and women was the keynote of an address to instructor Paul McKelvey's Business Diction class last Tuesday by Elmer Winger, Stanford law student. There is a large but little known field in office work and secretaryships which numbers 400 employees abroad and 4,000 in the United States, including women.

Oral, written, and physical tests are included in the required Civil Service examination. The oral, Winger explained, asks some questions that only God and the examiners can answer; and the physical exam is meticulous enough to discover anything from a wart to flat feet.

Foreign Service is divided into two fields: the Consulate, which promotes trade and commerce, and the diplomatic service.

Winger then went on to trace the road from the bottom of the Civil Service ladder to the top.

This was the second in a series of speeches planned by McKelvey for his Business Diction class. It serves the two-fold purpose of practical observation in speech making, and enlarging the knowledge of the student. The first speech, delivered last Thursday, concerned opportunity for young people on the radio in the fields of office routine, announcing, and script writing.

"Increase of enrollment in the Business Department," announced F. G. Marsh, chairman of the department, "amounts to 16 per cent more than that of the fall semester, and 22 per cent more than the spring semester."

So heavy was the enrollment in Business English alone that two extra sections were created; and Room K at the Holbrook Building, hitherto unoccupied, was added to the accommodations.

Enrollment in the Retail Merchandising course numbers 44 now, 29 of whom are engaged in 15 hours of work a week at local retail stores earning at the rate of 40 cents per hour.

This increased enrollment in the Business Department, according to Marsh, signifies that students are realizing the advantage of the two-year college business course in preference to the usual six months business training school. Improved facilities for placement in apprentice jobs of capable fourth semester students who work for half a day while attending school, also accounts for the rising popularity of the college business course. Often when the student becomes fully qualified, these apprentice jobs develop into positions with a future.

Forum Magazine Sponsor Asks For Literary Works

Inviting contributions from any and all students of the college, Dorothy Mercer, adviser, today outlined the type of work wanted for the current issue of the Forum, college semi-annual magazine publication.

While short stories are the main feature of the magazine, other types of writing are also used. Embryo poets in the college are invited to submit their work to the editors.

Essays on any subject can be used. Those on controversial subjects, whether national, international, or college problems, have been used in the past.

Art students may submit illustrations to Evans Ecke, art instructor, for acceptance. Originality of form as well as conventional designs are wanted.

Short stories may be of any type and any style. They should not be less than 500 words nor more than 1500, said Miss Mercer. Dramatic material such as plays can be used by the Forum, also.

Posture Clinic Will Open At Galileo This Week

Posture Clinic will be open at 2 o'clock Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons in the Restricted Room at Galileo, according to Bertha Keller, instructor. Women in need of exercises to correct postural defects and to improve posture are reminded to check up in the clinic. Women who want to be examined and advised should see Miss Keller at the given time.

War involves in its progress such a train of unforseen and unsupposed circumstances that no human wisdom can calculate the end. It has but one thing certain and that is to increase taxes.—Thomas Paine

Curriculum

120 Major In Civil Service Says Luckmann

Enrollments in the civil service curriculum offered by this college total 120 this semester, according to Lloyd D. Luckmann, instructor in many of these courses.

Of those seeking government positions, Luckmann said, "We wish all students interested in civil service to bear in mind that they have selected a most competitive field. It is not sufficient for them to master civil service technique, but, in addition, they must win in a competition with other aspirants for appointments. Because of the wide variety of preparations, it is a practical impossibility for us to parallel the training given in coaching schools and evening high school civil service courses. In line with the present system of examinations, those schools are a vital part of any candidate's training. Our philosophy emphasizes career rather than opportunism; that is, success in one particular examination."

In the police training department, Luckmann indicated, the situation is different, as there "the training should practically guarantee better prospects."

Referring to future plans for the civil service courses, Luckmann added, "We plan to present Supervisor Jesse Colman and William Henderson, secretary of civil service commissions, during the last two weeks of February to the classes." Both men are vitally interested in the work being done by this college in the line of training students to governmental positions.

In addition to Luckmann, two other instructors who have the most important parts in such training are Louis G. Conlan, coordinator for relations with public civil service commissions, and Harold W. Leuenberger, who has been directing the police training courses.

NYA Will Sponsor Series Of Lectures On Occupations

Lectures, demonstrations, and discussions on personal factors essential in securing and maintaining a job, will be given on Wednesday evenings, from February 14 to March 27, inclusive, at the Youth Center, 1337 Sutter Street. Open primarily to women youth employees of NYA in San Francisco, the program of lectures will be presented by San Francisco State College in collaboration with the National Youth Administration.

Those whose occupational ambitions lie in the direction of office, reception, or sales work, should gain the most benefit from the NYA program of lectures, according to H. G. Prodger, area supervisor of the NYA.

All programs will last from 7:30 to 9 o'clock in the evening. On February 14, Mrs. Bertha Monroe, Associate Professor of Sociology, delivered a lecture on Personal Stocktaking. Alice Spelman, Associate Professor of Home Economics at San Francisco State College, will talk on Everyday Living, on February 21. Personal Appearance will be the subject for Evelyn Mayer, Professor of Art at San Francisco State College, on February 28. On March 6, Mrs. Velda Row, Associate Professor of Physical Education at San Francisco State College, will speak on Posture as an Aid in Developing Poise and Self-Confidence.

How You Say What You Say, is the subject to be discussed by Jessie Casebolt, Assistant Professor of English, who will speak on March 13. Mrs. Blanche Ellsworth, Associate Professor of English, will speak on March 20 about Common Errors in Everyday Speech. On March 27, the final meeting, the subject, Your Interview for the Job, will be handled by Claude Shull, Assistant Professor of English, and of the local college faculty, Mary A. Ward, Dean of Women, and H. G. Prodger, Area Supervisor of the San Francisco National Youth Administration.

"ALMA" — A Short Story

By Pennefield Dunne

I first saw Alma, all four feet nine of her, seated behind a gigantic grand piano, engaged in a violent argument with our hospital training school choir master. Her stringy, ash-blonde hair, cut in a most unfashionable and unbecoming dutch-cut style, flew across her face at intervals as she shook her head angrily whenever the debate reached the white-hot stage. It alternately concealed and revealed her myopic blue eyes, bright with threatening tears. Her too large black rimmed tortoise shell glasses had slipped half way down the bridge of her extremely small pinched nose and were only saved from crashing to the floor by having finally come to rest, nicely, but precariously, against the large, but horribly fascinating wart on her left nostril.

Her almost pencil line thin lips trembled with vexation, and as she opened her small mouth to spit out angry words, her overlapping teeth were displayed in all their appalling repulsiveness. Her normally pallid face had two bright red anger spots of color on either cheek and her long, thin, new-born-chicken-looking neck was suffused with the same hivish, angry looking color. Her frail, bony shoulders were stiff and she held them squarely, throughout, in an attitude of splendid defiance. Her flat chest, that still in spite of her twenty years only hinted at pubescent development, rose and fell in convulsive jerks, but she held her fine, square, firm chin high in unflinching determination. Then, suddenly, it was all over. She leaped to her feet, upsetting the piano bench, and ran rapidly from the auditorium.

A week later I met this same small package of human dynamite in the student nurses' infirmary where we were both laid low with bronchitis. I learned at that time, and it has ever remained true, that only Death will silence Alma completely and forever. She is a true and ardent exponent of the conversational filibuster. I have seen her in a group, once the conversational ball has started rolling, expertly catch it on the first bounce from which point on, she sits and plays with it delightfully in her own vast playground of a mind. Should she detect signs of a good receiver in the group, she deftly tosses the conversation to him then sits forward on the edge of her chair, looking anxious as a heads-up football player, waiting to recover it again on the first verbal fumble. Thus Alma.

One characteristic thing about Alma stands out clearly in my mind. She had given me several unexpurgated works of D. H. Lawrence to read. Following these she gave me a flock of D'Annunzio's works and some of Aldous Huxley. In some strange manner, my Professor of Ethics, a sharp, shrewd, brilliant Jesuit got wind of the affair, sent for Alma and proceeded to lay her low for dishing out questionable literature. Right back at him, fur flying, came Alma, with the retort squelching, "If Anne Vierra can't read these men at her age without getting her morals corrupted all over the place, then, according to me, she's a pretty weak sister!"

She didn't stay in training long, only about six months. The day she left still seems like some strange nightmare. I was sleeping in the daytime, having worked all the night before in the surgery. That afternoon about two o'clock, Alma ran in my room, shook me violently, begged me to get wide awake and listen hard. Out of my coma, I took one good look at her and she was wild-eyed and looked on the verge of blowing her topper sky high.

"Now, listen Anne," she began, "I'm leaving training now. I've got about five minutes to make you understand."

Having been awakened from a sound sleep, I was in no mood to exchange girlish confidences, so I snapped at her,

"I knew you'd get booted, you big goose. You talk too much."

"I know I do, but that has nothing to do with it. I'm leaving of my own free will. I'm going to enter a convent in the East. I'm going to become a nun!"

I don't remember getting out of bed of my own volition, but I remember saying to her, between shrieks of hysterical laughter, from the floor where I lay sprawled all over the place,

"You, a nun, Oh my God, this is too rich! Wait till I pack my bags and I'll enter with you. Let's not forget to take our copies of Lawrence, D'Annunzio, Huxley and all."

I lay back again on the floor and laughed and laughed, until all of a sudden, Alma walked over to me and slapped my face hard! Immediately after slapping me, she was sorry, and began talking,

"Oh, Anne, please forgive me, but I'm so over-wrought. I've prayed day and night over this thing to find out what to do. Anyway, Father ——— says I have a vocation and so does Sister ——— and I know I have!"

"All right, Alma, so they say you have a vocation, and I say you are too emotionally unstable and you haven't got one. I'll give you six months in the convent."

"Your pretty sure of yourself, Anne."

"No, I'm not sure of myself. I'm sure of you. You see, I know you."

About three months later, Alma ran away from the convent, wired home for money, boarded a train in the East and started on her homeward journey. Her first day on the train saw her deep in a conversation with a sailor of the United States Navy. The conversation, in all probability, lasted until they reached Reno, at which place Alma allowed it to be interrupted long enough until they got off the train and were united in Holy Matrimony! Thus Alma, again!

Had she searched the world over, Alma could not have unearthed a man more suited to her needs, nor one who could create such a perfectly balanced relationship between them by being so much her extreme opposite—mentally, emotionally, culturally, and every other way possible. By dint of Alma's perseverence and will for her husband to achieve, he is now an officer in the Navy, he who was surely fated to remain a gob until the advent of Alma.

(AUTHOR'S NOTE: She now manages home, husband, and three high-powered youngsters with much typical first-sergeant bluster, much humor, and much more, hard-headed, practical common-sense!

Washington Flashes Signal; College Flying Begins

Official word has been received from the Civil Aeronautics Authority in Washington that flight training is to begin immediately. Students have been assigned flight schedules and will probably begin flying the first of next week.

There has been some difficulty in the assigning of flight schedules because of the ruling that flights must not last more than one-half an hour, there must be at least two hours between flights and no students is to receive more than one hour of instruction a day. These difficulties have been ironed out by the student and the flight operator, so things should proceed very smoothly from now on, according to Captain George Richards, college flight director.

Sheriff Daniel Murphy Will Address Newman Club

All members of the college have been invited to a special meeting of the Newman Club, at St. Mary's Cathedral, on Monday evening, February 19. Sheriff Daniel C. Murphy, formerly State Senator, and member of Executive Council of American Federation of Labor, will be the speaker of the evening. His subject will be: Catholic Action and the Labor Movement.

This speech will be similar to the recent ones Sheriff Murphy has presented to several organizations in the city and over the radio, said Thomas O'Neill, Newman Club sponsor.

Athletic Rally Scheduled Soon

Plans for the first athletic rally of the semester, tentatively scheduled for Thursday, February 29, are going ahead rapidly, announced Ray Berns, head yell-leader and rally committee chairman.

Although nothing definite has been set as yet, there will, in all probability, be a rally for the San Mateo game on March 8, and at least one more pep rally before the semester is concluded.

Negotiations have been going on with San Mateo whereby the peninsula college will send up some talent and members of the basketball squad who will be present at the local program, and the local rally committee will, in return, pay a visit to San Mateo for one of their rallies.

Appearing on the first rally on February 29, which will be held in honor of the basketball game with Sacramento on Friday, March 1, will be a guest star, a singer, piano player, and probably a comedy act.

Mal Jacobs, Jean Chesley, and Henry Kreutzman have been added to the rally committee, and they will be joined in the near future by an as yet undetermined number of low freshmen.

Berns meanwhile has announced the reappointment of last semester's two assistant yell-leaders, Pete Adylotte, and Bill Menary.

Formulation of a rally committee policy and discussion of the new scheme for the installation of a rally commissioner, will be the main work of the committee this semester, Berns said.

Columbia University psychologists have conducted experiments which prove that gum-chewing typists work harder than the non-chewers.

Publisher's Representative To Address English Classes

On Monday, March 4, at 10 a.m., Barry O'Donnell, a representative of Harper and Brothers, publishers, will address the students of the college on the problems connected with the publishing of magazines and books.

O'Donnell will speak for a 50-minute period which will be divided as follows: 30 to 35 minutes of speaking, followed by 15 to 20 minutes devoted to answering of questions asked by students and faculty.

O'Donnell is making a ten weeks' trip through the West on a speaking tour similar to the one he conducted through the Middle West and the East.

Students are to be given the chance to examine actual manuscripts which show corrections, changes, and revisions made by the editors before publication. They will also see an original copy of the first issue of Harper's Magazine, published in 1850, which contains a contribution by Charles Dickens and other famous writers of that period, and a series of promotion letters, advertising pieces.

Past experience has been that the talks appeal alike to students of Composition, Journalism and Creative Writing. Points covered include how editors select material, how authors get their ideas, amount of work authors have to do before satisfying themselves and the editors, examples of revision done by the editors, merchandising of books and magazines, and direct mail campaigns and publicity material.

"This lecture," Fred Bracher, chairman of the English Department, said, "is for the benefit of the English classes, but anyone who is interested is welcome to attend. The place will be announced later."

NEED A TYPEWRITER? . . .

Rent REMINGTON NOISELESS TYPEWRITERS at same cost as noisy machines . . . All carriage widths; type styles, keyboards . . . Also standards, portables . . . Rental from manufacturer guarantees QUALITY.

509 Market Street Phone: DOuglas 8600

Remington Rand, Inc.

An Outline of Your Courses Makes it Easier to Follow

J. C. STUDENT STORE

518 POWELL

Alpha Gamma Sigma

Honor Society Attends Glendale Convention; Announces Pomona College Scholarship Awards

According to Alice Cooper, Alpha Gamma Sigma adviser, Pomona College will offer 10 advanced standing competitive scholarships for the academic year 1940-41.

Open to candidates from the college are the following awards: First group—One award of $350 and two of $150 each; half the amount of each prize available for the first semester and half for the second.

Second group—Five awards of $150 each, two of which are reserved for candidates nominated by Alpha Gamma Sigma.

These become available to pay tuition on the second semester, provided the performance of the candidate during the first semester is satisfactory.

"In order to be eligible for this scholarship," Miss Cooper warned, "all candidates must file petitions on or before March 1."

Those qualifying, it was revealed, will be charged an admission fee of $3.50 with the Committee on Scholarship. Applicants failing to qualify will be required to pay $5.00—the full cost of the examination.

The examination itself will be held at Claremont, March 9, in Room 10, in Holmes Hall.

No request for postponement will be granted, according to Miss Cooper.

Further information may be obtained from Miss Cooper or directly from Pomona College.

In regard to the April 13 convention of Alpha Gamma Sigma chapters at Glendale, Miss Cooper this week announced that the college will be represented by two delegates and one speaker.

Main feature of the meet, according to the college honor society adviser, will be a six-panel discussion on California labor problems.

Guardsman Sends Letter To Cloud On Parking Space; Results Expected Soon

Acting on the suggestion of Administrator J. Graham Sullivan, The Guardsman this week officially notified President Archibald J. Cloud of the results of the recently compiled poll relative to the parking problem.

It is expected that Cloud will submit the statistics to the committee of the Board of Education which is now considering acquisition of land adjoining the Balboa Park campus for use as a parking lot for the automobiles of students and faculty of the college.

According to the letter, which is now in the hands of Cloud, approximately 300 students would use cars to and from the college if a parking space were available. Many students having access to automobiles are not driving them at the present time because of the inadequacy of such facilities.

The official report was made in the hope that it would prove of value to the board Committee on Physical Properties, which is empowered to investigate and negotiate purchase or transfer of suitable land tracts.

The Guardsman poll, taken during the recent registration, recorded student sentiment as 100 per cent in favor of the project.

Pomona College Announces Prize Drama Contest

Believing that the one-act play is an integral part of drama, affording the student an impressive means of interpreting new ideas and characters, the editors of Criterion, student literary magazine of Pomona College, are offering a nationwide intercollegiate one-act play competition.

The first prize for this contest is $50, given by the former Pomona student and now popular motion picture actor, Robert Taylor.

Any person enrolled in a college, university, junior college, or drama school is eligible to enter this play which may be written either in prose or verse, and may represent any of the various types of drama.

Since the aim of the contest is to encourage manuscripts with high dramatic merits, there is no limit to the number of plays which may be submitted by each individual—providing he meets the requirements of the competition for each entry.

Each play submitted in the contest must be accompanied by an entrance fee of one dollar, and should be postmarked not later than April 15, 1940. Contestants should address their entries to Criterion Editors, Pomona College, Student Union Building, Claremont, California, and inclose a self-addressed stamped card if they wish to be notified upon receipt of their play.

In addition to the first prize of $50 which is being awarded, there are 13 additional prizes. These prizes range in value from $25 to two dollars.

The prizewinning plays will be considered by Robert Taylor for possible adaptation for motion picture scenarios, but the contestants are urged to remember that motion picture or radio adaptability will be considered incidental in the merit of the play at the time of judging.

College Mixer Dance Sets New Record For Success

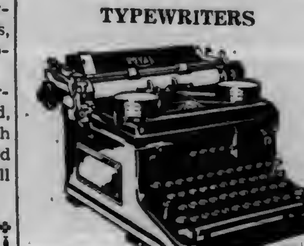
Popularly acclaimed as one of the college's most successful social affairs, the collegiate mixer tea dance was held at the Century Club under the joint sponsorship of the Associated Men and Women Students on Tuesday, February 13.

Highlight of the affair was a Leap Year dance in which women changed places with men in asking for dances.

Both Gloria Miller and Lyle Shultz, AWS and AMS presidents, respectively, expressed their extreme pleasure with the dance and its reception by the students.

Shultz declared, "The enthusiastic attendance of the dance practically insures its becoming a traditional semi-annual affair at the college."

Miss Miller commented that she was especially pleased to see the way in which the new students responded.



"It was also gratifying," she continued, "to see the number of men students evidently enjoying themselves at a tea dance. Now we have proof that such affairs are popular with men as well as women."

Fritz Crisler, Michigan coach, offered to make the last two quarters 12 minutes in length instead of the regulation 15 when his Wolverine eleven thumepd Chicago 85 to 0, but the Chicagoians wouldn't hear of it.

ADVERTISING RATE:

1-50 inches	70c an inch
51-150 inches	60c an inch
151-up inches	50c an inch

GUARANTEED TYPEWRITERS

Closing out stock of Late Model Underwood and Royal Typewriters.

May be purchased on small monthly payments. Also New Portable typewriters at low as $29.75

San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. Hastings
591 Market St. Phone SUtter 4734

THE PAGLIACCI OF THE PIANO
Joe REICHMAN
AND HIS ORCHESTRA
Returning to Peacock Court for his third terrific engagement . . . opening SAT., FEB. 17
Hotel MARK HOPKINS
GEO D. SMITH, GEN MGR

CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVE

Dick Callaghan, SKyline 4171

Dan Rosenblat, WAlnut 3349

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

The Guardsman

SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Vol. X TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1940 No. 5

Bulletin

See box at bottom of page one for last minute news concerning:

- ICE SKATERS ELECT OFFICERS
- WINNERS OF DANCE CONTEST
- SAN MATEO RELATIONS

Gross

While Thinking

FOREIGN

THE expected has finally happened. Soviet Russia's huge war machine has finally broken into the inner Finnish defense.

Military experts throughout the world have been anticipating this for some weeks, so it is really nothing startling.

Unless the Russians bog down or the Finns get some outside aid immediately there is no reason why the Red army should not sweep through Finland.

The Finns will fight them every inch of the way but the cards appear to be stacked in the opposite direction.

We are of the opinion that Sweden is going to regret refusing military aid to the Finns because once Finland is conquered, the other Scandinavian countries might just as well throw in the towel.

* * *

WELL, well, the British and Germans got back on the front page again last week.

British destroyers entered Norwegian waters and drove the German auxiliary ship Altmark ashore, rescuing 300 British prisoners on board the Nazi vessel.

Right about now, the Germans are making the air blue with their language and yelling to the high heavens that international law has been broken. The Norwegians are also hot under the collar.

As far as either country is concerned they might just as well keep quiet because all their injured roars will avail them nothing.

Norway needs England too much to let a minor matter such as this, seriously interfere with the relations between the two countries.

* * *

JAPAN seems to have reached a stalemate in China. Perhaps they are beginning to realize the futility of trying to conquer the Chinese.

There have been persistent rumors of internal rumblings within the Japanese government.

Whether they are true or false is hard to say. There is little doubt however, that the Japanese people are becoming quite fed up with the present situation.

We don't blame them. We'd object too if we had to go on a strict ration basis so that the boys in Japan could continue killing off a few Chinese.

* * *

NATIONAL

A Congressman from Minnesota last week suggested that American warships be used to carry United States mail to Europe. Both the House and the Senate are up in the air over Britain's interference with American shipping, but using battleships as mail carriers is certainly no solution to the problem.

The thought was expressed that the British wouldn't tamper with an American navel vessel, but that is merely guess work. It is more likely that the British would go right ahead as they have in the past few months.

* * *

THERE was a report made in Congress by the same Congressman that in addition to holding American ships in contraband stations for periods ranging from 14 to 28 days, the British are sending their shipping agents around to firms in this country and telling them, "If you want to get your cargoes through without delays, you'd better use English ships."

Oh yes, Great Britain is certainly a nation of great integrity.

* * *

THE Federal government caught up with another Communist a few days ago. Robert Wiener, financial secretary of the American Communist party was found guilty in a Federal court of obtaining a passport fraudulently.

That marks the second high ranking Communist in this country who has been convicted on the same charge. First to get the axe was Earl Browder, general secretary of the party.

We suggest that the Communists in the future, before rising on their soap boxes to condemn and criticize, make sure that the rest of their leaders are not merely small time criminals.

* * *

STATE

THE Dies Committee is heading westward. Martin Dies, leader of the group announced that an investigation of subversive activities in Hollyood would be the next order of business.

We'll bet Shirley Temple is shaking in her boots.

Welcome Home, Murray!

Back to San Francisco and college last Thursday, came Murray Galbraith, local skater who placed second in the National Junior Figure Skating competitions held in Cleveland, Ohio a week ago. Galbraith is shown above as he left the Daylight Limted here.

First Fire Drill Held Thursday At Galileo

Students at Galileo last Thursday afternoon had their classes disturbed by the first fire drill of the semester. According to Fire Chief Frank Carew, the students were a little slow in responding to the signal. The time required to clear the building was two minutes and twenty-five seconds, about fifteen seconds slower than the average time required to vacate the Galileo building.

"New students at the college are usually confused, and sometimes don't recognize the fire signal when they hear it," said Carew. "Since many students come from the East Bay, Marin County, and other parts of the country, they are not familiar with San Francisco's method of conducting fire drills."

Carew also added that the purpose of the drill is to train students to become used to the signal and practice leaving the buildings without any waste of time or sign of panic. The drill was satisfactory and the time taken to vacate the building was better than expected, added Carew.

Fire drills are held about once a month during the college semester. The drills are apt to come at any hour at either Powell Street or Galileo. Chief Carew advises students to leave their rooms as quickly as possible and reach the street via the nearest fire escape when the gong sounds. By doing this, confusion will be avoided in case of an actual fire.

President Cloud Leaves For St. Louis Today

President Archibald J. Cloud is leaving today for St. Louis, Missouri, to attend the annual convention of the National Education Association of School Masters.

Accompanying President Cloud will be Major Joseph P. Nourse, superintendent of schools, and Chief Deputy John M. Brady of the San Francisco schools.

Highlight of the convention will be a debate between Honorable C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education, and Commissioner Studebaker, federal commissioner of education, on the subject, Teaching of Controversial Issues in the Classroom.

This discussion will be heard over a nationwide broadcast of 90 stations, on the Town Hall program, one of the most popular features on the air today.

After leaving the St. Louis Convention, President Cloud will journey to Columbia, Missouri, to be on hand for the annual meeting of the National Association of Junior Colleges. He will deliver an address at this convention, after which he will return to San Francisco on March 7.

Economics Group To Elect Officers

New officers of the Home Economies Association will be elected and activities for this semester planned when the club meets at its first tea next Friday, February 23, at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of adviser Claire Cuneo, 307 Divisadero.

Activities in general will be a round of luncheons, teas, and dinners continuing last semester's series of foreign themes, revealed Miss Cuneo. "Definite arrangements for our first social will be given at our tea this month. Our installation of officers will be held at this social," she said.

Officers to carry on the activities of the HEA will be nominated at Friday's tea. A balloting box will be placed in Room 317 in the Galileo building for the convenience of club members, and final results of the election will be announced the Friday following the nominations.

The HEA is not limited strictly to students taking home economics, as a quota of 20 outside members has been allowed. This quota, says Miss Cuneo, has not yet been filled.

Police Training Course Has Enrollment Record

Quite an enrollment record has been made by the Police Training department of the college. According to Harold W. Leuenberger of that department, every student who finished in this curriculum last year has enrolled again this semester. In addition to these 16 returning students are 27 new students, who are training to be the law of tomorrow.

Leuenberger also announced many changes in the type of training and subjects of the police training course. Among them were the de-emphasis of military drill and the emphasis of gunnery, which is to be required every semester from now on. Also, public speaking is now required. Photography and typing are also required, and are expected to enable the students to get inside jobs when they join the police force.

A Capella Choir To Begin Rehearsals For Next Month

With selection of new regular members completed, the college A Capella Choir is now concentrating on organization and preparation for programs scheduled for next month.

Leaders of the choir for this semester are Robert Dudley, manager; Marie Solomon, assistant manager, and Barbara Smith, secretary. Dudley, a basso, has been a member of the choir for several semesters, while Miss Solomon held the position of assistant manager last semester, also.

Champ

Galbraith Comes Home From Ice Meet In East

By LU ANTONICELLI

With the prospect of final examinations (from which his figure skates gave him brief respite) staring him in the face, Murray Galbraith, recently awarded second place in the National Junior Figure Skating competitions at Cleveland, Ohio, stepped off of the Daylight Limited at Third and Townsend streets Thursday night with a sigh of satisfaction and a "Gosh, it's good to be home!"

Murray's first week at home, however, after an absence of two weeks, will mean study and more study, for be he ice champ, ski champ, or football star, finals wait long for no man.

Galbraith, who registered Monday for his second semester here in the college, was sent as a representative of San Francisco to the Figure Skating Nationals two weeks ago.

After a week of preparation, the final contests (of which there are two divisions: "figures" consisting of a series of figure 'eights', and "free-styling", regular ice-skating exhibitions) found him nine points above the highest scoring contestant in the "figures". He was outscored by a fraction of a point however, in the "free-styling" contest by Bobby Spects of Minnesota who took the title. Galbraith's brother, Sheldon, placed third.

Spects, who is one of the leading "free-stylists" in this country, came from fourth place in the "figures" contest to nose Galbraith out in the "free-styling" competitions, a re-occurence of last year's nationals, in which Spect was victorious also by a small margin.

Galbraith's itinerary included a week's stay in Cleveland and a day in Chicago. Don't say we told you, but he thinks "the girls in Cleveland are far better looking than San Francisco's prized beauties." Tsk! tsk!

Finnish Relief Fund Gets Student Support

Rolling into its second consecutive week, the college Finnish Relief Fund is gathering strength and momentum, according to advices from the Army and Navy Club, initiator of the movement.

At the end of the first ten days, half a dozen chartered clubs were reported to have signified their intention to aid in the campaign by contributing varying sums for the relief of Finland's civilian population.

"The first organization to reply to our invitation," said Lou Goldstone, Army and Navy Club vice-president, "was the Tri-Epsilon, which, through the cooperation of Frank Hospodarsky, pledged a substantial contribution."

Hospodarsky revealed, also, that the George Washington Society, although defunct, possessed funds which might be transferred to the relief drive.

The college Rifle and Pistol Club, too, according to Goldstone, has guaranteed five dollars by March 15, expiration date of the drive.

Holiday Thursday

According to Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, San Francisco has more holidays than any other city in the state, but don't get us wrong—Miss Learnard wasn't complaining. Oh, no! She was just commenting on the fact that the day after tomorrow, Washington's Birthday, to be specific, is a HOLIDAY! She more than commented, however, she warned, that on FRIDAY, classes would be held at the regular hours, as will be the case for any and all Saturday classes. "Of course, there's nothing we can do, if students don't show up for their Friday classes," Miss Learnard said, "but it wouldn't be advisable for them to cut!"

Two Successes

AMS Smoker AWS Tea Pronounced Huge Success By Students; Both Events Hold Capacity Crowds

Four hundred men of the college witnessed an acclaimed finest Men's Smoker ever held by the Associated Men Students, last Thursday evening at the Sorosis Club.

A summary of the comments made at the show's climax implied that it was the "biggest and best—ever."

Holding a seating capacity for 300 students, the club room was almost at an overflow capacity as the program got under way. Men kept streaming constantly into the hall.

They filled all seats and almost every inch of available standing room. That, however, was only the half of it.

The program got under way with the howls, shouts, yells, screams, and bellows of some 350 mouths as men were still coming in.

Dean Edwin C. Browne, making good use of his ability to lead a large group, led group singing. A former yell-leader of the college performed for the group as he gave pep talks and did acrobatic tricks.

Musical guest of honor was Vincent Lopez, nationally-known dance band leader, whose first words were, "Lopez speaking . . ."

The prize event of the night proved to be the famed McGill—the magician.

Only 23 years old, McGill displayed his unusual art of trickery that constantly received thunders of applause. His Confuscian, Arabic, English, and other imitational race tricks of foolery were acclaimed nothing less than sensational.

Sports via the football angle got under way with the introduction of Louis "Dutch" Conlan, who spoke of his experience as referee of the 1940 Rose Bowl game.

A moving picture of the 1936 Stanford-California Big Games was shown while Allen Williams, student president, described the plays.

Comment and more comment in the form of congratulatory tones were given to Lyle Shultz and adviser Joe Amori, who were mainly responsible for the successful show.

Formally introducing women students to this semester's college activities, Gloria Miller, president of the Associated Women Students, opened the AWS rally in the Galileo auditorium on Thursday, February 15.

Miss Miller first presented Jeanne Arnold, AWS vice-president, and Jean Chesley, new AWS secretary-treasurer. Margaret Dougherty, AWS adviser, then welcomed new and old students, urging them to take part in various college activities. Miss Dougherty also presented several women faculty members, including Marion Turner, Bertha Keller, Yvonne Stoupe, Dora Garibaldi, and Flossita Badger.

A musical interlude was provided by Barbara Smith and Priscilla Finley, who sang two duets, accompanied by Marie Solomon.

Thursa Scott, president of the Women's Athletic Association, next outlined this semester's WAA activities. She also explained the athletic award system for the benefit of new students.

Dorothy Mills, former AWS secretary for this semester, returned to college to sing two solos at the rally.

Giving an explanation of the Club Advisory Board, CAB vice-president Lyba Mackie summarized club activities open to women students. Dorothy Trood, prominent woman student, spoke briefly on the Home Economics Association and the opportunities it offers to students at the college. Miss Miller also read a letter from Alice Cooper, adviser of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society.

Miss Badger, music instructor, led the assembly in singing the college fight song and hymn.

College Offers Three Broadcasting Classes

There are now three radio broadcasting classes offered to students interested in the broadcasting and production end of radio work, at the college.

These classes, all under the general heading of speech, are as follows:

Speech 30, The American System of Broadcasting—a three-unit course dealing with the development of the radio industry from its beginning to the present day, the operations of stations and networks, program policies, relations with the Government and the industry's future in a democracy.

Speech 31, Radio Script Writing—a three-unit course consisting of the writing of scripts and the analysis of broadcasts.

Speech 33, Radio Production — a new course offered for the first time this semester. This is a practical course giving the student an opportunity to study the multiple problems facing the radio producer. Three hours a week are spent in lecture periods and two hours in the actual production of programs in the CBS studios.

The three above classes are all under the direction of Marie Weller and are considered indispensable to the student who plans on going into this type of work.

Faculty Assn. Meets in L.A.

Last week-end a meeting of junior college educators was held in Los Angeles. J. Paul Mohr, registrar, and J. Graham Sullivan, coordinator, represented this college as members of the Subcommittee on Curriculum. This work is part of a survey by the State Board of Education, Sullivan said.

Military Science Class Moves To Guard Armory

So that they might better combine their theoretical with their practical training, James S. Hughes' military science classes have moved this semester to the more spacious quarters of the California National Guard Armory through the courtesy of Colonel David P. Hardy, commanding officer of the 250th Coast Artillery.

"We have been assigned a special room at the armory in addition to being allowed the use of military equipment, which includes a disappearing gun, mortars, several 155 mm. guns, and other valuable training equipment," remarked Hughes.

"We are, of course, well pleased with this arrangement, for, at the armory the courses can be presented in a much more satisfactory manner," Hughes added.

Hughes also disclosed that two men in the class, which now numbers 12, will be eligible to take their officer's examinations by the end of this semester.

Council Plans Drive

"Plans for a membership drive for the Junior College Council will start in about two weeks," announced Claude A. Shull, faculty leader of the council, today.

An organization composed of faculty members, students and their parents, the council will begin meetings in March after plans have been completed.

Block, Faculty Game Ends In 7-7 Deadlock

On a dippy slip on the part of two of the college's best men, one of them a leading Pacific Coast coach, the Block SF-Faculty baseball game wound up in a 7 to 7 hitch.

Johns Johnson, of the blockmen, clouted a beauty, high and mighty into right center field, and both fielders went after the horsehide. Suddenly, both men changed their minds and left it to the other to collect the glory of catching the last hit of the game. Consequently, Cunningham, who had been harboring on third base, came traipsing home for the tieing run.

The southeast corner of Galileo field was selected as home plate. Looking more like a masquerade than a baseball game, such characters as Hugh Ryan, who was dressed in a nightgown and soccer suit with a joe-blow mask, and Leetle Boby Owen in an array of soccer, football, skiing, basketball and tennis suits, Mel Chicazola in three hip pads, football masks and shoulder pads, and of course, Joe Amori in his No. 22 jersey stole the show.

The first hit was by Russ Sweet of the faculty, with a hit to short centerfield after Amori struck out. Dave Johnson, with cigar in his mouth, played a blank of a game, pitching to the hapless Chicazola behind the plate. Glenn Noble signed and Alex Spieler, playing a great game, blocked Louis "Dutch to you" Conlan as he ran for third. Spieler will sign up for football again next semester. Incidentally, Dutch was out, and some how the side was retired.

"Jockey" Berns was the first up for the Block boys. He fanned to Russ Sweet, and Theodus was pegged out at first by Owen and Ryan, shortstops. Stan Tobiason was safe on first, "Legs" Leggett singled and Stan was caught on third, and again, somehow, the side was retired.

The first of the longest hits of the game was hit by Captain MacFarlane who hit a long one that hit the left field fence. Astronomist Berman managed a hit after seven successive fouls into the stands, and wiggled into first. Dean Browne swung with all his might—and bunted, placing Berman on second. "Tricky Dick" Allman was next to bat, and created a cyclone as he fanned out. The side was mysterlously retired after that play.

Inning number two came, with Spieler making the second of the long hits with a homer over left field fence. Cunningham drove a long one into centerfield, and tried to take second, when Wee Lee Eisan came from nowhere (as he usually does) to tag him. In the meantime, the score had mounted to a 2 to 2 tie.

Willie Blackfield ran a circle on a muff and miraculously escaped death at the hands of Chicazola, who tried to stop the fleeting Will. This brought a 3 to 2 lead for the faculty. Sweet and Conlan were both struck out by the versatile pitcher Johnson, bringing the blockmen to bat.

Ryan and Owen, shortstops, were first to bat, Ryan going to first and Owen to second. Because of this mix-up, Umpire "George-at-the-book-store" Wills called them out, and a controversy arose, Owen getting the worst end of the deal.

The fourth inning had crept in

(Continued on page 2, column 5)

Last Minute Campus News

HART HEADS ICE SKATE CLUB

At a meeting held Friday afternoon at Winterland Ice Rink, Joe Williams' college ice skate class elected Bill Hart club president; Margaret Meader, vice-president, and Lucille Jacke, secretary.

Tentative plans are for an ice carnival to be held sometime in the future in which members of the class will participate.

TWO COUPLES WIN AT FROSH DANCE

Winners of the elimination contest held at the Low Freshman dance last Friday night were Betty Jane Hansen, and Doug Alexander, Beulah Jackson and George Tierney.

Prize was a complimentary cover charge to the Mark Hopkins hotel for each couple.

NO MORE SAN MATEANS AT DANCES

Unofficial sources disclosed that the present reciprocal dance trade agreement with San Mateo Junior College will be terminated.

Tried for the first time at the dance last Friday, it was believed that conditions were too crowded to permit the exchange of students at the dances of the two institutions.

Further details will be in The Guardsman next Friday.

The Guardsman
Published Twice Weekly by the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College.

Vol. X TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1940 No. 5

LEONARD GROSS .... EDITOR
Daniel Rosenblat .... Associate Editor
Louis Goldstone .... Associate Editor

Editorial Adviser — Jean Nourse
Business Adviser — Edward H. Redford

Borrie Hyman .... News Editor
Bill Albertson .... Sports Editor
Bill Hall .... Feature Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli .... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch .... Advertising Manager
Marion MacKillop .... Staff Artist
Joe Kurpieski .... Photographer

REPORTERS
Willard Akers, Nora Baker, Ray Berns, Eva Burkey, Patricia Cantwell, Elizabeth Cook, Betty Deming, Janet Fellows, Harry Frister, John Hansen, Doris Hermann, Kei Hori, Mary Frances Malone, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF—Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

1939 Member 1940
Associated Collegiate Press

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or college oponion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Frister

. . . The Spectator

AT THE turn of the century, while he was at the peak of his popularity, Rudyard Kipling wrote "The Light That Failed." It was his greatest desire that this should be the criterion for all future love stories. While he failed to achieve this aim, he nevertheless garnered considerable publicity when, at the insistence of his readers, he changed the ending from a sad to a happy one.

Paramount's present production of "The Light That Failed" is the third movie of this book to reach the Paramount's present production of screen. The first two kept Kipling's improvised ending, but in the latest version Director William Wellman refused to compromise with tragedy. Thus the blind artist goes to his death leading the British as they charge the enemy lines.

Ronald Colman, as Dick Heldar, gives one of the finest performances of his career in this picture. Sublimating himself in the role of the artist who goes blind as the result of a knife cut over the eye, Colman enacts his part with unusual finesse, endowing it with a gentleness of action that stamps him a finished actor.

Ida Lupino is the surprise of the film, undergoing a complete metamorphosis from her usual role of a lovely ingenue. In the scene where she becomes hysterical as a result of Colman's incessant nagging, she displays histrionic ability that few suspected she had. She screams and howls and laughs, making Bessie as tawdry and cheap as Kipling did. Her characterization in this film may be compared with Bette Davis' in "Of Human Bondage."

Walter Huston returns to the screen after too long an absence. His Torpenhow lends simple dignity to the film. Dudley Digges, as The Nilghai, and Muriel Angelus, as Maisie, complete the almost all-British cast.

To those who are familiar with the story of the man who is totally in love with a vain and selfish woman, the picture will be nostalgic. To those who don't know how he strove to finish his masterpiece, Melancholia, before the Dark Angel made his eyes less than useless, the film will be a moving drama of a man whose love for a woman (Maisie) made him drive another woman (Bessie) to a horrible revenge. When Bessie obliterates Melancholia the futility of existence makes itself known to all in the audience, and one realizes that life's beauty is in some way countermanded by brutality. The brutality of life was represented by Bessie's revenge; the beauty by the picture she destroyed.

"The Light That Failed" is an example of a picture that cooperation will produce. The director, the scriptwriter, and the actors all harmonize their individual efforts to produce a film, the artistic value of which will far supersede its "take" at the box-office. It is a film that will appeal to those who appreciate the finer things of the cinema. Were Rudyard Kipling alive today he would undoubtedly be pleased to go to this film because it is he to the core; sentimental, brusque, and thoroughly enjoyable.

Goldstone

. . . Of Sound and Fury

MR. HJALMAR C. FRUMP, local liberal light, has a bone to pick. He is of the opinion that the bone is an extremely large and significant one.

It's not a new bone; in fact, Mr. Frump has been gnawing at it for a good long time, yet he is still entranced by its potentialities.

Every Thursday night when he totters home from the fraction meeting, his class-conscious cerebrum all ablaze with visions of the World-To-Be, Mr. Hjalmar C. Frump drags that same bone from a dark recess of his dingy garret and gnaws and picks to his heart's content.

Mr. Frump maintains that the bone embodies social significance, and that he will never cease his picking until he has succeeded in cracking the thing wide open. Being gifted with a flair for witty phraseology, Mr. Frump refers to the bone as Freedom Of The Press.

True to his adopted creed, Mr. Frump plugs for liberality in everything from economics to genetics, and only recently completed an extensive thesis proposing manual labor for women in the shipyards and boiler factories.

But these are relatively minor items, Mr. Hjalmar C. Frump contends. They will be realized when the slumbering masses awake and claim their rightful heritage. Of more concern right now is that same old bone—Freedom Of The Press. And Mr. Frump is determined to have the thing out.

"There is no Freedom Of The Press!" barks Mr. Frump in high dudgeon. "Newspapers?" he gloats, lifting a knowing brow, "Nothing but instruments of bourgeois suppression!"

Mr. Hjalmar C. Frump has just finished reading Gilbert Seldes' "Lords Of The Press" and possesses voluminous notes on the epic, to which he occasionally refers.

"The upper-crust newspaper is a farce," Mr. Frump reveals. "It is notorious for its biased and colored presentation of news. Its editorial policy is dictated by blood-sucking monopolies which buy out greedy publishers with lying advertising."

Mr. Hjalmar C. Frump doesn't read the vicious capitalistic rags. He knows where to look for the truth. He demonstrates the meaning of purity in journalism with exhibits A, B and C, all 270-point streamers clipped from The Daily Toiler, which read: BROWDER FRAMED BY FASCISTS; RED ARMY HURLS BACK FINN INVADERS; STALIN VOTED NO. 1 MAN OF THE YEAR.

"No social significance in the capitalistic press!" growls Mr. Frump. "Must have social significance."

Mr. Hjalmar C. Frump is a simple man at heart; a man of the people.

Somewhat wearied by his endless crusade for liberalism, he looks expectantly forward to the Day when the world will have cast aside the oppressive shackles. Then, Mr. Hjalmar C. Frump will be able to sit back in his cozy little office at the Commissariat of Liquidation and relax.

The "C." stands for Cassius.

Hansen

. . . Club Crier

• Alpha Phi Omega . . . Business meeting tonight at 8 o'clock, at 3535 Fillmore Street.

Thursday, February 22, at 10 a.m. a sports event.

• Astronomy Club . . . Meeting Monday evenings from 7 to 9 o'clock at Galileo Observatory.

• Beta Phi . . . Regular business meeting and discussion of acceptance of pledges, at 8 o'clock, Monday, February 26, at the Parkside Tennis Club at 19th Avenue and Taraval Street.

• Beta Tau . . . Pledge dinner on Tuesday, February 20, at 8 o'clock at the Rex Restaurant at 401 Broderick Street.

Monday, February 27, at 7:30 o'clock, a business meeting at 1133 Oakland Avenue in Piedmont.

• Block SF Society . . . Tuesday, March 5, at Galileo, at 8 o'clock, a business meeting and choosing of committees for semester.

• Newman Club . . . Monday, March 4, at St. Mary's Cathedral, a special business meeting. Speaker to be announced later.

• Phi Alpha Omega . . . Pledge dance to be given at Lake Temescal in Berkeley, on Wednesday, February 28, from 9 to 12 o'clock. Invitational.

• Phi Beta Rho . . . Second rush tea, to be held Sunday, February 25, from 2 to 5 o'clock at 650 Darien Way.

• Ice Skating Club . . . Friday, February 23, at 3:30 o'clock, at Winterland ice skating rink. Semester plans to be arranged.

• Pi Mu Gamma . . . Business meeting with discussion of trips to be taken during semester. Special speaker at regular meeting on Thursday afternoon, February 29, at 450 Sutter Street.

• Rifle and Pistol Club . . . Dance and party at Sigmund Stern Grove, on Wednesday, February 21, at 8 o'clock. Members have privilege of inviting own guests.

• Tri Epsilon . . . Panel discussion on Monday, February 26, at 8 o'clock, at 1288 Fourth Street. Refreshments to be served.

• Nu Epsilon Sigma . . . Dinner party at Venecto's, 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, February 21.

Determined Ram Five Ready To Rout Modesto Tonight

Raring to go after a thrilling victory over Marin, "Dutch" Conlan's local basketeers will invade the thriving little metropolis of Modesto to do battle with the valley men in a conference game tonight.

Resting in fourth place in the league standings at the present, the Rams are determined to improve their position at the expense of the valley hoopsters, while Modesto's Pirates, holding down second place, are equally determined to do some carving on the Ram.

The conference is baffling this year. Marin lost to Modesto, who lost to Santa Rosa, who in turn lost to Menlo whom Marin beat. Then the local men upset the applecart by beating Santa Rosa. In other words, everybody has beaten everybody else in as topsy-turvy a conference as has been seen in a long time.

Making the trip for the Rams will be Cerf, Kerwin, McCarthy, Richards, Spieller, Dudman, Genesy, Johns, Staynor, and Moller.

Cerf, former Indian ace, who has picked up 24 points in the three games he has played will team up with "Red" Kerwin at the forward spots.

Pivot men will be a dependable standby, Vernon Genesy, while Bob Staynor and George Mosler will probably open at the guard positions.

In the conference standings, Modesto has a record of three victories as against one loss, while the Conlanmen have three victories as against three defeats.

Although only a few games remain to be played, it is entirely possible that the Rams, with the proper luck, can slide into a show, or, even a place position in the final standings.

Tom Wilson's junior varsity will once again travel with their "big brothers" and will meet the Modesto jayvees in a preliminary contest.

Modesto Team Set For Encounter

Tonight the Rams play Modesto, who in conference standings has a record of three victories as against one loss, while the Conlanmen have three victories as against three defeats. Story to left.

Alpha Gamma Sigma, College Honor Society, Lists Names Of 115 Students Eligible For Membership

One hundred fifteen college students have been admitted to Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society this semester, according to Alice Cooper, faculty adviser of the society.

Members this semester are as follows: Isaac Abrahams, George Amberg, Gyda Andersen, Clarence Ashman.

Harry Bach, Doris Bauman, Ione Bennett, Edward Boese, Bill Brown, William Buchanan, Violet Burgess.

Mary Camaches, Richard Canham, Jack Canvin, Geneva L. Catlett, Douglas Chapman, Harry Coates, Edward Cohen, Margaret Cooper, Mary Cornell, Mildred Cosmo.

Sylvia Davis, Hing Dear, Emily De Iongh, Marjorie Dwyer, William Eisert, John Farnsworth, Janet Fellows, Sylvia Fisher, Enzo Franceschi, Elmer Freman.

Janette Gellerman, Ernest Goodman, Ernest Grau, Eva Herzberg, Thomas Hohwang, George Holmbol, Lillian Hoyle, Borrie Hyman.

Peter Ida, Eleanore Jacobsen, Hing Jew, John Jigour, Thea Juras, Mildred Kahn, Mildred Key, Alma Koopman, Dorothy Kreider, Milton Krikorian.

Allen Larson, Pauline Lee, Eleanore Leitner.

Frank McClain, Charlotte McCormick, Aileen McCray, Marion MacKillop, Isadore Maloff, Mary Malone, Richard Marklin, Myron Martin, Gloria Miller, John Miskel.

Albert Nicholson, Grace O'Keefe, Norman Olsen, Alice Ottesen, James Paponis, Charles Perscheid, James Pierce, William Pitt, Raymond Quan.

John Richardson, Suzanne Richardson, Patricia Riley, John Riordan, John Risdon, Dorothy Rodenbach, Manuel Rosen, Eleanore Ruffino, Lillian Ryan.

Reino Saari, Ted Saling, Alan Samuel, Pearl Sansom, Lucille Scammon, Annette Schunick, Beatrice Shanklin, Cedric Sheerer, Yoriko Shimasaki, Eugene Short, Jackie Sing, Barbara Smith, Julia Spector, Robert Staynor, Gustav Stehle, George Stewart, Shinoku Sugiyama, June Tanaka, Betty Teter, Earl Thollander, Anne Tomasovich, Shotaro Tsurusha, Maxine Turner.

Audrey Vandor, Troy Van Zandt, Walter Vodden, Rita Weiman, Russell Welch, Jack Westlake, Marie Willson, Eugene Wilmarth, Constance Wong, Avery Woodward, Fumiko Yaki and Frederick Zulch.

Miss Cooper announced that any students whose names are not listed above, should report to her or Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar.

A list of transfer and Gold Seal students will follow.

WAA OK's Nominees; Election This Week

Nominations for Women's Athletic Association sports managers were made last week, and elections will take place this week, according to Bertha Keller, adviser. The WAA Council has approved the following nominations for the various sports managers:

Archery—Barbara Smith and Chiye Nao.

Badminton—Betty Teter and Emily De Iongh.

Basketball—Ruby Klistoff and Virginia Hacker.

Baseball — Betty Lippschultz and Blanche Noyes.

Tennis — Rosamond Patterson and Jane Young.

Riding—Marjorie Radke.

Swimming—Elizabeth Van Emmon, Gladys Young, and Silvia Fisher.

Ice Skating — Lucille Jacke and Irene Gruenebaum.

Rifle—Mary Lee Callow and Rema Corbit.

Fencing—Tedda Kosch and Martha Maghaklan.

Dancing—Victorine Acosta and An-

Luckmann In KGO Panel On Religion and Democracy

On Sunday, February 18, Lloyd Luckmann, president of the Faculty Association, spoke over radio station KGO from 5:30 to 6 p.m. His subject was Religion and Democracy.

Luckmann appeared on the symposium in lieu of President A. J. Cloud, who had originally been invited, but was unable to be present. His address emphasized the brotherhood of man in the realm of democracy, and how democracy and religion counterbalanced each other. "Only in a democracy is religion free, and religion staunchly upholds the democratic principles," Luckmann said on the program.

Arrangements for the panel discussion were completed by Dr. Rudolph I. Coffee, president of the San Francisco Conference of Christians and Jews, and a life-long friend of President Cloud's.

neral Blackman.

Contrary to previous elections, the election of managers this semester will take place in the various groups.

Baseball Team Breaks Even With All-Star Nine; Game Called For Classes

Martin Zernicke, college baseball pitcher, made a name for himself when he conked Dario Lodoganni, the All-Stars third baseman, on the cranium in a practice ball game which saw the locals play a 9 inning tie with the Funston All-Stars last Thursday afternoon at Funston field.

During the fifth inning, everything seemed to be going along smoothly when whack—it happened. Zernicke, formerly of Washington High School, immediately ran up to the plate where the American League player mumbled a few words, rubbed his scalp, then asked Zernicke to "get back to the mound where the pitcher belongs."

Surprised no end, Zernicke finished out the inning in amazement. No harm had been done.

The game marked the first of the year for Coach Gaddy's men.

On a dry field with a warm sun above, the game ran practically even. The All-Stars took a one run lead to start off the third inning but Gaddy's baseballers evened the count, 1 to 1 to complete the inning.

Both scored in the seventh inning. The Ram ballwhackers took the lead in the eighth but were tied in the final stanza. Gaddy had to stop the game at the close of ninth with the score 4 to 4, for the clock read close to 2:30 p.m. and his men had to make their afternoon classes.

The Rams outhit their rivals, seven blows to six. Star batsman for the locals was Al Giovanetti, third baseman. He got a double and a single in two trips to the plate.

Gaddy commented upon the improvement in most positions especially in the outfield which was covered by Weber, Nisi, and Veidt.

Many pitchers were tried in the game, as around three tossers were used for the locals.

Gaddy indicated that there was room for batting improvement as he noted that the Rams had been "suckers" for curves thrown by the enemy pitcher all afternoon.

Block, Faculty Game

(Continued from page 1)

somewhere, and Eisan hit a homer over the fence, Jack Gaddy, who just walked into the field duplicated, and Sweet followed suit. The score was 7 to 3 in favor of the faculty, and it looked like a cinch game. Conlan struck out, and again the blockmen were up.

Speiller led off with a two-sacker, Cunningham made three, Bob Fex tallied, deadlocking the game. Chicazola was next up, but was beautifully blanked by Sweet. Johnson made two, but Sweet fanned Froggie Schneider, retiring the side.

Because of lack of time, the game could not go on, but each team claimed its side could have won had the game continued. But, as Confucius say: Time never wait for no man. Not even men in love. So it was.

Rejuvenated Junior Varsity Scheduled To Take Modesto

It is hoped Modesto Junior College is to be the next victim of the now rapidly improving Lambs. Tonight's game will prove whether the newly adapted standing zone defense will prove as a satisfactory means of protection from future defeat.

Little is known of the Modesto "goof" basketeers, but it is rumored they will give the Lambs a run for their money. At any rate, if rumor is correct, the Marin tussle would have been a strawberry festival.

On the other hand, if the Lambs played the same game they did last Friday, the game should be a humdinger. Coach Wilson's new defense should be enough to slow down the fast moving valley team.

In the coming Stockton game, to be played this coming Friday on the College of Pacific court, it is probable the same system of play will be used.

As announced by Coach Wilson and Hughie Ryan, captain of the college jayvees, the trip will start from Powell at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Except for unforeseen complications, both trips will be made by the following: Captain Hugh Ryan, Pete Aydelotte, Ed Baeigalupi, Ray Berns, Ernie Haines, Hank Kreutzmann, Chuck Martin, Ott Oshida, Bob Owen, Tom Tjovenos, with Coach Wilson.

Pin Smashers In Meet With San Mateo College

Last night the college bowling team journeyed to San Mateo Junior College for the first tournament of the season. Coach Joseph A. Amori selected Jack Schmale, Robert Riordan, and Norman Guinasso as regulars for the team, and chose two others to make up the team yesterday.

Since the semester has just started, Amori is yet unable definitely to form the permanent bowling squad. There are many promising pin-smashers in the bowling classes this semester, and it is difficult for him to make a choice.

A definite schedule has not yet been arranged for the team, but several tentative games are on the way. Within a week or two the squad will compete against Gonzaga in the telegraphic match, the date of which has not yet been set. Plans are under way to meet San Jose State, Modesto Junior College, Redwood City Athletic Club, and several local athletic clubs.

Amori has hopes of a successful season, especially since he has Riordan on the team. Riordan has bowled as high as 250, and frequently hits 200. The other two men, Schmale and Guinasso, are not far behind in scoring.

ADVERTISING RATE:

1-50 inches	70c an inch
51-150 inches	60c an inch
151-up inches	50c an inch

WAA Splash Party Next Wednesday At Y.W.C.A. Pool To Honor Newcomers

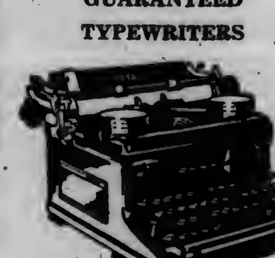
All women of the college are invited to the Women's Athletic Association Splash Party, to be held on February 28, at the Young Women's Christian Association, located at Mason and Sutter Streets, according to Barbara Smith, general chairman. She expressed her hopes that all women who possibly could would come out.

Swimming will take place from 5:45 until 6:45, after which dinner will be served in the cafeteria on the second floor. Tickets are being sold at the Bank for 35c.

Water games will be played, and Mary and Virginia Cornell will put on an exhibition of diving and swimming. Miss Smith added that there would be a short program after dinner, with dancing and miscellaneous numbers.

Each sport will have a separate table, and will boost its own activity.

Purpose of the Splash Party is to introduce WAA to new members and to new women of the college. Miss Smith also mentioned that the new officers and managers would be introduced and installed.



Theme of the Splash Party is nautical, and Miss Smith greets all women with, "Ship Ahoy! Come on out and join the fun!"

Committee chairmen are as follows: hostess, Emily De Iongh; invitations, Rita Weiman; publicity, Betty Teter; decoration, Marjorie Radke; arrangement, Jane Young; entertainment, Priscilla Finley.

Women Invited To Practice Lacrosse On Stanford Field

Women of the college are invited to practice lacrosse on the Stanford hockey field on Saturday mornings at 10:30, with Betty Lee Evans, a member of the All-English Lacrosse Team, as coach. Miss Evans is interested in beginners and is anxious for enthusiastic beginners and others of various experience, according to Alma Koopman, vice-president of the Women's Athletic Association.

GUARANTEED TYPEWRITERS

Closing out stock of Late Model Underwood and Royal Typewriters.

May be purchased on small monthly payments. Also New Portable typewriters at low as $29.75

San Francisco Typewriter Exchange
H. J. Hastings
591 Market St. Phone SUtter 4734

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
The Guardsman
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Vol. X TUESDAY, FEBRURAY 27, 1940 No. 6

See box at bottom of page one for last minute news concerning:
- REGISTRATION RECORD SET
- SCHUNICK LEADS WSS
- INCOMPLETES DEADLINE THURSDAY
- CAULFIELD ON TOWN HALL

Gross

While Thinking

FOREIGN

THE British propagandists are slipping. Not only are they sending many lecturers throughout the nation obviously for the purpose of soliciting American sympathy for the Allied cause, but they are actually becoming ridiculous in their other methods.

One example in mind is the British produced picture, The Lion Has Wings, now being seen throughout the nation.

The picture is so obviously British propaganda that it is actually humorous.

Containing what in our opinion is a lot of rot concerning England's fight on behalf of the world against the monster hordes of Germany, the film never once ceases to extoll the virtues of the English side of the war.

Such an obvious attempt to blind the eyes of the American people is an insult to the intelligence of the nation.

Naturally, there are going to be some who will believe every line and scene in the film, but we hope the majority of moviegoers will realize how biased and one-sided the vehicle is.

It is our opinion that England is in the war only for herself, not in the guise of a champion of the cause of liberty and justice. There is no necessity to delve into the background and the underlying motives of the present European conflict. Suffice to say that although England may be the lesser of two evils, she cannot be considered as a pure white angel of virtue.

As to the German monsters, surely no one can be so simple minded as to believe that the average German is a devil who delights in tearing little children apart.

Hell, no! the Germans are no different than anyone else. They are to be pitied for letting themselves be led by such egomaniacs as Hitler, Goering and Goebbels.

We repeat what we have always attempted to point out: "Don't jump to conclusions in this European mess. Try to look at both sides and choose a happy medium."

Now more than ever before should every intelligent, thinking American be watchful for propaganda from both sides, and attempt to separate the true from the false.

Forum Magazine Will Be Published In May

With the announcement that this semester's issue of Forum magazine will be published sometime in May, Dorothy Mercer, Forum Club sponsor, called for literary contributions from all interested students.

"I would advise prospective authors to submit more than a single contribution," Miss Mercer stated, "since this will allow a greater chance of at least one of the contributions seeing print."

Stories, poems, dramatic works, and essays, as well as any other type of literary effort will be welcome, according to Miss Mercer, who incidentally suggested that contributors keep a carbon copy of their work.

Price of the magazine will be either 10 or 15 cents, approximately the same as in the past, although this issue will probably be printed, Miss Mercer said.

Exposition

Monohan Grants Students Rates To '40 Fair

A season book of 30 admissions to the Golden Gate International Exposition, beginning on May 25, may be offered to junior college students for the price of $3.75, the same price extended to junior and senior high school students, according to reports received from Exposition officials.

This plan for a low-price admission book was unfolded by the general manager of the Exposition, William W. Monohan, at a conference with President A. J. Cloud; the Honorable C. Harold Caulfield, president of the Board of Education; the Honorable William E. Benedict, commissioner of education, and John F. Brady, chief deputy superintendent.

The Board of Education has given its complete approval of the plan and will make it effective so that season books will be accessible in all San Francisco schools.

The Exposition management, realizing that the youth added much to the color and life of the Exposition last year, is desirous of obtaining their attendance in greater numbers this year, hence the low admission price of the season tickets.

Plans are now being perfected to make these tickets available within the college some time before the opening of the Fair.

High Sophs To Meet After Rally; Plan Social Events

Art Pomares, new president of the high sophomore class, has a long list of tentative plans for the ensuing semester. It has been suggested that the class have a dance on board a 150-foot launch out in the bay. The cruise would be five hours and would probably be in the vicinity of Paradise Cove.

Another dance may be given on March 20 for St. Patrick's Day. "This would be a dinner dance, and if the committee is agreeable we will give the dance on the east side of the bay, probably at the Lake Merritt Hotel," Pomares said.

After the rally on February 29, the high sophomore class will have a meeting to appoint committees and make more definite plans. "We're going to blow the roof off the town this semester," said Pomares enthusiastically.

It is also planned to have an interclass track meet. "The high frosh class is all for this idea," said Leo Leggett, president of that class.

Inaugurating an innovation in high sophomore week, Pomares and class are going to have a huge bonfire at the new campus instead of the usual rally at Galileo.

Other tentative plans of the high sophomore class are a picnic at Muir Woods and a swimming party as soon as the weather improves.

"We also have some surprises up our sleeves," continued Pomares, "but we'll keep you all guessing about them until a future issue of The Guardsman when our plans will have become more denite."

College Students Plan Palace Night

Planning the program for the joint college night March 8, are from left to right: Jackie Brinkman and Branson Cooley of San Mateo, Muriel Grenelle and Len Gross of the college, Ed Stevens and Dorothy Meyer of San Mateo, and Mary Frances Malone of the college. (Photo by King.)

At Galileo

Yell-King Leads Athletic Rally Thursday; Conlan Will Talk; Program Group's Policy Released

With Ray Berns, head yell-leader, acting as master of ceremonies, the first athletic rally of the semester will take place in the Galileo Auditorium this Thursday afternoon at 2:20 p.m.

Berns promises to present a varied and diversified program on the rally, which will be held for the purpose of creating spirit for the basketball game with Sacramento at Kezar Pavilion the following night.

Included on the bill of fare will probably be addresses by Coach "Dutch" Conlan, and one or more of the players, which will be supplemented by entertainment.

The yell-leader will present, if possible, a guest star and some local college entertainment.

There will also be, according to the cheer-leader, community singing.

"Last semester we had community singing for the first time, and it turned out to be community confusion. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again, so that's what we're going to do; and if you'll all join in, I'm sure we'll have a swell time," said Berns.

"Inasmuch as this is the first athletic rally of the semester, I would like to see as many of the students in attendance as possible," she added.

The following were added to the rally committee: Val Le Clair, Pat McDonald, Patti Randall, Ann Austin, Lorraine Hemphill, and Audrey Printziow.

The rally schedule for the remainder of the semester is as follows, according to Berns:

Friday, March 8, in honor of the San Mateo game, at which it is expected that the local rally committee will journey to San Mateo for an exchange rally.

The next is a high sophomore rally set for Wednesday, May 22, to create interest in other college sports.

Two more rallies follow, the date as yet undecided: the first a nomination assembly, the second a combination block award and installation assembly.

Submitted to the Executive Council was the policy of the newly formed program committee under the chairmanship of Hal Hoffman.

Following is a copy of the program policy.

The following policies have been formulated by the student program committee relative to student body meetings.

Official student gatherings of the general student body shall be divided into three classifications: 1, Rallies; 2, Programs; 3, Business Meetings.

Section I

All rallies, programs, or business meetings must have the approval of the Executive Council and the registrar.

Section II

Any general student body meeting, the purpose of which is to promote athletic events, shall be called a rally and governed by the rally committee.

Section III

Any general student body meeting, the purpose of which is to carry out the executive business of the student body, shall be called a student body business meeting and shall be governed by the Executive Council.

Section IV

Any general student body meeting which is promoted by a specific group, the purpose of which is to entertain or instruct, shall be called a program and shall be governed by a group approved by the Executive Council.

Section V

If the purpose of any student gatherings involves two or more of the above defined purposes or any other purpose not mentioned herein, individual, individuals, or groups approved by the Executive Council will govern said gatherings.

Section VI

Any conflicts that arise concerning official student gatherings shall be adjusted by the Executive Council.

Respectfully submitted,
Harold Hoffman, chairman;
Frank Hospodarsky,
William Williams.

College Finn Relief Fund Called 'First Scholastic Effort In The Bay Area'

By PATRICIA CANTWELL

Terming it "The first distinctly scholastic effort in the bay region," M. M. Mitchell, San Francisco director of the Finnish Relief Fund, lauded the efforts of students of the college for contributing to the fund.

Mitchell in an exclusive interview to The Guardsman, revealed that the deadline for the campaign is to be extended indefinitely, because of public enthusiasm.

"This is an admirable action on the part of the students of San Francisco Junior College and may well set the criterion for other colleges and universities," Mitchell further commented.

Army and Navy Club drive ends March 15 and is meeting with approval, according to Commander F. Grant Marsh, an adviser of the club.

Revealing the extent of bay region contributions to the Finnish Relief Fund, Mitchell stated that an aggregate of $34,500 has been realized to date, $22,000 from drives conducted by the four San Francisco daily newspapers.

"The relief work in Finland," Mitchell explained, "is conducted entirely by American representatives. This removes any possibility of discrimination in the distribution of the funds. It also assures us that the money will not be diverted to any other purpose save that for which it is collected—the relief of civilian refugees."

The method of transferring the funds is unique, according to Mitchell. No actual shipment of cash is involved. Instead, the funds are deposited to the credit of the Finnish government account in New York, then the Finnish government releases an equivalent amount of Finnish marks to the American Committee for Relief in the embattled nation.

Singing Contest, Prize Drawing at Palace Mar. 8

Featuring the appearance of a student of the college who will sing with Ray Noble and his orchestra, and a special prize drawing, plans for the forthcoming San Francisco-San Mateo Junior College night are being rapidly whipped into shape, announced Muriel Grenelle, student body vice-president, today.

To be held at the Palace Hotel Friday, March 8, the affair marks the first time in the history of the hotel or the college that the palatial Rose Room Bowl will be completely turned over to the students.

Planned to put relations with San Mateo on an even more friendly basis, the night will feature many new innovations, commented Miss Grenelle.

A contest will be held Thursday afternoon, February 29, after the rally to determine which student from this institution shall sing with Noble's orchestra.

Any persons interested in participating in this event are requested to contact Miss Grenelle, Mary Frances Malone, Len Gross, Lee Scarlett, or remain in the Galileo auditorium after the rally.

Another feature of the evening will be a prize drawing, winners of which will receive complimentary cover charges and perhaps dinners from the hotel.

"Although this is not an official Associated Students affair, we feel that it will be highly successful because of excellent music and entertainment offered," Miss Grenelle said.

Survey

Welfare Council Goes To Work On Student Activity

Starting last week on its first activity, the newly created welfare council launched an extensive survey of extra-curricular activities in the college, according to Loretta Egan, chairman of the group.

"No definite time limit has been set on the survey," Miss Egan said, "but the council will be thorough in the matter, attempting to arrive at a fair evaluation of all student activities."

Serving on the welfare council as the investigation got under way were four appointive members: Henry Sperstedt, Paula Levick, Lou Reinthaler and Harold Hoffman. Also occupying positions are the four class presidents and the president of the Club Advisory Board.

Revealing that aside from the extra-curricular survey, no further plans have as yet been formulated, Miss Egan additionally stated that Al Williams, Associated Student president, plans to work in close collaboration with the council.

"The welfare council will act not so much as an investigatory body as a fact-finding committee," Miss Egan said.

At the conclusion of the survey, it was reported, the findings will be forwarded to the Executive Council and the president of the college.

Ernest Godfrey To Speak On Cake Decorating

Demonstrating the cake decorator's art Friday afternoon, March 1, at the Emporium, will be Ernest Godfrey, sophomore student from the college Hotel and Restaurant Division.

The demonstration, one of a series of events scheduled this week at the Emporium, will be held at the store's homeware department, on the third floor.

Godfrey, who will show interested spectators the latest advances in artistic cake decoration, will be introduced at 2 o'clock by Charles Strandberg, chef of the Hotel St. Francis.

The general public is being invited to attend events throughout the week, through the local press. Culinary demonstrations at the Emporium are given by Patricia Smith, who, under the professional name of Bess Baker, is one of the firm's home consultant authorities.

Miss Smith is a graduate of the Cornell hotel course, of which Hilda Watson, faculty member, is also an alumna.

College In Michigan Eliminates Final Exams

ALMA, Mich. — (ACP) — Elimination of final examinations at Alma College as an experiment for the next two semesters has been announced by Prof. Roy Hamilton, secretary of the faculty.

In explaining this innovation, Prof. Hamilton said that the change was being made with a view to stimulating students to keep up on their daily work. Frequent tests will be given on the basis of daily work, he said.

Under this new system of classroom examinations based on daily work, all students will be graded three times a semester, as has been the custom for freshmen.

At the same time that he announced this new system, Prof. Hamilton said that it is planned to give a standard comprehensive examination to all students at the end of their senior year. Such an examination, he said, would cover the entire college course, with special reference given to major subjects of each student.

Radio Class In Production

Students enrolled in the radio production course, Speech 33, are involved in the casting of their first program. This program, a play, is to be presented over the Columbia Broadcasting System in the near future, probably on a Saturday morning.

The program is to be handled entirely by the students, even to the sound effects.

CBS has assigned their largest studio to the class for the production of the program.

Splash!!

Women Throw Swim Party Tomorrow Evening At YWCA; Dance, Dinner Featured

Tomorrow evening, February 28, the Women's Athletic Association Splash Party will be held at the Young Women's Christian Association, Sutter and Mason Streets, according to Barbara Smith, general chairman.

All women of the college are invited to take part in this introductory event of the WAA, the purpose of which is to introduce WAA to new members and to new women of the college, said Miss Smith.

Tickets may be purchased for 35 cents in the bank in the Galileo building or from ticket sellers, namely, Thursa Scott, Jeanne Arnold, Marion Dicke, and Barbara Smith, said Miss Scott.

Swimming will take place from 5:45 until 6:45, and will include water games such as stunt races and an optional game of water polo, for all to participate in, according to Marion Dicke.

Exhibition diving and swimming by the Cornell sisters, Mary and Virginia, who are out to break the speed record now held at the YWCA, added Miss Dicke.

Women who do not wish to swim may sit in the balcony and watch the exhibitions, and join the rest for dinner in the cafeteria on the second floor at 7 o'clock, further commented Miss Dicke.

Each sport will have a separate table and will boost its own activity, stated Miss Smith. She also said that women who have signed up for more than one sport should choose their favorite sport and sit at that table.

"Theme of the Splash Party is nautical," said Miss Smith, and further added that "the program after dinner will include dancing and miscellaneous numbers."

Miss Smith urged all women who possibly can to come out for the Splash Party, and promised that it will be a lot of fun.

Opportunity For College Women To Engage In Child Social Service Work

That there is an opportunity for women students to donate their services to financially underprivileged children, was announced by Margaret Dougherty, faculty member.

Miss Dougherty explained that services will consist of taking children to and from the Children's Agency, a branch of the Community Chest, and of entertaining and helping them. Each woman will be assigned one child for her special care and in whom she is expected to take an active interest.

Although women may devote as much time to this work as they wish, no one will be asked to spend more than a few hours one day each week.

"I consider this an opportunity for college women to help make life more worthwhile for these children, while at the same time it may lead students to take up social service work later on," said Miss Dougherty.

Miss Dougherty also urged that all interested women see her personally in regard to the matter.

Scholarships To The SF College For Women Offered

Women who rank in the upper 10 per cent of the class of 1940 are eligible for several one-year scholarships to the San Francisco College for Women, according to Margaret Dougherty, Associated Women Students' Adviser.

Offered by the San Francisco College for Women and its Alumna, the scholarships consist of one hundred dollars to be deducted from the regular fee for tuition. In accordance with the student's general merit, these scholarships will be extended each year.

Miss Dougherty urges all eligible women who are interested to see her for full details immediately.

Wendell Heads Hotel Div.

Replacing J. Graham Sullivan, this semester, as coordinator of the college Hotel and Restaurant Division, is Paul V. Wendell, well known hotel man and graduate of Stanford University.

Wendell, a Midwesterner by birth, by birth, came to San Francisco in 1928, and progressed from the position of clerk in the Hotel Maryland to that of purchasing agent and assistant manager of the Clift Hotel. He received his A.B. from Stanford in 1932.

Wendell fills the post vacated when Sullivan, former coordinator, was appointed coordinator of educational management.

Classes In Distributive Occupations Offered Here

Under the title of "Distributive Occupations," are 24 new classes being offered in the extension work of the San Francisco Junior College.

This program is being carried on in cooperation with the State Department of Education under Dr. Ira Kibbey, superintendent of public education and distributive occupations.

Classes now offered under the Retail Education courses include: retailing records, selling, advertising, public speaking and personality clinics; other courses in hotel and apartment house management, accounting and selling problems are also given.

Total enrollment to date is 1251, with classes being held at the Sir Francis Drake and Plaza hotels.

Health Exams Given

Women's health examinations are still being conducted in the north gym by Dr. Potter on every day of the week except alternate Wednesdays at 2:30.

Women who have not yet made appointments for an examination should do so at once, since examinations are a necessary part of the entrance requirements of the college. Appointments may be made in the north gym every afternoon at 2:30.

Last Minute Campus News

REGISTRATION HITS 2606 MARK

Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, announced that total registration for this semester totals 2606 students, an all-time record. There are 1800 men and 806 women.

WSS ELECTS NEW LEADERS

New officers of the Women's Service Society, according to Annette Schunick, group president, are: President, Miss Schunick; vice-president, Barbara Smith; secretary, Emily De Iongh; treasurer, Helen Godman.

THURSDAY LAST DAY TO REMOVE INCOMPLETES

The registrar's office today announced that Thursday, February 29, would be the last day to remove incomplete grades from last semester. Thursday is also the last day for partial refund of incidental student body dues.

EDUCATORS SPEAK ON TOWN HALL PROGRAM

The Honorable C. Harold Caulfield, president of the local Board of Education, and John W. Studebaker, Federal Commissioner of Education, will debate over the Town Hall radio program Thursday, February 29. Subject of the debate will be the Teaching of Controversial Issues in the Classroom.

The Guardsman

Published Twice Weekly by the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College.

Vol. X TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1940 No. 6

LEONARD GROSS ..... EDITOR
Daniel Rosenblatt ..... Associate Editor
Louis Goldstone ..... Associate Editor

Editorial Adviser Joan Nourse — Business Adviser Edward H. Redford

Borrie Hyman ..... News Editor
Bill Albertson ..... Sports Editor
Bill Hall ..... Feature Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli ..... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ..... Advertising Manager
Marion MacKillop ..... Staff Artist
Joe Kurpieski ..... Photographer

REPORTERS

Willard Akers, Nora Baker, Ray Berns, Eva Burkey, Patricia Cantwell, Elizabeth Cook, Betty Deming, Janet Fellows, Harry Frister, John Hansen, Doris Hermann, Kel Horl, Mary Frances Malone, Dorothy Trood, Harold Unterberger, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF—Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

1939 Member 1940
Associated Collegiate Press

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or college opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Goldstone
. . . Of Sound and Fury

WHEN you wake up some morning and see U. S. DECLARES WAR plastered all over the front pages, you can tear up the Constitution, throw Lincoln's Gettysburg Address into the ash-can, and paste the Bill of Rights over that crack in the wall.

And while you're at it, just forget that such a word as "democracy" ever was coined.

When "M-Day" arrives, whether America is again spilling her blood on European soil or repelling an invasion of her own shores, you become one of 130,000,000 mindless robots whose lives are at the disposal of a single man in Washington, D. C.

You will witness the advent of that which Americans today believe to be an impossibility—the American Fascist War-State.

The blueprints were long ago completed; the machinery has been constructed and installed, and is oiled against the moment when it will rumble into life, peremptorily crushing out every vestige of human liberty in this nation.

The hammer and the anvil. The hammer—IMP, the Industrial Mobilization Plan; the anvil—the National Defense Act, and others. Them they will use as surely kill democracy in America as has Nazism in Germany, or Communism in Russia.

When the American politicians can no longer resist the lure of Europe's blood-wallow, you will find yourself living in a collectivist state whose dictator—the president—will have the power to: (1) Command every person from the age 16 upward; (2) arbitrarily fix the prices of every commodity and article; (3) confiscate or commandeer all factories and qualify their production; (4) deprive labor of the right to strike; (5) ration food and all other necessities; (6) tax incomes up to 93 per cent, and profits up to 100 per cent; (7) fix all wages by proclamation; (8) license all business; (9) violate or outlaw all civil rights; (10) censor press, radio, and movies.

Referring to the IMP, the National Defense Act, and allied legislation, Senator William Borah called forth his most vitriolic scorn.

> . . . It is called the War Profits Bill," he cried in the Senate. "It ought to be called a bill to cut the jugular vein of the Republic. It is called a National Defense Act—it should be called the National Assault Act . . ."

But the heat was on, and the Administration had its way. And now everything is wired, with all the strands leading to the Nation's capital, where the president is potentially the most absolute dictator the world has ever known.

With the advent of war and IMP, the whole economic, political, and moral concept of America becomes totalitarian. There will be no half-measures. The War Emergency, Industrial Management, Finance, Security Exchange, and Resources Control Acts—all component parts of IMP—will immediately establish in this country an absolute despotism.

The magnitude of the risk involved should America embark on a foreign war is evident, for once under the heel of military-Fascism, what assurance have you that the normal democratic processes will be reinstated at the termination of the conflict?

You will have no rights whatsoever; you will live or die, prosper or starve at the dictates of a faraway, impregnable overlord who manipulates a nation's destiny at the keyboard of an omnipotent and utterly merciless machine. You will no longer be an individual.

So when the thing happens, just forget all this stupid nonsense about "democracy" and "human rights." Drag out Machiavelli and Nietzche. Learn something practical.

Frister
. . . The Spectator

FEW motion pictures have the ability to make one feel their power and emotion. "Northwest Passage" is one of those few. The acting in it is superb; the direction unsurpassed; the photography a triumph of camera artistry.

Never has Spencer Tracy been cast to better advantage than in "Northwest Passage." His Robert Rogers will linger in the memory of those who saw the film. The scene in Fort Wentworth where, after telling his starved men that food would await them, Rogers finds none, is magnificent. Tracy can say more by keeping still than most actors. He just stands there, looking, wondering what he can tell his crazed followers. He had filled them with promises of food. They had faith in him, and now he has failed them for the first time.

"Northwest Passage" is the saga of Rogers' Rangers, whose exploits even fiction would be hard pressed to equal. Robert Rogers and his band of intrepid adventurers, the thrilling story that lay behind the French and Indian War. More exciting moments than the sacking of St. Francis by the Rangers have been few and far between on the screen. The whole film, however, is crammed with unforgettable drama: the human chain across the raging torrent; the Rangers, and the lameness of their bodies, as they listen to how cruelly the Indians torture their captives; and Langdon Towne in his salute to Robert Rogers which is the finale. It is a film full of unexpected developments and strange enchantment.

Always dependable Walter Brennan steals many a scene. He embodies in his role of "Hunk" Marriner the essence of a garrulous backwoodsman with a heart as big as his head. Equally good as Langdon Towne, Robert Young manages to give even Spencer Tracy some stiff competition. Outstanding minor players include Addison Richards, Douglas Walton, and Regis Toomey, all of whom lend a hand toward making "Northwest Passage" a movie that grips the emotions and works havoc with the heart.

Hansen
. . . Club Crier

* Alpha Phi Omega . . . Formal initiation of pledges at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock.
* Astronomy Club . . . Meetings Monday evepings from 7 to 9 o'clock at the Galileo Observatory.
* Army Navy Club . . . Initiation banquet at Veneto's restaurant. Date and time to be announced later.
* Beta Phi . . . Regular business meeting and the final election of members for the start of initiation week. At the Parkside Tennis Club on Monday, March 4, at 8 o'clock.
* Block SF Society . . . Tuesday, March 5, at 8 o'clock at Galileo, a business meeting and choice of committees for semester.
* Ice Skating Club . . . Friday, February 29, at 2:30 o'clock, at Winterland Ice Skating Rink. Semester social plans to be arranged.
* Newman Club . . . Monday, March 4, at St. Mary's Cathedral, a special business meeting. Speaker for next meeting to be announced.
* Phi Alpha Omega . . . Pledge dance to be given at Lake Temescal in Berkeley on Wednesday February 28, from 9 to 12 o'clock. Invitational.

Sunday, March 3, at 10 a.m. at Tiburon. Work on Admiral Gaddy's boat.

Monday, March 4, at 8 o'clock, at 3355 Magnolia Street. A business meeting and discussion of acceptance of pledges.

* Pi Mu Gamma . . . Thursday, February 29. Business meeting.

Mortuary science division trip, to N. Gray and Company. Plans tentative.

* Rifle and Pistol Club . . . Business meeting at the Galileo rifle range at 4 o'clock, on Thursday, February 29.
* Tri Epsilon . . . Monday, March 2, tentative plans for entertainment of pledges.

Defeated By San Mateo Bowlers Train For Gonzaga

Defeated by a superior San Mateo squad a week ago, the Ram bowlers are now preparing for a return match with the peninsula keglers in a meet to be held in approximately a week at the Golden Gate Bowling Alleys, according to Joseph Amori, bowling instructor.

The San Mateo match was the first of a home-and-home series. Top scorer for the Rams was Bob Riordan, with a score of 515 for three games. Jack Schmale was a close second with 500 points. The highest score made in an individual game was 235, rolled by Daily, a southpaw roller from San Mateo.

Amori is expecting improvement from his team. Although there are several promising pin-smashers in the classes, he still hasn't found the right combination for the team. At least two spots are still open.

The Gonzaga meet, to be held soon, he said, is still not definitely scheduled. However, the meet will be held, and soon the wires are expected to start ticking with the start of that meet.

Skating Club Members In State Championships

Ed Bodell, William Hart and Murray Galbraith, members of the ice skating club, traveled to Santa Rosa for the California Ice Skating Championships February 23 and 24.

These representatives of San Francisco planned to enter men's novice, junior and senior contests. It was learned from Bill Hart, skate club president, that Galbraith would possibly enter the ice skating dance contest.

Plans are going ahead rapidly for the Ice Carnival, according to Hart, to be presented by the skate club in the near future. The first step in preparation for the meet was made last week when "Red" Glendenning, ice instructor at Winterland Rink, took under his supervision a group of advanced ice skaters for special instruction in daneing on ice.

The group meets for instruction on Tuesday nights and includes Dorothy and Lucille Jacke, Margaret Meuder, Fred Quandt, Bill Hart, Bud Vodden, and Wiley Burnett. Purpose of instruction is in preparation for the staging of a 14-step dance exhibition, to be one of the main attractions in the coming Ice Carnival, Hart said.

WAA Managers Elected

Following is the list of sports managers who have just been elected for the ensuing semester, as reported by Alma Koogman, vice-president of the Women's Athletic Association.

Archery, Barbara Smith; Badminton, Betty Teter; Basketball, Rusty Klistoff; Riding, Marjorie Radke; Baseball, Blanche Noyes; Tennis, Rosamond Patterson; Swimming, Sylvia Fisher; and Ice Skating, Lucille Jacke.

Nickle-Brickers

Ram Nine To Play Mission High Today At 3:15

This afternoon, at 3:15, the Ram baseball nine meets Mission High in a practice game. Both Mission and the local team enter the contest with victories over their respective opponents. Mission shut out San Francisco State, 3-0, while the Ram batsmen nosed out the Funston All-Stars in a hot game, 7-5.

Coach Jack Gaddy was not definite last week as to who would play, but he did mention the names of several players who might see action. The tentative lineup, as announced last week, is: Frank Mullins, shortstop; Terry McCarthy, first base; Mike DeStefano, second base; Roy Michely, third base; Bob Webber, left field; George Nishi, center field; Al Giovanetti, right field; George Morari, catcher; and Harry Aleo, pitcher. George Donovan has been practicing with the team and may either pitch or play first base.

When asked about the possibilities of a championship season, Gaddy replied that he expects the team to show an improvement over last season. "I won't claim that we will sweep the league this season, since we have so few veterans returning, but I do feel that we should do well. Modesto and Sacramento seem to come up with good teams every season, and this one doesn't look like any exception. Either Modesto or Sacramento has won the title every year, except one, when Marin stole the honors. However, we will be fighting, and should win our share of games."

Manager George Gumas has been seeking practice games with other colleges in or near San Francisco. He hopes to schedule games with fresh teams from Stanford, Santa Clara, and St. Mary's. There are not many practice games scheduled for this season because of class schedules. Gaddy explained that the games would have to be played against high school teams. Since most of the students out for baseball have classes in the afternoons at Galileo, it would be impossible to take them from the classes to play.

Gaddy hopes to select a definite first-string team by the end of the week so that he can devote special attention to those players. Also, he hopes to have the pitchers and batters polished enough to make a good showing on the opening day of league play when the Ram horsehide pelters meet Marin here on Saturday, March 9.

March Month Of Activity For Ski Club; Enter Meet

The next trip planned by the college ski club will be to Norden on March 1. Following that will be a meeting prior to the Salinas meet on March 10, a supper at Bob Ogg's home, when motion pictures depicting the educational aspects of the sport will be shown in preparation for the Salinas meet.

The following week-end, March 17, will find the ski club in its entirety at Norden competing with Salinas Junior College. Salinas claims inexperience but, in reality, has quite an adept group, according to reports.

This will be the local club's first participation in a ski meet, the scheduled participation in the Cisco meet failing to come off because of excessive school work on the part of the intended contestants. Alden Smith, club adviser, however, expressed hopes that the inexperience of the locals in the Salinas meet would not be too much of a disadvantage.

We really have some good skiers, he concluded. Questioned upon the intended move by the Women's Athletic Association to co-sponsor the college ski club because of the number of women belonging, Smith said, "We appreciate the interest the WAA has shown in deciding to co-sponsor the ski club."

During the last two weeks of February and the first two weeks of March, the snow is at its fastest and the ski season at its peak.

College PAA Entrants

Two years ago the college basketball team scored an upset in the P.A. tourney in beating St. Mary's College five. Again entered in the tourney, the Rams are the dark horse and last Friday won from the Ravenswood A.C. 40 to 26. Will the Rams come within the winning circle this year?

Ram Varsity Loses To Modesto Five At Modesto Cerf High Point Man For Locals In Encounter

Dropping another game and another niche in the league standings, the Rams lost to the superior Modesto Buccaneers last Tuesday in the Modesto gym by a score of 40 to 29.

Trailing by seven points at half time, the Rams got as close as 19 to 18 after three minutes of the second half had gone by, and stuck to the one-point tailing for four minutes, matching bucket for bucket, but the valley men rallied and pushed the score up 32 to 20 before the Rams collected their next score.

The Rams took an early lead at the beginning of the game, with Joe Johns sinking the first point via the free throw route. Eddie Cerf jumped from a mass of players for the second and third points, and Genesy sank one, leading the Buccaneers 5 to 0 in three minutes' time. But the Pirates rallied and sank the next three goals and a free throw, taking the lead now with the score 7 to 5. Clary Richards tied the score, but the Modesto men were now hot and shot into the lead which they never gave up.

Standout in the first half was the speedy Eddie Cerf, formerly an all-city Lowell basketeer. Cerf dribbled and circled the tall and rugged Modesto team, harassed their forwards by his tenacious dribbling style. Tallying nine points for the whole game, Cerf led the Rams scoring honors.

Surprise package of the game turned out to be Bob Pfanhl. He had not seen much action this semester, but in this game he played "brilliant ball," Scorekeeper Russ Sweet said.

Had the steam shown in the beginning of the second half been kept up, the score might have been a little more respectable, but the weak defense of the locals was just the meat for the fast moving Modesto team. Many time big Sig Jacobson and Kenny Hale, Pirate forwards, slipped through the man-to-man defense used by the Rams, to score.

High point man for the locals was Ted Lyons, the "old man" of the Chicago White Sox pitching staff, was the only pitcher to win two games in this year's city series between the Cubs and White Sox.

ADVERTISING RATE:

1-50 inches	70c an inch
51-150 inches	60c an inch
151-up inches	50c an inch

YOU CAN AFFORD TO FLY

By Joining —PACIFIC FLYING CLUB
Special Flying Rates Available to SAN FRANCISCO J. C. STUDENTS in the club's new PORTERFIELD
JOIN NOW AND SAVE
For additional information
SEE... Capt. George Richards, Director C.P.T. Miss Jennet Henderson Members of Advisory Board
OR WRITE... PACIFIC FLYING CLUB 153 Julian Ave. San Francisco, Calif.

Ram Win In PAA Game; Jayvees Swamped Twice

Repeating its dark-horse victory of two years ago—when the St. Mary's varsity was dumped in an outstanding upset — the Ram basketball team entered the P.A.A. tourney last Friday night and walloped the Ravenswood Athletic Club, 40 to 26.

While the varsity thus chalked up a win, Tom Wilson's Lambs were on the receiving end of the worst pasting in their young experience.

Stockton Junior College withered the Lambs with a speedy, fast-breaking attack and an invulnerable defense, scorched them with a 64 to 28 shellacking.

"Lousy is the word for it," said Ken Horl, reporter and observer who has covered the Lambs' fortunes on the basketball-courts, "and that word can cover practically every game the Junior Varsity has played."

Stockton scored first, last and always. The Lambs were never in the picture.

Only three days previously, the Lambs, hailed as "rejuvenated," had been downed by Modesto, 40 to 26 on the Pirates' home court.

This time, the local lightweights had overcome an early Modesto lead, go ahead, but the Pirate rallied during the second half cinched the game.

Below is a statistical resume of Ram scoring and scorers in the P.A.A. Tourney contest in which Ravenswood Athletic Club was beaten, 40 to 26:

S.F.J.C.	Fg.	Ft.	Tp.
Cerf, f	4	1	9
Spiehler, f	0	0	0
Kirwan, f	4	1	9
Richard, f	0	0	0
Genesy, c	1	2	4
Dudman, c	0	0	0
Mossler, g	4	3	11
Johns, g	3	1	7
Pfahnl, g	0	0	0
	16	8	40

Score at half—
S.F.J.C. 23; Ravenswood 13

The Emporium
MARKET OPPOSITE POWELL : EXBROOK 4000 : SAN FRANCISCO

UNIVERSITY SHOP STREET FLOOR, REAR

DRESS SUIT $30

—call it what you will. We know that it's Style Strategy — and we know that college stylists come West for fashion ideas. Keith Carleton did this one only for The Emporium's University Shop

USE THE EMPORIUM'S PERSONALIZED CREDIT

CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVE — HAL HOFFMAN

Gross While Thinking

The Guardsman

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS
SAN FRANCISCO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Vol. X FRIDAY, MARCH 1, 1940 No. 7

See box at bottom of page one for last minute news concerning:
- FINANCE HEAD SELECTED
- WAA NEEDS YELL LEADER
- VOLLEYBALL PLAY DAY

FOREIGN

DID you ever find yourself staring at a jumbled mess that told you nothing, and made no sense, yet at the same time was of vital importance?

That is the foreign situation in a nutshell. Your guess is as good as ours.

EXPOSITION

F. M. SANDUSKY, director of exhibits and concessions for the 1940 Fair revealed recently that when the exposition opens its gates May 25, the sexy girl shows that frequented the Gayway last year will be fenced off in a seperate enclosure from the rest of the fun zone.

Exposition officials cannot be blamed for this move for it satisfies the complaints of the women's clubs that poured in so heavily in '39.

It is ironical to realize how hypocritical human beings are. Instead of accepting the presence of sex as one of the fundamental human drives, most people try to ignore its existence and hide it behind fences.

Why be narrow minded about the subject? The time is long since past when sex was considered a shameful topic, one that was to be kept from the ears of children until they were of marriageable age.

Does hiding the girl shows of the Gayway behind a fence make them any the less real? Or does it serve to accentuate their very presence by calling attention to them?

Such a hypocritical attitude does more harm than good. Instead of acting as if these sex shows were something horrible and sinful, look the facts in the face and realize that in 1939, Sally Rand's Nude Ranch was second in paid attendance in the entire exposition.

According to this, the majority of the people who visited the Fair last year saw the Nude Ranch.

Yet these same people will turn right around and in a shocked, horrified voice exclaim, "Something should be done about those sex shows, tch, tch."

If that isn't hypocrisy, then show us a better example.

"WE AMERICANS"

SEVERAL months ago, there was born a new organization for the promotion of the fundamental ideals of American Democracy.

At that time little was known about the organization, as it was still in the embryonic stage. Now, after considerable labor on the part of the young American business men who conceived the idea, the organization is taking shape.

The state charter from Sacramento has been received, and the group is ready to begin functioning.

Since it has always been a pet theory of ours that an organization such as this be formed, we have watched the development of the group with considerable interest.

For the benefit of all who believe in the fundamental principles of American Democracy, the following is a copy of the preamble to the constitution of the organization so aptly named "We Americans".

"In order to establish and pursue an active program devoted to the maintenance and perpetuation of the original principles of American democracy; To inspire sentiments of patriotism, loyalty, tolerance, and reverence for the constitution of the United States of America; To effectively give our support and energies for the welfare of its residents and to honor and commemorate by our devotion to mutual helpfulness we band together and establish this constitution.

"Alms and purposes—To foster and promote original American democratic principles and ideals; To encourage members to take an interest in political affairs; To investigate and

(Continued on page 4, column 3)

Click!
Guardsman Opens Photo Contest For Amateurs

To give the hundreds of photography fans and enthusiasts within the college, a chance to display their ability, The Guardsman will sponsor an amateur photography contest this month, announced Len Gross, editor of the paper today.

The contest will extend from Tuesday, March 5 to Tuesday, April 9, inclusive.

The best picture submitted each week will be printed in the Friday issue of The Guardsman. All pictures to be eligible for the weekly selection must be left with Tom O'Neill in the Powell Street office by 11 a.m. Tuesdays.

At the end of the month, the winning pictures of each week will be assembled and the final winner selected.

Judges will be Joan Nourse, editorial adviser of The Guardsman, Daniel Rosenblat, and Louis Goldstone, associate editors, Joe Kurpieski, staff photographer, and Gross.

Following are the rules of the contest:

1. Only students enrolled in San Francisco Junior College are eligible to enter the contest. Contest judges are automatically barred from competition.

2. Any contestant may submit as many pictures as he desires.

3. Name, address, and general data on equipment, camera, etc. must be submitted with each entry.

4. The pictures will be judged for uniqueness, clearness, and relation to college or collegiate life.

5. Only pictures relating to the college or student life will be eligible.

6. The minimum size of the print submitted should be five by seven inches. All pictures submitted become the property of The Guardsman.

7. The decision of the judges is final. In the case of a tie duplicate prizes will be awarded.

Prizes for the contest will be announced next Tuesday.

For further information on the contest see one of the judges or drop in to The Guardsman office in room W1 at Galileo.

Case Hearings Come Before Judicial Body Next Week

Cases of two students whose student body cards have been confiscated will be decided next week at a meeting of the newly appointed judicial committee.

New aim of the Judicial committee is to suggest correction to offenders instead of punishing them, according to Tony Manov, chairman.

Manov voiced an appeal to thinking students of the college that they utilize the Ram's Horn to give their views on this question, "Should students be penalized for the intent behind an illegal act or for the result of the deed itself?" Helpful suggestions in answer to the problem will be appreciated by the judicial committee, Manov said.

This semester's judicial committee is composed of Allen Williams, Associated Students president; Dave Johnson, Richard Kaiser, Adele Kuhn, and Manov.

Here's Where You Park It

Acquisition Of Balboa Campus Parking Lot Site Debated By Education Board; Students Favor Plan

" Site of the proposed parking lot for the Balboa campus in its current stage of development is shown in the office of Education.

Acquisition of the pictured property is now being considered by the Board of Education.

A Guardsman poll gave the information that approximately 300 students would use their cars to and from the college if a parking space were available. Many students having access to automobiles are not driving them at the present time because of the inadequacy of such facilities.

Statistics compiled by The Guardsman poll were forwarded to the Board of Education's Committee on Physical Properties, which is empowered to investigate and negotiate purchase or transfer of suitable land tracts.

No Surrender, Says Finnish Consul

EDITOR'S NOTE: In presenting this vital sidelight to a conflict which is commanding the attention of the whole world, The Guardsman is attempting, not to mold opinion one way or another, but to focus student interest and thought on current world events whose significance cannot be over-estimated, and whose implications cannot be ignored. The following article does not represent the opinion of the writer, The Guardsman or the college. It was originally planned to present an interview with the Russian consul, also, but circumstances made such an action impossible.

By LOUIS GOLDSTONE

"Finland will keep on fighting as long as there is the least hope. My people are tauelht from childhood to regard independence as the highest human value; they will prefer death to slavery under an Asiatic dictator."

So Jarl Lindfors, for 18 years Consul of Finland in San Francisco, voiced the resolution of his nation, last week, in an exclusive interview to The Guardsman.

Says Finns Will Hold Out. Profit By Warm Weather

Surrounded by books and maps in his modest consulate office, Lindfors admitted that routine business had been wholly disrupted by the war, opined that 10,000 volunteers for Finland could be raised from the Pacific Coast alone if passports were available; prophesied that all was not yet lost—that the Finnish armies would hold up under temporary reverses, and would be eventually aided in stemming the Red tide by the advent of spring weather.

"We can expect to do better in warmer weather," the Consul said. "The ground will thaw, and our best trenches on the Karelian Isthmus will be easier to defend.

"These trench systems (the Mannerheim Line) are 16 to 20 miles deep in some places," he added, "and will not be easily pierced as long as we hold our flank position."

Cites Soviet Ambition, Breach Of Non-Aggression Pact

Lindfors retraced the events leading to the outbreak of the war, but said that hostilities came as no surprise.

"The Russians," he said, "have dreamed of the northern ports of Norway for a century. If Finland had ceded her far northern (Petsamo) corridor, Russia's border would have been flush with Norway and Sweden. That would have meant the end for all of Scandinavia."

Lindfors referred to the treaty of non-aggression between Finland and the Soviet, a treaty whose expiration date is 1945. This solemn pact, he pointed out, was violated by the Kremlin arbitrarily and without notice, in flagrant disregard of international law.

The Consul told of the Soviet's charges of Finnish frontier provocation, of Finland's offer to cooperate in a joint investigation, and of Moscow's refusal to consider the offer.

Undeclared War—Bombs On Helsinki—General Invasion

Then, on the last day of November, 1939, bombs dropping on Helsinki—without a declaration of war. Bombs shattering public buildings, homes, and the only partially constructed stadium which was to house the 1940 Olympics. The next day—general invasion.

"We already knew the value of Russian treaties and promises," Lindfors declared. "And we know the methods and ends of Russian diplomacy. Stra-tegic points on Esthonian soil, extorted by Russia through coercion, are today being used as bases for Red planes which bomb Finnish towns and cities."

Verdict, Sweden Cannot Help; Next On Soviet List

Would the Finnish government publish a "white paper" on the causes of the war?—Yes. One was now in preparation.

If Finland went down, would Norway and Sweden be next?—Perhaps not immediately, but surely eventually.

Were Norway and Sweden in a position to be of aid?—Definitely not.

Was there any immediate prospect of organized outside help?—Yes, if Britain would encourage the enlistment of volunteers.

Abuses Removed—Progress, Loyalty Instilled

Briefly, Lindfors recounted the progress of Finland along social, cultural and economic lines since her inception as a nation 20 years ago.

"When Finland became independent, the abuses and class-distinctions that had existed under the old Russian Empire were removed," he explained. "In 1918, at the time of the Civil Wars, perhaps 20 per cent of our population was in sympathy with Bolshevism; and most of them had genuine grievances, although they were deluded in imagining Communism a Utopia.

"Today," Lindfors concluded, "we have almost no unemployment, we have developed our country's trade and industry, and have raised the standard of living by one-third. When the actual test came, more than 99 per cent of the Finnish people proved loyal, and sprang to arms to repel the invader."

Women Serve In, Behind Lines; No Surrender

Commenting on the role played in the war by Finland's women, Lindfors referred to the Lotta Svaard, huge organization of more than 100,000. These women, the Consul said, act as an auxiliary force—nursing, cooking, even doing observation duty with the defending armies.

"We did not want this war," Lindfors averred. "It was forced upon us. But we will not surrender. We have always followed the best possible concepts of democracy. We have faith in ourselves and in the richness of our cause."

Inaugurates Probe
Welfare Group Slates Wide Investigation Of Student Activities; Cites Objectives

Leuenberger Releases Basic Tenets Of Welfare Council's Survey Program

Following is the basic program of the Welfare Council (see story in adjoining column) as outlined by Harold Leuenberger, faculty adviser to the newly created student group.

I. INVESTIGATION OF STUDENT PARTICIPATION IN EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

A. Study of size and character of membership in clubs, social organizations and athletics.

B. Study of extent of interlocking membership in these groups and activities.

C. Study of character and scope of individual and collective activities undertaken by these groups.

II. INVESTIGATION OF STUDENT EVALUATION OF EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

A. Study of student opinion regarding value of clubs, social organizations, and athletics.

III. INVESTIGATION OF CONDITIONS AFFECTING STUDENT WELFARE

A. Study of collegiate and extra-collegiate factors exercising effects on the general welfare of students.

Presenting the initial definition of the scope, aim, and probable procedure of the Welfare Council, Harold Leuenberger, faculty adviser to the group, this week outlined the fundamental points of the council's proposed investigation of student activities.

The investigation, according to Leuenberger, will be directed along three main channels. First and second will be, respectively, surveys of student participation in, and student evaluation of, extra-curricular activities; the third, a general study of conditions—in and out of the college—affecting the welfare of the students.

Only an immediately preceding statement, Loretta Egan, Welfare Council Chairman, said that no definite plan for the investigation had been formulated. Al Williams, ASSEJC president, working in conjunction with the council, stated that he had not started a detailed plan.

"We define the term 'extra-curricular'," said Leuenberger, "as applicable to any activity conducted by the students themselves."

Under this definition, he explained, the investigation would take into consideration the activities of clubs, athletics, and social organizations.

Official membership on the council is as follows: Loretta Egan, chairman; Henry Suerstedt, Paula Levick, Lou Breinthaler, Hal Hoffman, appointees; Art Pomares, Daniel McHugh, Leo Leggett, Robert Kittzker, class presidents; Alden Thorogood, CAB president.

While announcing that a more detailed policy plan would be ready after the next Welfare Council meeting two weeks hence, Leuenberger welcomed the opportunity of placing the group's plans before the student body.

"Unless the students understand clearly what the council is trying to do, they cannot cooperate with us in the survey," he stated.

Leuenberger, in discussing the methods to be used in the investigation, suggested that most probably the desired facts would be obtained through a questionnaire submitted to the students.

"The Welfare Council," he said, "is primarily a fact-finding body, and can most easily and efficiently uncover facts in this manner."

Side projects of the council, according to Leuenberger, are those of recommendation to the Executive Council. Having been appropriated funds, the Welfare Council, it was revealed, would petition the executive body for money as the need arose.

Williams, speaking for the council, announced that it first step in the investigation would be an interview with the "Co-Op Conference" which will convene March 16-17. Nature of the conference, and location of its meeting, were not disclosed.

Cooper Announces Available Awards For Scholarship

For the benefit of the old students as well as the new, Alice C. Cooper, Alpha Gamma Sigma adviser, has released a complete list of the scholarships available for honor students.

The College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons at Los Angeles offers a two-year tuition of $525.00.

At Stockton the College of the Pacific offers a one-year tuition of $280.00.

A one year's tuition for $200.00 is offered by the Dominican College of San Rafael, which is renewable in the senior year for the same amount.

Resident students are offered a tuition fee of $400.00 at the Mills College at Oakland.

At the Occidental College in Los Angeles are offered two tuition fees: One for $300.00 is for resident students, and one for $150.00 for non-resident students.

The Pomona College at Pomona offers two tuitions, both for the second semester, of $150.00.

Half tuition for the junior and senior year for $250.00 is offered by the University of Redlands at Redlands.

The University of Southern California at Los Angeles offers a one-year tuition fee of $270.00.

All students who received gold seals on their diplomas will be allowed a one-semester membership in the Alpha Gamma Sigma, announced Miss Cooper.

Midterm Period Slated For March 4-8; Cinches Next

Attention to the fact that the first midterm period begins March 4 and will continue until March 8, was called by Mary Jane Learnard, assistant registrar, Wednesday.

Cinch notices, as per custom, will be mailed out to new students the week following the close of the first midterm period, announced Miss Learnard.

Last day for students to file petitions for graduation is March 13, she added.

Easter vacation will begin this semester on Thursday, March 21, and will continue through the week-end. Thus students will attend classes until Thursday, and will not have the entire week free.

NYA Time Due

All NYA students are requested to turn in their old time sheets and receive their new ones from Thomas O'Neill of the college office at Powell Street, at 2 p.m. today.

According to Edward H. Redford, NYA director, certification blanks have been sent to all NYA sponsors, which they must fill out in certification of the type of work performed by the NYA student.

In the future, these blanks will be attached to the new time sheets, Redford said.

Publications Board Defines Terms On Collegiate Press

Amid the confusion of trying to publish this issue of The Guardsman, the college Publications Board met Wednesday night for the purpose of defining functions and procedure of the board, announced Len Gross, chairman of the group.

The final draft drawn up by the board divided the publications within the college into two groups, official and recognized.

Official publications are to be considered as those which are published by the Associated Students and which are distributed to each member of the Associated Students.

Financial return to the organization may be made in part by advertising gained by the publication or in the case of a yearbook, by selling copies in which case the sale price is only part of the full cost of publication.

Recognized publications are those which fulfill a specific aim in type of publication, i.e.—literary or humor—and by sale may be published by an individual group for distribution to members of the Associated Students.

Support if needed may be contributed by the Associated Students organization.

Other publications may from time to time be presented for review by the publications board for distribution among the students. These publications should not possess an aim for regular publication, in which case they should be considered for possible inclusion under the heading of recognized publications, the board decided. They should in no way overgrow the precincts implied by official or other recognized publications.

These decisions in the form of recommendations will be presented to the Executive Council next Tuesday, Gross announced.

Bank To Close Book Exchange Accounts

With the announcement that the book exchange at the bank will be open this next week on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, Carl Stough, in charge of the college bank, requested that all students who have books at the exchange, present their slips at the bank and get their money or their books, as the exchange will be closed at the end of next week.

Last Minute Campus News

ROSENBLAT APPOINTED FINANCE CHAIRMAN

Daniel Rosenblat, Associate Editor of The Guardsman was appointed acting chairman of the finance committee today by Al Williams, Associated Student president.

WOMAN YELL LEADER NEEDED

Any woman interested in active as yell leader for the Women's Athletic Association is requested to see Thursa Scott, president of the group before March 11.

Tryouts will be at 4:30 Monday, March 11, Miss Scott said.

VOLLEYBALL PLAY DAY MARCH 30

Coeducational volleyball play day, sponsored by the WAA will be on March 30 at San Francisco State, announced Thursa Scott, Association president.

The Guardsman

Published Twice Weekly by the Associated Students of San Francisco Junior College.

Vol. X FRIDAY, MARCH 1, 1940 No. 7

LEONARD GROSS ... EDITOR
Daniel Rosenblat ... Associate Editor
Louis Goldstone ... Associate Editor

Editorial Adviser: Joan Nourse
Business Adviser: Edward H. Redford

Bonnie Hyman ... News Editor
Bill Albertson ... Sports Editor
Bill Hall ... Feature Editor
Lucretia Antonicelli ... Women's Editor
Edmund Wunsch ... Advertising Manager
Marion MacKillop ... Staff Artist
Joe Kurpieski ... Photographer

REPORTERS
Willard Akers, Nora Baker, Ray Berns, Eva Burkey, Patricia Cantwell, Elizabeth Cook, Betty Deming, Janet Fellows, Harry Frister, John Hansen, Doris Hermann, Kei Hori, Mary Frances Malone, Dorothy Trood, Harold Underberger, Vincent Vandre, Jay Wright

BUSINESS STAFF—Lawrence Lipke, Allen Martin, Joanne Schubert

1939 Member 1940
Associated Collegiate Press

Editorials and signed contributions in The Guardsman reflect the opinions of the writer; they make no claim to represent official student or college oponion. All unsigned editorials are by the editor.

Student Reaction On First Dance With San Mateo Held Necessary As Aid In Forming Future Social Policy

TWO weeks ago, the first Associated Student dance of the semester was held. That it was a success although overcrowded is known to all.

The question that has arisen concerning it is, "Was the dance overcrowded because San Mateo students were permitted to enter?"

Perhaps a few figures on the subject would help. There were approximately 140 students from San Mateo at the dance. This is enough to make the floor even more crowded than usual, but it is doubtful if the absence of these students would alleviate the situation to any great extent.

It is not for us to say whether or not the San Mateans be invited to our dances. It is not for any one person or minority group to say.

The answer to the question and the solving of the problem is up to the majority of the students of the college.

Each person holding an Associated Student card has the right to express his opinion on the matter and help decide the same.

The social committee tried the dance trade agreement merely as an experiment to see how the students reacted towards it.

Since this venture is in the experimental stage, it is part of the job of every member of the college to help solve it.

It is true that student officers were elected to serve the majority and decide problems such as these, but in a case where a large percentage of the student body itself is affected, the responsibility should not be placed on the shoulders of any one group.

Briefly, the matter sums itself up as this: Those students who felt that the dance was too crowded, and that they were not getting all the advantages their Associated Student card should give, should say as much. The opposite also holds true.

The Ram's Horn in The Guardsman was placed there for just such service. If you have an opinion to express, there is the place to do so. It is to your own advantage and welfare to let the social committee know your opinion on this matter.

Student Officers Deserve Praise For Bringing College Best Orientation Week In Its History

IT IS time to express on behalf of the majority of the students of the college, an appreciation of the splendid efforts of the Associated Student officers in bringing to the college what was undoubtedly the greatest and most successful Freshman Orientation week in the history of the college.

Although Orientation week has long since passed, we feel that it merits mention in the editorial column at this time.

This semester was the first time that Orientation week really fulfilled its purpose. Every Orientation week held at the college has been good, but none has equalled the one just concluded.

The purpose of the week, when first conceived, was to present the incoming students with a well balanced program of activities so that they could become somewhat familiar with what the college had to offer, and to succeed in getting them acquainted with others, and acquire within them a feeling of "belongingness".

That it has attained its every objective seems evident.

The program was certainly well balanced, featuring a rally, an afternoon "get acquainted" dance, a symposium on student government and extra-curricular activities, a smoker for the men, a tea for the women, and a semi-formal dance in honor of the Low Freshman class to bring the week to a grand finale.

It was evident at the tea, the smoker, and the collegiate mixer dance that everyone was getting acquainted and oriented.

The symposium served to educate the new students, and the rally and Block Society-Faculty baseball game served informally to introduce student leaders and faculty members to the freshman.

All in all, the recent Orientation week was a fitting precedent to set for student officers in the years to come.

The members of the Executive Council and the others who planned and arranged for the Orientation activities are to be highly commended for their efficient performance of a hard task.

* * *

"Colleges cannot talk about democracy and at the same time refuse to allow democratic principles and methods to be used on their own campuses. Boards of trustees, faculties as well as student bodies, must see democracy as a way of life effective here and everywhere." Dr. Gould Wickey, Council of Church Boards of Education secretary, demands that students and faculty members practice what they preach. (ACP)

Fellows

... The Spectator

IN ONE great volume, Tellers of Tales, W. Somerset Maugham has incorporated a long list of some of the best short stories written in the 19th century.

For review purpose . . . Tolstoy's short story in Tellers of Tales, The Death of Ivan Ilych.

His colleagues, members of the Court of Justice, as he himself had been, read of Ivan Ilych's death in a newspaper during the recess of a trial—this begins Leo Tolstoy's macabre short story. Leaving the funeral preparations, the writer takes us back through the decorous years of Ivan Ilych's life, and in a few pages we follow him from childhood to law school, thence to marriage, fatherhood, and modest success in the ministry. When Ivan Ilych discovers he has something painfully wrong with him, something that is emaciating his once strong body, the tale becomes magnetic.

Becoming an escapist, Ivan Ilych throws himself into his work in order to forget his physical torture. When this fails he succumbs to doctors and medicine. It is when he realizes his disease is not a matter of whether or not his body heals, but a matter of whether he shall experience more life, or—DEATH, that his physical pain is lost in his mental anguish. Here Tolstoy's classic reaches a climax.

As the events of his life pass before his dull eyes, Ivan Ilych wonders if he has led the right life. Agonizingly the fear of death clutches his brain, and for three days he screams, not from physical pain but from mental fear. "For three whole days, in which time did not exist for him, he struggled into that black sack, into which he was being thrust by an invisible, resistless force. He struggled as a man condemned to death struggles in the hands of an executioner, knowing that he cannot save himself. And every moment he felt that despite all his efforts he was drawing nearer and nearer to what terrified him. . . .

"Suddenly some force struck him . . . and he fell through the hole and there at the bottom was a light. . . .

"And suddenly it grew clear to him that what had been oppressing him and would not leave him was all dropping away. . . ."

Just before the machine, which was his body, stopped altogether Ivan Ilych realized that he had lost his fear of death, and by this loss death vanished, too. As soon as death came it was finished, and LIFE and LIGHT took its place.

Tolstoy teases his readers; he puts them into the uneasy position of being on the outside looking in. Then he beckons the reader to come closer. Breathlessly the hapless one grasps the window ledge in order to look into the esprit (the mind, soul, heart, or what you will) of the character, only to have the blinds pulled down in his face.

According to W. Somerset Maugham's Introduction in Tellers of Tales, Tolstoy is the inventor of the Russian story as we know it, and The Death of Ivan Ilych is not only "the germ of all Russian stories," but it also "comprehends all the merits and all the defects of the Russian story."

Except for the gloomy theme, the Russian names, and Ivan Ilych's beard, The Death of Ivan Ilych seems to be more European than Asiatic. There is none of the Mystery of the East which is so widely associated with Russia—that vast land that is unknown even to the westerners who have been there. Although Tolstoy's short story led the way for the short story as it is today, he did not get enough life into his mechanically superb theme.

Tolstoy, Russian novelist, social reformer, and theologist of the 19th century, is most widely known in this country for Anna Karenina.

Friday At Palace By Marion MacKillop

Letters To The Editor

RAM'S HORN — In Horn And Counselor Russia, Columnist,

• AGAIN—ORCHIDS!
Editor, The Guardsman:

The staff of the Guardsman should be highly congratulated on its first issues of the paper. Most of the new columns are highly entertaining—and especially pleasing was Bill Hall's "Shots at Ramdom." Mr. Hall is energetically endeavoring to carry on the tradition set by Isadore Maloff, last semester's capable writer of "Shots at Ramdom."

All in all, I believe that the college has every reason to be very proud of its paper.

A Lowly Freshman

• GRADE POINTS
Editor, The Guardsman:

We have been puzzled for quite some time over that question of "grade points". Nobody seems to know much about them. We would like to know if extra grade points can be saved and used the following semester if there is any need for them. Fortunately we have not had to call on reserve points but we know of several students who are in that predicament. Can you tell us, and our bewildered colleagues the answer?

Thank you,

Puzzled?

Editor's Note:
We suggest, for accurate information on this subject—consult your faculty adviser or the registrar.

• RED LETTER DAY
Editor, The Gurdsman:

Your editorial of February 16, regarding American-Soviet relations, exhibits a complete misunderstanding of the issues involved as well as a regrettable ignorance of historical fact.

Your assumption that a severance of relations would be attributable to the Soviet's invasion of Finland is wholly erroneous, inasmuch as the basic causes of such an action on the part of Congress would be found to lie much deeper.

When the United States recognized the USSR in 1933, a treaty was signed in which the Soviet government pledged itself to refrain from fostering, supporting, or encouraging any activities designed to subvert the government and institutions of the United States, and to desist from any interference in the internal affairs of the United States.

Maxim Litvinov, then foreign secretary of the USSR, and that nation's signatory to the agreement, laughed up his sleeve a year later at Geneva because, as he said, while the agreement prohibited the Soviet government from fostering subversive activities within the United States, the Comintern (or Third International) was independent of the Soviet government, and thus not bound by the agreement.

Now the membership of the Comintern is practically identical with that of the Soviet government; furthermore, the Comintern is the worldwide directorate of communism, and the Soviet government is nothing more nor less than a subsidiary of the Comintern.

This deliberate perversion of the agreement, alone, would constitute sufficient grounds for the breaking off of relations.

Also, under the terms of the same treaty, the USSR pledged itself to respect the rights of American citizens in the Soviet. Not so long ago an American couple were summarily arrested, imprisoned without preference of a charge, and confined for weeks without a hearing. During this period, the American consulate was not allowed to communicate with them.

Only recently, when the City of Flint was brought into Murmansk by a Nazi prize crew, the American ambassador was not permitted to see the American captain and crew who were prisoners aboard the ship; what is

(Continued on page 4, column 5)

Hall

... shots at RAMdom

COMMUNICATION from Guardsman office to Bill Hall: Make room in your Friday column for a sample keyhole-gossip idea we're running, signed Len (Rent a tuxedo, you know where) Gross. The fellow who wrote the following gossipy items is literary genius 1197a, wears arm-pit pants, and is a student of the Union Square school of thought.

Well, you're about-the-nitery man, ICM has just come in. Whew, what floating power this typewriter possesses! Now, I suppose everyone is anxious to know who was where in this weekend of superactivity. ICM dropped into the Frantic at an early time and saw Julie VonUpp dancing with Fred Sough. No time for anything but a hurried hello to the bartender and some of the new Schappe, the kind that makes you tip your hat to statues . . . cute, eh?

Out of the Frantic to McFaddens, where ICM spotted lovely Julie Von Upp dancing with Fred Sough. No bar, so ICM bayed across to the Mark. The good-times crowd was holding out and Fred Sough was there going around with ten hats stacked on his head. Not many people were dancing, but ICM did spot graceful Julie Von Upp. From the Mark, ICM hied to the Curtis Publishing Co. employees' party at the Palace. ICM could barely discern Al Krupp, campus rep for a pipe company. Vinnie Lopez was still there, worrying in case Greta Garbo would drop in. Get it? . . . cute, eh? Oh, yes! ICM glimpsed gorgeous Julie VonUpp dancing with . . .

* * *

Will the person who has Rex Valpreda's Phi Beta Kappa key please return it immediately.

"Take a gilt-edged letter, Miss La-Smootche!" My dear Lord Flakes: As regards your letter of February 19, please be advised that I was only joking when I mentioned my being a weekend detective. If I were a detective your offer would certainly appeal to me, but I suggest that for olfactories concerned you remove the body from your library. Thank you for the suggestion that I come disguised as an organ salesman. Maybe death won't do us part again and until then I remain, etc.

* * *

"Take another letter, Miss La-Smootche, a neon letter to Louis B. Mayer: Hello, Louie: I have just seen Hedy Lamarr in "I Take This Woman." Almost everyone in the theatre stayed to see the picture twice. They were so sick from seeing it the first time they didn't have strength to get out before the second show began. Give Miss Lamarr a chance at comedy. Audiences tire of roles which call for Hedy to fight for so much eternal spring.

Buzz me and let me know what you intend to do. How's the golf game? As ever, Bill Hall, president of the "To heck with Katie from Haiti, Hello to Hedy from Hollywood Club."

Rosenblat

... With Malice Toward None

UNOFFICIAL European sources have recently disclosed what they claim to be the peace terms pursuant to which Herr Hitler would undertake to sing the falsetto part in the chorus of "Let's call the whole thing off."

This information is not from "hitherto unimpeachable sources," but nevertheless the terms are sufficiently interesting to warrant inspection, even if they are unauthenticated.

The noble Chamberlain has held that Hitler is ambitious, and Chamberlain is an honorable man. At least he would appear to be quite correct in this instance, for the terms are at the very least highly ambitious, to say nothing of being highly improbable.

The Reich demands the return of pre-war German colonies. This is not too illogical a suggestion, would probably receive some Allied consideration if it stood alone, but will suffer from inclusion with the other terms, to-wit, that—

The essentially strategic British naval bases of Gibraltar, Malta, the Falkland Islands and Singapore are to be returned to their original owners. In each case this means giving the country back to the Indians. After that, it wouldn't take Heinrich (Gestapo) Himmler long to discover an oppressed German minority among said Indians, and the resultant blitzkreig would be short, sweet and efficient.

As a further prerequisite for peace, the British Empire (or what would be left of it at this stage) would be pieced by the forced secession of Ireland (the Irish Free State is still a part of the British Commonwealth of Nations), India and the Union of South Africa. Once again the possibility of oppressed German minorities is apparent.

Fourth term is the understanding that Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland will remain in status quo, in the same "Protective custody" that they have enjoyed since their incorporation.

The final German demand is an old stand-by, annexation of Alsace-Lorraine. It may be that Hitler really wants this particular portion of territory, or again it may be simply something to please the customers. After all, a Franco-German war without Alsace-Lorraine changing hands would be like a football game without your official souvenir program.

"The quality of mercy is not strained, it droppeth like the gentle rain from heaven." But the air-raid precautions in Germany today are so effective that not even the gentle rain of mercy could seep into the Chancellory when these terms of peace (if they are authentic) were conceived of.

If these terms are ever incorporated in a treaty of Munich, they will indeed be an opening gun in the campaign to have the World War run for a third term, will be rather unbecoming from a nation which has so loudly decried the Treaty of Versailles with its "bleeding frontiers".

Dot

... inTROODings

COLLEGIENNES ON PARADE

This little incident was overheard by Julie Bradshaw on Powell Street the other day, and we thought it would be of interest to some of you young women—

Frosh (helping co-ed up): "Gosh, did you fall down?"

Co-ed (sarcastically): "No, my foot struck an obstacle and my forward momentum caused me to lose my equilibrium, so that I gravitated to earth and attained a horizontal position."

VALENTINES

Some sweet individual thinking himself very smart, sent this columnist one of those comic valentines and it read like this—

Who's a Mud Slinger?
Goodness, Gal! You're sure expert
At slinging mud and dishing dirt.

Are your ears red, my mysterious friend?

NAMES

Here's an amusing name that seems to have slipped through the quick fingers of that popular man about town (you know the one I mean). This gentleman sells real estate for a living out near the ocean, which is very appropriate—the name is Deep C. Fisher! Oh, come on and laugh, it's really funny.

SUSPENDED ACTION

"It all happened so fast that, before I knew it, I was swept off my feet," reported Lyba Mackie. Lyba was walking out of a restaurant early Saturday morning and, seeing the rain falling not too gently, cried out, "Oh, I'll get my feet all wet." Her gallant escort asked if she would like to be carried to the car, and of course Lyba said, "Yes". (Oh, what a man!)

RALLY

Those who attended the AWS rally in honor of the freshman women, are still talking about the excellent performance Dorothy Mills gave. Congratulations, Dorothy, your singing was superb!

AWS-AMS MIXER

The excellent attendance of the freshmen at the mixer was wonderful If you new people attend all the social affairs of the college in that manner, you'll soon have a raft of friends.

Why not have an announcer at these tea dansants for about 30 minutes, who gives you some of the low down on those in attendance? Just a suggestion, but it would add variety to the party.

SOMETHING NEW

Why are they calling Muriel Nolan "NAUGHTY" these days? Hah, hah, so you don't know the answer. We do.

Hansen

... Campus Club Crier

• Alpha Lambda Chi . . . Meeting of officers and pledges on Sunday, March 3, at 2 o'clock, at 2355 Leavenworth Street.

Formal initiation of pledges at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, on Thursday, March 7, at 8 o'clock. Party at adviser Margaret Brennan's home after initiation, about 9:30 o'clock.

• Army-Navy Club . . . Initiation banquet at Veneto's restaurant. Date and time to be announced later.

• Beta Phi . . . Informal initiation ending pledge week, at the Parkside Tennis Club on 19th Avenue near Taraval Street, on Monday, March 4, at 8 o'clock.

• Beta Tau . . . Formal initiation at Hotel Leamington in Oakland, tonight at 8 o'clock, to be followed by an invitational initiation party at 1133 Oakland Avenue, Piedmont.

• Block SF Society . . . Business meeting and members' choice of committees to represent them for semester on Tuesday, March 5, at 8 o'clock at Galileo.

• Home Economics Association . . . Field trip on Saturday, March 2, to the Wiilstrutt Hosiery Mills in San Leandro. Meet at bus terminus at 9:45 o'clock.

Short business meeting with the announcement of officers and social plans discussion in Room 317 at 2:15 o'clock.

• Ice Skating . . . Practice and regular business meeting on Friday, March 1, at 3:30 o'clock, at Winterland Ice Skating rink.

• Newman Club . . . Monday, March 4, at St. Mary's Cathedral, a special business meeting. Speaker of next meeting to be announced.

• Physical Education and Recreation Majors Club . . . Practice in officiating, and plans for social activities at business meeting on Wednesday, March 6, at Galileo gymnasium, at 4:45 o'clock.

• Pi Mu Gamma . . . Regular business meeting on Thursday, March 7, at 450 Sutter.

• Phi Alpha Omega . . . Trip to Tiburon on Sunday, March 3, at 10 a.m. Work on "Almiral" Gaddy's boat.

Discussion of acceptance of pledges and regular business meeting on March 4, Monday at 8 o'clock at 3355 Mission Street.

• Pistol and Rifle Club . . . Tonight at National Armory. Entering five teams in Gallery meet. Starting at 6 o'clock till about 10 o'clock.

The Guardsman SPORTS

RAMS VS SACRAMENTO AT KEZAR

Athlete's Future Mecca

A small construction shack marks the site of what will be the new athletic field at Balboa Park. Marching below rolling hills (upper left picture) the field will be complete in every respect.

In the upper right picture, directly above, President A. J. Cloud and his lifelong friend, William Drew, principal of Mission High School, stand under the tangle of girders that constitute a steel skeleton for the Men's Gym. When the college moves to Balboa Park this fall, the gym facilities will be prepared to cope with a greatly increased registration.

To the left, the Women's Gym is nearing completion already. This structure will provide all the necessities in one compact unit.

Sacramento Game Tonight Crucial; Modesto Saturday

Although defeated in their first encounter with Sacramento, the Rams of the college are out to win tonight over their long standing rival at Kezar Pavilion.

They will play directly after Tom Wilson's Lambs defeat (or hope to defeat) Tony Manov's Armstrong Junior College of Berkeley. Having lost their last encounter, the Lambs have seen red and are out to win at all costs.

Game a Crucial

Sacramento, who gave the Conlanmen a basketfull of "fast breaks" on its own court, is facing a team backed against the wall in defeat. Having lost four of their games, the Rams have practically lost all hope for a decent conference standing; another defeat would seem like breaking the bottom rung of the conference ladder. In other words, the game tonight is a crucial one as far as the Rams go.

During their recent encounter with Marin at Kentfield, the Rams showed a last minute spark when Vernon Genesy and "Red" Kerwin passed to victory by two buckets. Should the varsity show the same spark in tonight's game, the Rams should put up a good fight.

Modesto Saturday

Promising a better game than the last encounter with Modesto, the college Rams go forth tomorrow night to tussle with the Valley Buccaneers in a return game at Kezar.

Trailing by seven points at half time and defeated 40 to 29, the Rams lost their game with Modesto because of the towering height and speed that outshone the diminutive Conlanmen. This time, however, Coach Conlan has improved the defensive system, and setting up and shooting has almost become perfect.

Eddie Cerf and Jim Kerwin, stellar Ram forwards, and Vernon Genesy who composes the other third of the forward wall, have been looking forward to a win, because of the showing they displayed in the game in the valley.

Coach Bob Erskine, former basketeer for U.S.C. uses the same system used by Sam Barry of Modesto. Dependent on height and taking balls off the rebound, Erskine has this to his advantage. However, with the speed of Cerf, the ruggedness of Kerwin and the coolness of Bob Staynor, the game should be somewhat even.

Height Tells Story

Sig Jacobsen and Bob Chenard of Modesto were high scorers in the above mentioned game, and because of their height, managed to score most of the points via rebounds. Groomed for this matching position is center Genesy.

Although the Rams are almost all freshmen, they have become expert in passing, as was shown in the Pacific Athletic Meet when they defeated Ravenswood Athletic Club.

As was quoted by Yell Leader Ray Berns of the college, the rooting section during the Marin game was a great help in stimulating the team to victory. Berns expressed hopes that more students would come to root for the team. "The Marin game proved that rooters help in aiding the cagers to score. If the student body wants the team to win, it would be a good idea to be at Kezar tonight," Berns concluded.

The preliminary Lamb-Armstrong game starts at 6:30 o'clock.

RAMblings by Ray Berns

Looking through the daily papers the other morning, we found a news item relating how the New Domestic Laundry basketball team was really going places in the PAA tourney.

What interested us most, however, was the fact that Al Opalinsky, Hal Fischer, and Ed Curcio, Ram stars in '38 and '39, are the motivating factors on the New Domestic squad.

All of which brings back memories of the 1938 PAA quarter-final hoop clash between St. Mary's College and the locals in which Opalinski, Fischer, and Curcio, then freshmen, were the deciding factors in a spectacular 42 to 38 upset victory over the Moraga collegians.

"Opal" alone accounted for 21 points, a feat which gained for him a spot on an all-Northern California team containing the great Luisetti, while Curcio banged in 11, with Fischer proving superb at rebounding.

* * * *

Local columnists, although proferring their allegiance to Joe DiMaggio as a ballplayer, are, nevertheless, up in arms over the fact the Custom Tailors' Guild has named the North Beach swatter the eighth best-dressed man in the country. In short, Joe has been called a clothes-horse.

The entire episode would be of little or no consequence to us if it weren't for the fact that the college may boast of Ken "Fashion Plate" Pasqualetti.

"Pasq," who at various times resembles a page out of Esquire, is highly indignant over the fact that his sartorial splendor has, up 'til this time, gone unnoticed. We feel for Kenny.

* * * *

Many people have asked the reason for the highly unorthodox cage schedule this year.

Why, for instance, do we meet San Mateo, Modesto, and Sacramento twice, and the other colleges only once?

Well, if you will but bear with us for a few moments, we shall attempt a brief explanation.

The smaller, or "B" schools in the junior college conference, that is, Marin, Menlo, Santa Rosa, Yuba, Placer, and Salinas outnumber the larger institutions and, consequently, control the voting at conference meetings.

As a result the smaller colleges, quite naturally, fix things to suit themselves.

* * * *

In a press dispatch from Los Angeles not so very long ago, a Los Angeles news hound, reporting a Trojan basketball victory, played up the fact that four of the Trojan's first string were from Los Angeles, the lone exception being the "player of the year," Ralph Vaughn, who hails from Indiana.

USC, after years of importing basketeers from the Middle West, finally comes up with a home-grown team, and the lads waste no time in raising a big fuss and hullabaloo.

For a concrete example of the type of basketball played in the Los Angeles high schools—the type of cagers produced by the preps—study carefully the record of UCLA.

UCLA's entire roster is composed of Los Angeles all-city players, and we can't say that UCLA is any too good. Confidentially, . . .

RAMettes by Lu Antonicelli

SKI HEIL!

Skiing has not only hit the nation in a big way, but it has invaded the innermost portals of the college—now WAA is thinking seriously of adding the great sport to its already large list of outstandingly popular outdoor activities.

Since the college ski club has in its midst several of the local lovelies, the WAA will take steps to co-sponsor the group. Which is a very good thing, as there is still room open for membership in the ski club. There is, of course, a term fee, but that isn't large. Better still, there are trips to the various snow centers—Sugar Bowl, Cisco, Pinecrest, etc., and a large part of these trips are the intercollegiate ski meets, which, since there are so many college snow devotees, promise to become bigger and better.

Furthermore, it has been requested, time and again, that the college form a women's team to compete with the various other junior college teams in conjunction with the men's ski meets.

Without a doubt, there are many women here who are snow enthusiasts—it is for them to come out and join the club; lead the way to what may become a major women's activity as well as a national winter pastime. Ski meetings are held at the various members' homes at an hour and date named at each meeting.

* * * *

NEW SYSTEM EFFECTIVE

At the last council meeting it was decided that managers for dancing, golf, and fencing, would be nominated and elected when the classes were a little better organized. Which brings to mind the fact that voting last week was exceptionally good. It would seem that the new system (each club voting for its own manager) is going to be a very satisfactory arrangement.

Reports are that the queries being sent out by the WAA committee for information about the system of awards in the various American colleges, are receiving widespread attention.

* * * *

PLAN TENNIS-ARCHERY MEET

Aside from the fact that San Francisco is undergoing a perpetual cloudburst, spring must be well on its way. Women tennistars have planned a Tennis-Archery meet for the lower classmen of the colleges in California, for April 2 at the Palace of Fine Arts. Represented are expected to be San Mateo Junior College, Marin Junior College, San Jose State, San Francisco State, Modesto Junior College, and Sacramento Junior College. The scheduled meet will be similar to the one held last semester when the local junior collegiennes ran off with the highest scores. Wonder how this one will turn out?

* * * *

Last semester when the splash-spread event was staged, the swimming chairman thought up a very ingenious method of holding a swimming race. Contestants were provided with magazines and requested to swim on their back, at the same time reading aloud from the magazine. What a racket it created! Also present at last semester's splash-spread were Helen Crienkovich, the college's ace mermaid, and Maxine Turner, drum majorette de luxe, who did a tap-dance accompanied at the piano by Dean Browne.

The Score Book

S.F.J.C.	Fg	Ft	TP
Cerf	2		4
Kerwin	3		6
Richard	4		8
Genesy	6		12
Mossler		1	1
Johns		1	1
Pfahnl	4		4
Total			36

S.F. STATE	Fg	Ft	TP
Loustalot	2		4
Franfelle	3		6
Collingwood	5	2	12
Kerwin	5		10
Thayer	4		8
Total			40

Lambs vs Manov's Armstrong Five Tonight; Ryan Predicts Possible Win

Although receiving a 25-point defeat at the hands of the strong and towering Stockton team, the college Lambs go forth tonight at Kezar to redeem themselves against the Armstrong Junior College of Berkeley.

Coached by Tony Manov, former member of the college Ram five, Manov's team took a 101 to 38 defeat from Marin, the very same team which Tom Wilson's men played a trilling 32 to 33 in an almost overtime, when they were behind 10 points at the half.

Planning to use the same defense as was used during the above mentioned game, the Lambs are assured of a win, even though their last two games were not as good as was expected of them.

Captain Ryan insisted the former games were played on their off days, and that tonight's game will prove the Lambs' ability. "The trips were long and tiresome, and training table food felt like a pill," Ryan said.

Although not much is known about Armstrong, Tom Wilson is anxious to play with them to see how good a team coached by a former student of the college will vie with his own ability.

"We urge all members of the Associated Students to attend," Coach Wilson said. "Rooters help a great deal in playing of any sport. Not many students have seen the Jayvees play, and the chances are they won't, because we have only two or three more games to play," Wilson concluded.

Ace Correspondent Claims Baseball Front Quiet;

This week's rains have halted all activity along the Ram baseball front. The Mission High game, scheduled for last Tuesday afternoon was called off because of the rain and soggy field. Practice is impossible at Funston this week, and nothing new has developed since last week at this time.

Coach Jack Gaddy hasn't been able to definitely pick a starting team because of the lack of practice, but looks for clearing skies, and hopes to have a regular starting nine selected soon.

Uniforms have not been given out yet, but will be distributed as soon as practice gets under way again.

In other words, all is quiet along the baseball front this week.

Ski Enthusiasts Practice To Meet Salinas At Norden

With the scheduled ski meet with Salinas Junior College two weeks away, the college snowmen will travel to Norden this week-end for the first of a series of practice trips in the Sugar Bowl area. The meet will probably consist of a cross-country race, a downhill race, and a slalom race, according to Bob Ogg, club president. Expected to compete are Ogg, Erling Jacobsen, and Vernon Estey. The next meeting of the ski club will be held on March 10 at Ogg's home in Berkeley where a buffet supper will be served. The Salinas meet will be the first participation for the local club.

When Walter Johnson pitched 58 consecutive shut-out innings in 1913, he established a major league record that has defied the hurlers ever since.

Tracksters Eye Places In PAA Events

Relying on four distance runners and two pole vaulters, Russell J. Sweet, college track coach, hopes tentatively to place the Ram contingent somewhere in the P.A.A. meet, March 5, at the Civic Auditorium.

Sweet supports that hope by revealing a pair of promising pole vaulters, Eddy Perry and Keith Groswird. Both men have consistently been hitting upwards of thirteen and one-half feet in practice.

Also in the running for track berths on the cinder team to represent the Rams in the P.A.A. events are Don White and Bert Korn. Because of the muddy oval at Kezar, Sweet has been unable to clock these runners recently over measured quarter-mile distances. However, with the addition of Harry Wong and George Young who ran on '30 teams in high school, Sweet plans to form a mile relay team which will furnish stiff competition for the college's track opponents.

Downpours, wet, soggy tracks, and windy weather gave the Ram tracksters little if any time to practice during the past week.

With Kezar Stadium and Commerce field full of puddles, the local trackmen have had to take their warm-ups indoors.

"We hope to keep in shape despite the bum weather that has come about," Sweet said. According to the track mentor, the weather has hindered all outdoor athletics within the bay area.

When asked which teams he considered the Rams' toughest rivals, Sweet replied, "San Mateo and Sacramento Junior Colleges have the strongest teams in the conference. They will be hard to lick. Of course, our meet with San Francisco State College is always interesting, and should prove to be close-fought again this year."

Three Ice Club Members At Santa Rosa Place In Cal Championships

Skating easily and well, three of the college's prize ice skaters proved their ability by taking two first places and one second place in the California State Figure Skating Championships held last week-end at Santa Rosa.

In first place in the men's senior competitions was Murray Galbraith, recently returned from Cleveland where he took second place in the National Figure Skating competitions.

Following Galbraith was Bill Hart who took second place in the Men's Junior competitions, and Ed Bodell, first placer in the Men's novices.

On March 29, Galbraith, Hart, and Bodell will enter the Pacific Coast Figure Skating championships in Oakland. They will compete as before, in the men's senior, junior, and novice classes respectively.

Because of the Washington's Birthday holiday, ice skaters postponed their Friday meeting until today, when they will meet to decide upon a definite date for the Ice Carnival tentatively scheduled for some time in March.

Included in the carnival, according to Hart, club president, is a proposed plan to stage an "all-star broom game," and a fourteen step-dance on ice.

Advanced skaters are now receiving instructions from "Red" Glendenning of Winterland Rink in ice dancing for the exhibition. Joseph Williams, club adviser, requested that any and all women who can dance on ice see him, as possible additions to the group receiving instructions from Glendenning. The reason he gave was an insufficient number of women in the group.

Friday's meeting will also be for the purpose of discussing a plan for either awarding ice skate pins to outstanding skaters or putting the pins on sale.

Cagers Lose Close Battle With Gator In PAA Meet, 40-36

College hopes of the trip to Denver to represent the Pacific Athletic games were nipped in the bud when the Rams dropped a thriller to the older and more experienced San Francisco State College quintet Wednesday night by a score of 40 to 36.

The bared fangs of the Gator sank deep into the Ram flank in the last minute when State managed the cinching field goals, thus allowing the team to play in the semi-finals.

Gators tallied the first score, but Vern Genesy of the college followed with two perfectly executed plays to put the Rams in the lead. Collingwood of State, who had been peppering the bucket with shots, scored twice, placing the State again in lead position.

All through the game, bucket for bucket, shot for shot, both teams ran wild, while both coaches yelled themselves hoarse. Using a zone defense and shifting to a man-to-man, State held the upper hand in the first half. As the half-time gun sounded, the score read 18 to 16.

Playing his usual lightning fast game, Genesy stole the rebounds, dived for elusive passes and tipped in almost impossible shots, while Kerwin, Cerf and Richards accounted for many a shot. Forward Bob Staynor was benched this game because of an infected ear.

Concensus of college rooters at the game was the referee's overlooking of technical fouls while obvious hacking and tripping was neglected. The game might have had a different score had these more important fouls been called.

Leading in high scores for the college was the energetic Genesy with 12, and Richard with 8. For State, Collingwood accounted for 12, sharing high point honors, while Dave Kerwin tallied 10.

The names of Jim Kerwin of the college and Dave Kerwin of State caused considerable mixups until the announcer explained the situation.

Genesy, Staynor And Kerwin In Sports Personalities Interview

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of campus personalities. The purpose of these stories is to introduce sport greats and personalities.

BASKETBALL

Amiably hailed as "Red" by his fellow students, Jim Kerwan is rated as the "fightingest" man on the Ram five. Six feet one inch from the basketball court floor, "Red" is a transfer from St. Mary's College, and a graduate of Sacred Heart.

His smile turned into a laugh when questioned about women. "I have no particulars to which women can look forward to; anyway, I'm not particular." He likes to eat—anything, as long as it isn't poison.

(If anyone wants to take a good look at me—says he—I'm on NYA at the check room at Powell.)

"Bashful Bob" Staynor was sitting industriously studying chemistry, his major. There was a tinge of pink around his ears when questioned about the fairer sex. Evading the question in every way, it was learned that Bob attended Berkeley High before coming to the college. He plans to go to California to further his study of Chemistry. Six feet even and 152 pounds, Bob was considered a new find by Coach Conlan.

Born in Oregon—Portland to be exact—Bob is an "A" student. Commuting daily (via the thumb), he is quiet in front of women. Finally, he admitted he "doesn't mind their company." It was learned, however, from sources, that all he needs is a few more weeks. "He really is a nice fella," said one of his friends. "Just bashful, that's all."

Whereupon, Vernon Genesy, stellar center for the college, sauntered in. Aeronautic engineering is his ultimate ambition. His favorite color is yellow "but I like brunettes too," he said. His pastime is taking hunting and fishing trips besides playing basketball, and he likes to eat too.

Noticing a medal for track on his key chain, he was questioned about it. Modestly, he admitted he "did a little track," high jumping near six feet and broad jumping some 20 feet 8 inches. (Notice, Russ Sweet.) "Women? Well, you can quote me as saying (ahem) I HATE SILLY WOMEN!!

"I played one year of basketball at Berkeley High, but this is the first time I was coached with a hand that guides as well as does Coach Conlan's. He's swell."

"I hope to go to U.S.C. or U.C. to continue studying, then maybe to Boeing," he said.

Rifle Club Enters State Gallery Championships

Entering five divisions, Captain McFarland has announced that his Rams will "shoot to win" tonight in the 4th Annual California State Gallery Rifle Championship which will be held at the National Guard Armory.

Three teams of men and two women divisions representing the college will participate among the several competing teams, McFarland indicated.

In the men's division, team number one for the Rams will be comprised of Charlie North—captain, Louis Davy, George Humphrey, Art Templeton, and Bill Conley.

Shooting on team number two will be Myron Pierce, Jimmy Juri, Akimasa Uyeda, Jack Moody, and Albert Razum. The third team will be made up of Dan Rhodes, Vernon Humber, Jack Hewitt, James Adams, and Russell Weeks.

On the first team for the women marksmen will be Marion Schrick, Marion Murphy, Margaret Yeager, Kate Hastings, and Irene Gruenbaum.

Astrid Rogenes, Mary Rowan, Mary Healy, Bette Barlas, and Sylvia Rogenes will shoot on the women's second squad.

All of the above have been selected on the basis of their average scores made in rifle competition during the past and present semesters, McFarland said.

